The Protection of Orchards.

Thomas B. Symons, Associate State intomologist, has issued the followng appeal to the orchardists of Maryland, which we think of sufficient importance to give space, with the hope that our readers will profit thereby;

In a short time add the quantity of sai and continue the boiling for at least three quarters of an hour, or until all the sulphu has been dissolved and you have an amber colored solution. It may be necessary to add water from time to time to make up for evaporation and to prevent burning. When boiled sufficiently add water to make 50 gallons and strain through a fine mesh strainer into the spray barrel and apply warm. Hot or cold water may be added to make up the quantity, but hot water is preferable as the solution will spray better through the pump. In addition to being an excellent insecticide it is stated to have a beneficial effect upon the appearing fungi. Especially sit effective in controlling the peach-lear urt.

is strongly urged again that all orchardsts who have the san Jose scale to co creat the infected trees, as it will not prove a benefit to themselves but also to prove a benefit to themselves but also to their neighbors in preventing the further spread of the insect. It may be mentioned in this connection that our law requires that all infestations should be treated.

Any further information as regards the lime, sulphur and salt wash and also as to the means of controlling the ravages of this or other injurious insects, will be gladly given by writing the State Entomologist, College Park, Md.

A Lesson to Towns.

One of the lessons of the Baltimore fire, subject to wide acceptance, is, that under certain conditions even the most modern appliances for subduing fire, fall short of our expectations in their efficacy. This leads to the undeniable thought that our smaller towns, especially, after having arrived at the dignity of owning a yet yery far from immunity from total extinction, and certainly much less secure than the larger cities with their iron and brick buildings with metal roofs, and with their professional firemen, and ample water supply and fire-fighting equipment generally. ting there quick" with a line of hose while a fire is yet in its inception, and in the first plans for subduing it; on a fayorable wind, or no wind, and of course on the character of the building, or kindling. Given all conditions reasonably favorable, and the town fire department is a strong institution for the preservation of property.

Possibly the one great weakness of every town—even those rated as well governed and up-to-date—is the absence of official building regulations. Until a town has advanced beyond the point when it admits that hog pens are a nuisance, and are prohibited, it is scarcely probable that the level of the intelligence and far-sightedness of its citizens will rise to the heighth of admitting that the authorities have a right to say where they shall build, of what material, for what purpose, what sort of roof may be used, or to in anywise interfere with their liberties in the matter of building.

It takes a superior sort of intelligence in the individual to admit that when his liberties, or preferences, become nuisances and menaces to othwholly out of the schoolboy period, on | tion with the purchase of Groff fastcertain subjects. After the boy becomes the man, he is willing to admit that the discipline of the teacher intimate of Machen, then superinwas wise, and that in his boyishness tendent of the free delivery division. he failed to realize it; later on, he will admit that yaccination, for instance, is a wise precaution, and that from certain causes there are certain effects; but, as a rule, he surrenders his convictions, one by one, and only after a more or less stubborn struggle.

The adoption of measures having for their object the greater protection of towns from fire, are as desirable of the Groffs, one-half of which he and undeniably wise and sound as the early teaching of the elements of education and morality to the youngster in his schooldays. Out of disaster to others we may see our own errors and weaknesses. We are willing, oftentimes, to be convinced by experience—by our own experience-but surely the terrible fire loss to Baltimore is sufficiently clear to us to be taken as personal, and to warn every town in the state to endeavor to secure its greater protection from a like calamity. This, we think can best be done through the adoption and enforcement of building regions. "Section 1. Topic.-How Christ stills the storms of when they are boys. life.—Ps. cvii, 23-31. Life has often been likened to a sea, it's dead, and when it's dead it's no and in this portion of the One Hundred | good. to us of God's power in Christ to still the storms of our lives. God's chosen people were not especially a seafaring people. For the most part they dreaded the sea, and yet they had an important seaport at Joppa, and some of them engaged in maritime pursuits. They went down to the sea (the Med-Iterranean) and did business in great waters-great in contrast with the inland seas of Palestine. "These saw the works of the Lord and His wonders in the deep." They saw sudden and great storms, common on the Mediterranean as on the sea of Galilee, and God's deliverance of His people even as Christ

ing, "Peace, be still." The storms of the mighty deep are symbolical of the storms on the sea of life. The wind is contrary, the waves mount up to heaven, our souls melt away in trouble, we reel to and fro and are at our wits' end. Human ingenuity seems to be at an end, and we indeed know not what to do. Nor are these exceptional cases. Every life has its storms as well as its calms, its sorlife some rain must fall and some days | arts. be dark and dreary." And yet we need never despair. Our "extremity becomes God's opportunity." We can call upon the Lord in our trouble, and He will bring us out of our distresses. "He waves thereof are still," and we can have." be glad because they are quiet and be brought by Him to our desired haven, and the goodness of God thus manifested toward us should lead us to praise

God stills the storms of human life by His Son Jesus Christ. Christ spoke to the waves of the sea, and they were amusing to notice how many people He says, "Let not your heart be troubled," "I will not leave you comfortless," "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you," and if we will trust Him we will have peace of mind and stillness of soul instead of mental restlessness and spiritual disquiet. Christ is also our guide, our pilot over the sea of life. He not only stills the storm, but "He bringeth us unto our desired haven." Some of us may think that we can guide our own lives, but we are much mistaken. We need Him every hour of life, and He never fails. By His holy spirit, by His word, which is "a lamp to our feet," by His providence and by His church and its sacraments and other means of grace He brings us at last to heaven, our desired haven. Let us therefore accept Him as our pilot and ever pray:

Jesus, Saviour, pilot me Over life's tempestuous sea.

The ingenious woman has discovered a new use for her old fashioned and odd cups. They have long been good for nothing in particular on account of their large size and because they have no handles. Yet these big cups are exactly the shape of many of the mayonnaise dishes and may be used to advantage for this purpose. With the ery, tomatoes, cucumbers and vegetables of different kinds served cold with dressings. In consequence the mayonnaise cui has become a staple article of table service. Many people prefer the French dressing to the richer mayonnaise, and some like a larger quantity than others. It is advisable to have a dish of dressing upon the table instead of dressing the individual salad beforehand. The dishes made for holding dressing are to be found in different shapes. Some are oblong, like small sauce boats, with a flat rather than a looped handle at the end. Oth-

HINTS FOR FARMERS

The other day while riding on a raffway train a traveler was complaining of the cold. It was plain to me that he was not familiar with farm life or the value of frost or his complainings would never have begun. It is true frost may be too severe at times, but at this season nature does her best plowing with severe frost. With a fairly long period of such weather as we had on Jan. 1 and 2 the farmer will find his land in such fine condition on the opening of spring as no amount of cultivation would produce. The past season was so wet that very much of the land became sodden and sour, and nothing is so welcome to the well informed farmer as the frost plow to mellow the clods and pulverize the chunks left by rain and sun and asregularly every winter and plows and subsoils the farm as no mechanical device could ever do. Therefore while the cold weather causes stock to use up the hay and grain surprisingly, there is satisfaction in knowing that nature is doing her share in preparing for another bountiful harvest.-Farmers' Advocate.

Surprise Social Events.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. James N. Fox, formerly of Keysville, but now of Arlington, Md., was the scene of a large gathering on Monday evening, Feb. 29th. It was a surprise given in honor of Mr. Fox's birthday, which occurs but once in four years. This was his eleventh birthday, and the music rendered, games played and refreshments served made it an enjoyable one, not only for himself, but for all present. Besides the many wishes that he may celebrate many more birthdays Mr. Fox was the recipient of a number of useful presents.
