Professor Uhler said that the mosquitos are being carried by freight cars from Spring Gardens, Baltimore, to the mountains of Western Maryland, and that he is sure of this from the fact that while in the mountains he has picked mosquitos from freight cars which had been hauled there from Baltimore. Professor Uhler said he has been going to the Blue Ridge Mountains for 30 years and he never saw a mosquito there until three years ago.

Record Office Improvements.

Owing to the increasing business of the CARROLL RECORD office, the company will shortly install a new Babcock cylinder newspaper press, a Rockford folder and an engine to supply power for the same. In addition to printing the RECORD, the office has the contract for printing College Rays a quarterly magazine, for Maryland Collegiate Institute, Union Bridge; Sons of America, a monthly 8-page paper for the State Camp of Maryland Patriotic Order Sons of America; Nichols Review, a bi-monthly paper for Nichols Memorial church, Odenton, Md., and a number of annual catalogues for colleges and fraternal bodies. In a word, the business of this company in this line of work has others, the RECORD office will within a North Liberty, Iowa. short time possess a plant second to none in this section of the state.

"It establishes a doctrine of political rights by inheritance, that at once contravenes the principles of the democracy of Thomas Jefferson and the spirit of the Declaration of Independance; and, after the election of a single year, it provides that all young men, of all colors and conditions alike, who seek admission to be subject to the discrediting and de grading requirement that they shall sub-mit themselves to an examination in constitutional law that shall be per-scribed by and subject to the approval acter that experience has found to be quite frequently illiterate, and quite frequently corrupt.

"The purpose of the said amendment is to reinstate, with enlarged powers, the partisan boards of registration of the class that prevailed previous to the Elec-tion law of 1899, who again and again proved themselves indifferent to their duty and subservient to the political agencies through which their appointment was secured, and ofttimes guilty of such extent of criminal discharge of the function of their office as would best subserve the interests of their political masters.

"The said amendment, by a transparent and impudent pretense, professes to aim at protection against an 'ignorant suffrage,' yet it provides the power and the discretion to permit the most ignorant illiterates to vote if they shall give assurance that they will vote as those who administer the law shall require and endangers the suffrage of the most enlightened citizen who desires to vote and who dares to give an intimation of his intention to vote as his judgement and conscience may dictate. "It affects the right of suffrage of many more white men than there are generations to come, and by the power to prescribe precarious and oppressive requirements as to the evidence upon which the ancestral title to vote under the so-called 'grandfather clause' may depend, opens the way and provides the opportunity to jeopardize the right to vote of any or every citizen of our State.

"The Republicans of Maryland do not feel it incumbent upon them to make any reply to the partisan war cry and senseless sham and shibboleth of 'negro domination.' The Republican party of the State of Maryland favors no social equality among the races; favors no negro domination over the white people here or elsewhere, and can be depended upon to guard against the establishment of either of these conditions here in Maryland with equal safety and with greater sincerity than a partisan organization that wears the mantle and usurps the

The German Baptic istrative entity of China over Manchuria.
The Anglo-Japanese treaty of January , 1902, was generally regarded amon ne chancelleries of Europe as a thrust at Russia. The new treaty of August 12 1905, providing for even a stronger alli ance between Great Britain and Japan. is also primarily aimed at Russia. While the plenipotentiaries at Portsmouth have been settling the issues involved in ending the war in Manchuria, Lord Lansdowne and Viscount Hayashi, both of whom signed the treaty of 1902, have been quietly engaged in London elaborating the existing compact between their two countries so as to guarantee to Japan all that she has gained through the war and to Great Britain the integrity of of the necessity of straining her resource she will now have the backing of England's great navy. It gives England the assistance of the magnificent organization of the Japanese army in the event of trouble along the Indian frontier.

Something Wrong.

Money can do almost anything in this country today; its power is so great that it has made men to be, as Senator Hanna said of John D. Rockefeller, "moneymad." But at the bottom the fault rests not more with the wealthy than with ourselves. If we and our representatives in Legislative bodies were not purchasable, corruption would not exist. And the methods that we condemn and deplore in politics are only the reflection of those which are in common use in our business and in our daily life.

It is the whole American people that need a change of heart. It is wonderful how seemingly apathetic people are when fraud is demonstrated to them. A regenerated private life is a condition precedent to an honest public life. So long as a feeling persists that the evils we have are necessary ones or the individual is conscious he is doing in another way the same wrong thing the grafter is we will not have a pure rule. We are not as a mass sufficiently horrified over the light of the body politic to be aroused to the point of angrey revolution against them. There is something secretly wrong with the man who will not resent evil doing with all his might and strength.—

Topic.-What is practical Christianity?-In discussing the topic which we have before us it is well to remember that there is no such thing as practical Christianity separate and apart from doctrinal Christianity. On this point many people have been confused, and many are still so even today. To others it is works only. But both of these classes make a serious mistake. There can be no Christian faith unless it inspires Christian work, nor can there be Christian work unless it is based upon faith. Christianity may be said to be composed of two principal parts-faith and work, or doctrine and ity. We do because we believe. Mere doing is not Christianity, nor is mere believing. Christianity is believing and Practical Christianity properly understood includes several important factors. (1) It stands for a consistent Christian life. The man who professes to have faith must live in accordance with that confession or he proves thereby that he is not a Christian. He must be honest, upright, sober, virtuous in his dealings with men and faithful to all the duties which he owes to God. Honesty alone does not make a Christian, but the Christian must be honest or his claim to Christianity is a false claim. The moralist is not necessarily a Christian, but the Christian must always be moral. The difference is that Christian morality must be based upon faith in Christ and inspired by Him. (2) Practical Christianity is philanthropic in character. A Christian must not only lead a clean personal life, but he must "love his neighbor as himself." He must be willing to "do unto others as he would have others do unto him." He must have a sympathetic heart for all in need and when able extend to them a helping hand. Christianity in actual practice is never selfish, but always most unselfish. Christ came not "to be ministered unto, but to minister and to give His life a ransom for many," and the disciple must follow the example of his Master. No matter how much religion a man may claim to have, if he refuses to help the needy he has no religion, doctrinal or any other kind. The man who truly believes will not say to those in want, "Depart in peace; be ye warmed and filled," but instead he will give what is necessary to bring about what he desires. Christ, practiced the doctrines of His religion. So must every Christian. Faith without works is dead, and works make a Christian. BIBLE READINGS.

Comfort Ye One Another. Try in your sorrow to comfort another. The sweet, comforting sound will re-echo back to yourself and gladden your own heart when you least expect it. When your Lord seems to call you nearer to Himself by a way that is difficult and painful to flesh and blood ought you not to rejoice in that difficulty, to be glad of that very pain, because it gives you the opportunity of proving to yourself and manifesting to Him that, whatsoever itmay cost you, follow Him you will: that you care not how loud the storm is or how heavy if He is but walking on the water; you care not how hard the race is if He be but beckoning to you from the goal?

China's Progress. The first society is reported in the rapidly growing mission work in Hunan province. A new society is reported at Shansi, the idea of it being brought from Peking by a military office, the head of the governor's bodyguard and a newly baptized convert of the English Baptist mission.—Rev. George W. Hinman.

The Best Sermon. The best sermon is that which prompts the hearer to do the most right thinking for himself.

No condemnation of a man is so severe as to say "He is a Christian but he is not working at it."

FIFTY CENTS

IN some conditions the gain from the use of Scott's Emulsion is very rapid. For this reason we put up a fifty-cent size, which is enough for an ordinary cough or cold or useful as a trial for babies and children. In other conditions the gain is slower-health cannot be built up in a day. In such cases Scott's Emulsion must be taken as nourishment; a food rather than a medicine. It's a food for tired and weak digestions.

There are many worshipers who do not worship in spirit and in truth because they have only a form of godliness without the power thereof (II Tim. iii, 5; Isa. xxix, 13; xxxiii, 31, 32). Some of them make much of turning to the east when they worship, possibly not knowing that facing the east meant turning the back to the temple. See verse 1 of our lesson and Ezek. viii, 16. In the first verse of the lesson there are two very suggestive phrases-"the door of the house" and "the altar"-each of which points to Him who is the only sacrifice for sin and the only entrance into the presence of God.

The Oath in Siam.

The formula of the oath of office in

Siam is long and complicated. It is also very violent. For example here is such a form of it as high functionaries go through in swearing solemn fealty to their sovereign:
"May the blood drop from my body, may my head break in two; may the crocodiles devour me; may I be compelled to carry water in wicker baskets to quench the flames of hell; may I suffer the most horrible torture until my years are as many as the grains of sand by the sea, if I violate this my solemn oath."

And this is not all. There are twenty lines more. Certainly if the validity of an oath is measurable in its length, here is one that is infrangible.

A friend of ours is wont to say that the less money a man has to start poultry keeping with the better off he is, because necessity compels him to go slow, and stern necessity seems to be the only power that can induce poultrymen to let their plants grow naturally. As we compare the successful plants from small beginnings with the many failures from large beginnings and look almost in vain for a real success among the latter we think he is more than half right. THE SUMMER CHICK.

Best Methods to Pursue In Feeding and Care of Late Hatches. The great thing to keep in mind when caring for late chicks is that feeding must not be carried out to the extent of being almost a cramming process, as the inevitable result will be to feed them off their feet, and therefore it really becomes the paramount issue in the raising of these late hatched chicks to see how fast we can grow them without "feeding them off their feet"which means without injuring their digestion-and therefore we prefer to mean failure in the accomplishment of of American Poultry Journal.

OYSTER SHELL ROADS.

When Properly Built They Are Good On the Eastern Shore of Maryland, as it is termed—the section between Chesapeake bay and the Atlantic ocean -the soil is principally a sandy loam, with here and there some clay, and about the only material at hand of which a roadbed can be constructed is York Tribune. As is well known, these bivalves are found in immense quantities in nearly all of the rivers and bays which form a network of waterways in this part of the state. If laid upon the highway to a sufficient depth and the bed properly graded to afford adequate drainage, the shell binds itself into a concrete mass which possesses remarkable firmness and over which heavy loads can be drawn on wide tired wagons with comparatively little injury to the surface. An illustration of the endurance of of Baltimore, for to the south and east of the city are over fifty miles of this Baltimore St. kind of construction on roads which are in continual use, as they reach the large vegetable farms which lie adjacent to the shore of the bay and its tributaries. Most of the product of these farms is carried to the city in wagons, some of which transport two and three tons, yet the highways can be used at all seasons of the year, and even when the frost is working out of the ground in the spring they are in almost as good condition as during the dry season. It must be said, however, that they are seriously neglected, and repairs may not be made to the surface for four or five years. Consequently they become rather rutty, but one seldom finds a hole where the surface has been broken through. The same is true of the Eastern Shore, where sufficient shell has been laid down, and the problem of good roads in Maryland, so far as this section is concerned, would seem to be solved by the application of shell, although a short section of highway has been made out of furnace slag, which has given excellent satisfaction.

Dear Sir: There are two sorts of fur-iture. You know both; for you sell em both. One sort looks better than it is, and the other is better than it looks. The same, two sorts of paint, no more;

Life In Sakhalin, a Settlement For Violent Convicts. Sakhalin, the island which Japan is now taking-or, rather, retaking-from "I can tell you a much better way Russia, is the place to which Russia than that," said the major. "I always sends her violent convicts. The conplace my watch in one sock and my vict in Siberia has some liberty to console him for his detention, but the convict in Sakhalin none. When a party of convicts (having been pronounced "violent" by the governor of the Siberian station) are landed in Sakhalin the procession to the jail is as follows: First among the prisoners come men together in pairs, the clanking of their chains making a lugubrious noise. Next come half a dozen men, each without fetters, but secured by the hands to a long iron rod. Then follow female prisoners, and after them, the most affecting part of the whole, the wives and children who have elected to accompany into exile their husbands and fathers. Behind them rumble "telegas," or rough wagons, wherein are transported baggage and those children who are too young or infirm to walk.

When on the march the prisoners are allowed three pounds of bread and one-half pound of meat each per diem, and they are not forbidden to receive alms. But when they arrive at their destination their lot is a pitiful one. Their cells are damp and fungus covered, their food is less than the allowance during the journey, and their work in the salt mines is most exhausting. Most of the prisoners are very ignorant. Few of them can read, excepting the Caucasians, but they are all put to the same laborious work, and in the event of their being physically unable to perform their allotted tasks their punishments are very cruel. The English cat-o'-nine-tails is nothing to the terrors of the "bodiga." In this instrument of torture the prisoner is so fixed that he can neither move nor cry out, and wire thongs, bound at the end with pointed tin, strike his back at frequent intervals. Other tortures to which prisoners are subjected are too dreadful to write about, and during all these tortures the prisoner is prevented by gags from obtaining even the poor relief of a scream. Surely the horrors of the salt mines of Iletskaya are nothing compared with the abominations of Sakhalin.-Pall Mall Gazette.

Talking Machine or Records, Piano, Organ, Washing Machine, Wall Paper, Enlarged Portaits or Frames,

Come to me and let me demonstrate to you the purchasing power of your dollar; also how and why I can give you more and better value for the same and less mone than you can get elsewhere. Try Me! A Trial will Convince You. Any The New Improved Talking Machine, with the New Tapering Arm is the Greatest Musical Instrument the World has ever known; not because I say so, but because the greatest men of the world say so. No matter where you are, it brings to you the violin of Kubelik; the most famous Bands and Orchestras of Europe and America; the most popular Songs, sung by the popular singers of the day—and Entertainment of every sort. Wherever one of my machines is heard, the verdict is, "It beats anything I have ever heard."

If you want to save from $3.00 to $30.00, on a machine, and want the latest and best the market affords, I can give you something you cannot get elsewhere, and it's a VICTOR, just the same. I am Headquarters. I have the inside track. See! Send for Catalogue.

Don't let any one put a bug in your ear, trying to make it appear that I cannot do as I say, and that the goods I sell are not the right kind and worthless, and that you will get into trouble if you buy of me, but give me a trial, and I will stand the brunts. Everything I sell or do is positively guaranteed—must be right. EDW. P. ZEPP, Special Representative,
