"Getting out" the Vote.

Now that the time for the registration and transfer of voters has passed, the attention of active politicians is naturally directed to the greater occasion—the day of election—the "getting out" of the vote. That many people are unappreciative of their privilege of suffrage, while others want to be looked after, hauled around and even paid, is a double evil; it shows low-grade citizenship on the one hand, and opens the door to the corrupt use of money on the other. It is responsible for "dirty" politics.

While it would probably be an unjustified extreme proceeding to disfranchise a man for refusing to participate in the use of the ballot, it seems that there ought to be some form of coercion in such cases, because, with a general registration and vote, the business of the "boodler" would be greatly interfered with, and the character of suffrage gradually raised to a better standard.

The use of money and bribes of various kinds for the purpose of influencing elections is one of the greatest evils, as well as being a disgrace, confronting us today. That this evil can be reduced to the minimum, is not, as some argue, an impossibility. That the best of laws intended to prevent corruption of this kind, may be evaded, is not true, in fact. That they are evaded, is true, and that the evil is growing, rather than lessening, is also true, but it is only because the people want it so.

If one-half the money was spent for the purpose of securing evidence of bribery, and bringing the guilty ones to court, that is spent for the purpose of bribery itself, the effect would be to largely wipe out of existence this blot on our political system; but, as long as all parties are equally guilty, to the extent of their opportunities, the reason is altogether patent as to why, buying, selling and dickering with votes is continued.

The common argument against the adoption of strictly honest methods, is, that "the other party will buy them all, if we quit, and lick us out of our boots." This is begging the question of right, entirely, and is false in its conclusion. For one election or two, possibly, the "boodler" would get in his work, but he would soon have troubles of his own. He would have his attention distracted from dealing in votes, or selling his own, to the more serious matter of keeping himself out of the penitentiary; besides, the side of clean methods, would, from the outset, enlist the assistance of those who would break down party lines for the sake of being with the party of the pure ballot. All people do not excuse the "boodler" campaign, simply because it's politics, and would gladly unite with better company.

Sales of Farmers' Property.

It is yet a little early for us to talk of spring sales of live stock and farming implements, although the Pennsylvania county papers have had their sale registers for the coming season running since September 1st. January 1st, seems ample time for this; still, it may not be out of place for those intending to have a spring sale to begin to think of how they will advertise it.

The regulation "sale bill" is going out, at least to the extent of a sole means of advertising. Newspaper space, circulars and cards, are taking the place of the "bill," in a great measure. A good idea seems to be a card, about three by six or eight inches in size, containing all the items for sale in small type, from 500 to 1000 in quantity, which may be conveniently carried and handed around on various public occasions. The cards are not expensive—not more so than bills—and are likely to move more as an advertising medium.

The above, is a Pennsylvania idea, as well as the use of the small circular. Neither of these is used, however, except in connection with either large bills or newspaper advertising. As we have repeatedly stated, it is not good business to offer a large number of items, amounting anywhere from $500 to $1000, without using every legitimate effort to draw bidders, and this can no longer be done by sale bills, for excellent reasons. We advise all who expect to "sell off" this coming spring to give the subject some advance consideration.

China Still a Puzzle.

The Chinese situation varies from day to day. During the greater part of last week the news was altogether pacific. The Chinese government was on its knees for peace, and Germany, the only obstacle, abandoned her arrogant demands. All that was left to be done appeared to be to get the commissioners together and begin the negotiations. Now, however, there are suspicious signs of Chinese activity and sinister rumors of Chinese bad faith. A dispatch from Germany says that 200,000 Chinese troops, with modern weapons, are marching from all the provinces to Singan Fu, where the Chinese Court has gone. This may have been colored by the eagerness of the German court for war. It is easy to understand that China can gather together 200,000 troops, but not so easy, after the reports sent from there, to arm them with modern weapons.

The report that a German force of 500 men and two guns was attacked by 8,000 Imperial troops and had to retire to English sources, and entitled to full credence, except in regard to the number of Chinese, which could only be estimated, and probably seemed larger than it was. Another report from English sources is that 8,000 Chinese troops are marching from the North to join China's troops already at Shanghai, and that all foreign troops in that city are being held in readiness to meet an attack. According to another English dispatch Ying Nien, who was degraded at the same time as Prince Tuan, has already been reappointed to a high post. Prince Tuan and other Boxers who were recently degraded in response to the demands of the powers from the present mainstay of the imperial court, and probably dictated the decree determining their own punishment. If this were not enough, it is also reported that there is the utmost activity in the manufacture of arms and ammunition and in putting the various forts in a state of defence, and a viceroy who has just been appointed peace commissioner has been ordered to expedite the completion of the Han Yang arsenal.

Making due allowances for the mistakes of correspondents, it must be conceded that China, under the present dynasty, is an uncertain quantity. Each item comes from a different correspondent, and with one exception they are all to great London dailies. They read very like an act from opera bouffe. It is almost impossible to divine what the Chinese government expects from such tactics after its cowardly flight from Peking. Then and there was the time to fight if it had such a purpose, and not after its capriciousness laid bare to its own people. Ordinarily it would be ridiculous to assume that the Chinese court expected to frighten the European powers; when the stolidity and fatalism and cunning vanity of the race and the dynasty are considered, this seems the only plausible explanation. If that be the purpose—if the Chinese government's peace overtures are a mere pretense, a sham to gain time and cover military preparations—there will be but one thing for the allies to do. They will have to clean out the wretched dynasty root and branch, and substitute a government of Chinese statesmen. There are some of these in China, and some at foreign capitals, who are patriotic and wise, and would be a blessing to the empire.—American.

A Thousand Tongues

Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of Philadelphia, when Dr. King's New Discovery cured her of a hacking cough that for many years had made life a burden. She says: "After all other remedies and cures failed, it soon removed the pain in my chest, and I can now sleep soundly, something I can scarcely remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praises throughout the Universe." Dr. King's New Discovery is guaranteed to cure all troubles of the Throat, Chest or Lungs. Price 50c and $1. Trial bottles free at R. S. McKinney's drug store.

New Jersey Justice.

The trusts are finding some things in New Jersey besides mosquitoes and liberal charters. The little original star of the American Union has had the reputation, for years, of living sumptuously on corporations, and the habit has become fixed. The state opened its arms and heart to those who sought to monopolize the earth, and sent them forth fully equipped, under the great seal of the state, with power to plunder and possess. It has been the ceaselessly operating incubator, hatching trusts by the wholesale. Every egg, no matter how bad, incubated, too. New Jersey hatches are to be found all over the country, and are always vigorous. But the state has recently assumed the role of "come into my parlor," said the spider to the fly. It has increased the taxes of a certain class of corporations from $70,900,000 to $260,573,000. All corporations that use public property, and enjoy special privileges, such as the use of streets and roads, for instance, are subject to the increased tax. Naturally there is much excitement among the "tax ridden" victims, and all sorts of unpretty things are being said against the state that has gathered the trusts under her wing, as a hen hovers her chickens. The idea of compelling a monopoly to pay anything for having the people turned over to its tender mercies, strikes these autocratic creations as monstrous, and subversive of the fundamental principles of our commercial systems. It is said that the state is "pillaging the corporations," and attacking property rights. Why of course it is. It is upsetting the whole system of corporate enterprise, which was inaugurated to take in money and not to pay it out. It may now be expected that the New Jersey corporations will deeply regret that they were ever born upon the shores of the Delaware, and they will, as far as they can disown the mother that bore them. We congratulate our seaboard sister state, upon its courage and good judgment; and we feel confident that a commonwealth which drew vengeance from the Camden and Ambury railroad for so many years, will not lose sight of any chance of emolument. Let the trusts wince, but let not the state hesitate to increase the taxes or to collect them.—Epitomist.

It Happened in a Drug Store.

"One day last winter a lady came to my drug store and asked for a brand of cough medicine. I told her I did not have it in stock," says Mr. C. R. Grandin, the popular druggist of Ontario, N. Y. "She was disappointed and wanted to know what cough preparation I could recommend. I said to her that I could freely recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and that she could take a bottle of the remedy and after giving it a fair trial if she did not find it worth the money to bring back the bottle and I would refund the price paid. In the course of a day or two the lady came back in company with a friend in need of a cough medicine and advised her to buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. She considered that a very good recommendation for the remedy." It is for sale by R. S. McKinney, Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

The United States and Cuba.

It is well known that the United States Government, in ordering the election last month of a Cuban constitutional convention, entertained the lively hope that this body would see the propriety of arranging for extremely intimate relations between Cuba and the United States—relations which, while leaving ordinary affairs of internal government wholly to the Cubans, would place external affairs under the aegis of the United States. We must, in all sincerity, agree with Senator Beveridge that it would be very unfortunate for Cuba to have our American school administration withdrawn at this time; while it is our further conviction that we owe it to ourselves to retain a permanent supervision of Cuban sanitary affairs, with a view to protecting our Southern States against yellow fever and cholera. Cuba needs five years more of the present regime under General Wood, after which it ought to have perhaps ten years of territorial government like that of Oklahoma or New Mexico; and then it ought to be admitted as a sovereign State into the Union. But Mr. McKinley is in no way responsible for the absurd and mischievous pledge made by congress on the eve of our going to war, to the effect that we were not going to annex Cuba. It is as ridiculous to think that we are really doing a good thing for people who live in Cuba by ordering them to adopt a constitution and run an independent government as to think it an act of generosity to shove a handful of men, women, and children off to shift for themselves in a small open boat in mid-ocean, when they might just as well have been comfortable and safe on board a big steamer. Undoubtedly, there are many intelligent Cubans who think it best that the island should have its independence first, and should then seek annexation on its own free motion. Under all the circumstances, there is much to be said in favor of this view. There is just now great irritation in Cuba over that part of the War Department's call for the convention which makes it the convention's duty "to provide for and agree with the Government of the United States upon the relations to exist between that Government and the Government of Cuba." The Cuban leaders took great interest in the election of the delegates, but probably not more than half of the registered voters attended the polls. The convention will include some of the ablest men in Cuba, and sessions will begin at Havana on Monday, November 5, the day before our Presidential election.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for October.

An Artistic Advertisement.

A Fulton (Mo.) druggist prints the following "story" in his local paper: "About five and one-half years ago Abraham I. Smith, living in the Northern part of the county, built himself a very fine house, had it finished up in first class shape inside and out, and handsomely furnished. About two months ago he and his wife left home to spend the day, and imagine their surprise when they returned to find their house and everything in it burned.

"He drove to town and telegraphed the insurance adjuster to come on next train and he would meet him, which he did, and they drove to the house. When they reached there the adjuster remarked, 'What's the matter with you, Smith I thought you said your house was burned, and there it stands without a blemish.' So they got out and walked up to the house, and imagine the adjuster's look of surprise when he walked up the steps, across the porch and opened the door. The entire house had burned away. The adjuster paid him the insurance $2,300.

"What deceived the adjuster was that the paint used had preserved the house from water and dampness, and the wood was as dry as a powder house, and the fire, starting from the inside, had burned all it came to till it reached the paint, and as there wasn't any gasoline in it, it left the entire outside complete.

"Mr. Smith drove the adjuster to town, looked up the carpenter that built the house and renewed the contract with him, and a part of the specifications was that the new house was to be built inside the walls of paint left standing, and that all the interior floors, furniture, stoves and everything was to be painted two coats of the same kind of paint they had used on the outside, so he would not have to have any insurance. It is hardly worth while to say that the paint on the house was the celebrated mixed paint sold only by C. M. Wright & Co., druggists, Fulton, Mo., as their paint was the only one made that will stand the test of fire, weather and time. The above is a true story, as can be proved by Turner Rosser, as he sold the lumber to rebuild the house; Dr. G. D. McCall, family physician and N. L. Townsend the prospective son-in-law."

A new remedy for biliousness is now on sale at R. S. McKinney's drug store. It is called Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. It gives quick relief and will prevent the attack if given as soon as the first indication of the disease appears. Price, 25 cents per box. Samples free.

In the October Review of Reviews, the editorial department entitled "The Progress of the World" contains an impartial review of the Presidential campaign down to its present stage, special attention being given to the letters of acceptance of the several candidates. Other topics editorially treated in this number are the Galveston calamity, the coal-miners' strike, the pending elections in England, and the problem of reconstruction in China.

The money was in a bureau drawer in Mr. and Mrs. Zent's sleeping room, and was stolen between nine and twelve o'clock, while they were in bed. The thief was evidently well acquainted with circumstances and surroundings.

A Shrewd Deal.

"It is all right to talk about the robber-railroads, but we get robbed once in a while ourselves," said the right-of-way agent. "The railroad that I am working for has been engaged for some time in straightening out the curves of its main line, and the work has kept me busy getting the necessary right of way of the farmers whose land we run through. There is nothing that will increase the value of a farm so much as an impression that a railroad will need some of it. But I got along fairly well until last week, when to straighten out a bad curve I found that we would have to buy a few feet from the farm that adjoins our right of way. The moment I set eyes on that piece of ground I saw that it was a piece of trouble with the owner upon it. It was a newly-made grave. I hated to approach the man, but a railroad can't afford to be sentimental; so I put the case before him.

"What?" he cried, "disturb those hallowed bones?" "I am sorry," I answered, "but it is absolutely necessary that we have the land that the grave is on."

"Well, the old man protested with tears in his eyes, and threatened to take the matter into court, the last thing that I desired to do, as I wouldn't care to say what a lawyer would do after a lawyer was through with them. I argued with him, and finally got the land that we desired by paying him five times what it was worth.

"Now," said I, after the papers were passed, "I suppose you will remove the remains at once?" "Guess not," said he.

"Well, I guess you will," said I sharply, "for land belongs to us now."

"Well," he drawled, "I don't suppose the 'ol hog what's buried there cares whether he is removed or not."

"Say that old sharper had buried nothing there but a mossy hog, and then shed tears over the hallowed bones till I weakened."

"Well, it was on me; so after advising the old fellow to be careful of the future and not bury any more of his relatives near our right of way, I left."

It has been ascertained that at least 7,000 people perished in the great Galveston storm. The dead in Galveston alone exceeded 5,000, beyond the city limits 1,500, and on the mainland more than 1,000. Bodies are still being recovered at the rate of 15 and 25 a day.

PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION.

Will Attract Millions of People to Buffalo Next Year.

The Bureau of Publicity of the Pan American Exposition has just issued a very complete booklet descriptive of the enterprise to be held at Buffalo next year. The booklet contains 48 pages with 121 titles and 82 illustrations. The publicity up to the present time has been piecemeal, bringing out the various features as they have developed, but an examination of this booklet gives to the reader a very comprehensive idea of the splendid character of the Exposition.

The total cost of the Exposition, exclusive of exhibits, is now estimated at $10,000,000. Of this amount about $3,000,000 will be expended upon the midway. The sum for the midway is more than the total cost of some very pretentious exhibitions, so that by comparison one may gain a very fair idea of the work which Buffalo is carrying rapidly to completion. A beautiful landscape comprising 350 acres, half a mile wide and a mile and a quarter long, is devoted to this wonderful enterprise.

The word "Pan" as a prefix to American means All—that is to say, the Exposition is for all the Americas, exhibiting the products of the continent not being accepted. It is claimed for the Pan-American Exposition that it will be the most artistic creation of the kind ever brought to the midway. It will excel all former exhibitions in its court settings, having 33 acres of courts alone, upon which to bestow the wonderful embellishments of fountains and cascades, pools and lakes, canals and lagoons, lawns and gardens. The twenty or more great structures which are to shelter the exhibits, gathered from all corners of the Western Hemisphere and from all the island possessions of the United States will surround these courts. Every building is richly adorned with plastic ornamentation and tinted in accordance with a magnificent color scheme under direction of Charles Y. Turner, the leading artist of the world in this work.

No exposition has ever undertaken such an extensive use of sculpture for decorative purposes. This work is under the master direction of Karl Bitter, who has added to the vast knowledge and infinite skill which gave him the leading position at the World's Fair at Chicago, the experience of seven more years of activity in his profession. Under his direction thirty or more sculptors, embracing the leading artists of this class in the United States, are at work upon more than 125 groups of original sculpture.

In the use of electric lights for decorative purposes, the Exposition will outline all former undertakings. Owing to the nearness of Niagara Falls, with unlimited electric power, the Pan-American Exposition has at hand a large volume of energy which will be employed to whatever extent may be necessary to produce the most brilliant, fantastic and beautiful electric lighting effects the world has ever seen. The exhibits of the Exposition are divided into about twenty classes and embrace every line of human activity.

The gates of the Exposition will open on May 1, 1901 continuing six months. Buffalo, a city of nearly 400,000 population, one of the most charming cities of the world and having a climate 10 degrees cooler than any other city of the northern states in summer, is preparing to welcome millions of strangers to its gates next year.

Bismarck's Iron Nerve. Was the result of his splendid health. Indomitable will and tremendous energy are not found where Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels are out of order. If you want these qualities and the success they bring, use Dr. King's New Life Pills. Only 25 cents at R. S. McKinney's drug store.

Special Excursion to Luray Caves, Sunday, October 14th.

On Sunday, October 14th, the Western Maryland Railroad will run a special excursion to the wonderful Luray Caves, Luray, Va. The special will leave Bruceville at 8:51 a. m., returning, leave Luray at 5:30 p. m. The wonders of the renowned caverns of Luray are indescribable and truly marvelous in their many real formations and crystallizations of inspiring beauty and grandeur. The excursion rate for this occasion will be on a round trip ticket for the round trip, coupon of admission to the Caves and services of guides. Tickets will be limited to date of issue and good good curve I found that we would have to buy a few feet from the farm that adjoins our right of way. The moment I set eyes on that piece of ground I saw that it was a piece of trouble with the owner upon it. It was a newly-made grave. I hated to approach the man, but a railroad can't afford to be sentimental; so I put the case before him.

The Coal Miners' Strike. Scranton, Pa., Oct. 11.—The convention of the anthracite miners now on strike throughout the entire hard coal fields in Pennsylvania will convene in this city tomorrow morning for the purpose of considering the 10 per cent. net increase in wages proffered them by nearly all the mining operators in the region. What the outcome of the convention will be is all a matter of speculation, and the opinions expressed to-night by labor leaders are highly divergent. The delegates to the convention, who began arriving today, have all sorts of instructions from their local organizations. It was learned that the most of them now on the ground will vote to reject the 10 per cent. increase unless the operators make further concessions. Many of the miners will not favor the advance unless the operators give a guarantee that the increase will be kept in force for a fixed length of time; others want the union recognized before they will accept the proposition, while not a few insist upon concessions in the other grievances.

The Lie Eternal. A little girl came in her nightclothes very early to her mother one morning, saying, "Which is the worst, mamma, to tell a lie or steal?" The mother replied that both were so bad she couldn't tell which was the worst. "Well," said the little one, "I've been thinking a good deal about it, and I've concluded it's worse to lie than to steal. If you steal a thing, you can take it back, 'less you've eaten it, and if you've eaten it you can pay for it. But—and there was a look of awe in the little face—"a lie is forever."—New York Tribune.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

Fortune of a Little Indian Maid.

A new life is beginning for Mabel Ray Bondy, the great-granddaughter of "the White Rose of the Miamis." The Indian maid, who is fast blossoming into womanhood, has left her simple little home in the valley of the Mississippi river, in Indiana, and has gone to visit relatives in Detroit, Deafane, O., Wilkesbarre, Pa., and Philadelphia. She will then go to a seminary to be educated.

When she left Peru, it was the first time that this 14-year-old girl was ever in a sleeping car. Everything seemed new and delightful to her. She watched the changing scenes with alert eyes, but with the usual silence of her race.

MABEL RAY BONDY. The girl is a princess by right of birth. In her veins courses the blood of the Miamis, one of the proudest and most exclusive of the Indian tribes and the blood of the royal family of Aragon and Godfrey of France.

As far back as can be traced the chiefs of the Miamis were men of magnificent physique, haughty and proud. They were men of honor, whose word, once passed, could be relied upon. They held many medals from Congress in token of the services they rendered the white race in the past.

Mabel Bondy already shows that she is going to be a magnificent specimen of womanhood.

Nig and the Clock. Nig is a fine, large black cat owned by auntie, who often says that he is more like a monkey than a cat, he is so very mischievous. One day his uncle was repairing a clock. After he was through he started the clock striking the hours until he got the correct time. The cat sat on the table watching him. Lifting his paw, he raised the little hammer and made the clock strike one. We all thought it was very cute of him. Christmas he climbed the Christmas tree and knocked off a lot of the balls. He would tap them with his paws until they would fall. Auntie could not think what it was until she went close to the tree and saw his little black head and eyes. He is very fond of oysters, and whenever they have them Nig has to be shut up in the cellar, as he does not give them any peace, but goes from one to the other and taps them with his paw as though he would say, "Why don't you give me some?" He hides everything he gets hold of. He hides cork up the rainspout and spoils of cotton and all such things under the sideboard. He is not afraid of anything but the ice man, and he scampers off as fast as he can go when he hears him coming.

Sings to the Camel. The Jehu who whallops his horse to make it go when the poor beast is dead tired might do well to take a hint from the Arabs of the desert. They use camel humps as other folks use springs or ships. In fact, the camel has often been called the ship of the desert. The animal has a very queer temper, which needs to be studied. When, therefore, the Arabian driver wants his camel to go faster, he doesn't begin to "teather" it. He catches the camel by the hump, and the simple tines cheer the jaded creature so much that it actually quickens its pace at least one-fourth. First one driver in the caravan sings a verse, and then the others join in the chorus. Some travelers have said that they have asked the drivers to sing to them to increase their progress, but also because the melodies were so sweet and simple that they were worth listening to on their own account.

Uncle Arthur's Version. The Sunday school teacher was telling the little boys of her class about the bees, and she asked them what they knew.

"I know something," cried 6-year-old Charley. "Well, Charley, stand up and tell us what you know about them."

So Charley stood up and rattled off these lines:

"How doth the little busy bee
Delight to bark and bite,
To gather honey all the day
And eat it up at night."

"Did your mother teach you that, Charley?" said the teacher, smiling.

"No, ma'am, but Uncle Arthur did."

Speak Thou the Truth. Speak thou the truth. Let others fence and trim their words for pay. In pleasant sunshine of pretense Let others bark their day.

Guard thou the fact, though clouds of night
Down on thy watch tower stoop;
Though thou shouldst see thy heart's delight
Borne from thee by their swoop.

Face thou the wind, though safer seem
In shelter to abide;
We were not made to sit and dream
The safe must first be tried. —Dean Alford.

Doing His Best.

"Yes, we're going to move," she said to the agent. "We simply can't stand it."

"Have patience, madam," he urged. "Patience has ceased to be a virtue," she retorted. "We complained twice of that woman in the flat above who pounds the piano and sings both day and night, and you said you would get her out. Instead of doing that you have calmly let the flat next to hers to a man who plays the cornet."

"But that's part of the scheme," he protested. "We put him there on purpose. His instructions are to make so much noise she can't hear herself sing. She has a lease, you know, and the only way to get her out is to discourage her."—Chicago Post.

Incognitible. "Now, my son, it's time you learned something of politeness. Why is it that I never, if I can help it, turn my back on a lady?"

WE have for sale the celebrated Crescent Feed which has been taken the place of Bran among farmers. The trade for some time back have been realizing that this Crescent Feed is about the cheapest article in the feed line on the market at present. You see the Crescent Feed is nothing but pure Oats and Concentrated Oats that you buy natural or clipped Oats you have got to pay the same price for the moisture or water in the Oats as you pay for the Oats themselves. The Crescent Oats Feed contains the nutriment of the Oats and in addition the water has been removed from them in the kiln drying. As you are aware the Crescent Feed contains 20 per cent. in the drying. This of course means that all the surplus water has been taken out of the Feed, and that the Feed of itself is practically nothing but the concentrated energy of the Oats. This fact is becoming more recognized from day to day. A trial will convince you of its good qualities. The TANEYTOWN ELEVATOR CO.
