Most Anything At A Glance

- By Abigail -

"March comes in like a lion and goes out like a lamb." I'm convinced that whoever said those immortal words didn't live in Emmitsburg. Seems like all the nice days came at the beginning of this fickle month. With the weather as it is, I don't know what I'll be wearing Easter Sunday — my new Spring dress, or an old wool one.

Mike Fitzgerald, his family and friends have probably recovered by now from the St. Patrick's Day weekend fete. Their restaurant was really jumping those four days, and I can hear Mike saying, "Thank God it's only once a year." (I don't think he means it, though.)

There was one Alexandria lady attending the celebration who said, "I'd rather miss Christmas than St. Patrick's Day at the Shamrock restaurant." I want to thank her for sharing her poem with me, but I'm sorry there isn't space to print it.

The mailbag produced an interesting letter this week. (I realize I'm no longer alone in my disdain for rowdy behavior.) Here it is:

A quick glance thru your column of last week seems to express the typical, apathetic concern held in majority by the residents of the Emmitsburg community.

Your comments concerning the recent increase in vandalism, as an example. It does leave the reader with the realization that even in Emmitsburg, Md., being the small segment of society that it is, delinquency does prevail. I ask: are the problems from which this behavior stems, or by what groups such activity represents, realized? Obviously, there are individuals, few as they may be, that are aware of the situation, but the energies generated from such a minority group are barely felt. Such neglected effort may be witnessed in the support of the community Teen Center, where the community's interest in the development and advancement of its own offspring, is not seen. For the adolescent of Emmitsburg, drugs and alcohol are the road of escape to the care-free world of fantasy.

Yes, Abigail, it did rain last week, very hard indeed. And the floods came and everything was washed away. Emmitsburg isn't "too old for inaccuracy," nor too young for help.

Sincerely,
C. F. Lippy

I hope you don't pass over the letter to the editor from one of our town commissioners. Our forebears proved the inequity of "taxation without representation," and our commissioner makes a strong case against "representation without taxation."

It seems the taxpayer also purchases the privilege to speak out on local issues, and in this case, I tend to agree with Gene Myers.

To our Jewish readers, may I say "shalom" in this Passover season, and to all others, have a very Happy Easter.

VFW Easter Egg Hunt This Sunday

The annual Easter Egg Hunt, sponsored by Memorial Post 6658, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will take place this Sunday afternoon. Clarence Orndorff, chairman of the hunt, announced that the event will be held at Community Field as usual, and that the children will be divided into age groups in an effort to give all an equal opportunity to find their share. This year, the hunt will be open to all children through age eight (8), none older will be allowed to participate. Should inclement weather prevail, the hunt will be held in the Post Home on the Square.

According to Mr. Orndorff, many dozens of eggs will be colored for the hunt, which will get under way promptly at 1 p.m. Many eggs with special markings will be hidden which means that those children finding these eggs will be entitled to a prize, provided they show them to the committee in charge following the hunt.

The event is usually well attended and approximately 500 children from the area are expected to participate.

Letter To Editor

To The Editor of the Emmitsburg Chronicle and the People of the Corporation Limits of Emmitsburg

In reference to the petition that recently floated around town to block Super Thrift from locating in Emmitsburg, as a Commissioner of Emmitsburg, I felt it was my duty to see who these people were on this list. After checking the list, I discovered that three of these people operate businesses in this corporation and do not even reside within the corporation. One person's name appeared twice; two other person's names that appeared on this petition, at which time I will not give their names because I told them I would not, did not know what they were signing. Another person's name that appeared on the petition claims he did not know how his name got on the petition because he did not sign it.

A good portion of the people on this petition do not live in the corporation limits. There are people's names on this petition from Fairfield, Taneytown and Baltimore; and some names I never even heard of.

My point to you, the people of the corporation limits of Emmitsburg, who are paying taxes and sewerage fees, is don't you think it's about time that we stand on our own two feet and stop letting people from outside the corporation limits influence our decision on how to run our community.

They are not paying corporation taxes but are getting every benefit that you are except sewerage. If they want to tell us how to run our community, let them come into the corporation limits and pay corporation taxes, then it would be their right to tell us how to run the community.

Bicentennial Plans Include Local Clubs

The Bicentennial Steering Committee held its third planning meeting March 11 at 7:30 p.m. at St. Joseph's High School. The first item on the agenda was the expansion of the committee to include the presidents of the Senior Citizens Club, the Homemakers Club and the Emmitsburg Grange. The project director, Professor Emile Nakhleh, apologized for the unintentional omission of these organizations during the early planning sages.

In order to encourage students and local artists to participate in the upcoming Bicentennial program, an Awards Committee was established to judge artistic works submitted to it. Nominal prizes might be awarded to the best drama, musical, painting, costume, poster and essay. Members of the Awards Committee are Professor Tollefsen, Miss Patricia Topper, Mr. Eugene Rosensteel, Rev. Walter Bowers and Mrs. Sheila Chatlos.

A publicity brochure for the Bicentennial project is being prepared. Once printed, the brochure will be distributed throughout the town. The list of revised topics which was presented at this meeting were combined with the ideas discussed at the previous meeting and the original proposal. In addition to approving the revised program, subcommittees were formed to work on each of the topics. These subcommittees will meet individually in the next few weeks, and they will report on their progress to the Steering Committee at its next meeting on April 22. These subcommittees are free to develop their topics in any way they see fit and to contact any interested persons who might contribute to the success of the Bicentennial project.

Following is a list of the revised topics and the subcommittee responsible for each topic:

1. The American Revolution and the Birth of a Nation. Professor John Morrison and Professor Olaf Tollefsen. Sept. 2, 1975.
2. Dramatic Presentations of Selected Events in the History of Emmitsburg. Mr. Eugene Rosensteel, Mrs. Katie Warthen. Sept. 9, 1975.
3. Emmitsburg Since the Eighteenth Century: A History of Industry, Crafts, Agriculture and Architecture. Mr.

This project, "Little America: A Small Town Reflects on the Bicentennial," is sponsored jointly by the Maryland Committee for the Humanities and Public Policy and Mount St. Mary's College. The Bicentennial program, which is geared toward the average adult citizen of this community, will be composed of 12 weekly programs to be held on Tuesday evenings from September 2 to November 18, 1975 at the VFW. It is also hoped that a book on and for Emmitsburg will result from this project. The next meeting of the Steering Committee will be held at St. Joseph's High School on Tuesday, April 22, 1975, at 7:30 p.m. Suggestions are most welcome.

On Tuesday evening, March 18, at 7:30, the Emmitsburg Senior Citizens Club held its regular monthly meeting at the Center with 47 members present.

The meeting opened with singing two Irish songs, followed by the Lord's Prayer. The Bazaar, scheduled for Saturday, April 19, was discussed and all member were urged to bring any saleable articles and come expecting to help in any way possible.

The club also hopes to have an interesting display in the Frederick County Square Mall during the week of April 21-27, which also will be Emmitsburg recognition week there.

The rest of the evening was spent playing blind bingo, followed by light refreshments.

Please note that the Center will be closed Good Friday, March 28 and Easter Monday, March 31.

Several engravings are in the Louvre, Paris, collection of representative American artists.

Author Entertains Historical Society

The Emmitsburg Historical Society's meeting on Thursday, March 20, was well attended.

The guest speaker, Anne Hooper, related her many interesting, sometimes humorous, experiences in researching historical events and narratives connected with Braddock Heights in its summer resort days, from the 1900's to the '30's for her book: "Braddock Heights—A Glance Backward."

She described the precautions that must be taken by would-be historians to authenticate their material. The notice also requires advice on decisions to be made in the matters of printing and distribution.

It was indeed gratifying to all those present at the meeting, to hear Mrs. Hooper, a young woman acutely aware of her times yet having a strong sense of continuity, speak so authoritatively on a subject of particular interest to the Society.

Another guest, Mr. Nick Wood of the Frederick News Post, requested help from the members in compiling items of historical interest on the background of Frederick County, for a book he is preparing to write. Mr. Wood is hopeful of finding sources of information on this subject in the town of Emmitsburg, and will welcome contributions from the townspeople, either in writing or by telephone.

His book will take its initial form in newspaper supplements issued monthly by the Frederick News Post.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and plans for an exhibit and other activities at the Frederick Mall were discussed.

Refreshments were served after the business meeting.

A special meeting will be held on April 18, when Mr. Dick Marsden will give a talk on the Maryland Militia and exhibit various artifacts of the Civil War period.

The regular monthly meeting will be held on Thursday, April 24, at 7:30 in the Methodist Church meeting room. At this time there will be a panel discussion on the importance of the town becoming a Historic District.

Emmitsburg Joins Opposition To County Police Force Idea

It is very doubtful that there will be a county police force in Frederick County in the near future.

The idea of such an agency met strong opposition from law enforcement officials and mayors of municipalities that have police forces. The officials met Monday night in Winchester Hall to discuss Phase III of the Frederick County Police Services study.

Davon Management Company, Columbus, Ohio, who has been conducting the study, recommended that police services be centralized at the county level. The company also said that as a long-term objective a county police agency should be developed to provide patrol, deterrence, investigations, communications and technical services throughout the county, including the municipalities of Frederick, Brunswick, Thurmont and Emmitsburg.

Under the plan, the state police force would gradually be reduced to approximately 12 men; however, they would continue their patrol of major highways in Frederick County, including I-70, I-270, U.S. 340, U.S. 40, and U.S. 15.

"It would be a physical impossibility for 12 troopers to patrol these five major highways. You must take into consideration days off, court time, vacation and sick leave. It would just be impossible for those few men to do it. I'd like to see your arithmetic that shows me otherwise," Troop B Commander Capt. Samuel Conrad remarked.

Although Phase II of the study reported that Frederick County was adequately covered by its 144 police officers, which include policemen from Frederick, Brunswick, Emmitsburg, Thurmont, and the state police, the county police force proposed by Davon Monday night only includes 107 police personnel. VFW TO MEET

The regular monthly meeting of VFW Post 6658, will be held Wednesday, April 2 at 8:00 p.m. in the Post Home. Nomination of officers will be held at this meeting.

The imbecility of men is always inviting the impudence of a power.—R. W. Emerson.

those 107 police officers include 18 supervisors, seven investigators, nine communications officers and the remaining 73 police for patrol.

According to this proposed plan, there would be an average of six police officers on duty in the entire county per shift.

"I just can't see where Frederick City could benefit from this plan. We keep 12 or 13 men busy in the city now. How can only six men cover Frederick City and Urbana and Middletown?" Capt. Richard J. Ashton, Frederick City Police asked.

"Oh, it (the county) would be covered adequately," Barry Mastrine, Davon representative, answered.

To support his theory that six officers were inadequate, Capt. Ashton used the disturbance this past weekend at John Hanson Apts. as an example.

"In this situation we needed manpower. We had the shift that was on and some men from the previous shift were still around—about 25 men. Then we called the state police and they sent troopers from Frederick and Hagerstown who were working. We needed men and we got them. What would we do if we had only six men on duty in the county?" Capt. Ashton asked.

"The same thing you did last weekend — call in reinforcements," Mastrine said.

"Time is important in a situation like this. We don't want to sit around waiting for troopers from the Eastern shore coming to Frederick to help," Capt. Ashton said.

"I don't think it would be right for Frederick City to give up what they've been working so hard for so long—a strong police force. Their force like ours is responsive to the people," Thurmont Police Chief Herman Shook remarked.

The mayors of Brunswick, Thurmont and Emmitsburg also revealed that the citizens of those towns would oppose the abolition of their town police forces.

"Over in Brunswick we have a special thing. We have people from neighboring states coming in to visit and also many night clubs. We (our police force) know the people and how far they can go. They know the special needs of the people there. Brunswick citizens won't stand for the force being done away with," Brunswick Mayor Jesse B. Orndorff said.

"As Mayor Orndorff has said, the people won't stand for the county taking away the town police force. The town police forces are responsive to the town's people. If they (the citizens of Thurmont) call me and I don't come, they're calling the mayor to find out why. We're called to take care of people's problems—special little problems like a barking dog or a cat that has done something on someone's lawn. Some things we shouldn't be called for at all, but we go. The people enjoy this relationship and they aren't going to be willing to let it go," Chief Shook said.

Mastrine reported that with the opposition from the municipalities any implementation plan would be weakened. "We need the collaboration of the municipalities to implement the county police force," Mastrine said.

"Why not make use of what we have? We should add people in slots that are open now—more sheriff's deputies," Sheriff Donald Barnes said.

"I think we would be doing the citizens an injustice if we reduce what we have now. Under this plan we are reducing the number of detectives in the county to seven. Right now we have 12 detectives in the county, and according to your study, we only need seven," Barnes asked.

When Davon was blasted with opposition Monday night, Mastrine did not continue to discuss the gradual steps toward implementation. He simply ended the session.

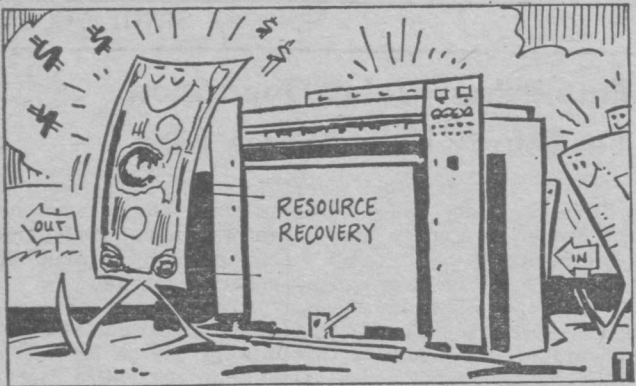

According to Phase II of the study, presented in February, not only does the county now enjoy a medium-to-high level of police protection, it also has one of the lowest crime rates in the state.

Is Frederick County in need of a county police force?

County Commissioner Paul Crum answered that question, "When the mayors of 12 towns come to us and say they need one—that's when we'll get a county police force."

NEWS OF ECOLOGY

ALUMINUM MAGNET TURNS TRASH INTO CASH

Most people don't realize it, but one of the few commodities not in short supply has one of the greatest potentials to help solve America's materials and energy shortages. What is this abundant resource? Garbage!

The United States produces almost one ton of garbage per person per year—nearly 200 million tons annually. This virtually untapped resource, contains enormous amounts of recoverable aluminum, glass, rubber, plastics, iron and steel—and the burnable trash could supply one percent of our energy needs!

Until recently, there has not existed a simple and economical system to process and recover all the valuable refuse resources. Ironically, the most valuable frequently found fraction of trash—aluminum, worth about $300 a ton—presented the most challenging problem.

Now, however, a California research firm, Combustion Power Company, has developed a completely automated resource recovery and energy generation system. A key component of the new system is an electrodynamic nonferrous separator—an "aluminum magnet" that relies on aluminum's nonmagnetic properties and repels instead of attracts the metal.

To operate the system, all that is needed is a little electricity—which the system itself will generate—and a lot of garbage.

The garbage first is shredded, then fed into the resource recovery equipment. There, glass is removed on a revolving trommel screen. Next, the iron and steel are separated magnetically. Finally, the trash moves through the "aluminum magnet" where aluminum is separated from the trash to be sold as scrap along with the glass and iron.

The aluminum magnet operates on an eddy current principle. It contains specially tuned electromagnets which temporarily induce an electric charge in the aluminum, then immediately repels it, forcing it off the conveyor belt.

Meanwhile, the burnable part is fed into a furnace where it is burned to produce clean, dry hot air. The hot air drives turbine fans that power a generator to produce electricity.

Aluminum Company of America, through an agreement with Combustion Power Company, will purchase recyclable aluminum recovered from city waste systems. This further will help to save energy because producing aluminum beverage can sheet from scrap metal saves 95 percent of the energy needed to manufacture can sheet from ore.

YOUR VETERINARIAN SPEAKS

Traveling With Your Dog

At every vacation, when an automobile journey is planned, the question for many dog owners is, "Should we take the dog, or should he be boarded at a kennel while we are away?"

If arrangements can be made along the way and at your destination, there is no reason your dog should not travel with you. Most dogs adjust well to travel and some even enjoy it, according to the Maryland Veterinary Medical Association.

However, if for some reason the dog cannot go with you, a stay at a kennel is in order and there are certain advantages. There will be an opportunity for your dog to get a complete physical check-up. He may be treated for internal or external parasites and his weight can be adjusted. If he is too fat, he can lose weight under the supervision of a veterinarian while you are vacationing.

Dogs that are chronically car sick or nervous should not be subjected to long trips if it can be avoided. They are best boarded while the owner is away.

Your veterinarian can help you select the best kennel for your pet. It is always best to have annual "booster" vaccinations completed before boarding.

Are You Eligible For More S.S.?

People who can answer 'yes' to five questions may be eligible for supplemental security income payments, according to William E. Goodman, social security district manager in Frederick.

The questions:

1. Are you 65 or over, or blind, or severely disabled?
2. Is your income from pensions or social security benefits less than $166 a month ($239 for a couple)?
3. Is your home valued at $25,000 or less?
4. Is your car valued at $1,200 or less?
5. Are your assets—savings, stocks, or other things convertible to cash—worth less than $1,500 ($2,250 for a couple)?

"If you think you might be eligible for supplemental security income," Goodman said, "call or write any social security office for more information about the payments."

The supplemental security income program makes monthly payments to over 4 million people with little or no income and limited resources who are 65 or over or blind or disabled. The amount of the monthly supplemental security income payments people get depends on other income they might have. Eligible people with no other income at all get as much as $146 a month for one person and $219 for a couple. The program is administered by the Social Security Administration.

The Frederick Social Security Office is at 912 East St. The phone number is 663-5124.

Mathias Vs. High Utility Rates

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, Jr. (R-Md.) has urged Governor Marvin Mandel to follow the lead of Virginia Governor Mills Godwin and appoint a citizens commission to study the problem of high electric rates in Maryland.

Mathias said parallel action in Maryland is appropriate because some of the companies providing service in Virginia also are serving Maryland.

Mathias also urged the Governor to increase the staff of the Public Service Commission "in order to provide for more adequate representation of consumer interests."

Mathias, in a letter to Mandel, said coordinated action by the state and federal governments is needed because the problem of utility rates is no longer a local one.

Noting that the elderly, and those on fixed incomes, are especially hard-hit by the tremendous rise in utility rates, Mathias urged the Governor to act "to provide relief and representation for the consumers of Maryland."

May Be Tax Refund For Students

Many students who worked part-time during last summer or during the school year may have a tax refund coming, Gerald G. Portney, District Director of Internal Revenue for Maryland and the District of Columbia, said today.

Students, retirees and other part-time workers, are often not required by law to file a federal income tax return because of low earnings, Mr. Portney said. However, many have had tax withheld from their wages and although they may owe no tax, they must file a return to get a refund of tax withheld.

Persons who are not sure of their status should check their Form W-2 and, if it shows that income tax was withheld, file an income tax return. Mr. Portney said that those needing answers to tax questions, or help with the preparation of their return, should contact their local IRS office.

Mr. Portney advised that persons who had no tax liability and do not expect to have enough income to file a return next year, can eliminate withholding by filling out a Form W-4E.

Silver Fancy Club Takes 2nd Prize

On March 20, the Silver Fancy Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. John Zent, Taneytown.

Speaker for the afternoon was Mr. Ed Smith from the Extension Service. He presented each member with a "Bulletin on Gardening," and explained each point. A question and answer period followed.

The Club won a second prize, sponsored by Sears and Co., in the "Environmental Improvement" program. The project was the beautification of the Amphitheatre at the Farm Museum in Westminster.

A slate of new officers was read and accepted by the Club. They are: President, Mrs. John White, Emmitsburg; Vice President, Mrs. Thomas Frailey, Emmitsburg; Secretary, Mrs. Robert Clingan, Taneytown; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. George Harner, Taneytown; and Treasurer, Mrs. John Zent, Taneytown.

The next meeting on April 17 will be held at the camp of Mrs. Robert Clingan at Harpers Ferry.

Project Day Is Tuesday, April 1

Project Day will come early for local Church women, as Tuesday, April 1 marks the first Tuesday of the month. In addition to the regular projects, final plans will be announced regarding the scheduled visit, April 30, to the Church Service Center in New Windsor. Included in the visit will be a tour of the facilities and a noon luncheon. Further information may be obtained from any of the "Project Day" women.

NEWS OF SAFETY

By Experts At The Plastic Bottle Institute

Every year a startling number of children—some 23 million—are injured in household accidents. Often, it's a result of not thinking ahead. Here are some safety tips which should help to keep your child safer.

Don't store household utility products in the compartment under the kitchen sink unless the compartment can be locked securely. Some of these products can be poisonous or abrasive to a child's skin.

Store medicines in the new safety bottles which children cannot open. It's a good idea to use plastic bottles because they're shatter-resistant.

Teach your children now to use cooking utensils. At first, give them tasks that don't require sharp tools. When they are old enough to understand, teach them to use knives properly.

Store knives and other sharp tools where children can't find them. For example, keep knives in an out-of-reach rack.

BUSINESS AND THE STOCK MARKET

S&Ls Benefit From Lower Interest Rates

By Babson's Reports Inc., Wellesley Hills, Mass., March 27, 1975—One of the few favorable side effects of the current recession has been the decline in interest rates. This has been particularly noticeable in the short-term sector where rates have literally plunged. For example, the Federal funds rate (the rate banks pay for funds they borrow from each other) has dropped from a high of around 13% in July of last year to a current level of under 6%.

Also, the rate on three-month Treasury bills has fallen to less than 6% from more than 9%, the rate in effect last summer.

Since interest rates have a significant impact on the flow of funds into and out of savings institutions, the decline has been good news for the nation's savings and loan associations. Not only did these institutions have considerable difficulty in attracting new funds last year but indeed in the third quarter they actually experienced a savings outflow as interest rates continued to fall. And in the final quarter of last year consumers increased their savings for the first time since the 1973 fourth quarter.

Although savings have been moving back into the S&Ls faster than previously expected, earnings may not pick up until after midyear. Most of the publicly held savings and loan institutions registered lower earnings last year. Lending activity was reduced—in some cases sharply—due to the slowdown in the savings flow. At the same time interest costs for these firms rose, reflecting costly borrowings from the Federal Home Loan Bank and a switch by depositors from passbook accounts into term deposits offering higher yields.

With a brighter savings picture should show improvement, but probably not until the second half. So far, mortgage loan demand has continued sluggish. The S&Ls have used their increased savings to reduce their outstanding debt with the FHLB and build up liquidity. But mortgage lending is likely to pick up in coming months. Also, the decline in profit margins may be nearing an end, and this could help earnings as 1975 moves along.

Volatile Market Performers
S&Ls can be volatile in terms of market action. For instance, these issues dropped drastically in the 1969-70 market decline, and then registered good percentage gains during the ensuing upturn. When stock prices peaked at the end of 1972, S&L issues again turned downward and in many cases the declines were even more severe than in the preceding bear market. Last year they bottomed out before the market did and have since seen some good percentage gains.

Great Western Financial was recently up some 160% above its 1974 low. First Charter Financial was up 145%, Gibraltar Financial 105%, Imperial Corporation of America 120%, and Financial Corporation of Santa Barbara 170%. It is interesting to compare these advances with the 35% gain of the Dow Jones Industrial Average.

Are congressional committee meetings normally open to the public? How about the Interstate & Foreign Commerce on which you serve? Only ten per cent of all House Committees and Subcommittee meetings were closed to the public in 1973—compared to 44 per cent the previous year. For your information, over 92 per cent of the House Commerce Committees' meetings were open in 1973. Please send me the hunting regulations for the State of Maryland?

Citizens interested in State hunting and fishing laws should write for a copy of the 1974 Guide to Hunting and Trapping in Maryland. The booklet is available from the Department of Natural Resources, Wildlife Administration, Towson State Office Building, Annapolis 21401.

What did your constituents have to say about tax reform in that recent survey you sent out?

Citizens responding to the poll clearly favored the concept of tax reform, especially in the area of oil and gas taxation. For example, majorities supported an end to tax preference policies given overseas U.S. companies; imposition of a tax on excess profits from the sale of oil unless these profits are reinvested into developing new energy resources; and tax incentives for oil companies and public utilities to encourage domestic oil and gas exploration and energy development.

What is your position on the B&O 40% rate hike on its commuter trains? I have written a letter to the Interstate Commerce Commission urging rejection of the rate request. I am particularly concerned over decreased ridership if the 40% increase is approved, especially at a time when the overall policy of the government is to conserve energy and to increase use of rail transit facilities. Commuter attraction is based on reasonable fares on a cost per mile basis compared with an automobile and I am concerned this gap will become too narrow should the fare increase be allowed.

Can you please tell me the congressional process by which a bill becomes law?

The Federal legislative process is extremely complex and your question can best be answered by reading the informational government booklet entitled "How Our Laws Are Made". This publication provides valuable source material for individual and classroom study and can be ordered from my office here in Washington.

FUEL SAVING TIPS

1. Use a stiff brush to clean soot from boiler. A mere 1/8" soot deposit increases oil consumption as much as 10%.
2. Insulate your attic floor, which can produce savings to 20% on fuel. Be sure hot water, steam pipes or warm air ducts are well insulated if located near outside walls.
3. Install storm windows and storm doors for big savings.
4. Use caulking compound in all cracks to prevent cold air from entering your home.
5. The capacity of gravity warm air systems can generally be increased by installing a blower.

Disabled and elderly people need more than Medicare.

They need our Blue Cross and Blue Shield Medicare Supplemental Program. It covers most of Medicare's deductible and co-insurance requirements... and at a very reasonable cost. (We used to call this program Blue Cross and Blue Shield 65. But the name was changed last year when we included coverage for those disabled who now are eligible for Medicare.)

And the benefits under our Medicare Supplemental Program have been expanded to fully cover the 9.5 per cent increase in Medicare Part A deductible and co-insurance amounts as of the first of this year. The cost of Medicare Supplemental is just $5.00 a month per person.

So, if you're eligible for Medicare because you're over 65, or under 65 and disabled, then you're eligible for Medicare Supplemental. And enrollment is open from now until March 31. No health statements or physical examinations are required. Just that you are eligible for Medicare. For more information, write

LOOKING AHEAD

By George S. Benson, President, National Education Program
Searcy, Arkansas

Where Is The Security In Social Security?

If there is a bona fide "sacred cow" in America, it is Social Security. For the past quarter-century, the writer who dared comment on Social Security in any derogatory manner did so at his own risk. And that risk was and still is considerable. The advocates of Social Security were so strong and so numerous that a nationally known political leader was once heard to say, "the politician who runs on a platform of doing anything to Social Security other than raising its benefits wouldn't get his own mother's vote."

With a few notable exceptions, that statement has been pretty true until recently. Now, there is a whole new generation of Americans who are taking a very critical look at Social Security and wondering out loud if the entire system is not going to have to be phased out at some time in the future. These wage-earners do not want to deprive an older citizen of the fruits of his labor, but they are taking a hard look at the cold, concise facts of the law as it now exists and some of them are insisting that something be done now to avert a double disaster in the near future.

That double disaster would be: First, the failure of Social Security to live up to its promises to provide retirement for Americans who have paid into the system since its beginning in 1937. The second disaster would be to those wage earners who would have to pay these amounts in the future, plus additional amounts because of additional inflation. They could find themselves working to pay for the SS benefits to non-workers, or retirees, with too little left over for themselves.

Friends Are Worried

These are not the comments of the enemies of Social Security. These are the fears of its most avid supporters. Why are they so worried? One reason is because the politicians have not been able to refrain from using Social Security as a political weapon in election years. In every presidential election year benefits have been raised by those in office.

Many Express Fears

Back in 1950, U. S. Senator Cain of Washington said: "The race is on between the Social Security tax income and the benefit outgo. If the benefit outgo exceeds the tax income, and if the trust fund is absorbed, and there is every likelihood that will occur, then there will be nothing but brass knuckles and a club in the shape of increased taxes to keep the system from bankruptcy."

Many notables in American public life have expressed concern about the future of Social Security, including in addition to those mentioned, former President Hoover and Senators Curtis, George, Millikin, Russell, Aiken, Mundt, Talmadge, just to name a few. Widespread Coverage

But today, Social Security is not only concerned with "old age pensions," but is also vitally concerned with all five principle concerns of the individual in connection with income loss or increased expenses. They are: jobless old age or retirement, death, disability, unemployment and medical costs. These "individual" concerns now also extend to family and dependents.

Consider the case of the very first recipient of Social Security benefits. Her name was Ida M. Fuller of Ludlow, Vermont. Beginning in 1937, a tax of one per cent was deducted from her paycheck to finance retirement benefits to the elderly under Social Security. Miss Fuller, who began working as a bookkeeper, secretary and law clerk in 1904, retired in 1939 and in January, 1940, received her Social Security check in the amount of $22.54. If Miss Fuller's salary was as much as $3,000 per year, she and her employer had paid into the fund a maximum of $180.00. In 1940 alone, she drew $270.48 more than both she and her employer had contributed.

By 1962, the tax rate had risen to six and one-fourth per cent of the first $4,800 by both employer and employee. It now stands at 11.70 per cent of the first $14,100 of income, or $824.85 a year for the employee and an additional $824.85 for the employer. Beginning next year, under a new law passed by Congress the benefits to Social Security recipients will automatically increase according to the Consumer Price Index.

As Young Employees See It
Many young Americans are appalled at the change of thinking by their own college professors who told them all the way through college that America shouldn't worry about running up the national debt, that we shouldn't worry about inflation, that some inflation was good and that the more we spent, the more we would have to spend. Now, those same economists have admitted they were wrong. We have created a national debt of $500 billion. Interest alone on that debt at six per cent is $30 billion a year.

Social Security has to be re-thought and re-studied. A new generation must decide for itself if paternalistic government is really worth the price we can now see it is going to cost. It appears the security is disappearing from Social Security.

PERSPECTIVES IN LEARNING

By Hazel Brown, President
Harry Lundeberg School
Everyone Should Participate

Many parents are realizing the satisfaction of being volunteer workers in the schools. These helpful parents are becoming "live" teaching machines. They are warm, human beings who relate with individual students in need of a friend, a companion or concerned adult.

What use are you making of your spare time? Are you involved in any program as challenging or rewarding as helping a youngster who is struggling to meet success in education?

The teacher-aid, paraprofessional, teacher helper or volunteer teacher is a person who can play a very meaningful role in the day by day routine of the classroom. The chores of the aide can relieve the work load of the professional teacher so that he can better meet the educational needs of the individual students.

Many teacher-aides relieve the teacher of extra duties such as recess and lunchroom supervision, hall duty or study hall. These aides have the opportunity to take an active part in the recreational activities of the students and can provide guidance in developing safe participation in group games and activities.

Clerical duties are often assumed by volunteer teachers so that the professional teacher has more time to devote to teaching. The aides take attendance, prepare daily and weekly routine reports, duplicate materials, and prepare supplies so that the teacher wastes little time on unrelated activities.

Many teachers request that their aides help with learning experiences such as supervising silent reading or study activities, practice and review sessions and story telling. Small groups or individual students can be given special attention by the aide. All learners enjoy being recognized and the additional adult in the classroom certainly increases the number of students who can receive individual attention each day.

Volunteer parents can be of great assistance to the teacher who is eager to use individual instruction. Often the volunteer is seen by the students as someone less threatening and therefore easier to trust. Remediation and special learning activities can be presented without the learner feeling different. Teachers who recognize this use of volunteer teaches can use it to great advantage. The more options for learning the more chances for success!

You may be the first person in some youngster's life who ever cared enough about him to help him overcome what he considers to be a serious problem.

Why not visit your school or PTA and see if a teacher-aid or volunteer parent program exists in your community? If not, why not be the founder of such a program? Your schools need you.

Some people believe that a knife, given as a gift, will cut the friendship.

CLOTHINGCARE

By Steve Keil,
Drycleaning Service Center, Dow Chemical U.S.A.

Is Drycleaning Dry? Well, No...

Drycleaning may represent one of the most misunderstood businesses in the community.

How many of the millions of Americans who patronize over 40,000 drycleaners know that there is nothing really "dry" about drycleaning? In fact, when you drop off your garments at your favorite cleaners they undergo a thorough soaking.

So where does the "dry" enter into drycleaning? Called solvent, the solution most commonly used to clean your clothing is derived from salt and petroleum products. This solvent, which dissolves and lifts away the soils that make your garments dirty, normally contains less than one percent water — thus the "dry" reference.

Drycleaning originated in Paris over a hundred years ago when Jolly Belin tipped over a table lamp and the spilled oil removed spots from the table cloth. Camphene, a fuel oil used for lamps was used as the solvent. Later, Benzene and gasoline were employed, but abandoned because of their high flammability.

Basically, drycleaning differs from laundering in that unwanted oils, greases, tar and waxes are completely soluble in the solvent. They can be dissolved and carried away, leaving clothing clean.

However, some materials, such as sugars, starches and syrups — elements found in food and drink which have a knack of staining your best dress or slacks — are soluble in water. To eliminate them, special detergents are added to the cleaning solvent.

Actually, there is a lot of similarity between cleaning and laundering.

Laundering involves a batch cleaning type wash cycle followed by several batch and spray rinses. After the clothes are washed and spin-dried, they are transferred to the dryer, where they are dried with heated air. The resulting water vapor is exhausted to the outside. All the water used for laundering is drained away.

Drycleaning also has a wash cycle, and in some equipment is followed with a rinse. The equipment looks much like laundry machines. The cleaned fabrics also are dried with hot air. However, the cost of drycleaning solvents makes it necessary to purify and reuse the solvent over through filtering. This recycling can be seen as a plus for the environment and in the area of resource conservation.

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

QUESTIONS ABOUT THE ENERGY ISSUE WERE SOLICITED FROM PEOPLE-ON-THE-STREET IN SIX MAJOR CITIES BY GULF OIL CORPORATION. HERE IS ONE OF THE QUESTIONS:

▶ WHAT DO THE OIL COMPANIES DO WITH THEIR PROFITS?

ANSWER: Our profits are reinvested to find more oil in the United States so that we are not dependent on foreign crude at world market prices. We know we can produce crude in the U.S. cheaper—that's what we are doing, and that's where those profits are going, not into the bank, but back into the ground.

It has been two long years Mother and Grandmother since God called you away. No one knows the lonely heartache. No one knows the bitter pain. We have suffered since we lost you. Protecting Your Healthy HOME
BY BARBARA ROBERTS

Barbara Roberts, Director of Consumer Affairs at National Pest Control Association, 8150 Leesburg Pike, Suite 1100, Vienna, Va. will send readers a free household pest control booklet upon request. Questions of wide interest will be answered in this column.

Q. How can I get professional help fighting cockroaches? And won't my neighbors think I'm a poor housekeeper when they find out my home has cockroaches?

A. Most neighbors today know (or should know) that cockroaches are often found in the cleanest home on the block. They hitch-hike into homes in grocery bags or beverage six-packs.

Now about professional help. Cockroach control usually entails a thorough initial treatment followed by monthly inspections and treatment as needed. To find competent help, let your fingers do the walking through the yellow pages under Pest Control or Exterminators.

Choose a company that belongs to a local, state and/or National Pest Control Association—an indicator of adherence to high standards of technical competence and business ethics.

Call your Better Business Bureau to see if complaints are filed against the company you have in mind. BBB cannot recommend a company.

In discussing your needs, ask how the technician who will service your home has been trained. Numerous home study courses are available as well as frequent seminars and training courses run by associations or universities.

Seek value from the company you hire. Don't just look at price. Reach for a complete understanding before work starts. Find out what can be done, over how long a period of time, what results can be expected.

Enrollment For Medicare To End

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Maryland today reminded all eligible Medicare beneficiaries that the annual enrollment period for the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Medicare Supplemental Program will end on March 31.

The enrollment period applies to those senior citizens age 65 and over who are not now members of Blue Cross and Blue Shield. Current members automatically are converted from their present coverage to the special program when they reach age 65.

Also eligible for the program are those citizens under age 65 who qualify for Medicare because of disability. Current Blue Cross and Blue Shield members under age 65 who qualify for Medicare under the disability provision should contact the Plans about converting their coverage to the Medicare Supplemental Program.

The Blue Cross and Blue Shield Medicare Supplemental Program combines with Medicare to provide broad hospital and medical care protection at low cost. Medicare covers most hospital and medical expenses for persons enrolled in the program. The Blue Cross and Blue Shield Medicare Supplemental Program helps pay most of the deductible and co-insurance features built into the federal program.

Anyone eligible for Medicare may enroll in this special Blue Cross and Blue Shield program by contacting their nearest Blue Cross and Blue Shield office.

SODALITY TO MEET

The Sodality of St. Joseph's Church will hold its regular monthly meeting on March 31 at 8 p.m. in the Parish Hall.

Following the business meeting, a blind bingo will be held for members at the cost of 25c per member.

All members are urged to attend.

Mathias Opposes "Marriage Tax"

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, Jr. (R-Md.) has called for an amendment to the proposed tax rebate to prevent unfair treatment of married couples in which both spouses are wage earners. The amendment would allow couples who now get one rebate based on a high combined income to be eligible for two rebates, computed on their separate incomes.

"The rebate plan, as passed by the House and approved by the Senate Finance Committee, would continue the unfortunate inequity which amounts to a 'marriage tax,'" Mathias said.

"Just as present tax laws impose higher taxes on the income of two wage earners who are married to each other, so does the rebate penalize them in comparison with rebates for two single persons earning the same incomes."

The bill at present calls for a single rebate, based on the combined income. Since the two incomes are combined, and the rebate is based on a single higher figure, the couple does not get the full advantage of two rebates, based on lower figures, which would apply if they were unmarried wage earners.

The Mathias amendment would permit couples to compute the difference in rebates between their joint return and the rebates allowed if each were permitted to file as a single taxpayer. The difference may be claimed as a tax credit on the next year's joint return. Senator Mathias noted that allowing the difference to be claimed as a tax credit next year on their 1975 income avoids complications in this year's rebate distribution while making the rebate more fair to couples.

"There is no reason why our tax laws should continue to provide financial incentives against marriage," Senator Mathias added. He has previously supported amendments to eliminate similar discrimination against two-earner couples in the 1-cent tax structure.

Beef 'n' Beans, Rocky Mountain Style

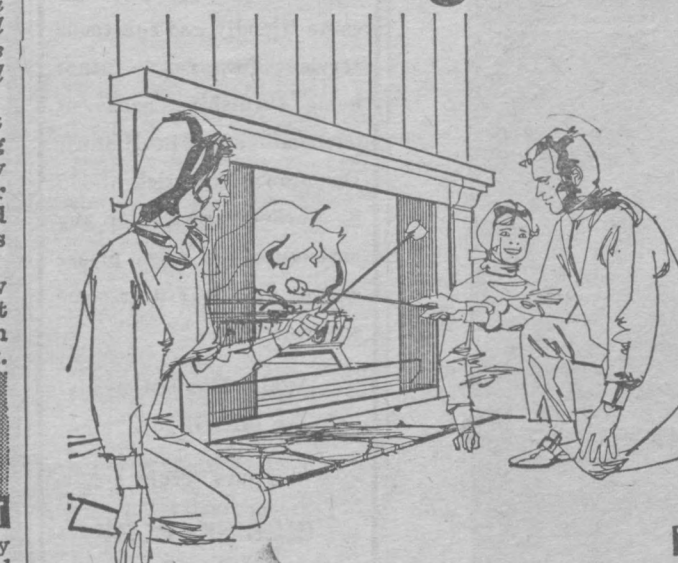

This Pinto Bean Pot is a recipe to be lazily-simmered in a Dutch oven or in the popular slow-cook electric pots, forgotten for hours. Its origin is in the Rocky Mountain region where, because of unexcelled growing conditions, these buff-colored, dappled-with-brown Pinto beans are grown.

Beef 'n' Beans
2 cups Pinto beans
6 cups water
3/4 to 1 pound lean beef, cut in 1/2-inch cubes
1/4 pound diced salt pork
2 8-ounce cans tomato sauce (2 cups)
1/4 cup diced green pepper
1 cup chopped onion
3 cloves minced garlic
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon crushed dried oregano

Soak rinsed beans overnight in measured amount of water. Or bring the water to the boiling point. Add beans; boil 2 minutes. Cover and let stand 1 hour. Bring beans and soaking water to the boiling point. Reduce heat; simmer beans 1 1/2 hours. Add remaining ingredients. Again simmer for 1 1/2 hours or until beef and beans are tender, stirring occasionally. Water or beef stock may be added. Makes 8 to 10 hearty servings.

Serve with a tossed green salad, hot rolls or garlic-buttered French bread and not much else. This dish can change completely by using chili powder to suit the taste instead of oregano. It freezes well. Dry beans are the richest common source of proteins among foods of vegetable origin. By adding to the bean dish some meat, even a little of the animal proteins, you have a good protein team.

Have a hearth

The scarcity of mortgage funds for home buyers is causing many families to consider remodeling or enlarging their present homes, rather than buying a new one. Fortunately, an unfinished basement or breezeway can be converted into an enlarged family living area for less money than you might think.

When remodeling or expanding your present home, it's easy to include a real wood-burning fireplace in your plans. Whether you plan on being a do-it-yourself home remodeler or engaging the services of a contractor, factory-made built-in fireplaces will cost only about one-half that of a conventional masonry unit. A free-standing fireplace will cost even less.

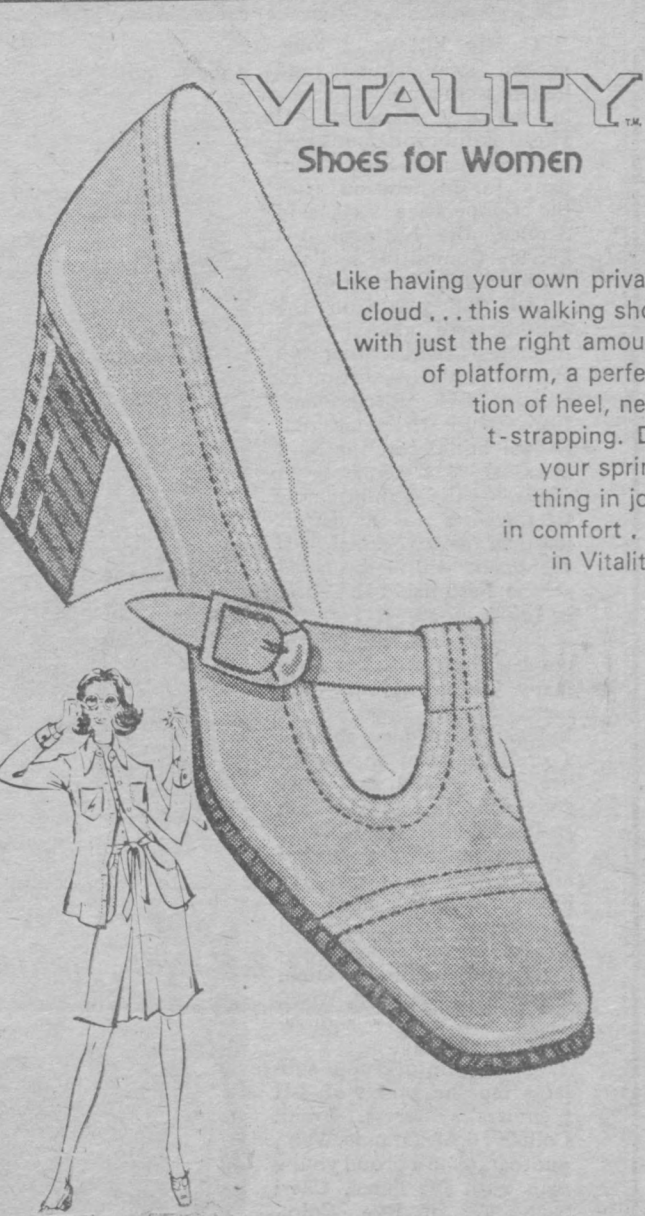

In one week-end, an average home handyman can install a Heatilator® built-in fireplace. All he needs are common hand tools, some 2 x 4 studs for framing in the fireplace, and material for enclosing a built-in unit. Many different finishing and facing treatments can be used including wallboard, mirrors, stone, marble or paneling. So you can have a fireplace setting ranging from the avant-garde "ultra-modern" to colonial, matching other room furnishings and decor.

A free-standing fireplace requires even less installation time. They are available as conical or rectangular shapes in a wide variety of factory-applied colors. Either type of fireplace comes with all necessary components and easy-to-follow installation instructions. Many building supply outlets or fireplace centers have both types of fireplaces in stock. So you can have a wood-burning fireplace installed and working quicker and at less cost than you might imagine. Why not send out those invitations for a real house warming party now and order that fireplace you've always wanted but didn't think you could afford.

For further information on installation instructions, write to: Heatilator Fireplace, a division of Vega Industries, Inc., 50 West Saunders St., Mt. Pleasant, Iowa 52641.

TECHNOLOGY TODAY & TOMORROW

LITTLE KNOWN FACTS THAT AFFECT US

IT'S THE LITTLE THINGS THAT COUNT

It doesn't take much to make big changes in our way of life, it seems. A tiny "computer on a chip" called the microprocessor, no bigger than the slice from a pencil eraser, can actually reduce the human capacity for many day-to-day logical decisions to tabletop machine capability and adapt this capability to virtually every complex instrumentation, control and communications function.

More than just chips off the old block of computers, miniaturized microprocessors and their equally impressive peripherals, working through minicomputers, can practically end checkout lines in supermarkets by tracking purchases, controlling inventories, totaling billing and verifying credit. They can reduce irksome delays at airline ticket counters as they help print out various alternatives to complex travel plans almost instantaneously; and aid in the creation of automotive equipment that senses danger and warns the driver of impending road hazards and mechanical difficulties. Microprocessors can become a part of home appliances that almost think for themselves.

Many scientists are calling these little wonders the major technological achievement of the 1970's, and the basis for a new era of electronic design and applications that will literally and economically place the use and benefits of computer technology in the hands of adults and children alike.

Microprocessors and a family of interrelated parts currently are being offered to industry by Motorola Inc. in limited production quantities. Visible results of their effect are already emerging, but it will probably take the better part of the decade for microprocessors to enter every major industry as the fundamental electronics element, and for the full impact of this technology to become apparent.

These mini-sized products are destined to play a major role in everyone's future lifestyle.

NEWS

FOR HOMEOWNERS

Light-in-weight, low-in-price and at home with a huge variety of jobs, the new Remington electric chain saw is well on its way to becoming one of the handiest power tools found in any home workshop.

Called "Limb N'Trim," the new product carries the lowest price in the chain saw market, $34.95-almost the cost of a weekend's rental of a traditional chain saw market - 6 3/4 lbs! It's double insulated for safety and has a virtually unbreakable motor and gear housing molded from space-age LEXAN resin.

The high performance product makes fast work of limbing, trimming or cutting trees up to 16" in thickness. Also, it's well-suited for building fences, lawn furniture, plus a wide variety of home improvements or carpentry projects in the workshop.

Wherever it's used, the Remington Limb N'Trim is designed with rough-tough handling in mind. Its housing, of LEXAN® resin, the same material used in professional football helmets, contributes both to its outstanding strength and light weight.

The double insulation aspect of the new electric chain saw removes the problem of proper grounding with an external source. This extra measure of safety is made possible through proper shielding of the motor and the fact that LEXAN® resin is self-insulating. However, strict adherence to proper operating procedures and safety measures as outlined in the operating manual should be followed at all times.

Adding to the efficient nature of the durable product, a manual oiler makes lubrication a simple matter of pushing an oil button with the thumb. As with safety precautions, proper lubrication practices should be followed to insure trouble-free operation.

The Limb N'Trim, although durable, is not designed for all-day big-production tree felling or heavy log cutting. Larger Remington chain saws, designed for that type of work should be used.

Designed and manufactured by DESA Industries, Inc., Power Products Division, the new product is available through hardware stores, building supply dealers, mass merchandisers and regular retail outlets throughout the United States and Canada.

4-H Member Photos Exhibited Nationally

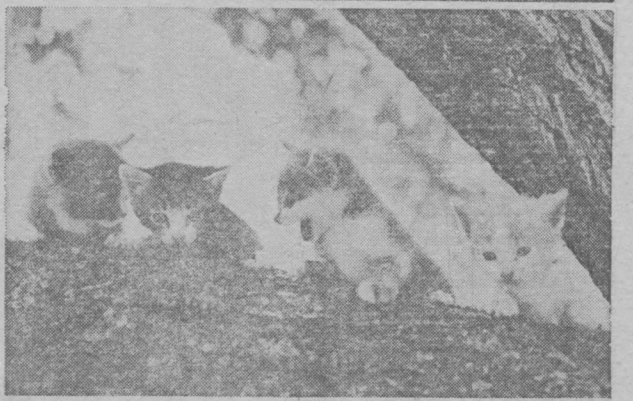

Cuddly kittens, a long-necked swan, horses and heifers were among the stars in the first National 4-H Photo Exhibition sponsored by Eastman Kodak Company in cooperation with the Cooperative Extension Service, the National 4-H Service Committee and the National 4-H Foundation.

All 230 prints in the exhibit were taken by 4-H members representing 39 states and a cross-section of creative 4-H photographers from 9 to 18 years old. Shown initially at the 53rd National 4-H Congress in Chicago, the exhibit now is traveling to numerous national and regional 4-H events and will be displayed at the National 4-H Center in Washington.

Subjects of the photographs illustrate the love many 4-H'ers have for animals. Sherri Clements of Independence, Mo., showed a cruising swan in one of her photos and two apes conversing in another. Pam Bailey, 16, of Douglas, Kans., photographed four worried kittens perched on a tree branch. John Robinson, 16, of Sperry, Okla., pictured a girl on a fence feeding her horse. And William Peterson of Madison, Wisc., bagged an elusive squirrel with his camera.

Other photographic subjects ran the gamut of 4-H members' interest. Frank Collier, 16, of Laramie, Wyo., photographed a proud young man with his horse, Cheri Dale, 17, of Rye, Colo., pictured a 4-H member helping cheer retirees and Dann Blackwood, 17, of Danville, Vt., photographed the textures of objects on his family's farm.

To most of the enthusiastic exhibit-goers at 4-H Congress, the display clearly accomplished its purpose of showcasing 4-H members' photographic accomplishments, improving the public's understanding of 4-H and locating and utilizing photographs which

HEALTH VIEWS

HOW TO CONQUER NERVOUS TENSION

Americans are a busy, ambitious people, moving at a rapid demanding pace. This high-pressure creates abnormal tensions in otherwise healthy people engulfed in an ever-increasing technological society.

How do you know you are suffering from tension? Watch for these signs.

1. Do you talk extra loud, extra fast, in a higher pitch than normal?
2. Do you have a "wash-board forehead"? Occasional frowning is a normal reaction for a person under control — but it can be a sign of mounting tension.
3. How is your posture? When you lie down, check your neck and shoulders for tightness. Does the small of your back relax into the comfort of your bed...or does it stay tense and rigid? Do you have difficulty falling asleep or do you awake very early?

When your neck, back, shoulder, abdominal, pelvic or thigh muscles are taut, they may pull your spine out of normal alignment. Psychic stresses, as well as physical and chemical stresses, can cause misalignments of vertebrae compounding nerve tissue insults and consequent aches, pains, and functional disturbances. Serious disorders can be the result.

Nervous tension creates physical as well as mental problems, harnessing human potential. If you find yourself irritable or constantly "on edge" and not easily able to relax or to concentrate, it would be wise to consult a doctor of chiropractic. He is highly skilled in correcting spinal misalignments, reducing spinal tension, and aiding the restoration of normal nerve function to all vital organs of the body. In addition, the doctor of chiropractic can recommend a thorough program for releasing tension, developing your ability to relax, and more adequately coping with environmental stress.

On March 1, a birthday dinner and celebration was held at the Rolando Inn in honor of the birthdays of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Little, Emmitsburg. The party was given by their family. Mr. and Mrs. Little are the proud parents of ten children and eleven grandchildren, all of whom attended the celebration.

Children and their families attending were: Richard Little and Pam McNellie; Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Hewitt, Michele and Scott; Mrs. Jean Orndorff, Andy, Tina, Doug and Brian; Mr. and Mrs. Larry Little, Billy and Karen; Mr. Francis Grimm and Mrs. Joyce Dewees, Stacey and Angie; Mr. and Mrs. David Smith; Mr. and Mrs. Karl Smith, Melanie and Amy; Mr. David Little and Kathy Brice; Miss Beth Little; Miss Elaine Little and Denny Ebaugh.

After the dinner celebration, the family went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Little where a birthday cake and other refreshments were served.

The couple received many lovely gifts.

Floral Open House Success At Cozy

Nearly 1,000 people attended the Cozy Bud 'N Vase Shoppe Open House this past Sunday. They marveled at the hundreds of Mums, Easter Lilies, Hydrangeas, Gardenias, Pocketbook Plants, Hyacinths, Tulips, and various green plants and dish gardens.

The display refrigerator was attractively arranged with beautiful floral displays of art created by the talented Cozy designers.

Mrs. Bea Cornwell, the shop manager, along with the staff members, answered many questions and greeted the people.

Winner of the FTD Happy Nest door prize was Victoria Uhl of Moser Rr., Thurmont. Mollie Copenhaver of Emmitsburg, won an artificial spring arrangement.
