The Church's Conscience.

The recent protest from ministers of some of the Congregational churches of New England against the acceptance of a gift of $100,000 for foreign missionary work, from Mr. Rockefeller, and the conviction by the Wilmington M. E. Conference of two ministers of the denomination for participating in stock speculation, or stock gambling, may stand for the awakening of the conscience of the church as to methods of money-getting, which, notwithstanding the decidedly puristic coloring of the acts, may have beneficial results.

In the first case, the Rockefeller gift was accepted, in spite of the protests which were based on the ground that money was acquired through questionable methods of finance, the acceptance, perhaps, being influenced by knowledge of the fact that much of the cash which finds its way into the treasury of the church is more or less tainted with even more questionable methods than those used by Mr. Rockefeller, and that if the "gift-house" is always to be "looked in the mouth," the investigation would lead into many unexplored and probably dangerous neighborhoods.

In the second case—the ministers having been severely disciplined—the question arises, what is to be done with the occupants of the pews who gamble in stocks, or otherwise? If the church has been outraged, and these men adjudged so guilty as to merit expulsion from the ministry, it is difficult to understand how the lay members, who also represent the church, can continue playing the game and go free from being hauled over the coals. Gambling and dishonesty in the one case is gambling and dishonesty in the other, and trial and conviction in the one, calls for trial and conviction in the other, for the church is outraged in both.

These instances—particularly the latter, in which a high standard was actually set—were very important and far-reaching, for the church cannot afford to be inconsistent, nor select its criminals from the ministry alone. It is also a matter of interest to know just how nearly the action of this particular Conference represents its denomination, and other denominations, in such cases, and how far religious denominations in general are willing to go in the direction of investigating the greater question of financial ways and means as it applies, large and small, to church revenues direct and indirect?

In recent years there has been such a strenuous effort put forth by most religious denominations to popularize themselves with the world, and to secure vast sums, through all sorts of means, for church work, that it is a present question whether it is not about time to stop and take account of stock; and the instances mentioned may represent, as said before, an awakening of the church's conscience. It is argued that the live, progressive churches—the ones that grow most in membership and raise the most money—are those which have popularized their standards as to practices allowable and not allowable. Whether this is correct, and if so, whether this success has been accomplished at a sacrifice of spirituality, is not for us to attempt to decide; but, one thing is sure; that which the world calls success is often accomplished at too great a cost, and, if the church is doing this, it is not actually hastening the winning of the world for Christ.

In other words, it is true that the church has so trimmed and hedged in order to accomplish a success, according to worldly standards, that it has too liberally used worldly methods, and, as a consequence its conscience has suffered? Has the popularizing of the church, and some of the methods used for securing funds with which to carry on its work, cost too much? The instances referred to seem to indicate as much.

Guilt and Punishment.

Notwithstanding the inevitable result of crime persisted in, there are always those who foolishly persist in leading the life which ends in detection and punishment. Persistent and systematic theft, for instance, is naturally followed by persistent and systematic detective work, and, while a very few escape, the large majority, sooner or later, find their liberty cut short and their reputation ruined beyond repair.

As Judge Morris truly said, in sentencing the Westminster postoffice thief, the penalty inflicted on rascals of this sort usually falls heaviest on the innocent—the on the wife and children, the relatives of the criminal. Such criminals, therefore, not only sin against the law and the state, but against those nearest and dearest to them by ties of blood and marriage, and are thus doubly condemned by all who regard honesty and honor.

Considering the vast number of postal employees, and the immense sums which in safety daily pass through the mails in actual cash, it is a compliment to the honesty, as a class, of postal employees, which an occasional example like that furnished by Barnes cannot discount. The same is true of the public service generally, notwithstanding the effort frequently made to create the opposite opinion. The world will always contain the dishonestly inclined, because the world cannot be perfect, and the best that we can do is to encourage carefulness and probity, always being careful how we criticize those who serve us, considering their many temptations.

Outside Cleaning.

The spring "cleaning up," with which the average house-wife is so familiar, should be better known and practiced by the house-husband. Several days, at least, can be profitably spent in setting things to rights about the buildings, especially the dwelling, not only in the interest of looks and cleanliness but of that proper pride and good management

Portland, Oregon.

Portland is about to celebrate in an international exposition the centennial of the exploration of the Oregon country by Lewis and Clark. The title of Portland to be the seat of so important an undertaking rests on the fact that it has been for more than fifty years the chief city of the Pacific Northwest. It was identified peculiarly with the early and successful struggles of the American pioneers to reach the wide territory of Oregon from the dominion of Great Britain, some of which are related elsewhere in this number of the Review of Reviews. So it is fitting, for commercial and sentimental reasons, that the exposition should be held there.

The beginnings of Portland date from 1845. Americans were then coming in freely. The site for the future city was selected by A. L. Lovejoy and "a gentleman named Overton," as the early history politely describes him. Lovejoy, Overton, and F. W. Pettygrove surveyed the ground, and a dispute as to whether the name should be "Portland" or "Boston" was settled by "flipping" a coin. The town at first grew slowly, and in 1850 a high school, and a brig, the Emma Preston, was dispatched to Canton, the pioneer in the Oriental trade with the North Pacific coast. The Immigration of 1851-52 was heavy, following the passage by Congress of the donation land act. Portland then speedily distanced its rivals, of which one there were many, and assumed position as the metropolis of the Pacific Northwest.

As it was at first the center of trade for a sparse but growing population, so it has become the leading commercial, financial, maritime, and manufacturing points of the great Columbia basin. The preeminence of Portland in the industrial and political life of the Northwest may best find illustration in the fact that no other place in Oregon has more than one-tenth of its 230,000 population—and there are many prosperous towns—and it has suffered not at all by the competition of its thriving and ambitious rivals on Puget Sound. The enterprise of its merchants is great, the solidity of its banking institutions proverbial, and the activity and acumen of its exporters remarkable. Before a single mile of railroad had been built in the Northwest, a fleet of stern-wheel steamboats plied the Willamette and Columbia rivers, and a large coasting trade had been built up with San Francisco.

It would not be accurate to say that the railroad took up the development of Portland where the steamboats left off. It is true that the city was rich and very prosperous, and the Willamette and Columbia rivers bore a thriving commerce long before railroads came. They opened up much undeveloped country; they brought in direct connection with the East; they brought in a great population; but they did not supplant the stern-wheeler. From "Portland and the Lewis and Clark Expedition," by Edger B. Piper, in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for April.

The Old Time Way. Our Grandmothers gave us powders and teas, because they knew nothing of modern medicine and methods. In this age of progress and discovery, nicely coated, compressed tablets are fast superseding the old time powders and teas. Rydale's Liver Tablets are compressed chocolate coated tablets, easy to swallow, pleasant in effect, and reliable. They contain ingredients that cannot be used in powders or teas. Ingredients that have an effect upon the liver that is never obtained from the so-called liver powders, etc. A trial will prove their merits. R. S. McKinney, Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

Road Material Tests.

From all over the country people who want to build roads are sending to the bureau of road inquiry in Washington, samples of material, asking that they be tested. The samples are promptly handed over to experts, who put them through a variety of trials for the purpose of determining their usefulness. If the substance is rock, a piece of it is ground in a machine to finest powder, mixed with water to a dough, and moulded into the form of a small cylinder. This, when dry, is put in a delicate mechanism which causes a weight to fall upon it repeatedly from a height. The number of blows it will endure before breaking determines the "cementing quality" of the material.

The Franchise Amendment.

The Maryland Court of Appeals has decided that the franchise amendment to the State Constitution, which was passed a year ago by both houses of the legislature, must be submitted to the voters, despite the fact that it was presented to the Governor for his approval. Governor Warfield made it known last March, after the legislature had adjourned, that he would not promulgate the amendment or consent to its appearance next November on the official ballot. Legal proceedings were brought to compel him to submit the question to the voters, and the Court of Appeals has now squarely overruled the state administration. The court by a vote of 5 to 3 holds that the legislature was within its powers in declining to submit the proposed amendment to the Governor for approval or disapproval, and it commands him to take the steps necessary to carry out the legislature's intentions. The amendment must go on the official ballot and the voters must decide whether or not the franchise of Maryland shall be "purged" after the Mississippi and North Carolina method.

Costly Rooms For Her Maid. It happens that the wealthy occupant of a large house in a hotel in Fifth avenue, New York, is paying more for the rooms occupied by her two maids than for any other rooms in her apartments. While she was bargaining somewhat precisely with the manager as to the rent of her rooms she failed to mention the apartments she desired for her maids. It was not until she had agreed in writing to take the apartments for a certain time at a certain rent that the question of the rooms for the two maids was approached. The manager saw his advantage and named $10 a day as his ultimatum. In vain the tenant protested. She had to keep her agreement, and she had to have her maids. So they are the most costly feature of her retinue.

Letter to S. White Plank. Taneytown, Md. Dear Sir: Porterhouse, so much neck, so much; all the way between. Just so with pain. Devoce lead-and-zinc in the porterhouse. Nobody wants the neck; the between, some say is good enough for them.

But Devoce costs less, not more, than between. Lead-and-zinc is between; it is the old-fashion paint. But zinc has come in. Zinc toughens white lead. Devoce lead-and-zinc is the paint that wears twice as long as lead-and-zinc.

Mr. John N. Deitel, Fair Haven, N. Y., writes: "Charles Hollenbeck, of this place, painted his house three years ago with Devoce lead-and-zinc. His father painted at the same time with lead-and-zinc. To-day the son's house looks as well as the day it was painted, while the father's house has all chinked off and needs painting very badly. The father says he will paint with Devoce next time."

Yours truly, F. W. Devoce & Co. P. S.—J. S. Bower sells our paint.

A Twice Told Tale. We wish to repeat what we have said once before in these columns. That Elliott's Emulsified Oil Liniment is the best Liniment ever produced for use on the family and animals. Best for rheumatism, lameness, stiffness and soreness of joints or muscles. Best for bruises, contusions, sprains and swellings. You can't get half pint for 25c and get your money back if it does not do all it is recommended to do. R. S. McKinney, Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

An Unprofitable Plan. It may be a happy family idea to confine the cows, horses and hogs all in one stable, but it never yields a happy or profitable result.

For a Weak Digestion. No medicine can replace food but Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets will help you to digest your food. It is not the quantity of food taken that gives strength and vigor to the system, but the amount digested and assimilated. If troubled with a weak digestion, don't fail to give these Tablets a trial. Thousands have been benefited by their use. They only cost a quarter. For sale by R. S. McKinney, Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

Wearing Pigs. A neighbor's method of wearing pigs is to take them away in detachments, beginning first with two or three of the plumpest, largest and strongest, then the next strongest batch, leaving the poorest ones at the litter to complete the drying off. The cases are complete and decisive.—Cor. Farm Journal.

Draft Horses in Demand. The market is constantly seeking good heavy grade draft horses, and the supply is insufficient, as the heavy city transfer work is rapidly increasing, and no other class of horse can handle it.

Won a Name of Fame. DeWitt's Little Early Risers, the famous little pills, have been made famous by their certain yet harmless and gentle action upon the bowels and liver. They have no equal for biliousness, constipation, etc. They do not weaken the stomach, grip, or make you feel sick. Once used always preferred. They strengthen. Sold by J. McKellip, Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

Washing Woodwork. When washing woodwork if you use soap suds and grease will come off quicker and easier. A good quality of kerosene cleans windows and mirrors best, but a poor quality of oil with dregs in it leaves the glass streaked. Soap must not be used with kerosene for glass.

Salted Peanuts. Shell your peanuts and take off the inner skins. Put a tablespoonful of olive oil or melted butter in a pan and add enough nuts to cover the surface thoroughly. Sprinkle with salt and set in a moderate oven. Stir often to brown all sides. When the nuts are brown and crisp they are done.

Cleaning Windows. When it is necessary to clean windows in damp weather use a little methylated spirit, and you will polish the window in half the time, as the spirit evaporates and dries the superfluous moisture as it goes.

WONDERFUL TELEGRAPHY.

Hungarian Instrument Transmits 40,000 Words a Minute.

The latest marvel in telegraphy is an instrument that can transmit messages at the rate of more than 40,000 words a minute and deliver them at the other end of the wire written out in plain schoolboy handwriting. It is the invention of two Hungarians, Anton Pollak and Josef Virag.

The system is, of course, extremely technical, but it is roughly described by the London Standard as follows: The message to be transmitted over the wire is first prepared on a perforating apparatus. This apparatus is very much like an ordinary typewriter and is operated at about the same speed. It converts the message into perforations on a strip of paper, resolving it into two sets of components, the vertical and the horizontal, this being necessary for the reason that the electrical currents can only transmit single components with the varied form of letters. These components can, of course, be sent over the wire at an incredible speed. The difficulty is in reproducing them in intelligible form at the other end. To accomplish this two telephones are used at the receiving station, the system requiring the use of a telephone circuit of practically two wires.

The varying currents generate vibrations in the respective telephonic receivers, and the motions—vertical and horizontal—respectively—are converted into a single motion in such a manner that one set of components causes vertical movements of the mirror and the other set horizontal movements. A ray of light is directed on to the mirror from an incandescent electric lamp which is reflected from the mirror through lenses on to a slip of sensitized photographic paper.

The two motions of the mirror are sufficient to form all the characters of handwriting; but, of course, if made rapidly the characters will be angular. But the mirror moves only to the extent of about one-hundredth part of a millimeter, while the exposure of the paper is no more than the thousandth part of a second, so that the enormous rapidity of the currents and the movements makes the characters practically round. So fast does the mirror move that when the working parts were exposed observers could barely discern more than a faint streak of light, but a momentary flash resolved into a line of the plainest handwriting.

How to Acquire Wealth. The ancient sages' "sure road to wealth" was "to temperate in all things be economical always." Modern life, with its "rush method" of business and its "keep healthy" is added to the old adage.

Every body knows how to be temperate and most people how to be economical, but few know how to keep perfectly healthy. Overeating, irregular habits, neglect etc., derange the stomach, liver and bowels, causing indigestion, torpid liver, constipation, etc.

Rydale's Tablets are nature's best ally when such conditions exist. The stomach Tablets will digest your food, strengthen your digestive organs and cure your indigestion.

The Liver Tablets will arouse your liver, stimulate your bowels and establish a regular, healthy, habit. Rydale's Tablets insure good health. R. S. McKinney, Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

His Tribute. "And now in conclusion," added the humorous lecturer whose jokes had been received with stony solidity, "I want to compliment at full value, on its being the most intelligent and the most beloved assembly before which I ever delivered this lecture. Every previous audience has been so stupid as to believe this a funny lecture or so ignorant as to pretend to believe it good. On the other hand, you have had sufficient intelligence to consider it rotten and sincerely enough to demonstrate to me your feelings. I thank you, ladies and gentlemen—I thank you!"—Baltimore American.

Household Recipes. To Decorate the Walls of Your Dining Room—Give a blueberry pie to the lady and leave it alone for forty minutes.

To Remove Ink Stains From the Parlor Rug—Burn the house.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

The Humorist's Labor. Miss Talker—It must be awfully hard work thinking up bright things to write all the time.

Scrivener—Well, it is; but the hardest part is getting editors to think that they are bright after they are written.—Somerville Journal.

Then He Went. "Ah," remarked Mrs. Peoprey, whom Mr. Statyle had been wearying with the best thing going.

"What's that?" he asked.

"A man who has stayed too long."—Philadelphia Press.

Inconsistent. "These artists make me tired!" growled the theatrical manager, frowning at his beard.

"They do?" asked the press agent.

"Yes. Here's the walking lady demanding a carriage to and from the theater."—Judge.

Mr. Kirksey's Recommendation. Mr. Kirksey writes:—I give a positive guarantee with every box of Rydale's Tablets I sell, and have never been asked to refund the money in a single instance. I have used these Tablets in my family with the best results. W. L. Kirksey, Morganton, N. C. Rydale's Tablets are prepared by The Radical Remedy Company, Hickory, N. C. even authorize every dealer in their preparations to guarantee every box or bottle of their medicine, they sell. R. S. McKinney, Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

MODES OF THE MOMENT. Raincoats in the redingote style are new and costly.

Miniature lace stoles in the way of collars are among the new showings. Beads—strings of them—grow larger and brighter until they are almost barbaric in their size and color.

Ribbon for ruffling gowns or quilting on hats has its own fashion, and it is so that it can be shirred by pulling.

Soft, flimsy chiffon is gathered into girlish gals all the way round, but especially so directly in front and back.

Street suits with full plated skirts and Eton jackets made of taffeta silk will, so it is promised, be popular this spring and summer.

Lum Tumb Clothes Cleaner. Removes grease spots from all kinds of fabrics, leaving no unpleasant smell. A fine sponge with every bottle. Price 15c at McKellip's.

Invaluable. Crawford—Is he a good lawyer?

Crabshaw—Sure! He knows how every lawyer on the globe should be evaded.—Tom Watson's Magazine.
