NEWS NOTES OF INTEREST.

Brief Items from County, State, and our Exchanges.

Congressman Jackson has definitely decided to contest the election of Thos.

A. Smith, democrat, in the First district, and a notice of contest has been served on Mr. Smith, through John C. Rose, attorney.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Morelock, of Carroll county, on Monday celebrated their golden wedding at the home of their daughter, Mrs. A. P. Marsh, in Frederick. They have one daughter, 11 grand-children and eight great-grandchildren.

Work will be commenced next week on a new hotel in Baltimore, on the north-east corner of Baltimore and Hanover streets, to be known as the Hotel Caswell. Sylvanus Stokes, a well-known New York hotel man, is president of the company which will build and operate the hotel.

The postmaster-general, Monday, signed friends for a long and happy wedded a fraud order against the Wyoming Silver Company, of 106-108 Spruce street, Scranton, Pa. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company The Pennsylvania Railroad Company is prepared to spend $30,000,000 in the construction of a new railway station in Chicago. Twenty million dollars of this sum will be spent in acquiring land adjoining the present Union Depot and $10-000,000 will be spent in buildings. Plans and specifications for a most elaborate group of structures devoted to railway purpose have already been completed.

The home of Mrs. Mary Harnish, on Baltimore St., Taneytown, was the scene of a very pretty but quiet wedding, on Thursday evening at 7 o'clock, the contracting parties being Mr. Lawrence Trimmer and Miss Rosa A. Smith, both well known and esteemed young people of this vicinity. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. C. B. Castle, pastor of the U. B. church. The site of the new terminal as planned by the architects and engineers of the Pennsylvania Company will occupy seven square blocks of territory.

Miss Kate Creager, 19 year old daughter of Thomas Creager, who resides near Rouzersville, will be compelled to submit to amputation of the little toe on one of her feet or possibly the entire foot. About three weeks ago she applied carbolic acid to a corn on the toe. The acid did more than Miss Creager contemplated. It poisoned her foot. The toe became black and then the discolor-

There is much excitement and no little indignation at Zionsville, Boone county, Ky, over the sale of a number of dressed cats for rabbits, and the Town Board is investigating with a view to prosecuting the persons who caused them to be placed on the market. Three of the cats are known to have been party eaten before the discovery was made Two merchants are said to have sold cats for rabbits, but it is admitted that they were innocent purchasers. The discovery was made by finding that the tails had been cut off, leaving a large bone, instead of being small and ending in a sharp point. Five cats were found discovery was made.

These consisted, it is alleged, of practically worthless articles. It is conservatively estimated that the farmers it the district surrounding Greencastle, Pa., have raised a crop of clover seed this year which is worth at least $20,000. The average price has been $6 per bushel. Greencastle dealers have purchased already about $15,000 worth of the seed and it is believed that there is at least $5,000 worth more still in the hands of the farmers. The Greencastle Elevator Co. alone, has shipped out four carloads of clover seed for which it paid over $10,000. Miss Lucretia Pauline Smith and Mr.

BOOK FARMING POPULAR.

Intelligent Study and Experiment of Great Benefit.

The day when farmers ridiculed book farming is now past. The agricultural experiment stations have made so-called book farming very popular. Fact has taken the place of theory, and the progressive farmers of the present day eagerIy peruse the bulletins from their respective State experiment stations and the farmers' bulletins that are issued by the Inited States Department of Agriculture. With the most wonderful strides made in every calling during the last 25 years agriculture has kept pace with all.

The evolution in farming methods and implements can hardly be understood by the present generation. It requires a knowledge of the old-time methods to make the comparison. Years ago when some of the labor-saving agricultural implements were invented they were decried by the farmers as being quite un necessary, etc. Today, with steam plows and, in fact, nearly all farming opera-tions being performed by labor-saving machines, it is very difficult even with their use, requiring so few hands, to secure enough laboring men to save the crops during the critical stage of harvest time. At all busy seasons the farmers, especially those located near large cities was in doubt about using a certain ingredient in his fertilizer. Professor Patterson sent him a formula costing very much less and producing better yield and admits that the bulletins from the United States Department of Agriculture were of invaluable service to him. In fact, some of the most noted successes strict business rules they have used in toe became black and then the discoloration extended toward her ankle until the entire foot is affected and amputation of the toe and possibly of the forepart of the foot is necessary to prevent the poisoning of her entire system.

20, 1904, in his 86th. year, neither of them being sick but a few days, and both died from old age. She was the last member of the family of the late Jacob Hiltebridle, known by many of the older people of Taneytown and vicinity, and left Taneytown district for the West in 1860. 20, 1904, in his 86th. year, neither of other callings, Economy in every direciment. They have no prejudice against any innovations or evolutions in farm work or machinery. They simply want the best that can be had to accomplish the work in an economical way. Business methods and keeping in touch with the State experiment stations would soon bring many farms up to a paying basis that are now examples of poor farming, with millstone mortgages at many of the county fairs with educational exhibits representing every branch of agricultural pursuits. The professors are on hand to explain facts and convince all that there is no theory in arrivpensive, is neither secret, honest nor just. terson has made experiments with grade cattle that are of interest to farmers in way could be secured, and every man could have sufficient time in which to prepare his ballot, that errors could secured, and every man to have farmers in the different counties of the State grow alfalfa will result, in due time in its becoming a constitution of the state grow alfalfa will result, in due time in its becoming a constitution. due time, in its becoming a conspicuous crop in the State. The fact of its great yield from three or more cuttings in a season means more than the mere increase of hay produced per acre. It means the keeping of more livestock on the farms. It means an increase in dairy products, in pork and poultry products; in a word more profitable farming in Last season the Gardners' Club of Baltimore visited the Maryland Agricultural College and Experiment Station and its members were agreeably surprised to find so many things of especial interest Bell-Myers.—On Dec. 21, 1904, at to them. The farmers of today—the successful ones—have all kinds of competition to contend with. The Western plains can produce wheat cheaper than it can be raised in the East. Western cattle are a great source of revenue to the farmers. There are sections in Maryland where wheat can still be grown with profit. In some sections of Maryland and the Virginias there has in recent years been considerable attention given to cattle raising, and it has been demonstrated that the industry is decidedly profitable.

The arrival of alfalfa in connection with cattle raising should create a new era of progress in the State. It is scientific farming in a very realistic sense to produce plenty of live stock and raise an bundance of provender for their mainenance. It means an increase in fertilty of the farming lands and a new source REPP.—On Dec. 15, 1904, in Union low diversified methods or make special-Successful farmers, whether they fol-Bridge, Mr. Samuel Repp, in his 81st. ties their aim, are experts. Success in farming is not the result of haphazard methods. - Sun.

Donation to Rev. F. A. Cook.

On Friday afternoon of last week, members of Baust Reformed church paid their respects to their pastor, Rev. Fred. A. Cook, of Union Bridge, bringing with them a goodly number of packages, bundles and even sled-loads of such supplies as were needful at this particular season. They contained in part a set of rubber-mounted harness, horse blanket, corn, hay, oats, lard, meats, canned goods, vegetables, cash, etc. Dr. L. Kemp presented these gifts in the name of the good people of Baust church, which was responded to by Mr. Cook in pleasing style.

Hanover, Pa., Dec. 25.—Petroleum has been discovered in the South Mountains in Adams county, and announce ment has been made that a syndicate had been formed for the purpose of developing the find and that over 1,000 acres of mountainous land in that vicinity had been leased. The oil was dis covered by several men who were hunting foxes. They saturated a piece of paper in some oily substance they saw floating on the water, and on applying a match it burned freely. The mountaineers in the neighborhood say they have known of the oil for several years, but that they had supposed it came from a leak somewhere in the pipe line which crosses the mountain several miles from State's Attorney for Baltimore, made a speech before the Concord Club, on Tuesday night, which is taken to represent the democratic opposition to the Poe disfranchising amendment, though Mr. Owens said he spoke only for himself. He apparently advocates the idea that the voter who can "read and write,'' is intelligent, and therefore entitled to vote, no matter what his color or nationality, but this conviction is practically contradicted in the last paragraph, given below, in which he admits that after all "simplicity" in voting is the thing desired, and mere ability to read does not supply this; moreover, ability to read is not necessarily evidence of intelligence.

of intelligence. A portion of his address The voter who attempts to exercise the right of suffrage must himself be suffi-ciently well informed to be able to know that the vote he casts is the vote he wishes to cast. The safest guarantee that this shall be the case is the ability of the voter to read the ticket he wishes to vote. I, therefore, think the surest safeguard would be to add to the present qualifi-cations prescribed by the Constitution the requirement that the voter can read

The best test is the ability of the voter to read the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the State of Maryland when printed in the English language, and his ability to write his own name in the English language. This test is certainly not unreasonable, and it is not asking too much of the parties. t is not asking too much of the nativeorn Americans that they shall be able to read the fundamental law of both the ederal and state governments, but my main reason for this test is this: In the last four years there landed at the port of Baltimore 154,055 immigrants. What proportion of these people made Balti-more their home I have not been able to ascertain; but everybody knows that our foreign-born population has increased tremendously in the past few years, so much so that if one would talk to an aggregation of residents in a certain wellknown section of our city, and be understood by all hearers, he would, like St. Peter, have to be the subject of a new Pentecostal miracle. All the heretofore talked of amendments seem to me to be defective in this one particular, that their aim is to disfranchise one particular class of citizens —the negro voter; my suggestion disqualifies all illiterates of every race and

The Old and the New.

At the close of the year, the conscientiously inclined are apt to strike a balance sheet, both as to the spiritual and material results of the year, and in so doing it is pretty safe to say that the majority find the result unsatisfactory, at least under one heading. All are no doubt, more or less burdened, on the debtor side, with "sins of omission and commission," and with well-meant plans which failed to materialize, but all are no doubt equally resolved to do better next year-or ought to be.

If among the assets of the year we have learned that making money, and compelling material progress, are not the whole of life, we have accomplished much. If as a result of the "good times" of the year we have done a corresponding amount of good which we have not done before, we have gained a ent age far more valuable asset; and, if we have been led to realize that we are but temporary actors on the stage, and that each one, according to his lines, should considering the just rights and greatest good of his fellow actors, he has about reached the summit of human accomplishment. May all classes and conditions, in the year before us, more fully than ever before, realize that the gospel of "live and legal justice, or to the proper amount of let live," as well as the Golden Rule, have not been repealed, but are still in full force and effect, as from the begin- but we rather incline to the opinion that ning. Let us also realize, and practice, that our ways among men should be above suspicion, and always such as should proceed from those who profess to be christians and honorable American citizens. Harmony, honesty and industry, would be a grand motto for the New Year for all to follow.

The state was shocked by the revelation made n the message of Governor Thomas of

A number of counties advocated reoudiation, but the Legislature of 1844 assembled with the determination to meet onorably all the state's obligations. Under the direction of Governor Pratt evenue measures were devised which saved the good name of Maryland. As yet the canal was not completed to Cumberland, needing about fifty miles of cut, which called for the expenditure of a aillion and a half dollars. At the same time the railroad, which had gotten as far as Cumberland, was straining every nerve to secure money to go on to the Ohio. By 1847 the canal was completed to Cumberland, partly through the grace of the state in waiving its liens in favor of bonds to the amount of $1,700,000.

In the spring of 1847 the state was enabled to reduce largely its arrears of interest upon its debt and to provide for the liquidation of the entire debt within the next thirty years.

The history of the canal has been such as to make it a matter of relief that the state is no longer responsible for its destinies. At the start it was throttled by a railroad and at the end it yields itself

By REV. S. H. DOYLE. Topic.—Our goals for 1905.—Phil. iii, 12-16. (Consecration meeting.) It is quite a common thing in these days for Christian people to have daily

Bible texts to guide and lead them for the day. If such a text be wanted for the first day of the year, no better can be found than these inspired words of Paul to the Philippians. Nor need we stop here with them, but can take them for a yearly text, to be applied each day of the year, or even a life text, for they would apply to the Christian's life from the start to the finish. Every Christian Endeavorer, therefore, could do nothing better than to commit them on the first day of 1905, if they are not already known, and then refer to them each day of the year as an inspiration to renewed energy both in his personal life and in his life of service in connection with the church and the society.

A goal marks the end of an achievement. The athletes in the Grecian games pressed toward the goal or mark. When they reached it, they no longer strove. There was nothing then to strive for. Hence if we seek goals for 1905 it is a confession that the ends we strive for have not been attained. Paul made this confession before he placed his goal before him: "Not as though I had already attained or were already perfect, but I follow after." Paul knew nothing of the doctrine of perfection, nor should we be deceived by thinking that we can attain to it in this life. Since Adam's fall the only perfect man who has ever lived was our Lord, and we will not become perfect in this life; hence the need of selecting goals of inspiration toward which by the grace of God we shall constantly advance.

The one goal toward which the apostle declares that he presses is "the mark of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." No more important goal could be placed before us. It includes all other worthy goals. He who strives for the highest goal in life necessarily wins the lesser ones. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness. and all these things shall be added unto you." The prize is eternal life in Jesus Christ. God on high calls us to it. Let us therefore press earnestly and constantly toward the goal where such a prize is the reward. Beside it the purely worldly goals sink into insignificance, and none so exalted as God calls us on to success and victory. Under His leadership we cannot fail. "Let us therefore run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith, who for the joy that was set before Him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God."

'Tis God's all animating voice
That calls thee from on high;
'Tis His own hand presents the prize To thine aspiring eye.

Blessed Saviour, introduced by thee, Have I my race begun,
And, crowned with victory, at Thy feet
I'll lay my laurels down. BIBLE READINGS.

The Gift I Didn't Get.

I have presents by the dozen, Meant to make my Christmas glad, From each uncle, aunt and cousin— Best a fellow ever had. There's a keepsake from my mother, Father sent a check—and yet I am thinking of another— Of the one I didn't get.

There are gifts from all the fellows,
Pipes and things a chum will send;
There's a tie, a'l reds and yellows,
From a girl who calls me friend.
You would think me far from slighted
If you saw them all—and yet,
I confess, I'm most delighted
With the one I didn't get.

She told me it was ready,
She'd prepared it long before;
I'd been calling on her steady
For at least a year or more.
She told me all about it.
And her eyes with tears were wet,
And I'm happy, never doubt it,
For that gi't I didn't get.

Her attitude was altered
When I called on her last night,
But my tale of love I faltered,
And I guess I did it right.
And this little rhyme is written
'Cause I'm full of joy—you bet!
For a frosty little mitten
Was the gift I didn't get.

Economical Feeding of Cows.

According to the last census Maryland has about 150,000 dairy cows. It is very likely that every year at least $2,250,000 is expended by the dairymen of the state for so-called concentrate protein feeds, such as wheat bran, cottonseed meal, linseed meal, malt sprouts, brewers' grain, gluten meal, and a few others. This allows $15.00 per cow per year, which is a very moderate estimate of what the cow should have. It is very doubtful if the dairy cows average means. pubtful if the dairy cows average more than $15 profit annually with the feed given at the present time. Calculating apon this basis about half of the possile profits of the dairy goes into the ockets of the feed dealers. The question of how to get away from his heavy expenditure is one of great mportance for the consideration of importance for the consideration of dairymen. At the present time, and with the crops usually raised, the purchasing of protein feeds is absolutely essential to profitable dairying. Though it may take a large share of the probable returns for the purchasing of feed, yet, if possible to secure these feeds the profits now derived by the dairymen would be lessened, and even cause the business to be conducted at an actual loss. This feed must either be bought or raised, and until a very short while r raised, and until a very short while ago the idea of raising all of the protein feed necessary for a herd of cows appeared to be highly preposterous; and even yet it seems almost impossible to raising a part, or all, of the protein feed necessary for the dairy herd will be ap-

What is a Gentleman?

A case arose in an English court recently in which it was necessary to de-termine the meaning of the word "gen-tleman" as used in a certain ancient and absurd statute which gives higher witness fees to a "gentleman" than to those who do not deserve the title. A well-defined popular meaning attaches to the fine old name gentleman the world over. The English tribunal arrived at the conclusion that a man may be a gentleman in fact, but not in law.

One of the counsel cited the Irishman's definition of a gentleman as "the chap that never did a ha'porth for himself, nor anyone else." The Judge sententiously ruled that a person of independent many and that a person of indepent means and not engaged in trade would be a gentleman, whatever qualties of gentlemanliness might be lack-

The hapless individual who was the target for the forensic fusillade was a schoolmaster, and it was gravely held that for that reason he was no gentle-man. The London News wants to know whether the profession will tamely accept the judge's startling conclusion, and urges that all the old definitions of the term 'gentleman' are obsolete. The idea of a gentleman which aroused Carlyle's ire to the boiling—'one who keeps a gig, hence, 'gigmanity' ''—is ruled out of court by the News. It prefers to accept the boy's definition—'a man who wears his Sunday slother on weak her. wears his Sunday clothes on weekdays"

A TRAGIC DREAM.

Fate of the British Trawler Lyra Foretold In a Vision. The story of a dream and its tragic realization is causing a sensation among the fishing folk in the South Devon port of Brixham, according to the London Daily Mail. With a great shriek of terror Walter Furneaux, one of the crew of the trawler Lyra, aroused his wife and family early one morning recently. Trembling with fright, he emlained to Mrs. Furneaux that he had been terrified by a horrible dream.

During breakfast on the same day Furneaux seemed sadly depressed and made frequent references to the scene which presented itself so vividly in his sleep. Mrs. Furneaux herself at last became alarmed and endeavored to persuade her husband to remain at home during the next voyage of the It takes a woman to say "dear" in a tone that makes it sound like a cuss neaux, "if I thought I could get a Lyra to the fishing grounds.

In America the designation "gentleman" is curiously used in the assessors' lists as a term to identify those who have no known occupation. One may be a retired millionaire, an impecunious soldier of fortune awaiting something to turn up, a philosopher, an exgambler taking his ease in his inn, a repeater, a ballotbox stuffer—all are "gentlemen" in the indiscriminating and flattering language of the tax list.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Mary 'Lizabeth's Poll,
My doll is just the queerest child;
She really almost drives me wild.
It ain't that she's just bad, you know,
But that she aggravates me so.
She doesn't cry or fret or stew—
I wouldn't stand that, I tell you!
But she sits up so stiff and vain
It sometimes just gives me a pain.
Now, Mary 'Lizabeth, why, she
Has one that's modest as can be,
And such a grateful child! Oh, dear,
I'm 'fraid that mine's spoiled as can be.
