Most Anything At A Glance - By Abigail -

The second Gettysburg church to burn this year so far, and the fourth in two years, has brought frantic worry to the citizens of ttysburg who realize they have a real pyromaniac on their hands. The firebug seems to respect no denomination and just seems satisfied to vent his wrath on any church, regardless of religious affiliation. It is really something to worry about folks. Churches are costly and ornate and are hard, if not impossible, to replace in this day and age of high cost. We sincerely hope that an early "break" in the investigation comes.

It has been a long, dreary and cold winter folks, just in case you hadn't realized it. Actually it hasn't been any longer, time wise, but the temperature and cloudiness has made it seem like an eternity. Just in case you haven't checked your figures, January was the coldest one we have experienced in 30 years. Statistics show that January was almost 10 degrees below average normal and I am sure that you have seen this reflected in your fuel bill. While we did experience a few pleasant days last weekend, they were short-lived. The rains came and even a little snow Tuesday. And just to add a little icing to the cake, the old mercury did a nose-dive and dangled around five above zero several times this week. Charnita skiers may enjoy this weather, but for me, I've had it!

Just a final reminder to those folks who are planning to protest their new tax assessment figures. If you received your final notice around January 8, this is the last weekend you have to notify the County Commissioners that you are dissatisfied. We understand there are quite a few who have decided to take their appeal a step higher. Be that as it may, you nust take action if you want a hearing!

Let Them Eat Cake The afternoon tea party has fallen into disrepute, and in many women's eyes it remains a gathering of chatteringladies - in -hats - and flowered dresses. But actually a small gathering at tea time (usually from 3 to 5) can be a delightful (and inexpensive) way to repay social obligations. The fare can be as simple or as elaborate as you want. For a pleasant change, try serving brewed tea instead of the bagged variety. Choose an interesting blend at your local gourmet shop or at the foreign section of your market. Always remember to serve a pot of very hot boiled water along with it, since some people like their tea weak. For non-tea drinkers, you can have a little pot of brewed coffee in reserve and it's always a good idea. serve, and it's always a good idea to have lots of bottles of chilled Pepsi-Cola in the refrigerator for those who would prefer some-thing cold in the afternoon. Serve soft drinks in tall glasses or water goblets to keep the or water goblets to keep the party tone.

You can make little tea sandwiches - cream cheese and chopped walnuts, watercress and egg salad on very thin whole wheat, asparagus tips with a dab of mayonnaise rolled up in slices of thin white bread-but I think cake is a less-work-for-you solution.

Don't serve a large gooey frosted thing. Bake or buy the kind of pastry that can be easily cut into little serving squares. Brownies or date bars, a square cheese cake, strudel loaf, pound cake are simple to divide up before the tea party and place attractively on platters.

The fun part about this kind of afternoon gathering is that it should entail a minimum of work for the hostess so she herself can should entail a minimum of work for the hostess so she herself can sit down with her guests instead of jumping up and down and supervising things the way a full course evening meal frequently demands. Once you've accustomed yourself to this delightfully tea-riffic idea, you'll find yourself giving more and more of them. And if enough women felt about tea parties the way I do, its slightly tarnished reputation would shine again!

torial item from the Chicago Amercan newspaper for August 30: "One prime example of how television can distort and manage its coverage was when networks cut away from films of the demonstrations made in Grant Park 55 minutes earlier (showing a melee of police grapling with milling "peaceniks") to live coverage of the Convention . . . And what was the first picture relayed from the convention? A picture of a smiling, obviously pleased Mayor Daley, with no explanation that there was no connection between the Grant Park films and the convention picture of Daley. The juxtaposition of the downtown violence to a picture of a smiling Mayor Daley created the undeniable impression that the Mayor was an insensitive, sadistic political boss who had ordered his police to commit acts of brutality and was pleased as punch that his orders were being carried out."

The Committee added this comment: "The general accuracy of this allegation has been confirmed by the staff's review of the network convention cov-The Stabbing

But an even more spohisticated "electronic journalism" sequence (to create a distorted image of the Mayor) was aired by CBS. As described in the Committee report, Dan Rather, one of the CBS "Stars," sought out Mayor Daley sitting on the convention floor and began a "live" interview with him. He told the Mayor: "Walter Cronkite is reporting that downtown the police have used tear gas and there is considerable turmoil around the Hilton Hotel."

The Mayor thereupon remarked that the Chicago police were doing a good job in a different situation, that they were not over-reacting with undue violence. By now the editor in the CBS control booth had cut into the visual part of the interview with news reel footage previously shot at the Hilton, showing consderable police aggressiveness against the on-rushes of the mobs of "peaceniks." Thus as the interview proceeded, CBS, unknown to Mayor Daley, was using violence scenes which made the Mayor's comments of being "pleased with the behavior of our police" seem callous and sadistic. CBS Newsmen Rather and Cronkite were aware of what was going on, but they did not tell the Mayor. Rather, standing beside the Mayor, could hear the rioting turmult in his ear phone. Here is an excerpt from the Committee report: "With the sound of one image being made to provide continuity over and to extend emphasis to another image - Daley's assurance that everything was well in hand downtown continued as a voiceover accompaniment to scenes of bayonet-flashing troops and milling police. The 'live' shots of Daley increased the sense of violence in the taped scenes from downtown, and the sense of violence in the taped scenes downtown endowed the closeups of Daley's rather blandly obstinate denial that undue force had been used with a sense of heavy villiany that hardly any professional actor could con-

Power To Destroy

The next day, when CBS brought Mayor Daley into Walter Cronkite's booth, he was given no opportunity to comment on the scenes which the networks had used to picture him to the American public as a villian who was denying the very facts being projected for the people to see. An additional bit of news "management" (and mutilation of honest journalism) was the editing out (suppression and censorship are other words for it) of footage showing the "peaceniks" and their revlutionary comrades assaulting the police - and the Committee found plenty that wasn't used.

The crux of the Committee's judgement on such news distortions: "The use of this technique would appear to place a powerful, and possibly unfair, advantage at the disposal of the broadcaster in discrediting the views of those with whom he personally disagrees." This is the power which Vice President Agnew said must be selfdisciplined or its wielders brought to account by the people of the United States.

Capitol Comment

By Charles McC Mathias U.S. Senator

Voters Cite Vietnam As Inflation Cause

Not long ago, one of the television networks broadcast a program which offered residents of Maryland and the other 49 states the opportunity to send a questionnaire to their Senators pointing out the causes of inflation and what measures they believed should be pursued to halt it. A random sampling of the many questionnaires sent to my office revealed some interesting information.

Government spending in in Vietnam gathered the most votes as the primary cause of inflation in the United States with an indictment of big labor and trade unions generally following close behind. Respondents to the poll felt that unions had demanded and obtained, in the words of the questionnaire, "too large wage increases." Voters called for much less government spending in Vietnam as one major way to slow down inflation.

The government also came in first, according to the respondents, for "spending too much on other things." I'he most frequently-mentioned "other things" were last year's increase in Congressional salaries and past government employee pay raises. Bureau-cratic "waste" was also included with charges of inefficiency in government as other factors contributing to inflation.

Besides government and labor, business and consumers were also blamed. Business firms "raised their prices too much" and consumers "borrowed too much," according to the sample compiled by my staff. At the bottom, among the causes of inflation, were consumers who "spent too much" and again the government which "did not tax enough." To slow down inflation, my constituents said that the government should "spend less on Vietnam and, second, that consumers should "borrow less." A slowdown in consumer spending was also called for by a large percentage of the voters. The suggestion that the government should control wages and prices received in the decade of the '70's.

lukewarm interest as did tho option of higher interest rates. Those who voted for a raise in income taxes usually stipulated that this should apply mainly to the very rich. Corrective programs which some respondents suggested included an elimination of "tax loop holes" and deficit spending. Credit cards and wage gains which did not match gains in productivity were cited as detriments to slowing down inflation. I was particularly interested in the fact that no one believed that inflation was either inevitable or uncontrollable. While differences of opinion were greater concerning the financial emphasis which should be placed on specific programs, a consensus could be discerned in some cases. In the case of Vietnam, an overwhelming majority of citizens advocated a reduction in Vietnam spending. But there was a split in the number who believed that spending for "other detense" should be reduced or continued at its present level. A slim majority called for more expenditure on education. But there was almost an even division between the three options of increasing expenditures, decreasing expenditures, or continuing the status quo. The majority of these voters called for reductions of government spending on agriculture support and for space exploration and foreign aid. A majority thought that low-cost housing should have more emphasis and that highway construction should continue at the present rate. I think it's a healthy sign of the times that almost all voters concurred in wanting to see more spending on pollution control. Although only air pollution was offered as a choice on the television ballot, many writers added land and water pollution as of equal importance. While I'm sure that this poll is not any more accurate than many others taken on the subject. I offer it to you as one interesting measure of the kind of things the American people want their government to be doing

School Enrollment Continues To Soar

Soaring school enrollments, which have almost doubled the student population in Frederick County in the last 20 years, will continue to climb. The Frederick County Planning and Zoning Commission, the Board of Educaton, and various state and national agencies agree that at least until the year 2000 increasing school population will be a fact of life.

show that school enrollments from 1911 to 1950 fluctuated, but tended to center around a total of 10,000 students. A peak enroll-ment of 11,990 in 1917-18, during World War I, was not reached again until 1954-55.

The depression years starting in 1929 saw constantly decreasing enrollments until a low point of 9322 students was reached in 1944 - 45. Enrollments during World War II were consistently low probably reflecting the rush to service of older students and the low birth rate of the depression years.

With the shift from 11 years of schooling to 12 years, which occurred in 1949, enrollments started up and have climbed sharply every year since.

The recently released report, "Population Characteristics and Projections" from the Frederick County Planning and Zonng Commission states, "The 1967-68, school enrollments reached 17,905 public and 1,613 parochial school students and 430 junior college students; the total nearly doubled that of 20 years ago. Educationattainment levels are constantly increasing and will continue doing so." It continues, "The County growth rate is foreseen as increasing rather substantially in the 1970's, principally as a result of new and programmed water and sewer facility improvements, the new aluminum reduction plant and increased growth in the I-70S corridor after 1975."

Regarding school enrollment as

Stock Split Possibilities For 1970

By Babson's Reports Incorporated, Wellesley Hills, Mass., February 5, 1970-Stock splits most often occur in times of rising market prices, good corporate earnings reports, and a strong overall business climate. This is clearly illustrated by the large number of stocks that were split during the 1965-1968 period. In those years, prices and earnings were generally rising and business for the most part was exceptionally good. In the forepart of 1969 stock split activity continued heavy. However, as the year progressed and the economy slowed, so too did stock split activity. Fewer In '70

Corporate earnings and general business conditions are not likely to be robust this year. If the past gives any clue to the future, then it would appear that 1970 may not be a particularly good year for stock splits. Moreover, the great bulk of stocks may not experience sharp price rises which might logically be followed by a split. Nevertheless, there are bound to be a certain number of stocks that will split-some unexpectedly perhaps - just as there are bound to be some logical split candidates that will take no such action.

The primary reasons behind a corporate decision to split its stock are to increase the number of shares available and to lower the price of such shares. Both of these factors should improve the marketability of a company's shares and result in a broader ownership base. The smaller investor generally shuns the higher-priced issues, since he quite often will be unable to buy round lots and is unwilling to buy odd lots because of the cost differential. A stock split eliminates this hurdle and allows a larger number of investors to participate in company ownership. Finding Candidates

The most popular price level for stocks in recent years appears to have been between $30 and $50 per share. More investors have purchased meaningful numbers of shares in this range than at higher prices. Therefore, good grade issues selling at from $80 to $100 per share, or higher, are usually viewed as split candi-But there have also been many instances when stocks in the $50 to $79 range have been split. The split ratio will not necessarily be 2for-1, but may be at any multiple or percentage.

By Joan Dixon, Bates Design Director Room To Spare

This New Year's, I celebrated doubly, because my daughter got married. And I've not only gained a son-in-law, but an extra room as well. With this found space, I've decided to remake the room into a combination guest room/office.

Transforming my daughter's pink and white haven is going to be an easy job. Since I'm from the savers category (anything from spare string to an extra bed), all her furnishings will be packed and stored in the basement. Then, I'll start from scratch.

Re-doing a room when the basic decor of your house has been established is fun-and it gives you tablished is fun—and it gives you the chance to do something different... something you may not have thought of before. In my case, since most of the house is furnished with period furniture and antiques, the theme of this room will be stark simplicity.

First, comes a paint job. The walls will be off-white, and I'm going to do the floor in a heavenly shade of blue. For contrast, the shade of blue. For contrast, the bed will be covered with Bates' classic Piping Rock spread in a lively shade of parrot green. The same ribbed Piping Rock material—in an antique white table fashion-will cover a small, round table next to the bed for afternoon tea and snacks. And a parrot green Parsons table will be off to one side for my real work. Finishing touches: a mod-work. Finishing touches: a modern wall lamp, some paintings and a big green bowl filled with floating white chrysanthemums.

This spare room should be a great retreat for me-but it may not last too long. I'm already mentally turning it into a nursery for the grandchildren to visit.

Cullen School Over-Crowded

The State Department of Juvenile Services monthly report indicates that the average population at the Victor Cullen School for last December has increased 30 per cent over the figure for the same time period a year ago.

Guest Editor: Nancy Pullen Canada's First Breck Girl We Love Long-Hairs!

When Canadian editors were asked to pick the girl with the most beautiful hair, they chose Nancy Pullen, 23 and a medical secretary in Ontario. Here are Nancy's tips on how to keep a beautiful head of lovely long hair.—Ed.

Things aren't all that different in Canada—but one thing's for sure, Wedolovelong-hairs! (Maybe it's all that cold weather.)

And if there's anything our

Every two months, I have a blunt cut, to shape up stragglers and avoid split ends. I use a natural bristle brush-much kinder to long hair-brushing 100 strokes every evening and morning. Once a week, it's washing time. Since my hair tends to be on the dry side, I use Breck Shampoo for Dry Hair because it gently replaces any oils I need and leaves my hair shining and manageable. And since the cold winters in Canada and my weekends on the ski slopes often leave my hair flyaway and tangled, I fol-low every shampoo with a creme

When you're setting long hair, it's most important to avoid brush rollers (they cause hair to break off) and use jumbo metal or mesh ones, for simple, easy-care styles. I think long hair looks better as a straight, shining sweep instead of twisted into intricate curls. And I think most girls (and the chaps!) agree. After all, if you've got pretty long hair, why not show it off?

Brace up to winter ho-hums. Even if you're sure winter isn't the best time of the year, there are ways to make it less painful. If you're the quiet type (denying that winter sports even exist). dreary winter days lend themselves perfectly to happy talk and party planning. Now all your U.S. Savings Bonds pay higher interest.

Now it's official.

Now one of the safest investments in the world brings you new and higher returns.

Now your U.S. Savings Bonds pay the highest interest in history: a full 5 per cent when held to maturity of 5 years and 10 months. (4% the first year; 5.20% thereafter to maturity.) Previously, these Bonds earned you only 41/4% if you held them for seven years.

The new interest began June 1, 1969. So all of the Bonds you own, no matter when you bought them, have been collecting higher interest since that time.

Those Bonds are still replaced if lost, stolen or burned.

You can still buy them through Payroll Savings or the Bond-a-Month

Regardless of your other investments, can you think of any easier, better, or safer way to build a nest egg for yourself?

It's nice to know that you are doing a little something for Uncle Sam, too. The $52 billion in U.S. Savings Bonds now outstanding in the hands of millions of Americans go a long way toward keeping your country financially strong.

There never was a better time to take stock in America.

There's a man at the place where you work who can start you on the Payroll Savings Plan right now.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a proud way to save.

Take stock in America. With higher paying U.S. Savings Bonds.

Says No Epidemic

"There is no major outbreak of influenza here in the county," according to Dr. Charles Spicknall, director of the local Health Department, and no major epidemic is forecast for this year by the U. S. Public Health authorities.

The doctor commented, however, that there is definitely some flu around, a fact undisputed by ers fall victim to the virus.

The winter months, coupling cold with inclement weather, generally bring a decline in attendance according to school officials.

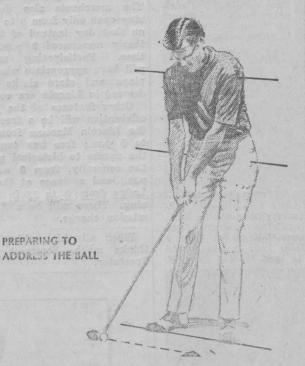

Dr. Spicknall explained that an outbreak of the proportion of last year's influenza wave is unlikely and indications so far would point those county residents working toward a minor occurrence of the in half-deserted offices as co-work- disease with little likelihood of disease with little likelihood of expansion to epidemic size.

Before his match in Mexico, we asked Frank Beard what thoughts go through his mind as he prepares to address the ball. We were never prepared for such a detailed reply.

"I feel that a good bit of what success I've had has come to be a president of the president o from my trying not to be negligent of or take for granted the essentials or basics of the swing. Although I've been on the tour for almost ten years, things still don't come automatically for me. So, when it looks as though I'm being deliberate, I am; just as though I were a beginner. For example, making sure of my grip and mentally drawing lines across my toes and through my hips and shoulders to be sure they are all parallel to the intended line of flight. Most important, I find that being deliberate keeps my pace at just the right tempo, not too slow, not too fast, but just right."

That might sound like a lot of thinking, but probably accounts for Frank's winning over one hundred thousand dollars for the last three consecutive years on the PGA tour.

Improve U.S. Transportation

On Christmas evening, a severe snow storm hit the eastern part of the country. As result, airplanes were grounded at many airports and thousands of Americans who had hoped to be traveling either to or from their Christmas visits, found themselves waiting in long lines in airports. It is ironic that on the same day, at the same time, a number of comfortable, well lighted, well heated passenger railway cars were traveling on time to their destinations. but with very few passengers. On the other side of the coin there were a number of news reports dating from the extreme cold wave immediately after the Christmas snow storm, during which planes were able to fly, but in which trains for one reason or another, were many hours pe-hind schedule.

The Evening Star reported that the Baltimore and Ohio's Capitol Limited from Chicago arrived in Washington five hours and 35 minutes late Saturday. In New York, Penn Central commuter trains were running up to an hour late, service on the Metroliner was disrupted and some weekend trains were canceled. All of this seems to me to add up to an overall problem of providing the kind of passenger transportation that a country the size of ours. with its great demand for transportation services, really requires in the modern industrial age. In other words, there needs to be some consumer protection for the American traveler. One area which needs study is the possibility of providing better information and alternatives for passengers when any one type of inter-state service is disrupted by weather or mechanical failures. Other topics for review include passenger comfort. baggage nandling and reservation and ticketing services.

One of the secrets of America's success in the world is that we are a traveling nation. While of course we travel tor recreation and for pleasure, we also do a great deal of traveling for business and without this type of traveling. I don't believe that we could have achieved, nor will we maintain, the success we nave enjoyed up to now. Ours is not a unique experience in history. One of the set teatures of the success of ancient Roman civilization was the extensive network of nighways which bound the Roman Empire together. New today the United States nas an even greater imperative for a rapid, dependable transportation sys-Since no one, overall, is looking at the overall problems of the passenger on all common carriers, I think it is time that the consumer interest which is being exhibited in other fields, be directed toward those Americans who have to travel for business. or who want to travel for pleasure or for education. I am therefore making an inquiry of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Department of Transportation and common carriers in the country, as to what legislation might be usefully adopted, which would make it possible to give the passenger on American's airlines and railroads and in the other common carriers services that are available, an even break when they pack their bag, put their papers in the briefcase and prepare to take a trip.
