HE GOT INTO THE DIET

A MEMBER OF THE LIARS' CLUB HEARD TISZA'S LAST ADDRESS.

He Made a Bold Play and Carried His Point, and His Conscience Only Bothered Him When He Saw That He Would Be Successful in the Scheme.

The party was in conversation over its beer of all shades and all degrees of excellence, and tales had been told in several languages and of diverse degrees of trustworthiness when the Hungarian pointed upon an opportunity—she had his glass empty first—to tell for the hundredth time of the beauties of his native Budapest.

"During the day I heard that the ministry would resign the next day, and that Premier Tisza would make his last address in parliament. Well, you can well imagine I wanted to be in at the death and set about to secure a ticket of admission to the diet hall.

"But the morning came, and I saw the chances for a peep at the show growing exasperatingly less, when I suddenly felt myself possessed of an idea. I went to the house of parliament and after much inquiry learned that the librarian of the upper house, and he alone, could admit me, and I succeeded in seeing him.

"He was a funny little man, this clerk, who labored under the hallucination that he could speak English, and he was further afflicted with that mild form of insanity which manifests itself in the dyed mustache.

"The picture from the gallery where 'we of the press' sat was one I shall never forget. Every inch of room in the spectators' pews was occupied, every deputy's chair was taken, and on the floor the monotony of the black and white was broken by the picturesque costumes of the bishops, whose office entitles them to a seat in the house.

"After it was all over I went with my new companions of the press to a nearby restaurant, where we ate all sorts of things, all seasoned more or less with paprika, and drank tokay wine. I told my story, and the Transcript received its baptism of Hungarian fire—Kellerin on glass Dankles bitte."—New York Tribune.

A caterpillar in the course of a month will devour 600 times its own weight in food. It will take a man three months before he eats an amount of food equal to his own weight.

The Statue Wept. Last winter at one of the little hill-side shrines near San Remo the Madonna was observed to be weeping. This was not seen by one, but by many, as great crowds collected and watched the slowly dripping tears.

It is said that so much farm land in England has lately been allowed to lapse from cultivation that wild animals, which 10 years ago were in danger of extinction, are now flourishing and increasing. The badger and the otter, for instance, are reported to be thriving greatly on agricultural depression.

The "game of definitions" produced the other evening this rather clever example: "Life—A workshop in which no one, from the foreman down to the smallest apprentice, knows but that he will lose his job before night."—Youth's Companion.

SIDE TALKS WITH GIRLS.

Polly Gives Advice to a Girl About to Leave School.

Winnie May has written to Aunt Polly to say she is 13 years old and expects to graduate from the grammar school this year. "As she does not intend to go to the high school, she wishes Aunt Polly to tell her what would be best for a girl of her age to do.

Winnie May writes a plain, clear hand, the spelling is perfect, and the punctuation marks all in their proper places. These characteristics of her letter, which are by no means as common as they might be, have suggested typewriting and stenography.

Winnie May's clear, steady writing has also suggested drawing. Perhaps it would pay her to take a course at a technical school and learn to make designs for wall papers and carpets and lace.

The large factories where these things are made employ a corps of sketch designers, many of them women. But if technical and business courses are beyond the capacity of Winnie's purse there is nothing that will give more satisfaction than the sewing trades.

If Aunt Polly's girl will learn dressmaking thoroughly; if she will not only learn to cut and fit and sew, but will study up the history of costume so she will be able to predict the coming fashion, for even in dress history repeats itself; if she will go to the art galleries and note the artists' color schemes and the folds of the draperies on the sculptured masterpieces, she will probably make more at dressmaking than at anything else.

Even if she only learns to sew thoroughly and is willing to go out as a seamstress she will receive from $1 to $3 a day, and this includes one of two good meals. Sewing-stitching is said to pay well, and few women are expert at it.

The business of life for most women is the making of homes, and very important business it is too. For this reason Aunt Polly believes every little girl should be taught the trades which underlie the home. This should be the foundation, and the knowledge of these home trades will not be in the way of any wage earning avocation she may learn afterward.

A Convenient Button Bag.

Every woman knows the convenience of a button bag. There is no need to urge the advantage of having one always at hand. But this charming little one designed especially for keeping glove buttons and others of smaller size can safely be recommended as thoroughly well worth the trouble of making.

The material is chamois skin. The ordinary natural color will answer quite well and will keep the buttons intact, but if you want to make an attractive object as well as a useful one select the rich red or the more unusual sage green.

Cut two slips each 9 1/2 by 6 inches. Then across the edge of each put a narrow band of gold braid and a little above it another of green or red, according to the color of the skin. When the bands are dry, paint the disks in bronze of different but harmonizing tints and the letters in gold.

Seam the two pieces together at the sides and stitch them across 1 1/2 inches above the loose edge. Then cross the stitching with a row of ornamental stitches in silk. Face the opening with thin silk for a distance of fully two inches, run in a casing and through it pass narrow ribbons of some appropriate shade.

Lastly, with good sharp scissors slash the banded ends of the skin exactly to the stitched line in strips of about one-eighth of an inch in width. The bag will prove very pretty and charming and the easily made fringe a most suitable finish.

FROM THE CAPE TO CAIRO.

How It Is Proposed to Carry a Telegraph Line Across the African Continent.

The business partner of one of the directors of the company formed to build the telegraph line from the Cape to Cairo has given the Pall Mall Gazette some interesting information. Capital has been subscribed to the extent of seven hundred thousand dollars, which is considered sufficient to carry the line as far as Uganda.

The poles are to be of iron of light construction, in order to outmaneuver the white ants, who would eat away wooden poles. From Salisbury the line is to be carried to Tote, on the Zambesi, and from thence to Blantyre. There Consul Johnston will report the result of his surveys as to the best manner of proceeding on to Uganda, and the constructing party will have to come to terms with the natives and Arabs by subsidizing the chiefs and others of influence.

There will be nothing in the way of impenetrable undergrowth or rank vegetation to contend with, as the line will avoid the low country and keep to the high plateau the entire distance. There are two alternative routes for the conveyance of the materials. There is good transport from the Transvaal to Fort Salisbury, or a shorter route would be adopted if materials were shipped direct to Beira, carried along the railway now being built as far as it extends, and then conveyed the rest of the distance by ox-wagons.

The report also states that infant marriage does not exist to any appreciable extent except in northeast Behar and among the Brahmins, Kayasths and other purely Sudra castes of western Bengal. It also shows the great progress of Mohammedanism, which has increased more than nine per cent. in Bengal proper in the last decade, while the increase in Hindumism is less than five per cent.

This fact is explained to be due to the desire on the part of the lowest castes to adopt a religion which treats all men as equals.

A New Death Test. Nervous mortals who imagine that they could stand dying all right enough were it not for the fear of being buried alive may be interested in a recent announcement made by a French scientist. He says that an unfailing test of death may be made by producing a blister on the hand or foot of the corpse, using a candle for that purpose. If the blister, upon being opened with a pin or other instrument, is found to contain fluid of any kind there is still life in the supposed corpse. On the other hand, should it contain steam only, rest assured that the vital spark has flown.

What if we cannot be Napoleons, inspiring to action mighty armies that change the destinies of a continent; what if we cannot be a Joan of Arc, and rescue our country from the invader; what if we cannot be a Florence Nightingale, carrying peace and comfort to the wounded and suffering in the hospitals; what if we cannot be a Lincoln, striking the shackles from four millions slaves; what if we cannot lead in the halls of Congress, or stir men's blood by the power of our eloquence; what if we are born in times of peace, when the thunder of the cannon no longer reverberates among our hills to rouse the sluggish heart to action; what if we do live in times of plenty, when there is no cry going up from the starving to awake sympathetic tears; what if everything is tame and commonplace about us, why then greater is the effort that brings nobility to the service, more honorable the heroism of daily life that is born not of excitement, but of the intrinsic heroism of our nature.—Good News.
