Boot and shoe manufacturers are beresult, they claim, of the increased cost of staples. The manufacturers of New England met recently and decided that the only thing to save them was an advance, and it was promptly ordered. Dispatches from that section of the country are to the effect that it is computed that the price of material has been in creased 52%. The causes for this advance in the price of staples, it is claimed, is directly traceable to the Beef Trust which stands in opposition to the reduction or dropping of the tariff on hides.

The third annual report of the Maryand State Library Commission has been submitted to Governor Warfield. After a bountiful supper, which was most heartily enjoyed, a number of toasts were offered, and responded to eulogizing the kind host and hostess and regretting their expected departure. Music on the mandolin, guitar and banjo added to the enjoyment of the evenlng. When the guests took their departure, many were the expressions of regret, that in a few weeks the family of Mr. Hahn would be in a distant part of the county, and would no longer be present to welcome and co-operate with the committee in their labors of love toward the inmates. They have always shown by their presence and words of encouragement that their hearts were in the work, and their successors will find, when they enter upon their new duties, eyidences of the contentment and trust, which are the natural results of patience and kindness as shown by those in authority to those under their care. Mr. and Mrs. It shall be the duty of each county to keep its roads in proper repair.

FARMERS' INSTITUTES.

Advance Program of this year's Meetings in Maryland.

Maryland, through her College of Agriculture and its Department of Farmers' Institutes, will again send into each ounty a corps of lecturers, or, as they prefer to be called, "workers" who, by spoken words instead of the written ones of the Experiment Station bulletins, will lead the farmers into new methods crop production whereby every acre of land will be made to bring forth greater and better products. They will not say their hearers must do as .they do, but will tell of their own methods that their hearers may themselves afterwards decide what is best for each in his own way Through the Agricultural College, the Experiment Station and the Farmers' Institutes, a rapid change is coming over the land. When a producer knows the ways and conditions under which the crops he is growing are handled by others with whom he must go on the world's markets, he is in possession of information which will materially help him either to produce at less cost, or it will convince him that it is useless to continue in the old methods or even to attempt to meet a competition when the new order of things, and perhaps even nature herself, is against him. He introduces into his system new crops better adapted to his soil, climate and his own fitness to produce.

Through the Grange, the Farmers Club, or other local organization, the farmers become acquainted with the methods of their neighbors, but through Farmers' Institutes, they learn of new ways, new crops, conditions under which others are working, the markets, and the needs of the consumers. Their fields of vision are extended, they become broader men and better farmers.

This season, Director Wm. L. Amoss, of the Maryland Farmers' Institutes, will be accompanied by two men as regular workers, who will visit all of the Mary land counties. They will be assisted by men who have succeeded in producing something on Maryland soil, wonderfully well, and by others who are devoting their lives to work and study of the many problems that vex our farmers.

According to the Republican leaders, the outlook for the passage of the Reform League election law, which has not been bright, is considerably better, although no strong hopes of passing it in its present form, including the restoration of the emblem, is entertained. After considerable discussion it was decided, however, that the Republicans in both branches will stick to the Reform League bill up to a certain point. When t is seen, however, that it cannot pass they will support any amendment tending to modify the present law and estabish a uniform ballot for the whole State. Some of the minority leaders are not hemselves particularly desirous of returning to the party emblem and would be willing, it is believed, to give up all effort to restore the emblem could they ecure the repeal of the Wilson bill.
Mr. Anders introduced a bill in the House which is modeled on the Illinois Divorce law. It provides that when a man or a woman is divorced in this State neither shall mary until a year has elapsed from the time of the granting o the decree. In case the cause of the divorce is adultery, the guilty person cannot maryr for at least two years. The bill provides, however, that the divorced persons may remarry each other at any time. A penalty of from one to three years in the penitentiary is provided for violation of the law.

Frizellburg. - A most delightful evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Hawn, near Meadow Branch, last Friday. A company of invited neighbors and triends, numbering about thirty, assembled there to be treated to an excellent musical entertainment rendered by a zonophone and graphophone. These were operated by W. A. Shaw, of Uniontown, and Mrs. Morris Crabbs, their daughter. The selections were varied and numerous such as to meet the taste of every one present. For three hours the music played alternatey and incessantly with little or no evidence of exhaustion or weariness, and perfect quiet prevailed.

It was still as a mouse, Not even one cared to dance. But there was a noise in the house, When "Tickling Reuben got a chance."

Well, about midnight all was astir, and feeling the obligations due the host and hostess, many expressions of gratitude were tendered them and all took leave for their respective homes giving assurance of having had a merry good time.

Those present were; Clayton Hawn and wife, Morris Crabbs and wife, Benton Myerly and family, William Walt-man and wife, Joseph Stoner and family, J. E. Null and family, Harry Baby-Handley, Bettie Morningstar, Jennie Hollinger, John Coe, W. A. Shaw, Rinehart Zile, Paul Devilbiss and Murray

A Birthday Surprise Social.

(For the RECORD.)
On Monday evening, Jan. 22nd., there was a very pleasant surprise party at "Wayside", the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Shoemaker. The event was in honor of their plants of the properties of the propert Shoemaker. The event was in honor of their son Erman, who was induced to postpone his "snooze" to entertain two or three of his cousins who were expected to call that evening. The cousins came; a goodly number of Mr. Erman's young friends also came, and continued to come until the number of "cousins" was, indeed, surprising.

The evening was spent in various amusements, singing, and instrumental music, there being many well rendered selections on violin ments, singing, and instrumental music, there being many well rendered selections on violin and piano. After "chats," the guests were invited to the dining-room, where an abundance of good things well maintained the reputation of "Wayside", "Cousin" Erman, after receiving from his many friends hearty assurance of their enjoyment of the evening's entertainment, was permitted to take his "snooze", which he prolonged far into next day, heedless of both breakfast bell and school bell.

The Reformed missionary society held their anniversary, last Sunday evening. A very interesting program was rendered. Recitations were given by Misses Beulah Smith, Mary Crum and Edith McCormack; reading by Mrs. Kate Shank; address by the pastor, Rev. Schaeffer; the singing was rendered by school bell.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Shoemaker, Mr and Mrs. John Bushey, Mrs. Jas. Hewitt, Miss Mamie Clark, Mr. Win. Clark, Mr. Edward Alexander, Mr. Bailey Duderer, and Rev. A. C. WHITE IS COOL, YET ARCTIC ANIMALS AS A RULE ARE WHITE.

Why Are Land Birds Mostly Dark and Sea Birds, In Many Cases, White?-Why Have Nearly All Pur-In summer weather ladies, and men, too, when possible wear white. Why? To keep cool, of course, you will say. If this be so, why, then, are almost all the creatures that live in arctic regions clothed in white? The usual reply is that the white color is for protective purposes-in order, in fact, to make them invisible to their enemies in the midst of the wastes of snow.

But, consider, again, is this reasonable? From whom does the polar bear M. HELTEBRIDLE, near Uniontown, Md. need to hide? He has no enemies to fear. And as for the birds which assume a white plumage when they migrate north, surely they also have far fewer foes in the polar regions than when farther south.

Again, if white be a cool color this is surely another reason against the inhabitants of the coldest regions turning white at the approach of winter. It is easy to strengthen this argument. Visit the tropics, and you will find hardly any white animals or birds. In the very hottest regions of the globe not only is man, as a rule, black, but the birds and beasts are either very dark or else extremely brilliant in color. Of tropical birds the commonest colors run as follows: Brown, dark green and dark blue, emerald green, reds and yellows.

Speaking of the birds again, why is it that land birds are mostly dark hued while so many sea birds are white? Here is another color puzzle. Almost all song birds are somber in hue, while the brightly colored species, such as the jays, the parrots and birds of paradise, have naturally harsh voices.

The colors of flowers and leaves offer numbers of interesting problems. No one quite knows why the prevailing tint of early spring flowers is either white or yellow. Yellow, indeed, holds its own to some extent all through the summer, but the typical color of summer blooms is pink, while as the autumn advances richer crimsons and all the rich, glowing hues of dahlias and chrysanthemums are seen.

Horticulturists have produced poppies of pretty nearly every shade under the sun, and with many other flowers they seem able to alter the colors almost as they please. Yet the blue rose, the black tulip and the green carnation seem as far off as ever they were in spite of constant efforts to arrive at them. Nearly three centuries ago Dutch gardeners imagined themselves on the verge of inventing a black tulip. The colors of the blossom of fruit trees are limited to white, pink, bright scarlet and purple. The reason no one knows. Nor is it clear why nearly all plants with purple blossoms have poisonous properties. The deadly nightshade is an instance which will be familiar to all country readers.

It used to be said and many still imagine that intensity of color depends upon intensity of light. The brilliancy of a tropical landscape seems in some measure to bear this out. But any amount of arguments may be deduced against it. Rubies, opals and other exquisitely colored gems are dug from

The rays of the sun have never touched them. The pulp of some fruits is more richly tinted than the outer rind, while the crimson blood of animals is hidden from the light. What could be more rich and magnificent in color than the wings of many moths? Yet these are all night flying creatures. Speaking of moths, it seems odd that there is no blue moth. Very few show even a touch or spot of blue. The colorings of butterflies present many problems, for there seems no order or method in their hues and markings, and a strange point is the absolute difference in these points between species otherwise closely allied.

Why do autumn leaves turn yellow? Here is a question which is more easily answered than some that have already been suggested. The popular reply is, "The frost does it." This is only partly correct. If a really hard frost were to happen early in autumn there would be no tints at all. All the leaves would turn brown at once. The really gorgeous colors are produced by a slow and gradual fall of temperature, of course, without too much wind or rain. The cold causes a chemical ferment, which attacks the color compounds in the cells of the leaf. It is those leaves which contain most sugar which oxidize most rapidly and of which, consequently, the color becomes most rich and brilliant. A question which is often asked is, 'Why do lobsters, shrimps and certain other similar shellfish turn red when boiled?" It seems that the black coloring matter which colors the shell of the lobster during life is an iron compound. We know that iron rust is red. The effect of boiling is practically to turn this iron compound in the lobster shell to a highly oxidized rust. The dislike of certain creatures for certain colors is strange. If a number of earthworms be placed in an oblong box, of which one half is covered with red and the other with blue glass, they will with one accord crawl away from the blue light and take refuge under the red glass. Many other higher creatures share the same dislike to blue rays.—Pearson's Weekly.

"Robbing Peter to Pay Paul." This saying had its origin in the rivalry between St. Peter's cathedral, now Westminster abbey, and St. Paul's, when, in 1550, an appropriation was made from St. Peter's to make good a deficiency in the accounts of St. Paul's. Much opposition was shown to this, and it was for the time a popular outcry, "Why rob Peter to pay Paul?" The saying was revived as a proverb upon the death of William Pitt, earl of Chatham, in 1778. The city of London argued that so illustrious a statesman should be buried at St. Paul's, while parliament held that the remains of so great a leader should

A thousand-pound cow should have ten to twelve pounds of Sucrene Dairy A thousand-pound cow should have ten to twelve pounds of Sucrene Dairy Feed per day in addition to hay, straw or corn stalks. No grain is necessary.

There is something wonderfully beneficial in the feeding of Molasses to animals: It is all digestible and is more quickly assimilated than any other food It is a well-known fact that animals thrive far better on a feed they are fond of than one they do not like. Being appetizing, nutritious, so easily digested, and quickly assimiliated accounts for the wonderful results from feeding Sucrene – especially to animals that are out of condition and suffering from indigestion. A good, healthful, nutritious and appetizing feed is far better than medicine, and It is a great advantage to use the best feed on the market; one that will keep your animals in best of health and condition. It keeps animals that are confined in the stable on dry feed in as fine condition as if on best clover pasture.

It is to the feeder's profit to use a feed that will keep his animals in the best of health and condition at the least expense and trouble, and enable the cow to furnish a surplus of the best and richest milk over and above the cost of feed. It is a pleasure to any man who realizes his duty to the dumb animals in his charge to see them healthy, sieck, fat, and contented.

Try its effects on your calves. It is wonderful. Feed it to your pigs and watch them grow fat. Make a warm mash of it and feed to your chickens and count the increase in
