Meier and Miss Grace Hockensmith; singing by the school, and addresses by Revs. Zacharias and Bateman, and Prof. H. Meier.

There is always more or less of cracker shooting here—usually more—on the Fourth of July, by both old and young; and, as the custom seems a necessary evil, one can only say—be careful. These crackers, or any other fire works, are dangerous to both person and property, particularly when carelessly handled, as they generally are.

On Friday morning, while William Snider's two horse team was standing on Baltimore St., the wagon containing a load of furniture and merchandise, the horses became frightened by the arrival of the 9.30 train, tore loose, and ran through the town toward Harney at a rapid gait. They ran all the way to Longville before they were caught, and fortunately without collision or damage.

COUNTY AND STATE.

Items of Interest Gleaned from many Sources.

G. C. Garrett has been appointed postmaster at Shiloh, Carroll county, vice N. F. Bowers resigned.

Governor Lowndes has set August 13th, as the date for the execution of Peter Monahan, the Baltimore wife murderer.

Apples and peaches are reported to be dropping from the trees very rapidly, and fine fruit prospects are thus disappearing.

An immense amount of freight has recently been handled by the Western Maryland Railroad, received at Cherry Run from the Baltimore and Ohio.

The Liberty copper mines property, containing fifty-two acres, at Liberty, Frederick county, has been sold at public auction to William King for $2000.

The borough water bonds of Littlestown will be offered at public sale on Saturday, July 10th. It is supposed that the demand for the bonds will be quickly met.

The picnic which was to have been held by the Pleasant Valley C. E. Society, on July 10th, has been postponed until later in the fall, due to notice of which will be given.

Andrew Kern, a young man living near Tannery, has a bullet hole through the fleshy part of his leg, caused by the accidental discharge of a revolver which he was cleaning.

Postmaster Joseph B. Boyle, of Westminster, has been officially notified that the free rural delivery system in operation at that place will be continued. By authority of the department, Postmaster Boyle has changed the location of the postoffice from the Wantz building to his drug store.

David C. Bruner, of near Frederick, was released in $100 bail by Police Justice Biser on Monday, charged with wife beating. The warrant was sworn out at the instance of his wife, who testified before the magistrate that her husband on Friday last tied her to a fence post with a hitching strap and then beat her about the body until she was bruised in a painful manner.

James Corbett, nineteen years of age, and a property man of Wallace's shows, fell off the Western Maryland train Wednesday morning ten miles from Gettysburg, and his arm and leg were frightfully crushed. Corbett fell asleep, and in some way rolled off the train. He was found by a farmer, and was taken to Gettysburg, where he died from the injuries and the loss of blood. His home was near Bristol, Eng.

About 11.30 o'clock Thursday night fire was discovered in the foundry of the large shops of the Erie Company, Waynesboro, Pa. The fire department was called out, and after an hour of hard work the flames were gotten under control before reaching the other departments of the works. Work in the burned department has been suspended owing to the fire. Lou Brown, an employee of the company, was seriously injured by falling through a skylight during the excitement.

The demand for fireworks, says the Baltimore American, for the Fourth of July, is so great that it has surprised some of the dealers in pyrotechnics, who had not provided so much ready material as on former occasions, because of two facts, viz: the presence of hard times and the great display in this line at the last election. It has occasioned unusual activity. The dealers are busier this year than they were just previous to the last anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

The committee that was appointed to arrange for the Presbyterian reunion of the southern section of Pennsylvania, at Mont Alto, met in the second Presbyterian church, of Carlisle, on the 14th, inst., and decided to change the date of the reunion to a day that will be more convenient for their business. This will be either July 15 or July 29. A letter was received from General Harrison expressing his willingness to come to the reunion, provided the date can be arranged.

The test to which the waterworks at Rockville have been subjected proved successful up until Saturday afternoon, at which time the water tower, which is 120 feet in height, began to crack at the base under the severe strain to which it was being subjected. The contractors are Ross & Castoe, of Belaire, Ohio. The water was run out of the tank and the tower examined thoroughly. It is stated by experienced mechanics that the tower is many inches out of plumb. There is a crack at the base, immediately over the doorway, which is large enough to run two fingers in. The contractors seem to think the entire matter can be remedied in short order.

MARYLAND TO CALIFORNIA.

On the Wing to the great C. E. Convention.

There must be more than an ordinary end in view to induce one to pack his grip, leave his home and friends and work behind him, and set out on a journey of 3000 miles across the continent. This end is the Sixteenth Annual Christian Endeavor Convention—the great object of attention and interest for the more than two and one half millions of Endeavorers. Any one who goes once to this annual gathering will want to go again and yet again. There is always something to be learned; new views of old truth presented; new applications of the teaching of the Gospel to changed and changing conditions of life. There is given on such occasions, too, an uplift of the whole man to a loftier plane of living. Every aggressive, earnest worker in the Kingdom can find much of blessing in new visions of duty, a broader view of the field of opportunity, and a larger measure of the gift of the Spirit, in a great convention like this.

Besides all this, the writer has a mission to the National Union of C. E. Societies, in the Lutheran church, which he represents in official capacity, at the Lutheran Rally. Our General Synod Lutheran churches are loyal to C. E. principles and are wide awake to the advantages of this helpful organization. We have over 1100 societies of Endeavor in the General Synod, some 75 of which are in our own state of Maryland; but, more of this later.

In a trip of this kind there is afforded plenty of opportunity to learn in various fields of knowledge. If one keeps eyes and ear open, there is something to impress itself at every turn. Leaving Taneytown at 3.58 yesterday (Monday) I reached Harrisburg at 7 p. m., a few minutes in advance of the St. Louis Express, on which the genial agent of the P. R. R. of Taneytown had engaged my berth in the Pullman. We crossed the Alleghenies at night, so of course missed the wild and picturesque mountain scenery of that region. When day broke, we were far in the state of Ohio, speeding along at the rate of 45 miles an hour.

One of the strange things of life is, (perhaps not so strange after all) no matter where you go you are likely to see some one you know. It was a pleasant incident to meet in the same Pullman car with my old class mate, Prof. Fred Gotwald, of Springfield, Ohio, whom I had not seen for years, and his bride, nee Miss Small of York, Pa., on their way to Springfield to begin home-making and home-keeping together.

It is a good school, to travel; one learns to be contented at home. I have been thinking all this morning, if I only could let the Carroll county farmers see through my eyes just now! I have come over the whole state of Ohio, and am now in the heart of Indiana, and am passing through the first corn field that I consider as promising as very many I left behind me in Carroll. Corn is very small all through Ohio and what is only a partial crop in this region. Grass too, is thin on the ground. And the homes! The large, comfortable brick houses, and immense barns! I have not seen any of these yet. Small story and a half homes; frame, dark and dingy in color for the most part, and good sized hay sheds—Carroll county farmers would call them—comprise the buildings.

It is a beautiful country—level generally, but slightly rolling in parts and the soil regarded as fertile, but if you want to see homes, go to your own in the east. If a farmer cannot live in Carroll, he cannot live anywhere. We find the wheat harvest ten days behind our own at home. We have passed through many very fine towns, notably Columbus, where the democrats are busy to-day nominating a gubernatorial ticket. The free silver plank will go in the platform. We are sure, for we found Ohioans so caught with it that they advertise their enthusiasm on their barns, "16 to 1."

We just now passed through Richmond, Indiana, one of the best cities of the state. Here is located the State Insane Asylum of which we had a splendid view from the train in passing. It is noted as being one of the finest institutions of the kind in the country. There is one large building, and about it on all sides are grouped numbers of smaller buildings.

In Indiana, we note a slight improvement in the crops, and also in the size and character of the buildings. But we must say, enough; writing while the train is moving is not an easy task. The Endeavorers are every station where we stop; 600 left Pittsburgh by special last night.

Tonight we traverse Missouri, and to-morrow the Kansas prairie. There we will rest for a day or two, and in the next letter will tell you something of prairie life.

LOWER TAX RATE.

Taneytown District rate reduced Eight Cents.

The County Commissioners on Wednesday announced the tax rate for this year for county purposes to be 45 cents, divided as follows: for schools 12 cents for courts and salaries 13 cents; for alms house and jail 9 cents, miscellaneous 6 cents. This is a reduction of four cents from last year. The road tax is also reduced in most districts which further lessens the rate; Taneytown, for instance, will pay 8 cents instead of 12 cents, which will make our total tax rate, including 17 1/2 cents state tax, 70 cents instead of 74 cents on the $100.

The commissioners have also levied the road tax for the several districts, as follows: Taneytown, 8 cents; Uniontown, 10 cents; Myers, 8 cents; Woolerys, 13 cents; Freedom, 13 cents; Manchester, 11 cents; Westminster, 8 cents; Hampstead, 13 cents; Franklin, 15 cents; Middleburg, 8 cents; New Windsor, 8 cents; Union Bridge, 12 cents; Mt. Airy, 15 cents. The levy is less than last year in all the districts except Uniontown and Union Bridge, which show an increase.

From a statement just issued by the Taneytown Camp P. O. S. of A., we gather the following information, which shows the organization to be in a flourishing condition.

The assets of the Camp, at present, foot up $1058.04, of which, $500., is in a first mortgage; $339.04 in notes and cash, and $255. in furniture and paraphernalia. The membership has been steadily increasing from 37 on the date of institution.

Children's-day in Union Bridge.

On last Sunday evening the Sunday school of the Lutheran church gave one of the best children's-day exercises it has ever given. The program used was entitled "Children's Day." The church was filled with an attentive audience. The offering given amounted to Twelve Dollars, and the same will be sent to the Tressler's Orphan's Home, at Loysville, Pa. FIRE IN UNION BRIDGE.

Fire Company and Water Works Prevent great Loss.

(For the Record.)

Another fire occurred here on last Tuesday evening, about 8.30 o'clock, in the cellar of Messrs J. H. Repp & Co's Hardware store. As Mr. Wm. J. Haines entered the cellar with a lantern to draw oil for a customer, the lamp all at once exploded, burning Mr. H.'s right hand very badly; he ran for the stairs as soon as he could, thus saving his clothing from catching afire. In an instant after the explosion the cellar was almost all a blaze. The fire was supposed to be due from escaped gas of gasoline barrels, which caused the explosion of the lantern. The flames and smoke shot out of the side cellar door under a shed roof between Mr. John N. Weaver's dwelling, and on the side, burning the weather boarding badly.

Much credit is due our local Fire Company, which, in five minutes after the alarm was given, was throwing several streams of water on the flames, which prevented them from spreading further than between the two buildings. Barrels of oil, powder, dynamite and gasoline were in the cellar, but owing to the promptness of the Fire Company every thing was water soaked before any further explosion could occur. Other residences certainly would have been in great danger, had it not been for our water works and fire company. Mr. Repp received several slight burns, and became so unnerved that he had to be taken home until the flames were extinguished.

The goods on the first floor was damaged somewhat by water, and also those on the second floor. Stock and buildings were fully insured. The one side, and part of front of Mr. Weaver's house needs new weather-boarding. One fireman, Mr. Wm. Strawsburg, got hurt very badly by falling from the top of ladder to the ground, spraining his ankles, and being very much jarred in the body by the fall, as he is a large man. At this writing he is getting along as well as can be expected. We praise our fire company, and appreciate our water works.

The President Invited.

Frederick, Md., July 1.—The President was today invited to visit the Frederick fair next October. He signified a strong desire to accept and inspect that part of the state, which he expressed himself as much interested in and anxious to see. The delegation that tendered the invitation, after seeing the President, called on the various cabinet officers and extended similar invitations. Those who comprised the party were Milton G. Urner, Col. D. C. Winebrenner, Chas. H. Hargate, H. C. Keifer and L. S. Clingan. The spokesman of the delegation reminded the President that President Grant made it a rule to visit Frederick during his fair and that he expressed himself as always anxious to meet the people there. General Grant, it was said, remained over night and seemed never in a hurry to leave. President Hayes used to visit Frederick, also, upon the occasion of his fair, but returned to Washington the same day, and President McKinley is now urged to follow General Grant's plan and stay over night. The delegation left, feeling assured that the President and his cabinet would visit the fair. Secretary Long, Secretary Alger and Postmaster-General Gary gave his assurance that he would not only be present himself, but would endeavor to have the President there with him.—Sun.

The Abuse of the Wheel.

Hagerstown, Md., July 1.—Rev. Edwin Heyl Delk delivered an address in Trinity Lutheran church Hagerstown, last night on "The abuse of the Wheel." He said the chief abuses consisted in immoderate riding, in the purchase of wheels by people who cannot afford it, by riding on Sunday and men and women to gether taking long rides into the country without chaperones. He cited medical authority to prove that riding cramped the apex of the lungs and induced consumption, and that appendicitis was also induced by riding a wheel, especially among children and young girls. He stated that a physician in Bellevue Medical College, New York, said appendicitis patients had increased 50 per cent, since cycling was common, and that a majority of the patients at his institution were devotees of the wheel. People with heart disease, the Rev. Mr. Delk said, should never ride a wheel.

Banker's Mill.

On last Thursday morning, the 34th, Mr. Granville Shuey, an aged and respected citizen, died at his residence in Tyrone. He was born in this county, and for many years he lived in this neighborhood; he was a staunch republican since the war, and was the father of eight children, four sons and four daughters, all of whom are grown; eighteen grand-children are living and three dead, and two great-grand-children are living.

His remains were taken to Baust's church on Saturday afternoon, and laid away to rest in the presence of a large concourse of relatives and friends. Rev. Mr. Spessard improved the sad occasion from the following words, "Let me die the death of the righteous and let my last end be like his." Although he lived to the good old age of 74 years, 8 months and 4 days, he but several months ago connected himself with the Reformed church. He was a good husband, and a kind and affectionate father, an upright and honest citizen.

We extend to the bereaved wife and children our heartfelt sympathy, in their loss of his eternal gain. The pall bearers were, H. Sell, E. Winters, Wm. Heltabridge, Wm. Formwalt, Levi Maus and Geo. T. Markewitz; undertaker, James Stoner, of Stonersville.

Rev. Mr. Spessard will have communion at Baust's on Sunday, at 10 o'clock a. m. Preparatory services Saturday night at 8 o'clock.

Harvest is in full blast, and some have finished cutting and by another week most of the wheat and rye will be housed. The wheat and rye crop is the heaviest, this season, in this community, that has been harvested for several years, and our farmers are elated and hope the prices will be high enough to compensate them for their labor.

Mrs. Jesse C. Bankert has a hen ten years old, that reared 120 chicks this season, and at this time laying an egg regularly every day. I'll not ask who can beat it, because I am well aware that some one can, or dispute the truth of my chicken story.

Gambler.

Quite a number of our citizens attended the Sabbath school anniversary, at Finksburg, on Sunday last.

Mrs. J. W. Sellers entertained the Ladies Aid Society on Thursday the 24th., at her home in this village. There was quite a large turnout, and they were entertained in Mrs. Sellers' hospitable way, which made all present feel that it was good to be there.

Mr. William Harden, a young gentleman of our vicinity, who has been studying for the ministry at one of New Jersey's best seminaries, preached his maiden sermon at Mt. Pleasant M. E. church, on Sunday last, to a large and appreciative audience, and judging by his first attempt, Mr. Harden bids fair to take first rank among the ministers of our land.

Mr. Jacob Powder has had his barn and other outbuildings painted. Mr. A. F. Gamber, painter.

Uniontown.

The funeral of Elder George W. Seilhamer took place Sunday morning, in the Bethel. The services were in charge of Elder S. B. Craft, of Warfieldsburg; he paid a short tribute of respect and affection to the deceased, as did also Elders T. B. Tyler, Jesse Williams, S. W. Kipe, W. H. Enzler, G. W. Bowersox, J. A. Saxton, Eyer, J. R. Gearing and J. W. Rodkey. Elder Tyler read a tribute of respect from Rev. G. W. Baughman pastor of the Lutheran church, who was not able to be present. The church was draped in mourning. The floral tributes were beautiful and numerous, from both the Friesburg and Uniontown congregations. The church was packed to its utmost capacity, the number of people having been estimated at 700, and as many outside that could not get in. One of the oldest citizens acknowledges this to be the largest funeral ever held in this place. Much credit is due this large gathering of people, for the perfect quiet and order that prevailed during the entire service. The remains were interred in the church cemetery, with the burial rites of the Grand Army of the Republic, by Burns Post of Westminster; the rites of the Order of I. O. M. and I. O. R. M. were also performed at the grave. The following selections were sung during the service: "Home of the Soul," "Rock of Ages," "Nearer my God to thee," "Asleep in Jesus," "Beyond the dark sea," and "I would not live away."

(An error in dates occurred in last issue. Rev. Seilhamer was licensed in 1868, and the following spring, 1869, was appointed to the Uniontown charge.—Ed.)

greet our many friends with renewed confidence, feeling perfectly assured that our foundation is solid, finan-is steadily widening, giving the REC-course of the paper in the past has been to deserve success; and, having that end in view, the subscriber and reader has been catered to, rather than the advertiser, which, in the end, is best also for the latter. Many advertising contracts have been refused in the past three years, because their acceptance would have interfered with our general plan which has now proven a success.

When we consider that the term of the existence of the RECORD has not been three years of public prosperity, and consequently not conducive to the success of new and doubtful enterprises, we have the greater grounds for congratulation, and feel too, that the public has treated our efforts magnificently well, for which we extend sincere thanks and appreciation.
In the year just opening the REC-ORD hopes to continue to merit liberal support. The management knows no stopping point, and has no special ideal; therefore we simply press "Forward, not back" in the journalistic field, trusting wholly to merit to bring deserved success, and promising to return to our patrons their full quota of whatever may be the measure of this success.

Will the Tariff question cease as a Political Issue.

The RECORD recently expressed the opinion that the tariff should not be a question of politics, but one of business; that we should not have party differences, and distinctive party policies, on this question, but that there should be framed and placed in operation at the earliest practicable moment, a National tariff law, representing as nearly as possible a system beneficial to the whole country and all interests.

The following from the N. Y. Sun, of June 11th, a staunch Democratic journal, shows the change which is taking place gradually, and which may result in the near future in the final disposition of the question as a party bone of contention.
"The tariff discussion now proceeding in the Senate, and incidentally in the newspapers of all parties and all parts of the Union, is making it manifest that a revival of public sentiment with regard to the subject is occurring, which promises to remove that vexatious and wearisome question as far as the contest of party strife. The two great parties are now nearer together, so far as the Tariff is concerned, than ever before in their history. It is discussed with a temperance and fairness previously unknown in the history of our politics.

Democratic newspapers, of course, have not lost their old animosity, but taking advantage of such opportunities for tactical party purposes as the debate in the Senate offers; but it is obvious that they are not relying on the issue as of any great importance for use in the political contests to come.
They recognize, that there is no sharp line of division between the two parties on that question. They see that there is no difference of principle between them as to the Tariff, which indicates that it can again, at least in the near future, become a dominant issue of politics.

The sectional division of sentiment as to Free Trade and Protection has also practically disappeared. Pride of opinion may to some extent attempt to keep it up, but the effort no longer is animated by sincere conviction. The actual and substantial agreement on the Tariff is much greater than old disputants, whose great business in life was to prevent it, wish to believe. Practically they have themselves given up the contention, though they are loath to acknowledge it. They are tired of it, or even to acknowledge to themselves that their occupation is gone.

So far as the Tariff goes there is, then, no justification for a separation between the two parties. Practically they are one in their views of a general Tariff policy, and even as to particulars there is no difference between them which is made by opposing principle. To the extent that the Tariff fight continues, it is kept up only because of a past habit of fighting over the question, not because there is really anything to fight over now. On all sides, in every part of the Union, the popular desire, without regard to partisan prejudices, is that the tariff bill now in the discussion shall be passed as speedily as possible.

All hands are impatient of the vain and tedious question, and the construction made by careful Magazines almost exclusively. The people, business, trade and industry are anxious to have the Tariff question settled and out of the way. They are tired of it. Its long and purposeless discussions have brought only disaster.
Legislation has simply been traveling around a circle. The result has proved that the American people want the policy of protection; and that it will remain as the fixed American policy until there comes a substantial agreement that it is no longer profitable."

The Forcefulness of Public Opinion in American Politics.

(Written specially for the RECORD.) There is no field of investigation which is so temptingly alluring to an ambitious brainy man, as that of American politics. The mighty interests involved, the autocratic powers exercised by the party leaders, and the vast and complicated ramifications and possibilities for the exercise of power, to which a political career is the entree, make the pursuit of the science one hard to be resisted.
He who wields a mastery influence in guiding the destinies of the American Republic is not alone the cynosure for the eyes of the millions of his fellow countrymen, but he has, as intensely interested spectators, the inhabitants of every civilized nation under the sun.

In the earlier history of the United States, when her resources were limited, her boundaries circumscribed, and her population but a tithe of its present magnificent aggregate, a consideration as to what effect a certain line of action would have upon other nations, if adopted as a part of our national policy, did not force itself as a vital element, the determination of which was a matter of the gravest import. But at the present time, the statesman, the legislator, aye, the individual, in the exercise of the right of the elective franchise, must realize the reciprocal relations sustained by us to other lands, and the consequently corresponding responsibility entailed upon us by the facts in the case, if their duties as custodians of high privileges are to be discharged.
The impetus given to the thought of the world in the example set by the United States, upon any question of an international character, is more obvious as length of days characterizes our existence. The moral influence exercised by our acts, and the heed given to the position we assume, in relation to all questions affecting the interests of the race, admonish us that we may not either with propriety or safety act with undue haste or from the promptings of any selfish considerations. The careful deliberation demanded in the premises frequently calls forth expressions of feverish impatience on the part of the populace, who, misled by the cunning artifice and sophistry of the demagogue, take but a superficial view of the considerations involved, and clamor for speedy settlement of the issues at stake; but when intelligent and patriotic leadership, and wise moderation prevail, the calm judgment of the people accepts the verdict, and commends those participating in the councils which bring about the desired result.

It is essential, however, that in all questions, especially those which are submitted to popular vote, the people should be made to clearly understand the issues involved so that they may intelligently and conscientiously vote thereon. More wrongs are committed and unrighteous legislation has been enacted because the people are misled and fail to grasp the truth, than from any desire or intent to do mischievous, or prevent the ends of justice. To those whom they have elevated to positions of power and influence the people look for guidance, and justly demand the full discharge of duty from the incumbents in the affairs of state.
In the formation of the public opinion which eventually decides all questions, with which we deal, the editorial staff of our leading dailies exercise important functions. The influences they exert either tends to foster and make permanent healthful and vigorous methods of reasoning, or pollute and impoverish the moral sense of the public, and thus inflict most deadly wounds, weakening the bulwarks of personal liberty, and sowing the seed of discord and dissolution. Second of the three great moral teachers of the age, the Press of to-day voices the sentiments of good government and conserves the futures and perpetuity of free institutions, and is a noisome pestilence—pernicious and fatal as the sweep of an avalanche, or the wild fury of a cyclone. Held up for the admiration of all mankind, gibbered in the sight of the world, should he be, who, exercising the duties of an editor allows either personal consideration or party malevolence to tinge his presentation of the claims of any public interest, whereby the sense of right of the people is blunted, or the truth perverted.

Before a public opinion animated by motives of patriotism and justice the machine politician trembles, pollution hides its head, and corruption and malfeasance in office are swept away as chaff before the wind. Ever and anon, in the history of the Republic, we have seen instances where the people arising in their might have hurled from the positions they occupied, those who proved themselves unworthy of confidence, and in the thunderous echo of their denunciation was sounded the knell of unrighteous ambition, and knellness of purpose and faithful discharge of duty were heralded as the criterion by which fitness for office is to be judged, and the unrighteous and the self-seeking relegated to the obscurity which their disregard of their high privileges merited and justified.

The education of the children of to-day should embrace the cultivation of an apprehension of truth and correction in the channels through which flow the information to the masses; and censured and blotted out of existence, perforce of lack of patronage, should be every agency which does not conduce, by its teachings, to the healthfulness and prosperity of the body politic.

The importance of this fact becomes more and more apparent as our population increases, and the demands upon the cohesive power of our form of government become more taxing. The conflicting interests of the different sections of the Union, the diversified character of their climate, soil and products, and the wide divergence of opinion upon public questions, perforce of these facts, are a favorite argument in the mouth of and we lay upon our arms during the night. The next day, Friday, the 6th, we were taken to the left; here a terrible strife ensued between the contending parties. The Secessionists were resolved to drive the Unionists back, and the latter were equally determined not to surrender the advantage they had gained. For at least five hours the rattling of the musketry was unceasingly heard, and the armed masses surged to and fro.

Fortune appeared to favor now one side and now another. Ever and anon, a loud cheer went up for the Union, and that would be caught up at a distance and echoed by our soldiers, and joyously re-echoed by the surrounding hills. Many a brave warrior no doubt heard that glorious shout as his senses reeled in death, and his spirit went forth embalmed with the assurance that he had not fallen in vain.

Triumph was about to crown our efforts, when a large force of the enemy under the intrepid Longstreet thronged to the rescue; blood now streamed anew, and shouts and groans, and prayers and curses, went up with the gigantic forms of smoke into the upper air—appropriate incense to wait the elements of battle to the skies.

But nature is no longer an impartial witness. She draws the curtains and the camp fires blaze along the roads, and light up the trees. Man's pandemonium is profaning the holy night. Midnight comes, and the scattered words of the sentinels are heard, and the Yankees and the Rebels are sleeping on their arms, dreaming it may be, of the time when they were friends and brothers, and America had not become one vast military camp. The stars too, are keeping watch on the battlefields of Heaven. They challenge no one, they seem to say to all the weary and worn, "Come hither." Here is peace; speak they or be they forever silent, there are many spirits in the air, seeking peace that is not of the earth.

The second corps and part of the third, were likewise consolidated, and General W. S. Hancock placed in command. The remaining portion of the Third was put with the Sixth, and commanded by General John Sedgewick; he was killed on the 9th, of May, at near Spotsylvania Court house. After his death, General Wright, of the first division, assumed command of the corps. The cavalry corps was commanded by General Phil. Sheridan.
In the evening of the 3rd, of May, 1864, we were informed by our officers that we were to prepare to move. All was activity and bustle, and, shortly after midnight, having completed all our preparations, and with eighty rounds of cartridges per man, and three days rations (which we knew meant business ahead) we were tramping along the road that leads toward the Rapidan River. We reached the river shortly after daylight, and crossed on a pontoon bridge at Germania Ford.

Before leaving our winter quarters we were ordered to destroy them, which was done by setting them on fire, which burned brightly, and the lights along the wooded hillsides reminded me of the lights of a city. On route, after crossing the river, led through a wild and desolate tract of country, overgrown with stunted pine and scrub oaks, but the boys were in good health, and anxious to meet the "Johnnies," and fight under the eyes of our new leader.

The next morning, Thursday, the 5th, we reached the old Wilderness tavern, and were halted in a clearing.
About three o'clock in the afternoon, we were taken into the woods behind, and there formed into line of battle, for at this time the skirmishers in our front were hotly engaged with the enemy, and were slowly retiring toward our line of battle. After the skirmish line passed to the rear, we fired several well directed volleys, into the advancing foe, and the enemy meeting these fresh regiments retired toward their breast-works, and we were ordered to advance. We did so, but were driven in turn; here, Lieutenant Mills, of our company, was fatally wounded, being shot between the eyes; several of the men wrapped him in a blanket and carried him to the rear, but he died in about an hour after he received the wound.

Charles Stewart was shot in the left leg, which necessitated amputation; Dennis McCordie, shot through the shoulder; Jno. Brown and James Gagan were slightly wounded. These were the only casualties in our company as I can remember them, and as for position to know of their losses during this engagement.

I will not attempt to give a description of the Wilderness, but I can imagine few more disadvantageous localities for a battle. As far as I could see, the country was covered with pine timber and underbrush, so that troops could very readily conceal themselves, and the undergrowth was so thick that it was difficult to move cavalry or artillery through it, and very little artillery was used in this battle, all the fighting being done here between the infantry.

Toward evening we were again advanced and were ordered to lie down, and I can assure you that I hugged mother earth as tightly as it was possible. Darkness at length put an end to the contest on our part of the line.

TARIFF DEBATE ENDING.

Probability of a vote on Saturday, but no positive assurance.

Washington, June 30.—Senators say rather confidently today that a vote can be reached on the tariff bill Saturday. They say that nothing would be gained by having the final vote taken before that day, as the bill cannot be sent to the House before Monday, and into conference before Wednesday.

Prominent Republican Senators say that there is a general understanding, though not definite, that the bill will reach a final vote Saturday, but the Democrats have entered into no agreement, nor do they feel under any restrictions to do they implied understanding. Occasion, they say, may arise which will induce them to debate some paragraphs longer than they now anticipate.

The Senate committee on Finance has practically concluded its consideration of the reciprocity provisions to be recommended in connection with the tariff bill, and will probably present the amendment agreed upon late today or some time tomorrow.

The amendment will set forth as the incentive to the provision the desire for extending the commerce of the United States, and will provide for the negotiation of commercial treaties with any nation with which we have trade relations authorizing the reduction of the rates of duty on all articles from the countries entering into the arrangement to the extent of 10 per cent. The treaties are to be negotiated by the President and ratified by the Senate. It had been the original intention of the Committee to make the discount 20 per cent, but this purpose was abandoned because of the conviction that the revenue that would be thus lost could not be spared.

The Senate Judiciary Committee has also completed its draft of the anti-trust amendment, but has not yet been considered by the Finance Committee. It follows the general lines of the amendment offered by Senator Nelson directed against the Sugar Trust, but makes the provision of general application to all articles affected by the tariff.

DID THE ELOPING HERSELF.

Widow Berry tied her daughter up and became Mrs. Whitley.

In the White Oak neighborhood in the eastern end of this county, Mrs. Martha Berry, aged about forty, and her pretty daughter, Matilda, who has just entered her eighteenth year, have lived for several years. In the same neighborhood lived Johnson Whitley, a prosperous farmer of thirty, and a widower. Whitley has been paying attention to Mrs. Berry's daughter for six months, and it was supposed generally that they would be married soon. The mother would not give her consent, but she did not object to the young widower's calls. He pleaded with the widow for the hand of her daughter to no purpose, and the young people decided on an elopement.

All the arrangements were made for the elopement, but the watchful mother discovered what was on foot, and on Friday night, the time set for the elopement, she went to her daughter's room shortly after dark, and bound the girl hand and foot. She also tied a gag in her mouth, and took her to her own room and tied her to the bed. She then returned to the daughter's room, and when Whitley came to steal away his love, the widow answered the summons, and, without speaking a word, joined the young man in the yard. He assisted her into his buggy, and drove with her to Grayson, the county seat of Carter county, where he had arranged with Judge Morris to perform the ceremony.

Whitley was surprised at the silence of his companion, but as she leaned confidingly on his arm, and appeared to be sobbing all the time, he could do nothing more than caress her now and then, and cheer her by telling her that her mother would forgive her. It was not until after the ceremony was performed on the judge's front porch, and they had repaired to a hotel, that the bridegroom saw that he had married the widow. He decided at once to make the best of the situation. He took his wedded wife home; to a neighbor he said that, although he thought he was dead in love with Matilda, he always did think a great deal of her handsome mother. Matilda was discovered bound in her mother's room by a neighbor next morning, and when she learned of the trick her mother had played her, she said that, although she thought she loved Mr. Whitley, she is now satisfied she did not. She promises to be a dutiful daughter to him.

A NEW COUNTERFEIT.

Lookout for the Five Dollar Silver Certificate.

Washington, June 29.—The first counterfeit of the new design certificates has reached the Secret Service Bureau. It is of the $5 denomination, and bears check letter B, plate No. 4. It is a photo-lithographic production, and is printed upon two pieces of paper, between which silk fibre has been distributed, then pasted together. Much of the work on the note is blurred and indistinct. Especially is this true of the face of the figure representing "America." The imprint of the "Bureau of Engraving and Printing" right and border, face of "Series 1896" in scroll, lower right corner of note. The seal is much darker red than the genuine, and badly blurred. The numbering is too large, and the dark outlines of the original numbers can be faintly discerned beneath those stamped on the counterfeit.

The back of the note has a dull, faded appearance. The green ink is lighter shade than that used on the genuine. The portraits of "Grant" and "Sheridan" are not so distinct in relief as in the genuine. The note has the appearance of having been circulated, owing in a degree to the soft fibrous character of the paper.

BURDETTE AND THE BICYCLE.

He says he can ride, but not that he does.

A report got in circulation to the effect that Bob Burdette was dead. The Burlington Hawkeye, with which the humorist was formerly associated, denied the rumor, and Bob confirms the denial in the following letter to the editor:

Bryn Mawr, Pa., June 14, 1897.—My Dear Waite: Like the true friend and loyal comrade you ever were, you do right to protest against my burial prior to the autopsy.

I am, indeed, very much alive. Not only so, I haven't been dead even a little bit. Not once. Could have been, had I wanted to be. Could be yet, but I don't want. Maybe I ought to be dead, but I don't want to be. I make weekly confession—"We have left undone those things which we ought to have done."

Possibly the rumor that I have gone dead grew out of the fact that I have learned, not "am learning." Learned in one lesson. All by myself. Went out in the moonlight last Friday night to learn, having first looked my family in the house and forbade them to look out of the windows. Led my bicycle out on the turnpike. The Bryn Mawr pikes are broader than the way to destruction, twice as smooth and much cleaner. It's a young bicycle—a coil, foaled in '97, would give the nines for the fact that I had to pay for the wheel. Will only say, therefore, in accordance with the ethics of our profession, that it is not the wheel anybody says is.

He held him by the withers right in the middle of the road, and mounted without assistance.

I dismounted in the same independent manner, in the same independent manner.

Got on again and proceeded to break him to the saddle.

Did I ride the first time?

Well, say!

People had told me—lars of all ages and both sexes—that I couldn't fall, when I fell that I was falling.

I stuck out both feet and both hands and fell on my head.

I fell on one side of that diabolical wheel and then on the other. I fell on both sides at once. I fell on top of it and underneath it, and made "dog-falls" with it. I fell between the wheels. I fell behind the wheels.

I fell behind the hind wheel, and before the front one at the same time and don't know yet how I did it. I fell and thrust both my legs through the spokes of one wheel and the other.

I fell on a buggy and drove him clear off the pike through Wheeler's hedge, and don't think he has come back yet.

Every time I fell I slapped the palms of my raw, red, throbbing hands on the hard "inelastic" pike except the time I fell on my head.

I fell harder and with greater variety of landing than any man could fall, unless he dropped out of a balloon and lit in a load of furniture. I lost my confidence, my patience, my temper, my clamps, lamp, bell and reputation. I broke one pedal, the saddle, and the ordinance against loud, boisterous and abusive language at night. I ran into everything in sight except the middle of the road. I saw down on everything in the township except the saddle. I scorched in a circuit not 15 feet in circumference until you could smell brimstone. I made more revolutions than a South American republic, and didn't get 10 feet away from where I started. I haven't been so mauled and abraded, so thumped and beaten, so trampled upon and pounded, so bruised and scratched since I left the army. But I can ride.

I don't say that I "do." But I can.

Do I consider "biking" good for the health?

For the health of some people, I do. I don't see how a physician can bring up his family unless his children have something to eat.

But in my own case, I reserve my decision. I will wait until I know whether I am going to die or get well. Although friends who have called to see me, break down when they say "good-bye" and walk out of the room on tip-toe. But I wouldn't mind that if I knew what became of my shoulder blades the time I ran under the hay wagon.

Therapeutically yours,
ROBERT J. BURDETTE.

My View of Gas.

"Ow much do you charge for pulling out a tooth, young man?"

"One shilling—and 5 shillings with gas."

"Five shillings with gas! Then I'll come again tomorrow when it's daylight!"—Punch.

Permanently Cured.

"For about two years I suffered with rheumatism. I used a number of remedies and was treated by physicians, but received no permanent relief. After taking a few doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, I believe that I am now permanently cured."—JOHN CRITES, Tanner, Gilmer county, W. Va. This remedy is sold by R. S. Statistics show that the uneducated factory girl is more frequently married than the wife of a professional man.

The superstitious Celestials, if unfortunate, are apt to imagine their houses haunted by these unwelcome visitors, who before the invention of powder were dislodged by the crack of a fire of dried bamboo.

This dressy personage, who invariably comes clad in a red jacket, blue trousers and green cap, precedes the act by waving his hands and calling upon the gods to give him power. Then, touching the firecrackers with a torch, he in stentorian tones commands the green, red, yellow and black evil spirits to return where they properly belong.

While the explosion continues his attendants beat drums, clash cymbals and utter those discordant cries of which Chinese throats and lungs are alone capable. In order that the spirits may not return, the magician makes certain mystic movements with his hands before the front door.

Then, congratulating the family on being rid of their undesirable guests, he pockets, or, to be literal, "steals," his fee and departs.—New York Post.

Senator Allison, who has charge of the tariff bill in the absence of Mr. Aldrich, of Rhode Island, is moving along with great dignity. Mr. Allison is a very diplomatic man, works very quietly and softly. Gen. Logan once made the remark that Allison could walk across a room carpeted with eggs and never crack a shell. Senator Stewart, in praising Mr. Allison's diplomatic ability says that he jumps from one side of a subject to the other with such rapidity that you think he is on both sides all the time. Senator Jones, of Nevada, compliments Mr. Allison with the opinion that he is so extremely conservative that he is against anything that he is in favor of. With so able a leader as Senator Allison the tariff bill is rapidly approaching completion. If some heroism like Senator Quay was in charge of the bill, with his unyielding, unflinching, never-say-die principles, there is no telling when the bill would come to a vote; but Allison stands ready on all occasions to throw out the white flag, which insures perpetual peace.

On Wednesday, two trains carrying Christian Endeavorers to California collided with other trains, causing the death of five persons and seriously injuring over twenty more. One accident occurred west of Chicago, the train being badly wrecked, and the other was near Vandalia, Indiana. In the latter, no passengers were killed or injured, but two trainmen were killed outright and two fatally injured. In the former, two of the persons killed were lady passengers.

The headquarters of the National Republican Committee are to be located in Cleveland. They will be transferred from Washington to the famous Perry-Payne building, in Cleveland, where Hanna conducted the national republican campaign. The Washington headquarters will be kept open, but will be in charge of an attaché of the National Committee. Chairman Hanna and secretary Dick expect to be at the Cleveland headquarters all summer.

During the fiscal year ended June 30th, there were built in the United States and officially number 729 vessels, of 177,643 gross tons, compared with 709 vessels of 203,977 tons of the previous year. The decrease is almost wholly in wooden tonnage, which for 1897 amounts to 64,940 tons compared with 94,715 tons for 1896. Of the total construction 347 vessels of 113,065 tons were steam vessels, compared with 322 of 134,947 tons for the previous year. Steel steamers built on the Great Lakes number 15 of 55,866 tons, compared with 24 of 56,020 tons for the previous year.

The Railway Age reports that only 622 miles of track have been laid in the United States during the first half of 1897. This is less than the corresponding period of any year since 1875, with the exception of 1894, when only 525 miles of track had been laid up to July 1st. In twenty-six of the states and territories no track has been laid this year. Judging from the construction now under way on the different lines, the total amount of track laid during the entire year will be close to two thousand miles, about the same amount that was laid during each of the last three years.

Great Triumph.

It heats everything except a broken heart, may be said of De Witt's Witch Hazel ointment. Piles and rectal diseases, cuts, burns, bruises, tetters, eczema and all skin troubles may be cured by it quickly and permanently. J. McKellip, druggist, Taneytown, Md.

Superintendent McKelvey, of the Brooklyn police, has effectively blocked the Sullivan Fitzsimmons sparring match, scheduled for July 5, at Ambrose Park. He has instructed the police not to allow the match to take place under any circumstances. The park officials will not even be allowed to begin the erection of a platform for the fight. An evasion of the instructions was attempted, when the park people learned that the fight could not come off even under the Horton law. They allowed it to be generally understood that the fight would come off under the guise of an illustrated lecture. Superintendent McKelvey forbade even this arrangement, however.

Return Our Grain Sacks!

Our New Mill

will start about July 15th, and

The New Crop

Will soon be ready for market; we hope to handle a portion of it, and to do so will require a large number of Sacks. We have scattered throughout the neighborhood, between 500 and 1,000, over 300 having disappeared during the season of '96. We hope all who have been using them will look them up and return them at once; we like to accommodate our trade, but we feel that we should have the use of the Sacks at least a few months in the year. We also want to call your attention to our Fertilizers for the Fall Crop.

We have bought them, and have samples that we want you to see. Compare the analysis, condition of goods, etc., and learn what they have done for parties who have used them for 10 years. The price must be as low as, or lower, than our competitors, on the same class of goods, or you need not buy them. Wait for us; we shall call to see you, if you do not call to see us.

Respectfully, &c.,

Don't Forget the Grain Sacks!

For the first time in history, a general census has been taken of the population of the Russian empire, which is shown to number 129,311,113, of which total 64,616,280 are males and 64,594,833 females. United States Consul General Karel, at St. Petersburg, who transmits the figures to the State Department, says they show that, in forty-five years, the population of Russia has doubled, and during the last twelve years it has increased twenty per cent.
