COUNTING THE BALLOTS. Fears Expressed that the Counting will Continue beyond Election Night. Election law and ballot makers are beginning to realize that human endurance has its limitations, and that e counting of the ballots will not be finished as promptly as under the old law. It must be remembered that the judges who receive the ballots will also do the counting. In other words, the most important part of an election—counting the result—follows the ten hours of most trying and arduous work of election day, and finds the officials mentally exhausted and not in a fit condition for entering upon a hard night's work. dence that the responsibility for an improperly conceived ballot will be blamed on the judges of election, unless the result in large statement of the start, death every density of the start ev less the result in each voting district is quickly announced to the interested waiting ones. "It is reported to the Secretary of state here that the ballots in the state here that the ballots in the counties are so large this year that the ordinary ballot boxes will be hardly sufficient to contain them if the full vote is polled, as the Supervisors expect. The only remedy to be suggested is that extra ballot boxes be provided. This difficulty is one easily overcome. But there is a much more difficult problem context in the full vote is polled, as the Supervisors expect. The only remedy to be suggested is that extra ballot boxes be provided. This difficulty is one easily overcome. But there is a much more difficult problem context in the report of the synod; Rev. M. D. Gaver, of Williamsport, was elected president of the synod; Rev. But there is a much more difficult problem confronting the Judges of Election, and that is the counting of the ballots on the night of election. It is thought that in some of the counties it will be impossible to make the returns on election sible to make the returns on election night and that the judges will have to continue at their work the next day. That it is considered would be a deplorable finale of the election. The people want to know the result promptly and no dallying with returns. There is too much at stake for precinct of the State. Their first and imperative duty is to count the ballots and make their returns. If they are incapable of doing the work the responsibility will rest on them and on the Supervisors, the appointing power.

In every county and in Baltimore city also the count should be made quickly, so as to relieve the tension and provide against post-election scandals. It would never do to have any returns held back. Suspicion would attach at once to any such dereliction of duty. The task may be dereliction of duty. The task may be dereliction of duty. The task may be on a farm near Urbana, Frederick formerly pastor of St. Paul's church, hard, but all engaged in the work and paid to do the duty should be held to accountability by their superiors. The polls close early enough to count was discovered soon after it started was discovered soon after it started that Mr. Moot should be suspended from ministerial daties until he has a sound the live stock and some machineven the long and complicated ballots and the live stock and some machinin yogue before midnight in every precinct of the State, if the men ap-pointed to do the work are capable and willing. As the judges and clerks are bipartisan and equally responsible to the parties they represent they should be schooled to the idea that the two leading parties equally expect and require that there shall be no delay in quickly ascertaining results and forwarding the returns."

Speculation on the Result.

No matter what candidates and ets, and very few bets have been made, as compared with previous elections.

No one can accurately determine the course of the independent vote this year. A portion of it is undoubtedly going for the Republican state ticket and legislative candidates, but, whether it will be cast as solidly for the Republicans as in 1895, is not by any means sure. Again, no one can intelligently forecast the effect of the rejected ballots on the result, and it is generally admitted that this will be sight it would appear that the Demo-crats will gain from this source, but, this has not been a pronounced result in previous elections, in which the same ballot was used, though it is true that never before this year has the ballot been so difficult for illiterates to mark; besides, there are many democratic illiterates, especially among the foreign population.

The Republicans will undoubtedly gain Democratic votes from those who are opposed to the election law and ballot, especially in the counties, and both parties will lose scattering votes because of bitter local dissensions which seem both more numerous and deep-seated than other years. When these facts are considered, in connection with the further facts that both state and county close on a full vote, it is sheer folly for either side to claim a "sure thing" on November 3rd. There is every reason for both parties to work to get out every vote for their respective Two years ago, Hering (Dem.) for Comptroller, carried this county by urer. 149; while Reifsnider (Rep.) for Judge. less than 50 to about 300, while two Republicans were elected to the House of Delegates. Last year, Page speakers may say to the contrary, the result of the ballots, next Tuesday, both in the State and county, is at present yery much in doubt. There is possibly no better evidence of this than the fact that betting in Baltis than the fact that betting, in Baltimore, between those who bet as a business—gamblers, if you choose—are keeping their cash in their pockresult is undoubted.

Duties of the Challengers.

According to the official instructions to the Judges and clerks having charge of the counting of the ballots, the following are the rightful duties of the challengers;

"During the count the challengers are not to be allowed to interfere with the same, or to enter into any discus rejected ballots on the result, and it is generally admitted that this will be a most important factor. At first sight it would appear that the Demotion and request that the ballot be exhibited to them as directed on page 154 of said compilation of laws. "The challenger, after stating the objection, must say nothing more, and the judges are to pass upon any objections so made."

They are expected, of course, to make notes relating to ballots, which, in their judgment, have been improperly counted or rejected, which evidence can be made use of, later, in case of contest.

Many of these cases grew out of the law re-

J. Griffin Hall, a speaker at a Republican meeting in Baltimore, last Wednesday night, caused consider-able merriment and incidentally gave some very excellent advice. He said "You who have weak eyes, and use glasses should be sure to have them with you when you vote, and if you are in the habit of using some other kind of glasses, early in the morning, you had better yote first, before you take any of those glasses, because you will want a calm, cool and sober brain to correctly vote the ballot.

The News, in commenting on the keeping in close touch with the poliical situation are simply astounded at the size and complexity of the official ballot. The ballots will be 21 inches long by 15½ inches wide, and there are 25 candidates to be yoted for. The chances of mistakes in makng the cross-mark, of its running outside the little boxes, of too many names being marked and the like are so great that the political leaders are looking for the wholesale throwing out of votes on election night. The only thing that they feel able to do in advance to prevent it is to give careful instruction to their voters, but on neither side are they at all sure that this instruction will do yery much good.'

This (Friday) morning's Herald, says; "With due respect to the opinons of the democratic and republican aders, neither side can count upon a safe majority. The men who do the work, and usually know the drift, acknowledge they are up a tree. The democrats at last realize that the ballot is a two-edged sword. Hundreds of their votes will be thrown out because of mistakes in marking. in the Tenth ward some are receiving nstructions, but comparatively few are willing to learn. The republicans, on the other hand, have schools in every ward in the city, where negroes prove to be apt scholars. In a quiet way they are also teaching white men, and endeavoring to save every vote possible. It is understood that all the judges will be instructed this time not to deviate from the law as expounded by the Court of Appeals. Every cross mark must be wholly vithin the square."

Important to all Voters. .

We are reliably informed that the Supervisors of Election of this County have instructed the Judges of Elecion that the name of each voter must e called twice; (1) on entering the colling room, before he receives his ballot, and on having it placed in the ballot-box, when the clerks mark "voted" opposite his name. Hereto-fore, each name has been called but once, and the word "voted" entered opposite the name when the ballot was given the voter, the name being hunted the second time only in the very few cases in which the voter retired from the room without having voted

The instructions given for calling each name twice, will greatly delay voting, especially in Taneytown and other large Districts. Voters are therefore warned that unless they come in to vote early, and wait patiently for a chance to get into the polling room, they stand an excellent show of not being able to vote at all, as twice hunting of eyery name is bound to consume much longer time. The following instructions, on this point, have been issued to the election officials; "The judge who deposits ballots in ballot box must see that each ballot has the initials of distributing judge thereon; he must call back and ascertain that the name and number on the coupon on the ballot corresponds with the name and number on the pollbooks kept by the clerks.'

An Unusual Accident at Sykesville. An accident occurred on the B. & O. R. R., at Sykesville, at an early hour on Monday morning, resulting in the death of engineer J. W. Linthicum, which was almost unheard of in railroad history.

Mr. Linthicum's engine was drawng an eastbound freight train past Sykesyille when a car door dropped from a westbound train and fell di rectly in front of his engine. When his engine struck the door the freight was running about 16 miles an hour. The effect was to turn the engine around and topple it over the bank.
Mr. Linthicum is believed to have jumped at that moment, and was afterwards found under the engine.

David was the youngest of the eight sons of Jesse of the tribe of Judah. His name means beloved. He was born about 1085 B. C. in Bethlehem of Judæa, which was also the birthplace of our Saviour, who was the "Son of David," according to the flesh, and through whom the kingdom of David has become an everlasting kingdom. David in appearance was a prepossessing youth. "He was ruddy and withal of a beautiful countenance and goodly to look at." His early life was spent in loyal, loving service at home, where he faithfully tended his father's sheep. In this period of his life he teaches us an important lesson on youthful faith in God, for undoubtedly it was at this time that he composed the immortal poem called the Nineteenth Psalm, in which he sets forth the glory of God as testified by the heavens and expresses his need of God and his desire that his meditations and words might be acceptable unto Ged. | technical schools founded by the In this period also God had him anointed to become the future king of Israel, illustrating that God calls to higher positions in life those who faithfully serve him in the more hum-

In the period of his life between his anointment as king and his ascendency of the throne David had a most exciting and varied career. Saul called him to court that he might relieve his troubled mind with music. Released for a time, he returns to his father's flock and next appears in connection with the war with the Philistines, when God gave him the great victory over the great champion, Goliath. Crowned with honor, he returned to court, received a command and was successful and beloved. Then followed the vicissitudes which resulted from the jealousy of Saul, brightened only by the mutual love of David and Jonathan. His magnanimity toward Saul during this trying period should impress us. Though he often had the king in his power, he would not raise his hand against him, and at last God rewarded him by opening up the way to the throne through the deaths of both Saul and Jonathan.

David at once entered upon his kingly career. For seven years he reigned over Judah alone at Hebron, and then for thirty-three years over Judah and Israel united, making his reign forty years in all. David was a great and years in all. David was a great and progressive king, loyal to God and to understanding which should forbid his kingdom. He conveyed the ark of God to the Holy City. The ordinances of worship were remodeled and faithfully observed. He extended the boundaries of the kingdom and provided To send one of them to jail would do Colds. 50c and $1.00 bottles guaranabundant materials for the magnificent temple which Solomon afterward built. David, being human, did not live without blemish. His temptations were many and strong, but he stood out in marked contrast to his contemporaries and in sackcloth and ashes repented of his most grievous sin and received God's pardon for it. David's kingdom is spiritually continued in Christ, "King David's greater Son," and we should all become members of that spritual kingdom by faith in Christ.

Now, read this carefully. Every year since we have been giving away calendars to correspondents, we have had many demands for them from those not correspondents—from subonor a profitable occupation, in the aim to please both, but it is wholly out of the question for us to give away scribers. As we appreciate both, we free calendars to all. This year, we have decided to do the next best thing—to give away part of the cost of "Our Presidents," to subscribers. FIRST, we will give one calendar free to each new subscriber who pays is to be mailed, then, $1.05 must be paid, in order to cover cost of mailing. By new subscriber, we mean one whose name is not now on our mailing list, but we do not mean that a present subscriber may pay up and re-subscribe, either in his name or that of another member of his family, and demand a free calendar.

SECOND. On the payment of all arrearages, and 10c in addition, we will give one copy of "Our Presidents" to any present subscriber; but, must be paid. This offer is also limited to November 10th.

Read these offers carefully and do not get "mixed" on them, as they will be strictly adhered to; and, let it positively understood that the offers are not made for the purpose of making a profit, but rather that we accommodate all our friends without too great a cost to us. A sample of "Our Presidents" may be seen on calling at the RECORD office. The Calendars will not be ready for delivery until December, at which time ample notice will be given in our

Ran a Ten Penny Nail Through

His Hand. While opening a box, J. C. Mount, of Three Mile Bay, N. Y., ran a ten penny nail through the fleshy part of his hand. Spandau castle, near Berlin, is to be pulled down, with the exception of the tower of Julius, which is to remain, as hitherto, the storehouse of the war fund of the German empire. Of the £200,000,000 exacted from France in 1871, £6,000,000 in gold was put aside in the fortress vaults to be kept in readiness for the expenses of the next German war. There it still remains untouched save for its annual inspection and weighing. As a modern instance of the parable of the man who buried his talent in the earth, this German hoarding of £6,000,000 is unique. At only 31/2 per cent compound interest money doubles itself in twenty years, so that the original £6,000,000 would have grown into nearly £17,000,000 in these thirty years. The doomed castle is also notable as one of the prisons of Baron Trenck.—London Chronicle.

The New York Farmer reasons as of four years. The appointments are follows on the question of whether it is always the farmer's interest to sell his milk direct to the condensing establishments or take it to a good creamery: Co-operative butter makers who can secure enough winter milk to make a month and determine upon the disbutter ought to be in a position to beat posal of the force for the month and even the Borden prices for milk in No also attend to other routine business in vember, December and January. Co-operators should bear in mind that the Borden price, which is called "net to the farmers," is not really "net" when it is compared with co-operative creamery returns. Suppose the Borden November price is $1.55 in the 26 cent zone and $1.60 in the 29 cent and 32 cent zone, and that the co-operative creamery butter return is exactly the same figure in those zones.

Which is preferable and more profitus $1.00 for a year's subscription be-fore November 20th. If the calendar has absorbed the butter fat and the skimmed milk and returned $1.60 per hundredweight to the farmer. The creamery has absorbed the butter fat and returned for it $1.60 per hundredweight of milk, and in addition to that return it has given the farmer back the skimmed milk, valued at 15 to 25 cents per hundredweight, for feeding, swelling his returns to $1.75 or $1.85 per hundredweight of milk. This computation has been too often overlooked by producers. The Borden price is for milk that is fitted to produce a large percentage of fine butter, whose market value is greater in some cases than the Borden price for the entire milk. For this reason the milk that commands the Borden price will command more than the Borden price when made into butter by its producers, who will have the skimmed milk to feed or to convert Co-operative butter makers who make

Creamery Journal. Van Norman For St. Louis. It has been announced that Professor H. E. Van Norman, now with the Purdue university at Purdue, Ind., is to have charge of the dairy work at the St. Louis world's fair. It is understood the authorities contemplate having in operation butter and cheese making plants, showing the visitors just how various dairy products are manufactured. Professor Van Norman is regarded as an exceptionally well posted authority, and his work with this department of the great fair will surely be satisfactory to all interested parties. Cause of White Specks. White specks in butter are caused either by the cream drying on the surface and thus causing a small lump of casein that cannot be broken up by the churn or by allowing the cream to become sour, thus causing the coagulation of the casein in lumps, with the same result as first mentioned. Cream that is properly ripened and not allowed to dry on the surface will not leave specks in the butter.

Large Creameries Have Advantage. The large creameries which churn a large quantity of cream at a time have considerable advantage over those which churn a small quantity. It has been found by experiment that the larger the amount of butter at a single churning the greater will be the overrun. Smaller amounts of butter do not absorb as much water proportionally as do the larger.

Few farmers take into consideration this item of expense. Reports from canned goods dealers show that there will be a slight scar-city of canned goods this season, and that the prices will be higher than are usual, owing to the smallness of the pack last summer compared with past years.
