The condition of Main street is now such that unless speedily repaired the expense then incurred would have been more money thrown away.

COUNTY AND STATE.

News Notes of General Interest from various Sources.

Tell your listeners of your belief and certainties, but keep to yourself your doubts, as all are more or less skeptical, and a false assertion may develop into a cyclone.

A farmer quoted by the Waterbury American says of the Caterpillar nuisance: "Every year I hear of caterpillars destroying whole orchards. There is nothing so easy to dispose of. I bore a hole in the tree deep enough to reach the sap, fill the hole with sulphur and plug it up. The sap takes the sulphur to every limb and twig, and the caterpillars disappear at once. I have done this for years."

Levi B. Hoff, hotel proprietor at Melrose, Carroll county, was found dead in his office on Wednesday morning. It is supposed from apoplexy. He had not complained of being sick, and his sudden death was a shock to the community. He was one of the founders of Melrose, and was fifty-eight years old. He leaves a widow and one son, Ivan L. Hoff, who is one of the young members of the Carroll county bar.

News of the death of Mrs. Catharine Zahn, of Westminster, who was expected to arrive home from a trip to Germany, was received in Westminster on Wednesday. Her death occurred in Asch, Germany, July 25, where she was buried July 27. May 18 she sailed for Germany with a party of friends from Baltimore and was expected home Wednesday. Her husband was the late John Zahn, of Friesland. She leaves eight children.

The third annual State Camp session of the P. O. S. of A., of Md., was held in Baltimore on Tuesday and Wednesday this week. The reports showed over 2000 members in the state, a gain of 500 for the year, and a general harmonious condition of the organization with gratifying prospects for the future. Among the officers elected were, A. M. Geisbert, President, Baltimore; Dr. F. B. Londerburgh, vice Pres., Allegany county; C. Hervey Pardee, Master of Forms, Arlington; James W. Lidard, Treasurer, Baltimore; P. B. Englar, Secretary, Taneytown. The session next year will be held in Hagerstown.

Comptroller Phillips Lee Goldsborough on Saturday, appointed Mr. Frank E. Cunningham as chief clerk in the comptroller's office. Mr. Cunningham is from Carroll county. He is a young man, about thirty-five years of age. He has had considerable experience in matters of finance, for at one time he was president of a bank in Georgia. His father is Mr. Wm. A. Cunningham, one of the most prominent and influential Republicans in Carroll. His son, Frank E., Mr. Goldsborough's appointee, returned from Georgia about five years ago, and has assisted his father ever since in the general management of his various affairs.

Mrs. Masso, who lives near Clugston's Pen-Mar distillery, summoned a constable, declaring that her son-in-law, Howard Hollingsworth, had attempted to commit suicide. She said he took a knife up and threatened to cut his throat, when she told him that she did not like the idea of her knife being contaminated with his blood, but that he had better take a rope and hang himself. Acting upon the suggestion, he procured a rope and threw it over a spike driven in the wall and was adjusting the rope about his neck when Constable Lohman arrived. The constable told Hollingsworth the rope was quite strong enough and that he should stick to it. The would-be suicide, overcome by ridicule, slunk away, boarded a freight train and has not been seen since.

Our Firemen's Pic-nic.

The Taneytown Firemen's pic-nic, next Wednesday in Clabaugh's grove, promises to be a big affair, and should attract an immense crowd. We can announce authoritatively that the Westminster Fire Company, accompanied by the famous Carroll County band of forty pieces, and the Littlestown company, with drum corps, will positively be present. Companies at Hanover, McSherrystown, Emmitsburg, Union Bridge and other places, have been invited, and no doubt some will accept, though not heard from at present writing.

There will be a parade through the town at 10 a. m. of the visiting companies and bands, also the Taneytown band and Fire Company, which will no doubt be one of the best parades ever witnessed here. The day has been well provided for at the grounds, and there will be amusements and sights galore for everybody, as well as plenty of refreshments, substantial and otherwise. After the parade, the Carroll county band will give a concert on the grounds, between the hours of 11 and 12 o'clock, and as this will be one of the finest features of the day, everybody should be on hand to enjoy it.

Our own people should patronize this event liberally, because it will be money spent for a good purpose—that of perfecting our equipment for protection against fire—and will be returned to us through a legitimate channel. The public, generally, should also be liberal, and will be, because there will be something to attract and please everybody. The parade, it is said, may contain a number of unique and amusing features, among which, a "Taneytown Junior" Company is mentioned. Let everybody assist in making the event a great financial success.

CHICKAMAUGA PARK.

A Graphic Description of Army Camp Life.

White tents shimmering in the sun; light; white tents glittering through the forest greenery; white tents looking upon the passer-by from every elevation and eminence; white tents in the open stoutly defying the almost vertical rays of the sun; white tents to the right and to the left and all around. This is Chickamauga. The park is a large rolling tract situated between two mountain ranges.

The government would have experienced difficulty in discovering a better place for the assembling of troops. The location is not only suitable, but inspiring and picturesque. To the west of the park, Lookout Mountain lifts her awe-inspiring forms on high. Down the valley from Lookout Mountain is a vast sweep of undulating ground, and at its other side rises Missionary ridge. The whole country looks like a battlefield where Titans might fight—where Titans have fought. The scene is a sermon of patriotism.

The duties of our division at present are not very onerous. Reville sounds at 4.30 o'clock—rising at this time gives plenty of time for breakfast and cleaning camp. Company drill follows and lasts from seven until half past eight. From this time until half past three, there is nothing to do. Then battalion or regimental drill follows, lasting one hour and a half. Dress parade at 6 o'clock finishes the work for the day. The evenings are cool and pleasant. During the evenings the men read and write letters, discuss war news and have a good time.

No complaint can be made against our food. Every morning about 2 o'clock, wagons leave the regimental camp for bread and beef. The bread is excellent, while the beef is sometimes spoiled; of course it is then condemned by the surgeon and thrown away. Other rations, such as potatoes, rice, beans, pork, sugar and coffee, are issued every ten days. The issue of bacon is usually traded for oatmeal and other vegetables not furnished by the government. So, no one can deny that a few months in Chickamauga, with its life in the open air, its regular hours, its strict discipline, its abstemious diet and wholesome and developing exercise, are worth more than many thousands of dollars. Hoping in the near future to describe a practice march, I remain

CHAS. B. KEMPART,
Co. H. 5th Reg. Pa. Vol.

The Farmers Institute.

Mr. E. O. Garner, Copperville, has received a letter from Wm. L. Amos, in which he says a program is being issued which will give all desired information regarding the event to occur at College Park, Aug. 24th. to 26th. He has sent Mr. Garner 25 tickets orders for passage, at the rate of two cents per mile, over the W. M. R. R. to Baltimore, at which place the same arrangements will be in force over B. & O. R. R. These orders are good for tickets purchased from Aug. 23rd, to 25th., on which return may be made to the 27th. inclusive.

It is desired that all who intend making this trip should so notify Mr. Garner, either on, or before, the occasion of a meeting of the Farmers Club, which will be held at Otter Dale school house on the evening of Thursday, 18th. If this be done, there will then be no danger of failure in the supply of the ticket orders named. If possible, Mr. Amos would like to know in advance, from Mr. Garner, how many will come, and how many ladies.

Death of Daniel McCarty.

(For the RECORD.)

Mr. Daniel McCarty, whose long illness was reported several times in the RECORD, died at his home near Middleburg, on Sunday morning the 7th, inst., aged about forty-one years. His funeral took place Tuesday morning at 10 a. m. at St. E. Church, Middleburg, the interment being made in the cemetery adjoining Rev. Murray of the M. P. church of Union Bridge, had charge of the funeral services. The pall-bearers were five employees of Mr. Walden, and William Bollinger. His many friends extended their deepest sympathy by their floral tributes, which were handsome. Rev. E. Shriver of Union Bridge was the funeral director.

Mr. McCarty was well and widely known, and for the past two years has been a great sufferer. Every effort was put forth to restore his health, he having been at the City hospitals, and also received treatment from experienced physicians. He bore his great sufferings patiently and was hopeful of the return of his health, until within the last few weeks. His wife, who was Mrs. Eliza, both Clabaugh, survives him.

Poisoning Suspected.

Mr. Michael E. Walsh, a well-known and prominent resident of Westminster is apprehensive that somebody is disposed to poison him and his family. Mr. Walsh, who is a member of the Westminster bar and an ex-member of the Maryland House of Delegates, lives in a handsome residence adjoining Carroll Hall, on East Main street. Water for family uses is obtained from a well in the yard, in which is an old-fashioned wooden pump, the top of which is movable.

On Friday night some foreign substance was put into the pumpstock by some unknown person, and Saturday morning the water first pumped from the well had a milky appearance. Persons who wet their lips with it say it had an astringent effect and an acid taste. A jar of the water has been preserved for analysis. Several months ago paris green was found in a bucket of water used for culinary purposes, which was setting on a bench on the porch of the back building.

THE KEY MONUMENT.

Francis Scott Key Honored in Bronze, in Frederick.

A monument to Francis Scott Key, author of the Star Spangled Banner, the funds for which were raised by popular subscription, was unveiled in Frederick, on Tuesday, with proper and elaborate ceremonies, and never before was there such a profuse patriotic display in the city.

The first event on the programme was the military and civic parade at 2 o'clock. This was in every way a great success. The six companies of the Fourth Regiment of Baltimore, under the command of Capt. C. C. Corbin, were rewarded with rounds of applause from all along the line of march. The Sixth United States Artillery band, under Prof. Carl Mindt, led the Fourth Regiment. Knight's band, of Baltimore, and the Fourth Regiment Drum Corps and a number of country bands were also in the line of march. The streets were densely packed, in many places from the house to the middle of the street, and in many places it was with difficulty that the carriages were able to pass through single file.

There were four divisions. In the first division were barouches, containing the officers and distinguished guests and members of the association, the judges of the courts and mayor and other city officials.

The second or military division was composed of the Grand Army of the Republic and the Fourth Regiment Maryland National Guard.

The third division was composed of civic and patriotic orders from various parts of Maryland and adjoining States.

The fourth division, of the fire department of Frederick and visiting companies.

The chief marshal of the parade was Ed. J. Goldsborough, with the following aides: Chief of military division, Capt. Walter Saunders; chief of patriotic orders division, J. I. Massey, and chief of the fire department division, Everett J. Harding.

When Hon. Henry Watterson orator of the day was introduced to the assemblage, deafening applause rent the air. Throughout his oration storms of applause swept over the many acres of humanity.

Mrs. Donald McLean, who delivered an address, was also accorded a warm welcome, and throughout her speech was greeted with rounds of applause. An original poem by Folger McKinney was read by him with much effect, and at its conclusion he took his seat amid round after round of applause and great cheering.

Miss Julia McHenry Howard, granddaughter of Francis Scott Key, pulled the cord that unveiled the monument, and Miss Lois McKinney ran up the stately banner on the flag-staff, while huzzahs rent the air from thirty thousand throats. As the brilliant folds of the flag unfurled in a gentle breeze the Sixth United States Artillery band broke forth with the strains of "The Star-Spangled Banner," and every one in the vast sea of humanity waved miniature flags. At the same time there went forth the grandest patriotic chorus of every body singing the national anthem. The stirring address of Colonel Watterson enkindled the flame of patriotism in the bosoms of all to such an extent that the vast crowd was wild with enthusiasm. As the chorus of the grand old hymn was repeated, the enthusiasm burst forth with renewed vigor. As the last note died away and the leader's baton fell, there was one more grand round of cheering from the people, who dispersed to their homes. The ceremonies were concluded at 6 o'clock. Soon after, the rain, which had ceased falling at 10 o'clock in the morning, came down in torrents. Mr. Doyle, the sculptor, was not present at the unveiling.

FIRE AT MT. AIRY.

Another Unprotected Town Suffers Great Loss.

A destructive fire occurred in Mt. Airy, this county, Tuesday night, at a late hour, causing a loss of about $8000 over the insurance. The fire was first discovered by Mr. Fritz Luba, who had just retired. He made a very narrow escape of his life, giving the alarm of fire in his night clothing. The fire was discovered in the cellar of the Messenger newspaper office, which is occupied by Mr. Fritz Luba, a shoe shop. The block of buildings was owned by J. B. Runkles, and occupied by the following tenants: Dr. Wm. Hopkins, dentist; Messenger office, printers; Fritz Luba, shoe shop; L. B. Norwood, confectioner; A. H. Runkles, general merchandise; R. Molesworth, with stock, was also burned. The woodwork of A. Anderson & Co's store, on the opposite side of the street, and part of the roof were burned. At one time, when Runkles' mill and elevator caught fire, it looked like the entire town would be in ashes, but by the continued effort of the people the fire was checked in the elevator, which saved not only the mill and elevator, but the entire business part of the town. The individual losses are estimated as follows:

J. B. Runkles, loss $3,500 on building; insurance, $500. A. H. Runkles, loss $5,500 on stock; insurance, $4,000. Jones & Co., bankers, loss, $1,500 on building; insurance, $1,000. Mullinix, $500 on stock and building; E. M. Molesworth, $2,000 on stock and buildings; R. Browning, $500 on fixtures. The Runkles mill and elevator lost 200 bushels of cloverseed, on which there was no insurance.

Sad and dreary is our home,
Lonely are our hearts today,
For one we all loved so dearly
Has forever passed away.

We loved him; yes, no tongue can tell
How much we loved him and how well
God loved him too and thought it best
To take him home to be at rest.

Dearest Charlie thou hast left us;
We our loss most deeply feel,
But 'tis God who hath bereft us,
He can all our sorrows heal.

Dear Charlie we were with us,
In our home we love so well,
Of your presence death has robbed us,
And in sadness there we dwell.

By his Sister and Brother,
"Tis hard to break the tender chord,
When love has bound the heart,
'Tis hard to say the bitter words,
Charlie, "we must part."

You are not forgotten Charlie, dear,
Nor will you ever be.
As long as life and memory lasts
I will remember thee.
By his friend, E. M. N.

Bark Hill.

Mrs. Caroline Bilmeyer, of Retirement Farm, was a pleasant visitor at Scraggy Maples, last week. We were much surprised to see such a hale and hearty old lady for Mrs. B., is a great grandmother. She has been a widow for many years, and was a faithful companion, and kind mother to three living sons. Although advanced in years, her physical and mental faculties are excellent and well-preserved. She has been a very hard working woman, and model house keeper. She told us that she has not used coffee or tea for twenty years, but substitutes good milk and cold water the year round with good effect. She requires very little meat, as the milk and butter supply her requisite. She has very regular habits, and in consequence of all this, she has good health. Her voice is gently strong, her sight keen and her step quite active. Her whole person shows the vigor which many young people lack at the present day.

The colored people expect to have an interesting wood-meeting on Sunday (to-morrow) in Mr. Granville Haines' grove.

Mr. Ezra Caylor, of Happy Homes, has remodeled and added a new wing to his dwelling, which greatly increases its beauty and comfort.

A little son of Andrew Sullivan, living near Evergreen Lawn, accompanied by his little brother, went to the uncle Sullivan, who is a tenant on the farm of Mr. David Stoner, on last Sunday a week, and while playing on a large straw stack in the barn yard, met with an accident. The stack parted and one boy went down to the ground between, and much of the other part sliding on top, burying him completely. The other boy ran to the house and told Mrs. Sullivan what had happened. She, with another woman—all the men were gone to Linwood Camp—worked vigorously in the sweeter heat to remove the immense pile of straw which covered the little fellow when they thought might be dead. At last their frantic and laborious efforts were rewarded by resuscitating the limp form. They carried him to the house and applied restoratives which soon revived him, and renewed life, greatly to the relief of the two exhausted women, who performed such a herculean task, for there were tons and tons of straw to remove in a midday summer's sun. Had no one seen the accident, the child would have died, and his body remained undiscovered until the straw had been well used up, and the mystery of the missing boy explained.

Dr. Brown of Union Bridge, and his father, of Pennsylvania, were visitors at Park Dale, last week.

Master Degeen Myers, of Park Dale, is the happy owner of two Dagle hounds just eight weeks old. They are little beauties, and already pick up a scent and follow it.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, what was once our mill-dam was senned by parties from Westminster: M. O. Myers, J. A. Warner, Reese Buckingham, Jos. Zepp, Will Anders, C. Stoner, B. Thomas and Ernest Stoner. They sought some very fine fish. Mr. A. M. Warner was the caterer of the party.

Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Wright drove to Fontaindale, on Saturday, up the pike, and down the Friend's Creek road on Sunday. They report fruit as very scarce in these valleys.

Well, we are now in the midst of a rainy season, and we are of the opinion that the prayers of the people for rain, have been heard, as no section of the country has been missed, of late. All summer, our showers were local; whilst some farms were drenched and washed very much, others near had not enough rain to lay the dust.

New Windsor.

Miss Jennie Smith was in town over Sunday, and took part in the services in the M. E. church, when most of the recent converts who were received on probation at that time, were received into full membership.

About eighty members of the Epworth League and E. C. Society of this place, upon invitation, attended a sociable of the former at the hospitable home of Mr. John W. Myers, near town, on last Friday evening.

The Electric Light and Water Co., of New Windsor are enlarging their power house and will have placed therein a larger engine and dynamo for lighting the town and supplying the increased demand for water.

The drought which had prevailed in this section for the past two months, has been effectually broken and already we can hear the never-to-be-satisfied portion of the populace wondering if it is never going to clear off.

Mr. C. Ernest Lambert who had been employed since last April by J. R. Galt, to assist in job printing, has secured a position with the publishers of the World in Baltimore. We hope that our loss may prove to be his gain.

A delegation from New Windsor Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., attended the demonstration connected with the unveiling of the Key Monument, in Frederick on Tuesday.

A sales and exchange stable has been established in our town, by a Mr. Toddis, who seems to have a reputation for fair dealing and handling good horses.

Morn, Noon and Night of Life.

(For the Record.)
The morning seems so sweet and gay,
With tender warmth and light caressed,
That just to see and hear and speak,
Thrills with delight the pulsing breast.
The daisy lifts its smiling face,
And tints and nods to every breeze;
The birds are chirping with glad glee,
Play "peek-a-bow" among the trees.
The playful mists across the sky,
Droop veil-like o'er Sol's radiant face;
Their shadows trail across the fields,
And whisper of a phantom race.
The brooklet laugh along its curves,
And dragon-flies skim o'er the pool.
While yonder, down the green-edged road,
The gleeful unicorns frolic from the pool.
This is life's morn—no care, no toll;
The earth abounds—their eyes aglow.
Oh, never hush to chill their joy,
Of griefs that every one must know.

Now 'tis high noon—haste here and rest;
The birds are hiding in the hedges,
The rivulet has turned aside,
Its babbling tints and the sedges.
The half-grown grass lolls in the shade,
The spring-time tints are vanished now;
And fruit is forming where, erstwhile,
The all-sweet blossoms flecked the bough.
The herds are browsing in the vales;
No shadow falls to left or right;
The God of Day seems poised above
To pour o'er earth cascades of light.
We think of morn as long since past;
Of evening's gloom as far away;
We dream of dawn that evermore,
Our feet in gold-bright paths will stray.
Beneath the sun's caressing face,
The slightest jar—their feet seen no more;
Ere we're aware our footsteps halt
Upon the sunset's dusky shore.

Whence come these chilling, icy blasts?
Why are the birds so hushed and shy?
The lengthening shadows o'er the world,
And so we know the eve draws nigh.
And now the long day's work is done—
Gone is the shimmer of the morn;
And gone the glad and virile strength,
That roused us once at early dawn.
The painting breath, the halting feet—
We stand no longer with glowing face,
We know what all these signs portend;
Old age is creeping on apace.
And happy they, who like the worm,
Can weave their thread with patient zest.
And without murmur, pomp or praise,
Sink calmly into perfect rest.

THE TOOTHsome PEANUT.

Many ways in which they may be served.
The peanut may be used in many ways as a food. Here are some methods of preparing it given by the New York Tribune.

AS A VEGETABLE.
In some places peanuts are served as a vegetable. The skins are first removed, and a large spoonful of them placed in a baking dish. Pour over a quart of boiling water, cover tightly and bake in a slow oven from four to five hours or until the skins are tender. When partially cooked season with salt and stir in a tablespoonful of butter.

AN APPETIZING SOUP.
An appetizing soup can be made by boiling peanuts in water until perfectly tender, then mashing, adding a pint of milk, a spoonful of butter and a little salt.

STUFFING FOR DUCKS.
Stuffing for ducks is greatly improved by the addition of peanuts rolled or chopped fine.
In China these nuts are boiled, rolled fine and moulded into a dough, which is baked in cakes.

PEANUT SALAD.
Remove the skins of fresh roasted peanuts, chop, but not too fine, and add an equal quantity of crisp celery cut fine. Serve on tender young lettuce leaves, with the following dressing: Two eggs, a half teaspoonful of salt, a half teaspoonful of mustard, four tablespoonfuls of melted butter and six tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Beat the yolks of the eggs, add the salt and mustard and continue to beat; add slowly the butter until the mixture thickens, remove from the fire and add the whites of the eggs beaten stiff. When cold and ready to serve add one cupful of whipped cream and pour a large spoonful over the nuts and celery on each leaf of lettuce.

PEANUT SANDWICHES.
Stale bread, old, or that which is at least 24 hours old, is best for all sandwiches. Chop the peanuts fine and mix with the foregoing rule as a mayonnaise dressing, the recipe for which is given below.

Beat the yolks of three eggs light, add a half teaspoonful of salt and beat a moment longer, then add salad oil—a few drops at a time—until a pint has been used. To this add a dust of cayenne pepper and a tablespoonful of vinegar. Keep in a cool place, and stir into it when ready to use a half pint of whipped cream.
DELICIOUS SANDWICHES.
Finely-chopped peanuts can be moistened with whipped cream and seasoned with salt. This makes a simple but delicious filling for sandwiches.

SALTED PEANUTS.
Shell and skin the peanuts and allow to each cupful of nuts one tablespoonful of butter and one of salt. Let them stand for an hour or so, and then place on a granite plate in a moderate oven; stir frequently until they become a golden-brown color.

BIRDS THAT DO NOT SING.

Far Outnumber the Musicians of the Feathered Family.

Singing is applied to birds in the same sense that it is to human beings—the utterance of musical notes. Every person makes vocal sounds of some kind, but many persons never attempt to sing. So it is with birds. The eagle screams, the owl hoots, the wild goose honks, the crow caws, but none of these discordant sounds can be called singing.

With the poet, the singing of birds means merry, light-hearted joyousness, and most of us are poetic enough to view it in the same way. Birds sing most in the spring and the early summer, those happiest seasons of the year, while employed in nest-building and in rearing their young. Many of our most musical singers are silent all the rest of the year; at least they utter only low chirpings. It is natural, therefore, that lovers of birds should regard their singing as purely an expression of joy in returning spring, and in their happy occupations.

Outside of what are properly classed as song birds there are many species that never pretend to sing; in fact, these far outnumber the musicians. They include the water-birds of every kind, both swimmers and waders; all the birds of prey, eagles, hawks, owls and vultures; and all the gallinaceous tribes, comprising pheasants, partridges, turkeys and chickens. The gobble of the turkey cock, the defiant crow of the "bob white," are none of them true singing; yet it is quite probable that all of these sounds are uttered with precisely similar motives to those that inspire the sweet warbling of the robins or the thrilling music of the wood-thrush.

But naturalists have set apart a very large group as song-birds, and even among these there are many species that never sing at all. Birds are grouped according to their anatomical characteristics, the structure of their bones, bills, feet and wings; and thus have the songless song-birds, looking at the matter from the standpoint of the classifying naturalist—Philodendron Times.

The Best Remedy for Flux.

Mr. John Mathias, a well known stock dealer of Pulaski, Ky., says: "After suffering for over a week with flux, and my physician having failed to relieve me, I was advised to try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and have the pleasure of stating that the half of one bottle cured me." The Girl's Allowance.

"Every self-respecting woman, be she maid or wife, has a natural and intense desire to ask her father or husband for every penny she needs," says Edward Bok, writing in the American Ladies' Home Journal, on "Giving Allowances to Girls." "Nor is the feeling lessened by the fact that the money can be had for the asking and is always given ungrudgingly. It is the asking which women dislike. They justly recoil from it, and men ought to understand it better than they do. It should be said that the husband who refuses to give his wife a regular allowance, is rapidly becoming the exception.
But there are still too many fathers who withhold an allowance from their daughters. If it be true that the average girl has no idea of the value of money, how will she ever gain a better knowledge of its worth unless she is given the opportunity? Our girls must be educated in money matters, and there is no surer method than by giving them money of their own to spend: a regular weekly or monthly allowance given them to cover certain regulated expenses. It is only natural that at the start a girl will spend foolishly.

To meet this inevitable experience, the amount of the allowance should be accordingly regulated. After a while, however, when she gets accustomed to the handling of money, she will learn its value better, and be more judicious in spending it. To give a girl an allowance is not a privilege, but her right. To withhold it is to do her a serious wrong, and likewise an injustice to the man whom she will marry, and whose money she will be entrusted with to spend wisely. She should have experience before she reaches that point, and that experience can only come to her from her father, in an allowance of her own while she is his daughter in his home."

The Rev. W. B. Costly, of Stockholm, Ga., while attending to his pastoral duties at Ellenwood, Ga., was attacked by cholera morbus. He says: "By chance I happened to get hold of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and this it was the means of saving my life. It relieved me at once." For sale by R. S. McKinney, Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

SELECTIONS

A PREGNANT LESSON.

Much of Spain's and Italy's Woe Due to Destruction of Forests.

Inasmuch as a proposition is pending in congress to reopen to settlement certain forest reservations in the west, a very pertinent comment is that made by Mr. Charles Francis Adams on one of the causes that have led to the downfall of Spain. It is a fact that this peninsula once supported a population of 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 and now holds a meager 17,000,000. The main reason for that is stated by Mr. Adams as follows: "During the last three years I have passed much time in Europe, visiting among other countries, Spain, Italy, Germany, France and England. Whoever wishes to study the effect of deforesting on a country and on its people should by all means visit Spain. Not only has the country been ruined, but the very character of the people has been changed by the wholesale destruction of trees and the neglect of their renewal. The rivers have become mountain torrents and large portions of the country a rugged, upland desert. The same process is today going on in Italy. To the result on that country, as noticed by me in visits ten years apart, is lamentable. The ancient forests are being wholly stripped from the mountains, and while the rivers are converted into torrents, the water is not held in the soil. In Germany, on the other hand, the forestry laws are admirable. The result upon the country, climate and rainfall is apparent to the most careless observer.

It is certainly timely to urge the nation that it shall not permit itself to copy the Spanish example of decay in this or any other respect. The fact stated by Mr. Adams has been corroborated again and again to the effect that the denudation of the mountain slopes of Spain and the erosion of its soil have reduced it to a condition of semi-aridity and lessened its power to support population. It is one-third of its ancient population is today indulging in bread riots.

It should be a shock to our self respect to note that all of the civilized nations we most nearly copy the Spanish stupidity in the waste of our forests. The source of our error is nearer than theirs. Our grandfathers or great-grandfathers were from the necessity of the case a tree felling race, and with the custom inherited from them we have gone on destroying forests where they still exist and failing to restore the waste lands they have been cleared from. We should certainly set about showing ourselves to be wiser than the nation whose decay is now so evident. The forests of the Pacific slope should be intelligently preserved; the waste lands of the Mississippi valley and Atlantic coast should be reforested.

There can be no better investment in a double sense than to replant those portions of the country that are practically useless for farming with the trees that in a generation or two would by their value as timber repay the cost with interest.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Sweet, but Hot.

The warmest meal on record on Puget sound was eaten Saturday night near Buena, on the east shore of the sound between Tacoma and Seattle. The feast was a member of the Bruin family, and beehives loaded with honey and living, dangerous loaded honey makers was the bill fare.
The hives belonged to Dr. Oliver and were standing in his yard near Buena. Their delicious honey attracted the bear and tempted him beyond resistance, and his weapons notwithstanding. The bear was not at all backward in helping himself, and when the feast was done he had swallowed the honey and bees of one hive and part of those of a second. He left nothing to tell the tale except his footprints on the sand, the partly demolished hives and the honey with the doctor. He was busy explaining how it happened and congratulating himself upon his fortunate escape.—Tacoma Ledger.

Billboard Death Notices.

Not uncommon on the billboards of Rome are death announcements. I translated one from a white poster with a heavy black border, perhaps 8 feet long by 2 feet wide:
Yesterday, at 5:30 a. m., after a severe illness, succumbed Giuseppe Stat of the record. He was a man of noble and patriotic. His friends are invited to accompany the body to the cemetery at 10 o'clock on Wednesday next, the 6th.
THE PARTISANS.
This placard, like all others in Rome, bore a central internal revenue stamp. Even the placards in shop windows, when conveying any announcement, were stamped. It is a tax which certainly meets some of Adam Smith's famous canons, being, at any rate, cheap and easy of collection, for it would be very easy to discover any attempt to evade it.—Press and Parlor.

Calcutta's Latest Scarce.

Far worse than the plague is the incursion scare now prevalent in Calcutta. There is not a chapparis, servant or baboo who is not persuaded that orders have gone out that everybody must be forcibly inoculated, and in support of this belief cases are quoted of people having been forcibly inoculated in the streets by being pricked on the neck and back with some instrument resembling a lancet. There can be no reasonable doubt that there are some badmashes making capital out of the scare, and so firm is rooted in the minds of the ignorant people that nothing short of drastic measures on the part of the government will restore order.—Calcutta Englishman.

HOT BLOOD IN CAMP.

ARMY QUARRELS THAT ALMOST ENDED IN TRAGEDIES.

The Story of a Captain Who Had Murder in His Heart—A Fiery Lieutenant Colonel Who Wanted to Kill His Superior Officer—A Peace-making Adjutant.

"Tragedies in our own camps, outside of battles, were more common than the public knows," said a distinguished soldier.
"The shooting of Major General Nelson at Louisville by Brigadier General Jeff C. Davis because Nelson in a fit of anger had called Davis a long string of bad names, is one of the few that came to the surface. You wouldn't think it probable, but I myself was once so close to a tragedy that it makes my gray hair rise up as I recall it.

"While a number of officers of the regiment were in the major's tent I saw something that a captain took exception to, and a war of words followed. When he plumped out, 'You are a liar!' I struck out with my right and set him a couple of miles for his revolver and glare. He came back at me like a tiger and I was forced to draw my sword. He had hit me hot and sharp, then the other separated us. He made all sorts of threats. I was adjutant. He ranked me, and I confess that for a time I did fear he would make me trouble in the way of court martial, but the matter seemed to blow over.

"One fall afternoon the captain invited me to take a walk with him. Thinking that our troubles had completely healed, I consented. On the way back to camp we passed through an orchard. I climbed a tree to get some apples. Just as I reached the top, I saw the captain reach for his revolver and glare at me like a very fiend. Instantly I loosened my hold and dropped to the ground. Seizing a stake, I took my place by his side and said, 'Now, you cowardly dog, put that gun or I'll brain you.' This time he was kept on his feet for a month, though I made no threats and had no thought of reporting his attempt to assassinate me.

"The next fight we got into we made up for good and all and remained fast friends until the final round up, when General Joe Johnston had his men throw down their arms and go home to 'make a crox.' It happened in this way: The colonel had given the order to form line of battle. As adjutant it was my duty to see that each captain carried out the order. When I reached the would be assassin and had performed my duty, I started to come back. He called out, 'Adjutant, come back.' When I complied, he took my hand, looked me squarely in the eye and said: 'Lieutenant, can you forgive me for all of my meanness to you? I hope so. I have never had a good hour since that incident. I am a changed man now.' 'With all my heart, captain. No one but you and myself knows anything about that little affair.' 'As I said, nothing else came up to separate us while in the army. We never met after being mustered out. He died three years ago. I cannot say I have seen him out of the army in disgrace and placed him in the penitentiary after he was out, but I've always been glad I did not. He was a good soldier in battle, as brave as they made them, but a bulldog in camp. He left the army a major. He came back with a new name. I wish I could tell you what it was. I wish it were not, for I cannot forget that at one time in my life I was in a fair way to be murdered.' 'Report to your headquarters under arrest, sir.' 'The colonel of a western regiment hissed that remark to his lieutenant colonel as he dismissed the parade one evening in December, 1864, a few miles back of Petersburg.

"I refuse to go, d— you," was the reply.
"Adjutant, see that Lieutenant Colonel Elton get to his quarters at once," said the angry colonel, who was in the right, for the lieutenant colonel, who had been drinking, had disobeyed orders.

The adjutant knew both officers well, and that it would not do for him to come between them. He had a merry time of it keeping them apart. The lieutenant colonel would jump up and start for the cabin door with a threat to go to the colonel's quarters and cut him down with his sword. He was a powerful man, able to carry out his threat, and the colonel would get with a huge pile of plaiding, which she had spun from her sheep, in the crouper beside her and duly brought back its value in marks. These she hoarded in bags. On one occasion she banked her savings in a leather bag in the ceiling, but the rats got at it, and the family died of a downpour of deaconess. The family flourished so well that each of her three sons got an estate of his own—Patrick, the youngest, bringing 36 children into the world, while William became the father of the first Earl of Ife.

Queen Wilhelmina.

Her dresses, rides in the Bois and goodness of face and character have been items of interest in the Paris journals. They deem it significant that she believes in Paris instead of Berlin and she shows the future queen a valuable person to cultivate.

"Write the colonel an apology."

Wash and peel one large turnip, slice and leave in cold water two hours. Then boil in salted water till tender. Drain, lay in the baking dish and dust with powdered cracker crumbs. Pour over this a white sauce made as follows: Put in a saucepan one heaping teaspoonful of butter and one of flour and stir until it boils. Add one-half pint of milk, taking care to stir till it is well blended. Brown the turnips in a very hot oven.

How to Make Violet Jelly.

Make a pint and a half of clear lemon jelly. Use any golden preferred. Have a bunch of deep colored violets—pick out the perfect ones. Rinse a mold in water and stand on cracked ice. Pour a half pint of jelly on the bottom and let stand until partly set, then carefully insert in the thickening jelly a number of the violets. Have them upright, but remember that when they come back their positions will be reversed. When the layer is quite firm, add a second, inserting the violets as before, and so continue until the jelly is used. This should be prepared the morning it is served, so as to guard against change in the color of violet network.

ANIMALS THAT COUNT.

Instances That Prove Their Possession of the Counting Faculty.

Several years ago there lived in Cincinnati a mule which was employed by a street railway company in hauling cars up a steep incline. This animal was hitched in front of the regular team and un hitched as soon as the car arrived at the top of the hill. It made a certain number of trips in the forenoon (I have forgotten the number, but will say 50 for the sake of convenience) and a like number in the afternoon, resting for an hour at noon. As soon as the mule completed its fiftieth trip it marched away to its stable without orders from its driver.

To show that it was not influenced by the sound of the factory whistles and bells the following remarkable action on the part of this animal is vouched for by the superintendent of the line, who gave me these data: On a certain occasion during a national festival, this mule was transferred to the night shift, and the very instant it completed its fiftieth trip it started for the stables. It took the combined efforts of several men to make it return to its duty. At night there were no bells or whistles to form the creature's habit. "Sitting time" had come. It had counted the trips, and having finished its full quota of 50 it thought that the time for rest and food had arrived.

Some monkeys give unmistakable evidences of the possession by them of the counting faculty. In 1890 a female chimpanzee of a very intelligent chimpanzee which could count as high as three. That this was not a trick suggested by sensual impulses I had ample opportunity of satisfying myself. The owner of the animal would leave the room, no one being present but myself, and when I would call for two marbles or one marble or three marbles, as the case might be, the monkey would gravely hand over the required number. Romanes mentions an ape which could count three, the material used in his experiment being straw. From the ape, Wolf Barwick, Forbes and Hartman also give instances of the counting faculty in apes and monkeys.—James Weir in Lippincott's Magazine.

DEWEY AS A DISCIPLINARIAN.

His Method of Subduing Some Refractory Sailors.

"I was with Commodore Dewey when he was the executive officer of the Colorado," said a financier, "and I remember one incident which shows the manner of man he is. We had a fine crew of sailors, and one of them, I over saw. Four or five of them went ashore one day and came back fighting drunk. 'Three of them were men who would singly have been more than a match in strength for John L. Sullivan. The order was given to put them in irons, and it was found impossible to carry out the order, for the men were dangerous. Dewey was notified of the situation. He was writing a letter in his room at the time.

"He went to the place where these giants were and he told them to come out and fight with him. They did not stir. Then Dewey said quietly to an orderly, 'Bring me my revolver,' and when he had his pistols he again called upon the men to come out, but they did not move. Then he said, 'I am going to count three. If you are not out here with your hands up in ten minutes, you won't come out of that place alive.' 'He counted one, then he cocked the revolver, and he counted two. We all expected to hear the report, for we knew that Dewey meant what he said. The men came out, and they were just in time to save their lives and held up their hands, and they had been partially sobered by their fright and the moral effect of Dewey's glance.

"One of them said afterward that when he saw Dewey's eyes he knew that he had better obey him. They did not stir. Then Dewey said quietly to an orderly, 'Bring me my revolver,' and when he had his pistols he again called upon the men to come out, but they did not move. Then he said, 'I am going to count three. If you are not out here with your hands up in ten minutes, you won't come out of that place alive.' 'He counted one, then he cocked the revolver, and he counted two. PERSONAL CHATS.

Brigadier General John L. Rodgers is said to be the best posted man in the army on the subject of heavy artillery.

"Mr. Disraeli is a great sarcast," was the somewhat original way in which Mr. Gladstone once referred to the Conservative leader's powers of sarcasm.

Edward Rosewater, editor of the Omaha Bee, has accepted an invitation to deliver a brief course of lectures on journalism before the students of Cornell university in the spring of 1899.

McQuiston of Cincinnati has a small brass plate that was used to number one of the beams of the Maine. It is No. 41 and was just over the hammock of a Cincinnati boy killed in the explosion.

Miss Betham-Edwards in her "Reminiscences" says of Browning, "It is difficult to believe that the hero of the 'Somerset' from the Portuguese" and his clearly firt and chattering of nonsense could be one and the same person."

Ernest Terah Hooley, the great English speculator and promoter who recently failed for $65,000,000 and whose career in some respects has been more remarkable than that of Barney Barnato, once made $10,000,000 in three days.

Lord Rothschild, it is said, follows the Chinese plan of paying his physicians only so long as his lordship is in good health. Sir William Broadbent, the physician, receives $5,000 per year if his patient's health is good throughout the period.

Commodore Schley should have great quantities of blood relatives if death has not made great inroads on their number. He is one of 13 children, and two brothers of his father each have had 13 children, nor has any ill luck come from the number.

A possible blood connection of Admiral David G. Farragut was captured in the Philippines by Aguinaldo, the insurgent chief. At any rate, the captive's name is Farragut, and in Farragut's family came from Minorca it is not unlikely that such is the case.

James F. Moline, assistant United States treasurer, has received from the Rev. W. Hume Elliot of Manchester a money order for 10s. 6d. and a letter saying the half guinea is a token of regard for the United States in its present high and righteous enterprise.

Major General M. O. Butler of South Carolina, who lost his fieldglances at the battle of Brandy Station in 1863, as well as a leg, was greatly surprised and pleased the other day to get the fieldglances back again, they having been restored to him by a Mrs. Kemper of Virginia.

Sam Slick's son, Sir Arthur Halliburton, late permanent secretary of the war department, was made a peer on the queen's birthday and is said by The Court Journal to have selected the title of Baron Halliburton. He is a native Nova Scotian and the first Blue Nose to enter the house of lords.

FRILLS OF FASHION.

There is great variety in wraps this season. They range from the merest neck ruff to the long ulster.

A rather startling novelty is a dress of red silk gauze trimmed with yellow lace and tiny ruffles of dull green gauze.

Owing to its excellent dust shedding qualities and light weight, black taffeta will be extensively used for outside garments.

THE WAR ABOUT OVER.

A Treaty of Peace Ready to be Signed.

HOSTILITIES TO BE SUSPENDED.

FRIDAY, August 12.—The Spanish cabinet met last night and approved the protocol, or preliminary diplomatic arrangement, which was agreed upon in Washington, Wednesday, by Secretary Day, representing the United States, and M. Cambon, representing Spain.

This protocol embodies the terms of a basis for concluding peace and as soon as it is signed an armistice will be declared. A Madrid dispatch stated that the government would cable to M. Cambon, authorizing him to sign it. The Spanish ministers expect that the protocol will be signed in Washington today and that a truce of hostilities will be announced at once.

There are rumors that the Spanish government may proceed without delay to surrender Havana, Holguin and other places in Cuba to the United States, so as to checkmate the Cuban insurgents, who have shown a disposition to act independently.

The peace terms are considered harsh in official quarters in Spain. General Schwan's troops had an engagement with about 1,000 Spaniards north of Mayaguez, Porto Rico. The Spaniards were forced to retreat. Two Americans were killed and fifteen wounded.

More than half of Porto Rico has been put in telegraphic and cable communication with Washington.

Life in the Army.

The following opinions are from an artilleryman in the regular army, and no doubt represent army service correctly.

"In answer to your question whether I would advise a young man in time of peace to join the army? I would say: What are the young man's prospects at present? Does he drink to the extent that he could not be relied upon to perform the duties required of a soldier? My experience has taught me that the man who cannot get along with his superiors in peace cannot keep a position in a mill shop or store. A young man entering the service who will keep himself neat and clean, always be present at drills and roll-calls, will soon gain favor and receive the respect of his superior officers. Any favor he may ask will be granted upon application.

"The average intelligence of the rank and file is, it appears to me, above that of persons in civil life in their station. Uncle Sam gives his men plenty of time to themselves, provides for them a good school and a good teacher and gives them access to an extensive library.

"I claim that a soldier's salary is more than that of the average laborer. Besides his salary a soldier receives clothing, rations and medical attendance. He does not receive a number of suits of clothes, shoes, etc., but is allowed so much cash to buy clothes with. If he is not hard on his clothes he can, through economy, save considerable of his allowance. A man in my military station from his clothing allowance over one hundred and fifty dollars during his enlistment. The savings are handed over to him on date of discharge. It is needless to say that Uncle Sam pays his boys during rainy weather as well as clear, during sickness as in health. If a man becomes sick and remains sick for months, he even during his entire enlistment, he receives his salary just the same.

Old War-Time Greenback.

There was paid over the counter at the Treasury Department, Monday, a $10 bill of a kind I think few of us have even seen. It was worn completely through in places, though it had been in the possession of the man who presented it almost since its issue. It bore in gold letters on its face the words, "Compound interest treasury note." It was issued December 30, 1894, under the act of Congress of June 30 of that year, and was numbered 400,493. On the back was printed the statement:

"By act of Congress this note is a legal tender for ten dollars, but bears interest at six per cent, compounded every six months, though payable only at maturity as follows: 'The following was a table showing the worth of the note at six-month intervals, and the elaborate explanation concluded with:

"This sum, $1.94," shown in the table—"will be paid to holder for principal and interest at maturity of note, three years from date." The old man who presented it seemed surprised to learn that the interest and the compounding of the interest had ceased in 1897, but he took his $1.94 and departed contentedly. The bill was an old war-time greenback, made interest-bearing in order to make it more acceptable to the people, for money for war expenses didn't run in the treasury for those days as it does now.—Washington Post.

Wrong Half on Top.

A preacher with views on the temperance question was walking along a dusty road. A farmer with an empty wagon, save that it contained a gallon jug, overtook him and asked him if he did not wish to ride. The preacher, ascending the seat of the wagon, and as they jogged along toward the next village the two fell into conversation.

Now the preacher had his suspicions concerning the jug and led the talk around to the subject of temperance, expounding his views at great length and with appropriate emphasis. Much to his surprise, his companion quite agreed with him. Nevertheless, the preacher continued to suspect the jug.

"My friend," he said presently, "would you mind telling me what you have in that jug there?" "Liquor," said the farmer.

"I feared so," continued the preacher. "Now, my dear friend, you have agreed with all that I have said on this question of temperance."

"Yes." "Can you give proof that you mean what you say and pour out that accursed liquor?"

"No." "But I cannot understand—" "Waal," said the farmer, "ye see, I'd do for ye, only half the liquor in that jug belongs to my brother."

"Then enjoy your half, my friend."

"But I can't do that either. Ye see, his half's on top."

About one month ago my child, which is fifteen months old, had an attack of diarrhea accompanied by vomiting. I gave it such remedies as are usually given in such cases, but as nothing gave relief, we sent for a physician and it was under his care for a week. At this time the child had been sick for about ten days and was having about twenty-five operations of the bowels every twelve hours, and we were convinced that unless it soon obtained relief it would not live. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy was recommended, and I decided to try it. I soon noticed a change in the baby, by its continued use a complete cure was brought about and it is now perfectly healthy.—C. L. Boggs, Stump-town, Gilmer Co., Va. For sale by R. S. "THE AMERICAN BOY."

A Patriotic Plan to Replace the Maine.

Two Cincinnati Boys, One in the Uniform of an Officer of the Navy, called upon Mayor Malster, Baltimore, Tuesday, to consult with him as to their plan for raising the "American Boy Fund."

Two Cincinnati boys, one in the uniform of an officer of the Navy, called upon Mayor Malster, Baltimore, Tuesday, to consult with him as to their plan for raising the "American Boy Fund." The boys are W. Rankin Good and Harry S. Price. Last February they originated a scheme for raising money to build a battleship to replace the ill-fated Maine. The plan was to raise $3,000,000 among the boys and girls of the country and give it to the Government to purchase a great battleship called "The American Boy." It is not only to be a battleship but it is to be a monument to the dead sailors of the Maine. The boys are now traveling over the country perfecting their plan. They expect to get their contributions through the public schools. They will make the chief effort in that quarter, but will take contributions from any source in sums from 1 cent upward.

Young Good, who, when he is at home, lives at 841 Everett street, Cincinnati, O., is president of the national committee in charge of the fund and through him it goes to the Merchant's National Bank of Cincinnati. He said that he and young Price are bound to make a success of it. There was no failure contemplated in the programme. He says that no salaries are allowed to the persons in charge of the fund and the expenses so far have been almost exclusively those caused by the sending out of letters and circulars. The young men are paying their expenses other than railroad fare. They are traveling on passes.

They have now been on the road a week and have canvassed Cincinnati and Washington and have come to Baltimore. They will go to Philadelphia on Thursday. They visited the Chamber of Commerce this morning, where they were well received.

The plan has received the endorsement of President McKinley and all of the Cabinet officers, of Consul-General Lee, and of the Congressmen and several Grand Army posts.

Forwarding Mail Matter.

The following change in the postal laws has been made, and is now in effect:

"That second, third and fourth-class mail matter shall not be returned to sender or remailed until the postage has been fully prepaid on the same. Provided, That in all cases where undelivered matter of these classes is of obvious value, the sender, if known, shall be notified of the fact of non-delivery, and be given the opportunity of repaying the return postage."

Conforming to this law, postmasters are hereby directed not to return to the senders in future undelivered second, third, or fourth-class matter, even though it may bear a return request, until the postage for returning shall have been fully paid; nor may such matter be "remailed" or forwarded to a new address, except upon the same condition. The rate of postage for returning or remailing third and fourth-class matter will be the same as for its original despatch. The rate for returning or remailing undelivered second-class matter will be one cent for each four ounces.

Where the matter is, in the judgment of the postmaster holding it, of sufficient value to warrant its return, he must notify the sender of its non-delivery, and thus give him an opportunity of paying the return postage, which payment may be made by the remittance of either postage stamps or money. Where the matter is not of obvious value, and no provision for paying return postage on it is made by the sender, it must be disposed of as waste material. In all cases where postage for returning or forwarding the matter is paid, the postmaster must apply the necessary stamps to it, and promptly despatch it.

The above law, it must be observed does not apply to letters and other first-class matter; these may be re-forwarded, or returned, as heretofore without charge therefor, on the request of the addressee or sender, respectively.

Take it home and give it to the baby. A bottle of Victor Infants' Relief, a sample free at your Drug Store.

Montgomery county farmers are very much agitated over a disease which has lately broken out among their stock, particularly among the horses. Every day or so a healthy horse is taken with a severe cough, with ulceration of the throat, which is so severe that in the course of a week the animals dwindle away to nothing and die.

Home made pleasant and baby cured by the use of Victor Infants' Relief, the baby's digestive tonic, price 25cts.

How to Broil Chicken à la Maitre. Procure two very fine tender spring chickens, singe, draw, wipe dry and cut the heads off, then split them with-out separating and place them on a dish. Season with a pinch of salt, half a pinch of pepper and one tablespoonful of sweet oil. Turn them well in the seasoning. Put them to broil for nine minutes on each side. Prepare a sauce on a hot dish. Arrange the two broiled chickens over, spread half a gill of maitre d'hotel butter on the top and decorate with six thin slices of broiled bacon.

A Word of Discovery. The last quarter of a century records many wonderful discoveries in medicine, but none that have accomplished more for humanity than that sterling old household remedy, Brown's Iron Bitters. It seems to contain the very elements of good health, and without deriving the greatest benefit, Brown's Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.
