Unused Good Principles.

Rev. Parkhurst, in voicing his disapproval of the beginning of the reform administration in New York City...

The truth involved is one which has constant application in politics, especially with reference to members of our legislative bodies.

It is a disgraceful truth that men of brains, firmness and legislative ability, are often left at home—possibly because of the exercise among their constituents of the very qualifications which would make them "no man's man" in the halls of legislation.

Truly, there is little difference between "bad principles" and "unused good principles."

On the average, does he do it? We guess, no. He comes home with a lot of experience worth nothing to anybody, a few hundred dollars ahead which he has not earned, a plausible yarn about how he tried to do good things but couldn't, talks knowingly about how things are not as they seem to be, what great things he could accomplish if sent back again—and straightaway devotes all his spare time to this latter proposition.

Two Years of Rural Delivery.

Two years of Rural Delivery in Carroll county have undoubtedly demonstrated its popularity with a large majority of citizens and patrons of the service.

While all this is true, it is equally true that the system has yet many rough edges and inequalities, both as a departmental machine and as a "Free Delivery" of mail matter to rural districts, considering like treatment and service to all.

For the first time, we believe, the plans for the reconstruction of the White House which have received most favorable consideration by the present Administration, are presented fully and clearly in an article by Mr. George Kennan, published in The Outlook.

For the first time, we believe, the plans for the reconstruction of the White House which have received most favorable consideration by the present Administration, are presented fully and clearly in an article by Mr. George Kennan, published in The Outlook.

Under the old system, the comparatively few Postmasters could readily report to, and receive instructions from the Department at Washington; but Rural Delivery has changed the entire situation...

A house to house delivery may come, eventually, but it is likely far in the future. There is also a certain amount of unreasonableness in human nature—a desire for the extreme and unnecessary—which will always be met; still, we think that before many years there will be but a few isolated cases of dissatisfaction, and this condition will materialize more rapidly as the local Department "red lines" among distance inspection relaxes, giving to local needs decidedly more attention and more speedy compliance than has heretofore been the rule.

A Peerless Ring Defender.

As a month-piece and defender of political ringism, the Philadelphia Inquirer stands without a peer.

It is no longer a doubtful fact that Philadelphia stands today deeper in the mire of political corruption than even New York, under Tammany.

The following picture of the present situation in Philadelphia, is taken from the Lancaster Examiner (Rep.) and is followed in that paper by a detailed confirmation of each charge:

Under the iron rule of this machine no man can hope to be a successful candidate for a Republican nomination unless he is aided by a popular revolution; no citizen can get out from all the tributes, either in public life or in private, unless he has first been duly tolled for political purposes; no merchant can hope to get fair share of the business of the public institutions; no contractor can hope to be a successful bidder for public work unless he has or agrees to pay tribute to the owners of the machine.

There was never a gerrymander which did not go glimmering when it was subjected to a practical test. The Democrats announced after the session of 1900 that they now had two certain Democratic and one Republican district.

Remarkable Cure of Group A Little Boy's Life Saved. I have a few words to say regarding Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Farmers and Prosperity. Though some of the farmers deny the assertion, yet the facts are that the tillers of the soil have profited in a larger degree by the general prosperity of the country than any other class.

the upper part of the building; and Colonel Binham, Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds, told President McKinley that if more than two thousand persons were invited to a single White House reception, the President—must assume responsibility for any accident that might occur.

For family and social purposes, the White House is also quite inadequate. Something must be done. Shall it be the enlargement of the White House, the erection of a distinct executive building, or the building of a residence for the President, the White House to be fitted up for official purposes solely?

Futility of the Gerrymander. Again comes the announcement that the Democrats are about to gerrymander the State and city in an effort to secure a greater Democratic representation in the legislative departments of the nation, State and city.

Under the iron rule of this machine no man can hope to be a successful candidate for a Republican nomination unless he is aided by a popular revolution; no citizen can get out from all the tributes, either in public life or in private, unless he has first been duly tolled for political purposes; no merchant can hope to get fair share of the business of the public institutions; no contractor can hope to be a successful bidder for public work unless he has or agrees to pay tribute to the owners of the machine.

CHOICE MISCELLANY

A Pignal Party. The Philadelphia Record relates: "A pignal party was given in his studio the other night by an artist from the west. The arriving guests were very curious to know what on earth this sort of a party is, and they found it to be one whereat the tails of pigs are the main dish of the supper. As necessities were served, of course, sauerkraut, sausages, cheese and pretzels, but the delicious pignals lorded it easily over their neighbors. They were fried, and each guest would be could eat a dozen without difficulty. 'In St. Louis,' the artist said, 'pignals are as common an article of food as pigs' feet or beefsteak. Every butcher has them on sale, and they cost about 20 cents a dozen. Here in the east they seem to be unknown. I had a great deal of trouble to get these that you are eating tonight and had to order them two weeks in advance.' Several men got the recipe for their cooking and said they would leave standing orders for pignals with their butchers."

SOME LEGAL FREAKS

CURIOUS TWISTS THAT OBTAIN IN ENGLISH CRIMINAL LAW. A Person May Be Guilty of Perjury Though He Swears to the Truth—No Such Offense as Trespass—Points About Forgery. In no branch of the law as it is dispensed in Great Britain are such curious points to be found or a greater number of anomalies to be met with than in the criminal branch thereof. It may be news to some people, for instance, to know that there are a number of things in existence which cannot be stolen, such as a corpse, animals ferre nature—i. e., animals wild in a state of nature (with certain exceptions created by statute)—soil of the earth, etc. To attempt to steal nothing would appear on the face of it to be an impossibility, much less a crime, but a man indicted for attempting to pick a lady's pocket which was subsequently found to be empty was found guilty of an "attempt to commit theft," though, in fact, there was nothing in the pocket to steal. Any one lucky enough to pick up a sovereign lying in the road will be entitled to hear that, if at the time of finding it he had no reasonable means of discovering the owner of it, and also if he did not at the same time conceive the idea of appropriating it to himself, he will not be guilty of stealing if he keeps his lucky find, even if the rightful owner discovers and claims it. Most people walking in the country must have noticed on numerous occasions boards or placards posted up in woods, fields, etc., notifying in large letters that "trespassers will be prosecuted," but few are aware that such notices are utterly useless and no one need feel the least alarm thereat, there being no such offense known in criminal law as such a trespass, and a person could never be prosecuted for such an offense. They are, in fact, in the words of that eminent jurist, Sir Fredrick Pollock, in his well known work, "Pollock on Torts," a "wooden falsehood." It is a common fallacy to imagine that the crime of forgery consists in signing another's name, though in fact committing forgery consists in making and uttering any false instrument in writing with attempt to defraud; thus it may be a forgery to omit a word from a document, and it will be a matter of considerable surprise to many to learn that it is possible for a person to forge his or her own name. A person, however, who fraudulently inserts another's name on a picture, thereby selling it as the work of some other artist, is not guilty of forgery, as a picture is not an "instrument in writing." The crime of forgery, as we do not quite "fit in" with the generally accepted idea, which is that if a person, after being sworn on oath to speak the truth, swears falsely, he is guilty of such offense. This is correct with the important qualification that the fact the witness has sworn to must be material to the case. Thus, if a witness on being duly sworn gave a false address on being asked where he lived, this, though untrue, would not amount to perjury, as the place where the witness lives would be quite immaterial. That a person may be guilty of perjury though speaking the truth may seem a curious anomaly, but such nevertheless is the fact, as the test of perjury is not whether a person is speaking what he believes to be the truth; so, if a witness, for instance, on being asked, "What colored was the prisoner wearing when you met him?" re-

PHOTOGRAPHY

The "Study of Growing Crystals by Instantaneous Photomicrography" is the subject of a paper contributed by T. W. Richards and E. L. Archibald to the proceedings of the American Academy of Science and digested in Science Abstracts. Frequent photomicrographs of crystals of various substances were taken during their birth and growth, an enlargement of 4,000 diameters being obtained. The salts examined—potassium iodide, barium chloride, copper sulphate, etc.—were crystallized from aqueous solution, and both polarized and ordinary light were employed. No properly focused images on any of the plates were obtained, the growth of the crystals is much more rapid in the first than in the later stages, the cube of the diameter being very approximately proportional to the time. The conclusion is arrived at that, whatever the theoretical reasons, there may be for believing that crystals always develop from a transitory liquid phase, the present experimental evidence is inadequate to prove that the globules of such a phase attain a size visible in the microscope, except in the case of substances having melting points not far from the temperature of crystallization. "Some time ago my daughter caught a severe cold. She complained of pains in her chest and had a bad cough. I gave her Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which she took according to directions and in two days she was well and able to go to school. I have used this remedy in my family for the past seven years and have never known it to fail," says James Prendergast, merchant, Annato Bay, Jamaica, West India Islands. The pains in the chest indicated a cold, and the cough, a pneumonia, which in this instance was undoubtedly warded off by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It counteracts any tendency of a cold toward pneumonia. Sold by R. S. McKinney, Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

A BURSTING BOILER.

How It Looks When a Locomotive is Blown Up. "I am one of the very few persons who ever saw a locomotive blown up," remarked an old railroad man to a reporter the other day. "Generally the men who witness the explosion of a steam engine are so dead when the smoke has cleared away that they are never able to give an account of the disaster. "Like many other accidents, the one I saw was the result of carelessness—low water in the boiler—for the engine had just come from the shops and was in complete repair. It was on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad in West Virginia a number of years ago. I was on a locomotive some distance behind the one which exploded and was looking ahead out of the cab window, so that the ill fated engine was immediately before my eyes. Suddenly I saw the machine rise in the air. It seemed to me to be about as high as the telegraph poles beside the track, which, as you doubtless know, are not so high as telegraph poles in the city. Then came a cloud of dense black smoke and dust, which hid the engine from view, and almost simultaneously I heard the roar of the explosion. "Both the engineer and the fireman were killed, and the locomotive was fit for nothing much but the scrap heap when it fell to the ground. The crown sheet over the firebox had blown out. "The strange thing about the explosion was that no white steam was seen. You know that perfectly dry steam is invisible, being like the air, and before it had time to condense it was probably smothered by the cloud of smoke and dust raised by the bursting of the boiler."—Baltimore Sun.

BETWEEN THE ACTS.

Forrest Robinson has declined an offer to go into vaudeville playing in a new farce just completed. "Garrett O'Magh" is the title of the successful comedy written by Augustus Pitou for Comedy Play. Pitou is writing a play for Miss Irene Vanburgh, who made a hit with John Hare in "The Gay Lord Quex." Virginia Harned, who is now playing in "Alice of Old Vincennes," was the original Trilby in this country a decade ago. Charles Frohman will make a star out of Mrs. Clara Bloodgood, the young society woman whose advance on the stage has been rapid. Stanislaus Stange has signed a contract with Francis Wilson for a comic opera for use next season, the score to be written by Julian Edwards. Mr. Willard expects shortly to receive a new play by Stephen Phillips, entitled "David," which he proposes to produce in London next autumn. It is all well enough to lay up something for a rainy day, but we should not go through life thinking that the whole future is going to be stormy.—National Magazine.

BETTER THAN ALL THE DOCTORS IN A COUNTY.

A PENNSYLVANIA WOMAN HAS A WONDERFUL EXPERIENCE. GOOD HEALTH SECURED AT LITTLE COST. Mr. Charles H. Steach, of McConnellsbury, Pa., has written an account of the case of his wife, who was suffering from complaints peculiar to women. He says: "I bought a bottle of YAGER'S SASSAPARILLA WITH CERYL from your agent, J. T. Thompson, in this place, for my wife. She commenced taking it accordingly, and I can truthfully say that she has derived more benefit from one bottle of YAGER'S SASSAPARILLA WITH CERYL than she has from all the medicine taken from the different doctors. She is quite a different woman; better in spirits, more cheerful, good appetite. In fact, she is better in every way." The cause of Mrs. Steach's complaint was impurity of blood. The same cause is giving thousands of people days of suffering and nights of little sleep. In some it takes the form of rheumatism, neuralgia, indigestion, nervousness. In others, loss of flesh, a tired, lanky feeling, no aim in life are the symptoms. The cause is the same in each case. The cure is the same in all—YAGER'S SASSAPARILLA WITH CERYL. It purifies the blood, soothes the nerves, aids sound, healthy sleep to the body. Sold by druggists everywhere, Geo. A. Bette, Wholesale by Gilbert Bros. & Co., Baltimore, Md.

REPAIRING Neatly Done

Never thought of such a sign for a medicine did you? Well, it's a good sign for Scott's Emulsion. The body has to be repaired like other things and Scott's Emulsion is the medicine that does it. These poor bodies wear out from worry, from over-work, from disease. They get thin and weak. Some of the new ones are not well made—and all of the old ones are racked from long usage. Scott's Emulsion fixes all kinds. It does the work both inside and out. It makes soft bones hard, thin blood red, weak lungs strong, hollow places full. Only the best materials are used in the patching and the patches don't show through the new glow of health. No one has to wait his turn. You can do it yourself—and the bottle.

PREPARED CHALK.

How to Prepare an Effective and Economical Benetrice. Practically all the tooth powders of commerce have the same base—prepared chalk. This is mixed with some saponaceous compound, flavored a little, put up in an attractive bottle or jar and, behold, a tooth powder costing from 15 to 50 cents per vessel, according to the place you buy it and the celebrity of the name on the label. For 15 cents enough tooth powder to last a family a year can be put together. Buy the chalk in bulk and with it some ground castile soap, which all druggists sell. Put them together in the proportion of one-eighth soap to seven-eighths chalk, mix well and fill any and all the empty tooth powder jars or bottles that you may have around. If flavoring is liked, it is easy to add a little wintergreen or peppermint. So with the various antiseptic and disinfecting solutions that, attractively bottled and judiciously advertised, coax pennies unnecessarily out of our purses. There is no better cleanser and general sweetener than a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda. Fill a pint or a quart bottle, if you want to, with clear water and add bicarbonate of soda got from the druggist, not the grocer, until the liquid will take up no more. Keep this on your toilet shelf and use it as a mouth wash, etc. When it comes to an antiseptic fluid, any surgeon will tell you that there is practically nothing in materia medica better than salt and water. It is always at hand and is safe and effectual.—New York Post.

Names For Farms.

"We wish that every farm in Maine would be named," says the Lewiston Journal. "This is not a mere matter of sentiment, by any means, but it is strictly business. "The man whose farm is known by some name is certain to take a greater interest in its products and to conduct all of his operations on a better plan. On every place there is certain to be some peculiarity that will suggest a name. "A spring of pure water, a grove of oak or maple trees or something else of a similar nature will give it a local flavor. Then paint its name on the end of the barn facing the road. Let it be where every passerby can see it. Your farm will then soon become known far and wide and will add you in a thousand ways. "Besides, how much more dignified it is to be spoken of as the proprietor of Oak Grove farm than to be alluded to as Jim Jones. By all means name your farms, and it will make you all better farmers."—A. B. B.

CHARLEY, A BARGAIN.

"Charley," said the affectionate wife, "didn't you tell me those blue chips cost a dollar apiece?" "Yes," replied the husband, "but you didn't know they were worth more than a dollar apiece." "Well, here's your whole box full of all yours that I bought at the bargain counter for seventy-five cents."—Harlem Life.
