

The Young Man's Income.

To those who have already passed through the "young man" period, it seems strange that the average youth develops his whole time and income to "having a good time" and takes no thought—at least not seriously or rationally—of the time when he will want to enter upon the more serious and responsible period which follows youth.

There are some things which we will learn by experience; and this period of one's life which comes before the encounter with the more serious problems attending manhood, which seems particularly intended for the enjoyment of those things which can only be enjoyed to their fullest extent at this time, naturally obscures, and to some extent perverts, one's better judgment.

As it is, the average young man enters into real manhood practically bankrupt, and he is lucky if no worse off. While enjoying a "good time," the chances are he is contracting habits and traits of character which act as mortgages on his future efforts and reputation.

The Baltimore Club is sure to win the pennant for the third consecutive time, and will of course play for the Temple Cup. If they want to break their record this time, and win the trophy, it would be well to remember that too many banquet cups are likely to cause the Temple cup to slip.

Misuse of the Cartoon.

There is no more reprehensible feature of modern journalism than the misuse of the cartoon, so liberally indulged in by nearly all of the great city dailies. Like many other good things, the newspaper artist has been put to a disreputable use, and illustrated journalism, as applied to the average daily newspaper with its cartoonist, is rapidly becoming not only a nuisance, but a positive evil.

It is probable that not more than one out of twenty of the illustrated political lies escapes being in reality either mediocre or vulgar—probably both—and the old adage that "Artists are born, not made" comes to us with full force and confirms us in the belief that there are decidedly more "made" than "born" ones.

The mass of this so-called artistic production, however, is more nearly libel than anything else. The gross misconception and misrepresentation practiced in this direction is both startling and called for, and while it rarely does the subject much harm on account of the platitudinous character of the illustration, the publication itself is not entitled to credit and does not receive it, except from those whose taste runs in the direction of vulgarity.

Not only do our public officials and politicians serve as targets for this sort of business, but even private citizens as a class, such as farmers, are made to represent objects of ridicule to millions of readers through the inference and desire of our great daily papers. Through the skill of some top floor fool in a city newspaper office, the farmers of this country are represented to be open-mouthed, long haired, ill clad simpletons, waiting to be bullied by the first city chap who comes along.

There has been no time since the Lincoln campaign of 1860 when political issues were presented in so concrete a form, or in a manner so well calculated to engage the attention of the whole people, as they are at the present time.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report and all its material interests of a right settlement of the questions in dispute. Whether we read "free silver" speeches or "gold standard" speeches, we find it insisted upon with equal vehemence that the welfare of the masses of the people is at stake.

There is reason for this insistence. We are all buying and selling. We are all consuming and most of us are producing something. Money measures the value of everything that is bought and sold, produced and consumed.

The opposing parties also agree upon another thing. They both agree that something more than business or political economy is involved. They tell the people that at the bottom are questions of right and wrong. With equal vehemence and apparently with equal sincerity they appeal to the conscience of the people.

The term "educational campaign" is often used, half-seriously and half-jestingly, to describe a campaign which involves a discussion of issues for the purpose of enlightening the people. The term was never more justly used than with reference to the present campaign.

A real education is in progress, and it is an education which with large numbers of people must begin with elementary principles. Trusted party leaders are taking opposing views, men of intelligence are deducing from history and experience directly opposite conclusions.

Clearly, he must do some investigating on his own account. He must sift and compare the things which he hears and reads. The conflicting policies advocated cannot be both wise. They cannot both be right.

This is a study which will repay young Americans as well as those who are older. We shall reach different conclusions, but we are all of us likely to know more about the currency and its laws and the way they operate when the discussion is over than we did at the beginning.

Perhaps the least exposable of all Americans in this campaign is he who is too indifferent or too indolent to give thought to these questions. Fortunately, people of that class promise to be very few indeed.

The man with a steady purpose is sure to succeed. With an unshakable faith in the goodness of his purpose, he will follow it until above all obstacles he comes out victorious. A victory of this nature strengthens the man's own powers, and emboldens him in the eyes of his fellowmen.

Men laughed while Noah builded the Ark, but Noah paid little heed to their jeers, worked faithfully day after day until the floodgates of heaven proved the wisdom of his purpose.

September Work.
"The work of the year seemeth ended, and nature is taking her rest. As she sleeps through this dreary September With hands folded close on her breast. It will not do for the real flower lover to fall in with "this sweet, restful mood," as a little neglect now may cost one the loss of many a fine plant. Pots should be collected, with the necessary amount of drainage in the bottom, ready to take up the plants when danger of severe frosts, which are likely to appear the last of this month or first of October. By covering up the plants during the first few frosts, which are not likely to be severe, one can leave them out two or three weeks longer, after the first few frosts we usually have pretty weather for about that length of time. I find it will not do to be caught napping, and will have to be in readiness at all times. I find it best, if possible, to take up the plants when the ground is damp, as the roots are not exposed then. If one has a large plant of the cosmos, just beginning to bloom, that is likely to be nipped by the frost, with care they can be taken up, hardly disturbing them, and they will bloom on until the middle of November. The bright, saffron flowers and ferny foliage of this plant are both so pretty that it is well worth the little trouble it takes to prolong the flowering season. One can not afford to neglect the chrysanthemums at this time. They require a great deal of water, and if there is a drought, it is best to neglect something else and give all the water that can be spared to the chrysanthemums, as the buds are forming now, and what we lose in this line now will not be made up at any other time of the year, and there is not another flower in the long procession of floral gems that has been passing before us that can take the place of the chrysanthemum. If given liquid manure twice a week, the flowers will be much larger and brighter.

The chrysanthemum will be at its best now. I find this a very under plant, easily blackened by frost, and requires a heavy protection. A sheet will not answer. When properly protected this will bloom until the middle or latter part of October. Pansy seeds can now be sown for winter blooming in the house. The hardy perennials can be sown the first of this month, if they were not attended to in August. This class of plants will pay you well for the sowing, as they are of very little trouble after they are once sown. The seed is offered very cheap by most florists, and they nearly all advertise them for sale at this time. Do not neglect to order your bulbs for winter flowering until it is too late. The Bermuda lilies and freasias should be potted now for the best results. Be sure to get the strong flowering bulbs, as the small ones do not pay to bother with.—Eplionist.

Household Hints.
Throw flour on kerosene flames.
Try molasses for grass stains.
Ripe tomatoes will remove ink stains.
Remember, slamming the door of the oven makes cake fail.
A few drops of lemon juice makes cake frosting very white.
A hot shovel, held over varnished furniture, will take out the white spots.
Try sprinkling powdered cloves about the places infested by red ants.
A little flour dredged over the top of a cake will prevent the icing from running.
There should be just as much conscience put into dusting a room as in managing an estate.
The ivy-decked house is picturesque, but the dampness and insects that linger in the greenery are not.
Early rising means a whole day's work done before noon, a consideration that hot weather makes desirable.
Crepe de chine is much in demand. Its comparative cheapness brings it within reach of a greater number of admirers than are able to indulge in the more costly material.
To remove iron rust stains from cotton or linen, take one part powdered oxalic acid, two parts powdered cream of tartar, and apply a little of the powder to the dampened goods.
Insist on the children eating a light supper and retiring by early candlelight. They will arise refreshed and with an appetite that will enable them to eat sufficient breakfast to last them until noon.
When a floor has been forgotten in a padding or oiled, the fault may be remedied by rubbing the desired extract over the outside of the cake as soon as it is taken from the oven.
If an oil can is not at hand to remedy a creaking hinge the noise can often be stopped by using a soft lead pencil. Moisten the lead point and rub it into all the cracks and crevices that can be reached.
Stained borders of floors will require doing over once a year if worn places are not to become noticeable. The stain and varnish may be bought and applied at once. The latter is of course, the readiest method, but the former is perhaps, the most lasting.
A glass stopper should be used in a bottle containing acid, for the contents would quickly consume a cork stopper; but if the cork is first saturated in vaseline and then used it will be impervious to acids or chemicals of any kind, and as air-tight as a glass stopper.
When polishing mirrors, windows or picture glass with whiting, the best way to use it is to have it in muslin bags. Dampen the glass lightly, then rub with the bag and polish off with a crumpled newspaper.

RUSSIAN TEA.
Pare and slice a lemon, and lay a piece in the bottom of each cup, sprinkle with white sugar and pour hot, strong tea upon it. Do not use milk or cream.
TRUNK PACKING HINTS.
If India rubber bands are put around bottles carried in a sack or packed in a box they will prevent the bottles from grinding together and perhaps breaking.
CREAKING DOORS.
The simple remedy for a creaking door is to apply a little sweet oil with a feather to the hinge. The objectionable sound will stop immediately, and the door shut with ease.—Philadelphia Record.

The Fall Fashion.
There is little important change to be found in the fashion situation, as evidenced by the advance advices from Paris. The most important features—skirts and sleeves—despite the frantic efforts of modistes and tailors to introduce vagaries in them, will remain much the same as last season. The wide, plain skirt is still in the lead, for the introduction of panels and trimming effects have shown that those features have not caught the public fancy. The only novelty is the box plaited back, which is finding much favor. This and the very full skirt hold their own, so the efforts to introduce the sheath-like skirts of several years ago will probably be fruitless.
The new sleeves are not, indeed, so wide as those that distinguished this year's gowns, but the clever dress-makers, realizing that many of their clients do not boast arms which will look well in tight and unembellished sleeves, so cunningly trim the new models, with puffs, ruffles, ruches or lace, and in such quantities, that the effect produced is one of extreme fullness, almost as great as ever. They are fanciful, but pretty, and those maidens who have been bemoaning the loss of style that would be consequent upon the reduction of the balloon-like arm coverings will find that, in reality, they have little to regret.
Long gloves will again be popular, and this is pleasant news, for there is nothing so pretty as the soft-wristed, crinkled nunquetaires.
The most conspicuous thing about the fall costumes will be the number and variety of the girdles worn. Every one, with the most startling unanimity, every feminine one, that is, will have a wide and prettily wrinkled one, trimmed with buttons, trimmed with straps or trimmed with lace. It is sure to be there, no matter what its trimming, if the gown is chic; until, in the natural course of events, its very popularity will make it unpopular, and it departs to be no more seen save on the frocks of those who do not object to such prolixity.

Sent It to His Mother in Germany.
Mr. Jacob Esbensen, who is in the employ of the Chicago Lumber Co., at Des Moines, Iowa, says: "I have just sent some medicine back to my mother in the old country, that I know from personal use to be the best medicine in the world for rheumatism, having used it myself for several years. It is called Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It always does the work." 50 cent bottles for sale by R. S. McKinney, Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

Keep a Scrap Book.

There are many good things occasionally in the daily papers, editorials, locals, literary matter, etc., which could be preserved in the scrap book. And here and there, in a magazine, is a story or some article or contribution of value because of its research in and knowledge of the arts and sciences, while the rest of the periodical is of comparatively little use. A scrap book of such matters would be found exceedingly interesting, if for nothing else.

The writer has seen and perused scrap books which were gems in their way. The collators displayed care, taste and judgment in the selection of the articles for preservation, and it was really a treat to look them over, and here and there perse the entire article. Of course, it depends altogether on the collator whether he or she has the requisite tact and intelligence for classifying and arranging articles in such a medium. It may well be called an education in itself, and the owners of such books are generally people of far more than ordinary intelligence.

Events of importance, matters of great interest, interesting local incidents, selections of genuine poetry, and many other things incident to such a collection or compilation, make up a work which at times proves to be of value not only for reference, but as a reminder of scenes, incidents and occasions which but faintly linger in memory. Let the old scrap book once more have its place in every family. Teach the children its advantages and uses, and have them assist in its preparation.

The result will be a happy, well-informed, intelligent household, one which your friends will delight to visit often, and with you ones in a while indulge in a reminiscence evening, which will be made all the more enjoyable when the scrap book is brought forth and its contents examined.—Harrisburg Independent.

Preparing Potatoes.
Good cooks tell us that we should not soak potatoes more than a few minutes before cooking them. As soon as they are boiled the water should be poured off and the potatoes, uncovered, set at one side of the fire to dry before they are peeled. This is the way to have them mealy. Steaming is also recommended. Never cover them when they are ready to be dish ed up, but keep them hot on the stove.

How the World's Goldfields Have Developed.
Victoria and California were both phenomenally rich, the former having, however, an undoubted claim to the first position in this respect. Gold was first discovered in California in Colonel Sutter's mill race, 1848. The production for 1849 was $5,000,000; it jumped up the following year to $50,000,000, and reached its maximum in 1853 at $60,000,000. By July, 1849, there were 15,000 Mexicans and Chileans on the spot, and before the end of the year 45,000 Americans and 5,000 foreigners were working at the diggings. Gold was discovered at Ballarat, Victoria, in August, 1851—that is, two years later than in California—and the rush to Australia resulted in a yield of gold which quite eclipsed that furnished by the western states. The second year's mining, 1852, yielded no less than $198,000,000—that is, a larger amount had been made during any one of the four years in which the California mines had climbed to their greatest annual production. It is estimated that the latter have yielded $700,000,000 and that no less than $1,150,000,000 has been obtained from Victoria.

How the Chinese Identify Criminals.
The method taken by the Chinese to identify their important criminals is to take an impression of the balls of their thumbs. This is done by pressing the thumb on a slab covered with a film of printer's ink, and then pressing it on a piece of white paper. Their idea is that all arts of the features may change, but the thumb never can, and they say that this method affords a much more easy and certain means of identification than our plan of taking the criminal's portrait.

How to Have Pretty Lips.
Though very red lips do not follow us into old age, we can at least keep them fresh and attractive looking all our lives. To do this great care must be taken to remain in perfect health and also to attend to any little ailment of the lips as soon as it is noticed. Too much sitting over a fire and too little outdoor exercise are fatal to the beauty of the lips.
Very pale colored lips, of course, show that the possessor is much out of health, usually suffering from bloodlessness. Strong iron tonic should be taken, plenty of milk drunk and outdoor exercise freely indulged in. The diet should be generous, and the rooms we live in and sleep in should be most carefully ventilated by night as well as by day. As the health improves the color will return to the lips.
The lips should also never be rubbed with strong soaps, such as eau de cologne or vinegar or lemon. Friction is also very bad for their well being. Lips may only be pale pink (red lips are constitutional), but if they are smooth and soft they will look attractive.

How to Care For Lamp Burners.
Make a strong soupuds with borax and good soap and let it come to a boil. Then put the burner in the boiling water and let it boil for some time. Then take an old toothbrush and brush all the little openings, lastly drying on a soft towel. Your brighter light will repay you for the pains.

How to Make a Baked Rhubarb Pudding.
Five sticks of rhubarb, one-quarter pound of powdered sugar, one-quarter pound of butter, some stale bread. Line a pie dish with slices of bread and butter, cover with cut up rhubarb stewed with sugar and thin slices of bread and butter, and so on alternately. The dish is full, having the rhubarb and sugar on the top; cover with a plate and bake one-half hour. Serve hot.

HOW TO CARE FOR BEDS.

The Washing of Blankets and Dusting of Mattresses.
Mattresses, blankets, pillows and other articles of bedding require much care to be kept odorless and clean. The main enemies to mattresses are dust, damp and moth, and frequent brushing must be given them. In an incredibly short time they will harbor dust all along the edges and where the button is fixed. A loose cotton cover over the mattress, made to button neatly at one end, also goes a long way toward keeping them clean. This can be washed and changed as often as needed, without much trouble or expense. It is very important to air all the bedding thoroughly. Every article should be daily taken off and laid separately over a chair, and a strong current of air should be allowed to circulate through the room before the clothes are replaced. The mattress should be turned daily, from end to end, as this insures it being worn more evenly and not sinking in the middle.

Blankets are a difficulty to many people, mostly because they cannot make up their minds as to how often they should be washed. In many houses they are only washed once a year; but somehow that does seem rather too rare a proceeding. On the other hand, it is really not necessary to have them washed more than twice a year; but they must have proper care in the interval in the shape of airing, shaking, etc. A washing machine is very good for the purpose, especially if the blanket can be rubbed by the hand. The water should be only lukewarm, and a little soap well lathered in the water is all that will be required. Wring the blankets very dry through a wringer, shake them out, and wash again in the same way, wringing each time, until they are quite clean. Do not rinse them, but pull them into shape and hang them out in the sun, which is a great help to preserving a good color.

How the Letter "P" Came to Be Dotted.
The letter "i" has not always been dotted, for Dissraeli, in detecting a literary forgery, says: "Besides that there were dots on the letter 'i,' a custom not practiced until the eleventh century." At that time, however, the dot over the letter "i" took the form of an accent and was only used when the "i" was doubled or in juxtaposition with "u." In the twelfth century the accent was occasionally added when "i" was combined with other letters, but it soon came universal when the invention of printing made it convenient to retain both forms. In the fourteenth century the accent begins to change into a dot, the earliest occurrence of "i" being in a manuscript dated 1327.

How to Make Watermelon and Peach Ice.
Watermelon Ice.—Select very ripe and a very red watermelon. Save all the water and scrape all the red pulp fine. Allow a pound of sugar to a gallon of this liquid and freeze. When the ice is half frozen, add the well beaten whites of 3 eggs and stir the mixture frequently from the bottom with a wooden spatula. The flavor of this ice naturally depends largely upon the quality of the melon. Peach Ice.—Select a dozen nice ripe peaches, 2 lemons and 3 pints of clarified sugar. First the peaches and press the pulp through a sieve, then add the clarified sugar and lemon juice and freeze. When nicely frozen, mix thoroughly with the ice a meringue made of the whites of 3 eggs and 4 tablespoons of sugar. Set away for an hour before serving.

Three times as large as the metropolitan Republican weekly of New York City. It will be of especial advantage to you during the Presidential Campaign, as it is published every other day, except Sunday, and has all the freshness and timeliness of a daily. It combines all the news with long lists of interesting departments, unique features, cartoons and graphic illustrations, the latter being a specialty. All these improvements have been made without any increase in the cost, which remains at one dollar per year. We offer this unequalled newspaper and The Carroll Record together one year for $1.50. The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.00.

By keeping our space for reading matter entirely separate from advertisements, we not only please the reader, but help the advertiser too, by placing all on equality with each other; we offer monthly changes without charge, so that advertisements will form a news feature for the paper. Frequent changes, and special offers, will pay both the advertiser and newspaper, and benefit the reader. Having a large circulation in a prosperous section, among different classes and professions, and as the RECORD itself is made up attractively and on the modern plan, an advertisement can scarcely be given a poor position at any place in its columns. It has been our rule not to contract for reading advertisements which must be sandwiched in with news items, and this rule will continue to be adhered to.

HISTORY OF TREVANIUM.

George T. Mehring farmed the place from 1884 to 1888, and the writer and George Derick boarded with them and ran the mill and drove the horses.

In 1888 Derick was taken to Andalusia, Pa., and James Ewing sent here to handle the horses for one year; afterwards, Derick came back and remained, and Ewing left. James Richmond moved into the big house and boarded the men until the spring of '89, when they hired Edward Carbaugh and wife to run the place until 1894.

After Mehring left Mr. McFadden began to gradually stock the farm again, and June 2nd, 1898, he sent a lot of mares and horses here by Jake Armstrong. The day following the saddest and most startling event of our history occurred. George Derick had taken Jake Armstrong to the train to return to Philadelphia, during a pouring rain, and when he returned the creek had swollen out of banks and the rushing waters carried horse, buggy and driver off the road before they could reach the bridge, and they went down the stream.

The buggy dived on a point of land and upset, turning the man under, and the horse went down, feet up. A boy came running into the mill, saying, "Mr. Derick is going down the creek." We ran to the creek but could not see horse or man, and followed on down to Otter Date dam, but could not see anything of them. Next morning after the water fell we dredged the stream and offered $10.00 reward for the corpse, but to no avail. Meantime, Dr. Birnie came along and said "The corpse is most likely held by something in deep water, but on the eighth day it will come up, and you might as well wait until then." Sure enough on the eighth day the man came in and said, "Mr. Derick is caught in the bushes in Otter Date dam."

John W. McFadden was here, having come to find the corpse and give it decent burial. Undertaker Weaver of Onantown brought a casket to the waterside and confined him there, and the Dunkards with their proverbial charity tendered us a grave, where we took him, followed by the Trevanium carriages and as many of the neighbors as we could notify. Rev. Seilhammer preached the sermon and done it well, and when he feebly remarked that he was being buried here away from friend and home, without a relative to drop a tear, there were few dry eyes.

Thought occurred to me that if he has no relatives he has at least one good friend, John W. McFadden, and a nice Italian marble stone near the entrance of the cemetery marks his grave and tells the sad demise of his taking off, and Miss Bessie Mehring ("little Betty"), as he used to call his pet) makes it a labor of love to put flowers on and keep his grave green. And thus ended the most distressing event of our history.

After Derick's death, Mr. McFadden sent Jake Armstrong here to handle the colts and horses. He boarded with the Carbaughs until the spring of '90 when he moved into the farm house where he lived two years, keeping the horses at the stables at the mansion house and the box stalls at the barn. "Rolla" was the lead horse, and "Said," "Helen R.," "Fanny Allen," "Bay Annie," "Black Kate," and "Miss N." were some of the mares. We went along with these until the fall of '91, when the stables were so crowded, and the difficulty of getting the colts across the bridge to the track so great, that Mr. McFadden decided to build a stable at the track, and in February 1892 we finished it and was ready for the spring opening, when Jake moved himself to the adjoining house and the horses to the new stables.

So pleased was Mr. McFadden with it that he had a four stall stable built at Andalusia. During the fall of this year they sent their first lot of horses to Philadelphia. "Orange Boy" that had beaten the best record of any Maryland horse at that time, 2:18, and "Contractor" "Ivanhoe," "John W.," "Black Prince," "Young Rolla" and others that I can't mention.

The Advocate had published a series of articles on "Old Homesteads of Carroll county" and its vivid description of the wretched and melancholy look of the ruined and deserted hills of Trevanium that had once been filled with the elite of the country and resounded with joy and merriment, I think, called Mr. McFadden's attention to the condition of the house and he determined to renovate it again, and as he attributed the fast deterioration of the house to dampness, he had put in two hot air furnaces, then done some repairing to wood work, and painting and papering.

General and Political.

Garret A. Hobart's letter of acceptance was published this week.

Bourke Cockran has declined to run for Congress on a republican ticket in the twelfth New York district.

In Arkansas, on Monday, the democratic state ticket was elected by the usual big majority. Both parties made an active canvass.

The ordinance bureau of the army will shortly award contracts amounting to $185,000 in the purchase of ordnance material for coast defenses.

Great alarm is felt in reference to the health of ex-Speaker Crisp. He is very much broken down and is unable to take part in the campaign.

Secretary Lamont has written a letter to Hon. W. D. Bryan, in which he says, "I prefer to remain a democrat, and will vote for Palmer and Buckner."

The Press Association announces that private dispatches from Constantinople confirm the rumor that the deposition of the Sultan is being seriously debated by the powers, and important developments are expected.

The presidential candidate of the sound-money democrats, Gen. John M. Palmer, will not make a southern tour next week, as expected. He leaves today for Louisville, where he will be officially notified of his nomination.

The republicans of Baltimore held a ratification meeting in Music Hall on Monday night, to a crowded house, many being unable to secure admission. Speeches were made by Senator Thurston, Senator elect Wellington, Governor Lowndes and others.

The cotton report of the Department of Agriculture for September shows a decline from the August condition of the crop, which was 90.1, to 64.2 per cent, a loss of 15.9 points. This is the lowest September condition reported in the last twenty seven years.

The announcement that 10,000 employes of the War Department have been placed upon the classified list is good news for friends of civil service reform. Incidentally it may strike many as somewhat odd that a War Department with only 25,000 soldiers should have 10,000 civilian employes.

England and Australia are the only islands which exceed Cuba in natural resources. When not wasted by war, Cuba produces, with a large share of her soil untouched, $100,000,000 worth of sugar and tobacco annually, besides the products of orchards and forests, rivers and mountain mines.

Texas republicans have agreed to fuse with the populists and sound-money democrats on the following basis; the populists to cast their vote for the populist State ticket and an electoral ticket composed of eight republicans, four populists and four sound-money democrats. It is claimed this will give the populists the State government and defeat Bryan an electors in Texas.

An Affinity Respected.

He is a very quiet, unexcitable man and when his friend took him home to see the baby he did his best, though not very successfully, to be enthusiastic.

"You are beginning to appreciate his fine points, are you? Has he been saying 'Mamma' and 'Papa' and 'Day-day' for you?"

"No. It wasn't in any such trivial manner that he demonstrated his mental powers. He has shown a comprehension of relationships and the fitness of things which, though crudely expressed, is something little less than marvelous. I gave him my watch to play with and he swallowed it."

"Great heavens, man! You don't mean to say that the baby has swallowed a watch?"

"I think," said a fond parent, "that little Jimmy is going to be a poet when he grows up. He doesn't eat, and he sits all day by the fire and thinks and thinks." "You had better grease him all over," said Aunt Jerusha. "He's going to have the measles. That's what ails Jimmy."

"Don't be afraid. Come right in my wife's out. Have a little something? Here's a nice quality of old—"

"Good heavens, man, you've got the wrong bottle! Look at that label! Don't you see it's marked 'Poison'?"

"Oh, that's all right. That saves it from the hired girl. My own invention, you know. Clever, isn't it? Never failed but once."

"How was that?"

"Hired girl couldn't read."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

BALDHEADED ADVERTISING.

How the suave young man of ideas procured a pill Ad.

"Mr. Pipp," said the suave young man as he took to his heels at dawn by the desk of the great liver pill potentiate, "I represent the Baldheaded Advertising company, unlimited."

"That's a new advertising company to me," replied Mr. Pipp. "I thought I knew them all, but it appears that I was mistaken."

"This is the very latest in the advertising line, sir, as well as the most striking. Its field of operation, while limited, is strictly select and is bounded by the faculty which perfectly bald. On each bald head we paint a large letter, large enough to be read all over the house. The bald heads are so arranged that the letters painted there spell words.

"I've got a customer who owes me a small bill and has owed it for a long time. He makes plenty of money, but won't pay. What would you do?"

"I'd sue him," said the lawyer emphatically.

"Well, I will put the account in your hands," and the merchant presented a statement of the account against himself.

"All right. I will attend to it," said the disciple of Blackstone.
