It is reported that a Washington attorney with an inquiring turn of mind has dug up a bill passed by Congress some years ago to the effect that Webster's dictionary shall be the authority for the way the words used in official documents are to be spelled. That being the case, Mr. Roosevelt's efforts to improve the spelling in public documents may be rendered null and void unless Congress comes to his rescue and repeals the ancient statue.

the Riggs National Bank in Washington. The bookkeepers have no end of trouble in keeping the President's balances straight, because so many people who get checks from him fail to cash them, preferring to preserve the checks as souvenirs. So many persons are willing to pay from one dollar to ten dollars for an uncashed check signed by

The smallest horse in the country, which can pass under an ordinary writing desk, without touching it, is on exhibition at Wanamaker's store at Philadelphia. The horse is an in-bred Siberian and is of the species that run wild on the Ural Mountains. The animal, which is twenty-six inches high and weighs forty-seven pounds, is the property of 6-year-old Leah Viola Desh, of Carlisle, a niece of Prof. Gleason, who captured the sire and dam of the animal and brought them to this country. The horse's name is Prince and a silver dollar will cover one of his hoofs.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the board of directors of the Washington, Frederick and Gettysburg Railway Company, held in Frederick, Thursday afternoon, arrangements were made for the beginning of work on the proposed trolley line between Frederick and Thurmont next week. The section of the road between Frederick and Lewistown, about half way to Thurmont. will be built first, and the grading of this section will be begun next week by two forces of workmen, starting at Frederick and Lewistown and working to-wards each other. While work on this section is in progress the engineering corps will complete the survey for the section between Lewistown and Thur-

The body of an unknown man, in a bad state of decomposition, was found on Wednesday in Hamilton's wood, Hagerstown, by William Dovel. A complete morphine outfit, consisting of hy podermic syringe, two bottles of morphine and several needles, a cheap watch and $1.03 in money were taken from his pockets. The man had probably been lying in the woods for 10 days or more. His brown hair had fallen from his head. The features were entirely unrecognizable. No papers or anything that could lead to the man's identification were found. It is thought the man either took an overdose of morphine unintentionally or committed suicide. He was probably 50 years old. He wore a slouch hat, which was found not far from the body, a light-colored coat and dark trousers. He wore no underclothes.

WALKER-LITTLE. On Sept. 27, 1906, 10 a.m.

Death has robbed us of our baby, Whom we loved and cherished dear; It was baby, yes, dear baby: Can we help but shed a tear? This lovely bud so young, so fair, Called hence by early doom, Just came to show how sweet a flower In Paradise would bloom.

Beneath the shades of twilight

Oh, weep not then for little Eva, Her gentle spirit has fled; She is safe in the arms of Him Who doeth all things well.

She sleeps within the cold grave; The dark blue skies above her: She was too pure and fair on earth None knew her but to love her. My feet will ofttimes wander, * By her little sister. Blanche.

Safe, safely gathered in, Far from sorrow, far from sin; God has saved from weary strife, In its dawn, this fresh young life. For the life so young and fair, Now hath passed from earthly cares; God, himself, the soul will keep, Giving her his beloved sleep.

By Grandpa and Grandma Reigle.

And yet through all, at times she'd smile,

She is now beneath the sod, And the way is for us to trod; Her voice no more we shall hear, For she was our Eva dear. By her Aunts Emma, Annie and Ida. ----

SHE WINS FRIENDS.

The Woman Who Takes an Interest In Other People's Lives.

The secret of getting along with everybody and having a good time wherever you go is to like people and to take an interest in their lives. It does not matter whether it is a princess or a serving maid, a statesman or a farmer whom you are thrown with for a few minutes or a few hours; find out the main interest of the life you have met, and talk about that, and you will interest yourself and your hearer too.

And somehow she finds them. Be the quantity great or infinitesimally small, she calls it out. She has friends everywhere. People love her, believe and confide in her. Why? Because she loves, believes in and takes an interest in everybody

A Surprise Birthday Party.

A Well Known Duck Farm.

Rev. D. B. Mentzer, proprietor of the well-known duck farm several miles east of Waynesboro, Pa., has determined on an enlargement of the industry. Heretofore there has been a portion of the year, between the holidays and the for the market.

rangements for this innovation in duck

Ducks on the farm have been laying since July and already ducklings are being hatched. Each day ducks are coming out of the shells and many of the mountain visitors have found the farm an exceptionally interesting place at this time. Two thousand ducks will probably be hatched during the winter and forwarded to the cities. This year already 10,000 ducks have been hatched, making it the record year for the farm. Six thousand ducks have been dressed and several thousand remain to be prepared for market.

There are sold from the farm about 200 ducks a week. Last week the number was 270. This week it will be about 200. The fowls are supplied chiefly to the summer resorts during the season. Now large shipments are being made to the cities, Pittsburg being the favored place. The ducks sold average 10 lbs.

The duck farm is one of the show places of the mountain and hundreds of makes men miserable, and when we people go from Monterey, 4 miles, and Blue Ridge Summit and Buena Vista, 5 miles, to see the flocks of ducks and almost daily new visitors to the mountain are taken there to observe how ducks are hatched, how they revel in the water and how they are fattened for market. SHARPENING A PENCIL.

In This Act, It Is Said, You May Read a Man's Character. No woman should marry a man till she has seen him sharpen a lead pencil. She can tell by the way he does It whether he is suited to her or not. Here are a few infallible rules for her guidance in the matter: The man who holds the point toward him and close up against his shirt front is slow and likes to have secrets. He is the kind of man who when the dearest girl in the world finds out that there are "others" and asks him who they are and what he means by calling on them will assume an air of excessive dignity.

The man who holds the pencil out at arm's length and whittles away at it, hit or miss, is impulsive, jolly, good natured and generous He who leaves a blunt point is dull and plodding and will never amount to much. He is really good hearte i. but finds his chief pleasure in the commonplace things of life. He who sharpens his pencil an incl or more from the point is high strung and imaginative and subject to exuberant flights of fancy. He will always be seeking to mount upward and road, was a telegraph operator for five ecomplish things in the higher re- years. gions of business and art, and his wife's greatest trouble will be to hold him down to earth and prevent his flying off altogether on a tangent.

The man who sharpens his pencil all around smoothly and evenly, as though it were planed off in an automatic sharpener, is systematic and slow to anger, but he is so undeviating from a fixed principle that he would drive a woman with a sensitive temperament to distraction in less than six months. On the contrary, he who jumps in and leaves the sharpened wood as jagged as saw teeth around the top has a nasty temper and will spank the baby on the slightest provocation. There are certain women who can manage that kind of man beautifully. its national campaigns. however, and if he gets a wife with a calm, persuasive eye he will come down from his high horse in a few minutes and be as meek as a lamb. A NOBLE ENEMY.

The Fate of Mokrani, a Moslem Chief of Africa. France was never in greater danger of losing her colonies in Africa than during the war with Germany in 1870. The troops were recalled from Africa to take part in the conflict that was going on against France, and Algeria was left almost defenseless.

The hour for which the conquered races had long waited had come, and if a holy war had been proclaimed it is probable that the French would have been driven from northern Africa. But the tribes did not rise while the French had their hands full on the other side of the Mediterranean, and the fact was due to their fidelity to a solemn pledge.

When the war broke out a chief of great influence among the tribes, Mokrani, gave his word to the governor general of Algeria that there should "we kill a painter now and then, but be no insurrection while the war lasted. That word was faithfully kept. Disaster after disaster followed the French arms. The defeats of the war culminated in the surrender of Paris. But not a man of the tribes of Kabylia stirred. The Moslem's faith was plighted; the Moslem's faith was kept. When, however, the last battle had been fought and the treaty of peace signed, Mokrani, then released from his word, gave the governor general notice that in forty-eight hours he would declare war. The French armies, released from duty at home, hurried across the Mediterranean. The end was inevitable. Mokrani, seeing that all was lost, put himself at the head of his warriors and fell fighting in the front rank. The French erected a monument to mark the spot where their noble enemy perished.
