The Baltimore postoffice could not sell one-cent postage stamps, last Sunday, on account of the supply being exhausted. An extra large demand was caused by the Hebrew year of the jubilee, the sending of appropriate cards, but this should not have caused the supply to run out. Perhaps a couple of hundred stamps were never before occurred in any large city.

Last Friday, at the picnic at Mt. Airy, both candidates for Governor and candidates for other offices were present. A hearty welcome from an immense crowd. Gov. Warfield was given an ovation. All hands played politics to the limit, and in general enjoyed themselves. At the close of the day "honors were easy" both parties being satisfied.

By its march of improvements Mount Airy and Ridgeville are getting to be known as twin towns, but as one town. The new buildings which have been erected and which are now going up are dwellings, and handsome dwellings, too. Indeed, nowhere in Maryland are there prettier homes and water yards than in Mount Airy.

Lightning struck Isaiah Miller's barn, at Miller's Station, Tuesday night at 1:30 o'clock, and it was a very close call. The barn was a new one, built on a high ground; also his hog house near by. It was only by the hard work of the neighbors that the other buildings were saved. The live stock was not hurt, but the loss of Mr. Miller's summer crops and everything else was consumed in the fire. The barn was a new one, built on a high ground and was insured for $700 in the Dug Hill Fire Insurance Co.

Father T. J. Drotty, rector of St. Francis Xavier Church, Gettysburg, left on Saturday for Centralia, where he has been assigned by the Bishop to take charge of the Catholic congregation of that place. Father Drotty received notice of the transfer some time ago but resigned from the Centralia charge as soon as appointment was made. The condition of his health did not allow his living in the climate at that place. His resignation was not accepted and he left on Saturday.

The employees in the passenger service of the Pennsylvania Railroad have been notified that grips and suit cases must not be placed in the baggage car, but that hereafter seats are not to be turned unless four passengers are to be accommodated. As a result, when traveling men, they are in the habit of taking up an entire seat with their baggage, or having a seat turned so that they can stretch themselves and take a nap. They are politely told of the new rule.

In a test case over the constitutionality of the Pennsylvania two-cent rate law, the Pennsylvania Railroad has won the first victory in Common Pleas Court No. 4, in Philadelphia, the judges deciding that the law is constitutional. The old law chartering the company. The decision applies only to the county of Philadelphia and to the P. & R. An opinion covering the entire State will be secured from the State Supreme Court, to which the present decision will be appealed.

Adams County is going to have an apple crop that will likely surpass all previous records in the growing of this valuable fruit. Though the season has been a poor one, the apples are of fine quality, and will be the largest ever harvested in the county. Adams County stands at the head of the apple industry in the growing of apples and has become famous all over the country for its product.

Announcement of the discovery of an antitoxin that will kill diphtheria in the human organism within the short space of three minutes has been made at the Ohio State University by Professor B. P. Blood. The antitoxin is a discovery of an exhaustive technical and intricate series of tests. The discovery is a triumph for the medical profession, and is a great step toward the cure of this deadly disease. The antitoxin was given tests in hospitals and private practice before announcement of its discovery was made. It was applied by infusion and can be used in any quantity on the youngest patient.

Information has been received in Baltimore that Judge L. E. McCann and his bride have left Paris and gone to Bad Nauheim for the benefit of the Judge's health. While in Paris Judge McCann was seriously ill from an attack of pneumonia, supposed to have resulted from a cold contracted while crossing the ocean. He is now recovering and is expected to return to Baltimore in a few days. He is expected to remain there until some time in October.

LET CARROLL SPEAK OUT!

Candidates and Politicians can Prevent Bribery if They Will.

Bribery in Carroll county, should be made impossible by proper action of the candidates, and by separate action of the County Central Committees, through which an agreement may be entered into, binding both parties to observe certain rules with pledges, having the aim the elimination of a corruption fund, without which no votes can be sold, for the excellent reason that there would be no money with which to purchase them.

Carroll county has already taken such action. Democratic republicans have proposed legislation to the effect, being reached, and we think one or more counties on the Eastern shore have had such a plan successfully in force for several years. Let the initiative be taken in the direction taken by the county convention in Carroll, and thus lead to the elevation of our elections from the disgraceful level to which they have fallen.

The entire number necessary, in all probability, to secure an undebated election, is the total of candidates of both parties, the members of the County Central Committees of both, with perhaps a few party "workers" added, the whole number being less than one hundred in the county. Indeed, this number can easily be reduced to less than half, for all that is necessary for the most part is to have a few sides to take the initiative—the rest will gladly follow.

When we consider how immensely popular such a course would be to the masses, what a distinctly moral effect it would have, and the further fact that it would be a most effective means of actual gain to neither, it is a most surprising thing that there should be no action in this direction.

The average for each county is supposed to be about one-half, although I think it is better in some parts of the state. I did not think of this until I saw the list of candidates for this year, and I am exceedingly glad this year and will be as much of a Christian, so I do not know as yet whether we will come or not.

I will not ask you to remember me to any one individual, but remember me to Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Williams, of the North Liberty, Iowa.

LET CARROLL SPEAK OUT!

Candidates and Politicians can Prevent Bribery if They Will.

Bribery in Carroll county, should be made impossible by proper action of the candidates, and by separate action of the County Central Committees, through which an agreement may be entered into, binding both parties to observe certain rules with pledges, having the aim the elimination of a corruption fund, without which no votes can be sold, for the excellent reason that there would be no money with which to purchase them.

Carroll county has already taken such action. Democratic

TAKE ALL the papers you can, and read all you take, but when you can't read all, you are taking too many. Very few read too much, and the most of people not enough. Read regularly, systematically, and for a purpose—for information and profit. Don't borrow—it's not too stealing.

LET ROOSEVELT and Bryan, and their policies, alone until next year. The most important political business, this year, is right here in Maryland. National issues can rest. Study the situation at home, and vote for the men who most strongly represent your ideas of right, no matter which party they belong to. The most dangerous citizens out of jail are those who "stick to party" regardless of their honest personal convictions.

THE IMPORTANCE of registering, this Fall, in order that one may vote, should commend itself to all. Our registration and election laws are miserable excuses for fairness, but every intelligent voter should see to it that he does not allow the law to beat him out of his privilege of voting. This may call for lost time and personal inconvenience, but even this is better than being robbed of citizenship. See that your name is on the books where it belongs.

Too much boasting of prosperity, has been responsible for too much lavish expenditure of money by those who ought to save and build a bank account. When money is earned easily and rapidly, and not saved, such prosperity is false, not real. Only those who are really prosperous who are spending considerably less than they make. Good wages and high prices have, in too many cases, not benefited anybody, but have simply represented the "come easy, go easy" brand of philosophy.

Mercantile Organization.

While there is a movement toward organization for self-protection along many lines, there is one class which has as yet done very little in that direction—retail merchants. Strange as it may seem to some, it is nevertheless true that there is no one class of business or industrial men who need organization for protection so truly as retail merchants for no other class takes more risks, is subject to more chances of loss, has more difficulties to deal with, or within which competition is more sharply waged.

Very unjustly, retail merchants, as a rule, have very little public sympathy, and this is the result, either of thoughtlessness, ignorance or unfairness, on the part of those with whom merchants transact business. Somehow, the making of "profit" does not strike the average person, or as a proper return for money invested and connected with labor in handling merchandise. The storekeeper is largely considered as being outside of the wage-earning, professional and industrial classes, and is in a sort of "necessary evil" class by himself.

As a result of this improper classification, the storekeeper has been combined against "jewels" made use of for long credits and in many cases deliberately "beat" from time immemorial. In recent years a change has come about, through which the retailer, from force of necessity, and as a means of preventing financial failure, is running his business largely on a "one price" basis and on rules not subject to change to please customers, but this has come about rather through collective agreement, notwithstanding the comparative ease with which agreements might be entered into.

One result of the lack of regularity in business methods is the building up of a credit system which has nothing to recommend it, and much to be answered for. True, the credit of the average country neighborhood is perhaps better than it was twenty years ago, but it is still very far from being as safe as it ought to be, and for whatever of shakiness and unworthiness it stands for, retail merchants are largely responsible. If for no other reason, mercantile associations would be justifiable for the single object of preventing loss through bad credits, for through this saving could come lower prices to those who pay cash for their goods.

Certainly, all classes which combine for self-protection must recognize the right of retail business men to make use of the same means—"What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander." And in the consideration of the general subject, one must take into account that sooner or later one combination is sure to bump the other, for there is no such proposition in equity that one class has any superior right to protect itself, while all others must stand defenseless. The retail merchant, we think, has been long suffering, and at the same time very foolish in not taking advantage of proper and legitimate measures toward self-protection.

Leaving the Farm.

Instead of leaving the farm, or selling it, see whether it will not be more profitable to cut it in two—say on one half, and sell the other. Don't forget this. The small farm must come—it is the best solution to the labor question; and don't forget that the majority who "move to town" from the farm are glad to move back again in a year or so; they find that they retired too soon.

Take a look around and see whether the small farmer, who owns his farm, is not getting along all right. There is no doubt on that score; he is not only making money, but not working himself to death, and is not worried greatly about his future. Hundreds of farm owners in this country had much better sell off from fifty to one hundred acres of land, and invest the money, or perhaps pay their debts. Better do this than turn the big farm over to a tenant, who, if he be honest, will hardly make enough to divide between two to the satisfaction of both.

Certainly this is not a good time to stop farming, unless one has saved enough to live on and independent of the farm, but, if the decision is to move, then sell out and let the other fellow have the worry. Along with the small farm tendency is the tendency toward small farm ownership. Every year, more tenants on large farms are buying small farms of their own, and they are doing the right thing; therefore, the wise thing to do is to go with the start of the tide, rather than follow it.

Living in town has its drawbacks—it is expensive in more ways than the unacquainted think of, and it is dependent, rather than independent. Besides, the average farmer does not make the best town citizen—he is not liberal and progressive enough—he is out of his natural element, and largely a failure, just as the average town man is a failure as a farmer. These are facts. Don't leave the farm because you can't run it as you want to, but stay by it and run it as the changed times demand. It is good business sense to do only as you can do well, and let somebody else do the rest; but don't stop doing.

Waste in Nature.

One of the difficulties connected with the economical use of the bounties of nature, rests in the fact that so much of value is practically inaccessible—too far from the place of use and consumption. This means a waste much more enormous than is generally comprehended. Although there is a well-founded fear that the timber supply will in course of time run out, and that lumber and wood will be scarce and expensive, the fact nevertheless remains that in some sections—in the mountains of Maryland and West Va., for instance—acres and acres of timber are being wasted.

In such sections, cord wood is practically worth nothing, for there is no market for it. As the land is desired for farming purposes, trees are "girdled" and left die, preparatory to their burning as they stand, and in other ways for various reasons, a tremendous waste of timber, that would be of great value in other localities, is going on. Some of this waste will ultimately stop, as new sections are developed by railroad facilities, but the indications are that such development will not materialize as rapidly as the need for it.

The resources of nature—the undeveloped resources—are yet beyond the comprehension of man, and after all it may be that in some way or other the shortage in products of one sort, may be compensated for by the invention, or discovery, of another sort. Somewhere in this great country of ours is resting dormant, natural resources, which are now, or will be, needed by other sections; but, while there is yet ample provision, and while things will in all probability work themselves out for the good of all, one cannot help but regret present waste.

The Campaign.

"The political campaign in this State has opened in earnest, and, judging from present indications, it will terminate in a 'whirlwind finish.' Candidates are ubiquitous—they appear in all towns and at all fairs, picnics and granges, apparently at one and the same time, and policies and platforms are supported and arraigned (with more vehemence than eloquence, be it said,) and wherever they go or whatever they say they make the people feel 'good impression.'"

The latter according to certain press reports. On the same authority—the partisan press—the public is informed that the other candidate is the one unworthy of support and that the other platform will unquestionably bring ruin to the commonwealth at large. In one controversy issues were laid aside entirely, and a running fusillade opened upon a candidate's chief asset—his character. And when certain phrases were reached on which there was no policy to touch, the attack was transferred to a candidate's former public acts, and a patronizing spew thrown out in behalf of his personal character that the other might be made the more vulnerable.

But to what purpose is it? There are still good men and true, who have refused and who will refuse to countenance practices such as these, and there are newspapers which would not lower their standards by indulging in the mud-slinging, school-boy tactics which have thus far been indulged in. Wise politicians know full well that votes are lost rather than gained by personal attacks, and the individual voters of either side—"regular" though they be—are ever for a fair fight, and in the open at that. Let the battle be in the open, then; let issues and platforms be assailed; let measures advocated by each party be substantiated or refuted; but let there be a trace to "mud-slinging" and to "dirty politics."—Emmitsburg Chronicle.

More About Parcels Post.

Our esteemed contemporary, the Merchants' Journal of Commerce of Raleigh, Lynchburg and Atlanta, is strongly opposed to granting to the people of the United States the advantages of a parcels post and takes exception to the remarks of The Sun in favor of progress in that direction. Every civilized country of the world except the United States has this modern facility for transportation, and cheap intercourse among the people. The United States provides it for the citizens of other countries, but denies it to its own citizens. The United States mails will take a package weighing as much as 11 pounds in any part of the United States and forward it to any part of Jamaica, Bolivia, Mexico, Hong Kong, Japan, Norway, Venezuela or New Zealand, and the charge for this service is 12 cents a pound. At the same rate of postage our mails will carry packages from any of those countries to any part of the United States.

But if an American citizen desires to send a package from Baltimore to Taneytown or Washington, he must pay 16 cents a pound and cannot send any article which weighs more than 4 pounds. Why is this discrimination against our own people? The answer is simple. Mr. Platt, the Senator from New York, is the president of an express company. He naturally desires a monopoly in transportation for his company, so that the express company can charge unreasonable prices for the carriage of commodities. The parcels post would interfere with this monopoly, and Mr. Platt and other advocates of monopoly in the United States Senate have not hesitated to use their official positions to promote their private business and to leave the field clear for themselves. And then, to gain some popular support to their schemes and monopoly, they start the theory that a parcels post will injure the country merchant.

Any change in long-continued customs, any genuine reform for the benefit of the many, is liable to work some temporary damage to individuals. When the Baltimore and Ohio railroad was built it put a number of stage lines out of business, and closed the doors of many taverns along the National road. But surely no one would contend that the development of the country by building railroads should have been prohibited on that account. The individual who is injured by the advance of civilization finds that his injury is but temporary. For each place of employment that is closed there are a dozen created.

But all this is beside the mark. The parcels post would probably work no injury to any retail country merchant. It would benefit him more than others. He has to order his goods from the city, and he feels more than others the excessive charge of the express monopoly in forwarding light packages to him. The mail-order business of city houses is confined principally to such small articles as are not ordinarily kept in stock at the local store, and these the city merchant, we believe, usually forwards free of postage charge. It would undoubtedly promote trade and enable people who live in remote parts of the country, out of the reach of express companies, to obtain things which they need but which they cannot now get.

The objection raised by our contemporary, that the business would be conducted at a loss, is not sound. It was declared some time ago that the express companies could transport newspapers at one cent a pound and make money on it. The United States can, upon its present contract with the railroads, certainly carry packages at a profit for less than a cent an ounce, the present charge. And there is no just reason why a package weighing five pounds should be excluded from the domestic mails while a package weighing more than twice as much is accepted and transported across the continent for shipment to New Zealand.

There is no concealing the fact that the opposition to the parcels post is inspired by the express monopoly and the interest of monopoly. Those Congressmen who talk loudly against monopoly and combinations in restraint of trade, and then vote against the parcels post, are monopolists and in the control of sinister influences, and their constituents should take them out of Congress at the first opportunity. The United States should keep up in the procession of civilization and provide every reasonable method of free and cheap intercourse among the people.—Balt. Sun.

The Reckless Automobileist.

In the dispatches published in the daily newspapers automobile accidents figure conspicuously. Six persons were killed and thirteen injured, according to the reports for one day. Two were struck by an automobile and died from their injuries. Four automobilists were killed as the result of a collision, a plunge over an embankment and other causes indicating either recklessness or inexperience in handling their machines.

This is a heavy toll for the country. The casualties to increase in proportion to the additional number of automobiles in use, there will be a grim total at the end of the year. The public suffers, of course, from automobilists who are reckless and inconsiderate, but it appears that the automobilists themselves are suffering even more than the "man in the street" or the farmer on the country road. Position of Foreign Countries on Immigration.

New York, Sept. 6.—After a several months' tour of inquiry into the immigration situation abroad, which carried them through England and Continental Europe, the members of the sub-committee of the United States Immigration Commission, with Senator William P. Dillingham of Vermont, as chairman, arrived here today. Some of the members of the Commission are still in Europe completing their investigations. The members of the committee returning today were Senator Dillingham, Senator Lattimer of North Carolina, Congressman Howell of New Jersey and Burnett of Alabama, and Secretary Morton E. Crane. The members have obtained much data which they believe will aid in solving many of the immigration problems now confronting the United States. The whole committee will meet later and prepare a report and recommendations which will be submitted to Congress.

Senator Dillingham made the following statement on the investigation of immigration conditions abroad:

"The sub-committee has visited every European country from which we receive any considerable number of immigrants. Italy was the first country visited. Senator Lattimer and Representatives Howell and Burnett took charge of the investigation in Northern Italy, Switzerland, France, Germany, the Netherlands, Belgium, Scotland and Ireland. Representative Burnett proceeded to Greece, Turkey, Syria, Asia Minor, Palestine and Roumania, while Commissioner Wheeler and myself gave attention to the work in Austria, Hungary, Russia and England. Senator Lattimer, Mr. Howell and Mr. Bennett visited various Russian points, and Commissioner Wheeler spent some time in Sweden and Denmark.

In conducting their investigations abroad the Commissioners gave special attention to the methods employed by the transportation companies in handling emigrants, the effect of the United States immigration laws upon European immigration, and the attitude of the various countries toward the departure of their subjects to other lands. The question of preventing the coming of criminal classes into the United States has been a chief subject of investigation, and it is probable that important recommendations on this matter will be made to Congress.

The subject of emigration is paramount in most of the countries we have visited, and in most of them the attitude toward emigration is not favorable. The constant and long-continued drain upon the rural population, of which class the great majority of emigrants come, and the general prosperity which now prevails have produced a scarcity of farm labor, and it is claimed the agricultural industry is suffering in consequence. The scarcity of labor has led to the condition of those remaining at home has to a degree been improved, but the general condition is causing much alarm among land owners, and a strong sentiment against emigration has developed. A very large proportion of male emigrants leave their native countries at a time when they are liable to military service there, and this constitutes a strong objection.

On the other hand, it is true that in some parts of Europe at least, emigration is not without its attending benefit, and the general prosperity which now prevails has produced a scarcity of farm labor, and it is claimed the agricultural industry is suffering in consequence. The scarcity of labor has led to the condition of those remaining at home has to a degree been improved, but the general condition is causing much alarm among land owners, and a strong sentiment against emigration has developed.

Added to this is a desire on the part of many of the people of the United States to build up a merchant marine, and as the carrying of emigrants is in many cases essential to the success of the shipping industry, the United States Government toward emigration is affected accordingly. These are the forces that control the situation in Europe today, and the trend of affairs indicates that more attention and greater supervision of emigration on the part of the United States is needed. The chief causes of emigration from Europe are a widespread knowledge that labor is more generously rewarded in America than at home, the desire for financial assistance of relatives and friends who have already emigrated, and the persistent activity of agents selling steamship tickets, who are to be found all over Europe, despite the fact that soliciting emigration is prohibited by the law in nearly every European country, and by our own immigration laws.

During the tour of inquiry and investigation the Commissioners have secured much valuable information, and have made arrangements to secure more, and feel confident that before their work is completed recommendations can be made to Congress which will be of great value to both valuable and important.

There are a great many people who have slight attacks of indigestion and dyspepsia nearly all the time. Their food may satisfy the appetite but it fails to nourish the body simply because the stomach is not in condition to do the work it is supposed to do. It can't digest the food you eat. TANEYTOWN LOCAL COLUMN.

Items of Local News of Special Interest to Home Readers.

All copy for ADVERTISEMENTS on this page must be in hand early on Thursday morning of each week, except Special Notices and short announcements.

Harvest Home services will be held in the Lutheran church, on Sunday morning, the 22nd.

Mrs. Kate Demmitt spent several weeks with friends and relatives, at York and Columbia.

Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Little, of Bustleton, Pa., spent the week in their home on Middle St., extended.

Harry L. Baumgardner and Edward Weaver, of this district, visited Jamestown Exposition, this week.

Miss Pearl Starr, of near Middleburg, has entered the Littlestown High School as a pupil for the coming year.

Milton A. Koons has been elected a director of the Birnie Trust Co., in place of Harvey E. Weant, deceased.

Owing to the unfinished condition of our enlarged public school building, school will not open on Monday.

Mrs. Wm. F. Clingan, of York, Pa., spent a few days, this week, with relatives and friends in Taneytown.

Major and Mrs. Ord, of Washington, D. C., visited Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Birnie, on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mrs. Dr. W. D. Brown, of Union Bridge, has been spending the week with her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Koons.

Mrs. W. F. Kehn, of Baltimore, and her brother, Oliver M. Crouse, of Westminster, spent Thursday in town on a visit.

The Arnold residence, on Frederick St., is to be partly torn down and rebuilt, and the whole building remodeled.

Messrs. Engene Reinholdt, Jack Crapster, Wallace Reinholdt and Clotworthy Birnie, left this week, each for a separate College.

Special meeting of the Fire Company, this Friday evening, at 7.30. On account of important business, the members are urged to attend.

John H. Shoemaker, wife and daughters, of Yorkers, N. Y., have been spending some time here on a visit to Mr. Shoemaker's parents.

Rev. Kenneth M. Craig, of Emmitsburg, will preach in Taneytown Presbyterian church, Sunday next at 10 a. m., and in Piney Creek at 2 p. m.

Our list of advertisers against trespassing (hunting) is growing. Hunters would be wise to take due notice thereof and govern themselves accordingly.

Mr. and Mrs. George Rickard, of Baltimore, are spending the week with Mr. John Ott and family. They also attended the Ott-Rose wedding, on Wednesday.

Rev. C. F. Sanders, a brother-in-law of D. J. Hesson, who was one of the instructors at Pennsylvania College, last year, has been made Professor by being elected the first incumbent of the chair of Philosophy.

Miss Savilla Humbert, who has been living with the Rev. C. A. Brit family, in Chicago, is home on a visit. She said, in answer to many inquiries, that all members of the family are in their usual health. She expects to remain here a month or more.

Mrs. Joseph Kellenberger, formerly of this district, died at Spring Grove, Pa., last Saturday, and was buried in St. Joseph's cemetery, Taneytown, on Tuesday morning. Mrs. Kellenberger, whose maiden name was Knox, had many relatives and friends in this neighborhood.

Mr. Harry Flegle, wife and two children, of Niantic, Ill., are here on a visit to his father, Wm. Flegle, and other relatives and friends. Mr. Flegle has not been here for fourteen years, and says he notices improvements on everything except the roads, which are worse than when he used to travel them.

At the congregational meeting, held last Sunday by Piney Creek and Taneytown Presbyterians, Rev. Thos. H. Whiteside, of New Jersey, was elected pastor to fill the vacant charge. Mr. Whiteside is considering the calls, and will give his answer to the congregations in the near future. It is probable the calls will be accepted.

The Hanover Fair was largely attended by citizens of this district, on Thursday. Four or five Taneytowners were relieved of their pocket books; one is said to have lost $130.00, another $40.00, and the others small sums. Most of the light-fingered work was done at the railroad while the crowd was about boarding the late train.

The farm of Samuel H. Little (formerly owned by Abram N. Hess) on the Gettysburg road, containing 212 acres, was sold last week, through T. H. Eckenrode, Agent, to B. J. Lennon, for $7,705. This is one of the largest farms in the district, and with some improvements may be made one of the best. On Thursday evening, Mr. Eckenrode sold to Jesse Reifsnider, the Harry S. Koons property, near Bridgeport, containing 73 acres.

Judge Claiborne, who is very quietly enjoying his fine home here, is greatly interested in the candidacy of Mr. George R. Gaither, for Governor. It will be remembered that Mr. Gaither was associated with Judge Claiborne in the practice of law, in Baltimore, during which time a very warm friendship sprang up between the two, which has continued ever since. Mr. Gaither visited "Antrim," on several occasions, and met quite a number of our citizens. He will likely receive a very large vote in this district.

The Thurnmont Clarion says: "After an absence of 57 years and at the age of above four score years and ten Miss Ellen Snyder a former resident perhaps a native of this immediate community is in town for the week, a guest of relatives, among whom are Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Currens, of East street, their children and their families and other friends and acquaintances formed in long, long by-gone years. Miss Snyder's remarkably advanced age, bright and unimpaired memory, her intellectual, versatility and promptness in the observance of old landmarks and in recognizing improved conditions, and her present disposition and ability to recall and minutely and interestingly discuss and deride incidents and happenings round about sixty and more years ago, easily entitles her to space in the roll of the most interesting personages who have dropped into town for many a year."

Maryland State Horticultural Society.

The Summer meeting of the Maryland State Horticultural Society will be held at Jamestown Exposition, September 24, in the court of the States Exhibit Palace. A program of much interest will be rendered occupying the entire day.

The annual meeting and exhibit will be held in the Fifth Regiment Armory Building, Baltimore, on December 3rd, and 4th. List of premiums and terms for floor space will be furnished on application to Thos. B. Symons, Sec'y., College Park, Md.

Letter to S. A. Brown, Taneytown, Md.

Dear Sir: What will it cost to sow ten acres half wheat and half daisy mixed? and what'll the crop be worth?

We don't know what daisy-seed costs, nor how bulky it is; we suspect half wheat and half daisy would make a big crop of daisies, and last a long time; the wheat might be short.

The parable throws some light on the cost of a mixed half whitewash. Whitewash, mixed half-half with paint, is all paint in look and feel, indeed nine-tenths of the "paint" in the stores is part whitewash; some half, some more, some less.

Paint has to be spread with the brush, the surface prepared, the ladders scaffolded and pulleys and ropes arranged and moved, there's a great deal of labor in putting paint on; it costs $2 to $4 a gallon to do it.

What does it cost to paint whitewash? Just the same. Half-whitewash? Just the same. It doesn't seem worth while, for the whitewash does harm, not good. Will the paint hold the whitewash fast?

Of the whitewash, the paint may also be better paint pure paint, the least-gallop paint, the least-money paint, Devoe.

Yours truly, F. W. DEVOE & CO. P. S.—J. S. Bower sells our paint.

DEEP SEA APPETITE.

Sailor Started a Cured Boston Waitress With His Order.

A fine example of a deep sea appetite, illustrated with moving pictures, was given in a restaurant in Newspaper row the other evening. A hale and hearty looking deep sea sailor moored up to one of the more mahogany tables and without hesitation started to gauge his appetite as follows:

"I would like a nice tenderloin steak, some broiled mackerel and half a dozen scrambled eggs. You may also bring me if you wish a mess of lettuce and some sliced cold tomatoes."

The waitress with sixteen kids forgot her usual smile in her anxiety to reach the table her confidence failed her, and she communicated her doubts about the sanity of her patron to the manager.

The latter decided to investigate. With all sails set he tackled the deep sea sailor and anchored alongside.

"Have you given your order yet?" he inquired, trying to look unconcerned.

"I have," was the frank reply. "What is it?" inquired the manager a little timidly.

Then the deep sea order was repeated, and on looking up and seeing the black look upon the manager's face the sailor asked, "Well, can't I get it?"

"You shall have it; you shall have it," said the manager, slightly embarrassed.

"Didn't the girl think I meant it all?" said the sailor, blushing like a poppy.

"That is all right," said the manager, smiling again.

It was the girl's turn to blush when she placed before her patron the full order, with half a dozen buns and five potatoes. And as nearby patrons glanced around they saw the deep sea man eating slowly, but surely, until she did not seem to be eating crumbs left of any part of the order.

"He should have had six potatoes instead of five," said the waitress, "and I'm sorry that he did not get them all."

"Amor!" said the chorus from the next table.—Boston Post.

Tired mothers, worn out by the peevish, cross baby have found Casasweet a boon and a blessing. Casasweet is for babies and children, and is especially good for the little so common in hot weather. Look for the ingredients printed on the label. It contains no harmful drugs. Sold by J. McKelip, Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

What turns to keep a secret? Sealing wax.

When is a ship like a tailor? When sheering off.

What is that of which the common sort is the best? Sense.

What animal would you like to be on a hot day? A little cat.

Why are hay and straw like spectacles? Because they are forage.

What is that which is full of holes and yet holds water? A sponge.

When is a clock on the stair dangerous? When it runs down and strikes one.

When does a farmer bend his sheep without hurting them? When he folds them.

DeWitt's Carbolized Witch Hazel Salve is good for boils, burns, cuts, scalds and skin diseases. It is especially good for piles. Sold by J. McKelip, Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

Oh, talk about the summer girl, in frocks and frills arrayed! The fascinating summer man is the man who wears a Panama hat.

He walks along the sandy shore in suit of silver gray, Pink shirt and fetching Panama. And steals our hearts away.

He plays at tennis, golf and bridge And strums the banjo, too, And swears and sings romantic songs When falls the evening dew.

He holds Amelia's skirts of floss And carries Elsie's shawl And begs a kiss from Emeline At parting in the hall.

Oh, deary would the beaches be Without our winter friends, His gorgeous tie and shiny shoes And graceful vestments!

The say, strutting knights in he Of parson and fan, The monarch of vacation time—All hail the summer man!

Edith: What foolish thing a young man will do when he is in love!

Edith (breathlessly)—Oh, Edith! Has he proposed?—New York Mail.

DeWitt's Little Early Risers are good for anyone who needs a pill. They are small, and sure, little pills that do not gripe or sicken. Sold by J. McKelip, Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

How to Treat a Jammed Finger.

The finger should be plunged into water as hot as can possibly be borne. This application of hot water causes the nail to expand and soften, and the blood pouring out beneath it has more room to flow. Thus the pain is lessened. The finger should then be wrapped in a bread and water poultice. A jammed finger should never be neglected, as it may lead to mortification of the bone if it has been badly crushed, and amputation of the finger must follow. Jammed toes are usually caused through the falling of heavy weights and should be treated in the same way as a jammed finger.

How to Prepare Pineapple.

To prepare a pineapple for eating cut off the top and bottom. Quarter the pineapple lengthwise, and cut off the hard core. With plaited fork and large spoon scratch and scrape the pulp from the shell. As a result you will have a pulpy, juicy mass for your table, instead of the hard slices or chunks usually served. The scraped shell in your hand will hold the troublesome eyes and, what will astonish you perhaps, a mass of long, thread-like, indigestible fibers.

WARMING ARBUCKLES' SLIGHTLY

SELECTIONS A MYSTERIOUS CALL.

Three Dots, Three Points of Light and a Mars Possibility.

Strange things are happening. For some time past toward midnight the receivers of the wireless telegraph stations have registered, and for a long period at a time, the signal three dots, which is persistently repeated. It has been proved, after investigation, that from no earthly station has such a message been sent at such a time. What, then, is this mysterious call? These three dots singularly recall three points of light which were observed on the planet Mars in 1901.

Midnight. Tap, tap, tap! Tap, tap, tap! Tap, tap, tap! Three sharp little knocks, short and hurried, sound insistently in the vast silence of the Marconi station.

The sleepers employed in the station are awakened with a start, and frightened and vaguely anxious, they look at each other.

"Did you hear it? It is beginning again. What is it, and who on earth can be sending it?"

"Don't you know your Morse alphabet? Three short dashes mean S. Will that receiver never stop sounding S, S, S, when no one knows why it is repeating it? It gets on one's nerves—hark!"

Tap, tap, tap! Tap, tap, tap! "Yes, it is true, but what can we do? Every night this happens at midnight. As long as S is being telegraphed, the receiver will register it. When they have had enough of it they will stop."

But in the loneliness of their stations, so lost and solitary at the end of the promontory, the employees at the wireless telegraph station feel, in the oppressive silence of the deserted night, those painful shivers which the black wing of mystery sends creeping up the back as it flies near. For several days past these three-tape signals have been obstinately repeated. Inquiries have been made at all the stations in the whole world. No one has sent forth such a message. Some one is telegraphing, but not from this world.

Then, that the message came from somewhere beyond. What is this obstinate little voice that calls to us in the darkness across the cold immensity of sidereal space?

Three dots. Wait a moment—why, in 1892 and again in 1901 the observers of the heavens were talking about three dots. During those two years, through the most powerful telescopes, a triangle made of three luminous spots was distinguishable on the planet Mars, small to our sight, but in reality immense, a triangle whose sides measured several hundred kilometers in length. These luminous spots stood out in dazzling whiteness against the blood red background of Mars—Charles Torquet in Metropolitan Magazine.

For several years the Ladies' Aid society of Sedalia, Mo., has acted as Betsy Ross for the M. K. and T. railway system. The "Katy" company furnishes all the material, and the women are paid a cent each for making the flags. Many shipments of the flags have been made. There are four styles of these flags. Red signifies danger, white a clear track, green that a second engine or car in the yard is undergoing repairs.

College graduates seem to be about the cheapest things going in New York city. A publisher doing business there is quoted as saying that the easiest kind of help to obtain at $12 a week is the recent college graduate. A leading lawyer of New York goes even further by declaring: "It is appalling to find the number of college graduates who stand idle and do nothing but clerical positions at $10 or $12 per week. For many years it has been possible in New York city to employ at from $10 to $12 per week large numbers of lawyers and other professionals who were graduates of both college and law school."
