"The best-laid schemes o' mice and men Gang aft a-gley, And leave us nought but grief and pain For promised joy."

AFTER THE Maryland legislature | 1906; adjourns, there is likely to be fair Spring weather. At present, the atmosphere rising from Annapolis is so Home of Friendless heavily charged with gaseous and Aged Men and Women's Home, other noxious influences, that the Hebrew Aged Home, heavens cannot right themselves, nor put on a smiling appearance.

PANAMA is much in the public eye just now, but with its romantic early history the general public is not readily familiar. Cyrus Townsend Brady has taken the subject up, and in the April Cosmopolitan writes on "Panama and the Knights-Errant of Colonization." His account of the expeditions of Ojeda and Nicuesa is more thrilling than many an imaginary story of adventure. Seymour M. Stone contributes some spirited illustrations to the narrative.

Fool Politics.

During the past ten years, both parties in Maryland have played what may be properly termed, "fool" politics. Under the old Gorman-Rasin regime, the dominant party became so unsavory in its methods, and so regardless of the rights and desires of the rank and file for fair elections and | Maryland lying-in Hospital, decent nominations, that, notwithstanding the strength of the intrenchments of the ring, a popular upheaval gave the state entirely into the control of the republicans.

The change resulted in the fairest ballot and election law the state has ever had, as well as in other very desirable legislation. The party had | Hospital for Women, scarcely became warm in its new nest, however, until the managers showed a disposition to act the political highwayman, as purely as it had | College Phys. and Surgeons. ever been acted before, though it Baltimore Medical College, must be said in extenuation that the leaders preferred to cut each others throats, rather than to plan for a perpetuation of power and become bosses of the people. A greater exhibition of party suicide has never been given in this or any other state.

They inaugurated a war to the knife between leaders and factions, which resulted in disorganizing the republican party, as well as leading the independent voters to the conclusion that, as between bosses, there was little difference. The opportunity to continue the good beginning made, and to encourage the popular belief that republicanism, rather than democracy, was for the greatest good of the state, was selfishly and foolishly sacrificed in the interest of personal rapacity and ambition.

The result was apathy on the part of the independent element, which constitutes the "balance of power" in the state, and finally complete dethronement, all of which is too recent history to dilate on. The short lease of republican power, used as it was, simply met the proper fate of all "fool" politics.

The present administration, bids fair to represent a return to conditions even worse than the two preceding periods just referred to. The sequence of events, beginning with the call for the iniquitous special session of the legislature, has been consistently in this direction; and, considering the record of the republicans, there was no power to head it off before the last election, and, in view of the course of the present legislature, there is now little or no desire to raise a barrier of defense between the most extreme partisanship and the best interests of the state.

Eventually, there must and will be another reckoning with the people, and already there are strong indications of retribution. Ex-Governor Smith failed in his ambition to become Senator, a prize which many think he saw at the end of his special session call; Senator Gorman has lost prestige, without doubt, and possibly the coyeted Presidential nomination, while Goyernor Warfield has nnexpectedly set himself against the most irrational of the "fool" measures of the powers that be. Whether he will to history with a highly honorable measure up to all that is required of him to overcome the errors of his party, in inexcusable partisan legislation, remains to be seen.

The most harmful result of such history, is, that independence in politics, on the part of the individual, is distinctly discouraged, the tendency being toward forming a non-voting class. The safety of the country undoubtedly rests in the exercise of the voting power in the direction of the likes to reside the direction of the likes of highest principles and best government, rather than in the direction of the maintenance in power of any one | Service Reform Association kickin' duty it will be to enforce it.—Catons | consideration. Let me argue it for you. I ain't up on sillygisms, but I can give you some arguments nobody can answer. Now take this down just as I say it:

They ain't far from the bustin' point ness keepin' most of the good things from them. How are you going to get men to work for their country if you can't reward them? How are you or regular appropriation bill, are as goin' to keep up patriotism if this thing goes on? You can't do it. Let me tell you that patriotism has been dying out fast for the last twenty years. Before then when a party won its workers got everything in sight. $1,200 That was something to make a man 1,500 patriotic. Now when a party wins and 3,000 its men come forward and ask for their reward, the reply is, 'Nothin' 1,000 doin', unless you can answer a list of Tammany won, and the young man determined to devote his life to the service of his city. He picked out a place that would suit him, and sent in his application to the head of department. He got a reply that he must take a civil service examination to get the place. He didn't know what these examinations were, so he went, all light-hearted, to the Civil Service Board. He read the questions about the mummies, the bird on the iron and all other fool questions-and he left that office an enemy to the country he had loved so well. Approaching the end of His life, Je sus said to His disciples, "In the world ye have tribulation, but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." The inference is that since He has overcome they also can and will overcome. And this inference is correct. Christianity is a triumphant, a victorious, religion. Not only did its Head and Founder overcome, but His followers in all ages have possessed the same power and do still today. Through Christ we may be victorious over adversity, tribulation, bereavement, sin and death. The victories especially referred to in connection with this Easter meeting are those over death and its accompanying terrors. Life is a continuous battle, but the greatest enemy to the human race is death. "There is no discharge in that war," and it is looked upon with dread by the vast majority of mankind. But the child of God in Christ becomes triumphant even over the last enemy and can say, "Thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

1. Christ gives us victory over the sting of death. Death has a sting. We do not like to think of the end of life. Life is sweet, and we fondly cling to it, finding it unpleasant to contemplate the separation from loved ones, friends and the things of life that we have loved. But, while this is true, we must sometimes consider death, and when the thought enters into our minds it carries a sting with it, and "the sting of death is sin." If we had never sinned, death would have no sting, but the law tells us of our sins, and then the thought of the future has its sting. But Christ takes the guilt of sin from us and in so doing removes the sting of sin, so that we can victoriously exclaim, "O death, where is thy sting!" 2. Christ gives us victory over death the grave wins no victory, for Christ has overcome the grave, and His followers shall overcome it. They die but to live again under even better circumstances than in this life, so that death even contemplating the event may exultantly exclaim: "O grave, where is thy victory?" "Thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

Every farmer knows that some plants grow better than others. Soil may be the same and seed may seem the same but some plants are weak and others strong.

And that's the way with children. They are like young plants. Same food, same home, same care but some grow big and strong while others stay small and weak.

The gingham dog and the calico cat
Side by side on the table sat;
'Twas half-past twelve, (what do you think!)
Nor one nor t'other had slept a wink!
The old Dutch clock and the Chinese plate
Appeared to know as sure as fate
There was going to be a terrible spat.
(I wasn't there; I simply state
What was told me by the Chinese plate!)

The gingham dog went, "bow-wow-wow!"
And the calico cat replied. "me-ow!"
The air was littered an hour or so,
With bits of gingham and calico,
While the old Dutch clock in the chimney

place
Up with its hands before its face,
For it always dreaded a family row!
(Now mind; I'm only telling you
What the old Dutch clock declares is true!) The Chinese plate looked very blue,
And wailed, "Oh, dear! what shall we do?"
But the gingham dog and the calico cat
Wallowed this way and tumbled that.
Employing every tooth and claw
In the awfullest way you ever saw—
And, oh! how the gingham and calico flew!
(Don't fancy I exaggerate!
I got my news from the Chinese plate!)

The old Dutch clock it told me so, And that is how I came to know!)

That's what I want to know;
There's loads of things I can't find out,
But nothing bothers me so.
Nurse puts me to bed in my little room
And takes away the light;
I cuddle down in the blankets warm
And shut my eves up tight Then off I go to the funniest place,
Where everything seems queer;
Though sometimes it is not funny at all,
Just like the way it is here.
There's mountains made of candy there,
Big fields covered with flowers,
And lovely ponies, and birds and trees,
A hundred times nicer than ours.

The Fashions for Spring. Coats and skirts are now being made of the same material, but they are no longer fashioned upon lines of almost geometric severity. The new-est material for these, and one that is rapidly coming forward, is crepe de Chine. The Spring coat may be made in any one of three distinct shapes;

From present indications, two noteworthy features of the new gowns are likely to prevail. The more important is the ever-increasing vogue of the short skirt. The other is the frequent use of drapery across the front of the waist.

Too much importance cannot be be given to the soft, sheer fabrics that lend themselves so readily to tne graceful flowing lines of the season's graceful flowing lines of the season's modes. The voiles and veilings are, will confer such lasting benefits on this perhaps, in highest favor. Bordered materials in soft silk and cotton mixtures, sheer cottons and linen canyas are among the popular novelties. A glint of gold is introduced in everything. Gold braids, buttons, frogs, cords and pendants are some of the forms of this military decoration. Laces that are fine and filmy are the choice of the moment. The colored cotton embroideries are among the novelties. There are lingerie frills and ruchings without number for the sleeves and neck of the fashionable gown, and buttons are conspicuous.-From The Delineator for April

The White House Tableware.

With the reconstruction of the ding-rooms, and the enlargement of the kitchens, and pantries, and china has at her disposal a more complete equipment of table appointments than any of her predecessors. The most important of these new acquisitions is the new china service ordered by Mrs. Roosevelt, and only recently completed at the Wedg wood potteries,

There has, of course, been a great accumulation of china at the White House heretofore, since each "First farmers as by other members of the Lady of the Land" has the privilege of ordering a complete new service, should she desire it, and this becomes the property of the government, and is not removed from the Executive Mansion at the departure of the in-

U. S. Counsul McNally, at Liege, Belgium, has sent a report to the Department of Commerce and Labor at Washington that will interest nearly every woman in the land. He says:

"The Company Du Val St. Lambert, of Liege, is manufacturing a hardened crystal dish which in appearance closely resembles fine translucent china of uniform shape and manufacture. Entire Armies Disbanded. Members of peace societies are rejoicing at the news that the entire army in the principality of Monaco has been disbanded. Though this army was only composed of seventy-five men, of whom five were officers, optimists think that since a little state like Monaco has had the courage to disarm and dispense with its troops in this manner other large states will soon follow her example and that it will not be long before standing armies will altogether disappear. The republic of San Marino, it is said, has also practically decided to disarm the 1,000 men who constitute its regular army.

The "Grafters" are There.

This appears to be a week of "buttonholding" at the State House. The hourly incidents in the corridors dem-onstrate the truth of the adage that litics makes strange bed-fellows. Big lawyers interested in legislation for this or that corporation are seen chatting with little fellows with a yote or a small amount of influence.

At no other time since the Legislature convened has there apparently been such fine plucking for the "third house." The "boys" are here in force, and present a solid front. If they don't pick up a few good things it won't be due to a lack of diligence on their part.
