Most Anything At A Glance

- By Abigail -

Needless to say the warm sunshine we've had this week is a welcome relief from the wet weather we were having. Now if it will just hold up for the holiday no one in town will have an excuse for not enjoying what promises to be a tremendous Community Day celebration.

The warm weather gives us a chance to enjoy the outdoors once again, and for the sun-worshippers it's an opportunity to work on that Florida-like tan. Which reminds me, I hear that one of our local business women just recently returned from a nice vacation in Florida. I understand that it was the first vacation she had taken in quite a number of years, and she enjoyed a lovely time during her well-deserved break.

Speaking of breaks, I noticed the other day that the broken utility pole along Old 15 in front of St. Joseph College still hasn't been replaced. Seems to me that such a dangerous condition like that should take precedent over minor repairs and it should have been replaced immediately. It has been a number of weeks since the accident which caused the breakage took place, yet nothing has been done. Come on, utility companies, how about giving this situation some attention.

I see from a story in the Frederick paper that during the past fiscal year $21,842 was spent by the County to replace the Annandale Bridge. I have to wonder where the money went. If you take a look at the bridge you can see that it has neither been replaced nor repaired, and from what I understand, very little planning has been done on it. I have heard that it may take two years to replace the bridge, but during that time it might be a good idea to repair it enough for limited use.

According to the newspaper article I read, the County Commissioners have done a wonderful job spending our money during the past year with what some people might consider very few substantial results. For instance, last fiscal year the County Roads Department got $92,444. This year, which began Monday, the Commissioners plan to spend an estimated $191,687 through the Roads Department. Yet, as one man told me the other week, you can tell you are entering Frederick County even if you are riding in a car with your eyes closed.

An industrial association publication recently brought to its readers attention yet another gem of bureaucratic doubletalk which only those well-versed in what has come to be called 'governmentalese' could translate. This excerpt from a U. S. Department of Labor publication reads: "The occupational incidence of the demand change is unlikely to coincide with the occupational profits of those registered at the employment office." In plain English, it means: The jobs may not fit the people. It is small wonder there is so much waste and inefficiency in government operations. No one can understand what is going on!

Each year new jobs must be found throughout the country for the growing population, and our little town is not left unneeded. As I have said before we must do all we can to attract industry to our community. The economy of any town cannot survive without some industrial growth. I understand that not only our town fathers but also many individuals in our community are doing their best to make Emmitsburg attractive to potential firms, and they are to be commended for the effort they have been making. We have passed up some grand opportunities in the past, and I think maybe we learned our lesson. Our community must now do everything we can to welcome new

Ten Local Youths To Attend Program

Ten local youths from Elias Lutheran Church are among the young people from Lutheran congregations that have registered for summer sessions at Mar-Lu-Ridge, the Conference and Educational Center of the Maryland Synod. Located near Jefferson, the facilities are operated on a year-round basis for Maryland, Delaware and Washington, D. C., Lutherans.

In addition to the continuous summer camping program, other camps are held for special groups. Camping opportunities are available for the blind, the retarded, confrimands, canoe campers, Appalachian Trail hikers, music and worship enthusiasts and those showing an interest in ecology. Mar-Lu-Ridge is beginning its sixteenth year of operation.

Mr. Philip J. Brohawn, Director, has announced that the following young people from the Emmitsburg congregation will register on Sunday for a week-long program of recreation and camp life: Todd Strickhouser, Shawn Patterson, Dana Poist, Tamara Strickhouser, Tina Smith and David Poist.

Registered for the current week at the Lutheran Center are Lori Hawk and Allyson Sanders. June campers from the local congregation included Carol L. Eyler and Daniel J. Fearer.

Basketball Clinic Scheduled At FCC

A basketball clinic for boys 8 years of age and up is being scheduled at Frederick Community College, August 19 through August 24, Dave Clark, Athletic Director at the college has announced. Entitled "FCC's First Annual Evening Round Ball Clinic," the program will be conducted each day from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. at the FCC Field House. Directors of the clinic are Al Pansa, FCC Basketball Coach, and Dave Clark, FCC Athletic Director.

The clinic will teach and demonstrate all phases of the basketball game and will cover the fundamentals to advanced skills. There is no need for a boy to have had previous experience, since every boy will be assigned to a group according to age and ability, Clark said.

The clinic will include a foul shooting contest with four divisions along with the selection of an all-star team. The Monday through Saturday clinic will also include play-offs with awards to be presented on Saturday with the selection of a Most Valuable Player. The closing ceremonies come after playoff games and a final foul shooting competition.

The coaching staff of the clinic includes: Bunny Levitt, World's Foul Shooting Champion; Bob Davies, All-Pro for five years with the Minneapolis Lakers; Jake Diviney, New Oxford, Pa. High School basketball coach and President of the Pa. High School Basketball Coaches Assn.; Larry Yanos, Sports Editor of the Hagerstown Daily Mail; David Zinn, All-JUCO for FCC; Donnie Ambush, All-Tri-State High School player for 1972; Roy Adelsberger, All-Frederick County and All Blue Ridge Conference 1973; Hugh Nolen, Principal of Walkersville Elementary School; Representatives from the Tuscarora Basketball Officials Assn., and Jim Maloney, Temple Univ. Coach.

Entry fee for the clinic is $25.00. For further information, contact Dave Clark, FCC Athletic Director.

Little League Meeting Sunday

The Emmitsburg Little League will meet this Sunday, July 7, at 1 p.m. in the VFW. All managers and coaches are requested to be present as the all-star players will be chosen at this time. Managers must bring a list of their 11 and 12 year olds who are eligible to play.

Joyce Shields Weds G. Englestatler

Miss Joyce Elaine Shields became the bride of Gerolf Herbert Englestatler on Saturday, June 15, at St. Joseph's Catholic Church.

Miss Shields is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Shields, Sr., Toll Gate Hill, Emmitsburg. Mr. Englestatler is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Josef Englestatler, Rt. 1, Emmitsburg. The Nuptial Mass and marriage ceremony were performed by Rev. Msgr. Robert R. Kline. Mrs. Beverly Adams presided at the organ, while Mr. James Martin was soloist. Altar boys were David Shields, brother of the bride, and David Morningstar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a gown of nylon organza, featuring a flounced hemline, crystal pleating trimmed neckline and bishop sleeves. Lace daisies sprinkled the skirt and full chapel trains which was edged in cotton Venice lace. She chose a turban style headpiece in pleated sheer organza with cotton Venice lace medallions, and carried a cascade bouquet of white roses centered with gardenias and baby's breath.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Diane Wivell, Emmitsburg, sister of the bride. Miss Pamela Mills, Gettysburg, was her attendant.

Best man was Harold Englestatler, Emmitsburg, brother of the groom. Ushers were Dale Shields, Jr., Emmitsburg, brother of the bride, and John Farragher, Ontario, Canada.

A reception was held at Mt. St. Mary's College Student Union Building. The couple left for a wedding trip to the Poconos following the reception.

Mr. Englestatler is also a graduate of St. Joseph's High School and is employed as a secretary at Mt. St. Mary's College in the Registrar's Office.

Mr. Englestatler is also a graduate of St. Joseph's High School and a cum laude graduate of Mt. St. Mary's College. He also graduated from Xavier University in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Hollinger have announced that they have received the mailing address for their son, John, who is now spending time in South Vietnam as a member of the Order of Christian Brothers. The address is: Brother John M.C. Missionaries of Charity 102/33 Cong Quynh Saigon, South Vietnam. All letters should be sent to the address exactly as it appears above.

INDEPENDENCE DAY JULY 4, 1974

From The Living Bible

Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord, whose people he has chosen as his own. The Lord gazes down upon mankind from heaven where he lives. He has made their hearts and closely watches everything they do. The best-equipped army cannot save a king—for great strength is not enough to save anyone. A war horse is a poor risk for winning victories—it is strong but it cannot save. But the eyes of the Lord are watching over those who fear him, who rely upon his steady love. He will keep them from death even in times of famine! We depend upon the Lord alone to save us. Only he can help us; he protects us like a shield. No wonder we are happy in the Lord! For we are trusting him. We trust his holy name. Yes, Lord, let your constant love surround us, for our hopes are in you alone. (Psalms 33:12-22)

CYO To Sponsor Afternoon Games

The CYO of Emmitsburg, will sponsor a "Corn Game", Saturday, July 20, starting at 1 p.m. until 7 p.m. The net proceeds will go to the Seton Center. Refreshments will be available. The games will be held in the grove of St. Joseph's Parish. In case of inclement weather, it will be held in the Parish Hall.

Running Clinic

Planned At Mount

The second annual Blue Ridge Running Clinic will feature several of the nation's outstanding authorities on cross-country running. Camp Director, Frank Zarnowski, cross-country coach at Mount Saint Mary's College, has scheduled the clinic for the Emmitsburg campus, August 18-23. Boys and girls over 10 years of age, are eligible.

U. S. national coaches, Jack Griffin, Frederick, and Brooks Johnson, Sports International, Washington, D.C., will lecture. U. S. Naval Academy harrier coach, Al Cantello, will serve as co-director. Additional information may be obtained by contacting Zarnowski at Mount Saint Mary's College, or Cantello at the Naval Academy.

Dynamics Thank Card Party Donors

The Dynamics would like to thank all the local merchants and parents who donated prizes toward the card party recently—especially R. H. Boyle and Sons, Roger Liquors, Village Liquors, Emmitsburg Pharmacy, Mountain Liquors and Myers Radio & TV. Without the help of the local merchants and interested parents, the Dynamics Majorities would have a hard time financially.

Graceham Carnival Set For July 19-20

The Graceham Volunteer Fire Co., Inc., will hold its 15th annual Carnival at Mt. Tabor Park, Rocky Ridge, on Friday night, July 19 and Saturday night, July 20. There will be entertainment both evenings. On Friday night, the County Five will play, and on Saturday night, the Carroll County Ramblers will furnish the music.

Ham and chicken platters will be served both nights, with all the trimmings. Sandwiches, drinks and all the usual refreshments will be served. There will be games and carnival attractions. Several drawings will be held also on Saturday night.

Reader Poll: What Orioles Need

According to recent reports from various sources throughout the state, the Baltimore Orioles will request permission from the American League to play as many as 11 games at RFK Stadium next year.

Sagging attendance at Oriole games this year has been given as the reason for the partial move. And speculation has it that if playing dual home fields isn't the solution to the attendance drop, the team may soon be playing in the new Superdome in New Orleans.

It seems to us that Oriole promoters have tried almost every conceivable way to boost turn-out at the games in the way of freebies like bats, gloves, and T-shirts, but they have failed to take at least one avenue which may lead to a cure for the problem: asking the fans themselves why they aren't attending the games.

Although the Chronicle may be the Maryland newspaper which is at the northernmost location from the Oriole headquarters, we would like to take the first step in keeping the Baltimore Orioles a Maryland club.

Readers are invited to fill out the form below and return it to Ceth Orrin, turn it to the Chronicle.

Results of the poll will be published in the Chronicle weekly.

(If requested, name will be withheld should your suggestion be printed. However, the name must appear on form for use in the poll.)

Achievement II Back In Gear

In spite of the May 23rd fire which destroyed the Achievement II headquarters, Mount Saint Mary's College has raised over $670,000 in subscriptions to date. The fire ravaged the Pangborn Memorial Office on campus, which was being used to house the capital campaign office.

Moved to the Administration Building, Achievement II is back in gear and moving toward $1,500,000 needed to build the new classroom Academic Center and $375,000 to expand the Seminary.

One indication that the campaign has rallied is its strong success in "in-house" giving: it raised $365,141 or 183% of its minimum goal of $200,000. One-hundred per cent participation was also derived from the Board of Trustees, who pledged a total of $231,350.

The College is particularly proud of the success of the Bishop's Drive, which has so far raised $222,400 from 19 Archdioceses and Dioceses. The Seminary faculty and administration showed 100% participation, and the seminarians themselves participated 81%.

"In this day of tight budgets, this level of substantial support truly testifies to the well-above-average job that the College and Seminary are doing," says Arnold Schaid, Director of Achievement II. Mount Saint Mary's Seminary has wall-to-wall Seminarians and turns away candidates each year because of a shortage of space.

Now in its alumni phase, Achievement II has raised $43,000 and expects to go over $300,000 for the alumni alone.

Letter To Editor

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle:
I wish to publicly acknowledge the excellent work of Dr. Charles Spicknall, Frederick County Health Officer, and Paul Beale, Director of Air Quality Control, of the County Health Department, as well as other Frederick County agencies, officials and individuals who contributed so ably and willingly in making Phase I, or "Operation Sanitary", so successful in relieving the developing emergency due to the birds which had gathered in Graceham, Maryland.

Through their united efforts, this population control program achieved its primary goal of promptly reducing the bird population at the pine tree plantation without further needless exposure of man to a developing health threat.

The activity, "Operation Sanitary", designed and directed by Dr. Kenneth L. Crawford, Chief of the Division of Veterinary Medicine for the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, was made considerably more effective because of the team support Dr. Spicknall's Department organized.

Especially, I would like to publicly thank the other major participants who cooperated completely with him on the dispersal project: Edgar Emrich, the grove owner; Donald Lewis, Frederick County Commissioner; Bernard F. Halla, Director of Non-Game Wildlife Program, Maryland Department of Natural Resources; Nelson Swink, U. S. Department of Interior; Dr. Joseph T. Horman, Maryland Regional Public Health Veterinarian; Rev. Franklin C. Jones, Pastor, Graceham Moravian Church; George J. Stup, Director of Frederick Civil Defense; Sheriff Baumgardner and deputies; the Thurmont and Graceham Fire Departments; the State Police; Thurmont Police Chief, Mr. Shook and deputies; the Frederick Amateur Radio Club; Sharpshooters from the Thurmont Conservation and Sportsmen's Club; William Waugh of the University of Maryland; Pryor's Orchard; Catocin Mountain Orchard; Thurmont Grange and Farm Bureau; Mrs. Anne Burnside Love and the many other members of the community who helped and also alerted the Health Department to the potential threat to the area.

Their extensive cooperation is deeply appreciated.

Sincerely yours,
Benjamin D. White, M.D., M.P.H.
Director, Preventive Medicine Administration

Tourism Discussed At Town Meeting

Calling Emmitsburg "The Gateway Into Frederick County," William McKinley, executive vice president of the county Chamber of Commerce, met with members of the Town Council at their monthly meeting Monday night to explain the county-wide role of the Chamber and encourage both the town fathers and the community to take an active part in County tourism activities.

McKinley, who was recently elected to his post on the Chamber, explained that Federal funds are available for County tourism promotions and offered the town an opportunity to share the funds by participating in promotional activities.

In addition to having a full-time tourism committee, McKinley said, the Chamber also has many other functioning committees including a transportation committee, a national affairs committee, and a state and local affairs committee.

Asked what he thought the first step in developing the town of Emmitsburg into an attractive tourism spot might be, McKinley suggested some "cosmetic work" around the center square. With a little effort, he said, the square could be made into a "real showplace."

McKinley indicated that he would like to make himself available to people in the town "a couple of times a month" in order to hear their views and suggestions.

George (Buck) Gernand, who is a member of the Chamber and president of the Catocin Mountains Tourist Council, told Council members that "an excellent film, 'Frederick County, Crossroads of History'," which offers a look into the background of the entire county is now available to groups and organizations at no cost.

He also announced that the Colorfest Committee would like to welcome any participation from various groups in Emmitsburg, explaining that Colorfest not only brings tourists into the area but also offers groups an opportunity to raise money.

Following discussion with McKinley and Gernand, Council—

—Heard a request from Miss Elizabeth Neck that pavement and curbing near her home be cleaned and that the possibility of her obtaining some landfill for repairs on her property be discussed.

—Heard a suggestion from Mrs. Helen Brown that hedges along the east side of South Seton Avenue just below the square be trimmed by the property owner or, if possible, by the town to improve the appearance and solve a traffic problem there.

—Turned down a request from Earl Kugler who asked that he be allowed to place a trailer on his property, because, Mayor Richard Sprankle explained, it would be in violation of town ordinances.

In other action, Council reviewed a letter to town attorney Frederick Bower from an organization which offers a life insurance plan suitable for town employees, approved a $500 appropriation to the Emmitsburg Public Library, and decided definitely not to plan a parade or ceremony for July 27 when the local Boy Scouts are holding a festival.

Sprankle told other Council members that he is interested in "following up" on the idea of promoting Emmitsburg as "The Gateway to the South," because, he said, the town should be "not the last town north but the first town south."

Sprankle called for the Council to approach the state roads commission about the possibility of placing signs which would designate Emmitsburg as "The Gateway to the South" along highways near the town.

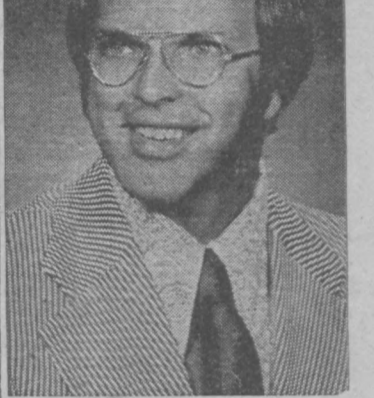

Commissioner Ernest Rosensteel announced that the Vigilant Hose Co. will hose down Main Street and Seton Avenue at the intersection on the square and for short distances away from the square at 11 p.m. Wednesday night, in preparation for the Community Day activities. He reported that no parking will be permitted on the square during that time.

Commission President Norman Flax announced that due to Board of Health and Environmental Protection Agency regulations all rain spouts (Continued On Page Six)

Southern States Picnic Scheduled

Over 200 patron members are expected to gather at Kump's Dam Park on July 9 at 7 p.m. for the 18th Annual Southern States, Emmitsburg Feed and Farm Supply Membership Meeting and Picnic.

This year's guests and

speakers will be: Mr. R. A. Nickle, Jr., Regional Farm Supply Supervisor, Southern States Cooperative; Mr. Joseph Stover, Emmitsburg Town Councilman and Vice President of Stover Brothers Massey Co., and Mr. George Woods, Frederick County Farm Extension Agent.

Ralph D. Lindsey

In the 18 years of service to the northern Maryland and southern Pennsylvania area, Mr. Ralph Lindsey, Manager of the Emmitsburg Feed and Farm Supply, has built up a complete farm and home inventory of over 800 products in stock, and 17,000 catalog items.

Bring your family, friends and a covered dish, and enjoy the good fellowship of old friends and the many new acquaintances in the area.

Quilting Bee Set At Round Meadow

Sunday, July 7, 12 noon to 5 p.m., the Folk Craft Center at Round Meadow in Catocin Mountain Park will host its first Quilting Bee of the season. Whether you are a beginner, intermediate, or expert quilter, come and put a few stitches in our "Friends of the Park" quilt. If you've never quilted, but are interested, come and learn how. Enjoy the old-time atmosphere of friendship which flows when women get together around the quilting frame.

In the background you will hear the ring of the blacksmith's hammer, the crackle of the splitting shingles, the beating of the loom, and the gentle hum of the spinning wheel. Your nose will be treated to the rich aromas of home-baked bread, moist broomcorn, newly chopped wood, and tanned leather.

Come to Catocin Mountain Park and relive the "good old days." It is a unit of the National Park Service, U. S. Department of the Interior. The Visitor Center is located three miles west of Thurmont, on Route 77.

what's the use?

Peace . . . and quiet are more so now that correctional institutions such as the Allegheny County Jail in Pittsburgh, Pa., have made the swing to foam cups and containers. Hot soup and beverage plus sandwich comprise the daily luncheon menu in this correctional institution. Residents line up cafeteria-style at carts in the rotunda, returning to their cells to eat. The change to foam from more expensive metal cups and bowls, too hot to hold when filled, has virtually eliminated dishwashing, reduced feeding costs and made mealtime quieter.

Fresh Tasting Dessert Inspiration

Capture the essence of the season with Fresh Strawberry Cloud Pie. Line a crumb crust with a mixture of fresh tasting Birds Eye Cool Whip Non-Dairy Whipped Topping and thickened strawberry flavor gelatin. Fill center with a strawberry gelatin mixture.

Fresh Strawberry Cloud Pie

- 1 package (3 oz.) strawberry flavor gelatin
- 1 3/4 cups boiling water
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 container (4 1/2 oz.) frozen whipped topping, thawed
- Red food coloring (optional)
- 1 baked 9-inch graham cracker crumb crust, cooled
- 1 1/2 cups fresh strawberry halves

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water; remove 1/2 cup and chill until slightly thickened. Fold the slightly thickened gelatin and sugar into the whipped topping. Add a few drops of food coloring. Chill again, if necessary, until mixture will mound. Line bottom and sides of crumb crust with the whipped topping mixture, mounding high around edge. Chill. Meanwhile, chill remaining gelatin until thickened; stir in strawberries. Spoon into the whipped topping-lined crust without covering the rim around the edge. Chill until firm — at least 3 hours.

YOUR GARDEN

DO'S AND DON'TS FOR FINER FLOWERS

DO plant taller flowers behind shorter ones. It will help to heighten your garden's appearance. Too many places hide their beauty.

DON'T overcrowd. Learn how tall and how wide each plant will grow and seed accordingly. If you do have to thin them later, they'll have a better chance of surviving if you cut back just after the seedlings have sprouted.

DO use the right fertilizer. The food that makes your grass grow greenest may produce anemic-looking flowers. Green thumbs agree, fertilizers with a high percentage of phosphorous are best for your blooms.

DON'T plant too deeply. This slows germination and could nip growth in the bud. The seeds should be covered, but not buried.

DO protect your plants from pests. The average garden is crawling with creatures that feast on your flowers. You can control more than 120 different kinds by spraying Spectracide containing Diazinon, an all-purpose, non-persistent insecticide from Ciba-Geigy.

DON'T pick your posies in full bloom. Select a cutting just before it reaches its prime, and it will look lovelier longer.

DO mass colors rather than mixing them. A pretty garden should leave you an impression of soft-petaled harmony.

DON'T ignore these suggestions, and your garden can become a garland, wreathed in beauty!

John Morrissey was the first prizefighter in history to hold public office. And when he retired from the ring to serve in Congress, his first act was to sponsor a law that would have made prizefighting illegal in the U.S.

SHORTCAKE BISCUITS WITH PIMIENTO TUNA DIVAN

Here's a delightful lunch or supper dish. Old-fashioned melt-in-your-mouth biscuits filled with Pimiento Tuna Divan.

SHORTCAKE BISCUITS

- 5 Tbs. shortening
  - 2 cups self-rising flour
  - 1 7-oz. jar or can pimientos, drained
  - 1/2 to 3/4 cup buttermilk
- Cut shortening into flour; add 2 chopped pimientos. Stir in buttermilk, using just enough to make an easy to handle dough. When dough leaves side of bowl, turn out on lightly floured board or cloth. Knead lightly, fold over and roll about 1/2-in. thick. Cut and bake on ungreased cookie sheet at 425° for 15 min. Makes 10-12 biscuits.

PIMIENTO TUNA DIVAN

- 1 package frozen broccoli
  - 1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup
  - 1 cup milk
  - 1 egg, beaten
  - 2 cans (2 cups) tuna
  - Remaining pimiento from biscuits
- Seasoning to taste
- Cook broccoli until fork tender; drain and keep hot. Stir together soup, milk, and beaten egg to make smooth sauce. Simmer few minutes. Add tuna and pimiento, diced, to sauce. Season to taste with salt and pepper. (A touch of nutmeg is optional.) Simmer over low heat a few minutes, stirring several times. Split biscuits, place a few pieces of broccoli and sauce inside, close and sauce generously. Six servings.

HOW TO MAKE THE FAMILY VACATION AN ENJOYABLE FORM OF EDUCATION

Many parents mistakenly consider a trip abroad "wasted" on children. This is far from the truth. A way-faring family can find there a fund of fun and information for them to discover when they travel together.

For one thing, nothing establishes rapport with people as quickly as being with your children. As one airline executive says: "Customs officials unbend, airline hostesses take special interest, museum guards look up and smile. The total effect is one of warmth and welcome wherever you go. Any trip with children is punctuated by adventure, less overeating, regular hours and more time spent in educational pursuits."

Wise parents who want to fan wanderlust, curiosity and interest while their children are young would do well to plan trips that have some bearing on what their offspring are studying in school. It might be state or regional history, Europe, Mexico, the Far East, the paintings and sculpture they've only seen in photographs, the countries on their geography class maps, the laboratories of famous scientists, the metric system in operation. Travel games such as "Geography" not only keep children busy on long rides, they're educational and heighten a youngster's awareness of the passing scene. You needn't worry about accommodations in countries your kids are not accustomed to. You can stay at a Holiday Inn in over 40 countries around the world. They have English speaking inn-keepers, American standards of comfort and cleanliness, swimming pools, televisions, telephones, doctors and dentists on call, baby sitters, free advance reservations, baby beds, valet and laundry service, free ice, and if your children are under 12, they can stay in your room for free. In addition, Holiday Inns serve American as well as continental and native foods.

Before you go, teach your children how to say "please," "thank you," the numbers from one to ten and a few basic expressions in the languages of the countries you'll be visiting. See how much confidence it will give them in communicating with other people, and how much fun they'll have. Young people tend to learn languages faster and more easily than adults, anyway. In one family of tireless travellers, the children can ask for ice cream in five different languages!

The time to begin teaching your children to be citizens of the world is now. It can stimulate their imagination, help make them worldly-wise, accustom them to unfamiliar situations and enrich your family life and personal experience. It would seem that traveling without your family would be a waste!

You Can Play Tennis Without Wrinkles

Mad dogs and Englishmen aren't the only ones who go out in the noonday sun. Look at any tennis court on a sizzling summer day. You'll find a number of tennis buffs racing back and forth at top speed, seemingly oblivious to the heat.

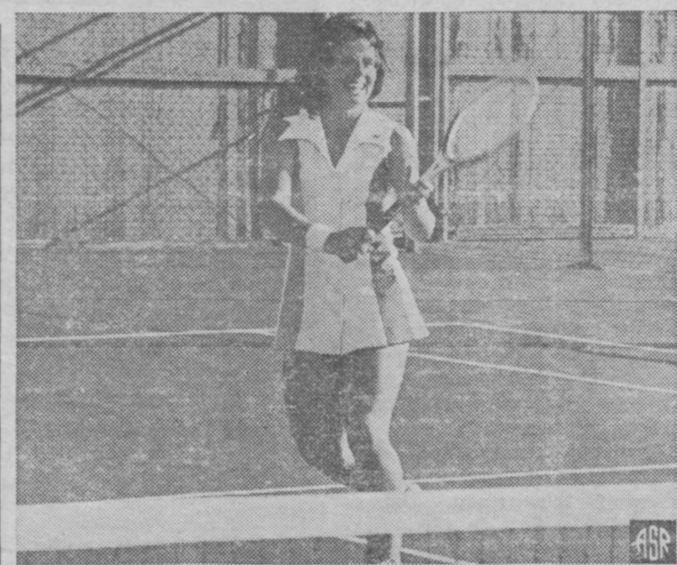

If they're smart, they'll have taken some precautions before exposing themselves to the hottest sun of the year. This is equally true for men and women tennis players. All should be protecting their skins from an overdose of sunshine with a carefully chosen sun preparation.

If you tan easily and want a lot of color, choose a sun cream or lotion that blocks out only the burning rays and lets the tanning rays come through. If, however, you have a fair skin that burns easily, by all means wear a sun cream that gives maximum blockage.

Don't apply the cream to the bridge of the nose and cheekbone and stop there. Use it on arms, legs and over every inch of exposed skin. Remember too that more skin is exposed when you're moving than when you're standing still. So spread the sun cream under waistbands, under a midriff tied shirt, and higher under the hem of shorts, or skirt, than you think necessary.

Even if you don't sunburn at all, you'd be smart to settle for a light tan and wear some skin protection in the form of a modern sun block. People who get deep, dark sunbans year after year wind up with sea captain complexions at an early age — and sometimes with serious skin disorders.

You can't go wrong by pampering your skin out on the tennis courts. Following the after-game shower, everyone should apply a moisturizer to face and body. Modern moisturizers do a quick disappearing act. They won't be visible or feel sticky.

Another favor you can do yourself is to drink several glasses of liquid before the game. This will help avoid severe dehydration as you perspire. Salt tablets are another method of preventing dehydration. Some athletes like them, and some don't. Ask your doctor's advice on taking salt tablets before a midsummer match.

You won't want to eat heavily before a tennis game — or right afterwards either — but you need a light refreshment that's very nourishing. Take a tip from superstar Billie Jean King. She often drinks Carnation Instant Breakfast for quick energy because she knows that "it's equivalent to having bacon and an egg . . ."

Says Billie Jean King, "I know most players would like Carnation Instant Breakfast because it's like having a milkshake, and yet you're getting the nourishment."

It is essential that you be in good physical condition to play tennis, and you don't get that way with a weekly game. Daily exercise is a must. Work on your legs and your wind every day by jogging or running. Above all, don't rush from a sedentary job to your summer vacation and plunge into a tennis marathon. Ease into it with short games at first.

Whenever you're playing in the hot sun, it's a good idea to wear a tennis hat. It protects the whole head and may prevent heat exhaustion and headaches to say nothing of protecting your eyes. The hat helps not only your vision and your tennis game, but also your face. Squinting in the bright sunlight for a couple of hours will give you "whiskers" of suntan around the eyes and outer cheeks. That's not very flattering. Wouldn't you rather keep the wrinkles off your face while taking the wrinkles out of your game?

Steal me. Burn me. Throw me away. I'm still yours.

Once you bring me home, I'm yours forever. Even if I'm burned. Or lost. Or stolen. If you look for me and can't find me, just report it. And you'll get me back, as good as new. And remember: I'll never break your heart. Or leave you stranded in the tight spots. I'll always be there when you need me. And that ought to make you feel pretty secure.

LOOKING AHEAD

By George S. Benson, President, National Education Program Searcy, Arkansas

An Educational Shortcoming
A farmer one day told his son he would be expected to take care of the Delco electric plant housed in the barn, which provided the farm and farm home with lights and electricity. The farm was remote from other sources of electricity. The farmer took his son to the barn and showed him the off-and-on switch but he failed to show him how the generator and the storage batteries operated off the power supplied by the small Delco gasoline engine. The boy took over. But in time something went wrong. The little plant cut out and the boy couldn't restart it by flicking the switch. In a few hours, the electric current evaporated and the lights went off. The son didn't even tinker with the apparatus. He knew nothing about it. He just kicked the gasoline engine in disgust. The system that had brought so much creature comfort to the farm now, in the opinion of the 16-year-old lad, was no good. Because he didn't understand it, he would henceforth be its enemy. Actually the gasoline engine was out of gas.

Uninformed On Our System
This is analogous (perhaps in an over-simplified way) with what's happening to a frightening number of our American youth and their opinion of our system. They are kicking the American system because they think it cannot serve them. They do not know how it works. Most young people are unaware that the energy source in America's wealth machine — which produces economic security for all — is the profit motive. They have been taught so little about the system, while being bombarded with anti-system propaganda, many have come to accept the Communist-Socialist falsehood that business owners are profiteers exploiting the workers and the consuming public.

Recently I lectured a college under-graduate group (about 300) on the profit system, including the level of profits in business and industry. With one exception, the group generally was uninformed on the profit level and I sensed most of them were hostile to our business system, its management and ownership. I asked 10 students, one after another, to rise and give me the average profit of American industries. Here are the answers I got:

Low Level Of Knowledge
The average industrial profit is 14 per cent; 16 per cent; 20 per cent; 24 per cent; 30 per cent; 36 per cent; 40 per cent; 45 per cent; 50 per cent. That's nine answers—with the average being 30 per cent. The tenth answer was from a young man who, throughout the evening, evidenced a healthy respect for the American system. His answer: 4 per cent profit on the average for the industries of America. His answer was correct. And the remainder of answers are about what I have gotten from high school and college groups all over the nation.

After my lecture, a pretty co-ed rose and said: "All the way through high school, I never heard a teacher (nor have I heard many college professors) say one thing favorable about private enterprise. I got the impression in my schooling so far that the American economic system was vicious and only detrimental to human progress." She thanked me for the lecture and said that knowing how the system works and how it distributes its benefits, she'd be a supporter of free enterprise and challenge those who found no good in it. They Can Learn

For years I have been participating in a statewide youth seminar in a Western state. We initiated the seminar as an annual event 15 years ago. Our 1973 seminar brought together more than 2,000 high school students from all over the state. We conducted a written test on citizenship awareness preceding the seminar, and again after the four-day institute. The results show that high school youngsters can learn and want to learn the true facts about our system but that they haven't been getting the facts.

On five key questions about our economic system, in a pre-seminar test, the results were 31 per cent correct answers, 14 per cent correct, 13 per cent correct, 20 per cent correct, 19 per cent correct. After the seminar the answers to these same five questions were 63 per cent correct, 83 per cent correct, 97 per cent correct, 96 per cent correct, 92 per cent correct. This tells us all we need to know about one of the shortcomings of many of our educational institutions. It also tells us that our youth generation can be taught and can absorb and retain the true facts. And it tells us that the vast majority of our young people—we got this from post-seminar comments in written form—are willing, even zealously anxious to carry the banner of the American system against all challengers. It has never worked perfectly, but our youth, when adequately informed, realize that the system itself is sound and has built-in potentials for improvement in its stewardship.

Perspectives In Learning

By Hazel Brown, President Harry Lundeberg School Happy Colors And Learning
Have you ever walked into a room and immediately felt comfortable? The size of the room, the ceiling height, the color of the walls and the furniture in the room had a lot to do with the feeling that overcame you. We feel safe and secure in certain environments.

Children also react to their environment. Some researchers in Munich, Germany, recently found that children develop intellectually faster when they are in a pretty room. The children like rooms that were light blue, yellow, yellow-green, and orange. They found white, black and brown to be ugly and did not react well when placed in rooms painted these colors.

This research study was done with about 500 kindergarten children to see if colors have any effect on intellectual growth. After 18 months the youngsters who were in the beautiful rooms had advanced over 2010 points above the control group.

It would seem that certain colors had very positive effects on the children. The youngsters in the orange room had a 53 per cent rise in smiles and friendly words. This would suggest that orange walls, furniture and toys made the children think happy thoughts.

If a change in the color of paint used in a classroom can have this much effect upon the attitude and intellectual growth of children, then it would be an exciting and inexpensive experiment to try in our schools.

Cheerful colors don't cost that much more than gray, tan and white. The reward for experimenting with colors would certainly be worth the small risk involved in going "mod."

It wouldn't be surprising if the teachers in the "happy" colored rooms didn't find themselves frowning less and smiling more. All humans react to their surroundings.

During the summer vacation why not get a painting project going in your community. When the children return to school in the fall, they will find an exciting and colorful environment in which to learn, explore and develop. Happy colors may make the difference in your school.

BUSINESS AND THE STOCK MARKET

Steel Bucks Economic Downtrend
By Babson's Reports Inc., Wellesley Hills, Mass., July 4, 1974—Despite the recent economic downturn which saw real GNP decline at a 6.3% annual rate in the first quarter, domestic steel demand has continued high and is expected to remain strong throughout the year. At the same time the improvement in the steel trade picture which developed in 1973 continued through the 1974 first quarter. Steel imports of 2.5 million tons declined some 34% from the year-earlier period, while steel exports rose to 1.4 million tons from 0.8 million registered a year ago.

Because of the strong demand, total domestic steel shipments are now expected to be only slightly below last year's record 111 million tons. Since last year's record was met, in part, through a substantial reduction in inventories, it is unlikely that this year's shipments could set a new record in spite of the strong demand.

A New Labor Accord
This spring the United Steelworkers and the country's ten largest steel producers agreed to a new three-year contract to replace the one which expires on August 1. While it was in line with earlier settlements within the aluminum and container industries, it stopped short of providing a cost-of-living escalator for pension benefits.

Perhaps almost as important as the settlement itself was the agreement to extend the "Experimental Labor Agreement" through the 1977 negotiations, thus assuring labor peace within steel until 1980. Thus, the large buildup of inventories which occurred prior to past bargaining periods and which proved costly to both the industry and the steelworkers should be avoided for the rest of the decade.

Higher Steel Prices
With labor costs scheduled to rise significantly, and with practically all other costs climbing rapidly, the steel industry was in desperate need of price relief. While the integrated steel producers were able to turn in some good earnings for last year, the better showing reflected primarily the sharp improvement in capacity utilization rates, which tended to mask the profit squeeze resulting from price controls. Hence, once price controls were lifted, wide-ranging price boosts were posted by the major producers. The increases were far from uniform, however, resulting in a fragmented pricing structure. The most recent price increases were initiated by Bethlehem Steel, comprising base advances ranging from 5% to 15%, depending on the product, and covering nearly all of the company's product mix.

Another Good Year
With steel production slated to remain at or near capacity levels, and with a much-improved price structure, the major integrated steel producers should register further gains this year. First-quarter earnings for most of the major producers were better than anticipated, and while costs continue to rise, recent price boosts should help in preserving profit margins. Availability of raw materials, however, could be a restricting factor, especially if there is a walk-out by the United Mine Workers this fall during negotiations with the nation's coal producers.

Investment Opinion
Although prices of most steel equities have eased in the past few weeks, they have, for the most part, performed well so far this year. Furthermore, despite some longer-term uncertainties, we feel that these equities can register further gains once the stock market atmosphere improves. For those investors who wish to add a steel equity to their portfolios, the Staff of Babson's Reports is currently recommending purchase of Bethlehem Steel common. Those interested may have a free copy of a report on this company by writing to Babson's Reports Inc., Wellesley Hills, Mass. 02181.

New Edition Of Boat Guide Available
The 1974-75 edition of the "Guide For Cruising Maryland Waters," a complete marine atlas of Maryland's tidal waters, is now available, according to William B. Matthews, Jr., Boating Liaison Officer of the Department of Natural Resources.

The guide, the original small craft marine atlas, consists of 20 charts scale 1:80,000 with 50 insets of rivers and harbors enlarged at least four times. The charts and insets are in four colors and reproduced from those published by the National Ocean Survey.

Over 200 courses and distances between buoys are shown and marine facilities are spotted. On the land area, the Maryland State Highway map, published by the Department of Transportation, has been super imposed.

One section of the guide is an "Introduction to Piloting" which contains Rules of the Road, lights required on vessels, buoys, safety suggestions, and highlights of the Maryland Boat Act.

The section on equipment requirements includes all new regulations issued under the Federal Boat Safety Act of 1971 including new life preserver regulations. In this section there also is an original speed-distance-time-table and another original table showing the approximate nautical miles between boating centers.

The "Guide For Cruising Maryland Waters" was conceived, written and compiled by Mr. Matthews in 1961 and has been updated every other year by him. This eighth edition has been corrected through the Local Notice to Mariners of the 5th District, U. S. Coast Guard through April 1, 1974 and reflects 384 changes which have been made in the last two years.

A new feature in the eighth edition is the location of AM radio station antennas giving the frequency and the call letters which a boatman can use in connection with his radio direction finder. Also, almost all drawbridge regulations regarding openings of spans are included in this edition of the guide.

Charles F. Chapman, a leading American yachtsman, called the guide "the finest book of its kind ever produced for the boatmen here or abroad."

The "Guide For Cruising Maryland Waters" still sells for $5.00 and contains charts that if bought separately would cost over $40.00. It is available at marine dealers or by sending a check including a 4% sales tax to the Department of Natural Resources, Tawes State Office Building, Taylor Avenue, Annapolis, Maryland 21401. If ten or more copies are purchased from the Department of Natural Resources, the price is $3.50 each plus 4% sales tax.

FREDERICK COUNTY BACKGROUNDS

BY SAMUEL CARRICK
More Armstrong Genealogy
"Who can be lonely on a hill
If it is Heaven's window-sill
And clouds are hung with lovely grace
To veil the shining of God's face!
I see the flaming cherubim,
I hear the song of seraphim;
They dare not lift their eyes to see—
But God has shown Himself to me."
—Elizabeth Badley Read
The data regarding John Armstrong, gunsmith, of Pennsylvania and Maryland, is continued at this time.

From the account by Henry J. Kaufman in his monumental work, "The Pennsylvania - Kentucky Rifle"—"His (John Armstrong's) locks are a particularly distinctive part of his products, for they were probably made by him as many are signed J.A., on the outer surface of the lock plate. They are long and slender with bevels around the edges and with lines filed across the tail end. He seems to have used a 'store' lock on his cheaper guns. "The writer has never seen a shotgun, or a fowling piece that Armstrong made, but in a Lancaster (Pennsylvania) collection there is known to be a fine pistol that is signed on the barrel and the lock." Elsewhere in his book Mr.

Kaufman has this to say of John Armstrong:
"John Armstrong often used the eagle motif on his rifles. Other inlays were placed on carved portions of the stocks. The silver inlays of the Maryland makers were executed with much skill and tastefully arranged."
"Armstrong frequently engraved his name on a metal plate, which was inlaid on the top facet of the barrel. He also places a piece of steel in the projecting end of the butt plate so that it could more easily withstand the abrasion of the soil, while the rifle was being loaded."
"The famous gunsmith, Peter White, is thought to have worked in northern Maryland near John Armstrong, as one of his contemporaries. From Maryland he moved to Bedford County, Pennsylvania."
It is safe to assume that since John Armstrong owned lots one and two, on the original plat, of Emmitsburg, he had his residence and gunshop on one or both. After his death, his one-time apprentice Nathaniel Rowe, took over his business—perhaps at the old Armstrong stand—and in turn—manufactured his own particular style of rifle and pistol. Only a few of the latter's products are known to exist and for this reason collectors place a high value on them. Nathaniel Rowe, like the man from whom he learned his trade, was a master craftsman and therefore, deserves his own particular niche in history.

In his history of Frederick County, Maryland, the Historian Williams, who followed Scharf, writes at some length regarding John Armstrong, the Emmitsburg gunsmith. He states that the craftsman was of English descent but says that he is only quoting earlier writers and that his information is not contemporary. This is a mistake—the Armstrongs were of Scotch descent—one of the clans who left Scotland—due to religious and political persecution—in the latter part of the 17th century and settled in the North of Ireland. Later, being dissatisfied in Ireland, they headed William Penn's invitation and came to the Province of Pennsylvania and settled, in the main, on the frontier. As stated before, they were included in the Marsh Creek Settlement, in what is now Adams (then York) County, early in the 18th century. Thomas (1) Armstrong died there in 1759 and was interred in the Upper Marsh Creek churchyard—where his tombstone can still be seen.

The so-called "Scotch-Irish" were trail blazers in the true sense of the word. The far horizon always beckoned. From Marsh Creek these people spread into the Cumberland Valley—then on to Ohio and other points north, south, east, and west—eventually—they wet their feet in the Pacific Ocean.

A daughter of John Armstrong was living in 1879—and in that year she visited her relatives in her native place—Emmitsburg. Under date of Saturday, September 30, 1879, the Editor of the "Chronicle" writes—"John Armstrong—Mrs. J. H. Manour, the daughter of John Armstrong, deceased, and wife of Dr. Manour, of West Virginia, is visiting her friends and relatives in her native place, after an absence of 23 years. Mrs. Manour is the aunt of Joseph and J. T. Hays, of this place."

It is reasonable to assume that Mrs. Manour knew something of her family background and could at least have given the dates of death of her father and mother—facts unknown at the present time since no gravemarkers remain to tell the story. Authorities differ as to the year of John Armstrong's death—he disappears from the records of Tom's Creek Presbyterian Church between 1813 and 1822. Williams insists that he (Armstrong) was still living in 1838.

John Armstrong had opened a shop in Emmitsburg as early as 1808. That is the first mention to be found of such an establishment—he may have "been on the ground" earlier. He came to Emmitsburg, Maryland from Pennsylvania.

he married after he moved into Maryland and that his wife came from an old Frederick County family—the James clan, who were early settlers in the Linganore District. This is quite possible but definite proof has not, as yet, been found to substantiate this claim.
John Armstrong and his wife were the parents of some seven children—four sons and three daughters.
The notes pertaining to John Armstrong will be continued in this series next week.

AMERICAN INGENUITY

LITTLE KNOWN STORIES OF SUCCESS

More than 2,000 years ago, a Roman agricultural writer described haymaking as "throwing hay loosely together for a few days to heat and concoct itself before putting into the mow." And through the ages hay-making and hay harvesting have been important but time-consuming activities for farmers throughout the world. There was a time when people cut hay with a scythe, forked it into piles several times, hefted it into a wagon by fork, then unloaded it by hand into haypiles.

This long and tedious process persisted well into the nineteenth century when mowers, rakes, and hayloaders were invented. By 1880, hay had become the nation's most valuable agricultural product, and by 1895 the business had developed so rapidly that the National Hay Association was formed in Cleveland.

But despite some progress, baling hay was still a difficult process—and the railroads refused to transport loose hay. Bales weighing from 200 to 300 pounds were made from hay that was hand fed into presses in the field. At about the turn of the century, a horse-powered baler was invented that picked up hay

Today, a full range of modern farm machines cut and condition hay, tie the bales, scoop them up and automatically stack them on a wagon bed. At the storage area, the operator simply flips a lever on the automatic bale wagon to place an entire load of bales exactly where he wants it.

Haymaking and hay baling have come a long way since Roman times, but most of this progress has taken place during the last fifty years. The story of hay baling is a fine example of American success through ingenuity.

from windrows as it moved through the field. But men had to hand-tie the bales—even after tractors replaced horses.
Then, in 1940, the hay baling breakthrough of the centuries was made. A farmer in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, invented the mechanical knoter—and relieved farmers forever of the tedious process of hand-tying bales. The New Holland Machine Company, which is now New Holland, a division of Sperry Rand Corporation, was quick to appreciate the new machine and began to produce it in quantity for farmers and ranchers throughout the world.

which run water into the sewerage system must be removed. Flax explained that in order to continue with the sewer plant study all wild water from the spouting must be eliminated.

Flax also announced that in connection with the recent water line problems which a resident is experiencing it should once again be stressed that the town is responsible for water and sewer lines only to the property line. He added that residents are "not to bother any town installations whether water or sewer."

At the request of Bowers, the Town Council approved and sent to the Planning and Zoning Commission a petition calling for the extension of the R-3 zoning along East Main Street. The petition asks that the R-2 zoning east of Federal Avenue be changed, at least in part, to extend the R-3 zone. The planning and Zoning Commission will now review the petition and report their findings to Town Council.

Following a report from Mary Diehl, town parking meter attendant, Council agreed to renew the red curbing paint in town in order to more clearly designate "no parking" areas.

Rape Center Bill

Senator Charles McC. Mathias, Jr. (R-Md.) said this week he expects the Senate to act in July on legislation he has introduced to establish a National Center for the Prevention and Control of Rape.

The bill, which has 27 Senate co-sponsors, was approved unanimously last week by the Health Subcommittee of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee. A similar bill has more than 60 co-sponsors in the House. Both measures have strong bipartisan support.

The National Center for the Prevention and Control of Rape that would be established by the bill will conduct comprehensive studies into the causes and effects of rape on the victim, the rapist and society in general.

The Center will research ways to prevent rape and will disseminate information on the subject as widely as possible. It will analyze laws on rape and develop a new model state law. In addition, the Center will examine current practices of police, medical and other personnel who deal with rape, its victims and offenders and will work with them to develop better approaches.
