According to postoffice inspectors, men are easily gulled by women. Almost every day the Postoffice Department is notified by some unfortunate man that he has been fooled by a woman who promised to marry him and then failed to meet him. Almost invariably the engagement has been brought about by a matrimonial advertisement, with the result that after the lady has yielded to the ardent wooer's pleadings and had consented to marry him, and has sent him a pathetic little note, stating that her love was strong, but her purse was weak, and asking that he send on $20, $30 or $40 to her to defray the expenses of her railroad of the following suit nours.

Contrary to expectation, as well as to for we do not have to spend any money the real sentiment of the majority of the niners, the miners' convention, on Saturday, adopted resolutions favoring the continuance of the 1903 scale. This decision was agreed on after arriving at the conviction that a strike at this time could not succeed, because of the immense supply of coal on hand, and be cause public sentiment is not back of the demands of the strikers. In effect, the action of the convention is acknowledgement of defeat by the Union. The following resolutions were adopted by the convention: First-That we agree to work on the basis of the award of the anthracite coal strike commission for such period of time as may be agreed upon mutually between the representatives of the anthracite coal mining companies and our scale committee, provided that all men who suspended work on April 1, or since that time, or who have been dis missed because they stated that they would refuse to work if a strike were de-Dr. C. Rockville, Md., May 10.-Unusually heavy frosts prevailed throughout Mont-gomery county last night. Strawberries were in full bloom, and it is feared that this crop has been badly injured, although the extent of the damage will not be definitely learned for several days. The tenderer early vegetables, are also thought to be injured, while corn that is up has received a bad setback.

Frederick, Md., May 10.-Frost occurred throughout Frederick county last night, doing damage to early vegetation and strawberries. Fruit growers are of the opinion that peaches have thus far escaped damage, notwithstanding the fact that there has been frost for two nights in succession. In some parts of the county ice formed last night to the thickness of almost half an inch, and wherever beans were left uncovered the new vines were killed.

Cumberland, Md., May 10.—Growers say that the wind and rain, which was mixed with the snow, has probably saved the fruit and early vegetation. It was unseasonably cold early this morning, but the sky had not entirely cleared up, and that prevented frost. Except in places which the wind could not reach there has been but little damage. The atmosphere continues cold, and growers say should the low temperature continue to-night and at the same time the sky clear up the resultant frost would cause great damage. The Allegany Mountains are covered with snow. It was snowing so heavily in the Glades in the vicinity of Terra Alta and Oakland yesterday evening that passengers could hardly see through the car windows. Snow lies on the ground at Frostburg and at points along the West Virginia Central.

Locusts not due this Year.

Referring to inquiries in regard to the eappearance of locusts in Maryland, Dr. aswell Grave associate in zoology the Johns Hopkins University, said:

'The cicada, or, as it is commo called, the locust, is generally known in this country, owing to the great numbers in which it appears at long intervals of time. This periodical appearance is due to the long time required for the nymphs to obtain their growth—either 17 or 13 years—and to the fact that all the members of one generation appear in the adult state at about the ame time. The 17 year species will not be seen here again until 1919. 'The eggs hatch in about six weeks. The young nymphs, finding no attraction in a world of sunshine and flowers, drop to the ground and bury themselves in the earth, thus beginning a voluntary 103 was smashed into kindling wood and the roof was thrown forward on top of trees. In May of the seventeenth year of the retiremet to their earthly cloisters they crawl up to the surface of the ground and, leaving their nymph skins clinging to the tree trunks, come forth well fitted to get all the experience

"In the South these insects live only 13 years under the ground, but in the North it requires 17 years for a locust to reach maturity. 'There is a common species of cicada, known as the dogday harvest fly, which requires only two years for its development, and as there are two broods of this species the adults appear every year. Its song is the sharp, high trill that comes to us at noontime in midsummer from the depths of trees where the singer is hidden amid the foliage all unconcious that its shrill note has for centuries been a theme for poets,'

The first tourists of the season to pass through the park have just reached Cody and told of the changes. They say that the park and contiguous territory are constantly trembling. For what is more disgusting for a cook to anticipate having fruit for dessert and to find upon pre-paring it that the majority of it is wormy or otherwise diseased; and it is more discouraging for an orchardist to anticipate pecuniary benefit from his orchard and upon picking the fruit to realize that the best of it is unsalable. The department states that White is not a doctor, but that he simply assumed the title of "doctor." His chief efforts, according to the report of the inspectors filed with the Assistant Attorney-Generel, were directed toward the sale of a pamphlet, which he claimed in his advertisements was written by the "most powerful woman in the world." advertisement says that "The Greatest Secrets Ever Revealed" will be mailed free to all, but when answers were received, the report says, an effort was made to induce the writer to subscribe for "Dr. White's Correspondence Course," for which $7 in cash was asked. The correspondence course, the department avers, is a misnomer, simply being a pamphlet relating to spiritual sm, hypnotism and kindred subjects. The evidence collected shows that thousands of answers were received from the advertisements, and that when one a name was obtained a relentless campaign was waged to sell the person answering some of the literature published

What Will the Harvest Be?

Farmers have been having such a stretch of prosperity, and favorable seasons with big crops, that it seems almost railway systems to prorate has resulted very interesting operation. Hundreds of time for the record to be broken, for it is the rule that in almost every direction there are changes-times "too good to last." Following out this reasoning, and taking our excessively wet winter and Spring into the count, many are predicting that the coming summer will be one of nuusual drouth, and that this is the year for short crops; that a break in the farmer's prosperity is at hand. These opinions, of course, and largely mere guess-work. They may hit, or may not. If they do, the country is in a good condition to stand a short crop season; that is, the majority are, for it must be acknowledged that a good many have been living up to their income, or in all probability would not do so, no experience.

It must be said, too, to be truthful, that many who depend on good crops and profit by favorable seasons, have not been overly thankful, but have regularly found many things to grumble over always imagining that other people are getting "the best of it." True, everybody is prosperous, as a rule, when the farmer is prosperous, but the latter always has the advantage over others, no matter how much he may deny the ashe seems not to be getting ahead very fast, the fault is very apt to lie in the weakness of his own business and managerial ability, and not that his work is not as profitable as other work.

It is time enough to bewail hard fate when it comes, without meeting it halfwoy, and so it is as to what the season has in store. If it is a drouth, let us make the very best of it; probably it would be a blessing in disguise, for it would teach us not to grumble and complain when things are coming so satisfactorily our way. A little hard luck, now and then, keeps one from becoming too independent and selfish.

If the amount be small, the neglect in paying it is correspondingly great-it is too small a matter to amount to anything. The business man, however, does not think so, for his aggregate of such accounts often amounts to a very large sum. Simply stated, the small credit habit is an abuse of the credit system and a distinct imposition and nuisance.

Financing a Fire Loss.

San Francisco's great fire has directed attention to the manner in which an insurance company goes about to settle a huge loss bill, says the New York Post. Although the companies are abundantly able to pay and many of them possess very heavy bank balances, the adjustment of claims calling for the payment of $150,000,000 or more represents a financial operation of sufficient magnitude to involve rather careful financing. Where, indeed, are there histories that exactly agree together or that are not charged by some with prejudice and distortion? Macaulay and Froude could not write about events centuries old without a marked partisan bias. Topic.—Christ's Life V. Lessons from His miracles of healing.—Matt. ix, 27, 34; In the three years of His public ministry our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ spent most of His time "in teaching, preaching and healing." His miracles were performed primarily to convince the world of His divinity. They were God's stamp of approval of Pentecost Peter declared that God approved of Christ "by miracles, signs and wonders." But the miracles had secondary purposes. They were performed in every case except one-the cursing of the barren fruit tree for the benefit of suffering mankind. They were usually miracles of healing. "Jesus went about all the cities and villages teaching in their synagogues and preaching the gospel of the kingdom and healing every sickness and every disease among the people." But in addition to this the miracles of Christ had a didactic character. They taught lessons. They were in a sense parables in action. He spoke many parables to the people, and in His miracles He worked many parables before them. The former were word pictures of the kingdom and the latter were object lessons of the kingdom, and sometimes the teachings of the miracles are niore vivid than those of the parables, Christ's miracles from the standpoint of the lessons they teach. 1. The miracles of Christ teach us a lesson on Christ's divinity. In some quarters today the doctrine of Christ's deity is seriously questioned and even boldly denied, but Christ claimed to be God, and by the exercise of powers that belong to God He substantiated that claim. To give up the deity of Christ is to give up belief in His miracles; to give up belief in His miracles is to give up the gospels that record them, and to give up the gospels is practically to give up the Bible, to give up God and to be "without hope in the world." These great truths are all bound together. They are links in the same chain. Break one link and the chain is broken, and this is true regardless of the link that is broken. Our faith must embrace all or it dwindles into nothing; hence the need of holding fast the doctrine of miracles as an attestation to the fact that Christ while human was also more than human, that He was God.

2. The miracles of Christ teach us a lesson on Christ's attitude toward humanity. He did not come to earth to behold the miseries and afflictions of men and to hold Himself aloof from them, but to sympathize with suffering humanity and to bring divine relief to their sufferings. In every miracle that He performed we see a manifestation of His sympathy, His love and His compassion for a lost and sinful race and His desire to share their sorrows and to lift men above them. Moreover, His miracles were symbolical of His attitude toward man's spiritual condition. The healing of the blind was typical of His willingness to heal the spiritually blind; when He made the lame to walk He demonstrated His desire and ability to make those

Do You Wish that You were Better?

By REV. W. H. ENGLER.
Do you wish that you were better?
I will tell you what to do;
Turn away from Sin and folly,
Into paths Divinely fair;
Set your minds on things eternal;
Let your motives all be pure;
You can make a little Heaven,
Of the place where er you dwell.

Do you wish that you were wise? Let the spirit lead you on, In the way of Heavenly wisdom; It will make your lives sublime. Do not waste your time in folly, Live for others while you live; If you want to serve your Master, You must serve your fellow-men.

Do you wish to grow to manhood? In the service of your King; Let the graces of the Spirit, Ever make you pure within; It will prove the greatest treasure, That you'll gather here in time, If your lives have been made holy, And your actions all are clean.

Do you wish that all were happy? And the world would better grow; Then just scatter seeds of kindness, As you on your journey go; For the harvest that awaits you, Will depend on what you sow, And your actions here shall either Give you peace or give you woe,
