On last Sunday, while Rev. M. Beard, who was a former pastor of M. Joy congregation, and who has many friends in this community, was preaching a most powerful farewell sermon.

a large congregation at Middletown, Md., his congregation became very much affected and many were in tears. After the sermon was over and the Rev. had raised his hand to pronounce the benediction he was so deeply affected that he spoke only a few words when his voice ceased and he stood in silence for a seconds, then completely collapsed and fell heavily out on the pulpit. The congregation was so startled that they could scarcely realize what it meant. His daughter rushed to his assistance and a physician who was in the congregation administered to his relief. After he had recovered his many friends gathered around him, most of whom wept bitterly. Rev. Beard will take charge of the congregation at Thurmont, Md.

Mrs. E. L. Hess, on Wednesday morning, was hastily summoned to the bedside of her sister-in-law, near Blacksville, this county, who, it was thought, would not live until noon. We are informed that W. A. Shoemaker, of near this place, was taken seriously ill, on Wednesday evening with something like cramps. He has been around this place in the morning selling grapes and took dinner with his brother, Samuel, and was taken ill shortly after.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. I. Shriver went on the excursion to Baltimore, on Tuesday, and expect to spend the remainder of the week visiting friends in the city.

Very much needed additions to the equipment of the school building.

We sincerely hope, with the RECORR's view, that the electric railroad proposed will become a reality. We have been skeptical about the enterprise, as a form of movement of similar nature proved failure.

Cupid at least has been busy. We expect ere long to hear the wedding bells ring in our village.

The rigid enforcement of the R. F. D. regulations have resulted in giving a better service. At least the Carrier appreciates the uniformly and more convenient position of the mail-boxes.

Prayer Meeting Topic for the Week
Beginning Sept. 2.
By E. D. DOYLE.
Topic—Spiritual blindness—John ix, 35-38; Matt. xiii, 12-13.

Physical blindness is justly considered one of the greatest afflictions that can befall any one in prosperity. It requires no proof to substantiate this belief. The blessings of sight are among our greatest blessings, and to lose them is one of the greatest calamities that can befall us. But even the lack of physical vision is not to be compared to the lack of spiritual vision. If it is a calamity not to see the beauties of the world which God has made, how much greater a calamity is it not to be able to see God Himself? So with all the spiritual realities, to which material things do not compare.

Yet spiritual blindness is a common disease, even among those who have the best physical sight. Dr. McCosh once said that the people of the world could be divided into three classes—(1) Those whose eyes are open; they see God at all times. (2) Those whose eyes are opened at times and closed at others; they see God in prospect, but have no vision of Him in adversity. (3) Those whose eyes are closed. They do not see God at all. To which one of these classes do we belong? A sad fact about spiritual blindness is that it is often not realized. The physically blind are most conscious of their affliction, but the spiritually blind are often ignorant of their condition, which makes it all the more lamentable.

The Pharisees were blind and did not know it. They were living in sin, sign of spiritual blindness, yet were ignorant of the fact, and some of them said to Christ, "Are we also blind?" It is well for us to examine ourselves as to our true spiritual condition and in a different spirit to ask, "Are we also blind?" If sin abides in us, though we think we see, we are blind. If we exalt material things above spiritual things we are blind. If we are devoid of faith and do not have the testimony of the Spirit with our spirits that we are the children of God we are blind. If blind, let us discover the fact and in Christ find sight. He came to give spiritual vision in place of spiritual blindness. He is the light who opens our eyes and to give us wonderful visions of God, of Himself and of all spiritual things. This was His mission upon earth, and for no sincere heart will He refuse spiritual sight.

NOTE READINGS.
Deut. xvi, 10; Prov. xxix, 18; Isa. xxviii, 7; John iii, 1-12; 17; xii, 37-48; Acts xiv, 24-31; Rom. i, 17; I Cor. iii, 14; Eph. iv, 17-24.

Notable Greetings.
Among the many notable greetings which came to Christian Endeavor on its twenty-fifth birthday stand out these two:

Hon. Charles W. Fairbanks, vice president of the United States, said: "I extend the most cordial greetings to the members of the young people's societies of Christian Endeavor. They are engaged in a work which makes for the betterment of the world, and which is for the benefit of all mankind. They are a mighty force for good and are worthy of the utmost encouragement and support. I wish the utmost success in their beneficent enterprise."

Hon. Frank W. Higgins, governor of New York.

With pleasure I greet the 2,500,000 Christian Endeavorers and their friends on the occasion of the celebration of the quarter century of their organization. A true Christian must be a good citizen, awake and energetic, not merely passive and content in a consciousness of his righteousness. Honest and upright men and women who for the honor and love of God will dare to rebuke and punish the wickedness of wrong no less than the offender is rich, prosperous and powerful than when he is wretched and poor are needed today more than ever before.

A Midnight March.

Endeavorers in East London have recently held a second temperance crusade. A large number of them assembled for prayer at 10:30 p. m. At 11:30 they set out to march through the streets, the president of the East London Christian Endeavor union, Professor Forbes Jackson, leading the procession, together with many students from his own institution, Harley college, and a local band of the Salvation Army. Hats were made outside the saloons, and invitations were extended to the midnight meeting. The hearty singing of the hymns attracted a large crowd to the evangelistic meeting that was held at 12 o'clock. This is certainly strenuous Christian Endeavor, and is nobly carrying out our Savior's injunction to go out into the highways and hedges and compel them to come in—Christian Endeavor World.

Stick to Your Decisions.

A Christian Endeavorer should be careful as to the decisions he makes in his business, but, once having made them, he should stick to them. He should not allow himself to be influenced after he thoroughly believes in his own mind that God has guided him in the conclusions he has arrived at. "The steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the Lord's love," says Paul. Morison in Australian Christian Endeavor Link.

Better Than Ever Before.

It is my firm conviction that the matter of Bible study, missionary work, rescue mission service and in general and consecrated endeavor throughout our land the young people's societies are in better condition today than ever before so far as real blessing to the church is concerned.—J. Wilbur Chapman, D. D.

The Inspiration of Endeavor.
Wear us out, O God! Wear us out in this endeavor and then promote us to higher service!—David James Burrell, D. D.

It is possible to sprout an acorn in a green-house, but it is not possible to make an oak tree grow there.

The Better Way

The tissues of the throat are inflamed and irritated; you cough, and there is more irritation—more coughing. You take a cough mixture and it eases the irritation—for a while. You take and it cures the cold. That's what's necessary. It soothes the throat because it reduces the irritation; cures the cold because it drives out the inflammation; builds up the weakened tissues because it nourishes them back to their natural strength. That's how Scott's Emulsion deals with a sore throat, a cough, a cold, or bronchitis.

A letter from Rev. C. A. Britt to the Editor of the RECORD states that he is making distinct progress toward recov- ery; that healing seems to be coming slowly but surely, and the present out- look is that the treatment (anti-toxin) will result in great permanent benefit if not actual cure. His many warm friends here after the good news with much pleasure and trust that his life may long be spared to active usefulness.

The Editor has returned from Monn- tan Lake Park and is trying to get hold of the lines again, though to our readers it has likely not been apparent that he dropped them, so well has our substitute, Mr. C. E. Cassell, performed his work. A letter on the season at Mt. Lake will appear either in the next issue, or the one following. Mr. Cassell left, on Thurs- day, for an outing with his family, carry- ing with him the best wishes of our force and of all with whom he has become ac- quainted while here.

The back of the hot and humid wave was broken Monday night. On arising Tuesday morning humanity discovered that sweltering was at least for the time, at an end. One of the oddities of our climate is the statement in Tuesday morning's weather report: "Much need- ed rains fell Monday in New York and western New England; this in the face of such a succession of rainstorms as have prevailed here during the past month. Washington country was visited on Mon- day by another rainstorm, doing much damage and Winchester, Va., was flood- swept for the seventh time within sixty days." It is feared that the early corn, now about matured, will be affected by the continued wet weather and fall plowing has been delayed. Report came to this office on Tuesday that some mould had been found on sweet corn and one or two "shoots" are found on stalks, and one of which will mature, but in drawing strength will interfere with the perfecting of the main ear on the stalk. There is promise, however, of an excellent corn crop.

The loing hard winds slowly o'er the le.

The plowman homward plods his very wa.

And leves the world to darkness and to me.

Ful meny a gem of purest rai seereen

The dark, unfathomed kaves of oshen bare;

Ful meny a flowr is born to blash unseen

And waxes and waxes on the desert air.—New York World.

EMANSIPASHUN PROKLAMASHUN BY A LINKIN.

And by virtue of the power, and for the purpos aforesaid, I do order and deklair that all persons of the lands of the said States, and of hence forward foever shal be, free; and that the executive govern- ment of the said States, including the military and navi orthoreetes thereof, will recognize and manetene the freedom of said persons, and will do no akts to oppress said persons, or any of them, in any suitable efforts they ma make for their actual freedum. And I hereby apael to the pepul so deklared to be free to abstain from all disorde, tumult and vio- lence, unles in necessary self-defense; and in all cases, when allowed, to labor faithfully and honestly.

When, in the corse of human events, it becoms necessary for one pepul to dissolve the political bands which have knoected them with another, and to assume, among the powers of the erth, the separate and equl stasheon to which the laws of nature and of nature's god entitl them, a desent respot to the opiny- ons of mankind requires that they shud deklare the kaus which impels them to the seprashun.—New York Herald.

The Globe's leader, under the head- ing, "Anky Panky," concludes: "We really think Ruzelf and his friends must leve us our own language. They have not left us much else. In sum instances it may be pulling, especially to a foriner and an intoure schoolboy, but its or- thograpy has a serin historikal value, and we do not like to part with it. Of kours, if Ruzelf, in his book, by by Karnege sez we hav got to return our spelling we shal hav to, and that will be the end of it, for Karnege has awei the dollars and cents of the world, and he will not let the game it will be dash hard lines."—London Globe.

Mare had a little lam,

The lam was shure to go.

When you have a cold it is well to be very careful about anything that will cause constipation. Be particularly careful about preparations containing opiates. Use Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar, which stops the cough and moves the bowels. Sold by J. McKellip, Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

Unnecessary Fear of Lightning.

There is something so intangible about the bolt from the clouds that the reason- ing faculties of certain people seem to be suspended during thunder storms. They shrink from the mysterious power even though it may be shown that more people die from the lightning of the com- mon house cat than from lightning. Such has been the case in the past. Another reason for the common fear of lightning is the fact that the lightning strikes the same place every day of the year we should probably lose our fears. Tu- berculous kills more men and women than lightning. It is the millions for fight- ing it that we do in preparing coat de- fenses and erecting great navies. People do not like to spend the millions for fight- ing it that we do in preparing coat de- fenses and erecting great navies. People do not like to spend the millions for fight- ing it that we do in preparing coat de- fenses and erecting great navies.

A Way of Putting It.

"How old did you say she was?" looking askance at the straggleminded daughter.

"Twenty-two."

"Gracious, but she's young for her age!"—Philadelphia North American.

Dangerous Lakes.

She—They say that sailing on lakes is considered far more dangerous than sailing on the sea.

He—I guess that's right. I've heard of more engagements made in a canoe than on a steamship.

Miss Gligles—He remarked that I was "swanlike." Wasn't that nice of him?

Miss Knox—Oh I don't know. He made that remark when you were trying to sing.

Russia's Reign of Terror.

A reign of terror exists throughout Russia. The terrorists have during the past week inaugurated a campaign of murder that is appalling in its extent and ferocity. A bomb exploded in the house of Premier Stolypin killed upwards of twenty and wounded nearly forty; the assassins themselves were blown to pieces. Some believe the explosion to have been accidental and premature; others believe that the men chosen to commit the deed voluntarily sacrificed themselves.

The military governor of Warsaw was shot and killed on Monday. An unsuccess- ful attempt was made to kill Baron Stall at Paderborn yesterday. The wife mistaken for General Treppoff, the latter being under ban of the nihilists. Col. Reiman of Governor General Skalon's staff was assassinated on Monday and General Min was shot and killed by a woman while walking in the park of Peterhof palace. A girl, 16 years of age approached the home of Gen. Kaulbars, Governor General of Odessa and acciden- tally dropped a package when within 50 or 60 yards of the house; it exploded, blowing usually the thrower becomes a victim because it is only adopted as a final resort.

The persistence, audacity and success of the assassins is the result of a policy brought on a condition approaching a panic among the officials and one now hears whispered in St. Petersburg the ominous words: "The czar is not safe." Women are considered to be not only cleverer in hiding her designs and there does not seem to be lack of women of the desperate courage required for their execution. Many of them carry a pistol to do the killing and a bomb to be used if the pistol fails. When the bomb is thrown usually the thrower becomes a victim because it is only adopted as a final resort.

Tamboff, Aug. 27.—A police captain, two gendarmes and a conductor were killed on a train by a band of revolution- ists near here yesterday.

Riga, Aug. 27.—The police today cap- tured a depot of revolutionary stores, in- cluding 24 bombs.

Simbirsk, Aug. 27.—The Church of All Saints here was entered last night and plundered of its treasures. The articles of value which were not taken were de- stroyed.

Riga, Russia, Aug. 27.—A punitive expedition visited the district near We- den, where a rural guard was killed re- cently, instituted a drunken court-mar- tial, put to death three revolutionists and dogged many peasants with whips. A fine of $1,500 was imposed on the two communities involved.

Farm Hands and Molasses.

The farm hands, a dozen brawny, colored men, had washed at the pump; and now sat patiently and quietly at the table. Soon their dinner appeared. There was some kind of boiled pork—a long, low oblong of pure white fat, with just one thread of lean running through it, and there was something like molasses, I like it myself. The long, hard work in the sunny fields gives you an appetite that nothing satisfies as molasses will.

"I used to have an overseer who could no more have eaten his dinner without molasses than without his coffee. He took on his plate meat, potatoes, corn, beans, and so on, and he would chop and mingle these things together, add- ing bits of bread besides, and lastly he would take the molasses jug and pour out about half a pint. That section like a heavy and sickening slug for the hot noon of an August day, doesn't it? I tell you, though, it tastes good to a man who has been toiling in a blazing field since sunrise. I've tried it, and I know."

Last of the Saltin Craft.

"It seems to me," remarked the retired sea captain, "that such boats as these," he indicated at a fishing schooner as he spoke that was coming up the bay whar and wing—"are the only craft left nowadays that don't have 'kickers' in them or use steam power in some way. Of course canal boats use steam, but they are not fishing boats. Coming up from the Jersey coast has a naphtha engine in her, all the fisher- men along our coast who just go out a day at a time depend on naphtha to get back to market, and all the city slicks who used to have salted herring given them up for power boats. Every big ship of any size at all uses donkey engines to get up sail and anchor, and so the old original American schooner sticks to sails alone. I wonder how long it will be before these fishing craft will go the same road. When they do one of the most picturesque things known to man will have passed out of existence. I tell you."
