

VITAL STATISTICS LAW.

New Laws relating to Births, Deaths and Funerals.

As stated briefly, in last issue, under the law passed by the last legislature, all deaths and births must be registered with certain designated officials in each election district, and certain regulations must be observed in case of death from contagious diseases, all of which are of such importance that the public generally should be informed of the provisions in order that they may not innocently become violators of law. The RECORD, therefore, gives all the space it can to the subject, quoting directly from the law as published, being chapter 312 of the Acts of 1898, amended by chapter 431 of the Acts of 1900.

ALL FOR TALBOTT.

Former Congressman Unanimously Nominated at Havre De Grace.

The Democratic party held its Convention for the purpose of electing a candidate for Congress from the Second Congressional district on Wednesday, at Havre De Grace. The Convention, which was held at the City Opera House, was probably the largest ever held in the district. The delegates and other politicians began to arrive at 10 o'clock in the morning, and by 11 o'clock all hands interested in what was about to take place were in the city. Conferences were held, and by 12 o'clock the time of the Convention convened, it was understood that the action of the Convention was to consider only one name.

The Convention was called to order by Hollis Courtney, Jr., member of the County Executive Committee of Harford county. John L. Sanford, of the Twelfth ward, Baltimore City, was named as temporary secretary, and Edward C. Carrington, Jr., of Baltimore county, temporary secretary. These officers were afterward, upon the suggestion of the chairman, elected permanent.

After the passage of the resolutions reported by the committee, Edward C. Carrington, Jr., of Baltimore county, took the floor and in a speech of some length placed in nomination his fellow-countrian, J. Fred C. Talbott. Immediately upon the nomination, Mr. Carrington, Jr., of Baltimore county, and Mr. J. Fred C. Talbott, of Baltimore county, were elected permanent officers.

The day being a notable one for the history of the county, the weather was fine, and the sun shone brightly. The delegates and other politicians began to arrive at 10 o'clock in the morning, and by 11 o'clock all hands interested in what was about to take place were in the city. Conferences were held, and by 12 o'clock the time of the Convention convened, it was understood that the action of the Convention was to consider only one name.

After the passage of the resolutions reported by the committee, Edward C. Carrington, Jr., of Baltimore county, took the floor and in a speech of some length placed in nomination his fellow-countrian, J. Fred C. Talbott. Immediately upon the nomination, Mr. Carrington, Jr., of Baltimore county, and Mr. J. Fred C. Talbott, of Baltimore county, were elected permanent officers.

The day being a notable one for the history of the county, the weather was fine, and the sun shone brightly. The delegates and other politicians began to arrive at 10 o'clock in the morning, and by 11 o'clock all hands interested in what was about to take place were in the city. Conferences were held, and by 12 o'clock the time of the Convention convened, it was understood that the action of the Convention was to consider only one name.

The Convention was called to order by Hollis Courtney, Jr., member of the County Executive Committee of Harford county. John L. Sanford, of the Twelfth ward, Baltimore City, was named as temporary secretary, and Edward C. Carrington, Jr., of Baltimore county, temporary secretary. These officers were afterward, upon the suggestion of the chairman, elected permanent.

ENTERED AT TANEYTOWN POSTOFFICE AS SECOND CLASS MATTER.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 18th., 1900.

REPUBLICANS and Democrats have at last agreed to unite on one subject—opposition to the extreme heat. Mr. Hanna says it keeps down republican enthusiasm, while the other side says it compels Mr. Bryan to drink too much ice water. Evidently, the weather man is no friend to either party this year, nor are they friends of his.

A Tilt Among the Clerics.

Recently, we have been greatly interested in an epistolary battle which has been going on in several of the papers of a certain religious denomination; rather, it was a calling to account of one of the Boards of the denomination for a certain official act which has proven itself very unpopular, and which has developed into a sort of causae belli, the end of which is not yet, and which will likely be found on another field than that of the printed page. The engagement has been very one-sided, so far as numbers engaged are concerned, but the firing back and forth has been rather spirited and the marksmanship better than that of the Spanish.

We have little to do with the merits of this engagement, and certainly no desire or intention of discussing it in these columns. It interests us rather from the point of view of the ordinary lay quill-driver who is given the opportunity of seeing and sizing up the tactics of our clerical brethren while in a "scrap." Of course, we have been unable to witness the set-to without picking our favorite; the affair has been highly interesting throughout, and, we may say, edifying, particularly as the courtesies of civilized warfare have been fairly well observed, the wounded, if any, promptly taken to the rear, and the ammunition used, both non-explosive and non-mutilating, though necessarily somewhat sharp and cutting.

We have been specially observant of a sort of shoot-and-run participant that likely represents what we have so frequently heard of, late, designated as "guerilla warfare." For the purpose of illustration we may say that this "Board," heretofore mentioned, is positioned as a fort, or an entrenched force; it has been attacked from two positions, the fire from which has been of about equal power and frequency, and often in exact concert; the return fire has been much less frequent, but determined and confident of defending its position.

The shoot-and-run participant, mentioned, occupies a position in the rear of, and under cover of, the fort, but sallies out, occasionally, fires a spiteful sounding little gun at the two besieging forces, then quickly retires out of danger. It is said that some of the gunners from the fort slip out the back way, load and aim this little gun, but allow the officer in charge apply the match and assume the responsibility for the execution accomplished. Presumably, there is something not "regulation" about the ammunition used, but, as it seldom "hits," this cannot be determined to a certainty. At this distance, it is very much like the sort of "yellow" fighting we see during a political campaign, when "the end justifies the means," but it seems wonderfully out of place in the field we are now viewing.

Some day, we suspect, this little gun will meet with an accident, probably a big stray bomb will just happen to drop down on it, it may run out of ammunition, or it may prove such a dangerous thing to manage that the officer in charge will say to those on the inside of the intrenchments— "Here, you fellows who load this thing, come out and shoot it off, I've got enough." That will end its life, as the "you fellows" have not the courage to do any such thing, at least, through our glass it looks that way.

In addition to this figurative style of illustrating a point, we desire to say, further, that the RECORD has no admiration for the controversialist who deals in malicious flings, non-argumentative assertions and personal outbursts. This method of procedure is not allowable in honest argument among gentlemen of the laity, much less among the preachers of the Word to whom we naturally look for a better than the ordinary specimen of argumentativeness, and not for the proverbial last resort of the "clay-stone" lawyer, who, with a "bad case," proceeds to abuse "the other side."

Rural Delivery and Tax-paying.

We do not presume to argue that Rural Free Delivery is perfectly satisfactory to everybody, or that there are not cases in which it is less satisfactory than the old system. Probably, even after the gradual perfection of use will have caused many present complaints to disappear, there will still be isolated cases of discontent, based on actual inconvenience. There is just one argument against the system, however, which is both unjust and illogical, and that is, because one is a taxpayer, equal to another, he must needs have, as a matter of justice, equal mail service with every other.

In the first place, the taxes paid by the people—a state and county—have nothing whatever to do with "running the government," or the Post-office department. This department, is, in fact, nearly self-sustaining from its own revenues—the sale of stamps. Any deficiency which may be in evidence at the end of each fiscal year, is made good from other governmental sources—internal revenues, customs receipts, etc. Nobody pays any amount in taxes that goes toward the payment of departmental expenses; therefore, the "tax argument" is a little short in weight.

Admitting, for the sake of argument, that the tax idea is legitimate, as entitling all to equal public service, let us go a little ways into the subject. Our mistaken friends say, "I pay tax, but live off the public road, and because I am a taxpayer, I have no right to give me 'free delivery'." I am as much entitled to it as the man who lives along a carrier's route. The government does not consider the taxpayer, above the non-taxpayer, in the distribution of its service. If it did, then it must needs consider the heavy tax-payer over the small; neither does state or county, to which taxes are really paid, discriminate, in the matter of justice and the use of public property, as between one class and another.

Location, is necessarily a factor in the enjoyment of public property. All pay taxes to the county, for court expenses and the necessary machinery of government, still, some have fifteen miles or more to the county seat, while some live within a mile, yet all have equal business transactions in the courts and are equally tax-payers. All pay taxes toward keeping up the public roads, yet some do not use them, except as a walk, while others use them as a highway for the transportation of great business interests, and non-residents do not in the enjoyment of public road privileges with the man who pays little or much.

All people pay school tax, while all do not have children to send to school, or if they do, may not choose to send them to a public school. Besides, the man who lives three miles away, is not as well served as the one who lives within a stone's throw, of the school house. If "paying tax" is good argument for the delivery of mail in to every house, when none of the taxes paid go to the Postoffice department, is it not a clinching argument that because one does pay tax for school purposes, he is entitled to have the teacher come to his own house and give instruction?

This line of argument might be logically pursued in many channels, but the necessity for it does not exist. Even the old postal system was not equitable, because of "tax-paying," as some had miles to go to the postoffice, while others had but a few steps. Aside from all this, we believe the time will come when there will be a complete house to house mail delivery, but the question of taxes paid will have nothing to do with the innovation.

The People are Responsible.

It is a matter of almost national dishonor that those in this country of ours who have the least capacity for political management and power, are often the ones who take the greatest interest in it, while those best qualified are too unconcerned, too engrossed with their personal affairs—their business or pleasure—to attend primaries, raise their voices on the side of right and honesty, and sometimes, even, to cast their ballots.

After the election, or after a session of the legislature, the "righteous indignation" of the people often finds vent, for a season, and then straightaway goes to sleep again, while the ever vigilant "heeler," professional politician and party machine, at the next opportunity, plays his little game as successfully as ever.

Once in a while, the intelligent voting masses throw off their lethargy, and in combination with the element always to be depended on for good government, wrest the power from the professionals, and establish reforms, but it is only a matter of time until the management settles down in the familiar old rut, and results become as bad as, or worse than, before.

Ohio as Debateable Ground.

Since 1872 Ohio has held twenty-five elections. Of these the Republicans have carried twenty-one and the Democrats four. Not once during this period has a Democratic Presidential ticket prevailed in Ohio, although in 1892 the republican plurality was only 1,072.

The years when the Democrats carried the State were 1877, 1882, 1888 and 1890. In almost every instance the prominent issue before the people when the Democrats won their victory was that of the tariff. After the Wilson bill was transformed by Democratic Senators into a high-protection measure the tariff question was practically abandoned, and since then the Republicans have carried the State by large pluralities.

Midsummer Cruelty. Hot weather seldom increases the amiability of either men or women. Ninety-nine degrees in the shade never has a cooling effect on the temper. It often makes people fretful and irritable and utterly regardless of other animals' feelings. The one noble animal which is most persistently forced to endure the toils of hot and cold weather both is the horse. His work continues as arduous and his trials are as exacting when the thermometer records 110 in the sun as when the temperature is delightfully well-balanced. Unfortunately, his owner or his driver don't always remember that. The horse is too often treated like a machine. He is whipped through his labors in the broiling heat, made to stand harnessed and eat his mid-day meal in the scorching sun, and is seldom gratified with a drop of water to relieve his scorching throat. While the men who drive him are most solicitous to protect themselves, they leave the faithful beast to pant and sweater under the most trying conditions. If he falters from the effects of heat, he is lashed into action by some infuriated driver. If the vehicle to which he is attached is a delivery wagon and it stops at various points to leave mercantile packages, no shady spot is selected as a shelter to the horse. The same is true of other vehicles, whether they be heavy or very light.

The horse is entitled to a large measure of consideration during this weather, and the man who abuses him is a heartless brute. Cold selfishness should prompt an owner to give proper care to his horse, particularly if the drivers lack the human quality of sympathy. If a man himself refuses a horse the protection to which he is entitled, the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals should become the animal's protector.—American.

Rev. A. D. Bateman returned from the mountains of Vermont, last Saturday, having greatly enjoyed the trip, especially the pure bracing air, while we were sweltering, and ready to "run together."

When settling up an estate as executor, administrator or trustee, remember that the RECORD will save you money on the publications required by law. We solicit all our friends to give us this business.

It is a patent matter of fact that while some sprinkle the dust, others drown it into mud; some use the hose for the purpose of securing comfort after its use, while others seem to derive the pleasure in using it—playing with it.

Lieutenant Upton Birnie, Jr., was ordered to report at Governor's Island New York, on Saturday, to join his regiment—the 2nd Artillery—in Cuba. At last accounts the transport had not left, but was expected to sail any day.

The unprecedented drought and heat of this summer has seriously damaged the pasture in this neighborhood. On the uplands the grass is dry and short; meadows are a little better, but many farmers are already feeding their cattle.

Some men who profess to be prophets are saying we will have dollar wheat before January 1st. This is one of the things no man can tell, but it is some satisfaction to the farmers to have hopes of it, especially as the corn crop will be short.

A considerable leak in the supply pipe entering F. B. Youn's grocery, was discovered last week. This leak has caused the loss of thousands of gallons of water for a year or more, and as the water found its way into an adjoining cellar, and had to be pumped out, some thought there must be a spring in the cellar. Baltimore street gutters will likely be more free, hereafter, of water and ice.

On Wednesday evening, the Taneytown band tendered a serenade to Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Shriver, at their beautiful home at Trevanon. After rendering a number of selections, refreshments were served in abundance and much enjoyed. The two sons of Mr. John McEdden, of Philadelphia, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Shriver, and aided materially in making the evening one of enjoyment.

Mrs. U. S. Grant Remembered.

Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant has recently received an interesting souvenir of the visit paid to her in the White House years ago by some Sioux chiefs and their squaws. The parcel contained photographs of Wash. Wash. Tay and her half sister, George Horse, who as young squaws accompanied Red Cloud and the great Sioux delegation when they came to the White House in the early seventies. Together with these photographs were splendid examples of bead and quill embroidery, in colors and in unique designs, done by hand by Wash. Wash. Tay and George Horse; also photographs of Crow Dog, the Sioux chief who slew Spotted Tail, and of Hollow Horn Bear, one of the finest living specimens of the North American Indian.

Some people don't think so; neither does Jones, but that makes no difference. All you want to see is Sam Jones. You know it, and God help you to wake up and get some sense.

Why, if you people are determined to see Sam Jones for the success of this camp, you're going to have the biggest "out" that ever happened to a camp in New Jersey.

Just keep on depending, and you'll go to hell. Brace up! Look pretty!—that is, as pretty as you can, because some of you are not very good looking at the moment.

Mr. Strouse then made a plain Gospel talk, and one person professed conversion.

Was Ready to Laugh.

Mark Twain was once advertised to lecture in the town of Colchester, but for some reason failed to appear. In the emergency the lecture committee decided to employ the Hon. Denham Horner to deliver his celebrated lecture on temperance, but so late in the day was this arrangement made, that no bills announcing it could be circulated, and the audience assembled, expecting to hear Mark Twain, relates in the Magazine, "No one in the town knew Mr. Clemens, or had ever heard him lecture, and they entertained the idea that he was funny and went to the lecture prepared to laugh. Ever those upon the platform, except the chairman, did not know Mr. Horner from Mark Twain, and so when he was introduced, thought that he died the hour later when they regained consciousness. The girl and her sister got on the excursion train that left here at midnight for Baltimore to bid adieu to the lecturer. They were carried to Walkersville, where they were put off by the conductor, as they had no tickets. They started to walk toward Frederick, and had reached Harney Grove when an engine came thundering along and struck the woman as she attempted to cross the track in front of it. She was struck in the back and buried some distance and very badly cut and bruised. The engineer had no knowledge of having struck her and came to a stop. The sister of the girl continued to Frederick and told of the accident. A car was run out and the girl brought in. A jury of inquest exonerated the company from all blame.—Sun

Fire at Hanover, Pa.

The most disastrous fire in the history of Hanover broke out early Sunday morning in the heart of the town, and before it was gotten under control 12 barns were totally destroyed, four residences, four business houses and one hotel badly damaged, entailing a loss that will aggregate $50,000.

The fire broke out in the livery stable of H. Shriver & Son, and it is believed that it was ignited through the carelessness of several intoxicated men who were at the stables shortly before the fire was discovered.

The flames spread with remarkable rapidity, leaping across two alleys and setting the barns on fire on both sides of the one alley. The fire raged fiercely and swept every structure in its path the distance of an entire block. The firemen worked hard to retard the flames in the other alley before they would reach the warehouse of J. C. Tanager & Co., where a quantity of powder was stored, but in vain. Shortly after the warehouse caught fire there was a terrific explosion. The building was blown almost blown to atoms, firemen hurled to the ground and people ran terror-stricken from their homes.

Some of the losses are: Hotel Obold, $15,000, covered by insurance; J. C. Tanager & Co., store and warehouse, $5,000, partly insured; J. H. Shriver & Son, livery stable, $3,000, partly insured; Louis Weiss, three houses, $3,500, partly insured; D. D. Bixler & Son, stores, $1,000, covered; Henry Pickering, 10 barns, $8,000, partly insured.

The Hanover Telephone Company sustained a heavy loss. Its immense cables were strung through the scene of the fire, and the hundreds of wires in the cables are a mass of melted copper.

The livery stables of Shriver & Son were totally destroyed, together with 11 horses, 15 sleighs and 14 carriages. The cries of the horses could be heard for blocks, but they could not be rescued.

It is now generally believed in Washington and the capitals of Europe that the allied armies in China have reached Peking. A cablegram to Vienna, which may be used to announce the capture of Peking, but this is with-out confirmation. At a Cabinet meeting in Washington it is reported a dispatch was received that General Chafetz shall return to Peking with the men as soon as the Ministers are rescued. He will soon be able to assemble an American army of 10,000 men at Peking, which may be used to force indemnity claims if President McKinley so decides.

An undated cablegram from Minister Coger was received in Washington on Thursday. It conveys the important information that the American cipher code is safe. There had been some fears that the Chinese had gotten possession of this code. The cable adds that since July 17 there has been daily rifle fire on the legations and with it frequent desperate attacks. He says that practically all the foreign property in Peking has been destroyed.

Japan, it is reported, has taken the role of mediator. She is said to have proposed an armistice between the powers and China. According to the story, China has accepted and Japan has begun negotiations with the powers.

Sam Jones Scored.

Sam Jones, the noted evangelist, failed to make his appearance at the National Park camp meeting, near Camden, N. J., recently, and the big crowd showed its displeasure at the absence of Sam.

Evangelist Clarence Strouse, who was formerly associated with Jones in the business, spoke in place of Jones and "made a hit." He spoke on "What Came Ye Here for to See?" and said he never saw such an angry, disappointed crowd in his life, and he was surprised, as it indicated that they had come to worship Sam Jones and not Christ.

"Your thoughts are only partly on this service," he said. "You're listening in the woods for Sam Jones, and if an owl was to fall through a tree you would swear it was Jones. I'm just as good a preacher as Sam Jones. Some people don't think so; neither does Jones, but that makes no difference. All you want to see is Sam Jones. You know it, and God help you to wake up and get some sense. Why, if you people are determined to see Sam Jones for the success of this camp, you're going to have the biggest 'out' that ever happened to a camp in New Jersey.

Just keep on depending, and you'll go to hell. Brace up! Look pretty!—that is, as pretty as you can, because some of you are not very good looking at the moment.

Campaign Buttons and Novelties.

The campaign button is abroad in the land. More and more in evidence as the days go by are the men who proclaim their political sentiments by means of more or less gaudy devices imprinted upon celluloid and worn in coat lapel buttonholes.

The most popular buttons contain a portrait of one or more candidates, as of McKinley or Bryan alone or with their running mates. Combined with the pictured faces are usually some combination of the national flag, portraits of the candidates, and, considering their diminutive size, and are reproduced from photographs.

One of the popular buttons for Republicans bears the motto: "In McKinley we trust, in Bryan we burn." Then for the Democrats there is the comforting motto: "In Bryan we trust; all other trusts we bust."

One of the latest devices is a grinning Roosevelt face in shining metal pinned upon a card bearing Senator Dewey's legend of the fight at San Juan. The card is attached to the button under the chin and see him take it if followed out shows the Rough Rider's lower jaw dropped on hinges and in his mouth the command he is said to have given his regiment: "Give 'em h—h—boys."

This talking device is carried out in another grinning face whose mouth is the alphabet. "McKinley" is a costly campaign device include medals bearing the heads of the candidates in relief. For McKinley the medals are usually shining and guaranteed unobtainable imitations of gold, while the Bryan men are content with medals of the white metal.
