Most Anything At A Glance

BY ABIGAIL

Since the death of the late Walter A. Simpson, for 30 years director of the local Band, this group has been struggling to reorganize and indications are that the struggle is finally beginning to materialize with success. Winning a prize here on June 8, the Firemen's Parade, the group copped fourth place in the July 4th parade at Gettysburg. Leaders of the Band say they have several forthcoming engagements and that morale is high at this time with high local interest both by youngsters and former members of the old Band. What is lacking though is the Band sadly needs uniforms. It has been many, many years since the Emmitsburg Band has had a uniform of any sort and it would add greatly to the prestige and appearance of the Band should it become possible to uniform its members. Uniforms are costly as most people know and it might not be possible to fully equip the Band immediately, but some sort of fund should be established whereby in another year or so it would be practicable to equip the musical group. Anyway, a start should be made and I sort of think that the sponsor of the Band, the Corporation of Emmitsburg, should study the situation carefully and if at all possible, start the ball rolling with a small contribution. After all, the Band adds materially to the cultural life of the community just as a recreational field, playground, etc. adds to that category of community life. A quarter of a century ago the Town sponsored the Band and it still operates under the title Emmitsburg Municipal Band.

The Sixes Bridge Dam project appears to be gaining healthy support and the State's two U. S. Senators have put their shoulder to the wheel to push the project closer to reality. Things are looking much more favorable these days as one watches the support for the project generating more and more support. It very easily could be that enough progress can be made to have the project pretty well under way in the next five years.

Local citizens were somewhat surprised and pleased when they passed the Square the Fourth of July. Without any warning to the public the Square suddenly blossomed out with about a dozen flags. The flags were mounted on the parking meters and really made an inspiring sight waving proudly and brilliantly in the warm breezes Tuesday. I am told that the Veterans of Foreign Wars is responsible for the project and once again the community expresses its thanks and appreciation to the Veterans for a job badly needed and well done. From now on passers through our proud little town will really know when a holiday is being observed. Thanks again, laddies!

The highway slaughter over the Fourth holidays is a regrettable and lamentable thing but was predicted in advance. Over 700 victims paid with their lives for accidents that mostly could have been avoided. This figure tops all previous ones and is a credit to no one. Despite all forms of pleading for safety from the newspapers, television, radio, safety organizations and even from the pulpit in most churches, the motorists drove right on to their death. If one could just remember that accidents don't happen, they are caused, perhaps things would be a lot better, however, almost every holiday shows new records of fatalities established. Apparently the only way to avoid being killed on the highways on these holidays, is to stay right at home!

TOWN MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of the Burgess and Commissioners will be held in the Town Office Monday evening, July 10. Usually held on the first Monday of the month, the meeting last week was postponed until this Monday due to the regular date falling on a holiday, the Fourth of July. Meetings are open to the public.

Mr. Dean J. Sprague is vacationing for several weeks in Virginia and Michigan.

St. Joseph's Gets $65,000 Federal Grant

Sister Rosemary, President of St. Joseph College, announced today that the college has been awarded a grant of $65,017 under Title III of the Higher Education Act of 1965. Through cooperative arrangements with American University, Pennsylvania State University, and the Catholic University of America, the grant will enable the college to add two teaching fellows to its staff, and to sponsor a program for the improvement of its curricular offerings and administrative services.

Sister Jerome, Director of Institutional Research, is coordinator of the project which will involve administrative services and the departments of history, fine arts, and home economics.

In cooperation with American University, St. Joseph's will sponsor an Institute in Africa. The course will be held on Saturdays during the academic year for the convenience of faculty and students from neighboring colleges. It will treat of the history, art, culture, music, religion, and economics of Africa. Dr. Darrell Russell, Director of African Studies at American University, will direct the Institute in conjunction with Dr. Marie Waneck, Chairman of the department of history at St. Joseph College.

A cooperative plan with Catholic University is designed to improve the fine arts curriculum. Dr. John Paul, Dean of the School of Music and departments of Art and Drama will collaborate with Sister Jane Marie, Sister Anna Mae, and Mr. Gary Vena of St. Joseph's fine arts faculty. An integrated project including workshop seminars in art, music, and drama, instrumental, vocal and recital clinics, and a course in the techniques of dramatic presentation, has been planned. Culminating activity will be a production in which the three art forms will find expression.

Current problems of administration in American higher education will be the theme of a workshop also made possible through cooperation with Catholic University. Educators from universities throughout the country will visit the Emmitsburg campus and provide direction to the administrative staff. Dr. Frank Pesci of the School of Education, CUA, will direct the proceedings with Sister Rosemary, President.

The third project, under the direction of Sister Madeleine, chairman of the department of home economics, and in cooperation with Pennsylvania State University, is designed to restructure the curricular and laboratory experiences of students majoring in home economics, elementary education, and pre-social work. Dr. Winona L. Morgan, Professor, College of Human Development at Penn State, and members of her staff will serve as consultants. During the first phase, 1967-1968, course materials and laboratory materials will be developed. A campus nursery school will be opened by February, 1968, to provide a natural setting for the necessary laboratory experiences in child development. It is expected that the school will also serve as a community. A teaching fellow will establish the program.

Prizes will be awarded for those catching the biggest fish, the smallest fish and the most number of fish caught. Refreshments will be on sale and the general public is invited. Parents of the smaller children are asked to be present to keep the fishing hooks baited. Participants must furnish their own bait, alive or artificial, and their own fishing tackle.

Mt. Manor Pool To Operate Soon

The only swimming pool in the Emmitsburg District, aside from those at the two colleges, is reaching its final stages of construction and plans are to have it in operation next week. The pool, shown above, is being constructed on the Mt. Manor Hotel property, south of town.

Photo shows the pool, looking east towards the Keysville Road. Fencing will be installed around the 30x50 foot pool before it is put in operation. —Chronicle Press Photos

Public Hearing On Dam Will Be Held Aug. 23

Hearings on a suit to block construction of the proposed dam on Hunting Creek in Cunningham Falls State Park have been tentatively set for August 23.

The hearings will be held in Baltimore City Circuit Court before Judge Meyer Cardin, according to a Lloyd M. Gerber, Baltimore attorney who is spearheading opposition to the dam.

Gerber emphasized that the date is still tentative, and said he expected to get a firm date for the hearings in about two weeks.

All work on the dam project, and on relocation of the Catocin Hollow Road to bypass the area of the lake, has been at a standstill since legal proceedings were instituted earlier this year, a spokesman for the State Department of Forests and Parks in Annapolis said last week.

"Nothing has happened since the litigation was started," the spokesman said. "We're waiting for the outcome of that before going ahead with the work."

So far, he said, the only actual work at the site which has begun is the relocation of the road, "but that will be finished even if the dam is not built."

The road relocation is being done by the R. F. Kline Construction Co. of Frederick, under a $177,000 contract.

The Hunting Creek dam, a subject of controversy here since the plans were made public several years ago, is part of a $2.5 million improvement of the Cunningham Falls park.

The dam itself, a 90-foot-tall earthen structure, would be built at an estimated cost of $750,000 and would provide a 43-acre lake in the park for recreational activities.

Thursday morning, June 29, at 8:30 a.m., 27 members of the Senior Citizens Club boarded a bus at the Center for Hershey, Pa. After a pleasant ride through the summer countryside, the destination was reached. The first stop was the beautiful Rose Gardens, where roses of every color and name were to be seen and enjoyed. After viewing the display of nature the group went to the Coci Inn to partake of a tasty luncheon before lining up in front of the Hershey Chocolate factory, to be taken on an intricate tour through the plant to see how and where the famous products were manufactured. At the end of the tour each individual was presented with a small sample of delicious confections.

All declared the trip and the day well spent.

Dog Calls Go

To Sheriff's Office

Control and dispatching of the Frederick County dog warden has been taken over by the Sheriff's office, according to Sheriff Crumwell P. Jacobs.

"We've done away with the answering service which used to handle the dog warden's calls," Jacobs said, "and we're handling all calls involving dogs through the sheriff's office."

Jacobs said anyone needing the services of the dog warden can call 662-2188.

Emergency dog calls will be answered at any time, Jacobs said, and routine calls will be answered by the warden during normal working hours.

"During the major part of the day," Jacobs said, "my office will be in contact with the dog warden by radio, so we can notify him immediately in event of any emergency."

Two Senators Back Sixes Bridge Project

A bill to authorize construction of the Sixes Bridge Dam in Frederick County was introduced last week in Congress by Maryland's two U. S. Senators.

The bill was sponsored collectively by Senator Joseph D. Tydings and Senator Daniel B. Brewster, both Democrats, Maryland, and will be referred to the Senate Public Works Committee for hearings and recommendation.

Action on the bill is anticipated during the 1968 session of Congress.

Speaking jointly, Tydings and Brewster said that the Sixes Bridge Dam was originally recommended by the Army Corps of Engineers back in the 1963 report on the Potomac River basin was endorsed by the State of Maryland in 1964 and has been recommended by the governments of Frederick and Carroll Counties.

The proposed dam would be built on the Monocacy River downstream from Sixes Bridge, about four miles southeast of Emmitsburg on the Frederick-Carroll County line. The reservoir would flood low land in both counties and the project would be financed primarily by the Federal Government.

The Army Engineers have promised an updated cost study by 1969.

"The principal reason for the project," the Senators said, "is the need for an increase in the dependable flow of the Monocacy River to avert a possible water shortage in the next decade. As the principal waterway through Frederick County, the Monocacy provides water essential for industrial, residential and agricultural needs."

"The Monocacy watershed has experienced five consecutive drought years from 1962 to 1966, culminating in a record low flow of nine million gallons per day at Frederick on Sept. 12, 1966. The population of the immediate area is expected to more than double by 1980 and the water needs of Frederick and Fort Detrick alone are said to exceed nine million gallons per day by 1976."

Tydings and Brewster said the need for fast action on the Sixes Bridge Dam has been recognized by James O'Donnell, director of the state planning department, who has given top priority to a study of the Monocacy flood plane and by the Army Engineers who have agreed to begin the study in July. The study will tract the 50-year history of the river, and is expected to be an essential tool in the development of the river basin.

The construction of a water storage facility in the Central Maryland area is an obvious need, the Senators said, citing the Army Engineers' report that an annual average benefit of $1.3 million "would result from construction of the Sixes Bridge Dam."

"There is no major site available to replace the Sixes Bridge site," the Engineers' report says, and "failure to develop the Sixes Bridge site would eventually arrest the growth of the Frederick area and place an increasing burden on the downstream communities including Washington, by an increase in the severity and range of the resulting pollution."

Although the hearings calendar for the Senate Public Works Committee is filled for the remainder of the 1967 session, an aide to Senator Tydings said hearings could be held between the 1967 and 1968 sessions or early in '68. The bill may be referred to the Rivers and Harbors subcommittee of which Tydings is a member, for hearings. Chairman of the Public Works Committee is Sen. Jennings Randolph (D-W.Va.), who is familiar with the problems of development of the Potomac River basin.

In the House of Representatives legislation on the Sixes Bridge Dam would come before the Public Works Committee which is chaired by George Fallon, a Maryland Democrat.

EYE CARE

You may care and I may care, but does everyone care enough... about eye care?

Evidently not, when you consider that far too many people over age thirty-five have never had a simple, painless eye pressure test to detect glaucoma!

The Neurological and Sensory Disease Control Program of the U. S. Public Health Service calls your attention to this second leading cause of blindness in America today—glaucoma (pronounced glaw-koma).

Glaucoma is a serious eye disease that can cause partial or total blindness. Simply stated, glaucoma causes pressure in the eyeball to build up and slowly destroy the main eye nerve, which allows us to see.

Because glaucoma does not usually have painful or disconcerting symptoms to warn its victims, only periodic eye pressure tests can determine if glaucoma is attacking our vision. Unfortunately, more than half of the persons over 35 who have glaucoma do not know it and are not under treatment. Another important fact about this eye disease is that glaucoma tends to run in families. Persons who have a close relative with glaucoma should have their eye pressure tested every year.

The eye pressure test, called tonometry, is a simple, painless examination your family doctor can provide. Many doctors are now making this test as part of all routine physical examinations. You, the reader, can play a major role in combating the threat glaucoma poses by:

1. Requesting your doctor to give you a glaucoma eye pressure test.

2. Informing your friends and work associates of the importance of the eye pressure test.

Your cooperation in this matter will aid immeasurably in reducing the tragic, unnecessary blindness that undetected, untreated glaucoma can cause.

For further information concerning glaucoma, please write for "GLAUCOMA and Its Effect on Eyesight", PHS Publication No. 1030: National Center for Chronic Disease Control, Neurology and Sensory Disease Control Program, U. S. Public Health Service, 4040 North Fairfax Drive, Arlington, Virginia 22203.

YOUR PERSONAL HEALTH

Fishing is good therapy — both physical and emotional—says the American Medical Association.

Of course, the millions of Americans who head for the lakes and streams across the nation each fishing season don't need a doctor to tell them that fishing is good sport. They probably have seen their doctor sitting in the next boat with a line in the water.

Fishing can be elaborate, complete with a trip to the seashore and renting deepsea boats and equipment. Or it can be the cane pole and worms affair on the banks of a neighborhood creek. Either way it gets us out in the fresh air and sunshine, gets our minds off the cares of the day.

Unless you are the vigorous type who wades through racing rapids or rows hard for miles, fishing is mild exercise. Fishing is good for the body and spirit. But it has some built-in hazards. Most of them can be avoided.

The most common fishing accident is catching a barbed hook in the flesh, usually a finger or hand, but sometimes a leg or other part of the body. Lures and hooks left unprotected on a dock or on the bottom of a boat cause many of these accidents.

The wise fisherman guards against accidents by shielding the hook. One simple way to do this is to stick a small cork over the barb. Lures should be stored in the tackle box until needed, and returned promptly to the box when removed from the leader. The band of your favorite fishing hat is, of course, a reasonably safe place to keep lures you intend to use later in the day.

Fly or bait casters are responsible for many hook accidents to their fellow fishermen. Particularly dangerous are the "side-winders" who cast with a side arm motion rather than overhead. Train yourself to look before each cast to make certain no one is in the way. This will also save lures from snagging on trees and bushes as you cast.

In removing a hook from the fish, hold the fish firmly under the gills, so that its head can't flop or wiggle. A freshly caught fish is slippery and hard to hold. Get a firm grip before dislodging the hook.

If, despite precautions, a hook becomes imbedded in your hand or finger, don't try to pull it out. Your physician will snip off the shank and push it through, thus causing less further damage to torn flesh. The doctor will also, if necessary, administer antibiotics and tetanus toxoid. Hook wounds often lead to infection unless treated properly.

Fishing is fun. A fish hook through the hand can spoil the day. With care it can be avoided.

The Navy also plans to have a motion picture theater in which United States sea power will be graphically shown.

The Navy's role in the Vietnam action will be portrayed on a photo panel.

An eight-foot Subroc Missile will also be part of the display which will be open to the public from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. during the ten-day fair.

A large global map of the world will show the role of the Marines in peace and conflict today.

Mr. Heil said that in addition to displays by the Navy, business and industry will be represented in the building by exhibits.

Airman Promoted

NOVATO, Calif. — Robert D. Shriner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray A. Shriner of 446 E. Baltimore St., Taneytown, Md., has been promoted to airman second class in the U. S. Air Force.

Airman Shriner is an airframe repairman at Hamilton AFB, Calif. He is a member of the Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Service which flies combat and peacetime air rescue and aeromedical evacuation missions.

The airman is a graduate of Taneytown High School.

Little League Action

The Giants climbed into third place by turning back the Red Sox 8-7 in an extra inning ball game last Thursday on the Little League diamond.

The contest was well played and close throughout the seven frames with the outcome undecided until the final out. The score was tied at 6-6 at the end of the regulation six innings. In the top of the seventh, the first two batters for the Giants went down in order. The next man walked and then Robert Henke slammed the first pitch over the center field wall sending the Giants into an 8-6 lead.

In the bottom of the seventh the Red Sox managed to push in a run, but the rally fell short when the Giant defense buckled down. Bill Carr hit a solo home run for the Red Sox in the first inning.

Plan Exhibits At State Fair

Exhibits, including deep submergence research equipment of the type used to locate the H-bomb accidentally dropped off the coast of Spain, will be displayed by the Navy at the Timonium State Fair.

John M. Heil, general manager of the Fair scheduled August 28 through September 6, said the Navy has been allotted a prime location in the huge Exposition Building and will show exhibits valued at thousands of dollars.

Mr. Heil said it is Timonium's policy each year to offer a different branch of the service space in the building. Last year the Army's Test and Evaluation Command displayed the latest in equipment used by the troops at home and

Robbers Of Pitzer's Are Nabbed

Two York County men will be charged with burglary of the Pitzer's Men's Wear store in Gettysburg and other Adams County businesses.

State police said many of the articles taken from the Pitzer store on Chambersburg St., Gettysburg, were recovered Friday afternoon at the trailer home of one of the men, Dennis Edward Betz, 21, located in a trailer park at 3700 W. Market St., York.

Betz and Barry Lee Crouse, 20, also of York, will be charged by state police with the county burglaries and by borough police with the Pitzer's Men's Wear store burglary. All of the charges are scheduled to be placed before Justice of the Peace Robert P. Snyder.

John Pitzer, owner of Pitzer's Men's Wear store, accompanied State Policeman Bernard Yanetti and Borough Police Sgt. Daniel Miller to York Friday to identify articles that had been taken from his store June 23. He was able to identify and recover a number of items even though in some instances identifying marks such as labels had been removed from the clothing.

County Public Defender Named

William R. Leckemby, Jr., has been appointed to the $7,000 a year post of public defender of Frederick County by Chief Judge Patrick M. Schnauffer and Judge Robert E. Clapp, Jr.

Leckemby, 39, who is currently practicing with the law firm of Weinberg and Weinberg, officially assumed office July 1.

The state law passed in the recent legislature entrusts the defender to represent persons charged with criminal offenses who cannot afford to hire counsel. He will carry the defense to higher courts if the appeal in his opinion "will or might reasonably be expected to result in the reversal or modification of judgement."

What Youth Wants... 4-H HAS!

WHY is 4-H unique? Because Mary and Sue, Bill and Jim and all the other 2½ million 4-H'ers do things. In fact, the 4-H way is "Learn-by-doing."

And what do they do? They work on projects. They have well over 50 projects and activities to choose from. Among them are garden, electric, horse, live-stock, crops, dog, poultry, photography, entomology, automotive and home economics.

With few exceptions, boys and girls participate in all projects with equal skill and success.

For more than a half century, publicly supported 4-H has served the needs of youth through programs set up by the Cooperative Extension Service of the state land-grant universities.

Since the first 4-H Clubs were organized to teach boys how to farm better and girls how to preserve foods better, private industry and community-minded citizens have backed 4-H. Industry provides incentive awards, recognition, educational aids and technical assistance.

Collaboration between private interests in support of this youth program open to all is probably without parallel. Success of the "partnership" is evident in the long tenure of business donors. Today nearly 400,000 men and women serve as volunteer leaders, using their special skills to guide the youngsters. Many of them are parents of 4-H'ers. Through the National 4-H Service Committee of Chicago, nearly 60 business firms and foundations annually contribute large sums as sponsors of national and regional 4-H award programs approved by the Extension Service. In addition they host some 1,600 of the nation's finest teenagers at the National 4-H Club Congress. The 1967 congress, tabbed "the showcase of 4-H," will mark its 46th straight year.

Among the 4-H sponsors are: Eli Lilly and Company; General Motors; General Foods Corporation; Kerr Glass Manufacturing Corporation; Coats & Clark Inc.; Chicago Board of Trade; Allis-Chalmers; Westinghouse Electric Corporation; Merck & Co., Inc.; Wilson & Co., Inc.; Moor-farm Mfg. Co.; Oliver Corporation; E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Company; Amchem Products, Inc.; Ralston Purina Company; Heisdorf & Nelson Farms, Inc. and Eastman Kodak Company.

Others include: Hercules Incorporated; The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company; Montgomery Ward; Armour and Company; Carnation Company; American Oil Foundation; Humble Oil & Refining Company; Standard Oil Company (Kentucky) and The Standard Oil Company (Ohio).

Writes . . .

Babson's Point Of View On: Our 1967 Forecast
BABSON PARK, Mass., July 6—Here in the northeast corner of the U. S., we frequently warn that it is not wise to "review the bid." But then, we know that there is always an "antidote" for every ophism. So we counter with: "Confession is good for the soul." And that is precisely what we plan to do today . . . at the midway mark of 1967. Hence, we turn back to our extensive forecast of things to come in 1967 published here on Dec. 29, 1966. Also, as we go along, we shall adopt a threefold policy aimed at (1) exulting a bit where we were "on the nose," (2) admitting our guilt, and (3) adjusting our course with an eye to the remaining months of the year. Foreign Developments

Steal The Show
 As 1966 ended, we warned that "the greatest danger for the year ahead does not exist on the domestic front." Throughout the first half of 1967 the direct developments surely have been in the military and political arts abroad. As all eyes were firmly fixed on the increasingly bloody conflict in Vietnam, the Middle East burst into flame.

G. A. Nassar of Egypt, egged on by the trouble makers in Moscow and surfeited with Russian armament, screamed for a "holy war" to wipe out Israel. But his zeal soon cooled, as did Goliath's when David moved resolutely forth to meet the danger. As we review the events of recent weeks we recall our December statement: "Heavily armed with Soviet weapons, the Arabs of the Middle East—squared off against Israel—present a grave threat to world peace."

No World War Yet
 Despite our forebodings of late last year, we then felt that the smoldering fires evident in the Middle East would not erupt into World War III. At the same time we flatly predicted that the issue in Vietnam would not be resolved in 1967. Today as we weigh more recent developments, we are still convinced that neither Russia nor the U. S. views a head-on collision as inevitable. As a nation we are hopeful that the Soviets will gradually give up their aim of world conquest; while the Politburo is persuaded that Americans are drifting steadily leftward and that we will eventually capitulate to Communism without a nuclear war.

To be sure, the danger is ever present when two strong men armed to the teeth confront each other. Should we overwhelm North Vietnam, the provocation would be heightened. Had Egypt liquidated Israel, the West would have been pushed toward massive intervention. But apparently our State Department is thinking more of a holding action in South Vietnam. And Israel's valor saved the U. S. for the time being in the Middle East. Consequently the day of great evil has been put forward . . . hopefully beyond the end of this year.

Turning To Business
 There was much more on possible foreign developments in our Forecast for 1967. A rereading would be highly exciting in view of unfolding events. But we devoted even more space to trends and probable happenings in business and finance. We foresaw that military spending would be raised in 1967, softening "the impact of any easing in the private sector of the economy." Flatly we forecast a "definite deceleration in business activity." We correctly outlined the threat to profits arising from "increased productive capacity" and "the inflation in labor and other operating costs." Most important, we predicted "an abrupt switch in 1967 from a policy of inventory accumulation to one of inventory liquidation."

On credit, we expected enough easing to "permit more orderly monetary conditions." On housing we thought it would be "midyear or after before this important part of our economy can contribute much strength to over-all business." We viewed labor as standing "at the crossroads" with "more likelihood in 1967 of restrictive labor legislation than at any time since Taft-Hartley was put on the books." We correctly pegged the sales lag in autos and other durable goods, the hike in living costs, and the "lethargy" in retail trade. But we missed the bad slump in farmers' net income and the difficulties that farm implement manufacturers have been encountering.

Stocks And Politics
 At the end of last year we were somewhat more cautious as to the prospects for common stocks than developments since have warranted. However, we were up the right alley in forecasting "the old aristocracy of the blue chips based on past performance" would be "replaced by a new aristocracy of super-able management based upon hopes of good future performance." This has been borne out by the way the "performance" issues have soared while the blue chips wallowed.

It now looks as if we were overoptimistic in the will and capacity of Congress to curb boondoggle spending. We suggested that Congress would become "more critical of the looting going on under cover of the Administration's War on Poverty." However, even with the rising pressures of war and rumors of more war, our legislators have largely followed a program of "pork barrel" as usual. We are still hopeful for an awakening on this score during the remainder of this year.

Looking Hard At The Final Half
 Foremost, we still feel that income taxes will be hiked before autumn is over, as a last ditch stand against rising inflationary pressures. This should make the current historically high yields on tax-exempt bonds look more attractive than ever. But it certainly is no "bull argument" in favor of buying common stocks "for income."

The practical certainty of further price advances in most consumer items—red meat particular—will water down the purchasing power of the many wage increases that will be won in the months ahead. Also the expected acceleration in the Gross National Product will look pretty "thin" . . . in terms of constant dollars, ex-inflation. Finally, we are still looking very hard at possible unfavorable developments in the economic field abroad. The English pound has been able to give a fairly good account of itself so far this year; but this has not been due to fundamental gains in productivity . . . rather more to financial "window dressing." Higher costs for oil needs, following Middle East disruptions, could once more "upset the applecart." The strain on the pound will again be evident before year's end. And our own dollar may "take some thumps" before the International Monetary Fund's meetings are concluded later in 1967.

Cause Female Hair Loss
ELKHART, Ind.—The relentless march of time plus genetic inheritance play a role in whether a woman's crowning glory will remain thick and lustrous, or whether she will lose a good bit of hair as she ages.

ly that most female baldness "is not an irreversible process in women, as a rule."
While there is little that can be done about aging or one's genes, baldness or hair thinning caused by too tight or frequent hair curling; or by braiding that interferes with scalp circulation; or by excessive use of dyes, wave set solution, or hair sprays can be halted if these practices are stopped.
Certain medicines may cause hair loss, as can excessive vitamin A intake. Her physician should be alerted at once when a woman notices that a drug is inducing hair loss.

Therapy, notes Dr. Arlook, must be based on the cause of the hair loss. (Hint to users of curlers, dyes, etc.)
Incidentally, the physician maintains that there is some truth to the notion that emotional shock or disturbance can be a cause of hair loss.

Doctor Names Greatest Boon

NEW YORK—"What are your views on the population explosion?" a newspaper for physicians, 'Medical Tribune,' asked three of its readers recently.
The three doctors agreed that the population explosion is becoming the number one issue facing all thoughtful people. Stemming the tide of soaring population, they maintained, is the obligation of all of us. One termed overpopulation a "malignancy."
In the view of Dr. Robert D. Arnold, obstetrician-gynecologist of Indianapolis, there is a way to stem the population tide. He said, "With the advent of the pill we now have available virtually 100 per cent effective means by which women may control their fertility. I personally think birth control pills are the greatest thing that has happened to women in the last half century."

Swim Instruction Could Save Thousands

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Summer and drowning go together, alas, and the American Red Cross points out that only about half of all Americans swim well enough to take care of themselves in emergencies in the water.
Of approximately 7,000 drownings in the U. S. in 1965, the ARC notes, more than 4,000 of the victims didn't intend to be in the water at all. They drowned when they fell from boats, docks, pool decks, and the like.
Among the most important recommended safety precautions are the following:
Learn to Swim. Many Y's, community centers and Red Cross chapters offer swimming lessons free or at little cost.
Swim only at supervised beaches and pools. The abandoned quarry may look attractive but don't

OFF AND RUNNING by John I. Day
How Long A Length?

How long is a length? According to the Oxford Universal Dictionary, under definition "4 b Sport" it is "The length of a boat, a horse, etc." Unlike the furlong, which was once the length of a furrow on a common field, or about "40 poles", and is now accepted as 1/8th of a mile, or a hand, the term used for measuring a horse's height, which is now standardized at four inches, a length is still a rough approximation of a horse from nose to hind quarters.
According to the highly specialized men who make the charts on races and designate the number of lengths by which a horse wins or is beaten, a length is about seven and a half feet. Scientific students of horse performance who heed Plutarch's admonition, "Be ruled by time, the greatest counselor of all", have been equating one length with 1/5th of a second, which may explain why their wives, who frequently equate a horse's potential with the color of the silks his jockey wears, are frequently standing in the "pay-off" line at the mutual window while the serious student is again busy with his figures.

A mile measures out to 63,360 inches. A length, using the chart-caller's estimate, comes out to 90 inches. Buckpasser's record mile in 1:32-3/5 breaks down to 137 inches per 1/5th of a second; his half mile in that race was run in 43-3/5 seconds or at a rate of 145 inches per fifth of a second. In Buckpasser's case it would seem that a length would be more accurately equated to 1/10th of a second.

"Back The Attack On Traffic Accidents"

DRIVER ERROR PRESENT IN MANY ACCIDENTS

Thirteen persons were killed on Maryland highways in a recent week according to the survey published by the Maryland State Police.

Five of those killed were drivers; seven were passengers; and one was a pedestrian. Alcohol was a contributing factor in four of the deaths; speed in eight; and "driver error" was present in all of the fatalities.

During the past week a passenger was killed because the operator dropped a cigarette and, momentarily distracted, lost control of the car and struck a pole," commented Lt. Col. George Davidson, Acting Superintendent of the State Police.

"Lighting a cigarette or putting it out, each taking only a second or so, is a habit with many drivers and one which almost always requires an operator to take his eyes off the road and his attention away from driving. Too often such action results in serious injury or death."

Lt. Colonel Davidson concluded: "Driving requires an operator's complete attention and anything which draws his attention away from the task at hand is hazardous. Many times, of course, the driver has no control over that which distracts him, but he should certainly avoid any diverting action, such as lighting a cigarette while driving, if he hopes to maneuver his car through traffic with maximum safety."

The Anti-Ballistic Missile Dispute

If the American people wait for the Department of Defense (under its present management) to build a defensive anti-ballistic missile system, which some authorities say could save 50- to 70-million lives in an all-out nuclear attack upon our nation, the system will never be built. This is the conclusion one must reach after hearing Deputy Secretary of Defense Cyrus R. Vance tell a nationwide TV audience that such a defensive system for America wouldn't be needed—ever.

Without a single notable exception, the military leaders in our nation, including all members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, say that America is inviting a Soviet attack and courting disaster by not deploying an ABM system. We have developed a system and so has Soviet Russia. If we started tomorrow mass producing the components of our system and deploying them, it would require five to eight years to achieve its full defensive capability. In spite of at least implied assurances to the contrary by proponents of the Test Ban Treaty ratified by the U. S. Senate in 1963, Soviet Russia began deploying her ABM system approximately four years ago.

Soviets Four Years Ahead

Not even Mr. Vance or his chief, Defense Secretary McNamara, now dispute the fact that the Soviets have been busy erecting a network of defensive missiles which they undoubtedly believe will protect Russian cities and Russian offensive missile launching centers from the full might of an American retaliatory attack. Mr. Vance told his "Meet the Press" TV audience that we shouldn't worry about the Russians defense deployment because we were making great strides in developing offensive warheads capable of penetrating their defenses. He was speaking for himself and Secretary McNamara.

He was asked how he and Mr. McNamara could justify a policy of no ABM defenses when "every military leader of stature in America" challenges their judgment. Mr. Vance said in effect that his and Secretary McNamara's judgment was sound and the military's faulty. With so much at stake for the people of America, we are devoting several columns to exploring the facts in this dispute. "Killing" Capacity Proved

In the early 1960's the U. S. Army—having started researching, developing and testing an anti-ballistic-missile in 1958—made actual tests in the air which proved that the Nike-Zeus missile could "kill" the nuclear warheads on ballistic missiles such as might be launched against us from Russia. The "kill" was achieved with radiation created by the explosion aboard the Zeus missiles.

The Nike-Zeus, using two radar systems separately operated, "found" incoming missiles that had been tracked by surface radar stations, and then guided itself to the proximity of the target missiles. Radiation created by its explosion reached the on-coming warheads and "killed" them in harmless reaches of the heavens. Still to be perfected was radar sophistication capable of distinguishing between "decoy" missiles and the real thing. The Army requested pre-production engineering funds in 1963 to push forward toward a productive program. But the Defense Department, with Secretary McNamara now at the helm, decided to sidetrack the Nike-Zeus and start a new program using the Sprint missile.

Many Strange Inconsistencies

President Kennedy, accepting the adamant opinion of his scientific advisor, Dr. Jerome Weisner, said he doubted that "any workable ballistic missile system" was technically feasible. This was inconsistent with Secretary McNamara's call for $600 million to develop a new (Sprint, anti-missile system.) Dr. Weisner himself said such a system could not be perfected, and if it could, should not be deployed by any nation.

The Senate Armed Services Committee backed up the Army's judgment, rejected the McNamara proposal for a new program, and approved funds in 1963 for the Army's pre-production engineering of Nike-

Zeus. The full Senate, however, overruled the Committee and approved $600 million for the Sprint missile to replace the Zeus in a program called "Nike-X." Our nation today has the Nike-X and the Nike-Zeus instruments and the Joint Chiefs of Staff unanimously declare the combined systems should be deployed. The Defense Department is fighting such deployment. Why? Deputy Secretary Vance says it would be a waste of money. There are other reasons, and we will discuss them in a later column

Bright Future For Frederick County Predicted

A bright future with continued dynamic growth is seen for Frederick County by Richard F. Crombie, who took office June 1 as Director of the county's Planning and Zoning Commission.

With its population increasing recently at the rate of 2,000 persons a year, according to Crombie, the county can look forward to sustaining and possibly increasing this rate of growth.

Recent staff additions authorized by the County Commissioners for the planning office make it possible to foresee planned orderly development rather than haphazard growth, Crombie said.

"We, as individuals, plan our lives to make the most efficient use of our time and money," the new Director stated. "We plan our meals and our weekends—and our vacations, months and even years ahead. We plan and budget for purchasing automobiles, homes, college educations—and for retirement. Planning for the future is not only good sense; it's good business."

Major challenges facing the county include, in Crombie's view, development of an updated overall county plan, closer coordination of county planning with other groups within and outside the county, and the location of the highway planned to supplement Interstate 70-S from Frederick to Washington.

Updating the county's comprehensive plan has been estimated as a five-year job, with the first of three steps already under way, Crombie pointed out. Major contributions to the cost of the study will come from Federal tax dollars through provisions of Section 701 of the Housing Act of 1954 as amended. In the interests of insuring orderly growth, the County Commissioners have urged a speed-up to allow completing the plan in three years, Crombie said, so that the rapid urbanization taking place in the county will not make the plan out of date before it is completed.

In developing the comprehensive plan, professional consultants will be used to supplement the local staff, and officials of all municipalities in the county will have ample opportunity to discuss, criticize and participate in the formation of the plan, Crombie stated.

Closer relations between county and municipal governments are being encouraged by the monthly Mayors' meetings recently instituted by the County Commissioners. Groups outside the county with whom closer contacts will be maintained include the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, the Baltimore Regional Planning Council, and the Maryland Appalachian Development Council.

"We just haven't had the staff to keep in touch with these groups," Crombie said. "But we've always recognized the need, especially in situations like planning a highway to parallel I-70S through Frederick and Montgomery Counties."

The new Director pointed out that Frederick County has a vital concern in all phases of planning for any thruway or mass transit system and that the county should participate fully in all decision making concerning timing and location of such facilities.

Mr. and Mrs. Crombie, both natives of the Buffalo, N. Y., area, are the parents of two boys aged 5 and 6 and a 10-month-old baby girl. The Crombies share interests in antiques and historic areas, as well as the theater and ballet. They are also fond of extended outdoor camping trips in which all members of the family participate.

Crombie holds degrees from New York State Technical Institute and Michigan State University, and after graduation worked as Associate City Planner in Providence, R. I. He came to Frederick County as Associate Planner in late 1965 and served in that position until he was named Director.

Who's Responsible for PUBLIC Morals?

The personal morality of each of us, of course, is our own private affair. And we have no right to set moral standards for the man next door.

But there is a broader area of morality which is everybody's business. For in a society where civil order depends on moral order, there has to be a public conscience. Without it, the law could not be enforced, justice could not be administered, and liberty could not be preserved.

The public conscience is reflected in the laws we enact, and the moral standards we observe. It is the watchdog over the God-given rights of the individual to freedom of conscience, and to the security of his person and property. The public conscience is, moreover, a reflection of the individual conscience of all people who are concerned in preserving a high standard of moral order.

This is not an obligation to be delegated to the police and the courts. Nor to the church, the schools or civic societies. For the public conscience is the concern of everyone, and it can function effectively only with the dedicated commitment of all right-thinking people.

In these troubled and changing times, public morality has become a problem of increasing concern to society as a whole. Crimes against person and property have grown to grave proportions. Moral depravity thrives on public indifference. The public peace is disturbed with seeming impunity; obscenity flourishes in the name of freedom of speech; the disease called alcoholism finds an ever-growing number of victims.

If you agree that public morality is everybody's business... if you want to restore and rebuild the moral values that are essential to the welfare of our society—write today for a copy of our new pocket-size pamphlet entitled "Public Morality—Our Common Concern." Golden light corn bread rises high, forming a bed and half-cover for juicy cheese-and-relish-stuffed wieners. The colorfully dressed franks peek through their corn bread "blanket" at the center, and the result is as artistic as it is tasty.

Corn Bread Cradle Franks offer you the subtle flavor combinations of easy all-in-one cooking. —And ease becomes genuine leisure because corn bread starts with a convenient corn muffin mix.

Corn Bread Cradle Franks

Makes 6 servings

- 6 wieners
- 2 tablespoons sweet pickle relish
- 1 slice American cheese
- One 12-oz. pkg. Flako Corn Muffin Mix
- 1 egg
- 1/2 cup milk

Slit wieners lengthwise. Fill each with 1 teaspoon sweet pickle relish. Cut the cheese slice in 12 small pieces. Place two pieces in each wiener, one at each end, alongside the pickle relish. Set aside.

Heat oven to hot (400°F). Empty contents of package into bowl; add egg and milk. Blend only until dry ingredients are thoroughly moistened. (Batter should be slightly lumpy.)

Pour batter into greased 8-inch square baking pan. Arrange filled wieners on top of batter. Bake in preheated oven (400°F.) about 25 minutes or until golden brown. To serve, cut in 6 pieces. Serve hot.

Citizen Demands

Petition Be Honored

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle

Goebbels, Paul Joseph, a fanatical Nazi was the official propagandist for Nazi Germany. As Minister of Propaganda, he tried to persuade both the Germans and the outside world to believe what the Nazis desired. He controlled the press, all publications, radio programs, motion pictures, and the arts in Germany, and in German dominated Europe. Goebbels, played the most important part in helping Hitler bring the Nazis to power in 1933, and then through the clever use of propagandists such as William Joyce, known as (Lord Haw-Haw), and Mildred Gillars, known as (Axis Sally), he was very successful in persuading the German people to support the Hitler regime. The results of which, I hardly think the world needs to be reminded.

The use of propaganda creates disunity and causes any group to lose confidence in their own forces, unless they have unquestionable proof that they are honestly on solid legal ground, and then they expect their elected officials to back them up. That's the way it's done in a free country.

The simple truth is that the press has given up on fact-hunting for the less arduous and frequently more profitable role of interpreting what has gone before and predicting what is to come, in conformity with the Administration's pattern. If this is not a statement of fact then how is it that they have completely overlooked some 71,000 registered voters who have signed petitions that agree with Mr. Agnew's position before he was elected Governor.

Three well organized petition committees turned in 71,000 registered names in opposition to H. B. 378, and they are as follows: "Committee on Sane Tax Structure, P.O. Box 9024, Baltimore, Maryland,"—registered signatures, 40,000; "Fighting Taxpayers Association, 715 National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C." and "The Free State Voters, 1014 Hartmont Road, Baltimore, Maryland,"—registered signatures, 31,000. Total registered signatures, 71,000.

The "Committee on Sane Tax Structure's" petition asks that the Governor call the Maryland State Legislature back to consider the other Bills that were submitted instead of the very old concept of a graduated income tax. The other two committees joined their efforts in a petition that only asks that the registered voters of the State of Maryland have their democratic right to vote on this (to quote Mr. Agnew), "a step along the road to Socialism."

All our elected officials can do is agree with the press on this already three time loser H.B. 378.

Both Mr. Agnew and Mr. Birch have exclaimed that H.B. 378 is not petitionable. However, both have neglected to read to the general public that complete paragraph especially the last sentence, and I now quote the ending sentence from Art. 16—Section 2, Referendum Section, of our Maryland Constitution: "The increase in any such appropriation for maintaining or aiding any public institution shall only take effect as in the cast of other laws, and such increase or any part thereof specified in the petition, may be referred to a vote of the people upon petition."

If I were an elected official and wanted to stay in office I don't believe I would care to insult the intelligence of 71,000 registered voters plus their friends, unless of course you would prefer to join the other world renown propagandists that fell flat on their faces.

Sincerely,
Irvin Brant

County Tax One Of Lowest In State

Taxes in Frederick County next year will be lower than anywhere else in Maryland, except in the three counties on the southern-most tip of the Eastern Shore. The only three counties with lower taxes in fiscal 1968 will be Somerset, with a property tax rate of $1.95 per $100; Wicomico, with a property tax of $1.92; and Worcester, with a property tax of $1.80. Each of these counties has adopted the mandatory local income surtax of 20 per cent, as required by state law.

Frederick County residents will pay $2.14 per $100 in property taxes and the minimum 20 per cent surtax on income, in support of a budget of $11.9 million. The property tax rate here has not changed since 1964 when it was raised from $2.04.

Three other counties in the state have adopted lower property tax rates for fiscal 1968, but these three—Carroll, Harford and St. Mary's—have taken a larger income surtax.

Carroll County, with a property tax rate of $2.10, has imposed the maximum 50 per cent local income surtax, giving residents there a double kick. The property tax rate in Carroll County was $2.00 last year.

Bank History

Given At Anniversary

The Farmers and Mechanics National Bank first opened as a "country bank" in 1817 when Frederick was the "gateway to the western frontier," Benjamin L. Shuff, president, said this week.

Speaking at the bank's 150th anniversary celebration, Shuff said the bank of today has resources of over $92 million.

Shuff briefly recounted for his 300 listeners the bank's history which he divided into three periods of roughly 50 years each. The first period spanned the years up through the Civil War reconstruction era. During the presidencies of Dr. William Tyler and Ezra Houck, the bank "slowly developed," Shuff said, into a "good solid country bank."

During the second period which ended with World War I, Shuff said "the growth of the bank paralleled the increase in prosperity and the beginnings of industrialization" in Frederick County. Shuff pointed out that this prosperity was achieved with little increase in population "for in the forty years between 1880 and 1920, Frederick County grew only from 50,482 to 52,541 persons."

The bank's third period began in 1917—the bank's centennial anniversary. He said 1917 also marked the metamorphosis of "America, the growing nation," into "America, the world power," Shuff said.

Shuff described the last period as "years that tried men's souls." "Nevertheless," Shuff said, under the four presidents who have served during the period—Frank L. Stoner, C. Albert Gilson, Robert Delaplaine and myself—the bank has grown from resources of $2.2 million to an institution with $92.7 million in resources.

Sixes Bridge

Project Supported

Maryland Senators Daniel B. Brewster and Joseph D. Tydings last week introduced legislation to authorize the construction of the Six Bridge Dam and Reservoir on the Monocacy River in Frederick and Carroll counties.

Brewster said in a Senate floor speech that the project will increase the water flow of the Monocacy, help relieve drought conditions, and improve the quantity and quality of water supply in the Monocacy River Valley and the National Capital area.

In addition, Brewster said, the project will provide for a recreation area that will be easily accessible to residents of the Baltimore and Washington metropolitan complexes.

Brewster noted that the Six Bridge project was recommended by the Army Corps of Engineers in 1963, was endorsed by the State of Maryland in 1964, and won firm approval by local governing bodies in Frederick and Carroll counties.

"The proposal has received solid support at all levels of government. It appears foolhardy to me to delay this much-needed project any longer," Brewster declared.

"The failure to develop the Six Bridge site would eventually arrest the growth of the Frederick area or place an increasing burden on downstream communities, including Washington, by an increase in the severity and range of the resultant pollution," Brewster said.

Rocky Ridge 4-H

Club Holds Meeting

The regular June meeting of the Rocky Ridge Progressive 4-H Club was held at the home of Joe, Mike, Marty and Kathy Wivell.

Fifty-two members answered the roll by naming a summer sport. The president, Becky Keilholtz, opened the meeting by introducing Mrs. Anna Law (a registered nurse). She was guest speaker for this meeting and talked on First Aid. Demonstrations were given by Jeffrey Wivell on "How to Plant a Tomato." Phyllis Wivell also gave a demonstration on "Keeping Files on all 4-H Materials."

Carolyn Keilholtz, secretary, read the minutes of the May meeting and James Wivell gave the treasurer's report.

Reports were given on Dairy Judging by Lee Bassler; Tractor Tour by Joe Wivell, and Flower Arranging by Phyllis Wivell.

Sharon Sharrer told the club of the County Sheep and Swine Tour in which some members plan to take part. The club discussed County Camp and County Campfire, to be held on July 12. The Club Tour Day was talked over and the date was set for July 22. A committee was selected by the chairman, Jane Bassler, and they are Mike Smith, Sharon Sharrer, Jeff and Jim Keilholtz.

State Conservation Camp was discussed and the only member planning to attend is Tim Keilholtz.

At the close of the meeting, 4-H record books were returned to all members. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Joseph Wivell.

150 Years Ago...

... when the Farmers and Mechanics National Bank opened its doors, there was peace on all frontiers and with millions of acres of fine land just across the Appalachians awaiting settlement, there began the first great western migration of the American people — and the road to the West led through Frederick.

Today, our fine network of roads bring thrifty people to 12 convenient offices of the Farmers and Mechanics National Bank where they still receive the same Friendly, Personal Service enjoyed by our customers since the bank's beginning in 1817.
