guaranteed until the following week.

CONGRESS is in session. Let all rejoice that now our city dailies will not have so much space to give to sensational murders, divorce trials and "smut" in general.

THE IRREPRESSIBLE SENATOR Forker, of Ohio, who for a number of years has had something of a fire-eating reputation, politically, has announced himself as a candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination. The country need not be alarmed—the worst is over.

THE BALTIMORE News, which ardently supported Mahol, for Mayor, now says it smells "pole-catish" about the City Hall, and appearances in general look like the "old Rasin regime," when spoils were the reward for political activity. It is a pity that an idol should be spoiled, but the News is not an infallible political prophet.

WE TRUST that the Maryland legislature will decline to make any further appropriation on account of the Jamestown Exposition, even should it be continued next year. The tax-payers of the state have not been benefited by the Exposition, this year, to any extent approximating the amount already spent, and it would be simply giving away the people's money to spend any more in the same direction.

RED AUTOMOBILES seem to be the most frightful to horses, therefore, a legislative ban should be placed on that color. Such a step, in connection with the further restriction of speed limits, and further care on the part of autoists when meeting teams on the highways, would be but slight recognition of the proper claims of the traveling public; but perhaps these would help conditions until the sporting fraternity get tired of autoing and turn to the airship for amusement.

IT IS TRUE beyond question that carousing and late-hour disgraceful escapades, in all of our large cities, are entirely too frequent and too generally "winked at," especially when carried on by the "upper ten," or by those who have money and influence. The police are too often accommodatingly blind and deaf, and the majority of the laws are practically dead letters, so far as their enforcement are concerned. Such facts are responsible, in part, for the wave of temperance sentiment which is demanding local option.

Write Up Your Ideas.

We would like to have more letters for publication on topics of general interest, especially in the line of needed legislation, and on matters which people think and talk about because of their importance, and timeliness. We would also be glad to publish differences of opinion with editorial articles appearing in the RECORD.

This is an often repeated invitation, perhaps, but it is a genuine one without any "string to it," except such rules as we observe in the selection and preparation of our own articles. This county is full of persons able to write good articles, and who have views worthy of publication, and we will be glad to hear from all such.

The Labor Market.

If the tide is about to turn, as many think, and values of all kinds settle to a more rational point, which can result without a panic, or hard times, it will be interesting to note what our more or less tyrannical labor organizations are going to do about it. In the readjustment, which must attend lowered prices, lower cost of labor is inevitable, and this may involve a conflict between organized labor, on one side, and capital and the tendency of the times on the other.

Labor has not only been high, but scarce; it has crowded itself into certain markets where business has been un-healthily booming, largely because of the senseless spending of money, and now that money is getting "tight" the sudden stoppage of the golden stream shows on what an insecure foundation much of our labor has been employed, and that it must now receive its deep, and, at least, clear back to the country districts from which it not so long ago departed.

With the turn will also come many who have improvidently wasted both time and wages, and these will find it difficult to get places for themselves, because many are mere common laborers, doing nothing specially well. All branches of labor in which expertness at a trade does not figure, always suffer most and first, in any curtailment of help, for the very natural reason that labor in which there can be competition in numbers must necessarily be poorly paid because vacancies can be easily supplied.

The plodder, who "knows how" and has stuck to his job, saving money at the same time and not "blowing it in" and following movements for higher wages that he might "blow in" more, is the fellow who will come out at the head of the line, should there be a general turning away of help. Not only because he is a safe and trustworthy employee, but because, if the worst comes, he has something laid by with which to help himself.

That reductions in wages and the discharging of men would set hard on many, goes without saying, and it is to be hoped that it will not be the case, to any great extent, this winter. It is also to be hoped that organized labor will display reasonable sense and meet conditions as they come, as men, and not as arbitrary fault-finders with, and dictators to, their employers who have the most interest in business ventures and the best right to manage them.

and no doubt, in many instances, will put up resistance, and to the end. Men of this class will not censure themselves for being improvident spendthrifts, but will endeavor to incite opposition to all who have had more sense than they, and try to enforce a continuance of high wages, irrespective of the senselessness of their demands.

A Big Little Fuss.

The fuss that is being made over the omission of "In God We Trust" from the new Ten Dollar gold piece is a close approach to the ridiculous, and illustrates how many very wise people there are in the world who have very little to do. Altogether, it looks almost like a case of idle hands and brains finding mischief to do. The fact that the motto is on none of our notes, and on but few coins, illustrates that the omission of it from the gold piece is not at all serious —merely something to "talk" about—and not likely to depreciate either our money or the motto itself.

It would have been just as well, however, for our reforming President to have left the words stand. It does not pay for the President of the United States to exercise his authority in matters of this character, especially when there was no call for the change, and when there is at least a slight doubt as to whether he had authority for making it. Such things have an un-Præsidential air about them.

It is a bad example to set which causes people to get it into their heads that they know more than the President, even in small things, and is apt to create the impression, that, being President is not such a hard job, after all. If T. R. would stick to the deep water he would be wise—the "little fish" would not bother him so much—and the whole country would feel more at ease.

The Editor Agreed.

According to the Amsterdam (N. Y.) Recorder there is a man in that town who never quite agrees with the way "things are run," and recently he expressed himself to the editor, "I wish I was running this newspaper; I'd show the people what's the matter." The story then goes like this:

"My dear sir," was the careworn editor's prompt reply, "there's a desk over in the corner. Sit right down at it and write whatever you please, the same as if you were publishing this paper, and I'll print every word of it tonight."
"All right," was the man's rejoinder.
"I'll do it." So down he sat. He scratched his pencil, squared his shoulders, scratched his head and went at it. After laboring with considerable difficulty for half an hour he read what he had written, reread it, scratched his head again, tore up the sheet with an expression of disappointment and disgust and threw the scraps into the wastebasket. Once again he went to work, with the same unsatisfactory result—an increased pile of torn paper in the wastebasket. But the old gentleman was game, and he tried it a third time.
Nothing doing. With a somewhat subdued air he got up to leave the office.
"Well, where's that editorial that's going to reform this town?" asked the scribe, who, although busy with his own work, had kept part of an eye on what was taking place in the corner. "Why, it's about dinner time," was the humble reply, "and I must go home. Guess I won't write anything today." "Very well," said the newspaper man, who had anticipated just such a finale, "the desk is always there and is at your disposal whenever the spirit moves you." But he never heard it. The golden opportunity to turn Amsterdam into an elysium was lost.

Bryan Dedicates Fountain.

The Philadelphia Press gets off a neat specimen of irony at the expense of Hon. Wm. Jennings Bryan, who dedicated a public fountain in New Haven, Conn. The fitness of the effort will be readily recognized.

"This is right. A fountain is ever-flowing. It has no water supply of its own. It always has a flow for all that pass and passes by it. It is at all times a big sloppy and often sloppy over.
Men seek it to leave it, but it never leaves. It is always on hand, always turning out, turning out and spilling.
It was an apt, happy and suggestive thought which sought Mr. William Jennings Bryan to dedicate a public, a very public, fountain which never dries up."

Friendship does not spring up in the night like a weed, nor does it require sweet words and continual demands upon it to keep it alive. Friendship, unlike love, rarely happens at first sight.

The way to get a friend is to wait; to discover gradually among your circle of acquaintances, who is and who is not congenial, who is and who is not loyal, and who does not make you the better for being with them.

Friendships have been formed in the most accidental ways, friendships that have lasted all through life, but they seldom express themselves in the exuberant fashion which consists in writing notes in which "adore," "love" and "life-time adoration" permeates every line. Such friendship is not a pleasant perfume. It is a bit like musk. It is in bad taste and is heavy. True friendship does not waste itself on petty sentimental-ties that have no meaning, and which only tend towards jealousy and suspicion. Most of us can count up our real friends on the fingers of one hand.
The rest of the world is merely acquain-tanceship. Think of this when you are distributing Christmas presents. Determine the real friends you have and remember them. To give to others is apt to be for the purpose of a sinister kind, either to purchase a favor or to give because you have secured or because you think something is expected of you.—

Exit the Locomotive.

Electrification of steam railroads, which was hailed by the acute state of the money market, is likely to proceed again on a grand scale at the first favorable opportunity. The clue in the steam electric power seems certain to be by far the most important railroad development in the next five years. This transition will really mark a new age in transportation facilities, as it will also fix an epoch in the advance from one mechanical appliance in world-wide use to another and better one.

It has been announced that the Pennsylvania, which invariably leads in all great railroad works, will soon begin to electrify its main line. Much has already been done by various companies in different parts of the United States and in Europe, but a contemplated change in the leading trunk line of America is a matter of very profound interest.

The Pennsylvania has now in successful operation a line about sixty miles long, from Camden to Atlantic City.
Trains of six or eight cars are regularly run over this road at a high speed. The New Haven & Hartford has been engaged in a big enterprise electricifying its system from New York to Stamford, Conn. The New York Central has done a similar work on its main line for a considerable distance up the Hudson.

The Southern Pacific is about to electrify its terminal at Oakland, Cal. But in Germany more progress has been made in this direction than in the United States. Great Britain is also witnessing a gradual change from steam to electricity.

Conditions are more favorable for electric trains in Europe than in America, for the reason that population is denser and stops are more frequent. It is far easier to stop and start an electric train than a steam-hauled train, so that electricity is particularly desirable on suburban districts, where stations are close together, or in any populous community where frequent stops are necessary.

The New York Central made a series of elaborate tests to determine the relative merits of a steam locomotive and an electric motor. It was proved to the satisfaction of the officials that the locomotive is still the more efficient of the two when hatched to a heavy freight train that travels slowly. But for high speed and for efficiency in making quick stops and starts the motor wins. So far as electric development has now proceeded, it would appear that it will be confined to passenger trains for some time to come. The locomotive is still the more economical engine to move freight.

It has been estimated that it would take five years of time and $2,500,000,000 of money to substitute electric power on all the railroads of the United States.
That is equal to a sixth of their present capitalization. While such an expenditure may seem appalling, it will not deter the railroad managers when convinced that the change will aid in the more economical operation of their properties and when they can get the necessary capital.

Whatever else is true, it is certain that in a very few years no obnoxious, smoke-pulling locomotive will be permitted to enter any large city. Some towns have already placed a ban upon them as a nuisance since electric power has been made feasible. When economy, cleanliness and speed all unite in favor of electrification, the locomotive will have to give up its work after three-quarters of a century, in which the world's material development has exceeded that in the thousand years preceding.—Phila. Press.

When to go Home.

From the Bluffton, Ind., Banner:
"When tired out, go home. When you want consolation, go home. When you want fun, go home. When you want to show others that you have reformed, go home and let your family get acquainted with the fact. When you want to show yourself at your best go home and do the actual thing. When you feel like being extra liberal go home and practice on your wife and children first. When you want to shine with extra brilliancy go home and light up the whole world with yourself. To which we would add, when you have a bad cold go home and take

Miss Lillian Linn Shaw, of Baltimore, left on Thanksgiving day, for Chicago, where she will spend the month of December, with her sister, Mrs. J. Dan Blackstone.

All members of Carroll Conclave No. 333, I. O. H., are requested to be present at the next stated meeting, Dec. 9th. Important business. Nomination and election of officers.

The sudden opening of Winter has caused many people to wonder what became of Indian summer, this Fall—they know very well where a considerable amount of their Indian corn is.

With the arrival of December, comes thoughts of a 1908 calendar. We have printed a large number for our Taneytown business men, and it is probable that there will be enough to supply all.

Next Thursday night the P. O. S. of A. will nominate officers for the ensuing term—a week earlier than usual. A large attendance is desired. The Camp has engaged a fine moving picture outfit to show in the Opera House, on the nights of Dec. 26th, and 28th.

Mrs. Susanna Foreman, widow of the late Mr. James Foreman, who died last March, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Della Mathias, of near Rockville, Md., on Wednesday, Nov. 27, in her 78th, year. She leaves two sisters, and nine children. Funeral services were held on Friday.

A "Thank Offering" Missionary service will be held by the Foreign Missionary Society of the Lutheran Church, on Saturday night. The program will consist of music, addresses, readings, etc. A cordial invitation is extended to all members of the church, as well as to the public in general.

Two Insurance inspectors have been in Taneytown, within the last two weeks, looking over some of the business of their respective companies. All property owners should keep their chimneys in good shape, and prevent the accumulation of rubbish in cellars, or anywhere in their premises.

The following, from Mr. Wooden, former Editor of the Hamstead Enterprise, is immediately published: "I find it a great loss to me not to have the pleasure of reviewing the exchanges each week and being obliged to the 'borrowing' habit I enclose $1.00 for the Record for one year. Yours is one of the few papers that maintains a standard sufficiently high, to make it of real interest and value to one outside of the home community. The fact that it can be maintained profitably at such a high standard certainly reflects great credit upon you and the people of Taneytown and vicinity."

The annual banquet of Taney Lodge No. 28, I. O. O. F., was held last Friday evening, Nov. 29th, and was preceded by the initiation of a class of eleven, two degrees being conferred. About 30 members of Mason & Dixon Lodge No. 69, of Harney, and visitors from New Windsor, Silver Run and Littlestown, were in attendance. The banquet was served at the Firemen's Hall, by the ladies, who were assisting the Firemen, and was a success in every particular. The election of officers for the ensuing term, as well as the voting of the Past Grand for grand officers, will take place this (Friday) evening.

New Windsor.—Louis Ritter, of Baltimore, spent Monday.

T. W. Reid, of Taneytown, spent Thursday and Friday last, with his son, M. D. Reid.

Mr. Stamb, of Union Bridge, who has been drilling in Wm. Carbaugh's stone quarry for several days, set the blast off on Friday last and blew out about 700 perches of stone.

Miss Kitty Roper visited her sister, Mrs. W. A. Bower, at Taneytown, the latter part of last week.

The students of New Windsor College will present "The mischief Makers" in the College Hall, on Friday evening, Dec. 13.

The corporation authorities widened the street this week, between the residence of Dr. G. H. Brown and Dr. Whitehill's new house.

Are you having trouble with your kidneys? There are lots of people today who wonder why they have pains across the back, why they are tired and lacking in energy and ambition. Your kidneys are wrong. They need relief without delay. Take DeWitt's Kidney & Bladder Pills; they are for weak back, inflammation of the bladder, backache and weak kidneys. Sold by J. McKellip, Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

Never Had Served It Before.

The Chicago "Chronicle" relates the experience of a short little woman and tall husband, who went to a downtown restaurant for dinner.

"Will you have oysters?" asked the man glancing over the bill of fare.

Thanksgiving Day Social.

(For the Record.) Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Winemiller, entertained at their home, on Thanksgiving evening, a host of young friends. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Winemiller, Mr. and Mrs. George Winemiller and Mrs. Daniel Crabbs; Misses Bessie Dorn, Elsie Baumgardner, Carrie Stonestick, Marie and Carrie Keeler, Elizabeth and Mary Stansbury, Myrtle Koons, Grace Repp, Edythe Lynn, Mollie, May and Annie Winemiller, Nora Leppo, Lula Cover, Ethel Sweigart, Nellie Wilhide, Minnie West; Grace McCoy of near Baltimore, and Ada Morelock, of Westminster.

Messrs. Roy Dorn, Norman Baumgardner Wm. Stonestick, Glenn and Roy Keeler, George Stansbury, Charles Cunningham, Levaland Repp, Whitfield Buffington, George Humbert, Samuel and Raymond Wilson, Mervin Wilhide, George and John Carroll, Mervin Wantz, David Carroll Cover, Mervin Wantz, David Koons, J. Price Robertson and M. K. Fabney.

Games were indulged in, and at a late hour refreshments were served, after which all departed, having thanked their host and hostess for their kindness.

Misses Dorn and Sweigart, favored the guests with some very charming music.

R. S. McKinney's Unusual Offer.

"It isn't often that I have faith enough in the medicine put up by other people, to be willing to offer to refund the money if it does not cure," said R. S. McKinney to a RECORD man who dropped in to his store, "but I am glad to sell Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia on that basis."

"The Dr. Howard Company, in order to get a quick introductory sale, authorizes me to sell their regular fifty cent bottles at half-price, 25 cents, and, although I have sold a lot of it, and have guaranteed every package, not one has been brought back as unsatisfactory."

"There are sixty doses in a vial that can be carried in the vest pocket or purse, and every one has more medicinal power than a big pill or tablet or a tumbler of mineral water."

"I am still selling the specific at half-price, although I cannot tell how long I shall be able to do so, and anyone who is subject to constipation, sick headache, dizziness, liver trouble, indigestion, or a general played-out condition, ought to take advantage of this chance."

IN A LIFETIME.

When Ethel's little teeth burst forth in cunning, baby rows, They looked, my ma and pa declared, Like lines of pearls.

She grew to be a beautiful maid, And young men wooed and wooed; About her wondrous matchless teeth—An even line of How She Stood.

"Well, Carrie, how do you stand at school?"

"Teacher says I stand awful pigeon toed, but she hopes to break me of the habit."—New York World.

Just a Reminder.

For nine long years he had been wondering the fate daughter of the farm. "Jennie," he mused as they sat on the old rail fence, catching lightning bugs, "I read the other day that in 50,000 years Niagara falls will dry up."

"Oh, Tom!" she exclaimed.

"What, gal?"

"Why, as you promised to take me there on the honeymoon, don't you think we better be a little keener that it don't dry up before we get there?"

N. B.—The next day the wedding bells rang in the village—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Home Made Happy by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

About a month ago our baby girl had measles which settled on her lungs and at last resulted in a severe attack of bronchitis. We had two doctors but relief was obtained. Everybody thought she would die. I went to eight different stores to find a certain remedy which had been recommended to me and failed to get it, when one of the storekeepers insisted that I try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I did so and our baby is alive and well to-day.—Geo. W. Spruce, Holly Springs, N. C. For sale by R. S. McKinney, Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

From the Almond Point of View.

He—So your marriage was a failure? She—Oh, I don't know.

He—Why, I thought you had secured a divorce?

She—I did.

He—Well, don't you call that a complete failure? She—Hardly. You see, my partner made an assignment and I received a very neat sum as a preferred creditor.

He—Oh—um—er—I beg your pardon.

—Judge.

Going and Coming.

A young artist recently gave his wife her first peep at a picture he'd been working on for a wealthy patron.

"Why, dear, it's lovely," murmured the better half—"lovely! But I think those sheep look—well, just a trifle too much like clouds—that is, of course, dear—unless they are clouds!"—Harpur's Weekly.

And She's So Pretty.

"She declares she'll never go to that photographer again. She says he's just hateful!"

"My! I wonder what the trouble was?"
