Curious Old Books.

Mr. E, O. Garner, of Copperville has left at our office four old account books, two of which are very interest One is an officer's account book, kept by George Creager, sheriff of V. T. Delaplane.

Mayor Schieren, of Brooklyn, was in counts, and signatures to receipts, of a number of county officials at that time. To an autograph collector the book would be almost priceless, as it contains three signatures of Roger B.
Taney, and two of Francis Scoti Key:
also a number of signatures of Lawrence Brengle, Wm. Clements, Henry Howard, Roger Nelson, Daniel Clark, Joshua Dorsey, J. Hanson Thomas, Richard Brooke, Arthur Shaaf, E. Rickson H. Stone, Nathaniel Rochest er and Jacob Boyer; all of the receipts are dated from 1804 to 1807 and are of the following form.

Received May 28th, 1805. of George Creager, Sheriff, nineteen pounds, seventeen shillings, and eleven pence half penny, being the balance of my account of fees put into his hands for collection in 1804.

R. B. TANEY. All the accounts are in £. s. d. and are as clear and legible as if just entered. The pound value was $2.6%. All the entries are not understood, but in all probability would be, by an old

We find that David Kephart, of District No. 21, received in 1805, £12., or $32., which W. P. Englar, Mr. and Mrs. Jo cases indecipherable, but we can make out the following; David Kemp, Joseph Staley, John Lugenbeel, John Frey, John Klay, Christian Shoemaker, Henry, Poodman, Christian Shoemaker, Henry, Poodman, Christian Shoemaker, Henry, Poodman, Christian Shoemaker, Henry, Poodman, Christian State Ecker, Annie R. John McKaleb, Dr. To W. Ritchie 181. John Gwinn 3— 381. 3-Another old account book among very interesting, is a book kept by his great grand father Jacob Appler who was a farmer and a man of con siderable prominence at that time, and lived on and owned the farm now owned by Mr. Alfred Englar, at Pipe Creek, near Winter's church. The title to the book is as follows: "Iacob Apler, his book of accounts, May the first, Anno Domino 1793." The first 25 pages are in German and likely contains an account of work done by him for others, or is an account kept between him and persons working for him. Then follow a few pages of German and English mixed and about 20 pages refer almost wholly to dealngs in hides and leather, which seem to show that Mr. Appler was a tanner. This covers a period from 1802 to 1814.

The later entries in the book are chiefly interesting because of the complete record of four Public Sales of personal property. The first was on April 20, 1818. The terms of the sale were as follows; "The terms of lars and upwards, the purchaser giv ing note with approved security. sums below $5.00 must be cash. article to be removed without first having complied with the above conditions." Among the items of the sale we find charged to John Beplat, 10 bushels of oats at 63c. per bushel; Philip Englar, 2 tables $1.92; Ludevick Engelman, 1 bureau $15; Wm. Atwood, bushel buckwheat $1.02; Henry Riley, clock case $7.00; Wm. Cox, 20 bushels rye at $1.13; Abram Appler, 11 cows ranging in price from $20. to $35.; Abram Appler, 1 bed $14.; Sam uel Plaine, looking glass $6.65; Jacob Christ, 5 books averaging 90c; Jacob Shriner, dutch oven, 50c; Christian Senseney, spinning wheel 55c; Abram Appler, wagon and four horses with all the gears $700; &c., &c.

The facts disclosed by the evidence are about as follows: Robert Hill was chastising one of his children, without provoca-The child songht protection from its mother, and though she offered no interference, Hill became enraged at his wife, and began beating her unmercifully, when the accused came in with a revolver and fired at her father. The ball entered the base of his skull, killing him instantly Cordelia is only about eleven years old. She had never had a firearm in her hands before; yet the one used is a self-cocking revolver, and she was standing at least six feet from her father when she fired the fatal shot. She has displayed no emotion since the occurrence, and was perfectly cool during the trial.

More About Edna Brown.

Miss Edna Brown, of Kaneville, now has a national reputation, and a letter addressed to her without adding the town, county, or state, would likely reach her. Mrs. Edna Garman, is her correct name as she is married to a young blacksmith, but Edna Brown is her stage name, so to speak.

But this was only a beginning; it fairly rained letters, until the stage was filled with stuffed mail bags, and the postmaster was compelled to hire an assistant, although his salary does not amount to over $250. a year.

After the mail is distributed the floor of the postoffice is covered with stamps which sift out of boxes and bundles. These, it is needless to say, never see the light of Edna Brown's countenance. They are shoveled into the stove. Some of the letters even contain money orders, sent by sympathetic lunatics. Often whole sheets of stamps are sent just as they came from the postoffice except with fully taught by Mr. A. Williams, visit- an ink line drawn through. The Pope has received from the president of the Transvaal Republic a liamond weighing 971 carats. The stone was found by an African chief in the mines at Jagersfontein and is the largest known. The defeat of Senator Dolph for reelection was regarded as good news by the members of the press gallery. The Oregon Senator was an avowed enemy of the Washington correspondent who refused to see in Mr. Dolph a great man. A few years ago Mr. Dolph as chairman of an investigating committee attempted to compel the correspondents to tell how they learned the secrets of executive

It is stated in the Chinese papers that the Japanese have placarded Pekin with notices that they will not interfere with the business of the place or any of the peaceable inhabitants; that they expect to be there shortly, and the people are not to be afraid that they will molest or annoy them in any way. They further offer a reward of 400 yen for any information that may lead to the detection of any person who shall have pulled down these placards. The Chinese officials, it is stated, are afraid to order the removal of the placards.

Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan who floated President Cleveland's late bond issue, is a man who emphatically means what he says. His wealth is estimated at $40,000,000, and it is said that he gives more in charity than any man in the United States. In his home life he is good-natured and agreeable, but when down town is brusque and reserved, as a means of defense, as he is a great mark for the interviewer and charity seeker, and it is said that he can freeze a bore quicker than any man in the city.

> Postmaster General Bissell has at last placed his long talked of resignation in the hands of the President, to take effect on the appointment of his successor. The rumors that there have been personal differences between him and the President. seem to be wholly without foundation, and the resignation is because the position is not an agreeable one to him, and his law practice more luciative. A number of persons are spoken of for the position, among them, representative Wilson, of W. Va., and General Tracy, of New York. (The President on Thursday, sent to the Senate the name of Hon. W.

L. Wilson for the appointment.)

The sensation of the week in the Senate was the charge made by Senator Gorman and supported by carefully prepared figures, showing that Secretary Carlisle's statement of the condition of the Treasury contained a blunder amounting to over $30,000, 000, and that there would be a deficit at the end of the year of $60,000,000. THE RUSH with which the new $62, 000,000 loan was gobbled up, makes us feel that the credit of this country is of a pretty high standard, and shows too that congress was not wholly to blame for causing the government to pay more interest on the loan than was necessary. If the method of placing the bonds on the market had been open and above board and investors been given a fair show, the 104 price would have been considerably increased.

Telephone Connections.

The telephone question is again being agitated with prospects of a system which will connect all the principal county towns with Westminster. Heretofore the high rates which have been demanded by the Chesapeake and Potomac Company has operated against the extension of the system, and at a number of places to which the present company had extended its line, there are now no phones, on account of the charges being to high to justify persons to subscribe for them.

Taneytown would undoubtedly furnish a number of customers; how many, would depend on the price of the instruments, and that it would be a very desirable addition to the conveniences of our town, goes without saying. One public telephone here, in addition to those which would be regularly subscribed for, would likely do quite a considerable amount of business, providing there are numerous connections.

We presume that we will hear more about the matter in the near future, and hope that our business men and others will in the meantime think over the matter, so as to be able to talk business when the time comes.

Water works, telephone connections, and electric lights, are now in demand. Let us try to have all three during the year.

A successful soldier, he was inferior in military genius to the The FARM JOURNAL, a leading monthly marvelous Corsican conqueror. A successful statesman, he was surpassed in intellectual fertility and insight by his first Secretary of the Treasury Alexander Hamilton. A successful ruler, he lacked the commanding energy of Chatham. It was not in the possession of such gifts that Washington's greatness chiefly lies. The secret of his achievements and influence is to be found mainly in his moral qualities.

A Washington revival has not been attempted. It is not needed. No character of history stands on such a high plane as George Washington. Napoleon was melodramatic, a great lous. BARREL CHURN.

This Form Is Extremely Popular In the Home Dairy.

The illustration shows a favorite form of churn where the work is all done at home by hand. Nobody who is anybody now uses the old fashioned dasher churn, It is too back breaking.

It explains itself. It swings and oscillates and brings the butter. Whether one is a believer or disbeliever in washing butter, he will stop churning when the butter is in the granular state, the size of grains of wheat. Then the buttermilk is drawn carefully off. Some good butter makers dash water cooled to 62 degrees upon the grains of butter and then turn the barrel churn over a dozen times more. Although the churns usually do not provide for it, it is well to have a strainer of somewhat coarse wire noon, at 2.30 o'clock, beginning with the first beneath the buttermilk vent to catch the Sunday in December.—Subbath School one lumps of butter that would otherwise hour before church service.—C. Curing Cheese.

The question that I am to consider is how to cure and perfect a well made St. Joseph's Catholic Church.-Mass 9 a. m. full cream cheese after it comes from the press. My opinion is that a cheese to be properly cured should be exposed to a temperature varying according to its age. For the first 12 to 15 days a this cold cream is that the cream will be temperature of 75 degrees will not injure a well made hay cheese, but for a cheese not made on hay the temperature should not go above 70 degrees nor fall below 68 degrees. From the fifteenth to the twenty-fifth day the temperature should range from 65 degrees to 68 degrees, from the twenty-fifth to the thirty-fifth day the temperature should be from 60 degrees to 65 degrees and after | that time rather than to have a "light that not above 55 degrees.

So much for the temperature. An-So much for the temperature. Another consideration is the question of ter the cream should be just on the moist or dry air for curing rooms, and point of turning, or what is more often called ripened, and before it takes on the meets in Eckenrode's Hall, Thursday Even-ning of the factory system the curing acid flavor.—E. But the question is, Are we far enough away | be more popular in Great Britain than from those miserable old fashions?

The old name of dryrooms, I think, sey. The Jersey has been so developed is a very great misnomer. We do not for butter in this country that she prewant a dryroom. We want a curing | sents a distinct American form. The ilroom, a moist air instead of a dry one. Cheese will be more perfect in flavor if cured in a moist air. Furthermore, just in accordance with the dryness of the room will be the thickness of the cheese shell or rind, which is a total waste, for no one cares to eat it.

Cheese cured in moist air will mold to a certain extent. Now, I know that cheesemakers are much afraid of mold. They do hate to see it on their cheese. But mold does not hurt cheese, except in appearance. Let cheesemakers put more work on their cheese. Let them rub them more and keep the mold off in that way. Do not open the cheeseroom to the outdoor air on the first appearance of a little mold. Of course at certain times and under certain conditions cheeserooms need ventilation. But on this point I would say to the cheesemaker: Stand the mold as long as you can and keep your cheese decent in appearance. If you have never tried the effect of extreme rubbing, try it .- Address of Madison Cooper.

Apple Pomace For Cows.

The pomace from a cider mill is exceedingly acceptable to cows and horses as well. It is also healthful if not given to excess. One peck a day may be fed with advantage to cows in milk as well as dry ones. Indeed apples are so desirable a food for all animals that it will pay well to plant some of the sweet kinds especially for them and to keep a stock on hand all the winter for this

Creamery. With the deep setting or Cooley sys-4@4½c tem it is necessary to have the temperabe set as soon as it is drawn from the John McKellip. cows and before it has any opportunity to get cool. The temperature of the water may be at any point near 40 degrees. Varying a little above or below would be no disadvantage, but it should not be higher than 42 or 43 degrees, and it is better to have it 40 degrees or below. If the cows from which the milk is drawn are fed on ensilage largely and the milk be set before it has an oppor all the cream.

If the cows are fed on dry feed and grain and have been in milk some time, then it is an advantage to dilute the milk before it is set with hot water at a temperature of from 120 to 130 degrees, which should raise the temperature of the milk to about 105 degrees. Then stir the milk and water thoroughly together and submerge the cans in water as quickly as possible. This process, if carefully followed, will separate the cream thorough ly from the milk. I am aware that some of the experiment stations have stated that there is no advantage in diluting the milk for the thoroughness of the separation, but a careful examination of these reports will show that they have used methods of their own in the dilution, and not such as are recommended by the manufacturers of the Cooley creamers and have been successfully used by dairymen who have followed the instructions of the inventor.

In the open setting the cream is ripened while being raised, and therefore is ready for churning when taken from the pans, but in the Cooley or submerged process the cream has been kept in a perfect state and has not changed at all. Therefore it must be ripened after it is taken from the cans in the creamer. One of the best ways for doing this is to have a cream pail with a close cover and with an agitator, a thimble through the cover for the handle of the agitator and a cover on the thimble. When each mess of cream is poured into this pail, the agitator should be moved up and down once or twice, so as thoroughly to mix the mess of cream last put in with the cream already there. This should be done at each skimming and when new cream is poured in, so that the cream will ripen evenly. It should be kept in a room that is somewhere from 60 to 70 or 75 degree

The day before churning, unless the dairy is large enough to churn every day, no cream should be put into this pail, but another pail should be used so as to give all the cream an opportunity to ripen thoroughly. If the cream of the last day or the last mess be put in be fore churning and not given an opportunity to ripen, it will not churn so easily as the older cream, the old cream coming to butter before the new, and the new largely running off with the buttermilk, so that a very large proportion of the cream of the last skimming might be lost. The advantage of not putting any cream into the mess that is to be churned later than 24 hours preceding the churning will be readily

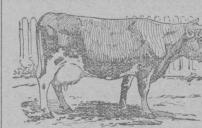

Another advantage of not putting in churned more readily than if the cold cream is put in. I have known cream to be delayed in churning several hours by putting cold, unripened cream into the other mess, while without it the mess would have been churned in what is con sidered the best time, somewhere from 30 to 40 minutes. It is pretty generally conceded that it is better to be about ning" churn, and churn in a few min

The following history of Piney Creek church is taken from a centennial address, delivered by the Rev. Wm. Simonton D. D., now pastor of the Emmitsburg Presbyterian church, at Piney Creek church, and entitled 'Historical sketch of the Presbyterian churches of Emmitsburg and

On the 13th., of April, 1783, Pipe Creek asked leave to apply the Presbytery of New conductin ejecting George Hockensmith, wife and children, with beds and furniture, under a heavy rain, despite all said Hockensmith's entreaties to give him two or three days, the presbytery of New conductin ejecting George Hockensmith, wife and children, with beds and furniture, under a heavy rain, despite all said Hockensmith's entreaties to give him two or three days, the presbytery of New conductin ejecting George Hockensmith, wife and children, with beds and furniture, under a heavy rain, despite all said Hockensmith's entreaties to give him two or three days, and the presbytery of New conductin ejecting George Hockensmith, wife and children, with beds and furniture, under a heavy rain, despite all said Hockensmith's entreaties to give him two or three days, and the presbytery of New conductin ejecting George Hockensmith, wife and children, with beds and furniture, under a heavy rain, despite all said Hockensmith's entreaties to give him two or three days, and the presbytery of New conducting apply to the Presbytery of New Brunswick for a young man to supply the people. The answer to the retime for his children to eat a mouthquest is not recorded, but the Rev. Rob't McMordie was appointed to preach at Pine Creek on the fourth Sabbath of April. From this time the name of Pipe Creek disappears and in the following year the church and in the following year the church is called Piney Creek, and it has continued to bear that name. From this date also begins the existence of Piney Creek as a regularly organized congregation; whether it changed its place of worship at the same time is place of worship at the year 1764.

Presbytery appointed a committee to investigate the charges. They found they were not sustained and passed these resolutions. "Resolved that the Presbytery declare their high disapprobation of the conduct of Wm. Emmit, in instituting and presecuting charges evidently unplace of worship at the same time is not known. During the year 1764, Pliney Creek was supplied by Wm. Edmeston and John Slemons, licentiates of Donegal Presbytery, by Wm. A controversy arose between the three first named as to the boundary lines between their respective congregations. The Presby-tery decided "That a line being drawn straight from Marsh Creek meeting house to that of Toms Creek, a line crossing that line at right angles at the end of 41 miles from Marsh Creek meeting house, and extending on one side to Toms Creek, and on the other till it entersects Piney Creek congregation, shall be the division line between said congregations. And that the division line between Marsh Creek congregation and that of Piney Creek shall be midway between the Monocacy and a certain stony ridge, nearly two and one fourth millions. crossing Marsh Creek at James Hall's plantation, and crossing Monocacy between Widow Wilson's and Wm. Russell's." The Presbytery in 1771 rendered a decision which satisfied all parties. Between 1765 and 1770 Piney Creek and Toms Creek were supplied by ministers appointed by the Presbytery among them were Andrew Bay, John Slemons, John Craighead, Hezekiah James Balch, Samuel Thomson and Robert Cooper. In October 1770, Piney Creek asked for the appointment of Rev. Joseph Rhea "in particular" as supply, and asked that some member of the Prsbytery be deputed to assist in the preparation of a call to Rev. Mr. Rhea. The commissioners from Piney Creek were Patrick Watson and Matthew Galt. They stated that subscriptions amounting to £110 or *£112 had been secured for Mr. Rhea's support; that if he became pastor, they proposed to mantain his family for the first year in addition to his salary; and that this agreement had been entered on record in their "Book of congregational affairs." A committee was appointed by the Presbytery which met at Toms Creek on the 4th. Tuesday of June, 1771. This committee dissolved the union be tween Toms Creek and Piney Creek and placed the call from Piney Creek in Mr. Rhea's hands. He accepted it and was shortly after installed and entered on his duties as pastor.

The representatives from Piney Creek before this committee were Patrick Watson, Abraham Heyter. Benjamin McKinley, James Galt and James Hunter. Piney Creek had now for the first time a settled pastor. Mr. Rhea tendered his resignation in April 1776. Soon afterwards the Presbytery dissolved the pastoral relation. Mr. Rhea died September 20th., 1777, and was buried in Piney Creek grave yard. Last spring when I was in Baltimore, a minister, Rev. Mr. Vance, of Tennessee, who is tor of a Presbyterian church in Baltimore, asked me about his grave, and said he was a descendant of Mr. can be converted in to armed cruisers Rhea's of the fourth generation.

The date when the first church was built at Piney Creek, is not known, but it was before 1771. The deed conveying the ground on which the church is built is dated February 15th., 1771. It conveys the ground and the house built upon it to the trustees. It was given for a consideration of 5 shillings, by Abraham Heyter of Frederick county, province of Maryland, to Patrick Watson, James Galt and John McCorkle, of the same county and province, and James Barr and James Hunter of York County, province of Pennsylvania, in trust for a church and bury-Piney Creek, delivered at Piney Creek church, July 27th., 1876, with an appendix." Dr. Simonton was then pastor of the churches at Emmitsburg, Piney Creek and Taney-town

Frederick county.

In shape it was a parallelogram with lines running north and south 20 other, and taken in connection with the records of the Donegal Presbyterian the records of the Donegal Presbyterian churches in this neighborhood then belonged; the minutes of the Presbytery of Carlisle; the minutes of the General Assembly, and various books and articles by different persons, a pretty full account of the church is given by Dr. Simonton from 1761. It is entirely too long for newspaper publication, and although all of it is interesting, I can only condense it for this series of articles.

The S. C. E. in Europe.

The Rev. F. E. Clark, President of the United Society of Christian En-deavor, has returned from Europe greatly improved in health. He reports much interest in the work throughout Germany and Scandinavia. In Germany, several societies have already been formed. In Great Britain, Mr. Clark addressed several large gatherings of young people. He found the enthusiasm for the society quite as great there as in America. In England the Baptist lead the society meeting houses of said congrega-tions." This definitely settled the boundaries of Marsh Creek and Toms Creek but not between Toms Creek | national convention to be held in and Piney Creek. The Toms Creek church claimed Monocacy as the natural boundary, while the Piney Creek church claimed Monocacy as the much interest across the water, and an excursion from Ireland is proposed. Russel Sage as a Target.

One of the moving features of New York life is the delight that the public takes in an assault that may be made on Russel Sage, the septuagen-arian millionaire. He is the one very rich man in New York with whom the New York public has no sypathy whatever. The Vanderbilts, the whatever. The Vanderbilts, the Goulds, and, in a lesser degree, the Astors, are in a way popular. Sage is the reverse. People were turned away on the occasion of the last suit brought against Sage by his former clerk, Laidlaw, who was so badly in jured on the occasion when Norcross, the dynamite crank, tried to blow Sage up with a bomb. Laidlaw has always contended that Sage used him as a shield, and so saved himself. A jury thought the same way, and gave the clerk substantial damages. Sage appealed, and a new trial was order-

Few witnesses have ever been so Joseph H. Choate, the great lawyer, who is by long odds the most vitriotic cross-examiner at the New York bar. He lashed Sage without mercy, using all his knowledge of level trick and large tricks and large tri all his knowledge of legal trick and device to say cutting things without falling under the displeasure of the presiding judge. Every barb of wit and sarcasm was met by laughter from those present in the court room and it was all that the court officers and it was all that the court officers could do to keep down open applause. The aged financier stood to his guns manfully, but those who looked on would not give him credit for his pluck. They put it down as lack of feeling. Most men would have paid the damages in the case rather than stand what Sage was forced to stand what Sage was forced to stand stand what Sage was forced to stand. But the veterau of Wall St. is not that sort of a man. When he gets money he holds on it. His lawyers' bills are already greater than the sum fashion." In this appreciation of the give in. -N. Y. Under Mighty Heavy Bonds.

Is this here country still the land we used to call the "free"? Now, that's the leadin' question that's a-both-erin' o' me! We're fond o' talkin' freedom from the ocean to the ponds,

But they're puttin' of this country
under mighty heavy bonds!

Is this here country solid still? Ain't somethin' goin' wrong?
The people—they've stopped singin'

of the hallelujah song; An' they're mournin' in the meadows fer the money that absconds,

It's hard to hear a jingle in the country or the town;
An' there's mighty little freedom from the ocean to the ponds,
An' the reason is, this country's under mighty heavy bonds!

See a Nail don't Pick it Up. Mr. William Garrett made recently the statement that wire nails are now sold so cheaply that if a carpenter drops a nailit is cheaper to let it lie than to stoop and pick it up, and it is claimed that one keg out of five is never used, but goes to waste. A statistician figuring this out, and assuming that it takes a carpenter ten seconds to pick up a nail, and that his time is worth 30 cents an hour, remarks that the recovery of the nail he has dropped would cost .083c. The money value of the nail is .0077c.; that is, it would not pay to pick up ten nails of it took ten seconds of time worth 30 cents an hour. Ordinary men who are not very quick can, however, pick up a nail on a moderately clean floor in five seconds. Assuming that this is a better average than the ten seconds, and that we are paying the carpenter only 25 cents an hour, it will still cost to recover the nail .0347c., which is nearly five times the value of an individual nail. There is, therefore, a considerable factor of safety in the original calculation, and we are bound to be-lieve that it will not pay to pick up nails. Such a calculation brings out clearly the marvellous reduction in prices due to inventive genius. The lurking fallacy is that while it may not pay to stoop for each nail, it still may be worth while for an economical man at the end of his work to stoop down once and sweep up in a single handful the nails he has been dropping all day .- St. Louis Globe Demo-

People who wanted to know what the temperature was were using telecopes to see how far down the mercury had gone, and the wind was so sharp that every man's face was as red as if he had just been "blown off." How to Cure Rheumatism.

ARAGO, COOS CO., OREGON, Nov. 10, 1893.—I wish to inform you of the great good Chamberlain's Pain Balm has done my wife. She has been troubled with rheumatism of the arms and hands for six months, and has tried many remedies prescribed for that complaint, but found no relief until she used this Pain Balm; one bottle of which has completely cured her. I take pleasure in recommending it for that trouble. Yours truly A. Bullord. 50 cent and $1.00 bottles for sale by R. S. McKinney, Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

A Belgian inventor has devise an immense lamp such as has probably never been seen before. It is composed of 3,000 pieces, six feet high, and measures 7.10 feet in diameter. It is fed with lard oil, and the consumption is said to be very small. Its light is so powerful that one may read by it at a distance of 600 feet.

The Writers Froude Liked. "Whom do you rank as the first of modern English prose writers?" asked Mr. Froude as we were strolling one afternoon in Chelsea. Had Lord Tennyson suddenly demanded to know whom I thought to be the greatest poet of the day I could not have been more dumfounded. Noting my hesitation and perhaps guessing its cause, Mr. Froude quickly added: "Ah! I naturally thought you would say Ruskin, who is certainly a master of descriptive writing, at his best exquisite. Newman, too (and Matthew Arnold in a lesser degree), had lucidity and the gift of irony, but lacked glow and color. To me he is always cold. My own favorite is Charles Lamb."

Seeing that I was greatly interested, he went on to point out the beauties of "Dream Children" and then quoted the 1st.-Apply at the RECORD office for lovely passage in "The New Year's Eve" beginning, "And you, my midnight darlings, my Folios."
