100 0 1 TO DELINQUENT SUBSCRIBERS. Quite a number of our subscribers owe Quite a number of our subscribers owe for a years subscription, while many more owe for a portion of a year. We think that this is simply the neglect of an apparently small matter, to our friends, but it means a great deal to us; because, in the aggregate, the small sums make a large one—a large sum earned, but not received. We urge our patrons to pay up; not only because it is best for us, but best for them too, as it is always unwise to ask for credit when it is not needed, even for a trifling amount. "Short Credit, makes long friends."

Review of the Crop Season.

At the close of the crop season of 1897 the correspondents of the Maryland and Delaware section were re quested to give a brief summary of the weather and crop conditions during the season, and of the results of the harvest, in their respective sections. The replies received, as well weather reports published from month to month, mark the past season as, on the whole, one of the most prosperous in the past decade for the weather in Maryland and Delaware lickoffer and Miss Marietta Lassell. may be described in a few words.

The season opened in March with the temperature considerably above to keep the season temperature (reck oned from March 1) above the normal until the middle of June in spite of the fact that April was a little below and May and June much below the average temperature. From the middle of June to the middle of September the season temperature wa steadily below normal, though there were some warm periods in July and some excessively hot days in the early part of September. The hottest ay of the year occurred on the 10th. of September, the thermometer re cording 100° at Taneytown, and above | day. 95° at several stations. The latter part of the summer was characterized by warm days with plenty of sunshine, and by cool nights.

In March and April there was a deficiency of rainfall; in May an excess in June a deficiency; in July the fal was more than double the normal fo the month. The rains of July 26 and were phenominally large. At Jewell probably the heaviest rainfall on record in Maryland occurred at this time-14.75 inches in eighteen In August the rainfall was slightly below the normal. A drought of David K. Brown, Jr., surviving State from the middle of August to prevailed in most sections of the in considerable quantities throughout the two States.

There has been a surprising, not to say alarming, increase in Sunday excursions this fall. Railroads which have not made a great specialty of week day excursions heretofore, seem to be going into the Sunday business that their yentures are usually at-3rd., between 7,000 and 8,000 persons from New Jersey and Philadelphia were carried to Gettysburg, and every week, on this day, crowds are brought to this famous spot. The Baltimore papers have contained recently, advertisements of $1.00 excursions to Atlantic City, Philadelphia and Washington, and other cities announce cheap Sunday rates to other points of interest. Bicycle clubs make a point of having their century runs on Sunday, and these events include thousands of riders all over the country. In connection with the subject, we cannot omit the immense Sunday newspapers, and their equally immense editions, demanded, it is said, by the people. Are all these things demanded? What are we coming to-a demand for seven days in the week,

The Question of Lynching.

As for the question of lynching, the provocations in the South are far greater than in any other part of the country. Yet the Southern States are very earnestly endeavoring to find, a way to rid themselves of so harmful and disgraceful an expedient as the execution of offenders by mob violence without trial. BEWARE OF THE VOLTS.

Things to Avoid In an Electric Station. Advice of an Expert.

The danger peculiar to electrical generating works is the liability to shock, which is often fatal if, by accident, any one comes into contact with the conductors when charged to a high pressure, says the London Electrician. The contact need neither be very perfect nor direct. Provided two parts of the body are made to touch conducting materials which themselves differ in pressure by good, a dangerous and possibly fatal shock will result.

The ground, especially if damp, is sufficient for one of the contacts, damp leather boots affording no protection, so not safely touch a single object charged pleaded his case with Della with more to a dangerous pressure. The southwest is largely to be avoided. Cornwall and Devon have the worst roads in civilized Europe—in fact, the roads and inns explain that the country is not and never has been civilized. In the inns you are often treated as an intruder, and sometimes cheated in a fashion that would bring a blush to the cheek of a Swiss landlord, for the emptiness of the larder the bill makes up in lavishness. There is hardfood plants. The above includes 1,100 ly anything to eat save cream, but for beginning to end. Fifty are reckoned among the you are asked to pay as much as for a cereals and 40 as uncultivated edible good dinner at the Cafe Royal. The inn-keepers are mainly boors. As for the roads, they go straight to the top of all the hills, as uncompromisingly as the roads of Bohemia, then drop down the other side and are unridable in both directions. When not climbing precipitately, they lie buried at the bottom of a ditch. They are shadeless and uninteresting, rarely approaching the seacoast or passing near anything that is worth looking at, and yet we know Englishmen who are profoundly impressed with the belief that they are the best in England, and therefore in the world. The roads, inns and innkeepers of Scotland are in every way better, but the fact that the average Briton spends his holiday on the continent when he can proves not only that he wants to get there, but also that he is driven from his own country by the shortsightedness of the people who keep its inns and look after its roads.—Mr. and Mrs. Pennell in Fortnightly Review.

Mozart's Method.

Mozart's method of composition was such as could only have been pursued by a child of genius. He would rise early, eat a hearty breakfast and then stroll for several hours in a forest near his home, where, inspired by nature's beauties, heavenly melodies came trooping through his brain. Repairing to his cottage, he would summon his wife, a very witty woman, and bid her tell him stories. He would then mount his high stool and proceed to commit these inspirations to paper, his wife telling him jokes and funny stories while he wrote. These he enjoyed immensely, frequently interrupting her with hearty bursts of laughter and sometimes ever falling from the stool and rolling on the floor. But amid all this hilarity and uproar the flow of music which was to move the world went steadily on. His productions were wrought without the least thought or study, but came almost unbidden "direct from heaven."
