TALBOTT RENOMINATED.

Dr. Shaw Calls the Convention a "Punch and Judy" Show.

On Tuesday, on the 220th ballot, the Second District Democratic Convention renominated Hon. J. F. C. Talbott as the standard bearer of the party for Congress, after a decidedly remarkable contest which commenced on August 18, the balloting continuing until 114 efforts had been made, and adjourned on the 19th., without the dead-lock being broken, to meet again on September 5th. The Second district convention reassembled in Havre de Grace, on Monday. Chairman Crouse, upon calling the convention together, reminded the delegates that the people of the district, whom they represent, were expecting results which would reflect credit upon those who sent them there and redound to the credit of the Democratic party. He spoke of the fact that they should all

[Applause.] Mr. Grason may be familiar with the desires of the Baltimore county people. I also know what the people of Carroll want and expect at your hands. We nominated Mr. Talbott two years ago and relied upon his promises, but found they were only promises, but found they were only promises, but found they were only promises. We do not believe one man should control the Congressional seat from this district. We have men just as from this district. The lieutenants were at work presenting the good side of their candidates and condemning the opposition. The Republicans brought a supply of ammunition along in the shape of a card on which was printed a portion of Mr. Talbott's speech delivered at Havre de Grace August, 1902, after receiving the nomination for Congress, in which he is quoted as saying: "Now,boys, this is the last time I am going to make a fight for Congress;" At the bottom of the card the question is asked: "Was this a promise? Nominated by the aid of Rasin after 220 ballots against Hon. Thomas H. Robinson, of Harford, and Hon. Charles Fink, of Carroll. Did Talbott keep his promise?"

Apples to be Cheap.

Unless the weather cuts up some quee eapers between now and apple picking ne, apples will be more plentiful and There is an enormous crop on the rees, in better condition than ever be fore. While the crop is not so large as n 1895, the banner year, it is the opin on of the experts and biggest dealers in the country that more apples will be barrelled than in 1896.

Reports show many new orchards have come into being in Colorado and other sections in the West, making a large ad-dition to the total output. In this State the outlook is for a crop 25 per cent. greater than last year. The wholesale ealers are more than pleased with the New York State crop, which in some sections is phenomenal. In Niagara County, for instance, the record for apple production will be broken if the sea son is favorable. While the apple crop is more than satisfactory because of its size, the condition of the fruit will be something of a arprise to the consumers. Never were there finer apples than are on the trees now. This condition is due to the fact that the growers follow methods that are improved from year to year. Even he farmers who regard apples as an inidental money maker have abandoned the old fashioned, haphazard methods hanks to the continual agitation of the ubject by the Department of Agriculure and the State experiment stations. Instructive documents and the results f important experiments are sent broadcast through the country, with the result that the most shiftless tiller of the soil methods because the way has not been pointed out to him. Several times during the growing season he will spray the trees and the fruit, thereby ridding both of the insects and fungoid enemie that are responsible for the poor prod-uct. This is the method followed by all the leading growers, and accounts for the mprovement in quality each season. In only four States—California, Kansas, Missouri and Illinois-is the apple crop smaller this year than last. On the other hand, the crop is three times greater in New Hampshire than last year, a third greater in Connecticut and Massa chusetts, with 25 per cent increase in New York and Pennsylvania. In Ver-

The Bible teaches that there is a place called heaven. "In My Father's fact of itself should inspire the people adversities of life. We are simply pilgrims here. Heaven is our home.

The Bible teaches us of the inhabitants of heaven. (1) God is there. Christ calls heaven His "Father's house." God is omnipresent, but in heaven He especially manifests himself. (2) Christ is there. "I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am you may be also." "Where I am!" Christ is there, and where He is that is apostles to the humblest disciple of come up out of great tribulation and have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." The cross of Christ is the only open sesame to heaven.

to understand. Descriptions of heaven and its conditions are largely symbolical and figurative. Yet the Bible plainly teaches that it is a place freed from all the ills of this life, the inhabitants of which enjoy perfect happiness. Such a place as our eternal home is worthy the utmost self sacrifice that can be possible in the acceptance of Christ as our Saviour.

The Bible teaches the condition of entrance into heaven. There is but one condition—the acceptance of Jesus Christ as our personal Saviour and Redeemer. We must accept His atoning sacrifice for us and consecrate our lives side of the city, and the first duty on side of the city, and the first duty on the city is to find the to God in Him. And what had any prearrangement, to come together at this little meeting? Simply the attractions of the Christian Endeavor name and the Christian Endeavor bond of fellowship and the pledge "to attend and take some part in every Christian Endeavor prayer meeting." Is it not a great advantage that the Endeavor society not simply inspires its members with loyalty to their local church, but also brings them into a strong sympathy with fellow Endeavorers all over the world?

The Christian Endeavor pledge reads the same during vacation time that it does at any other season of the year. That Christian Endeavor is progressive is proved by the quantity and quality of its forward movements. The ideal pastor does not drive his

Immigration a Menace

The need for further restrictions upon mmigration was discussed a few months ago by Mr. O. P. Austin in an article in the North American Review. Mr. Aus in who is chief of the Treasury Bureau of Statistics in Washington, is an optimist so far as the nation's immigration problem is concerned. He concludes hat "the present immigration, large as it is, is not beyond our power of assimiations, and probably a healthful assimi-ation." This is not the view of Prof. Endeavor seed as they returned home. Robert deC. Ward, of Harvard University, fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and one of the founders of the American Immigration Re- Sold by J. McKellip, Druggist, Taneystriction League. Twelve Hundred Kinds Are In China's Show at the World's Fair---The Most Populous Nation of the World For the First Time Makes an Exhibit Worthy of Her Greatness.

Many expositions of stupendous character make up the World's Fair of 1904. Each part is a vast and distinct show. Each building shelters many acres of wonderful things-wonderful because they are the choicest of their kind. Every nation on the globe is represented. Every state and territory is here with its best and making the most of its greatest opportunity.

The fact that China has not been a large exhibitor at world's fairs gives to her great exhibit here a prominence quite exceptional. It is a wonderland of ingenious productions. We know China best by reason of her extensive exports of teas, which have found a vast market in the United States for generations. Her commercial interests therefore prompted her to make a display of teas that we should not for-

In sealed glass jars China displays in the Liberal Arts Palace some 1,200 kinds of tea. Young Hyson and Old Hyson have a string of tea relations longer than the genealogical chain of a Plymouth Rock. They are neatly selected "chops," in the language of the tea farmer, and these classes do not embrace medicinal teas, which are quite another lot in the rather modest number of 400.

The teas exhibited vary in price from a few cents a pound to some rare and exclusive kinds that are worth their weight in gold, the tea in the latter cases being placed on one side of the scales and pure gold on the otherthat is to say, the tea of this expensive kind is worth about $20 gold an ounce. Only a very small quantity of this exclusive leaf is exhibited, and it is grown in carefully guarded tea planta tions or gardens right under the shadows of the great wall of China. Its cultivation is prohibited for any use save for the imperial family of China and a few of the favored high officials.

Mention has been made of the word "chop" in connection with tea, and it Elliott's Emulsified Oil Liniment has may be interesting to the everyday made a remarkable record as a cure for reader to know what the word actually stiffness of muscles and joints. It matters signifies. The tea leaf is grown in various districts of the Chinese empire on

"Art," says a great critic, "is never large areas of ground which are often more supreme than when it fashions mistaken for single plantations. This from the commonest materials objects is hardly ever the case, as the large tracts are very often owned by hun dreds of different men, whose individual plots of ground bearing the tea plants are carefully mapped out, so that each individual owner may cultivate and pick his own crop of tea. Each owner likewise markets his own tea and puts his own special mark, or flowers in a room goes a long way in "chop," on the packages. Hence the making it attractive. Mere pictures term "chop" signifies an individual growth or picking of tea by one owner. In an area of tea land of, say, a thousands acres, all apparently under one ownership, there may be some forty, fifty or more owners of the plantation and consequently a like number of

It must not be imagined that all these different owners of the tea get the same price for their commodity-far the kitchen. From my youth up I was from it, as each of these individual tea growers has his own secrets for improving the quality and flavor of tea. Take, for instance, the Amoy and Fuchau districts, whence most of the tea for the United States comes. The owners of "chops" of tea varying from 10 to 200 chests of 56 pounds each bring samples of their goods to the various foreign merchants for sale. These latter turn the Chinese tea growers over to the good offices of the foreign or American professional tea taster, who passes on the goods as to price. The tea taster has the samples infused, not boiled, in his presence and passes upon refuse of any kind, to be placed direct- the quality, flavor, twang and manner ly upon her i. e. The "middle hole" is of curing, fixing a price accordingly, from which there is never any variation and which the tea grower must accept or go elsewhere to dispose of his wares. In a single tract of tea land like the one cited above the price has ranged from 14 cents, the lowest, to 481/2 cents, the highest, per pound among sixty-one different tea producers. A matter of great moment that also figures in the price of tea is more good than calomel, blue mass or that very often tea from the same disany other pill I ever took and at the trict will have the various "chops" blended together in order to produce

But sheep will thrive on weeds and grass that cattle will not touch, and when the fact is remembered that sheep produce a clip of wool every year in addition to mutton the balance is in favor

It is often said that it does not pay to raise sheep on high priced land. If that is true then it does not pay to raise cattle or hogs on the same land. It costs no more, pound for pound, for one than the other.

THE MIXING OF CREAM.

Combine of Hand and Factory Skim Lowers Quality of Butter. Whether hand or factory skimmed cream should be mixed would depend, first, upon the quality of the cream; second, upon the kind of market for the butter; third, upon the amount of hand separator cream when compared with the amount of cream from the and Skirts. milk, and, fourth, upon general creamery conditions, writes C. Larsen of the Iowa Butter school.

If the cream comes to the creamery in just as good condition as that obtained from the whole milk skimmed at the factory, then there is no danger of mixing the two kinds of cream, while, on the other hand, if it comes in a poor condition, as most hand separator cream does, then precaution should be taken. A buttermaker friend told the writer a short time ago that he favored the mixing of the two kinds of cream because if the hand separator cream was churned separately it produced a quality of butter which was very poor, while, on the other hand, if the two were mixed a better quality as a whole was obtained. There is no question that the above is true, but evidently if the butter from the hand separator cream was raised that from the whole milk was lowered, so the quality of butter received from both was poorer than that which could have been obtained from the whole milk if kept separately. If the creamery operator is working strictly for quality and the butter is sold on that basis, then it certainly would not be a good idea to mix the the "underground railroad," is now two. On the other hand, if the butter is sold on a market where the butter is not graded closely, then it might pay. By mixing the two it might be possible to raise the quality so as to bring all of it on the market at so much above creamery extras, while if the cream from the whole milk was kept separate perhaps no greater price could be obtained for that butter. If the butter from the poor hand separator cream was placed on the market by itself, evidently it would not command the same price as that made from the whole milk or the mixed.

Decline of Oleomargarine. Previous to the enactment of the new pleomargarine law the annual output of the "oleo" factories in the United States amounted to 126,300,000 pounds. During the year after the passage of the law there was manufactured only 71,200,000 pounds, showing a decrease of 44 per cent. This law is a blessing to the dairy industry.

Forage Crops and the Silo

Alfalfa may be sown in the early spring, or if the land contains enough moisture to germinate and develop the young plant it may be sown in the fall. If fall sowing is practiced it should be done in August or the first part of September, so that the plants will make sufficient growth in the fall to enable them to withstand the winter. Alfalfa is usually seeded at the rate of twenty

For fall and very early spring pasture rye is doubtless the best crop that can be used. Winter wheat is also useful for this purpose, but where pasturage alone is desired more can be obtained from rye, says T. M. Lyon of Nebraska experiment station. From price we charge is less than others the middle of September until the middle of May or even later cattle may be pastured on rye. Experiments have shown rye when pastured to induce a patent and kid tips, regular price large flow of milk and butter fat. In this respect it is one of the best of the Ladies' Vici Kid, which would be annual forage plants. Mixing Corn and Sorghum In answer to the query, What do you think of planting two rows of corn to one of sorghum for filling a silo? Hoard's Dairyman says: We do not know that there would be any gain in planting corn and sorghum in such a manner. Sorghum does not make as good silage, but in some localities and under some conditions, especially in dry seasons, sorghum will make the larger yield. It is therefore the custom sorghum. Sometimes in harvesting they mix the corn and sorghum by cut ting alternate loads into the silo, and at other times they put in the corn by Itself and then the sorghum and finish out with more corn

An Evening Party.

(For the Record)

A very pleasant evening was spent, last Tuesday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Starner, near Trevanion. The evening was spent in playing many kinds of games, and at a late hour all were invited to the dining room where refreshments were served, eonsisting of cakes, candies and lemonade, after which all departed for their homes having spent a pleasant evening. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Starner, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hiteshew, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bankard, Misses Maggie Fleagle, Emma Crabbs, Grace and Rosa Selby, Ada Powell Georgie and Bernice Hiteshew, Clara, Mary and Ora Starner, Laura Fogle and Clara bavidson: Messrs Jeremiah Newcomer, William and Milton Lawyer, Clarence Buffington, will man and will contain the more and the mor

Daniel Lived before Cirucses.

'It all reminds me of the darkey meetngs near my old Virginia home," said a outhern gentleman on visiting a colored imp meeting in Maryland recently. "We had one old negro preacher there who got a young lawyer, to whose father he had been a slave before the war, to write him a sermon on 'The Sermon' on the Mount.' It was a good sermon, too, and old Parson Tom preached it over and over egain. In fact, it was the only one that he could preach. He would add a little here and cut a little there as time wore on, but it remained essentially the "At last his congregation became so amed to call on old Tom and request him to get another sermon

TWO COWARDS WORLD'S FAIR

I was a coward, and we were both cowards. Laban Adams and I were lawyers on opposite siles of a case. Adams' case was we 'a and I ridiculed it, winning for my cl.ent. We met soon after and quarreled. He called me a

As that harsh word fell upon my ear passion overcame me. I struck Adams in the face. His friends drew him away, and I went out into the open air. On the following morning a friend tired of hearing the same thing each Sunday that a committee of the deacons was presented a note from Adams. I opened it and found it to be a challenge.

What should I do? What I ought to do was very plain. The lesson of life which my mother had taught me did not leave me to doubt. I ought to have gone to Adams and made such offers of conciliation as one gentleman may honorably make to another, but I had not the courage to do that. I accepted the challenge. "The sooner it is over the better," remarked Watkins. "Certainly," I responded. "Let it be this very day at sunset upon the river's bank. I will send a friend to you to make further arrangements."

"And the weapons?" "Pistols."

And so it was fixed. An hour afterward I found John Price, a young physician, who agreed to act as my second. He did not urge me to abandon the idea, nor did he enter upon the work as though he loved it, but he did it because he fancied I was determined. I knew that Adams was a good shot, and he knew that I was the same, for we had practiced together, so there was no advantage to either in the weapons.

After dinner Price came to me and told me that all was arranged. After Price had gone I sat down and wrote two letters. What a coward I was to write them! One was to my mother and the other to the girl who had promised to be my wife. As I sit now and think of that hour I shudder, the hour when I wrote to my mother

He informed me that if I would make the least overture of peace he felt sure that Adams would accept it. "I think," he said, "that Adams is sorry for what has happened. You struck him, and he cannot retract." "And he called me a liar."

"You are both good shots," added Price. "and if you fire together you may both fall.' But I dared not offer the hand of

I thought of the scenes of my early childhood, I thought of my college days, when Adams had been my friend and chum. I thought of the holy love which had beamed upon me since I had grown to man's estate, and I thought that in one short minute more the black pall might cover it all. Watkins was a long time in pro-
