The College having closed its boarding department, caused those who were compelled to remain, to hustle quite lively in order to get boarding places. Our regular boarding house is crowded to the limit. Some are boarding themselves, and claim that they are saving money by so doing.

Quite a number of our Professors are now doing road work, having so planned it that they could be away while the boarding department was closed. During the last month the College grounds have had a great deal of work done on them. They are preparing to put down concrete walks to all the buildings, but and Dr. W. D. Brown. we very much fear that the cold weather will be here before they are completed. We are preparing for the farmers annual visit here, Sept. 1st. and 2nd., and hope to give them a good time. REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

Ticket not to be Nominated Until September.

The Republican County Convention, met at Odd Fellows' Hall, Westminster, on Monday last, but deferred the nom-ination of candidates for county offices until September 11th. The proceedings were of an unusually exciting character, especially as regarded the naming of a State Central Committee. The matter was finally settled, and the following and Dr. W. D. Brown.

The following are the delegates to the State Convention; James H. Reindollar, Richard W. Barnes, Herbert R. Wooden Charles H. Smith and Dr. Albert E. Lambert. The Convention was presided over by Louis E. Shriver, of Union Mills and Wm. Wm. W. Witherow, of Taneytown acted as Secretary. Resolutions were adopted as follows:
"We deny the truth of the statement contained in the resolutions adopted by the late Democratic convention held in Westminster on Monday, July 31, that the Democrats of Carroll most heartily and cordially indorse and support the proposed amendment to the Constitution igned to eliminate the ignorant and vicious negro vote from the electorate,' but on the other hand charge that a large number of the Democratic voters of Car roll county are unalterably opposed to the adoption of the proposed amend-ment, because they are not willing to submit their rights to a discretion to be lodged in two men to be appointed by the Democratic ring of this county and because they realize that the 'negro bugaboo' has been overworked in this State by the Democratic ring and that this is another attempt to intrench the ring and counteract the effect of the independent vote of the State."

In the succeeding resolutions the impropriety of making unlearned men judges of the constitutional knowledge of other men is emphasized; it is alleged that Governor Warfield has denied that he 'was elected on the promise of the passage of legislation such as the pro-posed amendment,' and it is declared that the 'Republicans of Carroll county are in favor of an amendment to the Constitution of the State which will ninate the vicious and venal voters of the State who only vote for the largest bribe offered them.' But that 'they demand that the provisions of any amendments to the Constitution of the State in relation to the elective franchise be so clear, definite and fixed that no citizen of this State will have to submit his right to vote to the discretion of two or more persons.' The people, the resolutions assert, will not submit to having any of their rights lodged in the discretion of any body of men.

The Modern Hotel.

Hotels now and hotels 50 years ago are o utterly different that if one of the oldtime employes was to see the working of a moder hostelry he would think he was in a machine shop. In the kitchen every-thing is done by machinery, even to the smallest things, such as chopping cab-bage and boiling eggs. There is a clock-like arrangement which times eggs and allows them to boil exactly as desired, and then takes them off the stove.

Dish washing is now done in many hotels by machinery, and, in fact, so much machinery has been introduced that the employes needed are much fewer than was formerly the case, but the individual employe must be a more cap-

an expert accountant and fine penman, but the introduction of typewriters, cash registers and adding machines has done away with that type of clerk, and in his | ED. RECORD. place is the man who is chosen principal because he is a keen judge of human ature, and knows how to address men in accordance with their mood and dis position. He can generally tell whether the arrival is a veteran traveler or a no-vice, and he is able in a minute to tell whether the man expects him to be hail-fellow-well-met, or does not care to talk, and the clerk is accordingly jovial and easy in his manner, or exhibits an exag-gerated stiffness and coldness, without being in any way discourteous.

A good clerk practically controls a large trade, because traveling men care little for the hotel, but remember an attentive clerk and recommend him to their fellow-travelers, and it frequently happens that when a clerk leaves one hotel and goes with another he draws a no-ticeable following of men who had been stopping at the first hotel for years.

Union Bridge.—During the heavy thunder storm which passed over our town last Saturday evening, the lightning struck a tree which stands near the stable belonging to Dr. Watt. Mr. John F. Bruens, who works for the Dr., was passing through the stable yard gate, or had just passed through, when the bolt struck the tree. He was knocked to the ground, where he lay helpless for a few minutes. When medical aid at last reached him no pulse could be discovered for perhaps ten or fifteen minutes. The gate is about twenty or thirty feet distant from the tree, and a wire fence runs from the tree to the gate. It is the opinion of some persons that the fence conducted a large part of the electricity from the trunk of the tree, as no marks on the tree can be discovered below the wire fence; where the holt struck the tree, it fence; where the bolt struck the tree it rent the trunk asunder, and left a hole very much like a cannon ball would make by passing through a tree trunk.

Topic. — The building of character. — II Pet. i, 1-11; Jude 20, 21. Character is what we are, not what we seem. What we seem is but reputation, but what we are as God sees us deep down in our hearts is character. Character is the all important thing in life. To some riches is the supreme thing, but the wise man has well said. "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches." To others worldly pleasure is the chief concern of life, but the apostle does well to enjoin us: "Neither the things that are in the world, * * * for all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh and the lust of the eyes and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world. And the world passeth away and the lust thereof, but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever." The things of the world are temporal-character is eternal. The supreme importance of character, therefore, can be clearly seen, and we should prize it above silver and gold and whatever else we may win or lose in life. We should make sure that life itself is what it ought to be, for life is character. The building of a human character is no child's play. Many people who are most careful about everything else in life that has a value are most careless when it comes to their own lives. If building a home, they are very particular and want the very best things that it is possible for them to procure, but in erecting the tabernacle of life, which is to be "eternal in the heavens," they are careless and indifferent. Would that all could appreciate the real values of life! Then the gold would not so frequently be mistaken for the dross and the dross for the gold.

The elements that enter into character building are well illustrated in those that go to make up the buildings we see about us in life.

1. The materials out of which we build our character are important. We may well ask ourselves most seriously what makes us what we are? The materials of which any structure is composed have much to do with the building. So it is with life. Many important elements enter into our making: (1) Heredity. It must be admitted that we do inherit the dispositions of our ancestors. A man has been likened to "an omnibus with all his ancestors on the inside," and again it has been said that "the training of a child should begin a hundred years before it is born." But the evil influences of heredity can by the grace of God be overcome. (2) Environment. Our circumstances in life have much to do with the development of our characters. The surroundings of our home life, the place where we do the work of life, the work itself, our associates-all these are important factors in character building. But when necessary a man can control his circumstances rather than allowing them to control him. Our lives should be founded upon Jesus Christ, the only true foundation, and should be built upon Him. Possessing His spirit by the new birth, we should gradually add to the free a measure as possible a full rounded, not deliver thee." symmetrical Christlike character. Then, and then only, shall we possess and sacrificing for.

Text of the Lesson, II Chron, xxxiv. 14-28 - Memory Verse, 21 - Golden Text, Ps. cxix, 16-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The money gathered to repair the house of the Lord recalls the method adopted to obtain money in the days of a chest beside the altar, with a hole in the lid of it, and it worked splendidly and brought in much money. Jeremiah had at this time been a prophet about five years (compare verse 8 and Jer. i, 1, 2), and why he was not consulted I do not know unless it happened that he was at his home in Anathoth and light. There were doubtless many men of influence and importance in Jerusalem, but some one has said that a woman knowing God's will is far superior to a man who doesn't.

Josiah had heard the curses of Deut. xxviii, 15-20; xxx, 17, 18, etc., and knew cuted, who loved one man, a friend of that the wrath of God was hanging mine, as never maiden loved. CURVED BREASTBONES.

Fowls Thus Misshapen by Going on the Roost Too Young. Some authorities claim that this is hereditary, while others claim it is caused by fowls taking to roost too young or roosting on small branches of trees or round perches, writes J. C. Clipp in National Stockman. Perhaps all are correct in a measure, but we cess in handling the animals, and have are confident the chief cause of this trouble is due principally to fowls go-

A little experiment of this kind will soon convince you that if you allow young tion of his present leave of absence. fowls to roost on branches, especially small branches, you will find that when they mature they will show up a good number of crooked breastbones. while those that have been permitted | 14 he dropped dead. to roost in coops and not allowed to roost on fences or trees will have comparatively few crooked breastbones.

After fowls reach five or six months of age they can and should be taught one is promised shortly. to roost in buildings on roosts 1 by 4 inches wide (five inches in width would be really better), as a perch of this kind prevents both crooked or curved breastbone and frozen toes in zero weather. If young fowls are pushed for weight before the bone hardens and permitted to roost on small limbs or small roost poles they will practically all have curved breastbones. Evidently the prime cause of crooked breastbones is the result of management and conditions and not frequently hereditary, as is supposed by many. Perhaps to breed from fowls having crooked or curved bones year after year would produce the deformity in the offspring, but we think such a freak would be rare; hence the safe plan to follow is to judiciously manage them while young and growing and provide a suitable roosting place for them and avoid overfeeding flesh formcape the deformity so common with enough to use their wings.
