The Town Election polls this week drew more voters than some people had expected, but, unfortunately, less than most of us had hoped for. Nevertheless, the citizens who did turn out to cast their ballots have chosen three fine men to serve on the Town Council. Congratulations to the re-elected mayor and newly-elected commissioners.

In reading the candidates' statements in last week's paper I wasn't too surprised to see so many words of praise for the departing and incumbent commissioners. All of these gentlemen devoted a lot of time and energy for some very worthwhile endeavors for the community. A special thank you is in order for the commissioners whose terms expired this year, Philip Topper and Sterling Goulden. Both Mr. Topper and Mr. Goulden have done a fine job in their service to the town. Hopefully, they will continue to lend their help and wisdom to assist the Town Council with its duties.

Motorists who still feel gasoline-starved and service station operators who continue to have difficulty obtaining needed fuel will be happy to hear that at least one politician is doing his best to serve the State of Maryland. I understand that Rep. Goodloe Byron got some action for a local station operator whose gasoline allotment had been far below his needs since the beginning of the year. From what I hear Rep. Byron's office was right on the ball in finding out why the station wasn't receiving more gasoline and getting the gasoline which the operator needed.

Looks like the open burning of garbage is in the news again. Seems that the Federal Environmental Protection Agency, the State Solid Waste Division and the Frederick County Air Quality Control are attempting to crack down on the burning of garbage now that the county landfill will be available for haulers. According to a representative from the State Solid Waste Division, the closing of open burning dumps after the opening of a county landfill is not unique and "some sacrifices" might have to be made by garbage haulers. From what I understand some of the haulers feel they are unable to meet the requirements set forth by state and federal air quality laws. There must be a workable solution to the problem.

Spring may seem like a time when we are almost bombarded by fund drives and solicitations for money, but there is a very worthwhile organization in this area which especially deserves your financial support: the Little League. I was surprised to hear recently that so few contributions have been received by Bill Wivell. Let's all dig deep into our pockets and give the Little Leaguers a helping hand.

Wins Doubleheader In Baltimore

St. Joseph's High School won its first doubleheader of its 25 year old history on Saturday when they traveled to Baltimore to play Lutheran High School.
In the first game, Steve Myers hurled brilliantly to shut out the host team 2-0, striking out eight and walking none for his first win of the year against no losses. Bruce Hollinger was the hitting star with a big single in the sixth to drive home Greg Adelsberger and Mike Rosensteel with the winning runs. Hollinger has now hit safely in his last five games. Adelsberger had walked and stolen second and Mike Rosensteel hit safely.
Timely hitting and clutch pitching also was the story in the second game as Joel Neighbours won his fifth game of the year, beating Lutheran 7-4. Neighbours struck out 11 and walked five. Neighbours leads the County in strikeouts with 52. Hitting stars in this game were Dick Glass, and Greg Adelsberger, both with two RBI's. Glass has taken over the team batting leadership now hitting a robust .454. Neighbours leads in runs scored with 14 and Ed Miller is the RBI leader with 17.

Got A Big Crowd? Try This Recipe

Elephant Stew
1 elephant (medium size)
2 rabbits (optional)
salt and pepper
Cut the elephant into small bite-size pieces. This should take about two months. Add enough brown gravy to cover. Cook over kerosene fire for about four weeks at 465 degrees.
This will serve thirty-eight hundred people. If more are expected, two rabbits may be added, but do this only if necessary as some people do not like to find a hare in their stew.
(This recipe is one of many listed in Flavorite Recipes from the Farmers' Almanac, edited by Ann Geiger and available free at Plaza Home and Garden Center, Thurmont Shopping Plaza. Most of the other recipes given in the book are more helpful than humorous.)

Rosensteel And Stover Win Commissioner Race

Ernest Rosensteel

Richard Sprankle

Joseph Stover

Emmitsburg voters Tuesday elected Ernest E. Rosensteel and Joseph E. Stover to the Board of Commissioners, and re-elected Richard M. Sprankle as mayor.
About 53 per cent of the approximate 575 registered voters cast their ballots in the Town Election.
Sprankle, who ran unopposed for the office of mayor, received 222 votes. Write-in votes for Don Rohrbaugh, Phil Topper, William Austin, Guy Baker, Jr. and Sterling Goulden, who received one vote each, and Allen Davis, who received 11 votes, were also cast.
Four candidates were listed on the ballot for two open commissioner offices. Rosensteel and Stover received 161 and 175 votes respectively, thus edging out their opponents, David Copenhaver and George Danner, Jr., who received 48 and 128 votes, respectively.

One write-in candidate for the office of commissioner, W. Larry Little, received one vote.
A total of 304 ballots were cast in the election. Thirty-three ballots were rejected in both the mayoral and commissioner races as a result of improper markings or incorrect write-in designations.
Rosensteel, Stover and Sprankle join incumbent commissioners J. Norman Flax and E. Eugene Myers on the Emmitsburg Town Board at the next regular meeting which will be Monday, May 6. Installation into office will take place at that time.
The two men elected as commissioners Tuesday will succeed F. Sterling Goulden, former president of the board, and Philip D. Topper. Neither Goulden nor Topper opted to run for re-election.

Sprankle is employed by B. H. Boyle & Sons Inc. Rosensteel is employed by the Chronicle Press Inc., and Stover is the owner of the Colonial Launderette.

The VFW Ambulance transported the injured persons to the hospital. Trooper Dennis Hoffman, Maryland State Police, investigated the accident.

Garden Club Tours Museum Near Here

Mrs. Cindy Hoffaberth, director of the museum, discussed their plans for the June 23 fashion show, "Brides of Yesteryear". Silver Fancy, which has permission for a food concession on that afternoon, will offer for sale refreshments in keeping with the usual wedding reception fare.
From the museum, the club members went to the amphitheater for a picnic lunch, brief business meeting, and some leaf raking in the area where they had planned rhododendron, violets, ferns, and Seess, assistant professor of political science at the Mount, Governor Mandel will preside over an informal question-answer session during the class, which will be held from 12 noon to 2 p.m. in the large meeting room of the Student Union Building. Dr. Seess has invited the public to attend the session.

Following the class, Governor Mandel will be the guest of honor at a luncheon at the home of Dr. Robert T. Marshall, chairman of the Department of Languages and Linguistics.

Week-Day School Holds Open House

Pupils and staff members of the Week-day Church School hosted an "Open House" last Wednesday afternoon in the parish house of Elias Lutheran Church. The local Week-day School is sponsored by the Emmitsburg Council of Churches and has completed its tenth year. It began as a cooperative venture of the local congregations September 30, 1964. Since then it has continuously provided an additional hour of religious education each week to local children.
Group singing, which included music learned during the second semester, was led by Mrs. J. William Strickhouser. Featured selections included "Jesus Christ, Superstar", accompanied by M. Strickhouser with the piano; "Boys and Girls for Jesus", accompanied by Mrs. Strickhouser, pianist, and Daniel Fearer with the drum, and "Allelu", accompanied by Mrs. Strickhouser using the autoharp. Reading the post-Easter Scripture was Tamara Strickhouser.
Pins for perfect attendance for both semesters were presented to the following pupils by Pastor W. Ronald Fearer. Recipients included: Kindergarten, Holly Kittinger, Kandy Rohrbaugh, Christopher Lewis; Grade One, Mary Ann Irelan, James Grinder, Karen Hahn, Michelle Sanders; Grade Two, Karen Kittinger, Robert Hardman; Grade Three, (none); Grade Four, Todd Strickhouser; Grade Five, Nancy Crum, Nancy Hahn, Lori Hawk, Daniel Fearer; Grade Six, Pamela Hahn, Holly Andrew and Tamara Strickhouser.
Also honored during the "Open House" was Mrs. J. William Strickhouser who served as Music Director for pupils in Kindergarten through Grade Six. She was presented a gift from the pupils and staff in recognition of her leadership.
Following the concluding prayer by Rev. Walter Bowers, parents, clergy and friends were invited to view the displays and projects that were completed by the various classes. A major project was the construction of a replica of Jerusalem, the Holy City.
Refreshments were enjoyed at the conclusion of the afternoon program. A spring motif using green, pink and white, was used in decorating the punch and cookie tables. An arrangement of pink and white carnations provided an attractive centerpiece and were flanked by white tapers.
Assisting with the Week-day Church School program for the past year have been the following: Mrs. Mildred Breining and Mrs. W. Ronald Fearer, co-directors; Mrs. James Kittinger, Mrs. William Strickhouser, Mrs. Frank Sandell, Mrs. Walter Bowers, Mrs. James Grinder, Miss Peggy Hampson and Mrs. Robert Staub. Helpers included the Misses Cynthia Hahn, Robin Sandell, Tina Bowers and Bobbi Staub.
Guest teachers for both semesters included the following local clergyman: Rev. Eugene Ackerman, Rev. Ronald Fearer, Rev. John Chatlos and Rev. Walter Bowers. The theme for the past year was "The Life of Jesus".

Parents Weekend Scheduled At MSM

A record-setting softball marathon, a concert, a dance featuring "The Big Band Sound," presentation of student honor awards, and student exhibits, will highlight Mount Saint Mary's annual Parents' Weekend, May 4 and 5, when over 2,000 parents will be guests of the college.
During the day on Saturday and Sunday, visitors may take advantage of a Book Fair; a student art display and sale featuring sculpture, drawing and painting done in the studio arts classes; science exhibits and a Rugby game on Saturday.
In addition to the informal events, Sunday will be marked by the state of the college address and by the presentation of honors awards by Dr. John J. Dillon, Jr., president of the Mount. In a 2:30 ceremony in front of Flynn Hall, awards will be presented for scholastic achievement and one for service to one's fellow man.
At 3:30 the Mount Saint Mary's Gleemen and Belles will present a "Salute to Broadway" concert on the same site. The program will include such show-stopping numbers as "Somewhere, My Love" from "Doctor Zhivago," "There is Nothing Like a Dame" from "South Pacific," "Hey Look Me Over" from "Wildcat," "Speak Softly Love" from "The Godfather" and "Sixteen Going On Seventeen" from "The Sound of Music."
Perhaps the most unique offering of the weekend will be the campus radio station's 80-hour broadcast marathon to raise money for the Group Action Program, a campus charity and service organization, as well as for the operations of WMSM. In addition to the broadcast marathon, WMSM is sponsoring a 50-hour softball marathon beginning at noon on Friday, May 3, and ending at 5 p.m. Sunday, May 5. This event will set the world's record for that sport.

Stretch Your Food Dollar By Using Vegetables Wisely

With almost everything either in short supply or higher priced, Americans are finding ways to get more from the resources they use.

This type of thinking can easily be applied to the task of feeding one's family a well-balanced diet, says Rita Ruff, USDA extension home economist based in Milwaukee, Wis. Food budgets can often be stretched either by substituting one kind of food for another or by using food products more efficiently, she says.

"In the wake of rising food prices, many consumers are taking a close look at vegetable products to supplement the vitamins, minerals, and particularly, protein from meat and meat products," says Miss Ruff. "And with careful menu planning, they can indeed utilize vegetable nutrients as an alternative or supplement to meat."

When we refer to protein in the human diet, Miss Ruff continues, we are talking about amino acids, which are required to build, maintain and repair healthy tissues and to meet other body needs. These amino acids are contained in protein. Many of the proteins in meat and animal products contain all the amino acids the human body requires, so menu planning with these products is relatively simple.

"However," she notes, "other proteins contain only some of the essential amino acids. Vegetables usually contain these 'incomplete' forms of protein."

"It is indeed possible to combine several vegetable products in one meal which bring together all the necessary amino acids that meat normally contains," she points out, "by applying adequate knowledge and some discretion. Combining vegetables with at least one animal product such as fish, eggs, cheese, or milk makes the task easier. Extension offices throughout the country can offer guidance in selecting vegetables."

Different kinds of vegetables also vary in the type of vitamins and other nutrients they contain, Miss Ruff adds. Again, some knowledge is essential in order for the consumer to choose the right combination of vegetable products for a balanced menu.

Besides actually replacing meat products with vegetables, consumers can stretch their food dollar by using vegetables more wisely, Miss Ruff adds. One easy step to increase efficiency in the kitchen is simply to handle and prepare vegetables properly. This prevents loss of vitamins and nutrients which often occurs before the food reaches the table.

Also, the home economist says, a family menu planner needs to know where vitamins and nutrients are concentrated within the vegetable, for example whether they are found mainly within the stems or the leaves of a given item. This will provide guidance for trimming and serving the vegetable so that nutrients are retained.

One of the simplest — but often neglected — ways to encourage a family, particularly children, to eat more vegetables is to serve them in ways attractive to both the eye and the palate, Miss Ruff concludes. Developing a special knowledge of your family's taste and investing a little time to learn different and tempting recipes will enable the consumer to get more of the benefits from the vegetables she serves and to serve them more often.

into May." The historical and genealogical study of some of the early burials (comparatively) at the Mountain View Memorial Cemetery is continued at this time with additional notes from the burial book of the late Millard F. Shuff.

75. Mrs. Peter Bollinger—died March 22, 1909—aged 60 years.

Note: No gravestone can be found for Mrs. Peter Bollinger either in the lists of the Holdercraft or MacPherson studies. It is known, however, that this woman was the second wife of Peter Bollinger and before her marriage was the "Widow Moser."

76. Josephus Rockensmith—died February 14, 1910—aged 75 years.

Note: There are three marked graves in the family plot of John Josephus Hockensmith. The inscriptions follow:

70. In memory of John J. Hockensmith, born July 10, 1832, died February 14, 1910.

Mary E. Hockensmith, wife of John J. Hockensmith, born April 24, 1842, died July 23, 1924. In memory of Mary E. Hockensmith, daughter of John J. and Mary E. Hockensmith, born July 6, 1873, died September 27, 1876.

The Hockensmiths were early settlers in Tom's Creek Hundred and were members of the Tom's Creek (now Elias) Lutheran congregation. Many of the pioneer members of that family are interred in the old Tom's Creek Lutheran and Reformed churchyard.

It is interesting to note that it was in the tavern of "Mine Host" Hockensmith that the name of Emmitsburg was given to the village founded by Samuel Emmet. Previous to that time it was known as "Silver Fancy."

Contrary to some opinion, the old Hockensmith tavern was torn down many years ago. William Gilliland married Magdalena Hockensmith and so came into possession of the property.

77. George Marsden—died April 8, 1910—aged 81 years. Note: The grave of George Marsden is marked. The inscription follows:

72. In memory of George Marsden, born April 9, 1829, died April 9, 1910.

78. William Fraley — died April 27, 1910, aged 81 years. Note: The grave of William Fraley is marked. The inscription follows:

73. In memory of William Fraley, born 1846, died 1910. William Fraley was a soldier in the Civil War.

79. W. Albert Weant —

died September 7, 1910—aged 17 years.

Note: The grave of W. Albert Weant is marked—along with that of his father and mother.

Panama Canal In The Balance
Many fear the United States is about to surrender the Panama Canal. Has an agreement to give up U. S. control over the use of the Canal already been concluded? Why has the Senate of the United States, and the Senate Armed Services Committee in particular, been kept in ignorance of what the State Department is proposing as the basis for a new Treaty to be concluded in the near future?

These are grave questions in view of the total world situation, the energy crisis, and most importantly, from the viewpoint of the integrity of a solemn treaty. In view of the secrecy which has surrounded the preliminary meetings and agreements, it also poses a grave Constitutional question. Article II, Section 2 of the Constitution says, regarding the power of the Executive, "He shall have power, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to make treaties, provided two thirds of the Senators present concur."

Secret Diplomacy Illegal
Recently, a member of the Committee charged with the responsibility of jurisdiction over the maintenance, operation, and defense of the canal stated on the floor of the Senate: "To my knowledge, no copy of this 'joint statement of principles' (the statement initiated by Henry Kissinger leading to a new Treaty) has been transmitted to the Senate. It certainly has not been transmitted to the Senate Armed Services Committee. What does this say to the Constitution's dictum that treaties must be made 'by and with the advice and consent of the Senate?'"

While the Senate of the United States is kept in ignorance of what Mr. Kissinger is "initialing" as preliminary to "the negotiation of a new treaty abrogating United States sovereignty in the Canal Zone and providing for the transfer of jurisdiction to the Republic of Panama," apparently the New York Times and the Washington Post are informed. The Times, editorially commended what it called the "good start on Panama" and called for "vigorous follow-through" on the negotiations. The Washington Post sent a reporter to cover the situation in Panama and that report, while avoiding the realistic issues involved, according to Congressman Flood of Pennsylvania, "attempted to beguile, by inconsequential trivialities and sloppy sentimentalism hostile to the United States."

Only Open Diplomacy Is Constitutional
Something is very wrong with the method and purpose of our negotiations if this is the way it is being conducted. What's wrong is that it is not being done in keeping with the Constitutional authority. What is being done is not with and by the consent and advice of the Senate.

Mr. Kissinger, at the time of the initialing of the "principles of agreement," stated: "There is opposition in both our countries to a reasonable solution of our differences. Old slogans are often more comforting than changes that reflect new realities." What that means still is a mystery to members of the Senate and the House, both of which are deeply concerned.

That concern was voiced on the floor of the House recently by Congresswoman Sullivan who served from 1957 to 1971 on and or, as Chairwoman of the House Subcommittee on the Panama Canal. She said: "While we have been assured by Ambassador Bunker and other State Department officials that we will be kept advised on the negotiations, we cannot participate, and events in the past . . . do not completely convince me the Congress will be apprised of all developments. The Congress never did receive the 1967 treaty drafts, while they were available on the streets of Panama City." (emphasis ours)

There seems no doubt that the object of these new accords, already signed between our State Department and the government of Panama, is to move towards a new treaty which would "end American control over the Canal." Congressman Edwards, of Alabama put it in just those words recently.

The Old Agreement
Many Americans are not aware of the many changes in the agreement and treaty since 1903 when the original

Convention was signed. This granted the United States a 647 square mile area in which to build the Canal and house the personnel necessary. This Treaty was in perpetuity, or forever, and Panama was paid $10 million dollars and was to receive $250,000 per year in rent . . . forever. The United States completed construction of the Canal in 1914 after ten years of hard work. During the course of that ten years, Yellow Fever was conquered as an additional di-pend to the human race. The United States took up the Canal project after the French had failed. During the years since that original treaty, there have been several changes negotiated. The United States now pays rent of $2 million a year. The cost to the United States of building the Canal was $380 million. The Treaty of 1903 was known as the Hay - Bunau - Varila Treaty. The Hay - Pauncefote Treaty of 1901, under which the United States undertook to construct and operate the Canal, has been accepted by all nations that use it. The validity of the Title which the United States holds to the 647 acres involved in the original Treaty has been upheld by the United States Supreme Court.

BUSINESS AND THE STOCK MARKET

More Harmonious Labor Negotiations
By Babson's Reports Inc., Wellesley Hills, Mass., May 2, 1974—In recent years there has been a trend toward more amicable bargaining between management and labor, attributable in large measure to the fact that prolonged strikes are too damaging and costly for all concerned. With wage rates at today's high levels, workers in a medium-sized or large company can lose millions of dollars if a walkout persists. Corporate profits can be pared close to the disappearing point by plant closings, picketing, and boycotts. It has become evident, in fact, that weeks of bitter confrontation on the labor front are no longer necessary or sensible, and that the bargaining process can and should reveal the intelligence and experience gained by employers, employees, and labor authorities over decades of industrial evolution.

Serious Efforts Being Made
President George Meany of the AFL-CIO has long deplored the terrible waste of energy, money, time, and profits in the course of dragged-out crisis-type negotiations resulting in slowdowns and often walkouts. One difficulty lay in the constant fear on the part of the unions that they might lose "the right to strike" if they agreed to binding arbitration. So progress has been slow toward a bargaining strategy that tries to avoid completely expensive strikes and lockouts. Doubtless the most successful move in this direction on a large scale has been taken in the steel industry, with establishment of an Experimental Negotiating Agreement by the United Steelworkers and the 10 firms comprising Basic Steel. With the recent signing of a new labor pact, the effectiveness of the ENA was clearly demonstrated. Last year in March, a deadline of April 15, 1974 was set for submitting any insoluble issues to voluntary but binding arbitration. But, without serious threat of work interruptions, the new agreement was signed more than three months before the existing pact was to expire.

Paving The Way
There is no question but that all major industries and unions were watching developments in steel with extraordinary care. Nobody wants protracted and financially crippling strikes, and if they can be avoided in the massive steel industry there is hope for similar improvement in practically all fields. Even though modifications may be necessary in different industries, especially those with sharp seasonal stresses or potential imbalances, patient and thoughtful negotiations should greatly reduce the need for strike activity. While the steel settlement was extremely costly for the companies, even management appears to feel that the most significant aspect of the outcome was the assurance of a stable labor peace, almost certain to last until April 6, 1980. Already the AFL-CIO Steelworkers negotiators have agreed to sit down again with company representatives in 1977, using the ENA plan that worked so nicely this year. The stipulation is continued that neither party in the negotiations will resort to the strike or the lockout weapon on a national level.

Some Distinct Advantages
Certain steel spokesmen — while admitting that the wages, pensions, and other benefits included in the new contract will mean a big jump in labor costs — are of the opinion that the advantages are worth the price. For instance, the steel industry has had some poor years, and it is now on the way back to health. Elimination of strikes has helped producers gain ground, especially since shutdowns in the past have allowed foreign steel to penetrate deeply into the U. S. market. The companies now hope that steel imports will continue to drop and more American steel be shipped overseas. Customers of our steel corporations often place foreign orders if they fear a domestic steel shutdown. But with the present system of non-crisis, in-advance negotiations, heavy users of the metal can be sufficiently sure of their required supplies to stick to their own domestic companies for their steel.

WOMEN on Wheels

HELPFUL SAFETY HINTS

By Elizabeth Stimley Plymouth Safety Writer

KEEP CAR IN GEAR

You may not realize it, but running out of gas on the highway is now a great deal more than a nuisance...it can seriously affect your ability to steer your car.

More than 85 percent of the cars produced in the U.S. are now equipped with power steering. At low speeds, if the engine is not turning over, steering these cars is almost as hard as turning the front wheels of a covered wagon.

In the old days, when a car started sputtering and showing signs it was running out of gas, the normal thing to do was to shift into neutral and coast.

This is no longer true, because when you take the car out of gear the engine stops driving the power steering unit, and you will be steering manually.

If you are traveling more than 25 miles an hour when the engine quits, keep it in gear and power steering will continue to work. You'll lose power steering at around 25, so before your speed gets that low, steer to the side of the road and up on the shoulder, then use the brake to stop before you have to maneuver the wheel without power steering.

The best way to avoid this situation is to maintain a well-tuned engine and keep plenty of gas in the tank.

HOW TO HAVE A CARFUL OF ENERGY

Want to increase your gas mileage, travel farther for less money, pollute the air less, and even enjoy your motoring vacation? You can do all these, suggests the American Motel & Hotel Association, which is doing everything in its power to urge travelers and innkeepers to use energy wisely.

The AM&HA suggests the following six ways to save gasoline.

- 1. Slow Down to 50. The slower you drive, the less fuel you use. At 50, about 11 percent less fuel is used than at 60. Many highway drivers can save as much as one gallon in seven by cutting back to 50.
- 2. Start, Stop Slow. Avoid jackrabbit starts. Drive at steady, moderate speeds without sudden acceleration or braking. Anticipate traffic lights to hit them when they turn green. If you have to stop, coast to a stop and then start up slowly.
- 3. Go Easy On The Air Conditioning. Don't forget you're paying for that cool air with gasoline—up to 15 percent more in cars equipped with air conditioners. Use yours only when absolutely needed. Save fuel by moderating the temperature from the "coolest" setting.

- 4. Improve Car Maintenance. An out-of-tune engine can cut mileage as much as 25 percent. So can a slow-acting or "stuck" choke. A plugged or dirty air filter can cut mileage 10 percent.
- 5. Check Tire Pressure Often. Make sure your tires are inflated to the recommended pressure and check wheel alignment. Underinflated tires can rob you of more than a mile per gallon.
- 6. Avoid idling. Don't let your engine idle for long periods of time. An idling engine consumes one-and-a-half gallons per hour. You can also help conserve precious energy whenever you stop at a motel or hotel by turning off the TV and lights before leaving your room, and by keeping windows closed when heat or air conditioning is on. It doesn't take much energy to conserve energy—all you have to do is try. We'll all go farther down the road for it.

Spring Househunters Cautioned: Don't Overlook Energy Saving In The "Heat" of Buying

NEW YORK (ED) — The end of the winter heating season is not the solution to the energy crisis. Consumer demands to "cool it" during hot, humid months will put pressure on air conditioners — and our dwindling energy supplies.

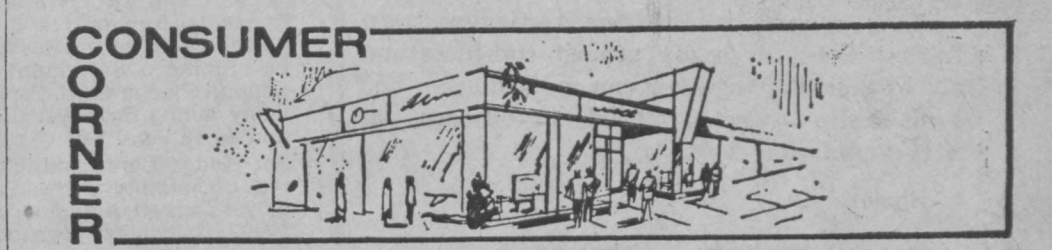

provides the best insulation and the space needed for added insulation." A recent study conducted by Arizona State University showed a wood-framed house can save as much as 30 percent in cooling costs during the summer and uses 23 percent less fuel in winter than an identical masonry house.

Wood frame construction allows for easy installation of other insulating materials. For instance, 6 in. of thermal insulation should be placed between attic ceiling joists, and 3 1/2 inches in the walls between studs. Make certain, too, the attic is properly ventilated to get rid of hot air in the summer, excess moisture in the winter.

"It's easy for househunters to overlook energy-conserving features during spring and early summer, when the weather is nice and comfortable," says Boyce P. Price, executive vice president of the American Wood Council. "However, checking a house for thermal efficiency now, before buying, can save energy and money later in the summer, as well as in the winter."

Finally, be sure air doesn't work against you. Check for snug-fitting wood windows and doors to eliminate drafts and reduce energy requirements. To test for this, try holding a match near closed windows and doors to see if air is penetrating. Wood window sash combined with insulating glass provides the best weather protection and prevents condensation on the inside in cold climates. Storm doors and windows and weatherstripping provide added insurance. In addition to their winter use, they can be left on during the summer to help maintain comfort control and reduce cooling costs.

CONSUMER ORNEMER TRADING STAMPS: MORE LIKABLE, LESS AVAILABLE

More people like trading stamps than actually save them. This was a key finding in a 1973 national public opinion survey on trading stamps recently made by the research firm, Data Development Corporation, and announced by The Sperry and Hutchinson Company (S&H Green Stamps).

The survey showed an expected decline in the number of households that saved stamps—down to 64 per cent in 1973 from 70 per cent the year before. But there was an unexpected rise in the number of people who said they liked stamps—up to 71 per cent from 66 per cent in 1972.

Dr. Eugene Beem, S&H vice president for economics, attributes this evidence of strong stamp loyalty to several factors: "The discount label many food chains adopted in the late sixties and early seventies appears to be losing some of its credibility. What seems to be happening is that people recognize that rising prices, especially when identified with supermarkets which have dropped trading stamps, just can't be attributed to the stamps. To a degree, people may be saying: 'They took away my stamps and gave me higher prices.'"

Dr. Beem also said that the consumer may look at stamps as being a partial compensation for spiraling prices.

The decline in saving was the result of a number of supermarkets and service stations giving up stamps, S&H said. Eighty-four per cent of all U.S. households said that trading stamps were available to them in at least one store—down 8 percentage points from 1972.

The survey revealed a more positive attitude toward trading stamps than at any time during the past decade. Data Development commented that "It may be part of human nature that something that is readily available is taken for granted, but as it becomes more difficult to obtain it receives greater appreciation."

The research firm reported that in 1973 ratings for the trading stamp industry became more positive, the proportion of shoppers who want stamps continued increased, fewer consumers felt that "stamps raise prices," and more shoppers stated they do better when shopping in a stamp store.

Some 29 million families save S&H Green Stamps—this is 67 per cent of all stamp-saving households and 43 per cent of all households in the country. The survey also reported that Large families are slightly more inclined to save stamps than small ones (70 per cent of households with five or more members save; 61 per cent of one- or two-member households save).

There is no major difference between farm or city family attraction to stamp saving: 70 per cent of all farm households save; 73 per cent of all small city households save; and 62 per cent of large city households save. This year's survey supports previous findings on the average American's long term involvement with stamp saving. It shows more than 79 per cent of all stamp saving families have been saving them for five or more years.

Within this same group almost 40 per cent indicated they would no longer shop there at all, or would buy less than they used to. Six per cent indicated they would buy more.

The proportion, detailing and color of the Point of Rocks Railroad Station is unusually sophisticated for its rural setting and ranks with the most outstanding work of the Victorian Gothic Revival. This National Register of Historic Places property testifies to the significance of the railroad in post-Civil War America. The Station is one of many sites in Maryland which add to the state's great heritage and will be particularly emphasized during Maryland Historic Preservation Week, May 6-12 this year.
