Most Anything At A Glance - By Abigail -

It looks as though President Nixon's veto will get enough backing to make it stick and the veto of the HEW budget bill will put a lot of politicians out on the proverbial limb this year as election time draws near. Practically every state will feel the financial brunt of this veto which would have caused extra billions of dollars to flow to these states. However, if you are ever going to battle inflation, there has to be a start made . . . and we hope this is the one, although there are many who will disagree. The President seems to have better success with this piece of fiscal business than he has had with his Supreme Court appointments, none of which he has been able to make stick so far. First, there was Clement Haynsworth, Jr., and now the heat is on Harold Carswell. Three in a row is not too an impressive record. However, after a few more weeks of battling, perhaps Congress will soften up and give the green light to Carswell, perhaps the least controversial of the two.

There's been some tampering with local parking meters and the Police Dept. says it knows who is doing this tampering. Seems someone has learned how to "plug" the meters for as long as he pleases. Of course the police are wise to this sort of thing and it's only a matter of time until the guilty party is finally charged and perhaps arrested. Why not stop now, while you are ahead?

The Baltimore newspaper strike has naturally created a run for out-of-town newspapers and area dealers are facing a real dilemma. Each dealer receives only so many papers and there are three times as many people demanding they be accommodated. Actually some persons get downright nasty when they are told there are no newspapers and this makes hard feelings all around. It's only a temporary situation folks and there's absolutely no sense in getting "up in the air" about it. Your dealer is a reasonable man and if he tells you there are no more papers, that's it.

Want to get your new license plates? Well then you had better pay up your delinquent parking meter tickets in Emmitsburg, and pronto. Within a short time, the Police Dept. will send all the names of those who have unpaid parking meter tickets into the Dept. of Motor Vehicles and those individuals will not be sent their new plates until the tickets are paid. Better hadn't lose any time in getting this matter straightened out, folks.

What a vast difference in the weather one week can make. Just think, last Friday morning the temperature was a minus seven. Now it is in the 40's, and is it ever welcome! As one wag put it this weekend: Emmitsburg's snow plan is finally getting under way, via the sun. Yes, the sun has made quite a dent in the piles up all around and as we enter into February, the sun will demonstrate more power and it won't be long until we are headed for Spring. Just think, folks, Monday will be Ground Hog Day, and you know what that means!

SENIOR CITIZENS PLAN COVERED DISH SUPPER

The February meeting of the Emmitsburg Senior Citizens Club will be held at the Center on Tuesday, February 17, at 6 p.m. A covered dish supper has been planned, so everyone bring food and plan to have a feast together.

The March meeting will be a showing of films, either of travel or biographical, or both. This is scheduled for Tuesday evening, March 17, at the regular time of 7:30 p.m.

Maryland's first road law was passed by the colonial Assembly in 1666 requiring the County Commissioners of each County to lay out a road system that would make the heads of rivers and creeks "passable for horse and foot."

Miss Etheridge Wed To David Garrett

Miss Kathleen Ann Etheridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Etheridge, became the bride of Mr. David William Garrett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Heil Garrett of South Milwaukee, Wisconsin, on Saturday, January 10, at St. Pius X Church, Baltimore.

The Nuptial Mass, double ring ceremony, was performed by Rev. Leo C. Wetzel, O.M.I., Brattleboro, Vermont, uncle of the bride. Assisting Father Wetzel was Brother Earl Wetzel, O.M.I., Essex, New York, uncle of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a traditional wedding gown of lace and satin. The silk illusion veil fell from a Camelot headpiece of seed pearls. She carried a crescent bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

The bride is a graduate of St. Joseph's Hospital School of Nursing and is employed by St. Joseph's Hospital. The groom served four years in the Marine Corps. He is a graduate of the Police Academy and is now employed by the Baltimore City Police Dept.

Bridesmaids were Miss Melinda Wetzel, cousin of the bride, and Miss Lynn Moran, a classmate of the bride. Their dresses and bouquets were identical to the maid of honor.

Mr. Robert Davis was the best man. The ushers were Mr. Joseph Balzano and Mr. John Profili, friends of the bride and groom. Miss Susan Zieler was the soloist.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Etheridge wore a matching dress and coat of Strawberry Crepe. Mrs. Garrett, the mother of the groom, wore a blue and white brocade dress with matching hat and coat. Both wore orchid corsages.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Le Grand Villa. For their wedding trip to the Pocono Mountains, the bride wore an ensemble of navy dress and a red checked coat. She wore a corsage of white roses.

The couple will reside in Towson, Maryland.

Relatives and guests attending the wedding from out-of-state, came from Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, New York and Vermont.

Ecumenical Program For Area Clergy

Mount Saint Mary's Seminary has scheduled two lectures on the pastoral ministry for Catholic priests and Protestant ministers in a program of ecumenism aimed at rural clergymen in this area.

Rev. Dr. Robert A. MacAskill, pastor of the United Presbyterian Church of Gettysburg, will give the first lecture, scheduled from 2 to 4 p.m. on February 6, at the Seminary. "The Nature of the Parish Ministry," will be his topic.

"Prayer, The Life of the Parish," will be discussed on April 10 by Rev. James J. Mulligan, S.T.D., professor of dogmatic theology and dean of studies at the Seminary.

Joseph Moore, chairman of the Seminary's ecumenical committee, invited invitations have been sent to some fifty rural ministers and priests in such nearby communities as Thurmont, Fairfield, Blue Ridge Summit, Taneytown, Union Bridge, Yellow Springs, Catoctin Furnace, Emmitsburg and Woodsboro.

The lectures were planned and arranged by a committee of ministers and priests following a meeting held at the Seminary last November to determine the amount of interest in the area for such ecumenical gatherings.

Funds Assure Catoctin Football Team

During his college career he played all the backfield positions and was selected all-conference quarterback in 1956 while attending State Teachers College in Elizabeth City, N. C.

Mr. Hodge began his coaching career as Assistant Coach at Watson High School in Covington, Virginia. Elevated to head coach in 1963, his record for the next three years was 22 wins and 3 losses. He was chosen Coach of the Year in 1963-1965 in District II of Virginia, and during the same period was selected as one of the top five coaches in western Virginia.

Mr. Hodge came to Thurmont as a sixth grade teacher in 1966. He is presently teaching science in the Thurmont Middle School. He and his wife and three children are living in Waynesboro, Pa., where he is active in the YMCA.

He was also head coach of the Waynesboro Tigers, a football team in the Interstate League. The Tigers record since 1967 is 17 wins and 18 losses.

Mr. Hodge says that his philosophy of coaching is covered by one word—fundamentals. He believes that one must be strong fundamentally in order to succeed. He coaches to win and loves every minute of it.

So with that philosophy and the material available at Catoctin, watch out for a winning team. No, not in 1970 or 1971—that would be impossible for Superman—but the 1972 and 1973 teams will be the winners.

Frederick County Backgrounds

BY SAMUEL CARRICK
The People of Piney Creek

The early churches had more than their share of trouble of almost every conceivable kind and condition. Congregations were difficult to please and there were, at first, but few ministers to supply the parishes. In the majority of cases every "man of God" served more than one church — each and every one was overburdened and over-worked and as a result they were inclined to be impatient and short-tempered. After all, they were but human.

The question of money or its equivalent plagued most of the early congregations. Commissioners would assure the Presbytery that a certain sum was pledged annually but all too often this would not be forthcoming. That his salary was "in arrears" was, apparently the reason the Rev. James Martin "applied for a release from his charge at Piney Creek." The congregation advised Presbytery that their financial affairs were "not in a healthy condition" but they had no desire to lose the services of Rev. Martin.

The Presbytery of Carlisle was in somewhat of a dilemma—here was a minister asking to be released from his duties in a given sphere and a parish requesting that his request be denied. Finally the commissioners of Piney Creek Church were "cited to appear at the next meeting of the Presbytery, and show cause why Mr. Martin's request should not be granted." A committee consisting of the Rev. Messrs. Black, McKnight and Henderson, with elders John Linn, Robert McPherson and James McKnight, was directed to meet at Piney Creek on the first Tuesday in Dec. (1788), and inquire into the condition of affairs.

The committee duly "inquired" and the financial status of the church was found to be in a "very unsound state." The pastoral relation between the Rev. Martin and the Piney Creek congregation was thereupon "unanimously dissolved."

At the same meeting of the Presbytery of Carlisle, the Rev. Martin accepted a call to East and West Penn's Valley, Warrior Mark, and Half Moon, in Pennsylvania, within the present bounds of the Presbytery of Huntingdon. Here he labored until his death, on June 20, 1795. He was a native of County Down, Ireland, but came to this country before the War of the American Revolution. At first, the old chronicler states, "he labored for a season in South Carolina." Piney Creek was his first "settlement" in this country, though he preached for many years in Ireland. He was one of the original members of the Presbytery of Huntingdon, which was set up on April 14, 1795. He died in his 67th year and was buried at Penn's Valley.

According to the old records, the Rev. James Martin was "an able and popular preacher." His grandson stated that he was "an earnest, animated speaker." Like all the preachers of his day, and those especially of Mr. Martin's denomination, his sermons were long, perhaps seldom less than an hour and a half, and sometimes considerably longer. On a warm summer day "it was not unusual for him to take off his coat, and preach in his shirt sleeves. In the pulpit he was very forgetful of himself and his personal appearance, so intently was he taken up in his subject." A daughter-in-law said that "he would first take off his coat, then begin to loosen his cravat, and conclude by taking off his wig, holding it in his hand and shaking it in the face of the congregation." Another relative says that "during the course of his sermon his wig would become all awry, the back part turned to the front, and he was all unconscious of the change."

The Rev. James Martin was twice married. His first wife was Annie McCullough and to them were born four sons, namely, James, Samuel, John and Robert Martin. James, the eldest, was educated for the ministry, but never preached. He spent his life as a teacher.

Ellen Davidson, of York County, Pa., became the second wife of the Rev. James Martin. There were no children to this union.

Piney Creek Church remained without a settled pastor for some years after the resignation of Rev. Martin, and was forced to depend on Presbytery for "occasional supplies." They were in debt to Mr. Martin for back salary and were slow in "liquidating said indebtedness." Three years later they were still "paying on the same" and Presbytery urged every member of the congregation to "bear his or her share" and consider it a "just burden." It is to be hoped that the long-standing claim was at long last honorably discharged, and that the "hitherto good name of the congregation suffered nothing from delinquency." The record, after 1793, makes no further mention of the subject.

The following incident illustrates the fact that the early church was not free of the incursions "of the wolf in sheep's clothing."

In August, 1793, the advice of the Presbytery was sought in the following case: "A certain widow of Piney Creek with her husband in his lifetime, applied to a certain man who passed under the character of a gospel minister, and had the ordinance of baptism administered to her two children. However, it was afterwards discovered that said administrator had never been authorized by any regular Church of Christ, to act as a gospel minister." The Presbytery, after due thought and deliberation, decided the act of the imposter to be invalid, and advised that the children be baptized by a regularly ordained minister.

It would be interesting to know the name of the "said widow" and that of the "impostor" who "felt the urge to preach."

In October, 1801, the Piney Creek congregation, which had been without a regular minister since 1789, extended a call to the Rev. Patrick Davidson, offering him a salary (annual) of 87 pounds, 10 shillings for "one half of his ministerial and pastoral services." A commissioned informant told the Presbytery that Tom's Creek congregation had been consulted and had agreed, that Mr. Davidson's labors should be divided between the two congregations. The call was accordingly presented to Mr. Davidson, and upon his acceptance of it, the arrangement was consummated.

Tom's Creek and Piney Creek were now, for the first time, in a period of some 40 years, united under the same pastor. The union then established has been continued "with entire harmony" through successive pastorates, for many, many years."

The historical and genealogical study of the Piney Creek congregation and churchyard will be continued in this series next week.

Manipulated "News" Exposed

Did you read or see on TV the report of the Congressional Committee which investigated in depth the television "news" coverage of the Democratic National Convention and rioting by "peaceniks" at Chicago in August 1968? It should have been carried in considerable length by every newspaper and TV station, since its findings bear on the great nationwide controversy set off by Vice President Spiro Agnew's demand for "unbiased" news programs and "balanced", honest news commentaries.

The Committee subpoenaed film and video tape used by NBC, CBS and ABC in their coverage of the convention and the attendant rioting led by revolutionaries and "peace loving" hippies. The Committee investigated and found present among network "star" newsmen and commentators an antagonism toward the Democratic Party for not holding the convention in Miami (where TV networks wanted it to be held) and against Mayor Daley of Chicago for the protective (and restrictive) measures taken to cope with the threat of massive rioting by Communist-led radicals and their "peacenik" dupes. The Committee found that the networks, by manipulating the news coverage, favored the radical mobs and held up the police and Mayor Daley to public scorn.

The One-Sided TV

Here is a significant excerpt from the official Committee report: "B. Prejudicial Selection of Film: Investigators from the staff personally viewed both cuttakes (film footage not used on the air) and broadcast material (used on the air) of all three networks. A comparison between these two types of material was made to determine whether material complimentary to the police and derogatory to demonstrators was systematically withheld from broadcast. Another purpose of the review was to evaluate whether the broadcast material was slanted or biased in its presentation of facts.

"The evidence here is clearly susceptible to contradictory interpretation. In an attempt to give an overall impression, it might be said that the coverage presented over the air does, in retrospect, seem to present a one-sided picture which in large measure exonerates the demonstrators and protestors and indicted the city government of Chicago and, to a lesser degree, the Democratic Party . . .

A Serious Muzzling

"There were incidents shown on the video tape and film, but not on the air, which arguably could have presented a different picture of the convention than the one that was actually conveyed." (This is a very serious charge—the protection of rioting radicals and mob action and the indictment of police through biased news coverage—by the three major TV networks!)

"One example," reports the Committee staff, "appears on CBS reel No. 20-5, which was reported some time on the evening of August 28. The title of this reel was 'Arresting of Hippies.'

pies and Rough Line Between Police and Hippies. No. 2. This presents a night scene in front of the Hilton Hotel with a live microphone located in a mobile (CBS) camera unit. One of the announcers says: 'They are assaulting police lines.' Investigators note that this was the first indication found of any recognition by those covering the event for television that provocation of the police was involved in the subsequent alteration between demonstrators and police in front of the hotel." But CBS editors suppressed the announcer's comment and the scenes of the hippie assault on the police.

Suppression Of News

"When the material was presented over the air," the Committee staff reports, "no reference was made to the above quoted remark, nor was any scene of such an assault visible. Shots of material raining down from the Hilton Hotel onto the heads of the police and camera crews was also available but not broadcast. The investigators also noted footage showing police cars being stoned by the demonstrators with the police pursuing and capturing at least one of the stone throwers." Such footage—and there was lots of it—was censored or suppressed; it did not get on the air.

Thus the police were made to look bad and the revolutionaries and mobsters wearing "peace" regalia were made to seem to be innocent victims of police brutality." That was the way the revolutionaries planned it. For the plan to succeed, they had to have the aid of the TV networks. They got it, according to the facts presented to the American public by this Congressional Committee.

There is much more. Next week's column will give the Committee's detailed report on how CBS stabbed Mayor Daley with "electronic journalism."

Marines Offer Recruiting Plan

The Marine Corps announced this week a program designed to allow high school seniors the opportunity to enlist now and delay going to recruit training until after graduation.

The new policy allows seniors up to 180-day's delay from date of enlistment, until the time they report for active duty. Previously, the Marine Corps offered only 120-day's delay in their enlistment program.

Marine officials said the additional time between enlistment and reporting for training means high school seniors will have greater flexibility in planning personal requirements between now and graduation.

Although seniors signing up under the program receive no pay during the delay period, the 180-day program means an immediate pay raise of about eight dollars a month upon reporting for active duty, Marine officials said.

Additional information regarding the new program is available from Gunnery Sergeant Charles R. Lewis, your local Marine Corps Recruiter at 30 West Church St., Frederick, Md., or phone 662-1718.

Troubled Waters For Oil
By Babson's Reports Incorporated, Wellesley Hills, Mass., January 29, 1970—Since about last June the once-favored oil issues have taken a rather severe buffeting—pricewise—in the stock market. With few exceptions, lows have been reached since that time, with some quality issues showing extreme declines. Although the shakeout of the oils may not yet be completed, some of the reasons for the drop in prices should be examined, since only last spring oil stocks were a fair-haired group in the eyes of investors.

Alaskan Black Gold Rush

Part of the decline may be due to the fact that some oil stocks were oversold to begin with and may now be merely seeking a more normal level. Early in 1969 news from the oil frontiers, whether fact or fancy, caused some impressive gyrations in the shares of potential participants. The Alaskan North Slope, Indonesia, and Libya provided tales of valuable concessions and huge petroleum reserves.

This served to inject oil stock prices with considerably vitality. The most talked about event was the September Alaskan lease sales, cloaked in war-like security. However, when the $900-million sale was completed, there was realization on the part of investors that a great deal had been spent for crude that was still under the frozen tundra—in not clearly defined quantities—and the difficulties and costs of getting the crude to market became substantial. This point marked the beginning of additional disenchantment with the oils.

Expropriation Threats

At nearly the same time political and military events loomed in areas of overseas oil company activity. In many instances expropriation was a threat, and in Bolivia the threat was realized as Gulf Oil lost its oil properties there. Although compensation is likely, or even the return of the property is possible, Gulf and others now more closely weigh the risks of foreign investment. Libya, Nigeria, and the whole Middle East also suddenly became delicate areas.

On The Home Front

From about midyear on there was a slowly rising tide of tax reform sentiment at the heart of which was a call for a cut in the oil depletion allowance. Proponents of this proposal depicted oil millionaires as paying nominal income taxes. Those who wanted the allowance unchanged predicted that a reduction would put an end to oil exploration. The law did pass and reduced the depletion allowance from 27½% to 22%. Effects on individual companies are hard to define, but the industry feels that the tax changes will cost oil and gas producers some $600 million in 1970.

Another depressant on oil stocks is a proposed revision of import quota regulations originally designed to protect domestic oil firms against a flood of low-cost foreign crude. End result could be adjustments in world petroleum distribution patterns, and possibly lower prices for crude oil. In the third quarter of 1969 the effect of the early-year refinery workers' strike began to show in company earnings, and, for some, estimates were scaled down. With some exceptions, the oil group on average is expected to show little or no gain in earnings for 1969 over 1968. For 1970 the picture could improve, dependent in part on the outcome of tariff and quota talks.

Hold Oils

On the whole, the staff of Babson's Reports feels that the oils merit retention. Long-term, crude from Alaska, Indonesia, and Libya will prove to be valuable additions to world petroleum supplies, and should add important revenues to oil company financial statements.

CATOCTIN HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

By Roxie Aubol

CHS Represented In Conference

Seven students selected from a cross-section of the Catoctin High School freshmen class represented the school in The Maryland Committee for Children and Youth for the 1970 White House Conference and The Western Maryland Committee for Children and Youth's "Youth in Search of Self" workshop held in Hagerstown.

Jean Amery, Dean Gillespie, Tom Kinman, Robert Novak, Missy Reed, Becky Seiss, and Gary Smith, met with over 500 other students from Frederick, Garrett, Allegany, and Carroll counties, to discuss the critical issues of young people from the ages of 11 to 15. Mrs. Gail Quick, CHS Guidance Counselor, was advisor and chaperone for the group.

One of the main purposes of the workshop was to provide adults with an opportunity to listen to youth's assessment of the critical issues facing him.

There were four main topics discussed at the workshop: Youth and his Family, Youth and his School, Youth and the Community, and Youth and the Law. Such issues as drug and alcohol abuse, poor housing, the generation gap, student legal and constitutional rights and police brutality were discussed.

Two sessions of all the Frederick County students involved in the Western Maryland Conference were held at West Frederick Junior High School in November and December. Frederick County Chairman for the workshop was Mrs. John L. Carnochan, Jr.

After each workshop the seven Catoctin students held "rapping sessions" in school to inform other students about what was discussed and learned.

They also presented a panel discussion on what was learned at the workshop and how it applies to Catoctin, at the January 9 meeting with the Board of Education, secondary school principals, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Carnochan, Jr., and the Frederick County Commissioners. The purpose of this meeting was to prove that the "Youth in Search of Self" workshop was worthwhile and worth the time. The Catoctin group was chosen for this panel discussion, because they were the only group to follow through after the conference meeting by holding in-school meetings with fellow underclassmen, teachers and a group of seniors.

The Catoctin Youth Workshop group is planning an "in-school" workshop for all interested Catoctin students.

SAVING HEARTS AND LIVES—NOW!

This is the first of a series of three articles presented by Martha Taylor Schipper, M.D., president of the Frederick County Heart Association to inform readers of this newspaper about progress in the fight against heart and circulatory diseases.

With diseases of the heart and blood vessels responsible for more than half of all deaths in the United States, it is obvious that an immense challenge faces medical scientists seeking to identify the precise mechanisms responsible for "hardening of the arteries" (atherosclerosis) and high blood pressure, the two leading causes of heart attack and stroke.

Until these mechanisms are fully understood, paving the way for prevention or even cures, is there anything that can be done to reduce the toll of more than 1,000,000 lives yearly?

The answer is yes. In this series of three articles, we will examine some of the presently-available methods of treatment and prevention—advances that are saving hearts and lives as of this very moment. Virtually all of them were speeded by the Heart Fund, the first national campaign of which was conducted just 21 years ago.

Let's begin with coronary artery disease, which includes heart attack and which kills about 573,000 people yearly in this country. In this category, a heart-saving development of profound importance has been the coronary care unit, now functioning in hundreds of American hospitals but lacking in many others. A move has already been made in this direction by the Frederick Memorial Hospital, and the Frederick County Heart Association has contributed $500.00 to its establishment and over $1,000 in training sessions for nursing personnel.

For those who survive heart attack long enough to make it to a hospital, coronary care service can literally spell the difference between life and death. In-hospital deaths following heart attacks can be reduced by about 30 per cent if patients get high-quality coronary care service rather than routine hospitalization. Some authorities believe that coronary care units have an ultimate potential of savings up to 50,000 lives yearly in this country.

In these installations, the heart's electrical activity is monitored continuously, with an alarm system bringing trained personnel within seconds if there is any change in heart rhythm or rate above or below a present range.

Some units also monitor temperature, respiration and blood pressure.

Additionally, there may be an "instant replay" system to permit quick review of changes which have occurred during the several moments which precede a crisis.

Such crises usually occur within 72 hours of the heart attack and most often involve an irregularly beating heart, shock or cardiac failure.

Once the alarm is given, corrective measures can be applied.

These include intravenous medications, electrical methods of re-starting or re-pacing the heart, mouth-to-mouth breathing, chest compression and others. Quite often fibrillating hearts—those beating with total irregularity—can ultimately be restored to normal function.

The Frederick County Heart Association like many other Heart Associations throughout the country has been sponsoring coronary care training programs for physicians and nurses and has been carrying forward intensive educational programs underscoring the value and essentiality of this service. Locally, Mrs. Shirley Weddle and Mrs. Faye Bevard were the most recent recipients of a three day training session in Ann Arbor, Michigan last fall.

Let another under-utilized technique—designed to meet emergency situations on the street, or in the home, office, or factory—is external compression of the sternum combined with mouth-to-mouth air ventilation following "cardiac arrest"—a term used to describe sudden cessation of circulatory function. The idea is to keep oxygenated blood flowing to the brain until appropriate medical treatment can be applied to restore normal heart function.

To meet this need, the Frederick County Heart Association along with other Heart Associations throughout the country has been conducting educational programs which should enable physicians and nurses, and police, firemen, utility workers and ambulance attendants as well to apply emergency measures when signs of sudden death are evident. A significant number of cardiac arrest victims can be saved if resuscitation maneuvers are started promptly—usually no later than four minutes after the arrest occurs.

Ground is just being broken in another promising area—the mobile coronary care unit. Here, ambulances or helicopters would be equipped with monitoring devices, and would be manned by persons prepared to restart or replace a heart in grave peril during the extremely critical moments between the heart attack and the patient's admittance to a coronary care unit of a hospital.

If optimal performance and equipment were available in these two additional areas—on-the-spot resuscitation and mobile coronary care units—the additional saving might run into the thousands and perhaps even into the tens of thousands.

As matters now stand, should you suffer a heart attack and go into cardiac arrest, you will be extremely fortunate to have at your side a trained person capable of recognizing certain symptoms and applying emergency measures. And your chances will be much improved if you obtain high quality coronary care service, rather than routine hospitalization.

Next: Reducing the risk of heart attack.

Scouts Eligible For Scholarships

Scouts, or former Scouts, of the National Capital Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, who need financial assistance to get a college education may now receive aid from the Charles McG. Sweitzer Scout Scholarship Fund. Application forms are available at the Scout Service Center, 1742 Connecticut Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20009, and may be submitted any time.

According to terms of a Trust Agreement between the late Charles McG. Sweitzer, of Washington, D.C., and the American Security and Trust Company, a fund of $60,000 may be used for grants to worthy young men "because of the grantor's strong belief in the Boy Scouts as a means of developing character" and "because of his further belief that a young man who is, or has been active as a Boy Scout has necessarily evidenced an aim of accomplishment to benefit others besides himself, which by advanced education he might further to the benefit of all."

Eligibility or stipends will be determined by a committee composed of Dr. Joseph E. Barber, educational consultant; Peter S. Ridley, D.C. Recorder of Deeds and Dr. Leonard Elstad, former president of Gallaudet College. All are veteran Scout officials who were recently appointed by Admiral Arleigh Burke, president of the National Capital Area Council. Awards will be made after the applicant has been accepted by a college or university and shall not be denied on account of nationality, color, or religious belief. The number and amount of the grants will be determined by the fund trustee.

Picking up trash on State highways costs Maryland taxpayers approximately $400,000 a year, according to the State Roads Commission.

YOUR INCOME TAX

EDITOR'S NOTE: This article is one of a series on ways you can save on your income tax returns this year. The articles are written by Henry Block, president of H & R Block, Inc., America's largest tax service.

Death And Divorce Create Similar Tax Problems

Death, divorce, or desertion create certain common problems in the payment of Federal income taxes, and there are special tax filing rules for those affected. Frequently, such persons are parents without partners and their children could provide some tax-cutting benefits.

For tax filing purposes, a person who is legally separated or divorced is considered unmarried for the entire tax year if he or she has not married again by the end of the year. This is basic to all the tax provisions covering divorced persons.

Child Care Deductions

A divorced woman with child custody can deduct child care costs necessitated by her absence from the home. The tax code provides a deduction of up to $600 for one child or $900 for two or more, even though her income is more than the $6,000 limitation on child care deductions. She can also deduct child care costs she may have made while she was still married. Her husband can deduct only the child care expenses he paid after the divorce.

A woman whose husband has deserted her, but who is still legally married has the same child care deductions as the divorced wife. However, to be eligible she must not have known the whereabouts of her husband during the tax year and she must have requested a court to require her missing husband to pay child support before she files her tax return.

The rules on child care deductions are slightly different for the widow or widower whose husband or wife died during the tax year. Unless the survivor had paid child care previously in the year, the survivor could deduct only the child care costs incurred after his or her spouse dies, and the $6,000 income limitation applies.

Dependents Exemptions

There is a difference, too, on the handling of exemptions claimed for dependents in the cases of divorce or death.

Should you be divorced by the end of the year, you are not permitted to claim your former husband or wife as an exemption on your tax return for that year. But if your spouse died during the year and you did not remarry before the end of that year, you can claim an exemption if the deceased person had no income. If the deceased spouse had income, you could still claim an exemption by filing a joint return and reporting this income.

Alimony

If you are making alimony or separate maintenance payments, you can generally deduct them if they are to be made for 10 years or more. If they are to be paid for less than 10 years, they will be deductible if the divorce decree says that they be ended under certain conditions, such as the remarriage or death of the wife. If you are receiving alimony payments subject to either of the above conditions, you must include them in your income and pay taxes on them.

However, if the divorce decree requires child support payments, this is not considered alimony. These support payments are not deductible as child care by the person making them, but this person could claim the child as a dependent exemption if he provides more than half of the child's support.

You cannot deduct any lump sum cash settlement required by a divorce decree, and this settlement is not taxable to the person receiving it.

Benefits In Death

When a husband or wife dies, the tax rules give some concessions to the surviving partner.

If your spouse died during the year, you are considered to have been married for the entire year. Should you not remarry before the year is over, you can file a joint return for you and your deceased spouse and take any benefits joint filing might give.

Your tax concessions may continue for two additional years. Suppose your husband (or wife) died in 1969 and you did not remarry but maintained a home for yourself and one or more children or other dependents. For 1969, you can file a joint return for yourself and your late husband, claiming him as an exemption.

On your tax returns for the next two years (1970 and 1971), you could qualify as a surviving spouse. This gives you the advantage of using the same tax rate schedule as those persons filing joint returns, thus affording you split income benefits and resulting in lower taxes than might otherwise be possible. Of course, for these two years and later you cannot claim your deceased husband as an exemption.

After these two years are over, and as long as you do not remarry, you may be able to file your tax return as the Head of Household. This allows you to use a special tax rate schedule which gives you approximately one-half the benefits of a married couple filing a joint return.

But to qualify as Head of Household, you must furnish over half the cost of maintaining a household for the entire year for at least one relative. Your relationship to the person for whom you maintain the household determines whether he must qualify as your dependent and whether he must actually live in your household. For example, if this happens to be your mother or father, they do not have to live in your home.

You usually do not have to report or pay taxes on money you receive from your deceased spouse's life insurance policies (providing his total estate does not exceed $60,000), whether you get the money in a lump sum or in installments. And you can omit from taxes income up to $5,000 in death benefits paid to you by your late spouse's employer.

Named FHABuilding Inspector

Mr. William Dubel of Taneytown, has been appointed as a Construction Inspector for the Farmers Home Administration. Mr. Bryce Hopkins, County Supervisor, in announcing this appointment, pointed out that he will be stationed in the Farmers Home Administration office located at 1197 East Street, Frederick, Maryland.

Mr. Hopkins said that because of the very heavy activity in rural housing loans, the agency has found it necessary to employ specialists in the building field to assure more rapid handling of applications for rural housing loans. Mr. Dubel's duties will involve counseling with applicants on the design of their homes, helping to negotiate with builders and supervising the construction contracts. He will also inspect construction in progress to assure that the government's minimum housing standards are being met.

The rural housing loans made by the Farmers Home Administration are available to rural residents or urban residents who own rural land or are employed in rural areas. The agency's definition of a rural area includes open space as well as places of 5500 population or less.

At the present time, funds are available only for the construction of modest homes for modest income families. Most families who meet the definition for modest income are earning between $5,000 to $10,000 per year.

Mr. Dubel's appointment became effective on December 1, 1969. We anticipate a substantial increase in the number of loans processed through this office as a result of Mr. Dubel's appointment, since he will be specializing primarily in new housing loans, Mr. Hopkins said.

Maryland's first established mail route, or post road, was established in 1695 starting near Cobb Island, Charles County, in the Potomac River where the mail was picked up from Williamsburg and the South, went to Benedict, across the Patuxent by ferry, followed the course of present Route 2 to Annapolis, across the Bay to Oxford and north to Philadelphia.

Maryland spans three distinct geographical regions: the Atlantic Coast Coastal Plain, the Piedmont Plateau and the Appalachian Mountains.

The ZIP Column

Necessary corrections should be made when returns are sent to the Internal Revenue Service, or State Comptroller.

Should there be any questions, as to your proper address, please inquire at the business counter.

George E. Rosensteel, PM.

Daniel Lindsey Works With 4-H

It is that time of the year again when Income Tax Returns must be prepared. I wish to remind our patrons, especially those who will be expecting refund checks, that the most important item to be completed on the tax papers, is that of a correct address.

Due mainly to the use of IBM machines, initials are used in lieu of full names of taxpayers. This presents quite a problem, in many cases, where a patron uses only the city and state as an address. It is not merely a request, but mandatory, according to Postal Laws and Regulations, that every person use a complete address, including P. O. Box number; rural route number and box number; or, in the case of those patrons receiving mail at the business counter, should use General Delivery (or street and number) as part of their address.

Lindsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph D. Lindsey, Emmitsburg, went to Anoka County after six years with the University of Maryland extension staff. He received his B.S. degree in agricultural education in 1956 and masters' degree in the field of extension education in 1962 from the University of Maryland. Other graduate work includes courses from Oklahoma, Arizona and U. S. Department of Agriculture. He holds the rank of assistant professor at the University of Minnesota, working toward a Ph.D. His letter:

"It is with mixed emotion that I submit this letter of resignation from the Anoka County Extension staff, effective Feb. 15, 1970.

"I will be accepting a position on the state 5-H staff at the University of Minnesota where my initial assignment will be working with agents and organizations in the development of 4-H and youth programs.

"While I view this assignment as a new personal challenge, I know I will miss the personal working relationship with our 4-H members and adult leaders. It is hard to turn over the reigns of a 4-H youth program which is among the best in the state.

"I have greatly appreciated the very capable leadership of the Extension committee and my associates on the Extension staff, and the tremendous support of our county commissioners.

"I am happy that Anoka County will be one of the counties with which I will work, and I look forward to expanded youth programs in Anoka County."

Charnita Hosts

Ski Clubs

The Ski Club of Washington, D. C., won the BRSC-SCHAFFER, SKI-O-REE Trophy for skiing events conducted by the Blue Ridge Ski Council Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 17-18, at the Charrita Ski Area, near Emmitsburg.

Requiring three wins for permanent possession, the trophy is awarded for club members participating in fun races, recreational skier ability tests, test judges clinics, and an amateur ski instructor test. The SCWDC, a colossus among ski clubs, would have been last except for the bonus points awarded seven of its members for passing the demanding two-day amateur ski instructor test.

Little Heiskell Ski Club of Hagerstown, was second to the Baltimore Ski Club in the fun race Saturday and came on stronger to win over the Potomac Valley Skiers on Sunday. Little Heiskell and PVS club members also took good advantage of testing programs to measure skiing ability.

SKI-O-REE was planned by the Blue Ridge Ski Council, an association of ski clubs, to improve skiing safety. All the events contribute to increasing skiing ability, the best accident prevention known.

The management of the Charrita Ski Area went all out to cooperate with Council officials and the events were conducted without interfering with the many non-participating skiers enjoying the slopes. SKI-O-REE was designed for safe skiing fun—even for skiers not entered.

Scouts Plan

Summer Camp

The Troop Committee of Boy Scout Troop 284, met Tuesday evening with 15 members in attendance. Among the important decisions made, were definite plans to send the troop to Camp Sinoquie (under the jurisdiction of the Mason-Dixon Council, Hagerstown) this summer. Application is now being prepared, to send approximately 25 boys.

It was reported that the light bulb sale is going well, however, only about half of the community has been canvassed. Anyone wanting to purchase a combination package of these bulbs, eight for $2.00, is urged to call 447-2562 or 547-6272, or contact one of the scouts.

Scoutmaster Bob Rosensteel reported that Mr. Al Miller, First Aid Specialist, from Yellow Springs, gave a thorough lesson to the troop on Monday evening, Jan. 26. Mr. Miller will return again on Monday, Feb. 2, to continue with the training. These services are entirely voluntary on Mr. Miller's part, and the troop is indeed fortunate to have this expert devoting his time on behalf of the boys.

The committee would like to remind the public that Boy Scout Week is February 7 through Feb. 14. This is the week when we stress the importance of scouting throughout the community. Mr. Walter Crouse has so generously offered the use of his display window in which Scout projects will be displayed. Support our Scouts!

Trees Revitalize

Barren Land

On many farms there are idle fields, or portions of fields and pastures lying idle. Changes in farm ownership and changes in farming practices have brought about the abandonment of many cleared areas. These areas are nonproductive liabilities rather than the productive assets that all land should be.

Planting and growing trees on these lands can turn this idle land back into production. The planting of trees long range objective is for growing a future timber crop of Christmas trees, pulpwood and saw timber, but many side advantages are to be found in growing trees. Land that is planted to trees is best protected from soil erosion which in turns helps to make cleaner streams, ponds and rivers. Wildlife is benefitted by tree planting as well as food for small game animals. Recreation potential and scenic beauty are certainly enhanced by tree planting. Thus tree planting is multiple use of once non-productive idle land.

The Department of Forests and Parks has a reforestation program in Frederick County. The Department furnishes tree seedlings free of cost to any qualified landowner in the county. The smallest order accepted is for 250 trees, which plants approximately one-quarter acre. Before any order is approved the area designated for planting must be inspected to determine the number of trees needed and the type of trees best suited for the planting site. For plantings of approximately three acres and larger, forestry contractors are available to do machine planting and hand planting. Agricultural cost-share is available to assist with 80 per cent of the planting cost, site preparation and fencing costs where this work is needed.

Frederick County has been allotted approximately 350,000 tree seedlings for planting this spring. The main species available are: White Pine, Scotch Pine, Norway Spruce, and White Spruce. Hardwood species available are Black Walnut and Tulip Poplar. This year a variety of wildlife shrubs are being offered to be planted
