The Taneytown News, Mr. Robert Garrett's paper, made a bad break last week, when it published the heading to Secretary Bonaparte's recent address to the Republican editors, as follows: "Voters' Verdict Invited. If they are tired of Prosperity, let them vote the Republican Ticket, says Mr. Bonaparte." The chap who set that heading no doubt heard thunder from the direction of the office.

County Statements.

Most, if not all of the papers published in Frederick county, are given the publication of the county statement, which takes it into nearly every household. In this county, the taxpayers who do not subscribe for the papers published in Westminster, do not get to see the statement, and their number is very large. There is something wrong about this, for there is neither justice nor justification in the County Commissioners giving two papers a monopoly of such business, when taxpayers of all parties, or no party, pay the bills.

The law in reference to publishing county statements, contained in Sec. 2, Article 25, Code of Public General Laws, reads as follows: "The County Commissioners being referred to."

"They shall make out and publish annually in at least two newspapers, published in their respective counties, if there be two, a detailed minute and accurate statement of the expenses of their said counties, specifying therein each particular item of expense, and for what and to whom paid, and shall also deliver to the Sheriff of their respective counties as many copies of such statements as there are Election Districts in the County, at least ten days before each general election, on the receipt of such copies, set one of them at the place of holding elections in each Election District; and the Clerk to the County Commissioners and the Sheriff who shall fail to perform the duty imposed by this section shall forfeit the sum of one hundred dollars."

It is therefore left to the option of the County Commissioners to publish the statements in as many papers as they see proper, and no law, specially designated by law, are given the monopoly. Presuming that publication is limited to the Westminster papers, in order to save cost, it would be interesting to know just what the cost amounts to, at present, and whether it would not be possible to have the work done, by all the papers in the county at the same cost, by making the proper effort.

The thing we object to is the building up of a monopoly, with the taxpayers' money, for two political papers, to the exclusion of other papers in the county which have a circulation and general character perhaps equal to those of the two favored papers.

Let the party papers earn their income from their respective party followers, if they can, and not from the taxpayers, as such. All reputable newspapers, published in any county, have a right to their pro-rata share in disseminating information of such general character as county statements, Public General and Local Laws, and all public notices in reference to elections by the people, when the cost of the same is paid from the public funds.

It is getting to be pretty generally accepted doctrine that no government, National, State, Municipal or county, has the right to contribute to the support of any monopoly, whether political or otherwise, to the exclusion of others in the same line of business, or when so doing makes the government a silent partner in any scheme which does not represent a "square deal" for the general public and all concerned. This is especially true of the County Commissioners. We do not particularly blame the present Board of Commissioners for existing practices in reference to the giving out of public printing, for they are simply following a long-established rule, commenced when there were no papers in the county except those at the county seat. Conditions have changed, however, and the old practice should change also. There are not only more papers in the county outside of Westminster than in it, but public sentiment no longer holds—if it ever did—that the political papers alone have a right to the public printing.

THE CARROLL RECORD, as a regularly incorporated, tax-paying, business enterprise of Carroll county, protests against this unfair discrimination, and it further protests against it in the name of its many hundreds of subscribers and taxpayers—Democratic and Republican—who are citizens of Carroll county and who are entitled to have published in the paper of their choice, public matters in which they are interested equally with those who are subscribers to the two favored papers. We respectfully submit these conclusions to all concerned and are willing to accept the verdict of all intelligent and unbiased taxpayers.

The same argument applies to all notices of registration and election. Readers of three papers in this county published outside of Westminster find out nothing about the dates for registration, except such notices as are published gratis by these papers. The names of election and registration officials, and the places where elections are to be held, are also published only in the two party papers, and as we have heretofore pointed out, such public laws are sent only to Union Bridge, Hampstead and Taneytown, instead of being published in the papers established at these places, for the information of those directly and locally interested, are nevertheless published only in the Westminster papers. These are facts which are absolutely wrong—not only wrong in principle, but against plain common sense.

Corruption on Trial.

This year, there will be notable campaigns fought in Pennsylvania and New York against political organizations which have become corrupt and unrepresentative of the people. Neither will represent a contest between the rank and file of Republicans and Democrats, but between great bodies of voters who have become heartily sick of party manipulation of public trusts, and are now fighting for the very life and perpetuation of popular suffrage. The cornerstone of our form of government has been assailed, and the people are going to show the political tricksters that it rests securely.

In Pennsylvania, although the Republicans have nominated a good strong candidate for Governor, Stuart, who ordinarily would be elected by an overwhelming majority, it is not improbable that the fusion candidate, Emery, will be elected, especially as he has for the most part been identified with the majority party. The people of the state are not tired of Republicanism as it ought to be, but as it has been for too long.

In New York, the Democratic party is fighting for its very life. The nomination of Hearst, for Governor, by a so-called Democratic state convention, is nevertheless not a Democratic, but a Tammany, nomination. The control of the city government by the Tammany society is of more importance to it than even the Presidency of the United States and as this society, or political club, dominates the Democracy of the state through crooked methods, honest Democrats, from principle, have nothing to do but protest at the ballot-box by voting for Hughes, the Republican candidate, who, fortunately, is an exceptionally straight and able man.

The results, therefore, in these two states, will be anxiously awaited. It is thought, by many, that the Republican machine in Pennsylvania has already been so badly scared that it is willing to "be good" hereafter, and that the election of Stuart need not be viewed as standing for a continuation of Republican corruption, while thousands of Republicans believe in making the rebuke effective by electing Emery.

Not an "off" Year.

There is no more incorrect statement, in fact, than that the years in which only members of Congress are elected, are "off" years. Our Congress—if such a thing be possible—is of more importance to this country, and the world, than at any period in the past hundred years. It is doing more things, and greater ones. It is not following precedents, but making them. Political creeds are being revised, and National policies made over. Partnership needs qualification, and business methods are being examined. No, this is not truly an "off" year, but an on year. President Roosevelt has inaugurated policies which are making new political bed-fellows every day, and which are compelling heretofore confident politicians to put on their thinking-cap. He and Mr. Bryan agree, apparently, along many lines, differing only in details, and Mr. Bryan, too, a power to be reckoned with. Indeed, these two men, more than any other pair in the United States, are making modern political history, and it behooves the intelligent voters of the country to send men to Congress who measure up to the conditions now existing.

The election of members of Congress, this year, should not be left to the dangers attending a light vote; politicians, and those who have "axes to grind," always vote, while the over-confident honest citizen very often do not. It is always of use to go to an election and vote, no matter what offices are to be filled, for there is always a choice between candidates, if not between evils.

Objections to Rural Delivery.

The Ellicott City Times, in a recent issue, emphasizes the objectionable features of Rural Delivery and indulges in some more or less wasted sarcasm. Nearly every good thing in this world has its drawbacks, but as long as the rule of "the greatest good to the greatest number" prevails, laudifying has little force. The Times says:

"The question as to where we live is getting to be serious, because through the manipulations of the U. S. Postoffice Department at Washington, and the rural free delivery routes, we are losing all our local associations of habitation and being listed as residents of the headquarters or postoffice cities, where the rural free delivery routes start. For instance, the man who has been born and raised at Poplar Springs, his home known to his many friends, and who, by the dictation of Uncle Sam is now moved to Mt. Airy, in another county, and has to have his mail so addressed or it is likely he will never receive it. The Governor of the State, whose summer post-office has been Daisy for many years, has to have his letters addressed to Woodbury, and the regular delivery by carriers from that place. The handsome mayor of Pilefield's corner must have the bullet dextrous from his many sweethearts. Ellicott City, and the Waterloo lasses have to have their sweethearts write them sweet sayings to Ellicott City. This plan causes much confusion and before long, if some change is not made, we will become nonentities in our local neighborhoods in so far as the outside world is concerned, and our local habitation in more changing the will of the U. S. Postoffice Department. The additions and changes of rural mail routes have caused great confusion in the newspaper offices, and at no distant time this confusion will be carried to the homes of our people, if already such is not the case. We have seen no good from the rural deliveries. They have a tendency to centralize trade, which means that our country stores, now the markets for sundries and consumer products as well as for supplies for a greater portion of our country people, will be swept out of existence, which means lower prices for the selling of products and a great waste of time to supply our wants."

Independent Voting.

Rev. M. J. Riordan, pastor of St. Charles Catholic church, Pikesville, in a recent interview published in the Sun, stated a number of political truths so convincing that all but the most hide-bound partisans must acknowledge them. His remedy for existing evil conditions, in politics, is independent voting. "In part," he says as follows: "The conservative classes will have themselves to blame. Like their prototypes in France, who clung fanatically to a rotten monarchy instead of urging concessions to an oppressed people, they are wholly preoccupied with the success of the Republican and Democratic parties, whose managers have been the friends, agents or attorneys of the people's enemies. Their indifference to every movement that does not conduce to party success incenses thoughtful and patriotic men, who are not in league with corrupt interests."

"Some of these conservative citizens imagine that a priest ought not to preach politics. They do not see that at the present time there is no more appropriate or fruitful theme for the speech of a minister than conduct and character in public life. No other branch of ethics touches moral conduct at so many points as politics. It deals with justice and right, marriage, divorce, the social evil, schools, asylums, war, the race question, and practically every department of private and public morality."

"Nothing conduces more to cynicism than the efforts of good men to keep the dealogue out of politics, since consistency would require its suppression in every other conflict of interest. Had the clergy of France preached politics and urged the King to listen to the requests of his people there never would have been a reign of terror or a profanation of the Cathedral of Notre Dame.

"In the face of the dangers that threaten our country, it is the duty of every citizen to sacrifice his political preferences in order to break up the alliance between the party's managers and the people's enemies. This may be done by cutting loose from blind allegiance to party and becoming an independent voter, or, at least, an independent Democrat or an independent Republican."

"At once the corporations will lose their grip upon the party machine, for an organization without loyal followers would be like a steam engine without steam. The party machine may be retained, but it will be free from corrupt influences, and self-respecting men will rally around it when it champions measures in behalf of the public welfare."

"The organization man is loyal partly because of sentiment and partly because of the principles for which his party stands, but his unswerving regularity makes it possible and inevitable that the party's machine will be controlled by the people's enemies. The party man in the ranks is honest and sincere, but he is sold out by his leaders, and hence loyalty to party spells disloyalty to country."

"To be a regular Democrat or a regular Republican under present conditions is to promote indirectly the growth of Hearstism, socialism and kindred isms. Independent voting will place the party machinery in control of the people and lead to those concessions which are averted the political storm that is daily gathering strength and that will surely overtake us unless there occurs every-where in the United States a complete regeneration of the organizations of the two old parties."

"To sacrifice one's party regularly, at least temporarily, is a small price to pay in order to preserve the institutions and traditions of our beloved country, and to demonstrate that the political parties are not an inflexible dream."

Good Roads in Adams.

Adams County has filed with the State Highway Department since the passage of the Sprout Good Roads Law five applications for State aid in road improvement, viz:

Germany Township, 2,548 feet.
Germany Township, 5,372 feet.
Menallen Township, 5,550 feet.
Menallen Township, 8,200 feet.
Butler Township, 11,520 feet.

Total, 33,190 feet.

All of the above petitions came through the County Commissioners office at Gettysburg, and the cost of reconstructing the roads is to be borne as follows:

The county one-eight, the township one-eight, and the State three-fourths.

In October, 1905, a contract was made between G. Hanson, of Harrisburg, and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for the construction of two roads petitioned for by Germany Township. This contract was completed August 11th, 1906, the total cost including advertising, engineering and inspection, being $11,204.41.

Surveys have been made of both of the roads applied for by Menallen Township. Plans, specifications and estimates have been prepared for the longest of the two roads, and as soon as the County Commissioners and the Township Supervisors signify their willingness to proceed with the work, bids will be asked. The plans covering the other road are under way and will be completed within a short time.

The total amount of money available for road building purposes in Adams County until June 1st, 1907, is $40,478.15.

The total cost of roads constructed in Adams County amounts to about $11,204.41, of which the State pays three-fourths, or $8,403.31, leaving a balance of $2,801.14 to the credit of Adams County.

The greater portion of this balance will be exhausted when contracts covering the two roads in Menallen Township are awarded.

At the first of June, 1907, there will be about $18,045.33 more apportioned to Adams County, and if there are not enough applications for road improvement on file in the State Highway Department to cover the entire amount at the end of the fiscal year, the surplus will revert back to the general fund and be redistributed among the counties whose applications exceed their apportionments.

Although not constructed by the State, the macadam roads built in and around the famous battlefield of Gettysburg are of the type constructed by the Highway Department of Pennsylvania, and are object lessons in road building, which have been seen by more people throughout the Commonwealth than have any of the roads actually built by the Highway Department, and done by the State. Why not apply for State aid in the construction of more of the township roads?—Hanover Record.

Small Farms—Good Roads.

The Small Farm is the best ally of the Good Road. Between two counties, one occupied by eight or ten thousand farms of from ten to forty acres each; the other by fifteen hundred or two thousand farms of from 100 to 500 acres each, it is almost a certainty that the former will build and maintain the best roads, and get them at an earlier date than the latter. The certainty is almost as great as that every acre of land in the county of small farms will yield, on an average, twice as much as an acre in the county of large farms, and will have a market value two or three times as great.

In the Good Roads propaganda, France has been continually held up to American admiration on account of the splendid quality of its country roads. These are so invariably good that the bicycle, the automobile or the lightest family carriage can go from one border of the country to the opposite one, in any direction, without the slightest apprehension of coming upon a spot difficult of passage. But, in none of our road improvement literature has sufficient attention been given to the fact that the existence of this splendid system of roads is almost wholly due to the fact that France is, next to Japan, pre-eminent among the nations of the world as a country of small farms. Not farms of ten to forty acres, but of five to twenty acres, are the rule.

It is a matter of history that the inauguration of the French system of road building was almost coincident with the breaking up of the great estates of the ancient nobility and gentry, and the division of the land, in small holdings, among the people who had constituted the old oppressed peasantry. Not long after the Revolution, the government of France devised a great road plan, which had been worked out, decade by decade, with the results now seen.

It is safe to say that if there had been no breaking up and subdivision of the estates of the "old regime," there would have been no such development of the

TANEYTOWN LOCAL COLUMN.

Items of Local News of Special Interest to Home Readers.

All copy for ADVERTISEMENTS on this page must be in hand early on Thursday morning, and must be accompanied by cash and short announcements.

Regular Fall communion services will be held in the Reformed church, this Sunday morning and evening.

Misses Florence Crouse and Florence Rider, of Littlestown, Pa., spent Thursday with their friend, Miss Lola Slonaker.

Howard Miller has accepted a position as salesman with Miller Brothers, Westminister, and will begin work on Monday.

The raw cold days, this week, caused the setting up of stoves, and the adoption of other expedients for keeping comfortable.

Rev. D. J. Wolf and family are now located in their new parsonage, having completed moving, on Monday. Wedding couples take notice.

The Reformed congregation will hold an entertainment of some kind, not fully decided on, in the Opera House, on Thanksgiving evening.

William Kehn has been elected sexton of the Lutheran church, in place of J. Sentman Sheets, resigned, and will enter on his duties at once.

The Theo. C. Fair property, on George St., was sold, last Saturday, to Mr. Frederick Bankard, at $2,000. This is a desirable and cheap home.

J. Ross Galt, editor of the Pilot, Union Bridge, paid the REFORMED office a fraternal call, on Monday. Always glad to see fellow-craftsmen, and swap "shop" talk.

A pair of horses attached to a wagon, owned by William H. Flickinger, tore loose from where they were hitched, at the railroad, on Thursday, and ran home, fortunately without damage.

Charles Sponsler, of Baltimore, years ago a resident of Taneytown, died on Thursday in his 76th year. Funeral on Saturday afternoon from the home of his son, John, 2121 W. Fayette St.

The meeting night of Taneytown Camp No. 7965, M. W. A., has been changed from the 2nd, and 4th, Friday nights of the month to the 2nd, and 4th, Wednesday nights, the meeting hour to be 8 o'clock.

Chas. E. H. Shriver has entered suit against the Burgess and Commissioners, in the sum of $2500, for damages alleged to have been sustained through water flooding his lot from the alley running to Fink's blacksmith shop.

Let everybody entitled to vote, register next Tuesday, the last opportunity this year. This is an "off year" it is true, according to one way of looking at it, but the real fact is there is no more important election held than for members of Congress.

A member of the Emmitsburg Chronicle staff paid our office a pleasant call, last Saturday. The Chronicle we predict, is destined to be one of the foremost papers in the county, in the near future; not only as a matter of business, but from choice.

Cards are out announcing the marriage of Miss Gertrude F. Harman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Harman, of this place, to Mr. Daniel W. Bowersox, of Harney. The ceremony will take place at the home of the bride, at noon, on Thursday the 18th.

The REFORMED office was put out of business for several hours, on Tuesday afternoon, due to gas from the exhaust pipe of the engine. All hands were considerably affected, two fainted and three could not work the balance of the afternoon, while the rest were decidedly "pate around the gills."

The regular union C. E. prayer-meeting will be held next Wednesday night, in the Presbyterian church. The topic will be "The Life Worth Living," and the program will be in charge of B. O. Slonaker and Rev. W. E. Wheeler. A general attendance of all denominations is requested, whether members of the C. E. or not, as these meetings are intended to be for the benefit of all, and are open to the participation of all. The scripture lesson for the evening is Ephesians, 2nd chapter.

The taxable basis of Taneytown, under the new assessment, is $576,421.41 as against $128,784.00 heretofore. The rate this year is .40%, a reduction of 10% being 25¢ for general purposes, 3¢ for water plant and 12¢ for municipal building. The increase in the value of the town will be about $101.00 over that of last year. In many cases, where the assessment has not been greatly raised, the amount of tax to be paid will be less than heretofore, due to the reduction in rate.

It is nothing short of downright disgrace that the street lamps were not lit on Wednesday and Thursday evenings. The lamps are an extremely poor excuse for light, but they do some good, and especially considering the fact that the town was full of visiting ladies, unacquainted with our streets, the lights should have been burning. On both evenings, lanterns were used by some. Just think of it. A town of nearly 1000 people, the best business town of its size in the state, too stingy and backward to furnish light on dark, rainy evenings, simply because there is moonlight about 10 o'clock.

A Pound Party.

A very enjoyable pound party was given on Monday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Crumbacker, near Union Bridge. About 8 o'clock the guests began to arrive and took complete control of the house. Conversation, games, vocal and instrumental music were indulged in until 10 o'clock, when they were invited to a table well loaded with cakes, candies, nuts and the various delicacies of the season.

After supper games were resumed and continued until after the midnight hour, when all took leave of their happy host and returned to their respective homes, well pleased with the evening they had spent.

Among those present were Geo. Crumbacker, Mrs. Ella Crumbacker, Mrs. Arthur Crumbacker, Misses Mary, Edith, Lillian, Lizzie, Mary, and Annie Crumbacker, Misses Mary, Edith, Lillian, Lizzie, Mary, and Annie Crumbacker, Messrs. Charles, Morris, Orville, Hemmi and Clay Crumbacker, Mrs. M. W. Miller, and Clayton Koon, Cleve Kopp, Pearl Johnson and Will Crumbacker.

Adulterated Liquors on Market.

Since the Supreme Court has decided that beer and whiskey are not food and so do not come under the provisions of the pure food law, there is said to be a great deal of adulterated liquor upon the market.

Private parties have purchased and analyzed several hundreds of samples of liquors, including whiskey, brandy, port wine, sherry wine, blackberry brandy, Catawba wine, and beer, and found them to be adulterated with wood alcohol, sulphur dioxide, salicylic acid, lead oil, benzoic acid, artificial colors, fusel oil, coal tar dyes and such.

Panama Canal as it Will Be.

The multi-lock plan, on which the Commission is proceeding to build the canal, is extremely simple in principle. It contemplates the formation of two great artificial lakes filling the depressions on either side of the mountain range that intersects the isthmus. These lakes will be linked by a channel cut through the divide. By flooding the country instead of digging down to water level, a vast amount of labor will be saved and freer and safer navigation will be afforded. Summed up, the advantages of the plan over the sea-level project are greater capacity for traffic, less danger of interruption to it, quicker passage for large ships, and much less expenditure of time and money in construction.

The canal will be nowhere less than 45 feet in depth and in certain stretches it will be as deep as 75 feet. A minimum width at bottom will be 200 feet in Colombia cut, and from that the channel increases in width to more than a half mile in Lake Gatun. The 35-foot summit level begins at Gatun, where the entrance locks and the great dam are located. The latter structure is the key to the project. It is to be a concrete dam across the bed of the Chagres and will intercept the waters of that river and impound them in the valley until a lake with surface 85 feet above mean low tide shall have been formed. The surplus volume will be permitted to escape over a spillway, enabling the stream to resume its course. The spillway is a dam of concrete such an arrangement involves the utmost facility for increasing the depth of the lake. The elevation of the crest of the spillway must be such as to retain a greater amount of water and in a consequent enhancement of the summit level. The contribution of the sea basin is capable of supplying unlimited flow.

Letter to Levi D. Sell.

Dear Sir: We shall feel obliged if you will write us how you came out on your first few jobs Devoe, as to gallons expected and used.

Take Job A. You made your price, expecting to use 25 gallons Devoe, and used 15. Job B. You expected to use 15 and used 10. And tell us what paint you had used before. Of course, you judge Devoe by what you have used before.

Here's how a few came out—
M. A. Thomas, painter, Lynchburg, Va., writes: New first job with Devoe, I estimated 37 gallons; it took 25. Since then I have used nothing else.
D. B. Edwards, Raleigh, N. C., had used 30 gallons paint on his house, and bought 30 gallons Devoe; A. E. Glenn painter, said it wouldn't be enough. Had 16 gallons left.

Major W. W. Carroll, Monticello, Florida, writes: Painter estimated 35 gallons for my house; took 20 gallons Devoe.
Gilmore & Davis Co., contractors and painters, Tallahassee, Florida, say 2 gallons Devoe spreads as far as 3 of any other paint they know and covers better.

S. A. Billard, painter, Sanford, Florida, estimated 50 gallons for Old Fellows and Masonic Halls; they took 20 Devoe. Jones & Rogers, Merkle, Texas, estimated 10 gallons Devoe for Mr. Pratt's house and bought 5 gallons for first coat; painted two coats.

Ed Springall Co., San Antonio, Texas, painted two houses same size for D. J. Woodward, one lead-and-oil, the other Devoe. Devoe cost $12 less for paint and labor.

Tom Masey's painter, Walnut Springs, Texas, estimated for his house 10 gallons Devoe; he had 4 left.

You see how it goes. Even the best painters can't guess little enough at first. Yours truly,
F. W. DEVOE & CO., New York.

He Missed His Honey.

"Honey in the comb" isn't to be had everywhere in these days of gloom. But in the little New Jersey hotel where Mr. Hape, of Maryland, spent a week of delightful leisure, a plate of delicious clover honey was offered to him every morning by the landlady.

That honey engraved itself on his memory and when the hour opportunity occurred Mr. Hape, accompanied by his wife, returned to his home in Maryland. He had missed his honey.

"She don't got a job at the silk mill," he answered, "She don't got a job at the silk mill."

A cold is much more easily cured when the bowels are open. Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar opens the bowels and drives the cold out of the system in young or old. Sold by J. McKellip, Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

Four Killed at Sparrows Point.

Four men lost their lives, two were fatally burned and seven more received serious injuries at the works of the Maryland Steel Company at Sparrows Point, Wednesday morning, by the blowing out of a tyure cooler, in one of the blast furnaces. The accident occurred about 8:30 o'clock, and was peculiar. It is said to be the first of its kind that has ever happened at Sparrows Point. Just after the cast at 8 o'clock at Furnace C a gang of laborers, with two foremen began the work of replacing one of the eight tyure coolers in that furnace. A tyure is the opening through which the blast of air is forced into the furnace and through the ore, limestone and coke. The tyure cooler is made of bronze, and is something like the earthen collar that is placed around a stove pipe where it enters the chimney. Through these tyures are run the pipes that carry the powerful blasts of compressed air to melt the charges in the furnace.

The tyures and tyure coolers from time to time have to be replaced, owing to the intense heat, which burns them out, and it was this work that the men undertook at tyure No. 7. They had finished their task of placing a new tyure and tyure cooler in position when the blast of air, which had been blowing since the cooler was replaced, was suddenly cut off. The men had just finished their task and were standing by the tyure cooler when it suddenly blew out with a roar, and eight or ten cubic feet of coke and iron ore were hurled into the air.

As the outcome of a conviction of murdering his months-old son, Howard Schaffer, of Shrewsbury, Pa., was sentenced to 30 years imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary. Judge Bittenberger imposed the maximum sentence and informed the prisoner in scathing language of his doom. Schaffer, it is said, caused the death of his son by brutal treatment, having struck him on the head, fracturing the skull.

The liquor law passed by the Ohio Legislature at its last session, known as the Allen law, increased the tax on saloons $50 to $1,000. The result has been that it knocked out 2,978 saloons in the state. In 1903 there were 12,351 saloons in the state, and now there are 9,350. It was believed at the time of its enactment that it would decrease the number about 35% but it has not come up to the expected mark, the decrease being only 22%. At the same time, the revenue for the first six months since the law went into operation increased nearly $100,000 over the entire proceeds of last year, reaching $1,637,263.

Bride Whipped at Altar.

Charles F. Schmittler exercised his prerogative as husband at the altar at Carme, Ill., on Friday, and whipped his wife as soon as the justice had pronounced the words which made them one. The bride was Mrs. Josie Haggerty, of Princeton, Ind.

They conducted their courtship by mail, and she came over to have the ceremony performed. Justice Alfred Pennell was reading the service when the bride jerked the book from his hand to the floor. When she came back to the altar, she was reading the service when the bride jerked the book from his hand to the floor. When she came back to the altar, she was reading the service when the bride jerked the book from his hand to the floor.

A published statement that, after the Denatured Alcohol Law goes into effect, on January 1, 1907, alcohol may be profitably manufactured from the cobs of green corn has greatly interested parties engaged in the canning business. A CLOVER ROMANCE.

Lacy were taking supper at the cot tage in the park. "How would you like to live in St. Louis?" he ventured to ask while the chickens he had ordered were being hatched, dressed and cooked.

"I fancy I should like the city," she returned dreamily, all the while scanning the faces of the guests on the veranda. "The city has decided advantages over the country, but there is no use cherishing a hope of ever making this my permanent home, for nothing would induce my father to leave his farm."

"But you will not always be with your father," he suggested. "I have no present prospect of leaving him," she replied, and if she caught the covert meaning of his words she betrayed nothing.

Then they talked about the weather, discussed the follies of the bicycle girl as she spun just then and then the demands of family life came in and were pretty well supplied.

"I have no doubt you did it if you were anywhere on the veranda," she returned, laughing. "I thought at first he was asking some one over on the south side."

"I don't see why you didn't go with him instead of coming out here with me. It would have been ever so much more fun. But I couldn't get off to take you."

"Oh, you asked me first, and besides, Forest park is more to my taste," she replied coolly.

"Are you fond of onions?" he asked, trying to be indifferent. "No; I can't eat the vile things," she said, without more feeling than she had yet manifested.

"Oh, I am so glad," he exclaimed impulsively. "What a ridiculous fellow you are!" she said. "What possible cause for joy can you find in the fact that I do not like onions?"

He looked confused and subsided into his plate for a few minutes. "Wonder if she really doesn't suspect what I brought her out here for or if she is trying to spare me the pain of a refusal," he mused.

She was so pretty and could be so sweet when she chose, but today she was a tantalizing little witch, quite too much of a study for his loveless brain.

"Would you like to go out for a row on the lake?" he asked when they had finished their repast.

"Are you quite sure that you can keep out of the way of the launch?" she asked mischievously. "You see, I don't want to run the risk of being drowned the last evening I am to spend in St. Louis."

"Well, I fancied I knew how to handle a boat," he returned, with a smile of injured pride.

Then he sprang from the table, overturning his chair as he arose. "There is Nell, and she is riding her new diamond frame. She promised to take her first spin with me," he cried as he waved his hand to the girl on the wheel.

The visit in knickerbockers waited a kiss from her finger tips as she stepped past. Then he turned toward his companion just in time to catch an expression of pique on her face.

"I don't see why you didn't go riding with Nell this afternoon. She certainly gave you ample opportunity to ask her last night," she said coldly.

"Oh, I can go wheeling with Nell any time, and this was my last chance to let you see the park," was his light reply.

Her face was beginning to twitch with a little, but she made a desperate effort to control it.

"Shall we go down to the lake?" she asked presently.

"I don't want you to risk your life to afford me a little doubtful pleasure. Perhaps, if I could find a man to go with me and row the boat," he answered as he stooped to pick up her glove.

"Three men in a boat might go very well, but two men and a maid would be a new combination," she said, with a suggestive effort to be gay.

They were crossing the grassy slope now, and the sun was going down. Suddenly she stooped and picked something from the grass at her feet. "A four leaf clover!" she exclaimed gleefully as she held it up in triumph.

"And what are you going to do with it?" he asked, with a searching glance. "I usually put them in my shoe," she said, while a suspicious red stole over her cheek.

"May I put this one in your shoe?" he asked as he took it from her hand. She hesitated for a moment. Then, with an effort, she said, "Yes, I think you may."

As the outcome of a conviction of murdering his months-old son, Howard Schaffer, of Shrewsbury, Pa., was sentenced to 30 years imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary. Judge Bittenberger imposed the maximum sentence and informed the prisoner in scathing language of his doom. Schaffer, it is said, caused the death of his son by brutal treatment, having struck him on the head, fracturing the skull.

Rich and Poor.

The irony of poverty is its wealth of possibilities; the irony of wealth is its poverty of ideas.

The poor may not know who are their enemies; the rich cannot know who are their friends.
