JEROME K. JEROME has written a series of short stories for The Ladies' Home Journal. They will be published during the ensuing few months, under the caption of "Stories of the Town." Mr. Jerome portrays wellknown types or characters in these stories, the first of which he calls "Blase Billy." The series is interesting from the fact that it constitutes the first short stories that Mr. Jerome has ever written directly for an American periodical.

MR. HARRY M. CLABAUGH, Attorney-General-elect of Maryland, says the public schools should be entirely taken out of politics and in this opinion all the leading Republicans of the State, who have expressed an opinion on the subject, concur. There should be an entire revision of the school law and as the Republican party is pledged to free books and other reforms, the people will expect it to carry out its platform promises. -Balt. Co. Union.

THE NAME OF Robert T. Lincoln has been mentioned for years as a president possibility. He is reported to have said recently "I can imagine no greater misfortune to befall me than to become President of the United States. The honor is in the abstract. If the president was merely confined to the executive duties of the office, that might be all right. But I know what its cares are. I know all there is in politics. Even to the clerks in the offices the president is consulted and bothered. He is pestered to death by every man who has a friend in congress or in Wash. ington, or other places, who are supposed to have any influence."

THE Sun of last Monday, in reproducing an editorial paragraph from important than that, which will tax the RECORD, heads it "The Carroll to the utmost the combined wisdom Record, democratic." We have always of the law-makers of the coming sesbut this is a break which has a tendency to make us doubtful, and keep an eye eternally open for mistakes, even on the part of our luminous contemporary. "Democratic," does not fit at all. The RECORD has no politics, for purely business reasons, and it has not heretofore considered it necessary to hang out any sign, but, if such mistakes are going to happen, it may be best to inaugurate a change. We are always ready to make improvements.

THE BALTIMORE World is handsomely advertising the Sun, by publishing frequently, lengthy editorials, evidently intended to sarcastically criticise the consistency and honesty of the Sun in political, and certain other matters. This sort of thing seldom amounts to much. In tion returns by a State Loard of canthis instance, while very many people likely find some fault with the Sun, its good qualities so decidedly outshine the objectionable ones, that it has no need to lose any sleep because some wordy critic feels like "spreading himself." The World tries hard to provoke the other city papers into taking some account of it, but does not meet with much success. Its remarks about General Agnus of the American, in connection with the senatorship, are both silly and uncalled for, and unworthy of space in any paper which pretends to cater to the patronage of intelligent people.

Stop Thief!

The RECORD has heretofore had an idea that it did its full share of stealing, but it has always been a consolation, and a balm to the editorial conscience, to know that the burglarizand wealthy city contemporaries, traced directly to the ballot clerks.

This is not by any means the only complaint we have. Other papers elip frequently from the RECORD, to which we have not the slightest objection, but, when lengthy articles are re-printed, as they frequently are, and no credit given to our papernot even occasionally-it is somewhat exasperating, to say the least. This does not apply to all our exchanges; many of them give credit very fairly, while others cautiously and stingily ise the word "exchange," but many steal right and left, apparently with-

The candidacy of Hon. George L. Wellington for the Senatorial nomination from this state, is receiving considerable comment, all of which is not favorable or complimentary. There is a decided feeling, that, while he has shown himself to be an able and valuable man, he has already been very well taken care of, and that there are others whose claims to recognition are just as strong, and whose selection would likely be better for the party, and equally as good for the country at large.

That the republican party has an immense job on hand, if it would carry out the pledges of its platform, is a fact which needs no comment; and, if it is to be hampered in addition, with an undignified and demoralizing contest for office, the efforts of those who desire to legislate for the greatest good of the whole people, will be embarrassed beyond computation. There is certainly more than enough work for the ninety days of the session of the legislature, of an character, therefore, ambitious politicians should patriotically politicians should patriotically politicians should patriotically politicians. ticians should patriotically refrain from causing any diversion which may interfere with the united and unselfish devotion to the interests of the state, of the people elected to leg-

Whether Mr. Wellington, or some other able man, secures the senatorial seat, is a question which can very properly be left to the joint session to settle when the right time comes. There are other questions far more mitted to interfere.

A NEW ELECTION LAW. Changes Proposed by a Reform League Committee

A committee of the Baltimore Re form League has prepared and print ed the election law which it proposes to submit to the Maryland Legislature at the session of 1896

A bill drawn upon the same lines has heretofore been presented, but this one has been changed and improved in some inportant particulars. The new draft differs from the present election law of the state in many respects. Those who prepared it collected and examined the election laws of nearly all the States and selected features which commended themselves as practical and good.

The proposed law begins at the very beginning with the appointment of election commissioners in May and ends with the canvassing of the elecresult. Added to this is a offenses and penalties and a few miscellaneous provisions. The principal changes proposed in the bill are as follows: Annual registration in the city and quadrennial registration in the coun-

Officers of registration to be judges of election in counties and city: increasing the number of registrars as each polling place in the counties from one to three.

No assistance to be given to the voter in marking his ballot unless he shall state under oath the reason for asking assistance when he is register ed, which reason shall be entered upon the registration book.

Election commissioners to be appointed by the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore and by the county commissioners of the counties instead of by the Governor.

The abolition of the ballot clerks. The last-mentioned change is the most important of all. Many of the crimes and corrupt practices which have been charged against the actual conduct of elections since the Austraing has nearly all been from our fat lian system has been adopted are proper proportion of pumpkin to the milk. This difference is undoubtedly due to the different method of boiling pumpkin and straining it for pies, some methods retaining more moisture than others. Some cook books give double the quantity of pumpkin to a quart of milk in two different recipes. Manifestly there must be sufficient pumpkin to secure a well-flavored pie, but not enough to make it hard. I is a mistake to peel pumpkin. A great deal of sweetness and flavor, as well as color, lies in the Select a moderate size "Connecticut field" pumpkin. The newer light-skinned varieties of pumpkin are mongrel squashes and are not as small pieces without peeling it. Scrape out the stringy part inside and put about a pint of boiling water over it, if it is a moderate-sized pumpkin. Let the pumpkin cook rather slowly and it will soon be covered with its own juices. It is necessary to evaporate these slowly, and this will take six or eight hours' boiling in a porcelain kettle. It is easy enough to boil the pumpkin soft in with Mr. Speed in his condemnation in a porcelain kettle. HISTORY OF MIDDLEBURG.

PART VI.

History of York Road.

York Road is a small village on thlines of the Western Maryland Raile roal, and Frederick & Pennsylvania Line Railroad, (a branch of the Penna. R. R.) It is located 49 miles west of Baltimore and 17 miles north of Frederick city. The building of the Western Maryland Railroad through this section is mainly re-sponsible for our quiet little hamlet's existence. In 1867 the Western Mary-land Railroad was extended as far west as York Road, and for a period of nearly two years this place was the western terminus of the road, and from which point stage lines, &c., were run to Emmitsburg and other points, connecting the outlying country with the city of Baltimore by means of stage and railroad, which was a vast improvement over all Shriner, of Union Bridge, purchased of W. Marshall Mehring, the land on which the warehouse and other buildings connected with this busi ness are located, and immediately erected the large brick warehouse fronting east on the York road and on the north on the Western Maryland Railroad, with track connections to same. This was the first building at what is now York Road, and was used for the general commisand was used for the general commission and grain business, and also as

Messrs Hiltabidle & Shriner were the proprietors from 1867 until 1870, when Mr. Joel Myers and Uriah Hiltabidle became the proprietors, and both being aggressive business men, they gave the place new life and did an immense business, remaining the proprietors until 1875, at which time, Mr. David Hiltabidle again took charge of the warehouse and conducted the business until his death in 1889. After the death of Mr. Hiltabidle the warehouse property was purchased by Oliver D. Birely, who carried on the business until 1891. since which time it has been conducted by Wm. F. Cover, who is also agent for the W. M. R. R.

After the Western Maryland, came the Frederick & Pennsylvania Line Railroad, commencing at Frederick on the south and connecting with the Littlestown Railroad at the state line. This line was completed in 1872, and runs under the W. M. R. R., through a thorough cut two hun-dred yards east of York Road and at what is known as Bruceville Station, formerly Loate's Junction, and then Frederick Junction. The name Bruceville Station was made uniform by both roads in July, 1893, on the completion of the new Union Station which was built by the W. M. R. R., during the winter of 1892 and spring of '93, and occupied July 1st. of that

The progress of building up a town in spite of having two railroad lines, has been extremely slow and greatly retarded on account of the land owners being unwilling to sell lots, &c., except for city prices, which drove away any and all manufacturers who might contemplate locating here to take advantage of the railroad facilities. The same condition, I am degree, and what should be a busy and thriving town, remains a hamle of a dozen houses, after more than 20

In 1869, Joel Myers retired from active farming and milling business and built himself a large and substantial brick dwelling, just south of the Western Maryland Railroad into which he moved the same year and still occupies. In 1870, Jerry Petterger built the house now occupied and rebuilt by Lewis Hann. In 1876, Samuel Fuss built the house now owned and occupied by Mrs. O. Hereter

In 1877, John Diffendal built the frame house now owned and occupied by Alfred Hape. After selling this property, we find John Diffendal again building a frame house north of the Western Maryland Railroad which be completed in 1882 and on which he completed in 1882 and occupied until 1891, when it was pur chased, and is still owned, by M. J. Myerly and is occupied by W. F. Cover. In 1887 Cornelius Koons built a frame house on the north side of the W. M. R. R., and west side of the street, which he occupies.

In 1888, W. W. Sweigart built a frame house in the south-east angle of the railroad crossing at Bruceville station, which is still occupied by him. In 1890, Charles E. Valentine built a frame house on York road, between the warehouse and the house of Joel Myers, which he occupies. In 1893, Charles F. Reindollar built and remodeled the house near the station, which he uses as a dwelling house, grocery and drug store. This is the only store we have here.

We are proud, and justly so, of the magnificent granite Union Station (built by the W. M. R. R. Co., at a cost of Ten Thousand Dollars.) In traveling from Maine to California, and from Maria to California, and from Mexico to Canada, we have never seen its equal, taking into consideration the point at which it is located, and many cities of 20,000 inhab itants do not have stations to compare with it. C. E. Valentine is agent for the Western Maryland Railroad, and W. W. Sweigart holds the same position with the Pennsylvania railroad and Adams Express Company.

Adjacent to and south of York
Road, lie the Reeside, Biehl and Dayhoff homesteads, and as they were each the scene of an industry aside from farming, before and in the early days of the present century, we shall endeavor to give them more than a passing notice. In or about the year 1767, the first named homestead, then containing about 430 acres of land, became the property of one Samuel Diffendal, who in 1768 built a small slab saw and grist mill on the right bank of Little Pipe Creek, about 500 yards west of the present mill. Being a man of untiring industry, energy and push, he prospered and became very wealthy. In 1799, or 31 years from the time the little slab mill was built, he built the large stone mill from which to-day is heard the merry hum of revolving wheels.

Upon his death it became the property of his son, Samuel, who conducted the business without material change to the time of his death in 1855. He was the father of one daughter, the wife of Robert McGinness, who married contrary to her father's wish and as a nunishment for so do wish and as a punishment for so doing she received few or no favors from him. He bequeathed the farm and mill to Samuel D., John T., William L., and Francis A. McGinness, his grand-children. The property was under rental until these legatees attained their majority, when it was divided. William and Francis received the mill and all the land lying in Carroll county, some 50 ago, and caused business to be suspensed.

Baltimore. Mr. Reeside sold or exchanged the mill property and water right to Dr. M. Hammond of Baltimore who about one year ago exchanged the same with Peter Gerber, the present owner, for a farm in Virginia. The second portion of this homestead is still the property of the heirs of Denison Reeside.

homestead is still the property of the heirs of Denison Reeside.

The Biehl homestead is owned by John Biehl of Ladiesburg, Frederick Co., Md., and is tenanted by his sonin-law Charles E. Garber. It is a beautifuf home, uicely located and contains about 117 acres of highly fertile and well tilled land. It is made up of three tracts designated respectfully; "Clark's Discovery," "Venture," and "Earnest's Choice," and was conveyed by Andrew Koldand was conveyed by Andrew Koldenbach to Jacob Cover by deed bearing date March 22nd., 1798. The same was conveyed to John Cover by

When he died his son, John Cover, took charge and conducted it successfully charge and conducted it successfully to the spring of 1864, when he died. Frank T. Cover next assumed the have done credit to the trained dogs management and conducted the business up to about 1868. Mr. John Biehl leased it to W. S. Duttera, now of Gettysburg, Pa., who conducted a of Gettysburg, Pa., who conducted a consequence of Gettysburg, Pa., who conducted a small business there during the years 1874 and 1875. On the 7th, day of October, 1875, Jesse Alleman Biehl, The lady tried to pacify the heast stock of Clothing. It would be an interesting little 3 year old son of John Biehl, fell into a vat and was drowned-since that fatal event there

The third of these homesteads is situated on a bluff overlooking the east end of it, and also passed as a "Nigger Ketcher." While many of the noted marksmen of that day (who hunted the frisky squirrel that spooked among the branches of the lofty oaks and hickory's that lined the banks of Little Pipe Creek) partook of his fiery refreshments, yet the enterprise failed after a struggle of some five or six years.

During the years he spent as a distiller, he also watched the roads for runaway negroes. The archives of that day fail to record any reward which was built by the W. M. R. R., during the winter of 1892 and spring of '93, and occupied July 1st. of that year. In locating the F. & P. L. R. R., the engineers surveyed a line which would have crossed the W. M. R. R. at grade at York Road, but they met vith such strong opposition that the courts were called upon, and an injunction granted preventing this grade crossing, and forcing them to the present route.

The progress of building up a town in spite of having two railroad lines, away. Accordingly one very cold Sunday afternoon in January, Mr. Harper got himself up in true negro style and passed along the road near Hape's distillery, acting as suspiciously as possible. It was but a short time until Hape was after him giving him a lively chase. Harper, who was of light weight and very fleet, soon distanced his pursuer, who tipped the beam at 220 pounds. Harper turned and ran in the direction of the creek and when he got out of his pursuer's sight he removed his dis-guise and came up to Mr. Hape, and offered his services to assist in hunting the negro. The offer was accepted and in a short time he beckoned to Hape and pointed to a large tree on the opposite bank of the creek. In the twinkling of an eye, Hape had plunged into at least four feet of ice cold water, waded the creek to the tree, but found no negro there.

life and he finally folded his tent and went away. This property passed into the hands of David Birely and Frank Naill, and then to B. F. Bond in 1868. In 1893 it was purchased by William Dayhoff, who has improved the place so much that it would hardly be recognized as the cld. y be recognized as the old Hostelry of 1866. Close to where the old distillery stood, there is now the home of Charles H. > Seeing that the animal could not be gotten out of the store, and that he was foaming at the mouth, the druggist remembered that sweet oil was an antidote for the effects of tur-pentine, and suggested that he try that as a remedy. Sweet oil was gotten, but no one would venture to try to hold the dog, which by this time evidently thought that there was no land that is hotter than this. So the druggist, posting himself at a point of vantage behind the counter, began to throw the sweet oil at the dog. Sometimes the oil struck the dog, and more frequently it missed him. After a half hour of this sort of battle enough oil was gotten on the animal to make him feel a little more comfortable, and he began to quiet down. At last he got so tractable that the lady was enabled to take him home. But the streak of red paint was still on him, and the drug store had sus-pended business for an hour and a half. - Balto. Deadwood Jack was no scholar, but Overcoats than last season? he insisted that he was a gentleman. The same was the case with Montana Jim. Therefore, when we learned that Jack had come over to Custer City to "have it out" with Jim, we felt assured that it would be a genteel affair from start to finish. Jack had put up at the Last Chance Saloon, written his name on the Acc of Spades and sont supersonance are the state.
