Most Anything At A Glance

- By Abigail -

It looks like our pool contractor is out to keep his word. During the last couple of weeks, he's had his crews working hard in an effort to complete the project by the Fourth of July.

Already the footers have been laid, and pretty soon, that large depression in the earth will become the shell for the pool. Keep up the good work!

Keeping my ear to the ground, as I'm known to do, I sometimes come up with more than just dirty ears! I heard some provocative comments recently that I feel compelled to share.

Seems there's at least one local businessman who'd like to see our police department expanded to permit 24-hour police protection by our town force. This is not a new idea, I admit. The subject was broached at a town council meeting several months back, if you recall.

However, this businessman feels the presence of a policeman—around the clock—is the best possible deterrent to criminal behavior. I don't think anyone will argue that point.

As the system operates now, State Police must cover Frederick County during the morning and early afternoon hours, and while they're always quick to respond, they cannot be as effective as the local cop on duty. Then, too, we've heard our police officers lament that they must take offenders to Frederick — and leave the town unprotected for several hours in that event.

Of course, to hire even one more deputy would be costly, as our commissioners remind us. Nonetheless, it's "food for thought," and perhaps I'll get a few more opinions on the subject soon.

Congratulations to all the winners in the art contest supporting the "Salute to Emmitsburg." Shaun Higgins and Kathleen LaCroce won first places and each received a $25 U. S. Savings Bond thanks to the VFW and Lions Club.

With all the entries from Emmitsburg School and Mother Seton School it must have been hard for the judges to choose. Thanks kids, for all the talent and enthusiasm you've shown.

All the talent and enthusiasm is on display, incidentally, at the Frederick County Square Mall. As the Post said yesterday, "The display is a proud civic statement as well as a demonstration of artistic ability." Both children and adults have made the "Salute to Emmitsburg" a success.

Yes, a lot of folks take pride in our town, and it's that feeling that gets things done.

Repeat Mt. Musical Next Weekend

Those who missed the original musical, "Dickens," held at Mount Saint Mary's College in February will have a second chance to see repeat performances to be held during Parents Weekend, May 2 and 3.

Written and scored by two Mount professors, the musical played to packed houses in February and was enthusiastically received by area critics. Author Phillip E. Wyckdick, a three-time Emmy Award winner and now a professor in the Mount's Fine Arts Department, will travel to London this summer to make arrangements about producing the play there. Music for the production was composed by Lewis W. McAllister, Chairman of the Fine Arts Department and musical director for Sock 'N Buskin, the campus drama society.

A musical biography of Charles Dickens, the prolific writer of Victorian England, the play is historically factual without being cumbersome. It combines song, humor and dance in a delightful tour of nineteenth-century London.

After researching the life of Dickens, Wyckdick comments, "I fell in love with Dickens. He had such energy. He was continually writing but still had a full social life."

In keeping with that description, the musical portrays Dickens as a charming rogue and successful man-about-town, who is adored by Londoners in the rousing opening number, "It's by Boz and Phiz." A song sung later by Dickens, "What Is It I Want?," focuses on the key conflict of the play, namely the authors felt frustration that in spite of fame and fortune he is missing something in life. In the course of his career he turns from his wife, Kate, and finds fleeting satisfaction in a love affair with Ellen Ternan. Neither the affair nor his success as a writer and actor give sense of fulfillment he seeks. At the play's end as he sings "Great Expectations," Dickens has not resolved his frustrations, but neither has he given up the search.

Performances of the production on Friday, May 2, will be at 8 p.m. and on Saturday, May 3, at 1 p.m. in Flynn Hall. Tickets are $1.00 and may be reserved by calling Flynn Hall (447-6122, ext. 310).

Inflation For Funds

Once again it is time for the Vigilant Hose Co. to ask the people of the Emmitsburg area to help in the support of the Fire Department.

In launching the annual fund drive for 1975, W. Larry Little, fund drive chairman, stated: "We are faced with the problems of inflation. We are well aware of the problems of rising costs. Our operating expenses have risen considerably over last year. Since we rely on local contributions for a substantial part of our operations, we sincerely hope that each one will see a greater need to contribute as generously as in past years. Also, this year we must replace one of our trucks, which will put a debt of nearly $50,000 on us. We appreciate the support of past years and hope that even with the inflation problem, we can meet our goal of $8,500."

"Our letters will be in the mail soon and for your convenience, a postage paid return envelope will be enclosed for your donation."

Local Chorus To Sing In Rome

About eight years ago, some 25 men and women who regularly sang in the choir of the Protestant churches in Emmitsburg, decided to get together weekly for the pure joy of making music among themselves and for the pleasure of others. They called their group the Community Choir of Emmitsburg and, in that first year, gave two concerts directed by Diehl Ackerman of the local United Presbyterian Church.

Subsequently, the Choir expanded its membership to include all denominations and anyone who shared its philosophy about singing. Eventually the Choir's name was changed to the Emmitsburg Community Chorus.

Today, spurred by an event which is starting to make Emmitsburg a household word in the United States, the Chorus is on its way to international recognition. On April 12, the Emmitsburg Community Chorus was invited by the Vatican to sing during the canonization ceremonies of Blessed Elizabeth Ann Seton at St. Peter's Basilica on September 14, 1975.

Reverend Sylvester Taggart, C.M., Vice Postulator for the Cause of Mother Seton, who is incidentally a member of the Chorus, said that the Community Chorus will supplement the music of the Sistine Choir. The latter will sing the major portions of the Mass. Directed by Sister Jane Marie Perrot, D.C., the Emmitsburg Chorus will lead the congregation as it alternates with the Sistine Choir in the Ordinary of the Mass. The Chorus has approval to be accompanied by its own organist.

Father Taggart said that a tape of the Chorus had been heard by Vatican officials who gave their approval for the Chorus to sing approximately one-half hour before the Canonization Mass, at Communion time and at the end of the Mass. The texts of the congregational songs will be sent to Rome to be incorporated into the liturgy booklet so that the entire congregation may join in the singing.

In addition, a resident of Keymar, Maryland, will be honored at one of the Triduum of Masses for the newly canonized Saint Elizabeth Ann Seton. On September 16 or 17, at the Church of St. John and Paul in Rome, the Chorus will premier a Mass composed by Lewis McAllister in honor of Mother Seton. Professor of fine arts at Mount Saint Mary's College, Emmitsburg, McAllister is also a member of the Chorus and substitutes as director in the absence of Sister Jane Marie.

Music Director of the Emmitsburg Community Chorus for the past seven years, Sister Jane Marie is Executive Director of the National Catholic Music Educators Association whose national office is located in Hyattsville, Maryland.

In the intervening years since its founding, membership in the Emmitsburg Community Chorus has grown and occasionally reaches a total of 60, according to Mrs. Anna Margaret Martin of Emmitsburg, vice president of the Chorus and one of its charter members. The roster of regular members numbers 35-40, though the names change as some members leave the area and others move in. The founding philosophy, however, remains constant: weekly meetings for the pleasure of singing. Prospective members learn of the Chorus from its members, by attending a concert, or through occasional notices in the local paper. They are amateurs from neighboring communities and represent all walks of life, professionals and non-professionals, laymen and religious. Over the years, the Chorus has advanced in quality, stature, musicianship and maturity of performance. Guest musicians are often invited to perform at larger concerts.

In addition to annually scheduled spring and Christmas concerts, the Emmitsburg Community Chorus occasionally performs with others, as they did in fall 1973 with the Gettysburg Civic Chorus for a Sunday evening concert at the Cathedral of Mary Our Queen in Baltimore. In 1972 and 1973, the Chorus accepted an invitation to sing at the Annapolis Fine Arts Festival. This coming Saturday, April 26, they will sing a candlelight concert at the Bruton Parish.

An Old Look For New Furniture

If you're like many home-makers, you'd like the look of fine old colonial furniture for your home, yet you're not prepared to pay the prices usually asked for authentic antiques. Fortunately, a good secretary can help you, especially if it's a reproduction of the old fashioned kind. This one features the charm of graceful Queen Anne styling. Other pieces in the collection possess the strong lines and unique "spiral rope" motifs of the handsome Jacobean period that early American craftsmen loved to make. These elegant English motifs, with their sea-change touch of colonial cleverness have been recreated by the talented designers at Thomasville in a collection called FOUNTAINHEAD in native American pine and finished in a sunbleached light pine or a warm fruitwood, toned honey pine.

If you combine the secretary with a couple of coordinated end tables and upholstered pieces and add a few old-fashioned effects, such as classic china dogs on the secretary's shelves, a gorgeous Georgian-style teapot, and drapery done in a country floral print, you can turn any old room into a New World room that will look lovely for years to come.

Congressman Goodloe Byron
Maryland—Sixth District

The following questions were typical of the kind asked of me in recent weeks. Letters should be sent to me, c/o U. S. House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515.

Have unemployment benefits been extended to cover a longer period of time?

Under the recently passed tax cut bill, there has been an extension of the maximum period of benefits—from 52 to 65 weeks—for weeks of unemployment ending before July 1, 1975.

Where can I obtain a Medicare payment form?

A "Request for Medicare Payment" form, also called Form 1490, is available at most doctors' offices or your local social security office. This form must be filled out and submitted in order for Medicare to pay for services of doctors and suppliers which are covered by your medical insurance.

When will the tax rebate checks be mailed to citizens?

Rebate checks, ranging from $100 to $200, will be mailed to taxpayers in May and June.

The Commerce Department is currently developing intermediate objectives for attainment of this energy efficiency goal.

An electric mixer has become a kitchen "must" say Kitchen-Aid appliance researchers. Two of the company's food preparers not only do regular mixing, but grind grain, mix and knead bread dough. All three mixers grind meat, slice and shred vegetables and even make tomato and apple sauce.

MARINE AIR RESERVE TRAINS EXPERTS

The Ready Air Ground Team
A member of a Marine Air Reserve Training Detachment knows very well he's still in the Marine Corps when his weekend drill starts with muster and physical training. Then it's usually into the classroom or the hangar to practice what must be perfect: the maintenance of Marine aircraft. Jet engines, ultra sensitive electronics equipment, hydraulic systems, landing gear—all must be examined and all must check out beyond a decimal point of doubt.

Pilots, too, have much preliminary work to do. In the briefing room, the day's mission is thoroughly explained and discussed. They examine weather conditions in a radius of hundreds of miles. Activity of all other aircraft in the vicinity is studied. It has come to my attention that airlines' liability for baggage loss has been increased. Would you mind verifying this for me?

Last month the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) proposed new rules that would increase airlines' liability for loss, damage or delay of passenger baggage from $500 to $750.

Please explain the limitations of the tax credit on new home purchases?

The tax credit, which was written into the tax cut bill, allows the buyer of a qualified home to subtract 5 per cent of the purchase price from his federal income taxes. However, there are several qualifying restrictions: 1) The maximum tax saving is $2,000; 2) Construction must have begun before March 26, the day Congress cleared the tax cut bill; 3) The purchaser must agree to buy the house by signing a binding contract before January 1, 1976; 4) The buyer and seller must settle their transaction and the new owner occupy the house after March 12 of this year and before January 1, 1977; and 5) No second homes or vacation retreats are eligible.

Action For The Elderly

By
Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, Jr.
If old-age is not to become, for increasing numbers of Americans, a kind of living death, we must execute a 180-degree turn in our attitude toward senior citizens and in the Administration's fiscal year 1976 budget.

This Congress, as a first step, has made it clear that a retrenchment in support for older Americans will not be tolerated.

We denied the Administration's attempt to increase the price of food stamps. We also rejected the Administration's proposed rescission of $42.4 million in the current budget for the Older Americans Act.

This proposal would have prevented about 50,000 elderly citizens from receiving daily hot, nutritious meals.

The 94th Congress, however, must pay far greater attention to the needs and problems of the elderly. We must reset the priorities in the Administration's 1976 budget.

This Bicentennial Congress can demonstrate its attitude toward today's older Americans by acting immediately to insure the adequacy of Social Security benefits in this time of prolonged inflation. We also must guarantee the financial integrity and long-range soundness of the Social Security program for tomorrow's older Americans.

The Congress should reject any attempt to place a 5 per cent ceiling on the Social Security cost-of-living increase scheduled for July. We also should vote down the Administration's proposed legislation which would place additional financial burdens on the elderly toward the payment of their Medicare costs.

We must extend and strengthen the Older Americans Act so that communities may continue to provide much-needed transportation, employment, education, housing, legal and home health services to older Americans; so that elderly citizens who can not afford to eat adequately, or who are unable to cook for themselves or buy their own food, will still be able to enjoy decent meals in wholesome settings with friends and loved ones.

Let it be said that this was the Congress that fashioned laws which guaranteed economic security for the elderly; removed artificial barriers against older Americans who wish to continue to work; provided the necessary increase in the amount of suitable housing for older citizens; and enacted comprehensive mental and physical health services for the aged, including coverage for home care, preventive services, and out-of-hospital drugs and medicines.

But just as important as the laws we enact, let us as a Nation begin to realize how much we need the wisdom and compassion and understanding that older adults have to give. We owe them and ourselves that much.

Summer Job? Get S.S. Number First

Students and other people planning to get summer jobs should apply without delay for a social security number if they don't already have one, according to William E. Goodman, social security district manager in Frederick.

"Some employers won't hire you unless you have a social security number," Goodman said. "Delaying your application might prevent you from being hired or cause you to lose time and money."

People can get information about applying for a social security number by calling or writing any social security office.

"You should apply for your social security number at least several weeks before you need it for a job," Goodman said. A worker builds disability, survivors, retirement, and Medicare protection by work and earnings credited to his social security number. He gets credit if he's paid $50 or more in a 3-month calendar quarter in work covered by social security. More than nine out of 10 jobs are covered by social security.

"Your social security number is yours alone and remains the same for life," Goodman noted. "When you get a job, be sure your employer copies your name and number correctly from your social security card to his records." People applying for a social security number for the first time may be asked to prove their age, identity, and citizenship.

The Frederick Social Security Office is at 912 East Street. The phone number is 663-5141.

LOOKING AHEAD

By George S. Benson, President, National Education Program
Searcy, Arkansas

Big Government —
Big Spending
Our Federal Government is growing by leaps and bounds.

One measure of its growth is the rate of its spending. It took 173 years from the adoption of the Constitution for the annual federal budget to reach $100 billion. Nine years later it reached the $200 billion level. Four years later (1974) we are topping $300 billion. By the time we finish celebrating the Bicentennial, it could well have topped the $200 billion mark. Has this kind of growth in the size of our national government brought the people of America the kind of government they want?

If the size of this year's budget is frightening, the "uncontrollable" portion of it should scare us into action. According to one Congressman, "We are committed to so many programs that continue year after year that fully three-quarters of the budget is considered "uncontrollable" in the sense that it is nearly immune to congressional review." One example of this is the budget of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Assuming no new programs are enacted and increases in benefit levels are held to five percent this year, the HEW budget for the next year will be near $120 billion. Can America Afford it?

Many economists simply have thrown up their hands and admit they do not know what to do about inflation, recession and the growth of government. All agree that total government spending, federal, state and local, is now outstripping the growth of the total economy. Many are warning that if present conditions continue, we will not be able to maintain the free enterprise system, but will have to change to socialism. They point out that we are not paying for this "bigness," but are borrowing against future generation's ability to pay. Turning to socialism would increase our poverty, but also increase the power of Government to make us endure it.

Deficit Budgets In Peacetime

In years gone by, particularly before the early 1930's, there were only two excuses for deficit budgets considered valid. The most valid was war. A bad depression was the other. Now, deficit budgets have become a way of life, year in and year out. In the past 10 years, while the government was running up $105 billion in official budget deficits, other Federal agencies such as the Export-Import Bank, the Federal Home Loan Bank, the Environmental Financing Authority, the Postal Service Fund, etc., were borrowing even more—$142 billion. The results pushed up interest rates, reduced the amount of investment capital and increased inflation.

Government Spending Means Loss Of Freedom

When government at all levels is spending 43.5 percent of every dollar Americans make, or in other words, when Americans are paying an average of 43.5 percent of their income in taxes, then almost half of all our economic decisions are being made for us by government. In addition, we are regulated in a myriad of other ways by agencies of government. Can economic decisions be separated from personal decisions? When someone other than ourselves make decisions about our money, are they not making the decisions about our lives? Is this the America we want?

Is there any connection between the loss of individual responsibility in the spending of our money to the growth of the welfare state, the crime increase, the increase in babies born out of wedlock? Finally, when government has grown so big that it spends half our money for us and makes half our decisions, can it keep from becoming "Big Brother?" In order to exercise such responsibility, doesn't it have to spy, keep files, listen in on our telephones and keep records of our personal habits, likes, dislikes and associates? Really, how else can a keeper keep his charges happy?

Slow Cookers That Do Many Tasks

Now there are electric frypans that also are slow cookers.

If you are interested in the great tastes and tenderness slow cookers offer but concerned about investing in a single purpose appliance or about space for storage of a product that is limited, this version is worth looking into.

Electric frypans are probably the most versatile of kitchen appliances, doing tasks from baking cakes to roasting meat, making stews, or, as the name indicates, frying foods.

They lower your electric bill in most of these uses. For example, it takes 2.47 times as much electricity to bake a cake in an electric oven as it takes to bake it in a frypan. Making pizza from a mix takes three times as much energy in an oven as the frypan uses.

Now, through addition of a ceramic slow-cooking liner, the versatile electric frypan becomes a slow cooker, too. The lid fits the ceramic liner as well as the frypan and the entire unit stores as a frypan.

One maker, Sunbeam, even sells the ceramic liner separately so that present large-size frypans of that brand can be converted to slow cookers at much lower cost than purchasing the entire crocker frypan.

WHITE HOUSE SILVER

The New White House silver service by Gorham is in the "King Charles" design first introduced in 1894. In the style of the popular English Kings patterns imported during the 18th and 19th centuries, this original Gorham design was reproduced for the White House silver service from original dies.

WASHINGTON—The new sterling service to be used in the White House is Gorham's beautiful "King Charles" design.

According to Raymond J. Artabasy, Sr. Vice President of Gorham, the much needed new sterling was ordered by the White House last summer and has been delivered. There are 3,434 pieces in the "King Charles" design which will accommodate as many as 130 persons for luncheons or dinners.

The new service is in the English Kings style similar to flatware imported from England in the 18th and 19th centuries. Gorham created their own variations of the style for many American families. It can still be seen in the inherited silver displayed in several historic houses in Charleston (S.C.) and other early American cities.

The White House silver was made from the original dies found in Gorham archives in Providence (R.I.) and is available nationally in leading jewelry and department stores.

According to Curator Clement Conger, the White House needed new sterling...a prestigious service historically correct to the period of the House. It will be used in place of the silver originally bought by Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, no longer sufficient to accommodate present needs.

ABOUT ENERGY

GOOD NEWS: THEY'RE TURNING GARBAGE INTO ENERGY

One of these days, when you throw something away, you may be helping to solve the energy problem! All over America, community leaders are thinking about ways to turn garbage into energy and re-usable material.

Among the most promising projects is a new $18-million resource recovery system to process all the municipal solid waste of Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Milwaukee, with a population of over 700,000, is the largest city in the U.S. to enter into a long-term contract for a systematic solid waste recycling program. For American Can Company, the Milwaukee facility will mark the first full-scale installation by its Americology business unit. This unit was formed in early 1973 to consolidate the company's capabilities and to offer a commercial solution to the growing problem of solid waste disposal.

Under terms of the 15-year resource recovery contract, American Can assumes full responsibility for disposal of Milwaukee's municipally-collected solid waste starting January 1, 1976. The agreement calls for the company to operate a 1,200-ton-per-day resource recovery facility on a site within the economic re-development area of the city in the Menomonee River Valley. Initial resource recovery is scheduled for mid-1976. The facilities will consist of a modern processing building enclosing all operations, and a landscaped site, designed to be an attractive addition to Milwaukee's industrial community. The Americology system will be capable of handling all of the 270,000 tons of municipal solid waste presently generated within the city annually, with additional capacity for processing up to 400,000 tons.

Shredded cans, appliances and other pieces of iron and steel are sorted out of trash and used, as in this mill, to make new steel.

The system will isolate the recoverable and recyclable materials in refuse-utilizing shredding, air classification, and magnetic and electro-mechanical separation to enable recovery of up to 80 per cent of the total incoming solid waste.

Currently, all of the city's refuse is used for landfill.

Materials recoverable from the total refuse stream are estimated at 7 per cent bundled newspaper and corrugated board, 7 per cent ferrous metals, 5 per cent glassy aggregate, and 1/2 per cent aluminum. The largest portion of the refuse, 50 to 60 per cent, is a combustible fuel product suitable as a boiler fuel in the generation of electric power. This material will be developed and used as an alternate fuel at the Oak Creek, Wisconsin, generating station.

Milwaukee Mayor Henry W. Maier has said the contract reflects "our unwavering commitment to resource recovery—to removing 'waste' from solid waste."

A major factor in the selection of the American Can system over other systems proposed, according to Alderman John R. Kalwitz, chairman of the Finance Committee of the Milwaukee Common Council, was its unique combination of components that have been thoroughly tested and proved in actual use, thereby assuring taxpayers of Milwaukee the most economic and viable system available for disposal of solid waste and the recovery and marketing of valuable resources.

BUSINESS AND THE STOCK MARKET

No Quick Cure For High Unemployment

By Babson's Reports Inc., Wellesley Hills, Mass., April 24, 1975—Latest readings on the nation's employment situation give little reason for rejoicing, and the jobless picture is especially vexing. The best one can say at the moment is that the maximum thrust of new layoffs has been seen, now that the tidal wave of plant closings suffered in the autumn weeks of 1974 and in the forefront of the past winter has quieted. Also, there are fewer "scare" headlines in the media reciting the fearsome litany of businesses inflating the labor force with ploys being furloughed by the various companies.

Inventory Crunch Took Toll
While much of the blame for the decline in business and the consequent flood of layoffs was laid at the doorstep of double-digit rates in both credit costs and inflation, the real culprit was the broadly based inventory adjustment program which suddenly assumed near-panic proportions around the turn of the year. It is true, of course, that peak money rates and the paucity of credit supplies contributed to the problem along with the erosion of consumer purchasing power due to inflation. But to a large extent their roles were secondary to that of the inventory reduction program.

The automobile industry set the pattern when the first stages of the plunge in industrial activity began. The violent impact of the agony in this key industry would have been bad enough, but maladjustments also existed in other areas. In late 1973 and during much of the first half of 1974, fear of price inflation and shortages precipitated an unrealistic inventory accumulation. By the time more rational thinking returned and it had become clear that consumers could no longer spend freely, business inventory policy turned defensive and then eventually became a full-scale rout.

Light At Tunnel's End

The business picture at this point is still far from healthy. In fact, further slippage in industrial activity seems likely for the balance of the spring and probably well into summer. By and large, however, this will represent the last chapter in the inventory readjustment process, and it will probably be the prelude to a bottoming out of the long and painful recession.

But the Staff of Babson's Reports does not anticipate a rapid or smooth return to healthful economic conditions. There will be rough spots along the way. The tax rebate will help some, but not enough. Consumers still show no overwhelming desire to loosen their purse strings; sticky sales conditions continue to prevail in the market for new automobiles and consumer hard goods in general.

Job Opportunities Will Be Lean

Even though the economy were to show a further easing in the rate of descent and then display firm-to-higher tendencies next fall, the job market will offer slim pickings for quite some time. Recalls and new hirings will undoubtedly occur when buying revives and normal inventory replacement demand again takes hold, but at first surplus productive capacity will be utilized and the employment workweek lengthened. Also, after a traumatic recession, caution will deter broad-scale new hirings, as will continuing burdensome overhead expenses along with costly wage rates and fringe benefits. Growth In Labor Force

The current jobless problem reflects the expanding size of the civilian labor force as well as the recession. Babson's has stressed the growth in the manpower pool many times over the years. The full clout of the post-World War II baby boom is now upon us, inuating the labor force with inexperienced job seekers. And the high cost of education is forcing more high school graduates to at least postpone going on to college. Thus, the unemployment rate is not expected to peak until early summer, and then to recede only very slowly.

HOW YOU PROTECT A MINT

If you've ever looked wistfully at a nickel or dime as it whisked through your hands on its way to getting spent, maybe you've wished money really did grow on trees instead of being stamped out in a mint.

The first U.S. mint to manufacture lawful U.S. currency was established in Philadelphia in 1792, while George Washington was serving as President there. Today, in addition to one in Philadelphia, there are mints in San Francisco and Denver.

San Francisco's "Old Mint" is being restored as a National Historical Landmark to look exactly as it did when it was completed in 1874. But the restoration posed problems. Security had to be increased substantially because of the immense value of planned exhibits. The walls of the century-old building were strong enough to have withstood the 1906 earthquake, but the high, open windows had to meet Bureau of Mint requirements, which called for shatterproof material.

The architects found the answer in LEXAN® sheet, a virtually unbreakable, see-through plastic made by General Electric's Sheet Products section.

Chief architect John Sonthimer, A.I.A., says: "The material (LEXAN sheet) fulfilled all our requirements, namely that it helped provide security, but it's clear and open with no distracting wires or bars. We did consider wire glass, but rejected it immediately as too distracting visually to the original look of the Mint's windows. Also, we looked at bullet-proof glass, but it was too bulky and expensive."

Another concern was maintenance; that is, replacement of windows scratched by vandalism or improper washing. To minimize this, Sonth-

Henry H. Clifford money collection on display in San Francisco's "Old Mint."

LEXAN sheet covers to protect cases of valuable displays while allowing the public to view them without the interference of ugly bars or screens.

The biggest single exhibit is the private collection of Mr. Henry H. Clifford of Los Angeles, Calif., the largest private money collection in the country, which is valued at over $1.5 million and includes items such as a one-of-a-kind $50 gold piece worth $10,000 and a pocket watch with a chain of gold nuggets. It is covered with LEXAN sheet as a secure way to present it to the public, "not only for our own peace of mind but in order to obtain insurance," says Mrs. Olga Melko, public area administrator.

It would seem that LEXAN sheet, which has many home uses, is worth its weight in gold when it protects a mint.

Continuing the Bicentennial theme in the 1975 Stamp program, is a 10-cent stamp commemorating the Battles of Lexington and Concord, fought on April 19, 1775. These were the first battles of the Revolutionary War, beginning the action which ended in liberty and freedom for the new nation.

First Day of issue ceremonies were held at Lexington and Concord, Massachusetts, on April 19, 1975.

Designer Bradbury Thompson based the stamp design upon a painting by Henry Sandham, a painter of the period, entitled "Birth of Liberty." The painting was also the subject of a two-cent stamp issued in 1925 commemorating the 150th anniversary of the historic battles.

This stamp went on sale at our office on Monday, April 21, 1975.

MILLIONS OF JOBS TIED TO NON-ENERGY USES OF OIL

The energy shortage already has generated unfamiliar frustrations among most Americans via higher fuel prices, vacations close to home, cooler houses, and some product shortages. But oil means more than frustration to those people whose jobs directly or indirectly depend on our having enough of it.

"What if we suddenly ran out of oil. Though it can't happen, if it did, it would be more than a catastrophe," says Mobil Oil Corporation Consumer Affairs Advisor, Judi Hampton. "Everything would come to a halt because tens of thousands of vital products come from oil," she says. "Take lubricants, for example."

"Over 19 million Americans working in manufacturing industries would be thrown out of work immediately because all moving parts in machines require lubricants made from oil. Cars, buses, trucks, trains and planes would come to a screeching halt without lubricants. There wouldn't even be tires to roll on, since over 70 percent of the ingredients in tires come from oil, not to mention the oil-based asphalt on 90 percent of America's highways."

"Not only industry and transportation need oil," says Ms. Hampton. "Many other necessities or items that make life worth living come from petroleum. The ink on this page, for instance, the detergent used in getting clothes clean, the antibiotics that attack infec-

No Oil Means A Tin Cup. are the packaging materials that preserve food and seal in flavor. The cleaning solvent that gets the salad oil spots out of your tie, wax for the gleaming kitchen floor and the 'chew' in chewing gum. "All these products start with petroleum. That's why Mobil is looking for oil all around the world. And why we should be developing our own oil resources here at home."

YOUR VETERINARIAN SPEAKS

Anthrax—A Swift Killer

A farmer who finds one of his animals dead with blood trickling from its nose, eyes and other body openings may think that the animal has been struck down by lightning or heat stroke or poisoning.

According to the Maryland Veterinary Medical Association, the farmer should suspect another killer—anthrax.

Anthrax, one of the oldest and most dangerous of livestock diseases, is unpredictable, swift, vicious and highly contagious. It attacks all warm-blooded animals, including man. Sheep, cattle, horses and swine are particularly vulnerable.

Formerly, anthrax caused huge losses in many regions of this country. Now major outbreaks are rare, but the disease continues to appear and reappear.

An unexpected, mysterious death is often the first evidence that anthrax has struck a herd. An immediate diagnosis by a veterinarian is extremely important in order to prevent the disease from spreading to the remainder of the herd.

The bacteria that cause anthrax may be picked up in many ways. They can be transmitted from one animal to another by biting flies which are especially active in warm weather. However, the most common sources of the disease are contaminated water, feed, or soil, or infested streams or ponds. Anthrax bacteria may also be spread by soiled instruments, such as dehorning, or contaminated equipment, feed sacks or clothing. Anthrax outbreaks may follow floods which wash up old anthrax bacteria from the ground and from buried and diseased carcasses.

Animals stricken with anthrax usually show great excitement, then severe depression. An affected animal's body temperature rises and the animal often stands apart from the rest of the herd. Pregnant cows may abort. Hard breathing, trembling, staggering and convulsions usually occur before the animal eventually dies.

Although anthrax is a swift killer, a diseased animal may be saved if inoculated in time with anti-anthrax serum or antibiotics. However, the most effective guard against the disease is prevention. In areas where anthrax is known to occur, herds should be immunized annually before they are turned out to pasture.

When anthrax does occur in a herd, the apparently healthy animals should be separated from the sick animals, immunized and observed closely for signs of the disease.

Selection of vaccines, herd immunization and the establishment of preventive measures should be left to the veterinarian, since different geographical areas require different kinds and strengths.

Senior Citizen's Meeting April 15

The Emmitsburg Senior Citizens Club held its regular meeting on Tuesday, April 15, at 7:30 p.m. in the club rooms, with 46 members present.

The program opened with singing of old songs, accompanied by Ada Myers. Silent prayers were offered in memory of recently deceased members, followed by the Lord's Prayer.

The theme for the evening was an old fashioned party with everyone in by-gone fashions. Eight members responded splendidly in old costumes who were judged by Alma Jones and Joan Hurd, as follows:

Most original, Ada Myers; most classic, Mattie Glass; most unique, Alice Adelsberger; most elegant, Helen McNair; most colorful, Ruth Eyer; best dressed, Emma Eckrode; oldest, Loretta Shuff; and most sentimental, Mrs. Andrew Keilholz.

The president, Mrs. LaRue Harman, reminded the group of the Senior Prom, sponsored by GAP on Sunday, April 27, from 3 'til 5 p.m., and the trip to New Windsor by the Work Project Group, on April 30. A reminder was made regarding the coming bus trip to Washington and Virginia on May 8, at which time members will carry their own lunch and dinner will be at a stop on the way home. The bus leaves at 8 a.m.

Mrs. Norman Shriver, Sr., then showed slides from a trip to the Island of Cyprus and Turkey, which proved to be most interesting and informative.

Refreshments were served as the climax to a very pleasant evening.

Whole Wheat Date Cake

Dates — the fruit of the palm, that is — may be as old as mankind. But in this thoroughly modern recipe they blend with whole wheat flour, spices and brown sugar to make a rich, dark, moist cake. Bake your cake in a new, yet old-fashioned, bundt pan or 10-inch tube pan and sprinkle it with confectioners' sugar for a sweet no one can resist.

Good tasting and also good for you, that's what Whole Wheat Date Cake is. It's a sweet with lots of food value. Flour, usually in the form of bread, has been the main staple in the diet of countless civilizations. Now, enriched, it's better than ever. In addition to protein and carbohydrate, enriched whole wheat flours contain the B-vitamins — niacin, thiamine and riboflavin — plus the mineral, iron. Just for the nutrient record, dates contribute phosphorus, vitamin A and some calcium.

Whole Wheat Date Cake

1 cake
1 package (8 oz.) dates, chopped (about 2 cups)
1 cup water
1 cup butter
1½ cups enriched flour*
1½ cups whole wheat flour
2 tablespoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 cup packed light brown sugar
4 eggs, beaten
1 tablespoon vanilla extract

Cook dates, water and butter over low heat until caramel colored and thickened. Refrigerate to cool completely. Stir together dry ingredients. Add date mixture, eggs and vanilla all at once, stirring until well blended. Pour batter into greased bundt pan or 10-inch tube pan. Bake in preheated 350° oven 50 to 55 minutes. Cool 10 minutes. Remove from pan and cool completely on wire rack. Serve plain or sift confectioners' sugar on top.

*Spoon flour into dry measuring cup; level. Do not scoop.

Silver Fancy Garden Club Commemorates 21st Anniversary

"The purpose of the club shall be to promote interest in gardening and to work for the beautifying of the community and preservation of natural landmarks"—Article II of the by-laws.

In May 1954, at the suggestion of Mrs. Charles Shaughnessy, a group of women gathered at "Stonehurst," the home of Mrs. William Frailey of Emmitsburg, to organize a garden club. The original sixteen members were:

Mrs. E. L. Annan, Jr., Mrs. Frank M. Butler, Mrs. W. R. Cadle, Mrs. A. H. Carpenter, Mrs. Mary Coyne, Mrs. T. J. Frailey, Miss Rhoda Gillelan, Miss Ruth Gillelan, Miss Anna Hartman, Mrs. A. A. Koswick, Mrs. E. H. MacPherson, Mrs. W. G. Marshman, Mrs. Merle Rial, Mrs. A. G. Roberts, Mrs. C. B. Shaughnessy, and Mrs. Norman Taylor.

The name, "Silver Fancy," has an interesting and significant historical origin. That was the title given to a hundred acre tract of land that passed to William Emmet in 1798 for whom this Maryland town was named.

In 1957, under the sponsorship of the Carroll County Garden Club, Silver Fancy Garden Club was admitted to the Federated Garden Clubs of Maryland, and has frequently joined other clubs in workshop and flower shows and other projects that called for united effort.

The first flower show was held in 1958 in the old Shuff building (now Reave's Electric Co.) and the second show was in the Methodist Parish Hall. Mayor C. G. Frailey cut the ribbon to open the show.

The club membership is small enough to allow meetings to be held in the informal intimacy of private homes, conducive to good team work and understanding.

Thru the years the club has worked faithfully in the direction of their stated purpose. Urns and window boxes have been planted in Emmitsburg and Taneytown. The Taneytown pool has been landscaped and during the Christmas season, schools and hospitals have been decorated. Also library windows and private doorways. A Christmas workshop was held at Victor Cullen School for Boys and in the spring, club members planted their annual flower beds.

In Westminster, the Carroll County Farm Museum's woodland theatre was landscaped. Under the direction of Mrs. Robert Clingan, ferns, violets and bulbs were planted also rhododendron and other shrubs suited to the environment. This project won a Sears award.

Flower shows are an integral activity of garden clubs, and Silver Fancy has done its work well and many awards have been won. An outstanding show was "A Day at Antrim," in Taneytown, on Uniontown Road. Hundreds of people came to see the beautiful old house and the appropriate flower arrangements throughout. There was also an extensive arts and crafts display. Tea was served by costumed club members.

The "Flower and Art Shows" held in the garden of Mrs. James Baumgardner in Taneytown, have been most popular and have drawn many visitors.

In Emmitsburg the small park by the post office has been planted with shrubs and hundreds of bulbs also trees were planted in honor of Dr. Cadle and Dr. Morningstar.

Yearly programs continue to instruct and entertain and challenge club members with special emphasis on community and environmental needs.

Last May, the club celebrated its twentieth anniversary with a buffet luncheon at the home of charter member, Mrs. Thomas Frailey, in Emmitsburg. Three other charter members were present: Mrs. E. H. MacPherson, Mrs. Norman Taylor and Mrs. W. G. Marshman.

And, of course, garden clubs are interested in garden therapy. Nowhere is it more evident than in a gardeners own life. When one sits reading the depressing morning paper and as the level of the coffee in the cup goes down, so do one's spirits. But picking up one's trowel and garden gloves and going out into the garden with the sights and sounds and smells of spring, heals the soul and "all's well with the world" again.

The Silver Fancy Garden Club looks forward to the years ahead with renewed enthusiasm to achieving their goals.

THE FRUITS OF LOVE

There once was a couple, so the Roman poets tell us, whose love was great enough to survive all tests of time. So much so that the gods rewarded their fidelity by transforming them, when they reached old age, into a pair of stately trees whose limbs would forever intertwine. And from the fruit of these trees, the gods distilled a liqueur whose essence, it was said, would prolong the love of any who drank it.

Today, the hauntingly delicious liqueur, AMARETTO DI AMORE, still celebrates their everlasting union. Made by Garnier and imported by Fleischmann Distilling Corporation, it allows modern couples to taste just how delightful the legendary fruits of love can be.

Consumer Review

by Bruce Bennett

Supersize Beds for Today's Homemakers

While waterbeds seem destined to become a bit of 1970's nostalgia, long-range consumer acceptance of king and queen size beds seems secure, according to a just-completed survey of Consumer Lifestyles by the Sealy Research Center.

For the betting man, people under 35 are odds-on favorites for today's supersize beds. Two out of three have seriously considered buying a king or queen, and about 50 percent of those under 45 state they are interested in supersize beds. Only one in four over 55 expresses interest in owning a king or queen.

These facts are from a study just completed by Sealy, Inc., marketers of the Posturepedic brand of bedding products, involving 1,000 consumers from a carefully constructed sample that reflects national population trends.

A Generation Gap was noted that provides an insight into the strong trend among younger people towards super size bedding.

Young couples—84 percent—want to sleep together, according to the survey, while only 37 percent of those over 55 agree. And, while older people tend to perceive that supersize beds were "mainly for large people," younger people disagree with this statement.

In larger families, too, supersize beds are increasingly popular. Consumers with three or more children report higher than average ownership of king and queen size beds. This, again, is a reflection of bedroom lifestyle patterns, according to researchers. These consumers also report higher than average preferences for reading, radio listening and TV viewing in bed, suggesting that in large families the master bedroom becomes something of a restful retreat for parents.

"What this seems to indicate," stated researchers, "is that for today's up-and-coming young homemakers, the preference for a king or queen size bed is strong and firmly based on consumer wants and needs. A few years ago, the answer to the sleeping comfort concern was generally twin beds. Today, people are finding both comfort and togetherness in the super sizes."

"The king or queen bed," notes the Research Center's report, "is still seen by many as a desirable luxury item, but younger people are most definitely in the supersize bedding market. They expect their investment in bedding to last 10 to 15 years and recognize that top quality supersize beds will provide this kind of long-term satisfaction."

Seven "Outstanding Educators" At Mt.

Seven persons from Mount Saint Mary's College have been selected as Outstanding Educators of America for 1975.

2 Soloists To Join MSM Concert

Two guest soloists will highlight the performance of the Mount Saint Mary's Gleeson and Belles when they present their annual spring concert during Parents Weekend.

This year's performance, which will be held at 3:15 p.m. on Sunday, May 4, has a special significance in that it commemorates the 25th Anniversary of the founding of the Mount Glee Club.

The featured soloist will be Olga Sambuco, a concert and operatic singer who has appeared in New York City, Paris and Rome. A graduate of the Juilliard School of Music, she earned a Master of Music degree at the Manhattan School of Music and later studied voice in Rome, Italy. She has performed leading operatic roles with the Masters Institute of United Arts and the Rome Opera State Association. She has appeared as a soloist at the DuMarais Festival in Paris and with the Santa Cecilia Orchestra in Rome.

Recognized as a fine interpreter of contemporary music, Miss Sambuco is currently on a concert tour of many college campuses. At the Sunday performance she will sing "Love is Where You Find It" and "O Mio Babbino Caro" from "Gianni Schicchi." Dr. Bruno Amato of the faculty of Indiana University School of Music, will accompany Miss Sambuco.

Also featured on Sunday will be Mae O'Keefe, a Baltimore soprano who was the first soloist to appear with the Mount Glee Club in 1949. Repeating that performance, she will sing numbers from Romberg's "The Student Prince," and join the Mount singers in a salute to Romberg which will include "One Alone," "Golden Days," "Deep In My Heart, Dear," "The Desert Song," "Softly, As In A Morning Sunrise" and "One Kiss."

The program for the concert will revolve around long-time favorites and show tunes. These include: "There Is Nothing Like a Dame" from "South Pacific," "Hey, Look Me Over" from "Wildcat," Gastons Soliloquy from "Gini," "The Happy Wanderer," "The Rhythm of Life" from "Sweet Charity," "Flash, Bang, Wallop" from "Half a Sixpence," and a religious spiritual, "Set Down, Servant."

In a salute to our nation's upcoming Bicentennial, the Glee Club will sing, "What's More American" as well as a medley of three American folk songs. The concert will conclude with music from "The Music Man."

Mr. Richard E. Selby, manager of WGET, Gettysburg, will be guest announcer. Professor Oliver K. Spangler will be the accompanist.

The Glee Club is under the direction of the Rev. Dr. David Schaum.

The public is invited to attend the anniversary concert, which will be held in the College Chapel. Admission is free.

Historical Society Restates Goals

For the benefit of residents who have been away from the winter and newcomers to this area, who may be interested in becoming charter members before January 1, 1976, the Emmitsburg Historical Society wishes to again state the aims and purpose of the organization. Primarily, it hopes to provide a service for the community, to be a source of information and guide lines to all who are concerned about the preservation, conservation, and protection of the areas valuable assets. Its efforts are directed toward benefiting the local business-people as well as the home-owners, for the following reasons: a beautiful town, with an interesting historical background, attracts visitors who will contribute to the prosperity of the town and this, in turn, will enable it to support the projects that will enhance the value and desirability as a place to live and maintain its business places.

It is not, nor ever has been, the Society's intention to impose any of its opinions or ideas upon the town but rather to present them for consideration, in a desire to be helpful. In their effort to make available to the townspeople the enormous store of information gleaned from numerous authoritative sources, the Society feels a valuable service can be rendered—because such a large fund of information represents a great deal of time spent in research and interviews: a long and arduous undertaking, for which few people have either the time or inclination.

Towns that have prospered under the guidance of their local Historical Society have expressed their indebtedness to the members who have devoted so much of their time and energy in behalf of their community. Even those who are devoid of sentimental attachment to their towns can readily appreciate the value to themselves, in dollars and cents, of maintaining the attractive historical features — and, measuring by those standards, alone, will help to prevent their destruction. The Society's members are equally concerned about the prosperity of the town but feel that progress should be guided by good judgment from sources that have experience and expertise in such matters.

In whichever light the Society's aims are viewed, it seems unlikely that anyone could disagree with them. The real problem lies with the question of whether or not they are met with only a feeble agreement. It is still true today, as it was back in the time of the town's early beginnings, that the strength of a united effort, of everyone pulling together, is needed to accomplish anything worthwhile. The Society is courting on that fine American spirit still existing in all of us, when needed and called upon.

Try us . . .

You'll like us.

Although the membership is steadily growing larger, the cooperation of everyone in town, of every age group, is needed. To achieve the desired goal, it is necessary to continue along the many avenues of research and this means that there is still much work yet to be done.

Summed up, the Society is not for just a select few, but for everyone.

Summed up, the Society is not for just a select few, but for everyone.

When you're turned out to pasture, will it still be green?

Maybe your life's pretty good right now. But if you want to keep it that way, you've got to plan for it. And one way you can do just that is by signing up for the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. An amount you specify will be set aside from each paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds.

Then, when you're ready to stop working, you'll still be able to keep on living.

Now U.S. Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity at 5 years (4% the first year). Lost, stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. When needed, Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.
