

LOCALS AND PERSONALS.

We have printed our mailing list this week for the first time, and every subscriber can see from the printed slip on the paper, the date from which his subscription to the RECORD begins. Those who had been subscribers to the Searchlight, but have not yet paid, will notice that their papers are dated July 7th, the date of our first issue. While we will receive and turn over the money due that paper, we have nothing to do with assuming the collectorship of its old debts, therefore we do not use the date of that paper. It is possible that there may be a few mistakes in our list, if so, parties will please notify us at once, so that corrections may be made now.

The Elliot House is being given a coat of beautiful old gold paint.

Send the RECORD to your boy in the West. He wants it!

Sugar has advanced about 1/2c since the passage of the tariff bill.

Our Harney agent sent us five new subscribers at one time, which is not bad for a starter.

Mr. O. M. Crouse and family, of Westminster, have been visiting friends in town this week.

Gettysburg has been attracting sight-seers this week, from this section of the county.

Mr. John C. Crouse, is lying very ill with typhoid fever at the residence of his parents, near railroad.

Miss Carrie Marks, of Littlestown, is spending a few days this week with Mr. E. C. Sauerhammer.

Farmers are very busy plowing, and otherwise making ready for fall seeding.

The Hot Springs medicine Co will go to Littlestown on Tuesday for a stay of several weeks.

A number of our P. O. S. of A. boys paid a fraternal visit to Camp 384 at Littlestown, on last Friday evening.

Blanche, the little daughter of Mr. Alb Hess, who spent the summer with her aunt near Mount St. Mary's came home last Friday.

Our mechanics of all kinds, have been busy since early spring, and the chances are that there will be plenty of work until cold weather sets in.

On Tuesday last, Mr. Calvin Harner shot a crane, in Simon Harmon's meadow, that measured 6ft. from tip to tip of wing, and was 5ft. in height.

The annual basket picnic of Grace Reformed Sunday school was held on Wednesday in C. T. Fringer's grove near town.

Rufus W. Weaver advertises the desirable town property formerly owned by Elmira J. Shriner. See our advertising columns for full particulars.

Samuel Shriner, son of Mr. James Shriner, of near Copperville, was the fortunate one, who drew the silver tea set given away by the Hot Springs Med. Co., on last Saturday evening.

Wilson L. Crouse, near Middleburg, is now ready to make cider, but, owing to the scarcity of apples, will only run his press on Tuesday and Thursday of each week.

Our friend George T. Kerr, of Hanover, late agent of the P. R. Co., at this place, has sent us a check for a year's subscription to the RECORD, and extends congratulations.

A night-blooming cereus, belonging to Mrs. Luther Sharetts, was in bloom last Monday night. Its beautiful flowers in number, were much admired by those who saw the plant.

Messrs Theodore Fair, F. M. Yount, R. S. McKinney, George Koutz, Rip M. C. Duttrera, all experienced wheelmen of this place, attended the encampment at Gettysburg on Thursday.

Several persons who promised to send us items, have not yet shown us the style of their chirography. Don't think that we have enough news any way—we will enlarge the paper when we can't find room for everything.

We call the attention of farmers to the fertilizer advertisements of Reindollar & Co., and H. S. Roberts & Co. These firms sell goods on their merits, and purchasers can be assured of securing full value for their money.

Dr. Chas. Billingslea and family passed through town on an outing to Gettysburg. The Dr. has not been in town for seven years, consequently he noticed quite a great improvement. Yes, we are picking up in many ways, yet we have a very dry town.

A merry party of ladies and gentlemen from Emmitsburg—admirers of the Hot Springs Medicine Co.—came down to the performance on Friday night. They drove down Baltimore street, with bells jingling merrily on the horses, and singing "How do you do, old boy, how are you?"

Our public school teachers have secured schools for the coming opening as follows: Levi D. Reid, Miss Sadies Snyder, and Miss G. Forrester, Taneytown; Jas. F. Pringer, Washington; Jas. B. Galt, Franklin; H. C. Witt, Middleburg; E. S. Harner, Walnut Grove; Miss Anna Elliot, Parquhar's Run; Miss Emma Beaver, Pine Hill; Harry L. Poesch, Oregon; W. E. Burke, Shaws'; Wm. J. Arthur, D. P. Creek; Jos. H. Harner, Keysville; Jno. N. Shriner, and Miss Jessie Hann, in Penna.

The RECORD wants all the news from all places, all the time. Let every person consider himself or herself duly appointed a committee of one to see that all items of interest both great and small, are sent in to our office. We do not mean all the little gossip, and trivial incidents which are the ordinary products of every day life or the things which only interest one or two persons, but we want everything new and newsy, strange and remarkable, which will be interesting to our readers. There is no reason why we should not have a County paper here, and we mean to make the RECORD known and wanted all over the County, if enterprise and merit can do it. Let us hear from you!

NOTES HERE AND THERE.

The Frederick County Fair will be held October 8-13th.

Emory Grove Camp opened on Thursday night the 9th., and promises the usual attractions.

The Grangers Pic-nic will be held at Williams grove, Pa., Aug 27 to Sept 1st, and promises to eclipse every previous exhibition. The management promises many attractions during the week.

Wm. A. Wampler, an old surveyor, and a man well known over the County died suddenly on Saturday last, of paralysis. He was a prominent republican, and held a number of public offices during his lifetime.

Joseph Snouffer of Union Bridge has been arrested for selling cigarettes without licence, and gave bail for court. This will be one of the cases which will be tried when the validity of the cigarette law is tested.

The Examiner of this week states that its Editor, Reno S. Harp, is not a candidate for Congressional honors, which practically leaves a clear field for Frederick county for John C. Motter.

Jesse Eyer, of Middleburg, who was severely injured by jumping from a rapidly moving train, on last Sunday week, is slowly recovering. He was very badly cut about the face and head.

Frank Orndorff, a son of Pious Orndorff of Westminster, has been declared insane, and Judge Roberts ordered him to be confined at Spring Grove. He is subject to fits, and before and after them becomes violent and dangerous.

A Bicycle parade was held in Frederick on the 9th., which was a great success. Over one hundred wheelmen were in line, and the fine appearance they made was heartily cheered along the line. Some of the wheels were elaborately decorated.

The Linwood Camp grounds have been leased by Evangelists of Baltimore who will hold a camp to continue four weeks, beginning with the coming Sunday. Whether Sunday traffic will be carried on we have not learned.

Coxey came near being mobbed at Camp Liberty a few days ago, when he came to take away his horses. He told the men that he was done with the scheme, and that they must look out for themselves. This greatly incensed the few men in the camp, and he was obliged to beat a hasty retreat.

The encampment of the Pennsylvania militia is now being held in Gettysburg, and about 8000 soldiers are encamped on the historic ground of Pickett's charge. There will be excursions every day during the week, and the event will be as usual attract large crowds. Brilliant reviews have been arranged for, and a number of famous officers have signified their intention to be present.

Lawyer Geo. L. Stocksdale, of Westminster, has entered suit against the Western Maryland R. R. claiming $2500 damages for being ejected from one of its trains. It is claimed by him that he asked the ticket agent for a ticket to Emory Grove and returned by mistake a train en route to Glyndon, which was only good for return when stamped by the secretary of the Temperance Camp association, and as that individual was not on the grounds, he was unable to have it stamped. He boarded a train and the conductor refused to accept his explanation, and ejected him, causing him to walk ten miles.

Haymakers are at work in, not on, the Chesapeake and Ohio canal, between Hancock and Williamsport. They are cutting the grass under water on the bottom and sides of the canal. The growth is dense, and not only impedes boats, but keeps the water from flowing. It is cut by an ordinary harvesting mower, with closed wheels, to prevent the grass from clogging them, is attached to the rear of a scow, drawn by a heavy team, and is managed by two men at the top. It is raised and lowered by means of a block and tackle. The cleats on the wheels are long and sharp, to give the machine a good grip on the mucky bottom, and the machine cuts a wide swath, sending tons of long, floating grass to the surface.

Westminster, Md., Aug. 13.—The Carroll county republicans have called their primaries for August 25 and the convention for August 27. There is a strong sentiment among the republicans of Carroll county in favor of sending a delegation to the Hayre de Grace convention in favor of Harry M. Clabaugh, chairman of the republican State central committee, for Congress. It is not believed, however, that Mr. Clabaugh will permit his name to be used in this connection. It is said that Joseph D. Brooks, mayor of Westminster, is desirous of having the delegation present his name for the honor. The republican leaders in control of the county politics are thought to be in favor of an un instructed delegation.—Balto. Sun.

St. Joseph's Church Organ. The grand old pipe organ in St. Joseph's Catholic Church has just been overhauled and decorated by Charles C. Craft, of Westminster, and the work is of a character decidedly creditable to the ability of the artisan. This instrument is one of the oldest, as well as one of the best in use in the state. It was manufactured in England in 1804, by George P. England who is now considered as having been among the best of the organ makers of that day. The case which is solid mahogany, is in itself worth as much as many of the modern instruments, and the workmanship all through is of a character which is almost impossible to secure now. The organ now presents a very handsome appearance. The front pipes are decorated in light blue and gold, and the ornamental parts in dark blue, and bright colors which unite to give the whole a fine artistic effect.

Camp No 2, M. P. O. S. of A.

The above successful organization has just handsomely carpeted its hall in the Eckenrode building, and after a few other improvements are made it will be as handsome a room for that purpose as any could wish to see. During the summer quite a large number of new members have been added to the roll; the membership is now about thirty. The Camp has paid out a considerable sum in benefits since its organization, but is in a very healthy financial condition, having in cash, property and investments about $500.

In its own way it is a benefit to its members and the community, and it will undoubtedly have a long and successful career if it continues to be conducted as carefully as it has been heretofore.

Jacob H. Wisner, executor of Christopher Wisner, deceased, settled second account.

Stephen B. Stockdale, executor of Thos. Demoss, deceased, received orders to sell real estate.

A Social Party. Miss Lorena Lefevre gave a very pleasant party, at her home, Wednesday evening, in honor of her cousins, Misses Mabel and Beryl Lefevre, of Uniontown. The first part of the evening the guests were entertained with both vocal and instrumental music; games were also engaged in.

Miss Esther Mehring favored the guests with several solos, which were highly appreciated.

Instrumental solos were also given by Misses Anna Motter, Bessie Reindollar, May Reed, Anna Galt, and Virginia Motter.

The invited guests were Misses Anna Motter, Virginia Motter, May Forrest, Esther Mehring, Anna Galt, Alice Crapster, Nana Galt, Bessie Reindollar, Bessie E. Boring, Maggie Currens, Mabel and Beryl Lefevre; Messrs Wm. Crapster, Frank Lefevre, Thad. Crapster, Galt and Upton Birnie, Norman Reindollar, Chas Lefevre, and John Lefevre. About 11 o'clock the full party was invited to the ball, which was held in the yard, to partake of refreshments.

Mr. L. A. Bush and wife after spending several weeks visiting friends at different places, returned to Mrs. Bush's home in this place, on Wednesday evening of last week. This being the first time they have been together since they were married, the couple made their appearance in our town, the boys according to the regular custom, brought forth their old pans, horns, boxes, bells and various other equipments, and marched promptly to Mr. J. Newcomer's residence, where the happy couple were for a short time. Upon their arrival, the command to play was given, and the music broke forth in all its hideousness. After several pieces had been played, the bride and groom were called up, but found to their surprise that they were not to appear, and of course, all knew that more music was needed, and to the great surprise of all, some of the musicians received a shower bath from an upper window. Of course this only made the music more hideous; but only one appeared upon the scene who proclaimed his authority in commanding tones, very much to the surprise of the boys, but his commands were obeyed, and those who did not obey promptly, were given a little assistance. This action we think was rather hasty, but are informed that several had appeared upon the scene whose presence could not be tolerated. We are also told that when the command was made, it was, "about one half of you get out of this," and everyone of course thought he belonged to that one half, and the consequence was, all made a hasty retreat.

Mr. and Mrs. DeHoff and son spent last week visiting friends in this place.

The Union Sunday school picnic, held at this place on last Saturday, was quite a success; it is supposed that about one thousand persons were present. Addresses were made by Rev. J. U. Asper, Rev. Minnie, and C. F. Sanders. Music was furnished by the Hahn orchestra. The day was very pleasantly spent, and full of exciting events, first some one thoughtlessly dropped a match in the leaves a short distance from the picnic grounds, and the result was a fire in the woods; second, some of the seats broke down and landed quite a number on the ground, fortunately however, no one was hurt very much; third, one of the boys got up and sang a little, and the result was a spasm, and many were heard to say, "What band is that?" and "Don't they play well?" Quite a number of engagements could have been made, but the boys would not accept. These things

COUNTY CORRESPONDENCE.

Porters.

Mr. Perry R. Jenkins has this week erected a front porch to his dwelling, which adds very much to the appearance of the place.

Mr. Wm. Wilson has had his barn painted which gives it a look of freshness and beauty. Mr. A. F. Gamber & Son, painted.

Mr. Geo. W. Hess attended the Presby. Convention at Glyndon on Wednesday last as delegate from Freedom District.

Miss Bessie Richardson, Miss Daisy Barnes, and Miss Clara Barnes spent Tuesday as the guest of Miss Dora Hess.

On the same day Master Willie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Hess while swinging, was in some manner precipitated from the swing and striking on his head, was for a time rendered unconscious, but we are glad to say that at this writing he is convalescing.

While Robt. E. Barnes and wife were passing along the road near the farm of D. M. Shoemaker on Tuesday last, their attention was attracted toward a fence combat between a black snake and one of some other species unknown. The battle was fierce indeed, and the writhing and contortions of the angry reptiles were fearful to behold; after watching them some time they were killed. The black snake was 5ft. in length and the other one 3ft.

Messiah Lutheran Church held their annual jubilee on Saturday, the 11th., which was a decided success. The most noted feature of the occasion was the eloquent address on the subject of C. E. Society, by Rev. B. Brice Blackford, Ex President of Carroll C. E. Society. Mr. Blackford, in a most enthusiastic manner, explained the principles and workings of the order and exhorted the congregation to organize one in the near future. Then followed an address pretty much in the same channel by Rev. Thomas, of Springfield Presbyterian Church at Sykesville. Mr. Thomas delivered his address in his usual jovial style, and was much appreciated by the audience.

Rev. B. B. Blackford, of Washington, D. C., and Mr. Ross Koons, of York Road, Md., spent Sunday as the guests of Robt. E. Barnes and family.

(Another correspondent sends the following—Ed)

A lively horse-back party passed this place on Monday, several of whom were recognized as being from Taneytown. The party consisted of Miss Mabel Lambert, Misses Jennie and Carrie Nail and Miss Milly Bushey. With them were Messrs. Will Hess, Will Nail, John Bushey and Harry Bushey. They started from the residence of Mr. L. A. Bush, and took in Porters, Freedom and other points of interest in their route.

Miss Effie Hess and brother, Mr. Howard Hess and Miss Retta Hess are also visiting friends in this locality.

Harney.

Miss Dora Good and the Misses Brooks, of Baltimore, are visiting friends in this place. We are informed that Miss Dora will remain at home for about a month.

Captain Lillibridge of Company G, of the 5th., Maryland Regiment, of Baltimore, was the guest of Mr. Daniel Good's family on last Thursday.

Mr. L. A. Bush and wife after spending several weeks visiting friends at different places, returned to Mrs. Bush's home in this place, on Wednesday evening of last week. This being the first time they have been together since they were married, the couple made their appearance in our town, the boys according to the regular custom, brought forth their old pans, horns, boxes, bells and various other equipments, and marched promptly to Mr. J. Quite a number of engagements could have been made, but the boys would not accept. These things are encouraging, and shows how highly the band is appreciated. Last, to finish up a day of pleasure and excitement, a horse belonging to Mr. Clark ran off and tore a wheel off of Mr. John Staley's buggy. Mr. Staley and his family were in the buggy at the time, but fortunately no one was hurt.

The Fairfield fishing club which was encamped at Myers mill during last week caught 106 eels, 90 fish and 6 snappers; they had one german carp that weighed 9 lbs. We have often noticed that whenever they fish they seem to have good luck.

Rev. J. Newcomer, former pastor of Mt. Joy congregation, preached in St. Paul's Lutheran Church of this place on last Sunday afternoon, but owing to the very inclement weather the audience was small.

Mr. Edgar Stann with his friend Mr. Keller, of Manchester, were the guests of Mr. Wm. Staubs' family during last Saturday and Sunday; we are glad to say that Edgar is looking well and is always a welcome visitor in this place.

Mrs. Ed. Kiser and her two children are visiting friends in this place. I. M. Bush, D. V. S., of Bellefonte, Pa., visited this place on Tuesday. The doctor has many friends here and all were glad to see him looking well.

We would be pleased to have the citizens of this community hand us their subscription for the CARROLL RECORD at as early a date as possible.

A young gentleman from Oakland, Md., spent last Saturday and Sunday as the guest of Miss Endora Jones.

Quite a number of our citizens attended the National Grand encampment at Gettysburg during the week.

Uniontown.

Miss Alice Brown, of Baltimore, is visiting the Misses Lassel.

Miss Lula Waugh, of Baltimore, is the guest of Mrs. Geo. Routsom.

Miss Flora Kemp, of Taneytown, is visiting Mr. Luther Kemp's.

Mr. J. Newton Gilbert, of Annapolis, is spending a brief vacation at home. Miss Debbie Zile, of Winfield, is visiting Mrs. Wm. H. Segatooise.

Elders G. W. Sellman and J. W. Rodkey enjoyed a trip to the Gettysburg grounds on Friday last.

Mrs. Dr. Wilson, Blanche and Edgar, who have been spending the summer at Thos. H. Routsom's, left on Thursday for their home in Washington, D. C.

Howard Brough has taken his old place as night baker at the Dennet Eating House, in Baltimore.

Clothworthy Rodkey, formerly engaged in the dairy business in Baltimore, has resumed business at the old stand.

William Arnold, huckster, had about 30 pounds of butter stolen from his wagon on Monday night, at his stopping place at Mr. John Willhide's near Bridgeport.

Mr. G. Thomas Mearing lost a valuable cow last week by hanging in the chain by which she was tethered to a stake in the pasture field.

The Christian Workers, a religious organization having its headquarters in Philadelphia, will enter upon a four weeks camp, beginning this Sunday, on the Linwood Camp Meeting grounds.

There has been a "slaughter of the innocents" going on about town lately. A number of the noble canines now lie beneath the sod, while their owners are doing their devotions on the "man, woman or child" who applied the remedy for their extinction. We faintly write some words eulogistic of the deceased animals, but refrain for fear the afflicted citizens might consider us an accomplice of the assassin.

Llwood.

Miss Crissy Firestone, of Frederick, who has been visiting Mrs. Caroline Englar has returned home. She is much missed by her many friends here.

Miss Anna Messler has returned home from a pleasant visit to friends near Gettysburg.

Misses Maria and Lotta Englar are visiting friends at Medford.

Mrs. Duval and children, and Mrs. J. Johnson, of Balto., are the guests of Mrs. S. L. Englar.

Rev. Geo. B. Resser of Hanover Pa., preached in the Reformed church on Sunday.

Mr. E. Cushman lost two very valuable horses within two weeks. One died on Saturday from lockjaw.

Mrs. Catherine Cook, who has been seriously ill at her sister's Mrs. Margaret Smith, is slightly improved.

The Latest: Look for it in THE RECORD.

New Windsor.

A game of ball was played here, on Saturday last, between the Union Bridge club, and the club of this place, the game being interesting until the 6th. inning when, after hits by Hub Ecker and Lindsay, with 2 men out, Cross made a long hit scoring 2 runs, which broke the ice for our boys. Union Bridge made 3 runs in the 8th., and these proved to be the last of the boys in the 9th. inning, winning the game by the score of 3 to 2. The Union Bridge Club felt very sore over its defeat.

"Now the base ball's over, Union Bridge is quite lame, They thought they would win, But New Windsor slipped in; We got there just the same."

The W. M. R. R., presented this station with a very fine truck which will be a great help to their employees here, as we ship more milk than any station on the road. The next improvement should be a new station.

The Jr., Y. P. S. C. E., are holding an ice cream festival on the lawn in front of the Presbyterian church.

Miss Helm and Miss Vansant, of Elliott City, are the guests of Dr. J. W. Helm.

The Waynesboro Village Record has just entered on its 48th volume. This is a good old age, but the RECORD seems to be in very good health notwithstanding.

THIS THING of writing editorials for a non-partisan paper, is a sort of dyspepsia—you can't eat of the best on the table because it does not agree with your Constitution and By-laws. See?

STRANGE, but true. Taneytown is one of the most important points on the Frederick Division of the P. R. R., yet we publish the Western Maryland R. R. time table, and not that of our road. Of course, like most mysterious things, there is a very plain explanation for it.

BY THE WAY—Has it ever occurred to you that there is no available Hall in this town in which a lecture or public entertainment can be held? This is rather a bad fix to be in, don't you think? Well—we know of several towns where they have what they call an Engine House, with a Town Hall on the second floor.

A KANSAS MAN has left the populists party on the ground that it is "run by lawyers without clients, by doctors without patients, by preachers without pulpits, by women without husbands, by financiers without finance, by educators without education, by statesmen out of a job."

A TRAIN on a Nebraska railroad has been wrecked in which eleven persons were killed, and it is supposed to have been the work of some miscreants who had a grievance against the company. This is simply horrible. What can be the character of people who would sacrifice innocent lives in this manner? We can conceive of no punishment too great to be administered to such monsters, and it would seem to be time for every State to impose death, or some very severe penalty, for train wrecking, as it may have a deterrent effect on those who contemplate such acts.

JOHN WANAMAKER has just returned home from a visit to Europe, says that the foreign press seems to take a delight in attempting to create an erroneous impression as to the affairs of the United States, and to our detriment. The principal events chronicled are murders in the cities, lynchings in the South, and highly colored scandals. He recommends that the National Board of Trade look into the matter, and see whether it cannot secure the sending of a better, and more representative class of news to foreign countries. It appears that foreigners, particularly English and Germans, do not as a rule have a great deal of respect for this country, and if we did not supply them with rich wives, and money spending tourists, and buy a large bulk of their manufactures, we presume America would be tabooed entirely.

Who Taketh Not His home Paper.

He who taketh not his home paper the same should not be lent to him or read in his presence, but he should be kept ignorant all the days of his life. Yes, verily, until the days come that his land is gobbled up for back taxes, his raiment parted among his creditors and the lightning rod agent bringeth action on his notes. In those days he will open his eyes and exclaim: "Lo, there is pleasure and I am not in it."

And he who letteth his subscription expire, and he who bringeth not in the wood and potatoes therefor, nor placeth the silver in the editor's hand, the same should be proclaimed from the house top, and his name should be pronounced "mud" by the people; for lo, the editor's lot is past finding out unless you try the business.

The man who buyeth and selleth and advertiseth liberally in the paper, behold the people findeth him out and not to hurt; and the householder who taketh the paper and payeth therefor, the same shall prosper; he shall know when his taxes become due, and when the land is advertised by scribes, and divers things; thereby he can get bargains at the store; who has a cow for sale or a span of mules, knoweth there is a way which bringeth up the price of wheat.—Ex.

IN VIEW of the war between Japan and China, a statement of the strength of the forces—particularly of Japan, which seems to be the favorite in America,—may be of interest to our readers:

The Japanese army on a war footing is 300,000, all of whom are trained and disciplined. All males twenty years of age are subject to enlistment. The regular term of service is twelve years, after which they form the National Army. The persons who are exempt from military duty in time of peace are Government officials, students in certain establishments, heads of families, and eldest sons, but in time of war all of these exempted persons are subject to a call to arms. Men who have been condemned to prison for a year or more, or who are under 4 feet 1 inch in height, are positively excluded from the service.

The discipline in the Japanese army is of a high order, and punishment for offenses is severe. Upon committing their offenses are subject to close arrest, loss of seniority, dismissal or death. Non-commissioned officers may be imprisoned, reduced in rank, given penal servitude or put to death. Privates may suffer a number of punishments including death. In cases of the death penalty, the men are shot and officers are permitted to put an end to their lives. Japan has six excellent military schools, two arsenals, and one gun factory. The Chinese army is much larger than that of Japan but is supposed to be much inferior in discipline, equipment, and bravery.

The Senate Bill Passed.

Senator Gorman has triumphed, and his tariff bill will become a law. The Senate bill passed the house on Monday, and now only needs the President's signature to become a law; and, there seems to be but little doubt that he will approve it.

As an offset to the bill as passed, the House will insist on the passage of separate bills by the Senate, for placing coal, iron, sugar and barbed wire on the free list, but it is not likely that any further tariff legislation will be had at this session, and the separate bills will be simply the protest of the House and President against the Gorman—Bribe bill.

Mr. Gorman has achieved a triumph, greater perhaps than has ever been gained before in politics, yet it is possibly more a victory than a vindication. He openly assailed the President, and was as openly assailed by many members and conventions of his party as being a traitor, and an assistant Republican. Just how the result was brought about which determined the Democratic caucus to approve the Senate bill, will probably never be known to a certainty, and, in that lies the question as to whether it was a political victory or a real vindication.

The result will likely be accepted by the party as a rule, as the best that could be secured at present in line with party pledges, but, there must always be a doubt in many minds as to whether this is actually true, and whether the bill is entirely clear from the corrupting influences of trusts.

It is to be hoped that the passage of the bill, even as unsatisfactory as it is to all parties, will result in at least a partial revival of business, but, it is questionable whether the gain can equal the loss which has been caused by the long delay of its passage.

The Value of Insurance.

The great bulk of destructible property over the country is insured against loss by fire, yet there is a surprisingly large amount of it which is not so protected. When buildings are isolated, so that there is no danger except from lightning, or accident or carelessness on the part of the inmates, and when the value of the property is not such a great amount as to seriously embarrass the owner in replacing the same in case of a fire, insurance is not a vitally important consideration. But, as soon as any of these conditions are changed, the value of insurance increases. Take for instance a town, closely built up like ours, and care on the part of the owner is a very slight protection, unless everyone in a large section is equally careful. Then too, town buildings and contents, are usually of more value than country property, and the lot of ground does not bear the same proportion to the value of the whole as a farm does to its buildings, therefore town property should be more generally insured, on account of careful business reasons, than elsewhere, particularly when there is no water supply.

Fire insurance now, on the stock Co. plan, is strictly a business transaction, which is as legitimate and well defined as almost any other contract which can be entered into.

The Mutual Companies, also, are much better than they used to be, because they are conducted on better methods, and excessive assessments are a very rare occurrence.

The question of rates will likely always be a bone of contention between the insurer and insured, as they occupy diametrically opposite positions,—the one aiming at a profit, the other at the minimum cost—but it is probable that the companies are very nearly correct in their conclusions, as they base their rates on actual results on the different classes of property over an extended section, aiming to make each class pay its own losses; and, as they are compelled by law to publish annual sworn statements of their business, any very profitable scheme would be shown up to the detriment of the company. Take the question as a whole, and there are very few cases where it is either a safe or profitable plan to be uninsured. Luck is a very uncertain friend in everything, and dependence on help from the community is more so, as the general sentiment now is, where persons suffer a loss without insurance, that it was simply neglect and carelessness on the part of the loser, and that those who do not try to help themselves are not worthy of help.

The opening of School.

In a few weeks, the temples of learning—the Public Schools—will open for the regular scholastic year, and all over the land will be seen the little boys and girls, the future hope of the nation, hurrying along roads and lanes and across fields to the "Little red school house." Who does not remember his school-boy days? And who does not now know them to have been the happiest and most important of his life? The opening of school, to children, is an event of many sided import; some greet it coming with regret, regarding study and confinement as anything but a pleasure; others think of the cross teacher and his punishments; while many hail the day with pleasure, because it means less work, and more play, and are not troubled one way or the other about studies or teacher. We think it safe to say that a very small number of children are glad to go to school for the proper reason—to secure an education—and, while this is to older persons, a strange thing, to children, it is perfectly natural.

If children can be early learned the value of knowledge, it is the very best idea which they can possibly secure in their whole life. There are, we are glad to say, but few little boys and girls who do not really mean to be learned, but they are so apt to think that there is plenty of time ahead for it, and are apt to regard books and studies as an imposition. They do not know, nor can they be expected to consider, that the death, or financial troubles, of their parents, may shorten their expected time to be spent in school, and throw them on their own resources before they are ready to assume the sterner duties of life.

Parents too, are often careless on the point of giving their children the full benefit of the advantages of an early foundation for an education, and keep the boys home at work when they could be spared for school, thinking that a portion of the school year is all that is necessary, to acquire all the education their children will need. There are cases where this is the best that can be done; children owe their first duty to their parents; yet, we would be glad to know that in all such cases, that the parent is really a competent judge of what is the correct course, and whether the loss of schooling is overbalanced by better results at home.

It has long ago been an established fact that there is no place in the active labor of man where a good education will not form a large part of the capital and power of the man. If a man would enter a profession, he needs education. If he intends to be a mechanic, he needs more than a purely practical knowledge of his trade. If he would engage in mercantile pursuits, his school training will be of inestimable value. If he would be simply a farmer, he will be a better one if he has cultivated brains to direct him.

The time has gone by when success can be easily attained by mere muscular strength, no matter what one's business may be, and no one realizes this more clearly than the working man of to-day, for to his credit it must be said, that he is giving his children advantages which he never had, and means that they shall go through life on an easier path. Many a man has come to the point where he could have made a living with more ease, had he been able to supply a certain educational requirement. One does not always know that he is cut out for a particular business in life, sometimes the knowledge comes to him late that he has been on the wrong track for years, but, unless that man has been well equipped in early life with a good education, he finds that his talent in the new direction is not backed up by the required amount of intelligence, and he must continue on the road on which he started.

As grain grows better in a good soil, and with good cultivation, so will the people of the country prosper in proportion to their intelligence and cultivation of mind; but, while all this is true, the fact still remains that children do not comprehend the great value of education, nor are they in a position to demand that they be given all possible advantages in that direction, even if they did have the proper appreciation. Our purpose in writing on the subject, is, to call the attention of parents to their duty, and to ask them to consider whether they cannot give their children longer terms at school than they have been; and, in cases where the children themselves do not want to go, to insist on their going, and endeavor to make them realize that now is the time for them to lay up a capital which they can never lose by any reverse of fortune, or change of

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

Washington, Aug. 12, 1894. There is a pause in the tariff fight till to-morrow. Yesterday's action was indecisive, and left the situation unchanged. It was not to be expected that in a body of free and unlimited debate, like the Senate, the momentous issue precipitated by the events of Friday, would be settled at once. After some skirmishing, the firing ceased, and both sides rest on their arms over to day. Senator Hill's resolutions requiring an immediate report of agreement or disagreement was not defeated. It was simply side tracked for the day on a tide-vote which was decided by the vice president. The vote to put it aside and go into executive session was not significant. The cuckoos and the anti-administration stood together. Among them were Senators Gorman, Bruce, and Smith, as well as the Senate conferees. That showed that while the cuckoos were eager for delay, the anti-administration faction was not unwilling. The vote on the other side was more significant. In spite of the manifest effort to have all Democrats unite in what should be a trace over Sunday, Senator Murphy joined his New York colleagues, and most of the populists followed. The vote shows how precarious is the life of this ill-fated tariff, even if there were an agreement. What plans may be laid and what schemes projected during this Sabbath pause, no man can venture to tell. But the one thing clear is that the bill hangs by the slenderest thread, and that a large proportion of Congress are ready to accept the conclusion, that it is better to have no bill, than any bill which can now pass. That is the unmistakable sentiment of the country. Better then kill the bill promptly, and give the people peace and hope. It is a public wrong to dally and delay any longer. The conference is hopelessly abortive. Agreements have been approached, only to be repudiated and trampled on. The Senate has offered free sugar, and the House has rejected it. The President and the House stands before the country as the defenders of the Canadian coal job, and the sugar trust. The Senate conferees cannot offer anything more than they have done. The only thing left is the Senate bill, as it stands, and even if the House were to accept it, the President could not sign it without a self-stultification, and a self humiliation, which is not to be expected.

(Since the above was written the Senate Bill has passed the House.)

The Government report on the crops for August, is the most interesting statement for the year, in that it shows the extent of the damage done to corn crop by drought during the month of July. The average condition of the crop on July 1st, was 95, and on August 1st, it had fallen to 69.1. A year ago the condition was 87. This is a disaster to the crop, but it may be partially repaired in the next month, though there has been no improvement since the report was made. The figures indicate a yield in the seven leading corn growing states of the west of 809,000, 000 bushels.

The general impression in commercial circles is, that the war in the China seas, if carried on vigorously, will make times good here next winter or spring. The supposition is not unreasonable, for while war anywhere is waste and destruction, and does not add to the wealth of nations, it, at the same time, distributes and shifts, and the one country that is undisturbed in its producing energies can hardly fail to profit by the sudden demand for material.

Church Notes.

This column is for special announcements, and notes on church work of all denominations; also, for short articles of a general religious character. We will not publish, as we have previously stated, anything on denominationalism or creed which has a tendency to create a discussion, as we do not consider this the mission of a local newspaper.

The Pipe Creek (Brethren's) Sunday school will hold their Children's Day on next Sunday, Aug 19th., at 10 o'clock, a. m. Among the speakers expected are Elder Wilbur B. Stover, Missionary to India, Bro. Edwards, of Louisiana, and Elder T. J. Kolb, of Double Pipe Creek, Md.

In the Reformed Church, last Sunday evening, the Rev. Takeo Noya, a native of Japan (who came to this country 10 years ago, and has just finished his theological studies at Lancaster, Pa.) delivered an illustrated lecture on Japan, which was most interesting and instructive throughout. Though the weather was unfavorable, the church was pretty well filled, and all were well pleased with what they heard and saw concerning Japan, as the lecturer spoke of the customs, dress and manner, etc., of his own people. He will return in a few months to his own country, and will proclaim to them a crucified Jesus, whom they ought to serve and worship, and we all wish him God-speed.

A series of meetings will be held in the German Baptist Brethren Church, in Union Bridge, commencing Sept. 1th. Elder Jos. A. Long, of York, Pa., is expected to do the preaching. Owing to the inclement weather last Sunday morning, the Harvest Thanksgiving service at Grace Reformed Church, was postponed until Sunday morning, (Aug. 19th.)

Some of the C. E. people are talking about having a union picnic. Let it be, suggests a pastor, in part a rallying point from which to start anew in the good work. Let us make this end of the county feel that there is a religious factor of power in the societies of Taneytown.

THE PEDDLER'S PRAYER.

There was a peddler who carried his wares from house to house in Scotland. One day, while upon his errands, he entered a cottage where a noble lady was visiting his inmates. Some conversation ensued, when the lady rather haughtily inquired of the peddler, "What! can you pray?"

"Well," said he, "I ken I can."

"Then kneel down at once," she cried, "let me hear you." Whereupon the man put his bag off his back, went upon his knees, and at once spoke thus to his God:

"O God, give me grace to need grace.
"O God, give me grace to ask for grace when I am given to feel my need of grace.
"O God, give me grace to receive grace when Thou givest the grace I need.
"O God, give me grace to show grace when I have received grace from Thee, whether I get grace shown to me or not."

We commend this prayer to every one who is endeavoring to walk through this world to the glory of God as one of the most practically beautiful expressions of dependence on God ever uttered.—Selected.

Business Locals.

GIRL WANTED.—To do cooking and general house work. No washing, $1.50 per week. Apply at the Elliot House, Taneytown.

NOTICE.

A few shares of the Capital Stock of the CARROLL RECORD Printing and Publishing Company yet remains for sale, the par value of which is $10.00 each. If we can judge from the present outlook, the success of the enterprise is assured, and this stock is likely to be a profitable investment. The directors desire to dispose of the shares at once, looking forward to making some additions to the present plant which may prove to be actually indispensable. If it is decided to make the improvement under contemplation, it is very probable that the certificates will all be taken by some of the present shareholders. While they last they may be secured by any one who wants them, from George A. Arnold, Treasurer.

TRUSTEE'S SALE.

IN THE POULTRY YARD.

Feathered Legs Are Troublesome—Kerosene in the Poultry House.

Numbered with the many things of general interest told in The Poultry World are the following: There is no economy in keeping roosters after the breeding season is passed, and economy is a necessity with the poulterer; also if one wishes to preserve eggs those from hens with a male will not keep so well as others.

Feathers on the legs of any breed are, or should be, considered a nuisance. They ought to be discarded as a "point" and eliminated by careful breeding.

Every drop of kerosene will spread over a spot as large as a silver dollar. Time is worth too much to spend it brushing oil on the roosts. Buy a small water pot with a fine rose. Put in it a quart of oil and sprinkle the roosts, floor and walls quickly. Two applications, a week apart, will make things blue for lice and mites.

If you clean up the buildings, don't stop there, but every nestbox and roost should be painted white with a mixture of strong lime and half a pint of crude carbolic acid to every bucket of liquid lime. Vermin can be kept out by such cleaning, but it should be done every two months during the summer.

There is more money and less trouble in producing eggs than in raising broilers or roasters. Eggs are a finished product and require no feeding and fussing with, no risk of loss, and at the last no bleeding, scalding and picking, as do chicks. All this work takes time and strength, articles in which many poulterers are deficient. Eggs bring cash at once without waiting. There is no danger of overproduction, as present offerings show.

Poultry vermin are at the bottom of more trouble among fowls than any other one thing. Many advise the direct killing of any bird that droops, because it seldom pays to doctor one. But many times a good hen acts sick because of the lice or mites which are preying upon her, and a good dusting with insect powder or greasing will put her to rights again so she will begin to lay.

Centralization of Crops.

With wheat at 60 cents in Chicago and little more than half that price in some sections of Oregon, The Oregonian thinks their farmers ought to try to relieve themselves of the tyranny of growing wheat as an exclusive crop. Not only wheat, but all crops are too much centralized, says Country Gentleman, authority for the following: Four states produce over 35 per cent of our wheat; four produce over 38 per cent of our corn; five, over 66 per cent of our rye; four, half the oats; two, 54 per cent of barley; two, 60 per cent of buckwheat; two, 57 per cent of tobacco; four, 80 per cent of flax; one (Kentucky) over 93 per cent of hemp. Yet some of these states differ widely in position and climate, and these products readily adapt themselves to varying conditions of climate and soil. This centralization of crops shows that farmers of the United States incline to grow the crops most easily raised, and which promise the quickest returns in money, without regard to the possible failure of the one crop or its fall in the market to a nonpaying price. When each section of the country shall produce a greater variety of things and be less dependent on a single staple, prosperity will be more general and unbroken. The movement toward decentralization has begun, but it should be more general and extensive.

Honey and Beeswax.

The census has revealed no material increase in the production of beeswax during the last 10 years, during which the honey product has gained nearly 150 per cent. This is explained by the more general use of the extractor, which greatly increases the product of honey per hive, while it discourages the building of comb. In 1879 but 12 states produced more than 1,000,000 pounds of honey each, while in 1890 there were 20 that produced more than that quantity—Iowa producing nearly 7,000,000, Illinois, Missouri and New York over 4,000,000, Texas, Wisconsin and California over 3,000,000 pounds. The United States imports no honey or beeswax, but in the nine months ended March 31, 1894, exported honey to the value of $117,571, or 10 times as much as was shipped abroad in the like period of the previous year.

Nitrogen and Ammonia Defined.

Many persons are puzzled to know whether "nitrogen" as it appears in the published analyses of the different brands of fertilizer is exactly synonymous with the term "ammonia." Rural New Yorker offers this explanation: Nitrogen is a single elementary substance. Ammonia is a combination of nitrogen and another substance called hydrogen. Hydrogen is the lightest gas known and is therefore ranked in weight as 1. Nitrogen weighs 14 times as much, volume for volume, and therefore ranks 14. Ammonia is composed of one part nitrogen and three parts hydrogen and therefore ranks 17 by weight. Therefore a pound of ammonia contains only fourteen-sevenths, or 82 2/3 per cent, of a pound of pure nitrogen.

Importance of the Silo.

The silo, briefly summed up, doubles the stock on the same farm. Doubling the stock doubles the amount of barnyard and stable fertilizers. Increasing manures increases production. Increase of production increases the value of the land. The silo drives away the man peddling cheap and adulterated fertilizers and saves the farmers this enormous tax.

APPLICATION OF FERTILIZERS.

Soluble Phosphates—Mineral Phosphates. Decomposing Bones With Soda Ash. In applying fertilizers to the soil soluble phosphates are most generally used, but cannot be utilized in that condition by plants, for if they were they would act corrosively upon their tender tissues. They revert to their original condition when applied to the soil, and they now are in the finest possible state of division. Thus writes a correspondent in the New York Tribune, who adds: When mineral phosphates are used, there is no difficulty in grinding them to an impalpable powder, and in this form applied to the soil they are more advantageous than when converted into a superphosphate, with the aid of sulphuric acid, which is both expensive and inconvenient to use.

By using the mineral phosphates finely ground there can be applied more than double the quantity of phosphoric acid to the soil at the same cost that there can be in using superphosphates. The plant will take up as much phosphoric acid the first year as it would from the superphosphates, and as much more will be left in the soil, available for further drafts upon it in after seasons, as it does not leach from the soil.

Bones and mineral phosphates can be decomposed and rendered soluble by alkalies as well as by acids, and are in this form better food plants, as they need alkalies as well as phosphoric acid, and the alkalies are not only food, but neutralize the acids of the soil and liberate other food for plants, putting the soil in its most favorable condition, with proper cultivation, to produce abundant crops. Bones or fine ground mineral phosphates, when composted with wood ashes in a moist state for a few weeks, are decomposed and are preferable for crops to the acid superphosphates. Most farmers have the wood ashes to use. If not, the same object is attained by the use of soda ash, an article of common use and easily obtained in any market, and now generally used by soap boilers in making soap.

To decompose bones or mineral phosphates with soda ash make a layer of bones or mineral phosphates, then a layer of the same number of pounds of fresh burned lime (water to be put on till it begins to slack), then a layer of the same number of pounds of soda ash, and so repeat until the quantity desired is obtained. Then wet it down with water, which will slack the lime and unite with the soda ash, making it caustic to act upon the phosphate and make phosphate of soda, which exists in the ashes of nearly all plants and is ever present in urine and other animal manure.

HOGS, CORN AND CASH.

The Swine as a Factor in American Agricultural Prosperity.

Never has the value of the hog crop to American farmers been more strikingly demonstrated than during the last 12 months. Throughout those long and anxious weeks of 1893, when bursting banks and financial wrecks were sweeping away millions every day, and during all the depression of the first half of 1894 good hogs were being grown, shipped to market and turned into cash in such astonishing numbers as to keep a veritable Niagara of hard cash—ready money—flowing out from the purses of packers and shippers into the pockets of western farmers, and this enormous quantity of pork has been produced at such a comparatively small cost that almost every pound of it has been sold—even through the very worst of the financial cyclone—at an actual profit to the producer. Can this be said of any other variety of live stock or of any crop of grain that has been on sale during this same value depressing period?

The simple fact is that the farmers of the west who live in sections where the corn crop never fails and rarely falls below an average yield have in this field of pork production a business which in their hands is surrounded by so many outstanding advantages that they can safely challenge the competition of the world. Myriad acres of land elsewhere can contribute toward swelling the volume of cattle, sheep and horses. India, Russia and Argentina can grow wheat so cheaply and in such quantities as to fairly ruin the American farmer who attempts to compete, but the sun does not shine on any land that produces the hog's own feed—Indian corn—in such lavish abundance, that has such perfect transportation and market facilities, such admirable packing plants, as these central western states. The hog is the one reliable money maker, the "rent payer," the "breadwinner," the "mortgage lifter" par excellence of the corn states. He may make more money for his owner some years than others. He may be overtaken at times by disease, but in the long run he always pays a handsome profit in any corn growing district. Other countries may grow "pigs" in comparatively small numbers, but nowhere outside of the United States can hogs making such astonishing weights at such an early age be produced in such enormous numbers at such slight cost. Only two weeks ago there were over 300,000 head bought and paid for at four primary receiving points in six days, and even that great "run" was absorbed without a "break." There is no overestimating the importance of the hog crop as a leading factor in American agricultural prosperity. We have virtually a monopoly of the world's markets so far as cheap pork of fine quality is concerned and should make the most of it.—Breeder's Gazette.

Shipping Cattle.

Mr. J. Ward Wilson tells how to ship cattle so that they will not shrink in weight as follows:

In trying to find out a better way than the usual custom of shutting off the grain feed 24 hours before shipping we shut off the water the evening before and gave them all the corn they could eat the morning they were to go. Having access to plenty of good hay all of the time, they were not disposed to eat much. Now, if you ever noticed, a change of food after a constant diet of one thing is relished by others than steers. We had fed a loaf of sheep oats one week, and noticing that they left everything else and stuck to the oats until consumed we concluded to fill the car racks with them. Having done so, we loaded 20 1,300 pound steers in each car and shipped them 300 miles with only 13 pounds shrinkage per head. At the end of their destination there was not a straw left, and we believe they would have eaten more if they had had it. It will be noticed that a stomach full of corn and oats caused them to drink better at the stockyards than if they had been salted at home. We never salt because it acts as a cathartic. This is a great item of economy. Try it.

Mules.

There is no falling off either in the demand or in the price for good mules of large size. For cultivating ground in the south the horse could not begin to take the place of the mule, particularly with negro labor. In the north, too, the mule could be utilized much more than is the case at present. It is harder than the horse, will eat anything almost, and its very obstinacy makes it steadier at the plow. It does not crush and trample growing plants in a field, as the horse does, for both its body and feet are smaller.

We had a nice refreshing rain on last Sunday. Up to that time it had been very dry, vegetation suffering greatly. The corn crop was greatly benefited thereby, and now promises to be a medium good crop. Farmers are about through with their plowing for next year's grain crop. About the usual number of acres will be sown notwithstanding the low price of wheat. The peach crop is an utter failure, and but very few apples, most of the trees having none on them. Apple-butter will be one of the things dreamed of, but not tasted.

Mrs. Shirk is entertaining 18 or 20 persons from Baltimore, at her place. Some of our local fishermen have been trying their skill with hook and line but report but indifferent success. Quite a lot of fish have been taken from "Big Pipe Creek" with seine, by Mr. Null and others.

A number of persons from Washington, Frederick, Westminster and Ohio, are visiting in the vicinity. Mt. Union Sabbath school will hold their picnic in J. Hamilton Repp's woods, along the Union Bridge and Middleburg road, about one mile from the latter place, on the 19th (this Saturday). The Union Bridge band will furnish the music. Also singing, by the school and addresses by several able speakers.

Our efficient teacher, Theo. M. Bufington, who has been sick for a month or more, is able to be about again, to the pleasure of his many friends. He takes charge of our school again this fall.

An Ugly Woman.

(Contributed) It was while at an evening ball, I saw a friend of mine. Since we last had met at all, The years had numbered nine.

While we were talking of the past, A lady dressed in silk, Walked by our chairs, with eyes aglaze,

Whose face,—"would sour milk." "Who can that homely woman be," I whispered to my friend,

"Never did I mortal see, As ugly as that fiend."

"Why Ed, that woman is my wife, And I'd have you to know, That beauty only lies skin deep," He said by no means slow.

"I will not have my wife abused," He sharply growled again,

"Great Scott! my friend" said I amused,

"Why don't you skin her then?" T. E. C.

Empty Seats.

"Are you going to church this morning, Sunday?" asked Mr. Clark, lying back in his chair with the morning paper. "A doctor who is out day and night can't be expected."

"No, I made jelly yesterday, and I'm tired; I'm faithful enough to stay at home this cloudy morning, and Mrs. Clark is the way on the couch with the Bible she had not opened for a week; but it soon dropped from her hand. She was aroused by a strange voice saying: "Now, my good lumps, what have you done to-day to weaken the kingdom of God?"

The voice came from a suspicious looking personage seated on a throne of human skulls. Around him was gathered a crowd of ferocious beings, each with a crown of fire, in which gleamed some of the words: Malice, Envy, Pride, Hatred and kindred passions.

"We have been busy to-day making empty seats in churches," began one.

"Nothing could please me better," answers the king.

"I persuaded one man that he had a headache, and kept him from a sermon that might have changed his old life," said one.

"I induced one good man to slip down to his store and fix up his books," said another, with a horrid grin.

"Good!" said the king. "He'll soon give up Sunday altogether."

"I was able to get one devoted young man to visit old friends," said one lump.

"I worried a good sister about her old bonnet until she decided to stay at home until she got a new one," spoke up the lump labeled "Pride."

"And I made several poor women, who were hungry for God's Word, stay at home to repine over their trials. I just said to them, "Oh, those rich people can't care for you; you can't wear fine clothes, so I wouldn't go where I was looked down upon."

He continued: "The way I kept many poor people at home the rich would have been glad to see."

"That is one of the best ways to cheat poor people out of heaven I know of," answered the king with approval.

"I induced a good many men and women to think that they were not strong enough to go out," said one called "Indifference."

"Of course all these men will be at business tomorrow, even if they were worse. But they could not go to church, where they would have no special mental or physical strain. And the ladies would have been able to clean house or go calling, but I made them think they couldn't walk to church unless they were perfectly well."

"Very good," said the king, with a sulphurous grin. "Sunday headaches might often be cured by getting out in the air, and headaches forgotten by thoughts drawn to higher things. But you lying lumps must use every weapon to get the flesh to help make empty seats."

"They all smiled, for in their kingdom lying was a great compliment. "I have a way of keeping people home from church, and they feel perfectly innocent about it," said one.

"I induce people to have company or go visiting on Sunday. Of course, this takes their minds off sacred things to begin with, and puts them on dressing and eating. Hired girls, mothers and older sisters have to stay at home to get big dinners. Many of the guests lose church to be in time for dinner."

"Anything to make empty seats," approved the king. "These people cannot be tempted by Sunday excursions but they are God's house just as easy in this way."

"To make ladies feel that their servants need no Sunday privileges is good," suggested one. "Very true," said his superior. "As long as we can get Christian people to cause or allow men and women to work during their church hours, we can keep many empty seats in churches, and men and women away from God."

"I am the weather imp," said one gloomy fellow. "I go around persuading people it is going to rain, or it is to cool, too damp, or too hot to venture out to church. It is enough to make even your gloomy majesty laugh to see these same people start out the next day in wind and weather. One would think it wise to carry umbrellas and wear gum coats to church."

"Confidentially," answered the king, "when I find a Christian who has no more concern about the weather Sunday than Monday—determined to make as much effort for spiritual gain as he would for worldly profit—I just give him up. It's no use to try to drag back the man or woman who goes to God's house in all kinds of weather."

"I'm able to do a good deal with some of the ladies of the congregation," spoke up the imp labeled "Fashion of this World." I can make some stay at home because their clothes are out of style, or they have not got a new coat."

"I have a letter scheme than that," said another. "These people they keep away are indifferent—generally good-for-nothing folks who are hardly worth getting into the kingdom of the Six States in the first place, but I have a plan that empties seats of the workers in the church."

"That's just what I want," said the king.

"I make these people overwork on Saturday. For instance, get some good man the preacher's daughter, or some devout Sunday school teacher, to make Saturday the busiest day in the week. I just keep him rushed with neglected things till late at night and then he over-sleeps or is sick the next day, and can't get out, or if he goes, is too tired and sleepy to take part or even listen."

"Splendid plan," cried Satan.

"Yes, it works well with delicate women. If they clean house, or have Saturday night company, they can be kept home without knowing that they have broken the Sabbath the day before. A church party late Saturday night helps with empty seats."

"You are doing finely, my lumps," his majesty said, "warmly, or his breath was a flame of fire. "Preachers may work and pray over their sermons all the week, but there will be no results in preaching to empty seats. One of the most important things we have to consider is how to keep people away from churches on Sunday. Your plans are excellent, but I might suggest another good point. All preachers have human imperfections—some fault or manner of speech. Get Christians to criticize their pastor, especially before their children. This keeps good people from wanting to be church members. If you can stir up a spirit of fault-finding against the preacher, or among the members, it will help make empty seats. People who get mad at each other do not care to go to church together. If the seats are empty, the minister may be a saint and preach like an angel to no purpose. See the results of your labor at—Church to-day. Not only did the two hundred people who stayed at home lose a blessing, but each empty seat did its work against the Lord's kingdom. The preacher made unusual preparation, and went with his heart on fire, but the empty seats chilled him, and he did poorly. The preacher made special collection, but the best gifts were away so it was a failure. It isn't a smart preacher, or a rich congregation, nor a paid choir that makes a successful church. It is the church members always being there that draws in the unconverted and makes an eloquent preacher. As soon as a Christian begins to stay at home, from one excuse or another, I know I have a mortgage on his soul, which, if he does not shake off, I will foreclose in the Judgment Day."

"You have none on mine," cried Mrs. Clark, who had been listening with bated breath; "I'll go o church, if only to defeat you."

"What's the matter, dear?" asked the doctor. "Have you been dreaming?" "Perhaps so, but I'm going to church if I get to my seat just in time for the benediction. I'll cheat Satan from this day out of one empty seat." And she has kept her word.

The Great Pie Cure.

A writer in the Morning Herald contributes the following:

"I wonder if any of your many readers are afflicted with the habit of requiring five or six drinks a day to keep them going and want to break off from the habit? If so, I have a remedy (which I have tested with the best of results), and I give it to them, through you, for their benefit. The prescription, in brief, is: eat pie, and, if not pie, sandwiches; but pie is preferable. When the hawking for the first morning brace comes, no matter whether it is just before or just after breakfast, lie yourself straightway to the nearest dairy in your city and get a wedge of your favorite flavoring—apple and sweet potato are both excellent. Don't mince it a little at a time, but swallow it in gulps, just like it was your first nip of the day. Then walk leisurely out and seek your pie, which if it sits well, is a drink. The appetite will generally answer in the negative; but, if it answers affirmatively, why, apply another wedge, and relief from the craving will be instantaneous. Those who are inclined to try this method will note the following results: First, For a few days pie or sandwich diet will hamper your appetite for dinner, and possibly supper. But when you go home at night you will not be smelling like a third-rate bar room, and, in detesting, say, the price of four slices of pie at 5 cents each from the price of six drinks at 15 cents each, you will have literally picked up 70 cents in the street and will have a wonderful amount of satisfaction in knowing that you have gotten the best of your stomach, which undoubtedly your king. In time your stomach will give up the fight, and you can decrease your pie doses, and you will soon be your normal self again. When you are once cured, say cured, and, if you cannot say so, why, say: "I'll take pie or nothing."

Not Ashamed of His Record.

"While waiting at a railroad station not many miles distant from Utica the other day for an east bound train," said a man, "a train passed going west. As the end of the train pulled out of the station a man with unusually long legs was seen running into one end of the depot and out of the other to the platform. He started at the end of the train as a lively gait. He carried two grips, one in either hand, and they swung to and fro in a laughable manner. On he went, and on the train went. He gained on the train at first, but the train was all the time picking up, and he finally stopped. He walked back leisurely, the onlookers at the depot waiting till he came up to give him the laugh. As he approached they he dropped his grips, quietly put his hand in his pocket, pulled out a roll of bills, selected a $10 note and exclaimed: "I'll bet $10 there is not a man in this whole crowd who can catch that train!"

"Of course there were no takers, nor did any one laugh at him for failing to catch the train himself either,"—Utica Observer.
