Truth About Advertising.

There is no good thing in this world that is not misused, and this is as true Brief Items from County, State, of advertising as of anything else. The temptation to "stretch things" in telling a story of business-which is truly what an advertisement is—is as strong as in telling an ordinary yarn, and this leads to untruth and deception, with the consequent result that the average advertisement is discounted as to its most important statements, and in many cases properly so. The firm that succeeds in brazenly disregards setting forth exact facts in his advertising, may easily spoil the value of advertising to all the rest, and to the uewspapers as well, so that it would be a splendid law if it could be made an indictable offense for a dealer to make any statement in print not easily substantiated No doubt there would be a revolution in present advertising methods, but the result would be healthful, and in the end, more profitable to all concerned. No town ever amounts to much withadvertiser in a live town does a good to his not advertising, but to those who do spend their cash liberally with the newspapers and bring the tide of people to the place to trade. Once there, they are very likely to drop into stores that do not advertise, particularly in certain lines of business not usually extensively advertised. Secondly, then, it is the advertisers who help make a town progressive-in helping their own business, they

Mr. and Mrs. Hanson, we arrived in Eisleben at 10 o'clock Christmas morning. We went straight to St. Peter's church. A little girl at the door informed us that the service was about over, which we of course expected. Nine o'clock is the usual hour for morning services here. We stepped inside, how-ever, and heard the closing hymn. The church was filled, galleries and all. The Christmas decorations consisted of two silver fir (Silber Tannebaume) trees, and the Bethlem manger scene. In the rear of the church there is a small chapel in which are kept the baptismal font in which Luther was baptized and the altar which was then in use in the church. Delegate I. T. J. Brown, of Somerset county, presented in the House on Wednesday, the bill repealing the Judges' Pension bill. In speaking of his bill Mr. Brown said: "There is now among the tax-payers generally a demand for the law's repeal. In fact, popular sentiment is against the payment of civil pensions. The correct principle is to pay all officials during service an ample compensation. In recognition of this principle the Legislature in recent years increased the pay of all the judges in this state 25 per cent. over former salaries, and it is a wellknown fact that these positions are en-tirely acceptable to the best legal talent without the pension provision. There is no more reason to pension a judge than there is to pension Governors, Comptrollers, Attorney-Generals, clerks of courts and other officials, a policy which, if indulged in, would prove an unendurable hardship upon the tax-payers of the state. The repeal of this law will be a saving to the state now of $16,000 a year, as there are now seven judges on the pay roll. Delegate George J. Luckey, of Frederick county, presented a bill to repea! the Shoemaker Road law. Mr. Luckey said that the County Commissioners of his county were unanimous in asking for the repeal of the bill, and the sentiment among the farmers was strongly against He declared that only one and fourtenths mile of road had been built under this law in Frederick county and that this had cost $9,500, of which $4,-Frederick county's share of the State appropriation, he said, the one and fourtenth miles has cost $12,750.

Mr. David H. Fenton, of Montgomery county, the minority leader in the House of Delegates, will introduce a road improvement bill designed to take the place of the Shoemaker Road Law, a bill to repeal which was offered by Mr. Luckey. Mr. Fenton's bill is in principle an extension of the abutting property owner plan of street improvements in the city to the counties. It will apply to all the counties and will provide that when a majority of the abutting and adjacent property holders shall petition the County Commissioners of any county to improve or build a road, the County Commissioners must at once advertise for bids and award the contract to the lowest responsible bidder. They are then authorized to issue bonds for the payment, and the abutting and adjacent property holders may either pay their ssments in cash or in installments to culture, and can be attributed to the work done and the lessons taught by the Corn Seed Specials, which traversed two important sections of the state last spring. This view is held not only by those who had charge of the movement, but by the farmers, who were wise enough to listen to the addresses and to make practical use of them. While the weather in some parts of the state was favorable to large fields of corn, in other parts the rainfall was too heavy for such elds, so that only an average crop was to be expected. But the government reports for Maryland show an increase in 1905 of 3½ bushels an acre, which would mean an increase in the total crop of over two millions of bushels, yielding over a million dollars to the farmers o

It such a record as this can be made a single year there is every reason for burg. a continuance of the work, and very soon another corn special should be sent out and should run to every part of the state. To carry out this plan the co-operation of the railroads is essential and should be easy to secure. Those, roads over which the special ran last year reaped larger profit from the increased crop they were called upon to handle, and look upon the small and inexpensive trains they Every railroad which has a track in Maryland should take the same business-like view of the plan and freely offer to the managers of the Corn Special all the traffic facilities they can possibly utilize. Such a course would not only bring them considerable profits before the present year is out, but would add largely to their regular sources of income in the

The chief aim of these corn specials is to induce Maryland farmers to select the est seed for planting, and to abandon the old plan of using any kind that may come to hand or that may have been kept by them through the winter. It stands to reason that the better the seed the better the crop, other conditions being equal, and when all Maryland farmers are convinced of it their annual product of corn and other grain will reach larger figures than it has yet touched .-

President vs. Congress.

In the consideration of the phases of the present contest between Congress and the President, and especially between the Senate and the President, it is necessary to consider, not only the dangers connected with adding to one man power, but the private influences which unquestionably direct, and dictate, policies of the government through both Senate and House. It is catching and popular to decry the President by ascribing to him a desire to run the whole country, forcing Congress to obey his dictates, but it must also be decided whether this, after all, is not the "lesser evil."

The Senate, especially, is not a representative body of the people. It at present represents almost everything else-trusts, business interests, personal ambitions, and a general policy of taking care of private business affairs and making laws to suit them. The President may be fracturing precedents and interfering with the prerogatives of Congress, but, has not Congress itself departed much further from original lines than the President? Startling as the question may be, does not the President represent the whole people more truly than the hundreds of Senators and members of the House?

President Cleveland had his disagreements with Congress-very serious ones -and gained unpopularity thereby with the politicians, but this does not prove that he was wrong. In fact, he is probably the most popular man to-day in his party, with the masses, but he could

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 21. By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Christ's Life 1. Lessons from His boyhood.—Luke ii. 40-52. (Union meet-ing with the Junior society.) The reason why the Christianity of so many professed Christians is of such an inferior character is because they are ignorant concerning the life of our Lord Jesus Christ. There are many Christian people who are thoroughly familiar with the lives of Washington and Lincoln, but who at the same time have no intelligent knowledge of the life of Christ. The reason of this ignorance is not hard to find. We study the lives of Washington and Lincoln intelligently and systematically, but when we come to the reading or the study of the life of Christ it is done in a most unsystematic manner. We read a chapter here and there in the gospels, but have no intelligent idea of the life of Christ from childhood to His death and resurrection. Few Christian people perhaps could name the first ten events in regular order in Christ's life, and yet if we are to be like Him we ing, therefore, that in connection with come in a full grown body, such as He miserable as they looked? the Christian Endeavor prayer meetings we are to study the life of Christ, and it should be thoroughly and faith-

Christ's boyhood was spent like the boyhood of other Jewish boys in His day. The incidents surrounding His birth are familiar to us as well as His flight with IIis parents to Egypt and His return after the death of Herod to Galilee, which from that time on became His home until He entered upon His public ministry at thirty years of age. Between the events of His childhood and the entering upon His public ministry, nearly thirty years later, but one incident in connection with the life of Christ is given-namely, His visit to Jerusalem when He was twelve years old with His parents at the time of the feast of the Passover. But this event in connection with other indirect references to His life during this period may teach us some lessons from the boyhood of Christ.

1. The boyhood of Christ teaches us the dignity of labor. Every Jewish boy was required by the law to learn an industrial trade. Christ became a carpenter, and during these silent years he undoubtedly spent much of his time working in the carpenter shop at the manual labor of His trade. Nothing in all human history has so dignified manual labor as this period in the life of our Lord and Saviour. It also teaches us the importance of youth being trained in a way that will result in their physical development, no matter what may be the professional or political career that seems to be before

2. Christ's boyhood teaches the importance of education. Every Jewish boy was well educated. It is true that his education consisted largely in studying the books that pertained to his religion, but in this study his mind would be as certainly developed as if the time had been given to the study of foreign languages or mathematics. The Jewish boy at three years of ago began the study of a certain phase of Jewish religion. At six years of ag he entered a more difficult study, and at thirteen years of age, having thoroughly studied the Jewish law, with its cry, "Restore unto me the joy of Thy traditions, he became "a child of the salvation" (Ps. li, 12). law" and occupied the same position in relation to the nation and to the church as all the men of Israel. 3. The boyhood of Christ teaches the importance of religion. This fact is most evident. His whole life centered in His relations to God and His mission as the Saviour of the world. Boyhood without religion should be made an absolute impossibility. In the days of our youth we should be taught to rémember our Creator.

How striking it is that in this His first recorded utterance and in His last as He died on the cross He said, "Father!" Count the number of times He used the name in His discourse and prayer on that last night and you will be still more "About My Father's business" would be an excellent motto for every child of God at all times. The majority are like Mary and Joseph and understand not, but if, like Mary, we kept His sayings in our hearts and pondered them (verses 19, 51) in due time we would understand, and the water would be boiling water (Isa. lxiv, 2). Queer Problems of Law.

Hundreds of years of test cases have not yet elucidated all the possible points of difficulty in the English law.

Here is a remarkable problem with which the Blackburn lawyers have just been confronted: An English gentleman had twin sons who were born within a few minutes of each other. He made a will that his property in Australia should go to whichever of the two sons arrived at the age of 21 first.

The younger of the two emigrated to Australia, while the other one remained in England, and the former was still in the Antipodes at the time of his coming of age. Now, Australian time is some hours in advance 'of Greenwich, and, therefore, the young man out there was 21 before his elder brother at home. Which of these two brothers is legally entitled to the property? The question has not yet been decided, and in the meantime readers may exercise their own acumen upon it. Are eggs, eggs, or are only hens' eggs, eggs? This may seem a ridiculous question, but nice shades of meaning are involved, and a case which turned upon it went through two or three courts of law A lady sent an order for a dozen eggs to a dairyman and he sent her ducks' eggs. She sent them back as not being what she ordered, but he refused to take them. She, in turn, declined to keep them, and some time elapsing between their journeys from the house to the shop, the eggs went bad, and eventually the shopkeeper sued the lady for 1s. 6d., The county court judge ordered her to pay, declaring that ducks' eggs were as much eggs as any others; but the lady appealed, and the King's Bench reversed the decision on the ground that when a meant and if any other contention were is considered that this game would be er by producing an egg of extraordiadmitted, any kind of eggs might be a great drawing card. sent, such as pigeons', canaries' or even rattlesnakes'. Ducks' eggs, it was decided, were not eggs in the ordinary meaning of the term. Is skimmed milk, milk? A man asked for a glass of milk to drink and was given skimmed milk, and the purveyor was fined for it; but in a higher court the decision was reversed, it being contended at the time that skimmed milk was really much more milk than milk that was not skimmed, since the latter contained something that was not milk at all-that is, cream.

He had a way of quoting and applying the latter, which in a religious community made it difficult to oppose him without incurring a suspicion of orthodoxy. His forte lay in carrying the jury, whom he generally succeeded in convincing that he and they were on one side and his adversary on the other. His style of grammar was original.

"I had carefully written out my opening, and when I read it over to Nellie Wynne, to whom I was paying attention at that time, she said it was real nice, which I knew was feminine for bully, an encomium I felt not a little proud of.

DON'T FORGET THE PLACE, The Baltimore Clothing House, Garner Building, Taneytown, Md.

PUBLIC SELLING BEGINS Saturday, December 23, at 8.30 o'clock. Sensational Clothing Transaction. Our honesty never questioned. Ask for any article advertised, and it will be shown as represented. We respectfully submit our past reputation for the genuineness of this advertisement.

To Move Clothing Means Total Loss. This enormous stock of Clothing and Gent's Furnishing Goods was made up for this Winter's selling. We realize that our loss in this sale will be heavy, but we are determined to dispose of these goods, let the loss be what it may.

The Baltimore Clothing House, NATHAN KIRSSIN, Prop'r.
