Political Jollifications.

One of the changes which the signs be, which means that political victoto party, as they are to people.

Victory, now, means more nearly than ever before, triumph of rightright principles and honest efforts at self-government. This being true, it is vain assumption for any political small square for use in making split of the electric spark, the many fine party, which happens for the time to tickets. There are other reasons why such affairs are undesirable; prominent ebriety which is usually noticeable and often leads to serious disorder, and is chargeable to some extent to the party holding the celebration. Then too, the expense, a very considerable item, must be considered against the proceeds, and many fail to see justification in the outlay.

Poor Mr. McKinley.

The daily newspapers are having a great deal of trouble now, not only in selecting a cabinet for Presidentelect McKinley, but over the momentous questions of war with Spain and the annexation of Canada and Hawaii. Evidently, our next President would create a lively time, should he announce himself in favor of all three, or even one, of the latter propositions.
