There'll be those who will speculate for many years that Jack Ruby had something to hide and that he was a member of a conspiracy to assassinate President Kennedy and that the real perpetrators of the crime are free and at large. No amount of convincing seems to end their doubt that Ruby was in cahoots with others in the performance of the dastardly killing by Harvey Oswald. We feel perfectly assured though that Oswald acted on his own behalf and that Ruby did the same, in an emotional act to liquidate President Kennedy's slayer. Millions felt the same way as did Ruby. There always will be a certain amount of doubt in some people's minds.

Many times we read and hear things that we think could never happen here in Emmitsburg. Take the case of the highly flammable baby dolls that hit the market over Christmas. It was not discovered until it was too late and apparently tragedy has hit some homes in nearby and distant towns and cities. Anyway, early this week some of these dolls, made in European countries, were shown on television. In Baltimore, police actually set fire to some of the dolls to demonstrate how quickly they became engulfed in flames. The very next day several Emmitsburg families became cognizant that they had just such dolls in their homes and their children were playing with the dangerous toys. Several were brought to Chief Law and it is believed possible that more could be in local homes. If you suspect you have purchased or received any of these highly flammable dolls, better get rid of them immediately.

The local Chamber of Commerce is currently sponsoring a "slogan" contest. Entry forms have been placed in local sponsoring stores and it is hoped to come up with some endearing slogan concerning the old burg. This slogan could be used for many years to help publicize Emmitsburg. To the enterprising person who wins, a $100 savings bond will be his or her reward. Everyone is urged to participate, young or old. It costs you nothing and you very easily could win the nice award. Try your luck today. The contest closes in about three weeks.

TOWN MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of the Burgess and Commissioners will be held Monday evening, January 9. The meeting, regularly scheduled the first Monday of the month, was rescheduled for this Monday, due to the holiday this week.

Safety Director Praises Newspapers

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle: I wish I could express my deep appreciation for your wonderful cooperation in our attempt to curtail Maryland's highway death and injury toll. While I realize there were more deaths and injuries this year than last, I take consolation in the fact that without your help the toll would have been much worse. Of course we have no record of the highway accidents you helped us prevent—only the Lord knows that. We have records only of the deaths and injuries that did occur.

Those who dreamed of a "White Christmas" got their wish. I prayed for a safe Christmas Day, but unfortunately a 17-year-old boy shoveling snow in his driveway was struck and killed by a motorist charged with driving under the influence.

Again, our grateful thanks to you and your staff and best wishes for your good health and happiness in the New Year.

Sincerely,
Paul E. Burke
Executive Director, Maryland Traffic Safety Commission.

EYE CLINIC AT HOSPITAL PROVES BENEFICIAL

More than 240 persons suffering eye defects have been examined at the satellite eye clinic of the Wills Eye Hospital which opened August 10 at the Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, and 100 of the original number have either returned for subsequent treatment or have been referred to the Philadelphia institution for surgery or advanced eye care.

In announcing an end-of-the-year report for the clinic, the first of its kind in the country under the famous Philadelphia hospital, Dr. Wayne L. Erdbrink, project director, said "the initial success of the local clinic has indicated a real need for this facility to augment existing services in this community" in the interest of preserving and reviving man's sight.

The basic concept of the clinic is to serve the medically indigent, and referrals from local medical doctors.

The majority of the patients since mid-August have been referred by school nurses and the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind for vision screening and other sight investigations, although 32 of the total number of patients were within the 10-20 year age group.

The report indicates that only 15 persons between the ages of 20 and 40 received clinic service, while 32 persons between the ages of 40 and 60 sought help from the rotating eye surgeons who are in charge of the clinic each Wednesday at the hospital. Eleven persons aged 60-70 were referred to the clinic. Six patients between 80 and 90 years of age have been treated or referred to the Philadelphia hospital for surgery.

Emergency operating facilities for minor procedures are available to Wills surgeons in the emergency room at the Warner Hospital for out-patients, but advanced surgery is performed at the Philadelphia institution. Dr. Morton Richman, director of the clinic, is assisted by rotating surgeons from the Wills Hospital, in the treatment and surgical needs of patients. Mrs. William Lentz, R.N., is the clinic nurse, and Mrs. Jesse Dagenhardt, R.N., is the clinic field nurse in charge of appointments.

Vital to the success of the pilot clinic of the Wills Hospital have been a number of state and local agencies supporting the project. Following refractions, a number of eyeglasses have been purchased for indigent patients by the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind and several Lions Clubs of Adams County. The Gettysburg Lions Club, among the original agencies responsible for the location of the pilot clinic in Gettysburg, already has donated $700 for equipment for the clinic.

Among patients the clinic has served have been patients from Emmitsburg. The service also includes neurological treatment for persons whose visionary afflictions have affected other areas of general health.

Dr. Erdbrink stressed that the local clinic is designed to treat local persons who already are under the care of private physicians but who are not under the care of area ophthalmologists. Clinical reports are relayed to the physician. The results of student examinations also are sent to the school nurses.

Jail Inmates Seek Voluntary Military Service

Three hundred eighty-six jail inmates have offered to fight in Vietnam in a letter to Rep. Clarence D. Long (D.Md.) Rep. Long praised the prisoners for their patriotic spirit and passed their offer over to the Defense Department.

The Defense Department has turned down the offer until their terms are completed. Moreover, a Defense official said some of the prisoners may not be eligible for service upon release because of the severity of their crimes.

"We the signers," said the petition from inmates at the Maryland Correctional Institute at Hagerstown, "would like to be considered for military service in Vietnam. We would much rather fight Communist aggression on foreign soil than fight on our own soil five or ten years from now."

The majority of signers, serving terms ranging from eighteen months to eighteen years, are between 18 and 26 years old.

"The offer by these petitioners is commendable," replied Brig. Gen. William Berg, Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense. "However, the Department is opposed in principle to any procedure which would make the performance of military service an alternative or substitute for punishment for civil offense."

Rep. Long said he agreed completely with the Defense Department's policy. He said, however, he would help in obtaining a military enlistment for any of the prisoners who are eligible for service upon completion of their terms.

Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon C. Holder, Westminster Rd., announce the engagement of their daughter, Gordette Marie Holder, to Daniel L. Gerrie, son of Jennie L. Motter, 209 E. Main St., Emmitsburg, Md., and Leo J. Gerrie, Champagne, Ill. No date has been set for the wedding.

Would Eliminate Temptation Here

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle:

I have been reading in the papers about safety being built in new cars, safety seat belts, new roads, etc. When so many people got killed near Emmitsburg you heard so much about roads not being built right, etc., but you never heard about some of the other things that were the cause of death, such as drinking, which the load of college boys that got killed, started right here in Emmitsburg. Then you read about the taverns and lounges being open to 2 a.m. on holidays. You ride through Emmitsburg on a holiday such as New Year's of this year, everything is closed but the liquor stores. I have gone through town on Christmas Eve and the only thing open was liquor stores. They say over half the accidents are caused by drinking. Somebody makes a dollar or two for somebody's life. Wake up people, let's get some laws changed. Start right at home.

Mathias Would Bar Powell

Several of Maryland's Congressmen, including Charles McC. Mathias Jr. (R-6th), oppose the seating of Harlem Congressman Adam Clayton Powell pending a misconduct hearing.

"It would be both good judgment and good taste if Powell did not press to take his seat until the hearing is completed," Mathias said. His views were echoed by several other congressmen.

However, Mathias said if Powell does attempt to take his seat and Congress can prove the charges against him, he would be compelled to vote against seating Powell.

Powell, convicted in New York of contempt of court for refusing to pay a libel judgment against him, also is accused of misusing House funds to travel to and from Puerto Rico.

St. Joe's Team Has Troubles

The absence of Ray Baker was made evident as St. Joseph's High School dropped two more games this week, losing to St. Maria Goretti of Hagerstown and St. Joseph's of Martinsburg. The defeats left St. Joe's record at 8-3, but at the same time left them with an 0-3 record in the always tough BRCL.

On Thursday, St. Joe's lost to Hagerstown by a score of 81-64 as the superior height was too much for the smaller Saints to overcome. For the locals, Sherwin's 28 and Williams' 18 were the big guns, while Bacon's 18 and Fells' 19 were the top scorers for the Gaels.

It was the same story Tuesday evening as the Trojans of Martinsburg completely dominated the game and overpowered the Saints by a score of 83-56. The only bright spot of the game was the tremendous shooting exhibition of Marty Williams, who netted 31 points. Williams hit on 11 of 16 shots from the floor and 9 of 10 from the foul line and also pulled down 2 rebounds, as well as a good steady defensive game. For Martinsburg, Kneisly with 16 and Noll with 14, were high.

Road Deaths Record High

Twelve persons were killed on Maryland highways last week according to the weekly survey published by the Maryland State Police. Three of those killed were drivers; five were passengers; and four were pedestrians.

Alcohol was a contributing factor in two of the deaths; speed in four; and "driver error" was present in eight of the fatalities.

Maryland closed out the year 1966 with a record number of highway fatalities. The total of 747 deaths—7% over the previous year—included 345 operators, up 15%; 229 passengers, down 3%, and 173 pedestrians, up 7%.

Citizen Opposes Recreational Dam At Cunningham Falls

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle:

(This is a copy of the letter sent to Paul W. McKee, Director, Department of Water Resources.) I wish to address to the board of water resources my objections to the building of a dam for a lake at Cunningham State Park. As a taxpayer of the State of Maryland, (an das such an interest in this land is invested in me as an individual), I feel this is a waste of the taxpayers money especially when this section of Frederick County already has a large lake for recreational purposes in Greenbrier State Park close by in Washington County. Not only is it a waste of taxpayer's money, but the destruction of this beautiful natural area, which is much today as it was in the days of our early settlers, would be a cruel hoax on the citizens of Maryland. It no longer would be the quiet recreational area it is now which Americans at the moment so sorely need, but it would become a "Coney Island" littered by some classes of people who value leisure more than their heritage. Your name itself is a Frederick County name. Possibly you don't come from this county, but if you do, you surely have noticed the unsurpassed beauty, quietness, and peaceableness of this area. What do you think large masses of people from far and wide coming into this area on holidays and Sundays for swimming, boating, ice skating, skiing, etc. would do to this location. The small, narrow, but beautiful mountain road with its rustic bridges would of necessity have to be enlarged into a super highway to accommodate them, or a large road would have to be cut through the park elsewhere. The quiet beauty of Catoctin Mountain Park would be impinged on, and I dare say no President would desire to have his haven from the burdens of his office in such a public place. Security for him could be difficult if the State of Maryland wishes to make it so!

You probably think that I should have addressed this letter to the Department of Forest and Parks. Their minds are made up. They seem determined to build this dam regardless of the wishes of most of the people. The plan was hatched by a few, and this few grew to more. The general public knew little about it until the groundbreaking ceremonies were announced. Since that time, regardless of protests, the Department of Forest and Parks has proceeded whether they owned the land or not. A large road has been pushed through the forest already destroying considerable natural beauty. Your commission does control water resources, and therefore you must recognize the fact that one of the best trout streams in the State will be disturbed in its natural setting, and the ecology of the trout will be out of its normal balance. The Game and Inland Fish Commission says that it has given the Department of Forest and Parks permission to go ahead with the dam provided they meet certain criteria. Mr. Rubleman of this commission, when asked what would happen if the criteria were not met after the 70 foot dam was built, stated that he would depend on the contractor building it so that the criteria could be met. Here we have a commission relying completely on a contractor to build a dam to meet specific scientific criteria. When the dam is built, and the criteria are not met, and trout fishing is ruined, what happens? Does the contractor tear the dam down and rebuild it, and who in the meantime pays for all this extra expense?

Surely you can see that the situation should be given deep and careful study in the many facets it involves by individuals trained in their respective fields; and well paid so that they will not bow to the influence of their employers. Only after such a careful study should any dam be built on Hunting Creek. This is your commission's duty. But again I say, if the Department of Forests and Parks persists in building their dam in this unusually beautiful spot, the person or persons permitting them to do so will eventually "answer for it" to the taxpayers who really care.

Sincerely yours,
N. Dale Draper

School Board Ask Funds For Thurmont School

The superintendent of schools requested $2,879,000 from the county commissioners Tuesday for the construction of the new Thurmont High School.

In addition to county funds, $200,000 in state money has been appropriated for the building and an estimated $500,000 will be needed for equipment for the school at a later time.

Charles E. Collins, president of the Board of County Commissioners, said that the board could only approve or disapprove the request, but could not make changes to the plans for the school.

If the commissioners do not approve the request, Collins added, they can only make suggestions to the school board.

The commissioners have until January 23 when the low bid made by the Frederick Construction Company expires to make their decision.

The final contract price for the school was arrived at after several weeks of negotiations between school officials, the architect for the building and the contractor.

The Board of Education accepted the negotiated price of $3,013,890 at a special meeting Dec. 27 by a 4 to 3 vote. The original vote was tied 3-3 but the president, Mary Condon Hodgson, voted and broke the tie in favor of acceptance.

Miss Keilholtz Heads 4-H Club

The Christmas Party committee had games, dancing and refreshments after the meeting.

FIRE RAZES ZORA HOME; 5 HOMELESS

Five members of the Sgt. and Mrs. Peter McEldowney family were left homeless Thursday, December 29 at 5 o'clock when their two-story frame house near Zora, was gutted by fire. Four pet dogs perished in the $12,000 blaze.

Approximately 60 members of the Emmitsburg, Fairfield and Thurmont Fire Companies fought the blaze in freezing weather for nearly four hours before bringing it under control. Only the charred walls of the house, built of logs, with a layer of weather-board and shingles, remained after the blaze.

Mrs. McEldowney and her four children, Susan, Mike, John and Marcy, were at home at the time of the fire. They lost all of their personal belongings in the blaze.

Mrs. McEldowney's husband is serving with the U. S. Army in California. The family took up residence at the home of relatives in Thurmont after the fire.

Emmitsburg Fire Chief Guy R. McLaughlin reported that the fire apparently was caused by a short circuit in a light fixture located in a small room on the back porch of the house. Mrs. McEldowney told the fire chief that she discovered the fire after smelling smoke in the kitchen. She first checked her stove and then went into the small room on the back porch and found the ceiling completely engulfed in flames.

The firemen were at first hampered in fighting the blaze by a number of outside electric wires near the fire. The wires finally burned off and the Potomac Power and Light Co., Chambersburg, arrived to shut off the electricity.

Due to the freezing temperatures water was pumped out of Tom's Creek a quarter of a mile from the fire and trucked up a steep, icy, mountain road to the fire. The strong winds on the mountain top also hampered fire fighting work.

Emmitsburg firemen responded to the fire with their three pumpers and service truck. Fairfield assisted with two pumpers and a utility truck, and Thurmont firemen brought one pumper.

Son Of Mount Alumnus Killed

Pfc. Hugh F. Winterhalter, 33, a son of the well known orchestra leader Hugo Winterhalter, Mt. St. Mary's College alumnus, was killed Dec. 29 while serving in Vietnam, it was learned here.

A resident of Chappaqua, N. Y., Winterhalter was in his second tour of duty in Vietnam. He was a member of the 169th combat engineers battalion and had previously served with the first air cavalry, 20th aerial artillery division, as a helicopter gunner.

The soldier's father graduated from the Mount in the early 1930's.

Winterhalter's mother, the former Miss Margaret Hardey, is a native of Frederick County. He also leaves a cousin, Miss Anna Rogers, Frederick.

A military funeral will be held today (Friday) at the Arlington National Cemetery.

Recreational Funds Announced

The Maryland Department of Forests and Parks has relieved the first reimbursement of funds from the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation under the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act, it has been announced by Spencer P. Ellis, Department Director.

A check in the amount of $117,154 towards the purchase of a 137-acre tract adjoining Sandy Point State Park was presented to the Department by Roland B. Handley, Northeast Regional Director of the Bureau.

A division of the United States Department of the Interior, the Bureau is headed by Edward C. Crafts.

The Federal grant, which will total $140,000, will be matched by an equal amount from the State, Mr. Ellis noted.

Purpose of the Federal Program is to stimulate and assist local and State governmental agencies in creating new and expanded public outdoor recreation areas and facilities. The fund is supported by revenues from the sale of the new $7 Federal recreation permit, other outdoor recreation entrance and user fees, the sale of Federal surplus real property and the Federal motorboat fuels tax.

For Fatso, It May Be Best If He's Left So

The best way to keep a fat man jolly may be to let him remain fat. A Northwestern University psychiatrist says the best emotional medicine for many buttonballs is staying fat. Some of the reasons such persons are better off fat than skinny include: they are not expected to expend much physical effort; it is pleasant to be regarded as a "fat, jolly man;" sheer bulk makes it easy to dominate some people; size is often interpreted as a sign of good health; many obese persons have had embarrassing contacts with the opposite sex during adulthood and staying fat will prevent them from future embarrassing contacts.

College students who use LSD often are seeking rapid solutions to personal problems and are afflicted with deep-seated feelings of personal inadequacy and shame. A Vancouver, B.C. psychiatrist

He also said that the average housewife cannot consistently produce the quality, uniform product manufactured by the food industry.

Lake trout and other important fish species are increasing in numbers in the Great Lakes as a result of efforts to control sea lamprey, (eels), reports the Uni-

The increase of these species is said to be due to chemical control of streams where the lamprey spawn. YOU MUST SEE CLEARLY TO DRIVE SAFELY

The Safe Winter Driving League presents the following tip for safer winter driving from the National Safety Council: "Don't be a 'peep-hole' driver—clear snow, frost and road-muck off the entire windshield and side and rear windows as well. Replace dead, streaking wiper blades with live, new ones. Make sure headlights, taillights and directional signals are working properly. You must see danger to avoid it."

Babson's Point Of View On: New Swing Toward Foreign Cars

BABSON PARK, Mass., Jan. 5—Some executives of our own U. S. auto-manufacturing Big

Three—General Motors, Chrysler, and Ford—have admitted that they expect another dip during 1967 in total output, which would mean the second consecutive year of lowering sales. Executives of firms importing foreign cars express no such doubts. Almost unanimously they predict that 1967 will be the second successive record-breaking year for their products. Does this mean a greater swing toward the purchase of foreign cars; and, if so, what is behind the switch in trend?

Basis For Divergent Predictions

The question may well have more than one answer, probably a number of answers. But the essential fact is that statistics already provide a reasonable basis for the contrast between the pessimism of domestic producers and the optimism of foreign car dealers. Taking November figures (latest available), it may be seen that foreign car sales have risen an impressive 18% over those of a year ago. This compares dramatically with a decline of 7% in domestic new car sales over the same period.

While it is true that foreign car turnover represents only about 8% of the total market, there is something arresting about the fact that practically all the leading importers are chalking up gains while all our biggest producers are registering declines. If it were a matter only of restlessness or watchful-waiting on the part of the consumer public, there is no reason why both domestic and foreign auto sales should not reflect the same weakening tendency.

Magnet: Smaller, Cheaper Car

As in the case of residential construction, tight money undoubtedly is having some adverse effect on the demand for larger, more expensive cars. The lowest-priced model made in this country is now the Rambler American, which goes for $2,073. But look at the price range for foreign models; eight out of the ten biggest-selling imported cars can be bought for less. And there are a couple of score of other foreign makes also below the Rambler American price range, even though not among those best known to the public.

In other words, the U. S. producers have once again out-priced themselves. This happened following 1959, when foreign cars set their previous record for sales, capturing more than 10% of the total market. At that time, Detroit recognized its lack of models at the lower end of the price scale and moved in with its "compacts." These caught the popular fancy to a considerable degree, but gradually became larger and more expensive. Now it appears that the situation has come full-circle: If a buyer wants a small, inexpensive car, he can do best, he is convinced, in the import field.

Will The Trend Long Continue?

The momentum carrying sales of foreign cars upward has increased notably, and there is reason to believe that it will persist for some time to come. It is not, for example, purely the lower original cost that is helping the market for imported autos. When a family needs a car primarily for use by the housewife in shopping and for other short hauls, the woman often prefers a vehicle that is light, maneuverable, cheap to operate, and easy to park.

Then there is the question of glamor. If a man could easily afford a Cadillac, he is often as likely to buy himself instead a Mercedes-Benz or a Jaguar. The exotic flavor has appeal, and this has been partly instigated by our own effort to popularize the "sports car" image in such models as the Mustang, which caught on remarkably quickly. But, now, to be really different, many buyers feel that the foreign car is the thing, whether for economy purposes or for the kind of show-off of style found in the Jaguar.

Question is: Will Detroit try again to lure away some of this market with new, small, inexpensive sports models? Best guess is that the domestic auto makers won't, unless foreign-car sales once more move well above 10% of the market. Importers will be watching.

THE CARE AND FEEDING OF PROGRESS

HEALTH & SAFETY

Mainly for Mothers

by Carol Hart

Mom Was a Medicine Man

In Fifteenth Century America, the Northwest Pacific Coast Indians thought nothing of letting women of mature years become medicine men. These women were believed to have supernatural powers of healing.

Now, in Twentieth Century America, mothers are not deemed to have supernatural powers of healing, but they have learned from doctors, nurses and pharmacists, and from practical experience, much about care of sick members of their families.

The Council on Family Health says mothers can help relieve the pain and misery of illness and encourage the healing processes by planning a daily routine for the patient.

In the morning, wash or help the patient to wash face and hands, comb and brush the hair, and brush the teeth. Straighten bedding and patient's clothes. Ventilate the room. Give medication if required. Serve breakfast. Never leave medication within reach of the patient. A good idea is to place a bell or some sort of calling device on the night table.

At night, arrange the sick person as comfortably as possible, and try to get some rest and sleep yourself. The last thing a family needs when a member is sick, is for the homemaker to become ill and exhausted.

Unless directed by the doctor, it is not necessary for mother to wash her hands with disinfectants each time she does something for the patient. Soap and water will do.

If the patient is a small or helpless child, and there is no safety rail on the bed, falls can be prevented by backing chairs against the side of the bed.

When the weight of covers brings discomfort to the patient, they can be lifted by placing a wrapped cardboard box, a rolled up blanket or a pillow under the covers.

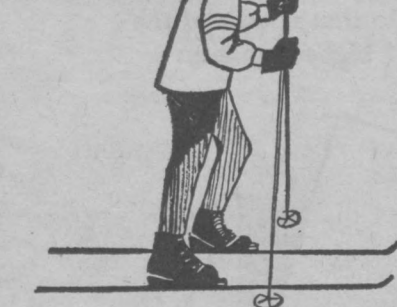

If there is no regular bed table, try an adjustable ironing board. Place it by the bedside so that one end projects over the bed.

The $25,000 prize, called the Research to Prevent Blindness Trustees' Award for Outstanding Ophthalmic Achievement, was presented at a dinner attended by eye research scientists from all over the world, marking the November dedication of the new Jules Stein Eye Institute at the University of California, Los Angeles. Dr. Walsh, 71, has been called "the Father of Neuro-ophthalmology" and his work has had broad impact upon modern diagnosis and treatment of eye diseases.

SKI TIPS

#2 SIDESTEP OR CLIMBING STEPS

By Ace Manley
Director, Big Bromley Ski School

The sidestep is the first climbing step that a beginning skier normally learns.

The fundamental principle in sidestepping is to keep the skis absolutely horizontal to the slope. By doing this, the skis will not slide forward or backward.

To insure an easy transfer of weight, each step is small. The uphill ski, which always moves up first, is lifted from the snow no more than six inches and placed approximately a foot up the hill from its original position.

The uphill pole accompanies the ski and is simultaneously placed in the snow near the boot or slightly in front of it.

The downhill ski is then lifted and brought parallel to the uphill ski.

In sidestepping, there is a natural tendency for the skis to slide down the hill sideways. To prevent this, it is important to keep the knees flexed slightly forward from the ankle and toward the hill.

In actuality, the skier tries to concentrate his step or weight on the uphill edge of the ski. With this edge "dug-in," the ski will not slide back downhill.

PLAN A PEPPY PICNIC

When the family plans a picnic, it's usually up to Mom to see to it that the basket gets filled with plenty of mouth-watering fare. But a peppy picnic can be planned with less work and worry for Mom, according to the makers of Cope, who offer these timely tension-free tips:

1. To avoid carrying heavy dishes or buying paper plates, start saving aluminum plates that you get with frozen foods, pies, etc. They are lightweight, and easy to wash or dispose of.

3. A plastic toothbrush holder makes an excellent container to hold a small warm, soapy water to wash children's paring knife in your picnic basket.

5. Include a bottle of Cope, a remedy designed for women's everyday headaches, to keep yourself feeling and silverware, bottle opener, etc. can fine even when things get hectic.

Sen. Kennedy: Light Can Fight Crime

Senator Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.) greets J. Parker Heck, (left), educational director of the Street and Highway Safety Lighting Bureau, to discuss street lighting as a crime deterrent. The senator's recent $5 million proposal now before Congress would provide Federal funds for street lighting to fight crime.

A new approach in the war on America's spiraling crime rate is now under consideration on Capitol Hill. Massachusetts Senator Edward M. Kennedy has presented to the 89th Congress an amendment to Title VII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 which would provide $5 million annually in Federal assistance to communities for improved street lighting.

In his presentation to Congress, Kennedy stated, "Better street lighting is one immediate and constructive step that our communities can take to fight crime." He cited Library of Congress figures showing that twelve times as many crimes of violence are committed at night as in daytime, mostly in dimly lit areas.

To illustrate how well-lit streets reduce the incidence of crime, Kennedy mentioned studies of re-lit areas in six cities, all of which showed marked crime reductions after re-lighting.

The senator also quoted figures showing that only 15 percent of the nation's downtown streets and less than one percent of our residential streets are adequately lighted.

Kennedy said discussions with officials of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, as well as examination of the statistics, have convinced him of the need for street lighting in the war on crime. He stated that the limited financial resources of many communities makes Federal aid a necessity to help them meet this need.

Now in the hands of the Housing Sub-Committee of the Banking and Currency Committee, the bill is expected to come up for consideration in the 90th Congress, which convenes in January.

Aerosol Sprays Damage Eyes

CHICAGO—Ladies, watch your aim when spraying your tresses, or your roses, or your armpits, or your oven. It seems that those aerosol jets can be harmful if the spray gets where it's not supposed to go. It can cause keratitis, inflammation of the cornea.

Dr. Angus L. MacLean, of Baltimore, Md., alerted physicians attending a meeting here of the American Academy of Ophthalmologists and Otolaryngologists that the "chemical genie-in-a-can" can cause keratitis, an inflammation of the cornea of the eye if accidentally sprayed into the eye. The damage depends on the force of the spray as it hits the delicate tissue of the eye.

Seventy of 80 cases Dr. MacLean has diagnosed as 'spray can keratitis' have resulted from hair sprays. While the damage is "usually superficial, mild, and temporary," Dr. MacLean advises caution, and maybe even protective masks!

Back Dimple Clue To Low Back Pain

BALTIMORE — Not far from the natural dimple in the sacroiliac region of the back may lurk the culprit responsible for low back pain suffered by middle-aged, obese women. Johns Hopkins Hospital internist, Dr. Martin Singewald, reported recently that sometimes benign, painless fatty tumors called lipomas develop in that area, causing the back ache.

Lipomas occurred four times as frequently in women as in men, according to the physician, and he found them in patients from 16 to 82 years of age. The lipomas can be removed surgically, generally ending the back pain. Sometimes relief is obtained by repeated injections of a local anesthetic agent.

Moving No Solution To Health Problems

CHICAGO — Will moving to a dry, warm climate help control your allergies? Will you be less prone to stress diseases — ulcers, heart ailments, hardening of the arteries — if you move to the South where such diseases are less frequent? Maybe yes. And then again maybe no.

The American Medical Association warned recently against precipitous decisions to move to another locale for health reasons, observing that the effect of climate on health is not clearly understood.

The Association urged that before pulling up stakes for health reasons, a consultation be held with the family doctor. Knowing the medical history of his patient, as well as the family's health and emotional patterns, he may be able to suggest four or five likely places to move to — or may suggest that no move at all be made.

As important as a change of climate, notes the AMA, are proper diet, lots of fresh air, plenty of sleep, adequate exercise . . . all of which can lead to a healthy mental outlook as well as to good physical health. Don't depend for information on local boosters. They'll tell you all the advantages but few of the disadvantages of their town. Test a new locale for yourself for a short period before making the final move. And don't, cautions the AMA, expect miracles from the new setting. Usually change, if it comes, comes slowly.

Trolling methods vary somewhat, depending on the species of fish and the depth at which they are feeding. The turbulence created by the wake of a moving boat will attract school tuna to strike fairly short lines; as a rule, however, bluefish will generally be caught on long lines that are trolled beyond the wake. — Sports Afield.

Carelessness Robs Family of Safety

One of the cruelest robbers known to man may be operating in your home.

His name is carelessness — and he's responsible for most of the more than 23 million injuries due to accidents in the home in a year. Carelessness robs your family of something more precious than jewels — its health and safety.

According to the Council on Family Health, routine precautions can prevent many of the situations which lead to home accidents.

When you finish giving medicine to your small son, do you replace the bottle in its proper storage place, beyond his reach? Or do you leave it on the night table, or kitchen counter, where he might reach it.

When you come in from marketing, do you place your purse on a high shelf in the closet? Or do you toss it onto a couch, chair or bed, where a small child can open it and find the box of tablets you keep there? He may be only two or three years of age, and not very selective about what goes into his mouth.

When you finish sewing, do you replace needles, scissors, pins and buttons in the sewing box, and store it up high? Or do you leave things laying around so little children can think they have found new toys?

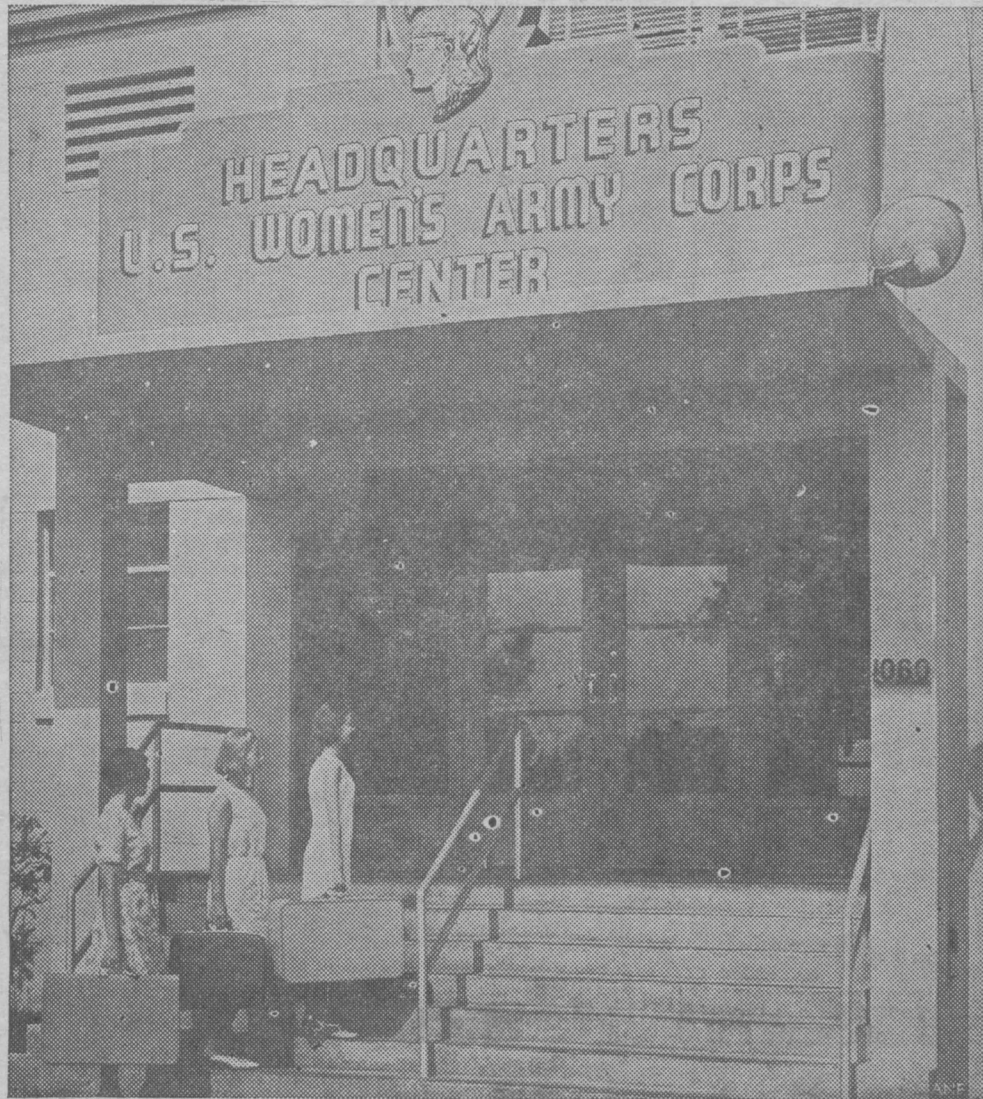

When you direct four-year-old Johnny to pick up the clutter of his toys in the entrance to the bedroom, do you check to see that he has done so? Or is the clutter left to become a menace to the whole family?

What about the cleansers you use for cleaning bathroom and kitchen tiles? Do you replace them in a high cupboard, beyond reach of pre-school children? Or do you shove them under the sink where they could be found by toddlers?

When you bring home the marketing, do you wash and dry fruit and vegetables thoroughly, before offering them to your family? Fruit and vegetables are sprayed and handled by many strangers before they arrive in your home.

Former March of Dimes Poster Boy Is Part of Twin Medical Problem

Identical twins are supposed to be carbon copies of each other in every respect but twin brothers Joel and Jeffrey Kirker, 6, New Stanton, Pa., have been cruelly different from birth.

Joel, the older brother by five minutes, was born with an open spine (spina bifida), a birth defect that has paralyzed him from the waist down. At the same spot on his back, Jeff has only a birthmark.

"When Jeff doesn't feel well, he gets two histers on his birthmark, otherwise he is a normal, very active little boy," says his mother, Mrs. Thomas Kirker.

Understandably, the young Kirkers pose a medical puzzle. As their mother puts it, specialists are "amazed that only one has the defect and not the other" or else are "quite lost for words" to explain the crippling differences in these identical twins.

Yet Mrs. Kirker says, "We feel we have a great deal to be thankful for because Joel is doing well and we can hope for even more improvement in the future."

Despite his physical handicap, Joel gets around quite a bit. During January, 1966, he was Pennsylvania State Poster Boy for the March of Dimes campaign to fight birth defects. This means that Joel traveled through a number of counties in his area and even appeared on a television in Pittsburgh.

Now as they watch the twins pretending they're big leaguers or playing together on the backyard slide, Mr. and Mrs. Kirker can appreciate all the things Joel can do even though he wears braces and uses a cane. They are thankful for the skilled medical care Joel received from the day of birth. Without that care, Joel might not be alive today.

When Joel was only one day old, his open spine was operated upon to give his spinal cord some protection. While surgeons could not restore the function of nerves and muscles, they did prevent further complications, the most dangerous being infections such as meningitis.

Like many other victims of open spine, Joel also had hydrocephalus ("water on the brain"). Doctors performed several operations to drain off the dammed-up fluid within the brain and thus relieve pressure.

"That's OK, Joel, even astronauts need help with their gear sometimes," says Jeff Kirker, 6, of New Stanton, Pa., as he helps his identical twin Joel into his braces.

Without relief, this pressure can lead to permanent mental damage, blindness or even death.

For Joel's parents, the past six years have been times of great emotional anguish, to say nothing of financial strain. Mr. Kirker has worked for the Bell Telephone Company since he graduated from McKeesport Technical High School in 1950.

In addition to caring for the twins and keeping house, Mrs. Kirker sells kitchenware to supplement her husband's income and help with medical expenses. The Kirkers are deeply grateful to the local chapter of the March of Dimes which helped pay Joel's hospital bills and covers the cost of braces which must be changed periodically.

Braces or not, Joel loves it when the family pile into their trailer and go out on a camping trip, something all the Kirkers enjoy. When they settle in a campsite, the whole family knows what to expect from Joel.

He invariably takes off to visit all the other campers, one by one. He loves to meet and chat with other people, even if it means climbing hills and fighting the underbrush every step of the way.

The twins can take care of each other pretty well these days. Joel can put on his braces for himself but sometimes Jeff helps him. Active, outgoing Jeff helps his quieter, more thoughtful brother in other ways, too. A firm "I think you'll like this, Joel," from Jeff often helps Joel make a decision in favor of places or things. This sort of fraternal influence leads Mrs. Kirker to tell friends that Joel's "twin brother is his therapist."

For Inter-Racial Advancement

One of the most accomplished and distinguished Negroes in American life believes that Negroes are damaging the future of their race and of our nation by responding to either the "non-violent" or the frankly terroristic agitation to "overcome" which has spread racial strife across the nation throughout 1966. He is George S. Schuyler America's best known Negro newspaperman. For 35 years, as the nationally-read columnist of the "Pittsburgh Courier," NAA-CP leader and active champion of Negro "causes," he has worked for the advancement of all members of his race.

Mr. Schuyler became a conservative in politics and economics after engaging for a short time in Socialist, Communist and other self-styled "liberal" movements in America and abroad. During the 35 years he has written for the "Courier," largest circulation Negro paper in America, he has admonished Negroes to advance through self-improvement and by making themselves attractive, as individuals and as a race, to their fellow Americans. He has steadfastly, through years of "left-wing" pressure to silence him, told Negroes that the American economic, governmental and social system offered the greatest opportunity for advancement to be found by Negroes anywhere in the world. "Self-Help" Advocated

Twenty-five years ago George Schuyler sought to organize a nationwide promotional campaign to be financed by Negroes designed to stimulate pride among members of the Negro race and to improve the unfavorable "images" of Negroes held by many people of other races. He founded the Association For Tolerance in America. In a six-page illustrated folder soliciting financial and moral support among Negroes, the Association stated its purpose:

"We will reach the white masses in their unions, churches, clubs and homes, in factories and on the streets. We will tell them about your past and about your present, and about our hopes for the future. We will reach the ordinary white American with the story of your service in all wars since the Revolution, of the excellence of your poets, the cleverness of your inventions, of the achievements of your scholars and business men; of the rise of the Negro church and your contributions as farmers, artisans and professional workers."

"You Are Judged"

Posters were prepared addressed to Negroes, which said: "You can help make America better . . . by your conduct. You are judged by your talk, your looks, your actions. Be neat, sober, clean, steady, thrifty, healthy, punctual, courteous, industrious." A folder for distribution among white people emphasized the positive values and contributions of Negro citizens.

The Association for Tolerance failed and had to be abandoned for lack of support. "We needed a vast amount of money to do even a part of the job," Mr. Schuyler writes in his autobiography, "Black and Conservative" (Arlington House, New Rochelle, N. Y.), "and the money was not forthcoming. We could not go on, although I think the objective was a worthy one . . . This was my second and last effort in group organization for betterment by self-help. I believed then, and still believe, that this approach to improvement of race relations is far better than agitation by self-serving Negroes who demand immediate solutions to age-old problems which have not been so solved anywhere on earth."

"Gifts And Gains"

In the last two paragraphs of his book, Mr. Schuyler speaks as one who loves his country: "There will be no color war here if we will and work not to have one, although some kind of color line there may always be, as there is elsewhere in the world. We do not need to share the wealth as much as we need to share our heritage so that all may proudly claim ownership in it. We need to strive to become one people in our resolution, determination, and achievement instead of two peoples, colored and white."

"There are forces in the world that want us to fail, and conspire toward that failure, which means disunity and destruction. We are here blessed with the right of mobility, the right of ownership, the privilege of privacy and development of personality, and the precious machinery of peaceful change. These gifts and gains it is the purpose of the conservative to defend and extend, lest we perish in the fell clutch of collectivism. These gifts and gains I have been trying in my small way to preserve."

Insects Gnawing on Your Lawn?

Ever wonder what is causing those ugly dead patches in your lawn?

An old saying goes, "There's nothing more evil than an underfed weevil." Yellow or brown patches of dying or stunted grass may be due to a number of causes, but usually they are a sign that soil insects have been using your lawn as a banquet table.

To prove it, try to pull up the dead grass. If the turf comes up easily with no roots attached, insects are probably present. If the dead grass still has attached roots, something else may be turning the grass brown.

Fall is a good time to get rid of soil insects—before they gorge themselves again next spring.

The offender may be grubs or larvae (the worm stage) of hard-shelled beetles. Grubs can usually be exposed by rolling back a few inches of sod.

The Japanese beetle grub has a ravenous chewing appetite for nearly every plant root it can find. It spends most of its life as a white C-shaped grub

A Viewpoint

By Thomas C. Callahan

Back from a vacation, and though rested, figure to be able to stand about two more football games this year. The Colts and Eagles in the Playoff Bowl, and the N.F.L.—A.F.L. tilt cleverly dubbed: "Su-per Bowl"! Oh, snucks, I guess a couple of all-star games too.

The Bowl Games

The Rose Bowl—A fourteen point favorite, Purdue University won in its first appearance at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena by a single point over impressive Southern Cal. 14-13. You'll recall, the Trojans of Southern California were smattered in their regular season finale by Notre Dame 51-0, and unfair as it seems, blamed Purdue for it and punished them, particularly the offensive line, unmercifully. The game was a tie, with actually U.S.C. taking the edge in all departments. They lost because they scored last and rather than take a tie chose the two-point conversion route under the idiotic college rules (obviously a good choice, though truly an unfair one to be presented with) and a Troy Winslow pass failed. Winslow outshone Purdue Q.B. Bob Griese courtesy of Southern Cal's irritable defense.

The Orange Bowl—Sophomore Larry Smith rushed for a record-breaking 187 yards, including a 94 yard touchdown gallop, in leading Florida to a 27-12 upset over Georgia Tech. Heisman Trophy winner and possibly next year's New York Giant signal caller, Steve Spurrier, played considerably below his par, but the Gator's defense throttled Tech at every turn. Florida coach Ray Graves, former assistant to Bobby Dodd of Tech indicated that during his apprenticeship he had learned well:

The Sugar Bowl—In what this writer found to be the most interesting game to watch despite the one-sidedness, Alabama finished their defense of the National Championship as the only undefeated and untied major college team in the country by spanking a good Nebraska team 34-7. Nebraska was undefeated but for a 10-9 upset at the hands of a sky-high Oklahoma football in their last contest of the regular season. It's hard to point at the star of this one because it was task enough just to keep track of the numbers running into the huddle. The substitution was so free that it looked like a drill, and I don't mean after the outcome was settled. Right from the go, 'Bama coach "Bear" Bryant set out to prove that this was a great team of great depth. Even quarterback Kenny Stabler, voted player-of-the-game, put in some splinter-time as early as the first quarter. Alabama is presently ranked third in the nation behind Notre Dame and Michigan State, who tied 10 all in that "game of the century" several thousand football games ago, but in defending a national championship, what more can a team do besides win them all? Especially when the opposition did not.

The Gator Bowl — Tennessee frolicked to an 18-0 halftime lead and hung-on for dear life as Floyd Little and Syracuse took over the last thirty minutes and finished on the depressing end of an 18 to 14 score. Little ran for over 200 yards finishing in the tradition of previous Syracuse number "44's", Jim Brown and the late Ernie Davis.

The Pros

As anybody who cares already knows Green Bay played just well enough to win (as usual) 34 to 27 in a game that made this writer a Cowboy fan. A doozy! Kansas City as expected won in that "other" league over Buffalo 31 to 7 and will attempt a week from this Sunday to prove that the

A.F.L. is professional not just because its players play for money.

A final bowl came into prominence last week also, that is, the punch bowl that my fiancé threatened to conk me with at each kickoff, a situation paralleled I'm sure in many homes. Gads, that's a lot of football!

Medical Assn. Proposes Car Safety Features

The head injury is the big killer in traffic accidents, says Today's Health, the magazine of the American Medical Association.

Injury to the head occurs in 72 per cent of auto accidents involving any kind of injury—and in 1965 there were 1,800,000 disabling injuries and 49,000 deaths in motor - vehicle accidents. Motorcycles and motor scooters contribute more than a small share of the head injuries.

Preventive measures against head injury in automobile accidents listed by Today's Health include protective helmets, shoulder harnesses, lap seat belts, cushioned head rests and making the backs of seats with more spring so that they will give under the force of an impact.

Shoulder harnesses as well as lap belts are recommended by the American Medical Association, as are safety latches; safety hinges; recessed control knobs on dashboards; and padding on visors, corner pillars, dashboard and the back of the front seat. The AMA for years has recommended many of the safety features being incorporated by law into 1967 and 1968 cars.

Objects placed on the car's rear shelf or dangled from the ceiling may become lethal, head-puncturing missiles in a panic stop. Parents should never allow small children to stand on the seats or the floors of an auto in motion. Nor should babies and young children be placed to play on a mat in the rear of a station wagon without being properly restrained. The child might become a missile himself when a car comes to a sudden stop.

The shoulder strap-lap belt will save many serious head injuries. The driver rolls with the crashing auto rather than bouncing about inside the vehicle. Pay particular attention to safety factors when weighing a decision as to which auto to purchase when the family is next in the market for a new car.

Head injuries can result from relatively minor auto bumps. Anyone who has been rendered unconscious by a blow should be seen by a physician. Persistent headache or vomiting, accompanied by increased lethargy after a relatively minor head injury, is cause for medical attention.

Plan Education Of Illiterates

The Community Action Committee of Frederick County and the Frederick County Literacy Council will sponsor a Literacy Workshop Teacher's Training Program on Saturday and Sunday, January 14 and 15, at the Evangelical Lutheran Church.

The Saturday session will be from 9-12 a. m., 2-5 p. m., and 7-9 p. m. Sunday session at 2:30 p. m. to 6 p. m.

The groups claim that as of the 1960 census there were 926 persons over 25 in Frederick City with less than five years of school; 3,126 persons over 25 in Frederick County with less than five years of school. These individuals are usually classified as "functional illiterates."

The groups plan Laubach Literacy, a method of teaching illiterates (especially adults) to read. The method is learned quickly and easily and requires no special educational background. You can teach Laubach.

If you are interested in helping please attend the sessions. If you care, bring a box lunch; tea and coffee will be available.

The instructor, Mrs. Bertha Corbin and her assistants, Mrs. Roberts and Mrs. Bailey, of the Koinonia Foundation, Baltimore, will conduct the classes.

Your attendance at this workshop will indicate your concern for illiteracy and the other myriad problems that attend the poor in our midst. There will be an opportunity for voluntary donations to cover workshop expenses.

To aid in estimating attendance, please return the slip below:

All About King Cotton

If you depend on king cotton for your livelihood, you're not alone; for according to government statistics, nearly 11-million American workers and their families also rely on this 3,000-year-old "wonder" fabric to make ends meet.

And "wonder" fabric is exactly what it is. The fiber, for example, can be woven into cloth one-fourth inch thick or so sheer and delicate as to have been referred to as "webs of woven wind."

A pound of cotton can be spun so coarse that it would extend not more than a few hundred yards, or so fine that it would reach from Washington to New York. Cotton cloth can be woven so tightly as to be waterproof. Chemical processes can make it resistant to flame, oil, rot, mildew, heat and scorch. Modern cotton fabrics can be truly wash and wear. With all of these attributes, the demand for cotton goods is greater than ever. Farmers — particularly in the Southern Plains and Mississippi Delta regions — are meeting this demand by growing 2, 3, 4 and even 5 bales of cotton per acre—and, thanks to good management and improved fertilizers, are using less labor in doing it.

Studies at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station in Lubbock, Tex., revealed recently that yield differences between fertilized and unfertilized continuous cotton increased each season. What's more, after two years of applying high analysis nitrogen and phosphorus fertilizers, the number of pounds of lint cotton per acre soared close to 900 as compared to 385 pounds per acre without help from fertilizer treatment.

Many farmers have found it most profitable to spread on high analysis plant foods—like Ammo-Phos fertilizers made by Olin — during the first couple of weeks in January or as soon as weather permits. These farmers have found Ammo-Phos fertilizers to be pelletized, ammonium phosphate fertilizers that are highly water soluble and convenient to use. In fact, according to leading agronomists at the Olin Mathieson laboratories, Ammo-Phos fertilizers revolutionized the fertilizer industry.
