ENTERED AT TANETOWN POSTOFFICE AS SECOND CLASS MATTER

SATURDAY, NOV. 23rd., 1901.

THE SCHLEY-MANIAS can scarcely wait the decision of the court, in the recent inquiry into Naval etiquette as it was practiced by the Admiral in Cuban waters, and with ill-timed and bombastic devotion threaten a congressional investigation, from which may the Ruler of the Universe preserve us. If there is any good to come out of such stage-play, except to advertise counsel, we fail to comprehend it. Give us a rest.

THE TERM, "yellow journalism," has become very familiar, these days. In general, it is supposed to stand for unreliable, sensational and off-color editorial work. It is a pleasant way one editor has of calling a brother editor, a liar; and, like all other accusations, is very frequently misapplied. We know of a case in Philadelphia, which plainly illustrates this; a certain well known paper, there, almost daily calls one of its neighbors "yellow," while it is a distinct saffron itself, but possibly don't know it. It ought to be told about this.

A PENNSYLVANIAN cannot go beyond his own borders and not be twitted, taunted and sneered at for the political sins of his home government. He is asked for his great men and can scarcely name one in public life. He is requested to name some of his leading Congressmen and recollection is dumfounded. Now these things are humiliating and should be kept constantly before the public mind. We hold the humiliating position of being regarded as the weakest State in the Union politically, and the most corrupt.—Lancaster Examiner (Rep.).

THAT MR. GORMAN'S entry into the United States Senate, is guaranteed, providing he is elected by the legislature, no matter what amount of fraud may be attached to the election of members of said legislature, is a travesty on the honor attaching to a seat in our highest legislative body. The republican majority in the Senate has "skeletons" in its "closet," the exhibition of which would follow, in a contest against Gorman, and this is the reason why the title to his seat is sure. The scriptural injunction, "Let him who is without sin, cast the first stone," seems to apply here.

THE GREAT political lights of the country, irrespective of parties, are anxiously wondering whether President Roosevelt will continue his penchant for smashing records, during his occupancy of the Presidential chair. As he has always delighted in tackling public evils, too hard according to the public mind—to be conquered, it is not improbable that he will impress our long-time Solomons with the fact that the only way to right an evil custom, is to right it. True, he may, by so doing, dig his own political grave, but we are of the opinion that this is a minor consideration with him.

Our Ballot.

On first page of this issue we give place to a form of ballot which we think worthy of the attention of our law-makers at the coming session of the legislature, especially as it seems universally agreed that the present form is an absolute failure. We do not claim originality in the form, as it is largely the one now in use in the state of Michigan, minus party emblems, and the placing of the square for the (X) mark, after, instead of before, the candidate's name.

Simplicity in voting is demanded by all parties. Tricks and puzzles are not wanted. The educational test should not be applied in the form of ballot, but at time of registering a voter. Under the present law, we give a man the privilege of voting, by entering his name in the registration books, and then offer him a ballot which mystifies him. This is neither honest nor sensible.

Let us give evidence of the fact, that, in Maryland, we want to encourage, rather than discourage, the drawing out, on election day, of the sentiments of the majority, on all public questions. This can not be done by making the act of voting a science, or puzzle. The present law has amply demonstrated that it is franchised but a small number of the negroes, whom it aimed to disfranchise, while thousands of white voters, in both parties, fell victims to the scheme. Evidently, the work of the special session must be undone, and the present regular session must give us a respectable and honest ballot and election law.

Very Slow Progress.

Why has Taneytown been over a hundred years in reaching a population of less than 800? Well, there are likely many reasons; but, the chief one, since the advent of the railroad, a little over twenty-five years ago, is the fact that our citizens have followed the short-sighted policy of not encouraging manufacturing enterprises—that the plan of business has been narrow and selfish, and distinctively old fashioned.

Most of our best young men have been left to go away from home to make their living, without efforts of any consequence being made to find employment for them here; except, of course, some of them might have staid at home and worked on the farm, and many of them would eventually have been crowded out of that, with no trade or business to fall back on. Of course, being ambitious, energetic, young fellows, they left the old neighborhood, while the said old neighborhood is still "about the same, thank you."

There is no use in lamenting lost opportunities, but it does seem to us that our past misadventures might still be remembered to a good purpose. We have still time to build and grow. "Well," the old citizen says, "what sort of an enterprise shall we start, and how do we know that it will pay?" Probably the question is unanswerable, probably not. We are not going to try to answer it, except by saying, put yourself in the track of finding out about such things. How? By organizing and maintaining a representative association, combining the capitalists and best business men of the town, the object of which shall be to look after the greater interests of the town—its expansion.

We need factories, or establishments of some kind, which will employ men who will rent houses and make all kinds of business boom. Have you some small enterprises here now, which, with larger capital, could do a much larger business? Have we men here, who, had they the means, would establish a business? Are there ingenious men in other nearby towns who have inside knowledge of a trade, which, if developed, could be made pay? We must look out for such opportunities and invite them. They will never plump themselves down among us, unthought.

We are not imagining fairy stories. Hundreds of towns which started fifty years since Taneytown, are now cities. Hundreds of towns not now thought of, will be cities within fifty years. The magic word which has brought about, and will again bring about, these conditions, is enterprise—live citizens. Our own boasted progress, which we sometimes speak of so self-satisfiedly, is, after all, very "small potatoes."

Our National Disease.

In connection with legislation for the suppression of anarchy, there should be devised some limitations to the freedom of the press. That cracked-brained and vicious writers should be allowed to spread their unhealthy and untruthful logic, is decidedly beyond the lines of justifiable freedom. It is just as necessary to protect the innocent from diseased teachings, as it is to protect them from physical disease, and State Boards for the purpose of purifying the columns of newspapers and literature in general, would not doubt be fully as timely and valuable as State Boards of health.

Health of body is undoubtedly the most desirable possession, and all efforts put forth for the prevention, suppression and treatment, of disease, should meet with our best effort, personal and official. It is equally true, however, that there is a condition growing up amongst us that is properly a National disease, the effort of which is the growth of an insidious epidemic of disrespect for our National institutions, if not absolutely for all law and order, and this condition must sooner or later be met by restrictive legislation.

This influence comes from the most dangerous source—people of education—and is disseminated through the most powerful agency—the press. Not alone by the authorship of men in newspaperdom, but by their influence, is this contagion spread, for there are always vultures in waiting eager for the opportunity given them by careless editors to inject the virus of their views into the minds of the susceptible reading public. Truly, the printed page contains more violent dangers than red ink and monstrous caricatures.

To the Public.

Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I had a very severe cough and cold and feared I would get pneumonia, but after taking the second dose of this medicine I felt better, three bottles of it cured my cold and the pains in my chest disappeared entirely. I am most respectfully yours for health, RALPH S. McKINNEY, 64 Thirty-seventh St., Wheeling, W. Va. For sale by R. S. McKinney, Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

The U. S. Senate.

The Senate, of course, will meet as an organized body. Senator William Pitt Frye remains President, pro tempore, and all the committees have an organization, though none of them perhaps has full membership. The membership of the Senate committee is determined, not by the presiding officer, as in the House, but by the caucus of the parties represented in the Senate. For the past 10 years there has been a broadened even four parties represented in that body—the two great parties, Republican and Democratic, and two minor parties, Populists and Silver Republicans. Hereafter but two parties will be recognized, Republican and Democratic. The two Nevada Senators, Jones and Stewart, who were elected last winter, have returned to the Republican fold. Stewart found his way back some time ago. Jones announced his return recently. This leaves only three members of the original silver Republican Senators. It is said he will hereafter act with the Democrats but he may decline to do so without certain reservations, for he has always been a strong protectionist. However, unless he attends the Republican caucus, he will be classed with the opposition and elected to the Senate. Should he go into the Democratic caucus, Senator Harris of Kansas, whose term will expire on March 3rd next, is a candidate for re-election. The Legislature will choose his successor will be elected next year. He will go into the Democratic caucus this winter and make his fight for re-election as a straight Democrat.

Senator Harris of Kansas, whose term will expire on March 3rd next, is a candidate for re-election. The Legislature will choose his successor will be elected next year. He will go into the Democratic caucus this winter and make his fight for re-election as a straight Democrat.

Senator Turner of Washington, who calls himself a Fusionist, was elected to the Senate by a combination of Democrats, Populists and Silver Republicans.

Just what Senator Wellington will do no one knows, probably not even himself. It is understood he still claims to be a Republican in spite of his opposition to that party in the campaign last year. It is even doubtful whether he would be welcomed in the caucuses of either party, so that the probabilities are that he will attend neither, but will act independently of both parties. This course would cause him to be classed generally with the opposition to the dominant party so far as committee assignments are concerned. He is now chairman of the committee to establish the University of the United States and a member also of the following committees: Coast Defenses, Corporations organized in the District of Columbia, Public Buildings and Grounds, Industrial Expositions, Coast and Inland Survey and District of Columbia. Whether his course last year will cause him to lose any of his committee places or not, it is certain that he will not gain any committee promotion.—Ball News.

Tariff and Politics.

The proposition strongly urged just now, in certain industrial journals, that "the Tariff shall be removed from politics," is deficient in the element of reasonableness. The thing called "politics" represents, in fact, contention between different policies or lines of action upon the part of the Government. One party demands a certain policy; the other party denounces that policy and clamors for an opposite policy. There are men in this country who want Tariff Protection, and there are men who hate Tariff Protection and wish for Free Trade. No power that can be exerted can forbid these two sets of persons from striving to have their wishes fulfilled by act of Congress.

The Protectionists may all agree to take the Tariff out of politics, but if the Free-Traders resolve, as they will, to keep it in politics, it will assuredly stay in. Furthermore, suppose all hands should consent to take from politics the questions of Tariff and currency and foreign policy and the other matters upon which public opinion is divided, would that be left to discuss or to act upon? Politics would become nothing more than a wild, desperate scramble for office, and nobody but the professional politicians who want the offices would care to take the trouble to go to the polls and vote; but no good reason can be imagined why, if the Tariff be taken out of politics, all the other disputed questions should remain in.

The Tariff will be thus disposed of only when, if ever, all men are agreed about the wisdom of Protection, and no man living will witness such an agreement. In truth, it will be a dull world when all of us think alike upon any important public question.—Philadelphia "Textile Record."

Good Reading for Everybody.

In addition to its special articles by famous men and women and its series by the most popular living writers of fiction the Youth's Companion presents from week to week many regular features of great value. The editorial page discusses the public questions of the day in a spirit of impartiality, the aim being to give the reader the material for forming his own opinions. The article on the care of the health which has been published every week for many years is of the greatest value.

The departments of Current Events and Nature and Science give the important news of the world in condensed form. The children's page provides diversion for the little ones, and the anecdotes and miscellany have their share in making the paper a complete treasury of good reading. An illustrated prospectus of the new volume for 1902 will be sent to any address free.

Every new subscriber who sends $1.75 for the 1902 volume now will receive free all the issues for the remaining weeks of 1901 and the Companion calendar for 1902, lithographed in twelve colors and gold.

EMPIRE Cream Separators ARE THE BEST.

A truly "20th Century" EMPIRE catalogue may be had for the asking—it best explains why the EMPIRE Improved Cream Separators are superior to all other makes. It is then you will understand why I am selling inferior and complicated makes of Separators to the junk dealer and replacing them with our line of Improved EMPIRE machines, of which I have sold over 600.

Reid's Patent Butter Worker.

Probably there is no work that a farmer's wife has to do so onerous as that of performing the duties of butter making. It is therefore, that will sell the Reid's Patent Butter Worker, of the Spring-house. Any invention, therefore, that will lighten the labor and shorten the time that she is thus employed, is certainly worthy of consideration.

People Who Must be Amused.

It is not alone the children who appear in their helplessness to care take-ers, but also grown people whose development seems to have been arrested, and after the passage of the years they have the child's dependence and insistence in their own affairs.

A reason is generally offered in accounting for these grown-up children, that they were spoiled in early years, but the fact is—there is generally an inherent selfishness that demands all, and gives nothing, in the one who must be constantly amused.

There are mothers who never, in a sense, lead the children from the nursery, and who shut them away from the developments of self-reliance by providing successive toys and ready-made pleasures.

"What must I do next that I may have a good time?" asked a languid, spiritless girl of ten of a care-worn mother.

"Go and ask Jane to leave her sewing for awhile, and amuse you, was the reply. And yet the same girl was called from her work, and spent an hour in doing her best to brighten the spirits and awaken the interest of a mere child, whose faculties seemed already jaded.

What could be expected of the after years of a girl who must be amused constantly and yet is so often in person so earnest that even the numbers must be furnished her? Something is wrong at center with an age that must call in the caterer to make up courses for entertainment for the senses.

Better belong to the childlike class that is "pleased with a rattle, tickled with a straw," than to the numbers who are all but toward the appreciation and recognition of chance for pleasure and satisfaction so eagerly seized by the unspoiled nature.

There are children among the grown-ups, who never in all their lives, had even the "rattle" furnished them, and after all they may well be envied for their ability to find amusement notwithstanding their limitations. One needs to watch not only the little ones who find their pleasure through make-believe, making at an old cast-iron tin pan serve as a drum to the music of which they march as heroes of a hundred battles, but those brave men and women, simple souls, perhaps, in the eyes of some, but strong enough to stand alone, while sweet and sane enough to discover the glint of God's sunlight in each shadowed way, and resourceful enough to create a joy with close-at-hand material.

A blessing upon these "simple hearts," who take the world as they find it, without a murmur, and always looking for the good and the pleasant, realize essentially that which they expect. They are the conservatives of our living in the world.

During the same living season, the people who must be amused, in each reverent, appreciative, and they push themselves rudely against the personality and the peace of unselfish sojourners, and their doings and their manners, as they insistently declare their purpose to be amused, furnish of those rare and eventful days when work was suspended for the time and father and mother went with the children for an outing.

The pleasant bustle of the start, the baskets packed with dainty food, the stories faithfully told, the laughter, the fun, the abounding joy, are never forgotten.

Home should all along be a place of interest; a place to seek, not to shun; a place of freedom under law, a place where the children may bring little playmates and friends, sure that they will meet a welcome. If I could bestow on any child a gift which should stand it in stead through its whole career, though that should reach four score years, I would ask for it, the gift of humor.—The New Voice.

WOMAN AND FASHION

A Simple Traveling Coat. Very simple is the traveling coat shown in the sketch, made of rough gray cloth strapped with smooth gray cloth, which bears large pearl buttons.

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail. The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and into the sole of her shoe.

Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoes as usual and with absolutely no discomfort.

New Recipe for Soup. The old lady had a fondness for making soup. It was a passion with her. Whenever she came across a new recipe for soup she tried it. Sometimes it was pretty hard to down by her husband and son, but they never said much, as they didn't like hurt her feelings, because her mind had been a little weak. She was always trying to do something to please them when they approached it. For that reason they got away with soup sometimes that they would rather have left alone.

The old lady got hold of a new recipe one day, and when her husband and son came home they sat down to some soup they had never heard of before. The men, went at it, but they said much, as they didn't like hurt her feelings, because her mind had been a little weak. She was always trying to do something to please them when they approached it. For that reason they got away with soup sometimes that they would rather have left alone.

Fun at Home. American parents are apt to be a little too sober and grave, not to make quite sufficient provision for mirth and amusement in their children's lives. To the majority, life here in our great land means strenuous exertion, and great frugality. The effort to get on takes a good deal away from the fund of animal spirits, and we hardly estimate at its true worth the great value of a holiday.

Among the pleasantest memories of many a childhood are the recollections of those rare and eventful days when work was suspended for the time and father and mother went with the children for an outing.

There are mothers who never, in a sense, lead the children from the nursery, and who shut them away from the developments of self-reliance by providing successive toys and ready-made pleasures.

During the same living season, the people who must be amused, in each reverent, appreciative, and they push themselves rudely against the personality and the peace of unselfish sojourners, and their doings and their manners, as they insistently declare their purpose to be amused, furnish

A LIVING BAROMETER.

The Crablike Spider That Possesses a Yucatan's Weather Sharp. In Yucatan, a land of many curiosities, there is a living barometer in the form of a small spider, called "am" on account of the effect produced by its poison. As far as its own conduct goes, the insect is inoffensive and can be handled with impunity, but if anybody sneezes, or if an ant falls into fodder of horses or mules the animal that swallows it surely dies.

A Velvet Season. There are rumors that it is to be a velvet season. Certainly the velvets and the velvetines that are to be seen upon the shop counters would seem to bear this out. Vivid red velvets are to be used for trimmings, and for whole suits there are the darker shades.

Handsome Indoor Dress. This indoor dress is of Louis XV. brocade. The yoke is edged with emerald brocade, touched in with gold thread. The plaits, which start from the neck, fall in the form of a stole on each side of the front. A wattleau plait runs down the back.—Paris Herald.

British Public Loves the Weed. At the beginning of the twentieth century the British people are smoking more than twice as much tobacco as fifty years ago, says a London newspaper. There has been a great addition to the population in the interval, but in spite of this growth and the presence of thousands more of superfluous women, in a matrimonial sense, the consumption per head has practically doubled. In other words, if every woman, old and young; if every child, even infants in arms, and if every member of the Antitobacco society indulged in the solacing weed calculation would show that the amount consumed per head was now two pounds and a quarter of an ounce, whereas fifty years since it worked out at only one pound and a quarter of an ounce.

Beauty Spots. Try lemon juice for whitening the neck. Apply it with a linen cloth. After the head has been shampooed, whenever possible, give the head a sun bath.

SWEET POTATO STORAGE.

There is a Tendency to Fill Slowly and With Little Heat. Intelligent growers differ as to the best treatment of sweet potatoes during the sweating period, the difference being rather as to means than end. It is now generally believed to be desirable to get rid of a part of the water in the sweet potato soon after, if not before, it is stored.

Talk About the Ideal Editor.

You bear talk about the "ideal newspaper," says an exchange, like the flower that never withers, the bird that never alights, the land where sunlight never fades—it only exists in the imagination of the soul-er who was told the elements of the newspaper, but never discovered the elements of the newspaper, none of which he has ever divulged.

He must publish a paper cheap full of local news, rather than anything happens or not. His judicial mind must be far superior to the district judge, and give him pointers in instructing the jury, for the most part, on the equal fluency upon the silver question and Farmer Jones' Jersey calf, china painting and Poland-China dogs, with a few lines on the services of saints, foreign wars and local strikes, justification by faith and justification by type, the doctrine of election, with a little word on the doings of the last synod and the details of prize fights. The receipts of church socials and the squabble in the town court make me equally familiar to the reverend mind.

With all this he must wait upon the delinquent subscribers, discount the bills of the patent medicine take, attend to his printer on Saturday night, whether a cent has come in or not; write free puff, teach the city administrator how to write, and be content with $20 a year for printing the proceedings—when it is worth $200 never ask for any honors but only a few members to the honor of the local statesman who owes him three years' subscription—in short, be all things to all men, make no mistake in dates, take the meetings of the community and never succumb back. This is the ideal editor and his paper is a daisy. We never saw one.—Press and Ink.

Sappington-Boyle.

Frederick, Md., Nov. 20.—Miss Mary Sin Boyle, daughter of Henry Boyle, of Liberty, and grand-daughter of the late Col. John Brooke Boyle, of Westminster, was married to-day to Mr. Sidney St. John Sappington in St. Peter's Catholic church at Liberty, Frederick county. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John P. Norton. The bride wore a dress of white ermine de chine, trimmed in chiffon and applied with a veil caught up with pearls. She also wore a superb necklace of diamonds and pearls, the gift of the groom. The maid of honor, Miss Catherine Boyle, of Hagerstown, was the cousin of the bride, wore a gown of white organdy over tulle. The groomsmen were Mr. John Brooke Boyle, a brother of the bride, and the ushers were Sidney A. Brundie and James D. Boyle.

Congress to Meet Dec. 2. Washington, Nov. 18.—In the Fifty-seventh Congress, which will assemble two weeks from to-day, less than the usual number of new members will be found in the House of Representatives. This body is composed of 357 members, to five delegates, the latter representing the territories and having no vote. Hawaii is included among the Territories and has a Delegate, but Porto Rico remains outside with a Commissioner. This Commissioner has no voice in the House, but is graciously given the privilege of the floor.

In dealing with the membership of the House the Delegates are not taken into account. The 357 Representatives are divided politically into three classes, the Republicans having 187, the Democrats 152 and the Populists and Silverites 8. A quorum is composed of a majority of the entire membership. The Republican strength exceeds the combined opposition by 37, and with 18 in excess of a quorum they should have little trouble in having their party in control of the House.

Of the 357 members, 91 only were not in the last Congress, and of these five have had previous service in the House. It may, therefore, be said that only 86 new members will appear before the bar to answer the initial roll call.

The Bump of Locality. Why is it that man's bump of locality is so much more fully developed in a woman's than in a man's? In a country road and the probabilities are that he will find his way wherever he wishes to go without having to ask at nearly every farm house for directions. Instinct seems to guide him. Put a woman in the same position and she will irrefragably lose herself in ten minutes, and had to be sought for by rescuers, not hours before she is finally brought back to civilization.

Perhaps it is that the weaker sex is more nervous. Even in cities many of its members do not notice, but are closely followed to permit them to find their way about, and certainly they would not notice in the country the same thing that they notice here, but the habit that marks the intersection of two roads there.

With the sun low in the west, there are many who do not notice the points of the compass, and if they could would not know in which direction their homes lay.

When it comes to noting the details of a costume, few females fail to observe even the tiniest bit of braid or the smallest bow, but trees and houses are different and the interesting things, and so in a strange town or in the woods the fair travelers lose themselves in no time and have to be led by the hand, and then upon the path by some one with a better sense of location than they can boast.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had dropped in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few bottles of my certain Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures coughs, but when given soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by R. S. McKinney Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

He Could Walk Anywhere. There are funny incidents in the life of a photographer. A man came in the other day and looked over all the samples, and then he said, "Do you want a sitting?" I asked, "I don't see nothin' like what I want," he replied.

I told him I would indicate what he wanted that I might arrange it. "I don't know as you can," he said, "for I don't see nothin' at all like what I want."

I repeated what I had already said. He asked me to sit while he told me. "You see, it's like this," he began. "I had a girl that I loved and we were going to get married. She had her things made up, and as we were all there ready, when she was taken ill and died. And what I wanted was a picture of me sitting on her grave, weeping."

"I was touched at the honest story," I said, "and I would send a man with him to the grave and have the picture taken as he desired."

"It's some distance," he said. "It's in Ireland. I expect it 'nd cost a lot to send over your traps for what I want?" I said it would.

"I thought," he answered, "that maybe you could rig up a grave here in Taneytown, and I would just as well. It's no trouble for me to weep anywhere."

HER ATTRACTION FOR GOLD

Curious Story Told by a Scientific Man of a Little Girl in Haiti.

A critic writing of a new book the other day objected to the statement in it published in the preface, that gold is one of the few metals that is found pure. He said that the author in making this statement was certainly mistaken. Of course, the author was not mistaken, and it was a curious blunder for any one to make a statement that pure gold is found wide over the world, in very fine particles or in coarser pieces, in narrow beds of mountain streams, in fine sands at the mouths of rivers, in the sands of the seashore and even in places high up on the sides of mountains. While this statement is perfectly true, it is also a fact that most gold is found alloyed with other metals and that ore crushing, smelting and other processes are required to obtain the more valuable metal.

A story has just been told about pure gold, found in this instance in river sands, that reads like one of the super-fictions of yellow journalism. No one would give it the slightest credence if it were not told by a scientific man of unquestionable authority, for it is one of the strangest narratives that ever adorned a very dry and thoroughly scientific piece of writing.

It comes from the pen of Mr. L. Gentil Tippenhauer, who has been making a geological investigation for the government of the island of Haiti. The results of his work, with many others, have been published in a series of papers in Petermann's Mitteilungen, one of the most scientific of German publications. The following is a translation of the story as it appears at the end of Mr. Tippenhauer's papers:

"I will make mention, in conclusion, of a very peculiar phenomenon. As I was engaged in a microscopic investigation of the gold bearing river sands I observed that the thirteen-year-old daughter of my companion, Mr. L. Abouard, had any to lay the flat of her hand on the sand, and that the gold dust would adhere to it. Every time she repeated the action her palm was almost covered with the gold dust that continued to cling to it. When ever she grasped a handful of sand she would shake her hand; the sand would fall to the ground, but the flakes of gold would remain clinging to the hand.

"No other person present possessed this peculiar ability. Since then all the educated Europeans in Jacmel, including Dr. Zervas, geologist and representative of the Standard Oil Company; Mr. Roosmale Neven and Mr. Dorn, Dutchmen, owners of the gold reduction works at Paramaribo, and others, have borne witness to the fact that the young girl possesses this remarkable peculiarity. The numerous particles of iron mixed in the sand did not cling to the girl's hand.

"I must therefore come to the conclusion that there is in nature a power whose influence in attracting gold is similar to that which magnetism exerts upon iron and the related minerals. The daughter of Mr. Abouard seems to have this power."—New York Sun.

He Got a Panama. "I made up my mind before I went away," said the Cincinnati who had been down to the isthmus, "that when I got to Panama I'd have a genuine Panama hat at any cost. That was the only thing I cared to buy, and I visited the store having the largest stock and took my time about the purchase.

"I plunked down $15 for the hat and was assured by the merchant that it was one of the finest ever made. It was adorned by a dozen different people on the steamer, much admired in New York, and it was rascally coked on my ear when I arrived home.

"I hadn't yet reached my home when I met a Florida friend of mine, and after a little he said: 'When I lay myself on a new hat, I see'."

"Yes. How do you like it?" "Oh, so so. Buy it in New York?" "No, sir. I got this right where they grow—in Panama."

"I see. Believe they do sell some of our goods down there, but of course they add 50 per cent to the price?" "What do you mean?" I asked, as I felt my heart tuck my ribs.

"Oh, nothing much," he replied, with a laugh, and, running his fingers behind his hand, he turned up the palm of a Florida straw hat maker."

Athletic Schoolboys in Later Life. A member of the Yale class of '54—famous class, by the way, both physically and intellectually—has compiled a list of statistics showing that after the lapse of almost a half century the survivors number 46.29 per cent of the whole, while of the twenty-seven students who took part in the first Yale-Harvard boat race 55.55 per cent survive, a very excellent showing, considering that these former athletes must now average about the psalmist's threescore and ten. But The Sanitarian, which discusses this record, will not admit that it affords justification of the training methods of today. It says that in the earlier days college athletes had more of nature and spontaneity and less of science and an inclination. There were no hired trainers, but the boys prepared for their races in a sensible way and did not faint in their heat or go to pieces through nervous strain or cut up their eyes by hitting when beaten."—Boston Transcript.

Women and Jewels. Jewels, candy, flowers, man—that is the order of a woman's preferences. I had a girl that I loved and we were going to get married. She had her things made up, and as we were all there ready, when she was taken ill and died. And what I wanted was a picture of me sitting on her grave, weeping."

"I was touched at the honest story," I said, "and I would send a man with him to the grave and have the picture taken as he desired."

"It's some distance," he said. "It's in Ireland. I expect it 'nd cost a lot to send over your traps for what I want?" I said it would.

"I thought," he answered, "that maybe you could rig up a grave here in Taneytown, and I would just as well. It's no trouble for me to weep anywhere."

GHOST OF THE PIT

There were supposed to be ghosts on the railroad line on which McFadden and Johnny Forber worked. One night a merchandise freight westbound dashed into a gravel pit. The wreck was not a serious one as the train had kept the rails of the Y, but when it was discovered later that half a car of silk was missing from this train, and said silk was traced from Chicago to the pit and there lost sight of, talk about ghosts and other queer things was considerable.

The company gained no clew to the method in which the silk was taken, and in a month or so, except to the detectives, the thing was forgotten. Then came another wreck at the dark pit, and had wreck, and that the company lost nearly a carload of mixed merchandise. Now the ghosts or thieves got away with it was a mystery. Wagon tracks were looked for, but not found. Not a road except that of the rails led into the pit. The nearest farmhouse was a mile away from the pit. The trainmen of the wreck—those that survived the wild plunge over a misplaced switch—reported that farmers came to their assistance.

When the third wreck occurred, about 7 o'clock one evening, and the place was dark as the Chicago lights, the officials looked blankly at each other. Officers and help were ordered to the spot, but as it would take three or four hours to get there in the meantime the train and its men had to be left to their own care.

Bridge the Canyon. In the heart of the California timber belt to the mills an important engineering feat has been accomplished. A canyon on the south fork of the American river had to be traversed, and as it was 1,000 feet deep it was determined to build a bridge across the chasm.

The distance across the canyon is 2,850 feet. Between the two terminal towers the space is 2,650 feet. Two parallel cables span this immense gap, without support between the towers. On these cables runs a cable carrying a car carrying the bridge, 3,000 feet of green and therefore very light timber on each trip. The tower terminals are anchored in the solid rock, supporting the cables.
