Stauffer Family Reunion.

We clip the following from last week's Hanover Record:
"Jacob E. Stauffer, of Lancaster ounty, was in Hanover yesterday for the purpose of arousing interest in the world's reunion of the Stauffers, which it is proposed to hold at Lan-caster in 1909. For the past seven years efforts have been under way looking to the assembling of Stauffers from all over the world. It is pre-dicted that 25,000 Stauffers will participate in the reunion. When the Stauffers have been located in the various countries of the earth, a directory will be compiled.

While the reunion is to be known under the name of a Stauffer reunion, it is desired that all branches of the family, whose names have been changed to Stover, Stofer, Stouffer, and similarly, attend this gathering, and for this purpose the above men-tioned Mr. Stauffer desires the head of every family of that name to send him a list of the names, etc., of all of their particular tribe, back as many generations as possible, and these will e tabulated and arranged in form for printing in a general directory. His address is Jacob E. Stauffer, New Danville P. O., Lancaster county, Pa."

The Open Air Consumption Cure.

As there is considerable interest manifested in the efforts being made at the Mt. Alto Sanitarium, Pa., for this week.

"Professor Oran Steinberger, an | 50 feet. artist of considerable note and formerly an instructor in Wittenberg College, has made a practical test of an original consumption cure, which he has applied to himself with very satisfactory results, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. Having some indication of lung trouble, his physicians ordered a change of climate, and the professor went to Arkansas, but with out receiving permanent benefit. Re turning to his home, he worked during the week and exercised for his health on Sundays. Finally he took to climbing trees, and found the effect very beneficial. He also made the interesting discovery that the air in the tree tops was much purer and clearer than on the ground, and he thereupon determined to live in the tree tops altogether. "For this purpose he selected a big white oak tree on the farm of Duncan McDonald, who lives nine miles north of Springfield, on the Urbana pike. On the three principal branches he built a platform that is large enough to accommodate twenty people, and on a part of that constructed a yery comfortable dwelling. There he lives and works and declares he was never so well in his life. He has some visi-tors, but he finds his chief delight in the study of nature and makes friends of every living thing. Professor Steinberger asserts that he will dwell in Camp aloft, as he calls it, permanently, and is recommending the tree top cure for consumption as a sure specific, the American is simply emphasizing the claims of this state for everything worth having, as it usually does.

First quality young men, in the language of the market reporter, are "scarce and in demand." Brains, character, energy and steadfastness, are marketable commodities, always worth the highest price, not only to those who deal commercially, but, in a higher sense, to society and to the that somewhat indefinable company which is called our best citizenship.

DEMOCRATIC. Governor Smith. The representatives of the Democratic party of Maryland, in state convention assembled, heartily commend the administration of Gov. John Walter Smith.

He has diligently and faithfully discharged the many and varied duties of his office and fully made good his assurances to the people that under his administration as Governor the laws would be vigorously enforced, the public revenues carefully guarded and peace and good order resolutely maintained.

The efficient and successful management of the affairs of the state in Democratic hands for the last four years justly entities us to claim a continuation of the confidence and support of the people.

Smith.

The Democratic party obtained power in Maryland four years ago under false pretenses, by promises it has not kept, with purposes it did not dare avow.

It elected a Governor who called an extraordinary session of the Legislature for purety partisan advantage, against the protest of an enlightened public opinion and at great needless public expense.

As a part of this conspiracy he aided the same leaders in procuring a useless and untrustworthy state census—another false pretenses, by partisan advantage, against the protest of an enlightened public opinion and at great needless public expense.

Negro Vote.

The good government which we are now enjoying under Democratic administration cannot possibly be made better by the Republican party; but, on the contrary dependent for its existence as that party in this state is upon its solid negro vote, it is manifest that the defeat of our ticket at the coming election will bring back upon us the evils and dangers from which our triumph in 1899 so fortunately delivered us.

So far as good looks is concerned, the Democratic candidate for Governor is already elected. There is an old saying, however, that "handsome is as handsome does," which gives the Democratic of the Union to recognize that the welfare of the Union to recognize that the welfare of all the people largely depends upon the improvement of public highways, created facilities for cheap transportation. That policy resulted in greatly increasing our prosperity and gave to the city of Baltimore an opportunity to share in the commerce of the country. The time has arrived when we must return, to some extent, to the former policy of improving the highways. Good roads will cheapen the cost of the transportation of Maryland's products and will add

The Primary Election law, passed by a Democratic Legislature and signed by a Democratic Governor, has produced good results, and we are of opinion that its provisions, with such modifications as local circumstances may demand, should be extended to the whole state.

Sewerage System. The Democratic party has shown by example that public improvements in the state and in the city of Baltimore can be made with economy and without suspicion or taint of jobbery. We propose to continue that policy, so that Baltimore city shall have the opportunity to construct its system of sewerage and the improvement of its streets under such restrictions as will insure strict economy by business methods absolutely divorced from party advantage.

We favor co-operation by the state and Baltimore city in securing for the city a sewerage system, constructed under the supervision of a commission cnosen without regard to politics and comprising men recognized by public opinion as entitled to the respect and confidence of the community.

Oysters and Fish. The products of the Chesapeake bay and its tributaries have furnished remunerative employment for thousands of our citizens. Their right, their opportunity, to pursue their vorations must be guaranteed, and it is alike the duty and the interest of the state to foster and increase the supply of the natural products of our greatinland sea.

The oyster and crab industries of Maryland are of paramount importance and shall be protected by wise and liberal legislation. We condemn the Democratic oyster law of 1990, which has fastened upon the tax-payers an army of useless officials. The oyster beds and bars in many sections of the state are greatly depleted and need replenishing, and, therefore, we favor the planting of oyster shells on the bottoms of our rivers and bay at public expense under such business supervision as to increase the oyster supply, add to the earnings of labor and bring larger revenues to the treasury of the state.

Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 27-Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle. Topic .- An evening with Japanese mis-

The prominence of Japan among the nations of the world, its rapid progress | the seven ages of man: in modern civilization and the successful propagation of Christianity in the empire all go to make this subject an unusually interesting one. Every missionary committee should arrange a programme of special attractiveness

Japan is composed of a number of Islands which stretch in a crescent shape along the northeastern coast of Asia from Kamchatka to Korea. Their area is about 160,000 square miles. In location and climate the islands of Japan resemble Great Britain. The climate is temperate, the soil fertile, the air healthful and food abundant. Flowers and fruits abound, and the skies are beautiful and clear.

The Japanese people are kindly impressible, quick to observe and imitate, ready to adopt whatever may seem to promote their present good, imaginative, fond of changes, yet withal loyal to their government and traditions. The people are divided into two general classes-the samurai, including the military and literary classes, and the hei-min, or agriculturists, merchants and artisans. The Japanese are intellectually of a high order, but of a low moral standard. Truth, purity, temperance, unselfish devotion, self denial, are all sadly wanting, which demonstrates their need of the gospel of Christ. Shintoism, Buddhism and Confucianism are the principal religions of Catholic missionaries under Francis Xavier went to Japan in 1549. By making the transition to papal Christianity very easy, merely the substitution of one superstition for another, many converts were soon won. But the political intrigues of the Jesuits soon aroused opposition, the Catholics were exterminated, Christianity and foreigners forbidden an entrance into Japan and the island empire became shut off from the world until won over to a different policy by our own Commodore Perry in 1854.

The Christian church soon took advantage of the opening of the Japanese ports. Missionaries were at once sent in, and after years of faithful labor results were produced. The church of Japan was born in prayer. In January, 1872, the English speaking residents of all denominations united in observing the week of prayer. The results were tremendous. Past suspicion and prejudice passed away and for the first time the Japanese were on their knees in a Christian prayer meeting, pleading to God for His spirit. From that time on the work has been successful. In 1877 a number of missionary agencies combined their efforts. There are now seven denominations in this union, which is called "the church of Christ in Japan." They include the Reformed and Presbyterian denominations of the United States, and this union is one of the strongest bodies of Christians in the empire.

Recent events have made Christian ty more powerful than ever in Japan. The empire has come closer to the great Christian nations of England and the United States. Many Japanese students are being educated in these countries. Unlike China and India, in Japan the educated and cultured classes have been favorably disposed to the gospel. A great revival has within recent years been in progress in the island and thousands have been won for Christ. Let us earnestly pray for a continuance of this revival spirit until the entire land shall have become Immanuel's land. May the Sun of Righteousness come indeed to the empire of the Rising Sun and with healing in His wings.

Cement Posts Supplant Wood.

One of the unique factories in this country is located in Janesville, Wis. In fact, it is the only institution of the kind in the country, and possibly n the world. Here cement fence posts are made in a plant, the capacity of which is 5000 post each day, with a demand for the product which in the near future will necessitate adding to its producing power. The Janesyille Fence Post Company was organized last year, the Hayes brothers of Janesville, weliknown railroad contractors, being the principal stockholders and promoters. A location was secured near the city adjacent to a sand hill, and the work of manufacturing was begun. The posts are made from Portland cement and sand, and it is claimed they will FOR THE CHILDREN last foreyer, hardening with age and being adaptable for every purpose to which cedar and steel posts are put The product of the factory is limited to fence and mile posts of different shapes and sizes, but the plan is to

NEGLECTED ORCHARDS.

Putting an Unthrifty Old Orchard Upon a Paying Basis. Neglected orchards are common everywhere. This is especially true of the "home orchard." Many of these orchards, if they bear at all, have become soil exhausted and produce only inferior fruit, and even that only in occasional seasons. Such orchards are the homes of worms and disease and serve to restock the more carefully sprayed and tilled orchards of neighbors with these pests. Marketable fruit from them is almost wholly unknown. They are an eyesore and unprofitable. An orchard of this kind has recently been made the subject of Now, read this carefully. Every an investigation by Professor F. W. year since we have been giving away Card of the Rhode Island station. The purpose of this investigation was to ascertain whether with the ordinary means within the reach of farmers, such as pruning, tillage, spraying and fertilizing, such an orchard could be rejuvenated and put on a paying basis. The orchard selected for the experiment was a home orchard of less than an acre in extent. It had been planted for about twenty-five years. The trees had made but little growth, and the trunks were covered with moss. The first season the trees were pruned

The neglect of years cannot be remedied in a single

> The treatment the second season was very similar to that of the first. To prevent apple scab the trees were sprayed with bordeaux mixture before the buds opened and again after the blossoms fell. The cover crop of the first year was peas and oats. As these made only a small growth the nitrogen was continued in the commercial fertilizer applied, but instead of 1,000 pounds of fertilizer only half this amount was used. Good tillage was continued. The growth of the trees the second season was not large, yet it was thrifty and of healthy appearance, and some good fruit was obtained, the Baldwin and russet trees being well loaded. The following season, with only a part of the trees bearing, about $80 worth of fine fruit was obtained. Many of the trees in the orchard were early sorts. Of the fruit sold $50 worth came from the russet and greening

A considerable number of products, locally distinct and different in the degree of dryness of the curd, are made in this way. The general process of manufacture is to take sour buttermilk or skimmed milk which has coagulated, heat it gently from 85 to 125 degrees F., according to circumstances, and drain off the whey through a cloth strainer. Then reduce the texture of the resulting curd by kneading with the hands or a pestle. Salt is added, and the product is improved by the addition of a small quantity of cream or butter. Some persons consider it an improvement to season by the use of one of the more common spices, as nutmeg, caraway, etc. It is largely made only for domestic consumption, but in most cities and villages, especially during the summer months, there is a considerable demand for fresh cheese of this sort, and its manufacture is often a source of reve-Bitters. A Remarkable Record.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been in use for over thirty years, during which time many millions bottles have been sold and used. It has long been the standard and main reliance in the treatment of croup in thousands of homes, yet during all this time no case has ever been reported to the manufacturers in which it failed to effect a cure. When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even as soon as the croupy cough appears, it will preyent the attack. It is pleasant to take, many children like it. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by R. S. McKinney, Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

HANGING THE PUMPKIN.

Painting That Raised a Storm In the Paris Salon. It is the duty of Louis Pretet, official picture hanger of the Societe des Artistes Français, to distribute the canvases which annually comprise the Paris salon throughout the rooms of the Palais des Beaux Arts. The jurors are then summoned to examine his work and commend or condemn, as | make the silage filling every year for they see fit. The artists are at liberty to appeal to the jurors, and an influential artist can make trouble for the picture hanger. The Paris correspondent of the New York Tribune tells this story of Vollon, one of the most famous living painters of still life:

Vollon had painted what he considered as his masterpiece, a luxurious pumpkin, orange in color and heroic in size, such as one sees at an agricultural show. The jurors did not approve Pretet's choice of a place for it A second choice also was found for it and condemned. and the rough, loose bark scraped off

By this time the legend of the pumpkin was being repeated in all the studios of Paris, and the leading artists began to look in at the salon to make sure that their exhibits were not being injured by an unfortunate contrast. Bouguereau nearly fainted with horror on seeing the pumpkin not far from his pictures.

"Take it away at once!" he commanded. "It kills my little pink and white nymphs. So the pumpkin was removed. But here Cormon objected. "It shall not stay in the same room with my pictures!" he declared. "It makes my lions and bears and tigers look like tame cats. Tattegrain was the next to cry out. 'Not near me! What becomes of the martial spirit of my canvases and what is the use of exhibiting starving garrisons with that large pumpkin next So the unfortunate painting was shifted about till it had passed through fifteen rooms, and not a member of the Societe des Artistes Français would tolerate its presence. Finally Pretet placed the pumpkin in the entrance hall, officially termed "Salle d'Honneur" and popularly nicknamed the Chamber of Horrors. Vollon has been his mortal enemy ever since. Fog Plant's Virtues.

Fog fruit is the old name of a remarkable plant that is being distributed throughout the west through the enthusiastic agency of the Arizona experiment station. This plant may have taken its name from the fact that it can exist with the mimimum amount of moisture. In any event this characteristic constitutes its chief value. It is not advocated as a forage plant, as an imals do not like it, but its drought resisting qualities and endurance render it of exceptional value in the semiarid western states as a soil binder. Colonel John Jacob Astor's $5,000,000 hotel, the St. Regis, on Fifth avenue, New York, which it is planned to open next Thanksgiving day, will be nineteen stories high, with a three story basement. Apparently no expense is being spared in the construction of the St. Regis. The machinery installed in the basement will, it is said, cost $750,-000 and the plumbing $250,000. A million dollars' worth of furniture and brica-brac, $150,000 for the decorations of a Roman court and $50,000 for the furnishings of what will be known as "the royal suit" are some of the other items that go toward making up the $5,000,000. Pennies For the Heathen. Madge, aged seven, had a list of questions and answers given her by her Sunday school teacher to learn, the first of which was, "What is a missionary?" and the answer, "One sent to teach the heathen." The list was duly learned, and she went to Sunday school full of importance that she had her lesson perfect. On her return she was asked if she had remembered the answers, and she replied: "Yes, mamma, I only missed the first, and in that I only made a mistake of a penny. SUCCESS WITH THE BILO.

Silage Largely Replaces High Priced Mill Feeds. A Tennessee farmer says in an exchange: I would not even feed five cows for home use without a silo. If I had only a two years' lease on my farm I would build a silo at my own expense rather than feed for two winters on My silos are round stave structures costing less than $1.50 per ton of contents. They have been in constant use eight years and have paid the cost each year in the saving of feed and increased quantity of milk, and they are seemingly good for eight years' steady, efficient use. I grow the crops and less than a dollar per ton. A silage of peas and corn mixed almost entirely does away with the necessity for the purchase of high priced mill feeds. So there is a chance for the thinking dairyman making money and saving money if he will only do so by growing his own feeds all at home. With us now bran is $20 per ton and not good at that, and last winter it sold at $24. Cotton seed meal we used to buy at $9 per ton. The oil mill trust put it up to $30 last winter. No dairyman can afford these prices now, nor does he have to do so when he can make good silage containing almost a perfectly balanced ration of the protein and carbonaceous elements for the best milk production at $1 per ton. So well am I satisfied with the economy of the silo for the dairy that if I had to build every year a receptacle to contain the silage and tear it down to get at the contents, like opening an oyster can, I would certainly do so. My silage this year is excellent, a very rich mixture of corn and peas. My cows are doing well. I do not need either bran or oil meal, and it certainly makes me feel independent.

Put It Up Green. I see a great deal of complaint about not getting to put up silage at the proper stage, waiting for the big steam rig that had so many engagements ahead and the frost getting there first. I have a good horse power and a cutter, and the very day that my crop is ready the work begins. It is slow, but sure, and I always get the very best of silage by getting it in at just the right stage. This year, at the finish of Saturday morning, the harvester was running so nicely that I cut down more than I could haul and cut up that day. Five or six wagon loads had to lie cut over Sunday, a bright, sunny day. I put that in the silo to finish filling on Monday, using quite a quantity of water to > foot or two of white, moldy silage. So I will be careful hereafter not to cut too far ahead. My corn, the Albemarle Prolific, was too hard for table use, had two to four ears to the stalk. The peas, the Whippoorwill, were hanging full of long, ripe and half ripe pods. The harvester got them all up clean, tying in nice bundles, so that all went to the cutter and into the silo together and well mixed. The result is an excellent and

When I walked into Mudbury one stormy December night I had almost touched bottom. I was soaked to the skin. My limbs were heavy, stiff from exposure and tired from exertion.

What was I doing at Mudbury? Looking for an engagement, of course. Business had been awfully bad, and misfortune had followed me in whatsoever direction I turned. I was hard hit, I can tell you. When I pushed open the door of the Grapes I was wrapped about with a wet blanket in a double sense.

I was in the bar parlor lingering over a cup of tea-the small quantity of food, which was all my purse would allow Everybody should have a supply of McKellip's Cholera and Diarrhoea Syrup. "Oh, managers always shake their heads and frown at the great unknown," I replied, with a fine assumption of carelessness, immediately adding in a coaxing voice, "You'll take these papers in to Mr. Vincent, like a good fellow?" I gained my point, but,

"He won't listen to nothin', and he won't look at nothin'," was the reply. "He's like the Irishman's pig-yer can neither drive him, nor lead him, nor make him stand still. MISTAKEN ESTIMATES.

A Fable With a Moral to Those Who Are Wise. Once upon a time there was a real true gentleman of a humble and retiring disposition who always tried to get along with as little friction as possible and who weighed 100 pounds and was three inches below the normal height. One day he went to a prize fight, and when it was finished on his way home he stopped and bought a new set of golf clubs, instruments that he had never dallied with before, and when he marched home he said to his wife: "I've turned over a new leaf. After this I play golf, while you stay at home and take care of the baby. After this I go to my club regularly and toy with the chips, to learn to carom on the red, or sit in the front row and watch the antics of the chorus, or anything I please, while as for you-you can mourn for me if you see fit and shed appropriate tears for the lamb of the staff at Fort Sumter, has just taken up flock that has gone astray. A Woman's Complexion It is rank foolishness to attempt to remove sallowness or greasiness of the skin by the use of cosmetics, or "local" treatment, as advocated by the "beauty doctors." The only safe and sure way that a woman can in prove her complexion is by purifying and enriching the blood, which can only be accomplished by keeping the liver healthy and active. The liver is the seat of disease and blood pollu-tion. Green's August Flower acts directly on the liver, cleanses and enriches the blood, purifies the com lexion. It also cures constipation piliousness, nervousness, and induces refreshing sleep. A single bottle of August Flower has been known to cure the most pronounced and distressing cases of dyspepsia and indi-gestion. New trial size bottle, 25 cents; regular size, 75 cents. At all
