Something About Acetylene Gas.

An article on Acetylene, published in Condensed Items of Interest from the RECORD over a year ago, will perhaps be read with more interest now, therefore it is reproduced. As was stated at the time, the writer of it was not in-terested in any particular light, but gave Wm. Jennings Bryan is becoming famous as a secret order man. He joined the Eagles, on Tuesday night, and is now said to belong to nearly a dozen orders. as a light, and no doubt all the statements made are authoritative and cor-

"Acetylene is a gas that is produced bring-"Acetylene is a gas that is produced from calcium carbide by merely bringing the carbide into contact with water. It is produced by tank apparatus which are automatic in the handling of the water and the carbide, and which deliver the gas into holders, when it is handled substantially as any gas. The carbide is a patented chemical compound, produced in electrical furnaces. It is produced in electrical furnaces. It is one of the very few chemical compounds that have ever been patented. It is controlled by a trust, or a combination, in the ownership of which the large gas men have big interests, and it will not therefore be allowed to compete with coal gas, directly. It is being used to "enrich" the product of the coal gas companies and to furnish light for companies, and to furnish light for small places and isolated houses, where the manufacture of coal or water gas cannot be profitably or conveniently prosecuted.

Acetylene is a very brilliant and high-powered illuminant. To produce the same volume of light an acetylene burner consumes but a fraction of the gas that an ordinary burner does, about one-fifth as much, speaking without regard for absolute accuracy and not allowing for the great variety of coal-gas burners. It may be handled, therefore, through small piping. There is no water through small piping. There is no water in it, and the pipes need not be put be-low the frost line, unless it is deemed prudent to do so to avoid the quite possible danger from water that may enter the pipes through leaks in them. As a matter of fact, gas engineers advise that pipes for acetylene be buried below the frost line to avoid this very contingency.

There are many types of generators suitable for the lighting of houses, and they are not very expensive. Once the generator is installed the cost of lighting the house ought not to be much more than if kerosene is used. Theoretically, one burner will cost less than a kerosene lamp to operate, without considering the care of the lamp; and will produce Acetylene produces the best light of any artificial illuminant now available. It is very nearly the color and quality of sunlight. The flame is so small that it produces little heat, and it does not vitiate the atmosphere in the room. It is the least dangerous of all of the artists the least dangerous of all of the artists. is the least dangerous of all of the artificial lighting systems, not excepting kerosene oil and the time honored tallow dip. As a gas it is not as poisonous as coal or water gas, and it enters the room in such small quantities that a person plosion of acetylene generators, and the explosion of the gas after it had leaked into a room or a cellar, but all of these accidents were due to the fact that acety lene is a gas that will burn, even as coal and water gas will. Carelessness brings disaster, even to the house where candles

For villages with a population of 500 upward acetylene is the ideal illuminant, both because it is inexpensive and because it is easy to install and produce. It is perfectly feasible for two or three, or any group of houses, to install a generator in common. The attendance cost is very small, and there is no expert service needed. Competent advice should sought when the machine is set up, and rigidly followed. Then about all the work may be done by the owners of the house, if they wish to keep the cost down; and the piping need not be expensive. As a rule, but one burner is needed for each room. One burner will light an ordinary room so that every part of it is available for reading, needle work, or any purpose. No other single burner that I know of will do this. It will light the streets of a village far better, per burner, than any other gas or electricity, and no different type of burner is required, and only the ordinary plain glass lantern is necessary.

Chairman B. B. Shreeves read the letter declaring for the amendment from ex-Attorney-General William Shepard Bryan, Jr., referred to in another column, and also a letter from Senator John Walter Smith, both of which were enthusiastically applauded enthusiastically applauded. State Senator Gorman was accorded a demonstration. He congratulated the men who had conceived the idea of the banquet. He spoke of the united Democracy and declared that the Democrats of Maryland would fight on until they finally eliminate the negro from politics of Maryland. He paid a tribute to Senator Maryland. He paid a tribute to Senator Rayner and declared that when the "black danger" that hangs over the head of the white people of the state is removed many needed and demanded reforms will be easily accomplished. He spoke of the co-operation between counties and city that had enabled so many good laws to be placed on the statute books. to be placed on the statute books.

The 50th. Anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg.

Harrisburg, Pa., January 5.—Among the numerous recommendations made by Governor Stuart in his biennial message to the Pennsylvania Legislature, which convened today, is one for a fitting observance in July, 1913, or the fiftieth anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg. The Governor says:

"Of Pennsylvania commands there $14,079,330. were engaged or present on the field 60 regiments of infantry, 10 regiments of cavalry and seven batteries of artillery. the fiftieth anniversary of the battle, and it would be entirely in keeping with the patriotic spirit of the people of the commonwealth to properly recognize and fittingly observe this anniversary. #### The Lincoln Memorial Highway.

The Merchant's and Manufacturer's Association, of Westminster, has issued a circular letter indorsing the Lincoln Memorial Highway, which it will send to every member of Congress. While the circular indorses the project, "by what-ever route may be decided upon as best," it specially presents the claims of the Westminster route, and calls attention to the fact that;

"The battle of Gettysburg really began in the streets of Westminster. A squadron of Delaware cayalry was encamped at the West end of town. Its commander was informed that a troop of Confederate cavalry was approaching the East end. Without hesitation, the boys in Westminster the first collision on Maryland soil in that campaign between the Federal and Confederate forces, the real beginning of the battle of Gettysburg, and the shedding of first blood in Maryland.'

If this memorial is to be built-and it is confidently claimed that it will be-it is difficult to understand how it would be possible for it to miss going through the centre of Carroll county, from south to north, for it is scarcely to be thought that such an expensive memoria! would be built otherwise than by this the most direct feasible route.

This route would also first reach the southern bounds of the battlefield, several miles this side of Gettysburg, and might follow the "Taneytown road" which was then as now, one of the main roads leading to the scene of the great many persons stay out of the Republicanflict, and which of course possesses can party of Maryland because it is the considerable historic interest.

----Topics Published a Week Ahead.

Recently, we have been receiving more requests for the publication of our Sunday School and Christian Endeavor columns a week ahead of their use, among them being one from Ocean Park, Calif., and another from Detroit, Mich., while others from nearby seem to indorse the change. We have, there-fore, concluded to make it, beginning with the present issue, which necessitates the printing of two columns of

In regard to the Carroll County Almshouse, I can only say that it is one of the cleanest and best in the State. There were no insane and but one feeble-minded inmate at the time of my visit. Your close proximity to Springfield enables you to transfer your cases promptly. If the conditions throughout Maryland were as good as I found them in Carroll county, there would be no reason for this public agitation concerning the State care of the insane. I regret to say, however, that conditions in a great many of the counties are a disgrace to our State, and we

TALK OF THE AMENDMENT.

The Disfranchising Scheme Is Already Attracting General Attention.

That the amendment designed to disfranchise Maryland negroes will soon attract general attention, seems assured. Among the newspapers and politicians of Baltimore, the question is already being discussed and analyzed, and the lines are being formed for and against it. The proposition, plainly stated, means an effort to prevent nearly all means an effort to prevent nearly all negroes from voting, to let all ignorant white men vote, and to make Maryland blue, only eighty strong, galloped down Main street and charged an army, for they found awaiting them the whole body of Stuart's cavalry. Thus occurred in Westmington the first collisions. to time, give it considerable space, in order that the readers of the RECORD may be fully posted.

The News and American oppose the amendment, while the Sun is expected to favor it. The News says:

"There are two reasons why The News has argued that Maryland ought not to pass this amendment. One of them is that the elimination of the negro vote will make this a one-party State; that there will not be apongh independ that there will not be enough independent voters to hold the scales even. It is all right to talk about parties splitting up as soon as the negro is disposed of, but we have not a particle of faith in the prediction. Party loyalty grips many persons as strongly as does religion, and they would as soon think of changing one as the other. We do not think many persons stay out of the Republi-'negro party.''
Another reason why we object to the amendment is that Northern States have been chafing under conditions that give the South disproportionate representation in Congress and in the national conventions, and that this may be the last straw. This feeling may not be entirely logical, but it is intensely human. There have been mutterings of discontent as the disfranchisement of negro farther South has proceeded, but there has been a disposition, on the whole, not to look too closely at what was done or how it was done. But it would be a great mistake to assume, because there has not been more resentment displayed at the disregard of the Fifteenth Amendment, that many fairminded men are not restive under it. Unless we are much mistaken, there will be constant protest that the Maryland amendment is a thing meant not for the good of the negro and not for the good of the white man, but that it is a political trick designed to give a coterie of politicians control of the State." A banquet was held at the Rennert,

A banquet was held at the Rennert, this Thursday night, for the purpose of launching the democratic campaign in favor of the amendment. Attorney-General Bryan, in publicly expressing regret that he would be unable to attend, signified his indorsement of the amendment, in general terms. He said: "It prescribes in definite terms the qualifications of the voters and does not qualifications of the voters and does not leave the rights of the citizen to the discretion or whim or caprice of the officials conducting the registration. This amendment is an honest, straight-forward measure, for which all persons desiring to disfranchise the ignorant and illiterate negro should vote.

There is one political matter in connection with the amendment which should be considered by all of us, and that is, whether the independent vote of the State will be unwilling to assist in passing the amendment from fear of making this a one-party State and of making the management of the Democratic party too powerful. One way to lessen this danger is for the Democratic party in making its nominations and in conducting this coming campaign to so act as to win public confidence.

The Maryland amendment has been compared, word for word, with like amendments in force in Louisiana and North Carolina, and has been found to be more nearly in conflict with the 14th. and 15th. Amendments to the U.S. Constitution, and this fact makes the situa-tion in Maryland one of great interest to the South, especially should the Maryland amendment-if it passes-be declared unconstitutional by the U. Supreme Court, as such a decision might affect the status of the laws of other

The Maryland amendment, for instance, does not contain any time limit for the expiration of the "grandfather's" clause-which will disfranchise all Negroes not paying taxes on $500. worth of property, or who cannot pass a rigid educational test-while both North Carolina and Louisiana laws fix a limit, which, in the case of the former, has already expired. Maryland also exempts persons of foreign descent, while the aws of other southern states do not. Altogether, it is the clearest attempt to disfranchise, on account of "race or color," yet made by any state, and, as such, it may yet lead to very serious consequences, should it be held to clearly conflict with the Constitution of the

"The constitutional amendment of Mississippi," declared Senator Money "does not attempt as much as that proposed for the State of Maryland. The Mississippi amendment does not go as far as the North Carolina amendment. We have no grandfather clause in Mississippi, but I believe the grandfather clause in North Carolina amendment is absolutely constitutional. The qualifications for registration and voting under our amendment in Mississippi are very simple. In the first place a man to be able to vote must be able to read a clause of the Constitution. If he cannot read, but can understand the clause when it is read to him, that is sufficient. There have been practically no rejections of men for not fulfilling these qualifications. The other essential feature of our Missto vote, must have paid their taxes for pensive to keep going.

two years previous to their registration, and also a poll tax of $2. Those who have not done this are excluded from suffrage. This is the really effectual clause in the Mississippi constitutional amendment. There is no property qualification at all in Mississippi, no grand-father clause and the Supreme Court of the United States has sustained the constitutionality of our amendment.

"Do you think," Senator Money was asked, there is any difference of phrase-ology between the 'grandfather clause' of the constitutional amendment of Maryland of Natyland of Natyland of Settle Constitutional amendment of Maryland of Settle Constitutional amendment of Maryland of Settle Constitutional amendment of Maryland of Settle Constitutional amendment. land and of North Carolina under which one might be declared constitutional and the other pass muster in the courts? "I have no doubt about the consti-tutionality of the North Carolina 'grand-father clause,' "he responded. "I went over its Constitution and suffrage statutes from the beginning. I would not like to give an off-hand opinion about the Mary-land 'grandfather clause' without socion land 'grandfather clause' without seeing the text of the Constitution of Maryland in its present form and as it may have been in the past. Each one of these constitutional amendments stands upon its own bottom before the courts. great deal in court depends upon the way in which the provisions of Constitutions and statutes respecting suffrage

"There is one distinction, very plain to me, which is often lost sight of in the discussion of suffrage qualifications. It is the distinction between the imposition of qualifications that can be overcome and those that cannot be overcome through the effort of the citizen. Cooley, a very good authority and considered so by everybody, says no qualification is unconstitutional that the voter can overcome by his own effort. A qualification requiring men to be 9 feet tall in order to vote would be unconstitutional. That is something that could not be overcome by the citizen's own efforts. But a requirement that citizens must be able to read and write, that they must pay a tax or own property are qualifications that can be overcome by one's own efforts."

WHY ADVERTISE?

The American Magazine, in specially presenting the advantages of that periodical to advertisers, says the following good things about advertising in general: "Some firms advertise to impress competitors and to attract the attention of friends. Verily they have their reward. Other firms advertise in imitation of their competitors; or they are forced into it through competition. They, too, reap some pecuniary benefit. Neither class touches bottom. The basic reason for advertising is to stimulate trade. Sane business houses know this; that is, in theory. In actual prac-tice nine out of ten advertise because the other fellow advertises. If there were only one general store in a city it would pay that store to advertise. If there were only one manufact-urer of soap in the country it would pay that manufacturer to advertise. It is safe to say that hundreds of millions spent annually in trade would rot in musty vaults if it were not for the stimulation of national publicity.

The advertiser has created the machinery of distribution. He it has made it possible for you and for me, for the mechanic in his humble cottage or the ranchman on the distant prairie A lengthy article, giving the views of Senator Money, of Mississippi, who is well posted on the subject, appeared in to enjoy the blessings of modern civilization in the form of wholesome food

The shrewd advertiser sees beyond his own door-step and farther than this year's balance sheet. He increases his machinery of distribution that he may increase his output. When he buys advertising space in a periodical he adds that periodical to his business. There is no other way to figure advertising intelligently.

Circulation isn't everything. The advertiser wants the prestige of unprecedented success; the influence of recog-nized merit; the power of stimulating thought, and it is these qualities which make a periodical valuable as an advertising medium.

Advertising is investment; investment This is the largest sum ever voted by Congress to the succor of sufferers in other than churches and schools being issippi amendment is the tax clause. This provides that citizens to be qualified sive to create, but comparatively inexTHE CARROLL RECORD

Against Parcels Post.

Among the strongest opponents of the Parcels Post proposition is Maxwell's Talisman, of Chicago, published where the octopus mail order houses thrive, a brainy periodical advocating the best interests of small towns and country life generally. It's motto is "a home for every worker," and it especially promotes forestry, irrigation, drainage, and are always worth reading, if not always eytown, Md. indorsing. We give, below, its latest arguments against the adoption by the government of the Parcels Post idea. which would have the effect of greatly benefitting the mail order business, and consequently injuring the business of merchants in small cities and towns.

"We live in an era of progress. We are moving forward so rapidly that there is danger that some proposed so-called modern improvements may be accepted as beneficial which in their actual working out, when practically tried, would prove to be evils in the guise of benefits. An illustration of this is the proposition to turn the Postoffice Department into a carrier of all kinds of miscellaneous merchandise by the adoption of a parcels post system. From a national point of view one of the most serious dangers from this system is the inevitable effect that it would have, to throw into mail order channels and transfer to the great cities of the country a vast volume of trade now done in the small cities, country towns and villages. That this would be an evil no one with a mind capable of thought can deny. Stupendous changes in the method of transacting the business of distributing merchandise to the consumers would result, and the result of every change would be to transfer trade and population to the great cities.

It would practically wipe out the jobbing trade and the country merchant would inevitably become, as the Postmaster General says, in effect, he has become in Germany, a sales agent without any stock in trade, offering specific goods as they are sold, just as a manufacturer's agent does in this country, requiring no more of the machinery of trade than is necessary to transmit his orders to the central factory or warehouse. Retail merchants now engaged in trade in thousands of the smaller trade centers in all parts of the country would be forced out of business, their stores would be closed and some great mail order concern in a big city would do the business. The people employed to transact it would necessarily live in the cities where the trade was done. In every European country where the parcels post system exists, it has had this effect. cities of those countries in Europe have grown in population and trade with stupendous strides, at the expense of the country, since the parcels post system has been in vogue. That system has undoubtedly been one of the great promoting influences towards this centralization of trade and population in the cities.

To break the effect of this fundamental objection to the parcels post, the pro-ponents of that scheme urge that it will stimulate the settlement of the rural Health, with a corps of vigilant uniregions, because it will increase the conveniences of rural life. So it would stimulate rural settlement, if the government There will always exist certain news- take note of, as one which has been would furnish everyone who would move and with full power to have their will papers which cater especially to the de- carefully thought out by those most into the country with a donation of money and a free supply of garden tools. the huge treasury deficit which would be caused by the parcels post system if inaugurated were applied directly to such donations and gifts from the government, it would undoubtedly result in creating many new country homes, but the tion from such a scheme would far over-balance the benefits from it.

The fact is incontrovertible that the spection. goods, wares and merchandise, house-hold goods, garden tools, dry goods and clothing, groceries and all food products not produced on the farm must be purchased from some source by the dwellers in the country. Where are these goods to come from, and where are the people who conduct the trade of supplying them to live? If the countless millions of dollars expended by the dwellers in the country for such things in the course of a year are sent to the great cities, and the goods ordered there from huge mail or-der concerns, to be delivered by parcels post, then the fact can not be that the people who transact that im-mense volume of annual business will be concentrated in the cities. be transferred to the cities. The eventual working out of such a system would result, in the end, in dividing our population into two classes—those living in the great cities and those living on farms, whether they be large or small, in the country. The intermediate population, which now furnishes the social center for village, or in a small city where prac-tically every social advantage can be had that exists in the larger cities, would struggle for existence against a constantly increasing industrial force that would

How Hawaii Guards Health.

Honolulu is a clean city. This doesn't mean comparatively so, but clean in the sense that would be demanded in the most fastidious New England village. This will not coincide with the ideas of travelers who have never been here but who have visited Southern Europe, Egypt, India, Central and South America, and in fact almost all other parts of tropic world; for generally speaking the attractions of . the torrid zone have not derived any of their charm from their sanitary arrangements, but rather, in spite of them

But Honolulu in a way has been made to order and does not conform in many respects with other parts of the world. Settled originally by Americans of an intelligent and conscientious type, who have moulded a barbaric but plastic native population into American citizens of a high class, and have entirely dominated in civic matters all the rest of the polyglot peoples which make up the population of the islands, cleanliness has indeed come to be considered by all as next in godliness. Science in recent years has come to confirm this religion of cleanliness, with the result that Honolulu as a city, and Hawaii as a territory, probably stand close to the head of the class in matters of sanitation with any place of similar population or area.

One or two sharp lessons from outbreaks of plague and Asiatic cholera a a large portion of the city of Honolulu was destroyed by flames started to burn a number of infected tenements, further taught the city the value of keeping clean. Today one may wander through the network of narrow lanes and alleys which sub-divide the congested Oriental section of this city of forty thousand or more, and peep into tiny back yards and courts without the senses being anywhere assailed by evidences of disease breeding filth. Passage ways are well swept, and refuse is carefully collected and removed.

Back of all these sanitary measures in evidence, is the territorial Board of formed inspectors who cover the city as thoroughly as any police department enforced. A thoroughly effective garbage department and an efficient sewer system and garbage crematory are a part of the machinery of the Health Board. The public markets are kept under the strictest surveillance; and a milk supply of unquestioned purity attests the thoroughness of the dairy in-

The conditions in Honolulu are duplicated in a smaller way in every part of the Territory. On the plantations where thousands of Japanese, Chinese, Portuguese, and other nationalities frequently live close together in laborers quarters, the health rules are very strict. Generally speaking the Japanese need little coaching in matters of cleanliness, which is the big thing in the battle against disease. Other nationalities have to be more carefully watched, but generally comply without protest to all sanitary regulations. A death-rate of less than 12 1-2 per thousand population for the islands, speaks forcibly of the favorable conditions of life in Hawaii.

LADIES SHOULD KEEP A BANK ACCOUNT

BECAUSE a check is a receipt for money paid, and no one can make you pay it twice. But if you pay cash you can trust only to your memory, and if that is wrong, you may have to pay twice or have a quarrel. It often happens so.

BECAUSE if you carry money you are liable to lose it, but there is no harm done if you lose your check book.

BECAUSE we have charming little check books the size of a small pocket book, that you can carry in your pocket-if you have one-and not feel it. The pocket book is covered with Alligator skin, and in addition to the Checks has a tiny deposit book in it. The checks are of the best bond paper, and have a beautiful Monogram on them. It is a pleasure to use them.

BECAUSE we have a handsome Bank with a nice Private Parlor, where you can rest, or write letters, or transact your private business, or chat with a friend. This room is always at your disposal.

BECAUSE, if you keep A SAVINGS ACCOUNT in addition to your check account, you will cultivate the habit of saving, and it will make you thrifty. As Robert Burns said, "Mony a Mickle maks a Muckle!" We pay interest on Savings accounts, not on Check accounts.

BECAUSE we always try to pay your checks with nice clean notes and bright silver. And we will strive to be so polite and prompt that it ought to be a mutual pleasure for us to deal with each other. Won't you come and see us, and try it?

PRAIRIE SCHOONER BARN.

A Farmer's Original and Practical Plan For a Horse Home.

An agriculturist in Dowagiac, Mich. has made plans for a prairie schooner barn, and he states that the barn bas proved satisfactory to him. He built his ten years ago. He calls it a prairie schooner barn because it is mostly toof and has no beam or mortise in its makeup and ordinary farmer help can do all of the work. The barn is forty feet long by sixty feet wide and the arches (which represent the bows of the prairie schooner or mover's wagon) are made of inch boards six inches Wide and of any length and six boards deep, each board bent to shape as it is nailed to the others, using plenty of nails and giving plenty of lap over each joint. The arches form a half circle, and in building them the owner drew a half circle on the ground and Set posts a few feet apart (perhaps ten) on the outside of the circle, being careful to get them perpendicular and three or more feet high, so several could be made before any had to be moved. Fourteen arches in all were used. These were placed about three feet apart on the side walls, four feet high by two feet thick. These arches, or rafters, were covered with roof boards and shingles, except, the top being too flat for shingles, metal roofing was used. Six round posts are used in each end extending from Stone wall one foot high to arches, on which the girders and siding are nailed. The floor is paved with field stone

I just buy the common soft coal, which I scatter over the ground where they can get at it, and they eat it all the time. I have fed them several tons of coal in this way, and my hogs seem to be perfectly healthy. I believe that if we would look after our hogs a little more carefully and feed them certain things we would meet with fewer losses."

Potatoes For Cattle.

Small potatoes and apples are worth much as food for stock. There is, however, great danger of choking in cattle if either are fed whole, and it is a big job to cut or mash them if a large quantity is to be fed. It is perfectly safe to feed either to hogs or Cows are subject to rheumatism, sheep in any kind of feed dish, but not so with cattle. But if two pieces of timber are put up just far enough apart so the animal's neck can be held between them and a hole bored through at such a height that the anithere will be no danger of choking.

> Worth of the Dairy Bull. No dairy bull should be extensively used until he has attained a very mature age and proved that he is capable of producing profitable progeny. The fact that a male animal is pure bred or registered does not positively offspring tells the story.

FOR THE BOLTERS.

Profitable Fruit Crops From Run Rutherford System of Providing Pure Feed Boxes to Prevent Horses From Eating Too Rapidly.

Many horses bolt their food, and the result is indigestion and other ills. One horseman who has animals that eat too fast has built an arrangement for the manger to overcome this, and he describes is as follows:

"To prevent a team from eating oats too fast use a box as shown in the illustration. A partition goes from top to bottom, so each horse can be fed different amounts.

The box is cov- FOR FAST EATERS. ered with hinged lid and placed in the middle of the manger if used for two horses. If only one horse needs it make half a box and put at one end of the manger. Put feed in hopper, and it works slowly into feed box be-

Another horseman has an automatic feed box for the fast eaters in his stable. He says of the arrangement: "When horses feed in one end, with a slanting partition that lets it out as the horse eats it, is a splendid contrivance. Horses naturally feed from the ground. An elevated manger is a mistake. A loose box like this on the floor of a box stall is an ideal way of feeding grain to a horse."

MOLASSES FOR COWS.

Aids Digestion and Improves Quality of Milk, Says Hoard.

At the recent national dairy show W. D. Hoard, the well known authority on dairy subjects, advised farmers to feed molasses to their cows.

"Cows like sweets," he said. feed my herd a regular ration of molasses every day, and I find that it thrives on it. It makes their flesh fat and their skins glossy. It gives zest to their appetite and helps their digestion. It increases the quantity and improves the quality of their milk, for it puts the cow in a good humor, and a good humored cow is the best milker.

"Of course the thing can be overdone. Too much molasses is bad for the cow, just the same as too many chocolates are bad for Daughter Susan or too much taffy disagrees with young Bill. But a steady diet of a small quantity of molasses is a great thing for a dairy herd. My cows have got into the habit of looking for it. They don't relish their fodder without I feed it to them all the year around, except in the breeding season. The carbons in it are dangerous then. "I have had occasion," continued

Mr. Hoard, "to go rather deeply into the subject of the relation between the nerves of taste and the nerves of digestion. As a general thing it is true of human beings that the things they like are the things that are good for them. The same thing is true of animals. The most profitable feed for the farmer in a general way is the feed his stock likes."

Treatment of Live Stock. Horses and, in fact, all domestic animals are very much more impressionable than they are generally supposed to be. Cattle which have had a kind master, a man of gentle but firm nature, show the effect of their association as a breed or strain. Years of good treatment not only make an impress on the individuals, but are impressed with such force as to become breed characteristic. In short, a keen judge can tell pretty nearly what sort of associations a horse has had by his temperament.

The importance of creating a good temperament in a trotting or pacing horse should not be underrated. The horse with a good temperament will do more work and do it better than one which has not got a well balanced temperament.

Care of Lambs.

An experienced breeder says that in the case of twins it is well to place them with the mother in a small, separate pen for a day or two in order that they may become acquainted and to avoid the danger of one of the lambs straying away, which may cause trouble. When lambs are born weakly more care is required, and unless the shepherd is with them to see that they are suckled soon after birth they are liable to become chilled and die. If the lamb is too weak to stand up and suck it should be held up and some milk milked into its mouth, when it will soon take the teat and help itself, or the ewe may be gently laid upon her side and the lamb brought to the teat on its knees or side and helped as above indicated.

Barley For Stock Food.

Barley as a food for live stock is much commoner in European counlries than it is in the United States. In this country it is confined more largely to states of the Pacific slope. Byproducts left from the breweries mal will be prevented from raising are usually good as stock feed. Barthe head up to a level with the body ley is a crop that can be raised in a great many different climates and is surer of maturing a crop than some other of the small grains.

A GRANGE STORY.

The Legend of the Blind Man and the Cripple Applied to Farming.

[Special Correspondence. Can I tell the difference between knowing how to cultivate a crop of corn and why we cultivate it? 'Yes. I think I can, for I have made mistakes a-plenty in my life because of not knowing the why. Yes, the how and the why of things is something I am qualified to speak of from experience. "A burned child dreads the fire," and I have been blistered times enough for not knowing the why, and that at times when I was very cocky in knowing the how. I now handle firebrands with great circumspection. It is from a fullness of such experience that I am able to answer your question.

Yes, I know Sol Davis. You are right-he is a good cultivator, I grant you, and he has a good crop of corn. I mean as a rule he has, but he some times slips a cog and his crop fails to come up to his average. Not knowing the why of his failure, he is liable to repeat his mistakes. He knows there are cogs, but he does not know what they are for, and he is apt to overestimate the value of some and underestimate the importance of others.

Now, there is Sol's wife, as good a housekeeper as ever toted a pan of baked beans to a grange feast. Yes, those raised biscuits that she brought the other day were fine-good enough to take first premium at the county fair-but she did not get her success the first time trying. The first batch she kept at home. It was good enough for the family and for the children's lunch to take to school, but happened to be just a little off for public inspection. She, too, failed to understand all the cogs in her baking. She did not give the proper emphasis on some and too much on others.

When a boy I got no further than seeing the street parade when the circus came to town. To me the most wonderful man in the procession was the driver of the band wagon, with six or eight horses. I was able to handle two lines on one horse and feel the bit, but to hold six or eight and not be too slack on some and too tight on others was a marvel.

The agricultural world is getting be youd the one horse stage and requiring men who are able to handle more problems and their remedies and not overdo in some things and underdo in

The conditions are different now from in pioneer days and more in demand of men now than then. There are several qualifications in the test, but the greatest is to know the why Sol Davis, the man we have just been speaking of, ruined the hen manure of one winter's savings by mixing it with something else. He salted his corn ground one year, and it so happened he had a good crop, which was due to other causes rather than the salt. Next year he put on salt again. He reasoned if a little salt was a good thing a lot would be better, and he put on so much as to be to the detriment of his yield. Yes, I think I understand your question, which is whether a farmer like Sol Davis, who knows the how, but not the why, is a better man than some of those mouthy platform talkers who know the why and are not able to raise a hill of beans. That is easy to answer. Why, Sol Davis, of product, but makes possible the warmcourse. Each man alone is like a single blade of shears-not much good also when gas stoves are used for when separate, but a full team when joined together.

You have heard the story of the part nership between the blind man and the supply of hot water at all times. eripple, haven't you? One could walk and could not see, and the other could for use in connection with a range see and could not walk. They were stranded by the roadside until the blind man took the cripple on his shoulders, by which means one could furnish eyes and the other legs. In farming the how and the why should be joined together like the blind man and the cripple.

There, I hear the gavel. Grange is being called to order. I'll keep the annual word at my tongue's end and not stammer with stage fright when I am called to give it. Come back just a minute. Let me tell you what I am | isfactory operation. going to do. When the lecturer has her program I'll ask the members of the grange to tell me why water puts out fires. Some will say because it's admitted by this damper will decrease wet, but that is no reason. Whisky will wet a whistle, but it will not put out a fire. UNCLE JOHN.

New York Has 80,000 Members. New York State Master Godfrey says that the grange membership in New York has made an increase the past year of about 5,000. The total membership on Oct. 1 was about 80,000. Jefferson county reports a membership of over 7,000, which is larger than that of some entire states and indeed of several of the smaller grange states together. Only seven counties in the state are now unorganized, and some of these will be organized the coming year. The four great factors working together harmoniously for the advancement of agriculture in the Empire State, says Mr. Godfrey, are the department of agriculture, the College of Agriculture, the state experiment station and the grange. The grange is a recognized factor in securing just fowls, sheep manure is the richest of and equitable legislation. Nature study in the public schools and other lines of educational work are among prove his worth. The efficacy of his equal as a fertilizer to a hundred the interests which the grange has at heart in New York.

FOOD AND DIGESTION.

Chemical Nutrients Not Suited to the Human Stomach.

In these days of concentrated toods prepared from natural sources, such as condensed and dried milk, concentrated albumen, beef extracts, etc., there seems to be a tendency to sacrifice the pleasures of the table to convenience, portability and time saving, and the question might arise, Would it be possible for us to exist entirely on artificial food?

According to Francis Marre, it appears to be improbable that this consummation, whether devoutly to be wished or not, will come into effect. The human stomach is not merely a chemical laboratory, but also a creature of habit, that calls for work. It demands a certain bulk of material, out of which the intestines can take the nourishing constituents, while rejecting the innutritious. As soon as the intestines are relieved of the necessity of seeking out the necessary and rejecting the unnecessary portions of food the digestive function is suppressed. Further, certain bacteria must be introduced into the digestive tract, whose co-operation is absolutely necessary to proper assimilation of the food. Chemically pure artificial foods would be free from all bacteria.

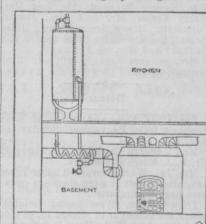

The human system is accustomed to be nourished by various kinds of ailments, no one of which is alone sufficient to promote life. In order to imitate these constituents the chemical foods would have to be prepared in an extraordinary degree of variety and complexity. Eating is not merely a matter of introducing into the system a certain weight of materials, which will develop a certain number of heat units. The reception and digestion of food must be accompanied by a certain degree of pleasure in order to permit it to be properly assimilated. Experiments made with a dog show that the secretion of those stomachic juices which are necessary to the commencement of the digestive processes ceases immediately and remains absent during several hours as soon as a feeling of displeasure is excited in the animal. -Scientific American.

At a certain distance from the grade crossing a parallel line close to the main trolley wire is connected with the power by means of the trolley bow. This enera gizes the motor which lowers the gate across the highway. At the same time an electric bell is sounded and a couple of electric lights are lighted as a warning that a car is approaching. The gates are lowered in about twenty seconds. After the car has passed they are raised by a counterweight.

Ohms, Amperes and Volts.

When an electric current is flowing in the trolley wire or electric lighting circuit there are three factors involved. One of these is the pressure expressed in volts which causes the current to flow: another is the resistance or opposition offered by the circuit to the flow which is expressed in ohms; the last is the current strength or volume, expressed in amperes, which is maintained in the circuit as a result of the pressure overcoming the resistance. The ohm is named in honor of George Simon Ohm, a distinguished German electrician. The volt is named after the Italian scientist, Volta. The ampere is named after the French scientist, Ampere.

The unit of current is called the ampere. The unit of electrical pressure or electromotive force is called the volt. The unit of electric power is the voltampere, and this is called the watt. Seven hundred and forty-six watts per hour equal one horse-power. The unit of energy—the product of electric power and time—is called the joule, but this unit is too small for practical purposes and the kilowatt hour is used instead. The kilowatt-hour is the work done by a thousand watts working for one hour.

These electrical terms are as familiar to electrical engineers as feet and inches are to the average boy; the layman does not understand because he has never been taught, has never had to use the terms, has never read about them.

It is easier to understand these terms if we consider electricity as a fluid and liken it to a current of water flowing through a pipe. The rate of flow of water in the pipe depends upon gravitation and the height of the reservoir or source above the outlet. The greater the height of the source the greater will be the pressure of water and the greater the flow in gallons per minute. It is just the same with electricity. A current flows from a high potential to a low potential whenever the two are joined by a conducting wire. It is merely a difference of level. Watch a stream of water from Miss Emma Crabbs entertained a number of friends Saturday evening.

Mrs. Mary Foreman paid a visit with friends in Westminster on Thursday.

MISERY IN STOMACH

And Indigestion Vanishes in Five Minutes and You Feel Fine.

Why not start now-today, and forever rid yourself of Stomach Trouble and Indigestion? A dieted stomach gets the blues and grumbles. Give it a good eat, then take Pape's Diapepsin to start the digestive juices working. There will be no dyspepsia or belching of Gas or eructations of undigested food; no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach or heartburn, sick headache and Dizziness, and your food will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents for a large case at any drug store here, and will relieve the most obstinate ease.

and will relieve the most obstinate case of Indigestion and Upset Stomach in five minutes. There is nothing else better to take Gas from Stomach and cleanse the stomach and intestines, and besides, one triangule will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all your food the same as a sound, healthy stomach would do it.

When Diapepsin works your stomach rests—gets itself in order, cleans up and then you feel like eating when you come to the table, and what you eat will Absolute relief from all Stomach Misery is waiting for you as soon as you decide to begin taking Diapepsin. Tell your druggist that you want Pape's Diapepsin, because you want to be thoroughly cured of Indigestion.

Postal Savings Bank Bill.

Washington, Jan. 6.—The bill to establish postal savings banks was taken up by the Senate today and read for amendments, Senator Carter, in charge of the measure, announcing that he would not attempt to get a vote on the bill until next week.

That State banks should be used as Government depositories for postal funds was proposed in amendments offered by Senators Smith, of Michigan; Cummins, of Iowa, and Gore, of Oklahoma. Senators McCumber, Fulton and others approved such use of State banks on an exact equality with national banks as Government depositories. Mr. Smith's amendment proposed the acceptance by the Postmaster-General of State, county, municipal or United States bonds as security.

Senator Piles offered an amendment providing that postal savings funds be deposited ratably among banks of a city on a basis of their capital stock and Amendments offered by Senator Carter for the Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads reduced the amount that may be received from any one depositor from $1,000 to $500, the amount that may be received from a single depositor in any one month from $200 to $100 and increased the minimum of a single deposit from 10 cents to 50 cents.

The bill was laid aside without final action being taken on the proposed amendments, all of which will be voted on at a future day.

Cold and a Candle.

Dr. Moss of the English polar expedition of 1875 and 1876, among other odd things, tells of the effect of cold on a wax candle which he burned. The temperature was 35 degrees below zero, and the doctor must have been considerably discouraged when, upon looking at his candle, he discovered that the flame had all it could do to keep warm. It was so cold that the flame could not melt all the wax of the candle, but was forced to eat its way down the candle, leaving a sort of skeleton of the candle standing. There was heat enough, however, to melt oddly shaped holes in the thin walls of wax, and the result was a beautiful lacelike cylinder of white, with a tongue of yellow flame burning inside of it and sending out into the darkness many streaks of light.

THE SEA BAT.

Specimen of a Fish That Is Both Queer and Rare.

One of the rarest specimens of the fish kingdom known to waters contiguous to the North Carolina coast was captured in a seine at Masonboro sound by William Hewlett, a fisherman, says the Wilmington Dispatch. The fish, which was brought to the city, is what is called "the sea bat," and it is a perfect reproduction of a leather wing bat on a large scale. The fish is about fifteen inches long and about thirty inches across the back.

Strange to state, it had a thin, threadlike tail about fifteen inches in length, and on each side of the rear appendage were two perfectly formed gloved feet, with a smaller dimension having the exact appearance of a thumb with the other part of the hand mittened. The mouth of the strange specimen was about five inches across, and on each side of the mouth or the underside of the body there were five "strainers," or holes, through which the fish is said to rid itself of refuse products resulting from the forage it picks up at the bottom of the sea. The top of the fish was a dark slate color, and the under part of the body was

One old negro fisherman more than seventy years old declared that this was only the second specimen of the sea bat he had ever seen in his long experience as a fisherman. The specimen, which had a truly uncanny appearance, will probably be sent to the state museum at Raleigh.

Frying Pan Stage.

"The late Mrs. William Astor," said a colonial dame, "took, after all, an optimistic view of American society. She criticised our faults, but she believed in our future. American soclety, she used to say, would eventually be the finest in the world. Once she declared at a dinner that it was the proper social sequence to get, like us, the money first and the refinement and culture afterward. She said that when she looked at the uncouth millionaire of today and thought of the splendid creature to come after him she felt as optimistic as the fisherman who, casting his line, brought up a frying pan and said:

"'Oh, that's a good beginning-a frying pan! I have only to catch a fish now and I shall be all right." -- Washington Post.

Ancient Mariners.

That the Egyptians made sea voyages long before the time of Solomon, hitherto considered the first ocean traveler on a large scale, is declared by Professor James H. Breasted to be conclusively proved by a tablet found by him in Palermo, Sicily, during the three 'years' exploring trip from which he recently returned. Professor Breasted asserts that the inscriptions on the tablet show that the Egyptian king who built the first pyramids made a voyage with forty ships across the Mediterranean to Lebanon to obtain cedar for a temple. This journey, according to the professor, was made in the thirtieth century B. C., or 2,000 years before Solomon made his voyage for a similar purpose.

An Ocean Sanitarium.

Some particulars are given in the British Medical Journal of a proposal to provide an ocean sanitarium for tuberculosis. The suggestion is to fit up a sailing ship of about 2,000 tons for not less than fifty patients, each to be provided with a large and well ventilated cabin. The deck would be used for what is commonly called the veranda treatment. The intention of the promoters is that the ship shall cruise in the neighborhood of the Canaries, where it will have the advantage of the trade winds and of an equable climate, while a port will not be far distant in case of the onset of bad

A Majestic Ice Wall.

In a letter from Professor Edgeworth Davis, a member of the British antarctic expedition now seeking a way toward the south pole, there occurs a vivid description of the great antarctic ice barrier, which was encountered by the little ship Nimrod. "It is a sight," says Professor Davis, "that beggars all description. Imag ine a continuous ice wall 500 miles long and one to two hundred feet high, the exquisite blue of the crevasses contrasting finely with the dazzling white of the weathered ice on either side of them."

Good Word For Veils.

"It is those big veils that fasten down tight under the chin and ears that I want to put in a good word for," said the bacteriologist. "It may be that they ruin the eyes and shut out a lot of fresh air, as some folk claim, but they prevent women from putting dirty pieces of money into their mouths and so keep enough germs out of the system to make up for the other disadvantages."-New York Press.

Bull of the Irish Secretary. A genuine bull is credited to Augustine Birrell, secretary for Ireland, by a Bristol correspondent of the London

"It is easier," Mr. Birrell affirmed in the course of a public speech at Bristol, "to face your foes in front of you than your friends behind your back."

AN INGENIOUS SWINDLER.

The Daring Scheme That Was Worked by a German Doctor.

Near a smail village in one of the lake states lived a western millionaire in seclusion with his little daughter and a few servants. The child was afflicted with a rare cerebro spinal complaint, a most unpleasant manifestation of which was a frequent hiccough, and eminent physicians, both in America and Europe, had pronounce ed the case organic and incurable.

Later there came to live in the village a widow with a little girl affected similar to the millionaire's daughter. This child was a delicate, flower faced creature, wistful from the isolation that must have been her sad lot, and the peculiar bark-like hiccough which she made at once attracted the millionaire's attention, and, being a big hearted if rather ignorant man, he gave the mother employment about his home and showered the afflicted child with presents.

Perhaps four months after the widow's advent an eccentric German doctor settled in the village, and, his services being sought by the widow, he gave her child treatment, with the result that it was completely cured.

The milionaire immediately sought to place his own daughter under the German's care, but the latter flatly refused to take the case. He was a Socialist of a violent type and would have nothing to do with a man whose wealth exceeded the sum that he had fixed upon as the lawful limit of material possession.

Finally, however, after the father had patiently borne the grossest insults the German agreed to give the afflicted child treatment on condition Md., on that the other would first deed over a large tract of land in Texas for a Socialist colony and pay him for his fee a sum little short of $50,000. This the millionaire did, but as soon as the doctor had cashed the check he disappeared with the widow and her child, and the wealthy man realized that, blinded by paternal love, he had been made the victim of an ingenious swindle.

The flower faced girl of the widow had been taught to simulate a disease, and the German was no doubt her father. He was subsequently located in Buenos Aires, but he injured man, not wishing his daughter's affliction published broadcast, dropped the prosecution .- Don Mark Lemon in Bohemian Magazine.

EXECUTING MAZEPPA.

Peter the Great's Odd Way of Punishing a Deserter.

Peter the Great, czar of Russia, punished a traitor on a notable occasion in a way that the numerous victims of the present czar's wrath might well wish were still in vogue.

Mazeppa, chieftain of the Cossacks, had deserted to the king of Sweden, with whom Peter was at war. Ma-Sentence of death was passed upon Mazeppa, however, was safely in the camp of the Swedish king, but this fact was not permitted to stand in the way of the carrying out of every part of the sentence. A wooden effigy of Mazeppa was made, and the punishments were inflicted upon the Cossack chieftain's substitute.

The effigy was first dressed in Mazeppa's uniform, and upon its breast were pinned all of the medals, ribbons and other decorations that the real culprit had worn.

While the commanding general and BEST LOCATION. a squadron of cavalry stood near an officer advanced to the wooden man and read the sentence. Then another officer wrenched off the effigy's patent of knighthood and his other decorations, tore them up and trampled upon them. This done, he struck the wooden gentleman a powerful blow in the pit of the stomach, knocking him over. Next a hangman appeared. While the soldiers shouted he threw a noose over the imitation Mazeppa's head and dragged the effigy to a nearby gallows, where it was "hanged by the neck until it was dead."-Scrap Book.

Could Handle a Shovel.

The foreman of a Chicago iron mill once employed a tramp who had been a college baseball champion. Their acquaintance began in a way that showed the tramp still to be game and cheery. It was a cold autumn dawn, and the tramp had slept in front of a furnace on a warm stone. The foreman, being short of laborers, on his morning tour of inspection spied the fellow and thought he would give him a job.

"My man," he said, "can you do anything with a shovel?"

"Well, I could fry a piece of ham on it."-Minneapolis Journal.

The Pompous Man.

I do not like the pompous man. I do not wish him for a friend. He's built on such a gorgeous plan that he can only condescend, and when he bows his neck is sprained. He walks as though he owned the earth—as though his vest and shirt contained all that there is of sterling worth. With sacred joy I see him tread upon a stray banana rind and slide a furlong on his head and leave a trail of smoke behind.—Emporia (Kan.) Gazette.

From Limb to Limb.

Depth at Which Miners Can Work. Below fifty feet the temperature rises in the proportion of one degree for every sixty-five feet of depth except where currents of water carry the heat away. The result is that at a depth of about 4,000 feet we reach a temperature of 98 degrees, or blood heat. This renders it exceedingly difficult to work coal pits below that depth. This is the reason that Great Britain's coal commission decided that mines are not workable below 4,000

The thickness of the solid rocks building up the crust of the earth is at least thirty to forty miles. At that depth the heat is such as would reduce everything on the surface of the earth to liquid. But the pressure of the overlying rocks is so great that until the relation of the heat to the pressure is known it cannot be said whether the earth at that depth is fluid or solid .- 12-5-tf Chicago Tribune.

OUR HOME DEPARTMENT.

Original and Selected Articles of Interest to the Home.

We invite contributions to this department from all readers who have something to say on topics which relate especially to home improvement, social conditions, or moral issues. While we disclaim all indorsement of sentiments which may be expressed by contributors, and desire to be as liberal as possible, we at the same time request all to avoid personalities, and stick to proper expressions of opinion.

All articles for this department must be in our office not later than Monday morning, of each week, to be guaranteed insertion the same week, and all articles must be signed with the name of the author, even when a nom de plume is given.

Some Thoughts and Verses for the New Year.

(For the RECORD.)
Do you like poetry and sententious sayings? Of course you do, if you are a normally constituted human being. Just now it is the fashion to decry poetry in particular as an article of popular enjoyment. But, as Ethel Colson says, "down at the bottom of our hearts we all love good poetry-yes, and even pretty verses, dainty nondescript lilts and jolly jingles-just as, when we're not trying to be correct and impressive, we all incline toward simple sweets, oldfashioned flowers, and other joys not conventional in nature." Wherefore we lav before our readers the following choice morsels as helpful mental pabulum for the new year. Being sweet and seasonable, they embody a real treat.

"There's many a trouble Would break like a bubble, And into the waters of Lethe depart, Did we not rehearse it, And tenderly nurse it, And give it a permanent place in our

Good suggestions cost' little, but are worth much. It is always more or less difficult, however, to carry them out efficiently. Often their realization requires painstaking care and determined effort, while their profit depends upon practical wisdom and a masterful spirit. Some suggestions are as full of common sense as an egg is full of meat. Here are three that can be used to advantage: 1. In this day of many books, good, bad and indifferent, read only the best. If the end of eating is health and strength, the end of reading is growth and power. Every book worth reading is worth remembering, worth absorbing into the circulation of the mind. Talk about the book that meets your needs; use it; recommend it. Make the reading of it an event, and the recollection of it a joy. And don't neglect the Book of books. It is the great oracle of right living. Everywhere it puts a premium on conduct and character. It is a book of power. Besides it is a classic of our literature that has no equal. John Ruskin, one of the great masters of English, said that the Bible gave him his style.

2. While reading, keep a dictionary at hand for ready reference. A dictionary is a silent interpreter one can ill forego. Many fairly educated people do not know one-fourth of the words in the English language. The reason is that. comes not back again. Wisely improve in their reading, they take neither the the Present; it is thine. Go forth to time nor the trouble to acquaint themmeet the shadowy Future without fear, selves with what is unfamiliar to them. If you wish to be proficient in your mother tongue, never pass a word that you do not know, or do not understand, without mastering its meaning on the instant. Do it at the moment lest you fail to do it at all. 3. Cull the treasurers of your periodical reading. Clip what is worth being culled. Some time ago a distinguished of things is worth more than a thousand scholar and writer said: "I flounder in a sea of scraps." In these days when the papers both religious and secular, contain so many literary gems,-choice sentences, beautiful descriptions, touching incidents and pleasing poems, besides items of importance and matters of value in all departments of life,there is scarcely an issue in which there does not strike the eye something that the reader wishes to remember, or, perhaps, to preserve for future use. As memory is not always trustworthy, one of the first things a bright boy or girl which interest most. Or, if preferred, the selections can be put in different one way or the other is followed, however, it is certain that the newspaper, daily or weekly, secular or religious, like

A Working Problem.

I have a son who is an indifferent worker-thinks it's "no use" to work. As an inducement for him to become more industrious, and learn to appreciate the cost of idleness, I made him this proposition for a thirty day's trial. For every day's work he did he was to receive $1.60, but for every day he was idle he was to pay me $2.00. At the end of the month he was more than ever convinced that it's "no use" to work, as no money was coming to either of us. How do you figure it?

The girl who sighs for lustrous hair should not resort to dyes or peroxide; rather should she take to exercise. That gloss which is so desirable at present is not to be bought.

But it happens-it usually happens, when we are most sure-that in other parts of the world things are being done In the Australasian confederation important elections have been held within the past few years, and in some of the important countries that have equal suffrage there were more women than men in the lists of voters. Mrs. Craigie has shown that woman has the capacity and adaptability for such interests by citing the numerous instances of American women who married English husbands and came to the front in electioneering. At the antipodes we find women, active and useful, in the midst of public affairs-and we find other facts: in these new countries where women vote, the laws are much more advanced than in America: they have compulsory education, better working hours, a more enlightened regulation of the public utilities, and they even claim that the government in power strives rather to please the people than to rob them. The women are doing things in a highly creditable way.

It has long been the habit to judge a nation by the standing of its women. Consequently, as progress makes its way in the East, the women profit. The women of Japan may date a new era of their freedom from the recent war. They did wonders in patriotic enterprises, and they are now making splendid sacrifices to pay the cost of the struggle and to aid the millions who are victims of the awful famine that swept large parts of means much for its women. Indeed, all around the earth we see the evidences of larger mental and spiritual growth, and in the more progressive continents we have multitudes of instances which work, is measuring to the intellectual ably her destiny.

THE POPULAR GIRL.

She Never Challenges the Admiration of the Crowd.

There are two kinds of popular girls. One is admired by the crowd; the other is loved by the individual. One is sure to be spoken of as "fascinating;" the other is not spoken of very much at all. But every one who knows her says softly, with an air of having made a rare discovery: "Ah, I like that girl! I feel as if I had been looking for her always. She is the dearest girl in the world."

The popular girl of the first mentioned class is easy enough to appreciate and to understand. Every one finds her attractive. Her popularity is obvious. In fact, nearly everything about her, all her charm, seems to be rather obvious. All her easy magnetism shows off prettily at first glance. She makes no particular appeal to you as an individual, but she is a general favorite. You find her fascinating, and you know that every one else finds her fascinating too. She is the "popular" girl.

It does not occur to many people to describe the other girl as "popular." She never challenges the attention of the crowd. She is unassuming and unaffected, very much interested in other persons and wholly unconscious of herself. She is not strikingly beautiful. Even the keenness of her remarkably fine mind has in it no obtrusive surface brilliance. She has none of the airs and graces, the small coquetries, of the girl who is an acknowledged belle. She has none of the obvious charms of the "popular" girl. There is nothing obvious about her at all. Yet every one who talks the Empire. The awakening of China with her ten minutes feels the personal compulsion of her quiet, unsought charm.

Bags made of cheesecloth eight inches square filled with oatmeal, some powdered borax, pulverized castile soap and a little powdered orris root and used in the bath are delightfully refreshing. * Cold water should not be taken during any meal. This sudden deluge on the food in the stomach chills it and prevents the digestive juices from acting freely, thus letting the food lie passive and causing acute indigestion. Occasionally take the powder puff and clean it in gasoline, frequently changing the gasoline to get the puff perfectly clean. Bear in mind that the puff gets as badly soiled as a towel or face cloth and should not be used me without being cleaned.

The fashionable hairdressing of the season shows the hair parted in the front or a little at one side as considered becoming. It is puffed at the side and taken back to the crown of the head or the nape of the neck, depending upon the quantity of the hair.

Under no circumstances rub soap into white hair. Put it into a warm or hot suds and use fresh water freely for rinsing and be liberal with soft, warm towels when drying. Avoid a yellow or green soap that contains alkali and makes the hair yellow. Use pure castile soap that has previously been reduced to a jelly in warm rainwater to which a little bay rum has been added. The eyebrows should receive as much attention as any other part of the body. With a little cold cream on the finger tips rub the eyebrows gently, so as to remove any possible dandruff, since they often have a little in them. Then wash them with a solution made of water and a little alconol. First brush them straight up toward the hair and then straight down, and the line will be thin and well shaped. If constantly treated in this manner the eyebrows will soon be a beautiful shape. The brushing up of the outward tip gives a coquettish expression to some faces.

Text of the Lesson, Act ii, 1-21-Memory Verses, 2-4-Golden Text, John xiv, 16, 17-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.] On that last night before His crucifixion He said, "It is expedient for you that I go away, for if I go not away the Comforter will not come unto you, but if I depart I will send Him unto you, and when He is come He will convince the world of sin and of righteousness and of judgment" (John xvi, As He left them on that ascension day He told them to tarry in Jerusalem until the Spirit came, as He said that He would; hence we find them in an upper room in Jerusalem, perhaps the same one where He had kept the Passover with them, continuing in one accord in prayer and supplication. The Women are there, too, and Mary, His nother, and His own brethren (Acts . 14), who had evidently come to the Doint of receiving their brother as the Messiah. Contrast John vii, 5. I think this is the last mention of Mary, His mother. How blessed to say farewell to her till we meet her in glory at a Drayer meeting! "With one accord" is very important phrase in this book. It is used just seven times in a good connection and four times in a bad One (i, 14; ii, 1, 46; iv, 24; v, 12; viii, 6; Av. 25, and vii, 57; xii, 20; xviii, 12; This is suggestive also, for seven is the greatest number denoting perfec-

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES. THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts ii, 22-47. Acts ii, 42-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.] ance that in matters concerning nations and individuals (Job xxxiv, 29) God is working all things after the counsel of His own will and according to the eternal purpose which He purposed in Christ Jesus our Lord (Eph. i, 11; iii, 11). Whatever wicked men may plan under the counsel of their leader, the devil, and be permitted by God to carry out, their counsel shall in due time come to naught, while the counsel of the Lord shall stand forever and the thoughts of His heart to all generations (Ps. xxxiii, 10, 11). In the opening chapters of this book we find it repeatedly stated that the cruel treatment received by our Lord Jesus at the hands of wicked men was all foreseen by God and foretold by Him through the prophets (ii, 23; iii, 18; iv, God's foreknowledge does not, however, in the least degree excuse or palliate the guilt of the wicked. The decrees of God and the free will of man stand as two heaven high pillars, and puny mortals may not attempt to reconcile them.

The one thing that all may do who have heard the good news of the grace of God is that which 3,000 did under the preaching of Peter on the day of which our lesson tells, and that was to believe on or receive the Lord Jesus Christ as having suffered for sins the just for the unjust and risen from the dead and ascended to the right hand of God, there to wait till His body is gathered from all nations, that He may come again to restore all things of which the prophets have spoken (iii,

All such redeemed ones are expected to become Spirit filled people and bear such testimony to the risen Christ throughout the world that He may gather to Himself the company whose song we hear in Rev. v, 9, 10, who shall reign with Him on the earth when the kingdom comes. That kingdom will have redeemed Israel for its earthly center with Jesus Christ, as Son of David, on David's throne at Jerusalem, according to verses 30, 31 and Luke i 32 33. Jerusalem shall then be the throne of the Lord and all nations gathered unto it to the name of the Lord of Jerusalem (Jer. iii, 17). While that kingdom is postponed because of Israel's rejection of her Messiah a new thing in the unfolding of the eternal purpose of God is taking place, which was specially revealed for the first time to the Apostle Paul, as may be seen by a careful perusal of Eph. iii, 1-11. We will not reach the record of the first gathering of the gentiles into this one body, the church, till we come to chapter x, but we have in this and the following lesson the Jewish beginning of the church, for the 3,000 of verse 41 and the 5,000 of chapter iv, 4, were all Jews.

mind such words as Ps. xxxiii, 10, 11, verses 24 to 28 he quotes from Ps. xvi

chisedek psalm, and assures them that

Our Lord's word to the woman of Samaria in John iv, 22, "Salvation is of the Jews," does not seem to mean much to the majority of Christians today, but it is the heart of the eternal purpose of God. Spirit filled people will use the Spirit's own book, the Bible, which is forever settled in heaven (Ps. cxix, 89), even though they may seem by so doing to be a drunken crowd in the eyes of many (verse 13), for the wisdom of God is foolishness in the eyes of the wisdom of the world. The prophets were the Lord's messengers with the Lord's message, going where He sent them and saying what He told them (Hag. i, 13; Jer. i, 7). Even our Lord Jesus Christ said only what the Father told Him to say, and His words and works were all those of the Father in and through Him (John xii, 49, 50; xiv, 10). Spirit filled Peter, on this occasion, just rehearses from the Scriptures that which the Spirit had written concerning the Lord Jesus, whom He is sent to glorify and take of His things and show them unto Topic.—Living for the day or eternity.— Heb. vii, 15, 16; Matt. xvi, 24-27.

God has given us a choice between two worlds-the present and the future. To give each the supreme place in our hearts and lives is impossible. We may have whicher we desire, but no man can have both. We can-Memory Verses 32, 33-Golden Text, not live supremely for both the present and eternity. The question, therefore as to which one we shall live for becomes a most serious one. Shall we-I find continual comfort in the assur- live for today or for eternity? Each one must answer that question for himself. There is no escape from it. We cannot dodge the issue. We cannot ignore it or neglect it. It would seem that as between two such issues there would be no doubt as to our choice. When we compare time with eternity we would suppose that all would naturally say, "We will live for eternity." But the fact is that the natural tendency of mankind is to live for today, for the present. The present is seen, it is so real to us, and eternity seems so far away. Many therefore conclude that the present is sure and they will live for it and run the risk of there being an endless life beyond the grave. Yet what an awful mistake! The invisible is not unreal. Indeed, the unseen things even in this life are often the most real and most powerful. What power on earth is greater than gravitation? It holds the universe together. Yet it is invisible, unseen. What is more real and more inspiring than a mother's love? Yet who ever saw a mother's love? If we can believe in the reality of the unseen in this life, much more should we believe in the reality of the future life, though unseen, upon the testimony of God's word and upon the cravings of our own hearts for immortality and since the immortality of the soul demands an eternity.

The temporality of this life should inspire us to live for eternity. "The things which are seen are temporal." All things that we see have been made. Once they did not exist, and hence they will at some time cease to exist. Therefore we should "look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen, for the things which are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal." How temporal worldly things! Wealth, pleasure, fame, power, position, all may fade away in a day, and if they do not leave us we shall soon leave them and may be called to do so at any moment. What folly, then, to bound our lives by the cradle and the grave when their boundaries may be eternal! If we could gain all this present life it would not pay us if the price we paid were the eternal loss of our lives. Through Jesus Christ alone we may obtain eternal life. Let us accept it in Him and through Him give eternity the supreme place in our lives.

Eternity! Eternity!
How long art thou eternity?
As long as God is God, so long
Endure the pains of hell and wrong,
So long the joys of heaven remain.
Oh lasting joy! Oh lasting pain! Oh, lasting joy! Oh, lasting pain! Ponder, O man, eternity!

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 17, 1909 By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—"Pilgrim's Progress" series.—I. Leaving the City of Destruction.—Acts xvi, 25-34.

One of the interesting features of the Christian Endeavor topics this year will be the study of Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress." Next to the Bible no book ever written has had such a wide circulation and has resulted in the salvation of so many souls. Preparatory to this study every Christian Endeavorer should read the life of John Bunyan and in connection with it study carefully and prayerfully the wonderful story which represents the journey of a Christian through this sinful world. Bunyan has been called the "prince of dreams," and his greatest dream is the "Pilgrim's Progress," which is far more than an imagined dream, though related as one. Bunyan was confined at different times for about twelve years in Bedford jail for preaching the gospel contrary to the legal statutes of his day. Here it was, among other things, that he penned his imperishable dream or allegory, which we are to study Like Paul and Silas, he was impris oned for Christ's sake. But he was not disheartened. Like Paul and Silas, he praised God, and, like them also, he used the opportunity to lead souls to Christ.

Progress" is called Christian. In his dream Bunyan first saw him as "a man clothed with rags, standing in a certain place (the City of Destruction), with his face from his own house, a book in his hand and a great burden upon his back." The "rags" represent human sinfulness. His "face from his own house" signifies that the convicted sinner must give up the dearest things in life rather than risk the loss of his immortal soul. The "book" in his hands is the Scriptures, which tell us of sin and of destruction unless we escape from them through Christ. The "great burden upon his back" represents the sense of guilt and the fear of wrath which press those convicted of this sinfulness by the Spirit of God. The entire picture is one of a sinner convicted of his sinfulness fearing the wrath of God and yet not knowing what to do. And this conviction of sin must be experienced by every human soul before it can be saved. Unless convicted of our sinfulness no one will cry out as Christian did, as the Jesus on Pentecost did, as Saul of Tarsus did, as the Philippian jailer did, "What must I do to be saved?" If you have not felt this burden of sin, study the work of God. pray unto the Holy Spirit that you may feel it. Then you will have taken a great step toward the salvation of your soul.

The next step in Christian's experience was the telling of it to his family. They did not believe him, but "thought that some frenzy distemper had got into his head." By various ways they tried to cure him of it, but were most unsuccessful. His agony increased, and he wandered down in the fields, praying and reading. One day as he read he cried out, "What shall I do to be saved?" In his agony and crying a man named Evangelist Deut. xxiii, 26, 27; Ps. xc, 1, 2; came to him and said, "Wherefore Matt, xix, 16-22; xxv, 31-46; Mark x, dost thou cry?" In man's darkest hour of despair God sends him help. Christian explained the situation and his perplexity as to what to do. Evangelist gave him a roll on which was written, "Flee from the wrath to He pointed out a wicket come." gate and then a light, which Christian saw dimly. Evangelist told Christian to keep the light in view and years old. His boyhood was spent in run to the wicket gate, where he would receive instruction as to what made muscle as a coal breaker boy to do. In spite of the cries and mockeries of his family and neighbors he minister, he decided for this greatest ran toward the light. On the way he of all callings and graduated from met two companions, Obstinate and Oberlin seminary in 1893. Until he Pliable. Obstinate represented self went to Williston church a few sufficiency and Pliable its opposite. The former tried to persuade Christian to return. Pliable was easily persuaded to accompany Christian, and thus he came to the Slough of Despond, our next topic. In this portion of the dream we see God's willingness to help the convicted sinner and the opposite influences that are brought to bear upon him in his start upon the Christian life. These are common human experiences, but should retard no Destruction toward the Celestial City. BIBLE READINGS.

Message From Dr. Clark.

Characteristic of the thoughtfulness of the founder of Christian Endeavor, Dr. Clark on the eve of sailing for his campaign in Europe sent this message to the biennial convention of the New York state union:

I cannot be with you in Albany, as I would like to do, but I shall think of you and pray for you all, and I wish you would give my sincere remembrance to New York Endeavorers, and may I give as a special message to the convention the sixth verse of the tenth chapter of Ephesians "Finally my between be the sixth verse of the tenth chapter of Ephesians, "Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord and in the power of His might." May the coming year show how great things the Lord can do for the Endeavorers of the Empire State when they are "strong in the power of His might." FRANCIS E. CLARK.

International Brotherhood Idea.

The deputation of German Endeavorers who visited England on the invitation of their English brothers did lot of interesting sightseeing. The international brotherhood idea found expression on their departure by the whole company joining hands and singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

To Check Hunting for Game.

New York, Jan. 7.—To measure the contents of Uncle Sam's game bag during the new year is the object of a conerted effort in which sportsmen from every section of the country are joining the National Association of Audubon Societies in this city today. Detailed records of each day's shoot are to be secured from every true sportsman and required by law of every one else, it is proposed, in all states where the Audubon and sporting interests will urge the crying need of legislation to this effect. Unless the annual inroads upon the rapidly decreasing game of America are thus determined, the leaders of the new movement declared today, shooting as a healthy recreation will soon be killed in almost every region of the continent.

That the health, crops and woods, as well as the sport, of many extensive localities are today seriously menaced by the extinction of game birds will be demonstrated by the latest results of the scientific investigations of government authorities at Washington. Water fowl and shore birds will be shown in their natural capacity of destroying the ano recognized distributors of deadly germs. Gulls and many other varieties of sea and inland water birds will be proven by ornithological experts to be whole-sale destroyers of grasshoppers and a multitude of the insects which cause an annual crop and forest loss of nearly a billion dollars, or more than the entire national debt as recently announced, according to the most recent calculations of the government Bureau of Entomol-The case of Salt Lake City, whose people have erected a monument to the gulls that saved all their crops from destruction by an insect plague will also

In every one of the forty-four state legislatures which are beginning to convene for the new year special efforts to obtain legal provision for this game census are being planned among organized sportsmen and Audubon workers. Where a hunter's license law is already inforce the addition of a law to enforce the recording of all game birds and animals shot will be urged. It is proposed, in order to protect the true sportsmen and to detect market hunters, to punish failure to report the season's shoot by a forfeiture of license and false returns by proceeding as against perjury. Special blanks for the purpose are being prepared as an attachment to all hunters' ense cards.

When the purpose and necessity of this widespread checking up of the nation's game bag is realized by the people at large, the labor of compiling the records of the individual prowess of millions of hunters will be begun. In this gigantic task the officers of the National Association of Audubon Societies have been promised the hearty assistance of the director of the National Conservation Commission, a coordinate branch of which their organization has become by the special invitation of the authorities at Washington. This conservation move-ment they will forward as one of their principal activities for the new year, together with their regular work of education, bird care on reservations and legislative campaigning for general bird

The Cold Wave Arrived.

The weather man found a cold wave straying around, away out west, and di-nected it eastward, in order that we though foretold two full days, the wave arrived only a little after schedule time, and "made good" as soon as it came. It is expected to penetrate as far south as northern Florida, and to remain a while over the entire east.

The drop in temperature, at some points, was very sudden; in Chicago, for instance, from 44 degrees above, to 9 below zero, within a day. The cold in Minnesota and North Dakota, reached 25 to 34 degrees below. The cold weather will continue to be severe until the end of the week. There will be moderation in the temperature in the Central West, Friday
