It is rarely that pheasants are seen in this section of the county, however, last week one day one of these fowls made its appearance in Gettysburg and slightly frightened the family of John Eicholtz on Carlisle street. The Eicholtz family were seated at the dinner table when the bird flew against one of the windows with such force as to break it. The noise aroused the family and on making an investigation they found the pheasant in an adjoining room practically unhurt. The bird was given its liberty.—Gettysburg

The order which Mr. Turner accepted was dated January 14, 1901. It provided that Mr. Turner should pay to the elder Seabrook $30 a month out of the younger Seabrook's salary. No money was ever paid or asked for under the order, and on December 31, 1903, the suit was instituted. It appeared from the evidence that Clarence Seabrook had received all his salary, for which Mr. aged 50 years and 11 days.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 23.

Topic .- How can we enlarge and improve our work?-Matt. xxi, 17-22; Isa

By REV. S. H. DOYLE. The topic emphasizes the fact that we have a work. We could not enlarge and improve it unless we had. And for every Christian there is a work. "To every man his work." We have not only the personal work of life incidental to our existence in a world like the one in which we live, but a ses. (The butter is taken to market, and much larger life and w. a -a work only when there is some left it appears There are dragons to be slain in the per-for God, for the church of Christ and on the table.) There are dragons to be slain in the per-sons who wish to dominate her, and so for humanity.

No matter how well we may have done our religious work or in what improved condition it may be, it may be enlarged. No human effort ever reaches a point so near perfection that it is impossible of improvement. Therefore the commands of God have ever been for advancement. To the ancient children of Israel He said, "Go forward!" In the time of Solomon the proverb was given, "Let thine eyes look right on." The church in Isaiah's day was commanded: "Enlarge the place of thy tent and let them stretch for the curtains of thine habitations. Spare not, lengthen thy cords and strengthen thy stakes." The last command of Christ to His disciples was, "Go ye throughout the world. * * * And, lo, I am with you always." Under these repeated inspiring commands we should make every effort to enlarge and improve our work. It is the opening of the busy season of Christ's church. In the fall every church and society should begin a well thought out campaign and, "trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength," pursue it until success crowns the labors put forth.

What we have is not to be lightly esteemed or cast aside. No new site for the tent was to be selected, but that space enlarged. The same curtains were to be used, only enlarged and stretched over the wider space. Cords were to be lengthened and stakes strengthened. On the basis of what we have, if it be the true foundation, which is Christ Himself, we should all strive to enlarge and improve.

1. Enlargement. What Christian Endeavor society is there that cannot enlarge? In every place of meeting there must be some space that could be occupied by additional numbers, or, if not, there must be new space that can when the hired help is in consideration be added to that already in use. Who will make this increased space necessary by bringing new members into the society? In this work every one should have a part.

2. Improvement. Enlargement without improvement is of no avail. Numbers without spiritual graces and qualifications are in vain in God's work. "It is not by might nor by power, but by My spirit, saith the Lord." "Paul may plant, Apollos water, but God only can give the increase." The Endeavor tent at the Denver convention blew down. The tent was too large and heavy for the poles and cords that supported it. Let it not be so in our societies. Let us enlarge in personal often more intelligent than a dozen of their ilk piety, in numbers, in labor, but let us also improve. Let us prove our pro-

Endeavor In West Africa.

Among the native Christians in mis sionary lands Christian Endeavor is doing a noble work. It is proving a splendid means of educating new converts for service. One example of its practical results comes from Shaingay, West Africa. The young men of that society set out, two by two, to preach the gospel through the whole of their district, a region 40 by 70 miles in extent. They held 238 services and reached 4,572 hearers, and all without a cent of expense.-Roll Call (Australia).
