The railroad company will pay for this work, and under the act of the last legislature will not be required, when the pedestrian bridge is completed, to carry persons across the river in their trains ree of charge, as they have been com-pelled to do for more than 50 years.

.... Court House Damaged by Fire.

While the Circuit Court for this county was in session on Wednesday, shortly before noon someone rushed into the courtroom and announced that the building was on fire. A recess was taken without formality and the Court, members of the bar, jurors and spectators rushed from the room.

Finding that a section of the cornice was burning several of the lawyers and others mounted to the roof and extinguished the blaze by tearing away the cornice at the point endangered. The timely discovery of the fire prevented the probable destruction of the building, except the fireproof vault, as the structure, other than the walls, is composed of inflammable material.

The incident created much excitement. The fire department of the town was promptly on the scene, but found it un-

BIG FIRE IN HARNEY.

Destroy Entire Town. Loss about $7,000.

The prosperous, but fire defenseless, little town of Harney, suffered a fire loss, on Wednesday night, which it will long be remembered, both for the loss itself, and for what might have been, as well as for the heroic work of its citizens, who, by hard and well directed work, saved the major portion of the town from destruction.

About 11.30, or a little later, fire was discovered in the front part of the cigar factory of Ervin L. Hess, in the S. S. Shoemaker combination building, on Littlestown St. The alarm quickly spread, and soon many willing hands were directed to saving property, but it was at once realized that this building, as well as the store and dwelling, also owned by Apparently, there is no known cause of the fire, as it seems pretty clearly established that neither stoves nor flues were responsible. Mr. Shoemaker says he will not rebuild, but it is to be hoped that the site will be purchased, and a building erected which will provide a new home for the destroyed industries.

Mrs. Wm. A. Erb Drowned in Spring.

At an early hour, on Wednesday morning, Mrs. Susan, wife of William A. She arose early, apparently to go about her usual household duties, but self-destruction was evidently in her mind, Secretary of the knife but failed to sever the artery. This wound she carefully tied up, then went to the spring, took off her bonnet and shawl, hung them on the fence, and plunged in. This all quietly occurred within a half hour, before the rest of the family got up, when, not finding her in the house, search was made and her lifeless body found in the spring.

A physician was hastily telephoned

Anti-Saloon Wave Is Causing Alarm.

They are not saying much about it, but the politicians of both parties are concerned over the possible influence of the anti-saloon wave at the next election, and they are calculating upon the strength or weakness of the movement in this state, with the hope of determin-ing how much to concede to it without the necessity of a fight.

When asked about the anti-saloon movement, political leaders shake their heads and say little. Least of all do they want to be quoted in print. They are aware already that the temperance people have dug many political graves in the last few years in the South and Middle West, and many cherished hopes have been buried. They don't want to antagonize something of which they know so little.

Democratic State Chairman Vandiver was asked if he could forsee the part the anti-liquor movement would play in the next Maryland campaign. He said that about yet.

"Can't tell what they are going to do," he said. "We are going along just the same. They may have something to do with the situation. I don't know how much. They don't know themselves." This is about all of import the Democratic chairman had to say on the Democratic chairman had to say on the

Down in Virginia the anti-saloon league at its recent convention declared for local option and before it adjourned the organization entered into a coalition with the Democratic state machine which practically insures the triumph of its policies. This triumph, however, will consist merely of the election of the machine candidate for governor, inasmuch as the local option plan is now effective

The moral in all this, so far as Marylanders are concerned, is that should the anti-saloon league's influence in state affairs assume sufficient strength, one of the two parties might find the non-alcoholic citizenship of the state amenable to the "community of interest" plan. There are mutual possibilities in the scheme as is shown by the willingness of the strong league and the equally strong machine in Virginia to pool their fortunes.—Balto. Star.

sea-level plan at the present time would add greatly to the cost and time of construction, without compensating advan-tages, either in capacity of the canal or safety of navigation, and hence would be a public misfortune.

The engineers say that the lock canal completed will cost $360,000,000, regardless of salvage on the construction plant, and that it will be finished by January 1, 1915. The President also approves the lowering of the Gatun Dam 20 feet, as recommended by the engineers, and says he has directed this change to be made.

Foreign Immigration Decreasing.

The inward and outward movement of aliens for the 12 months ending with November, 1908, the figures of which have been made public by the Department of Commerce and Labor, indicate that the emigration has been greater than the immigration. The figures are: Total arrivals, 573,581; total departures, 644,452. To this number of emigrants should be added the unknown number of naturalized citizens who, during that period have left the United States for permanent residence abroad. During January, 1909, as compared with January, 1908, the immigration from Austria increased 4,428, from Hungary, 7,913, from Italy, 4,905. From Russia and Finland there was a decrease of 859, and from Japan a decrease of 768. immigration of Chinese increased for the month of January, 50.

STATE ROADS SELECTED.

How they are Connected. The old Plank Road to Taneytown not Considered.

The State Road Commission met in Baltimore, on Thursday, and tentatively selected the routes for state roads through the northern central section of the state. As we predicted, the road from Westminster to Taneytown, and on to Gettysourg, or Emmitsburg, is "not in it." February 26 has been set as the day for hearing complaints from delegations from the various counties interested. Baltimore county gets a number of roads, radiating from the city. The Baltimore and Frederick turnpike is to be used to the Howard county line, then through the five counties, as follows;

Howard—From the Baltimore county line at Ellicott City to the Carroll county line near Ridgeville; from West Friend-

Ridgeville, and from the Howard county line at Sykesville through Eldersburg, Gamber, Bird Hill, Smallwood to West-minster; and again from Westminster toward Manchester and from Westminster toward Middleburg.

Montgomery—From the District of Co-lumbia line to Hyattstown by way of Rockville and Gaithersburg on condition that the question of the transfer of the pikes in the eastern part of the county be presented to the commission more fully later on.

Frederick—From the Carroll county line near Ridgeville, through Frederick, Middletown to the Washington county line, and from the Montgomery county line, near Hyattstown, through Monrovia, New Market to New London. Washington-From the Frederick county line near Boonsboro via Hagerstown, Conococheague, Clear Spring and Hancock to the Allegany county line. After disposing of these routes the commission adopted the following resolutions, which outline their policy: WHEREAS, The policy of the commission has been not to purchase turnpike roads out of the funds at its command;

WHEREAS, In the opinion of the commission, the values of the Baltimore and Frederick turnpike, from Baltimore by way of Ellicott City to Frederick and thence to Boonsboro, and the Boonsboro turnpike from Boonsboro to Hagerstown, and the Hagerstown to Conococheague Creek, are so small, and this route is, in the opinion of the com-mission, the desirable route for the east and west main artery of the State of

Maryland; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Baltimore and Frederick turnpike from Baltimore city, y way of Catonsville, Ellicott City, rederick, Middletown, Boonsboro, and the Boonsboro turnpike from Boonsboro to Hagerstown, and the Hagerstown and Conococheague turnpike from Hagerstown to the west side of Conococheague the City of Baltimore and Allegany Committee; announced the date.

Will not Work on Farms.

The fact that foreign immigrants are no good as farm laborers, has long been known by immigration officials, and the truth has again been convincingly stated by an article in the Baltimore Sun, show-level type.

"The facts are," said Immigration
The engineers find that "a change to a Commissioner Louis T. Weis, "that the immigrants who come here, or, for that matter, who come to the other Atlantic ports, will not work on farms. They do not come here for that purpose, and no and to Senator Aldrich that he is thormatter what efforts or inducements are offered to them you cannot keep them on the farms.

"Some time ago we sent 30 able-bodied men who arrived at this port out into Harford county. A place on a farm and a home for each man were secured. Within two weeks all 30 were back in the city doing nothing.

'Recently a big, husky fellow, who had come over about six months ago from Austria, came into this office. He had joined his brother when he first arrived and gone out West somewhere. For a couple of weeks he worked on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad and then was dropped. He came in and asked whether we could not compel his brother to pay his passage back to Austria because he could not find work to do here. He wanted to be deported and insisted that if he stayed in this country he would starve. I said to him, "Why don't you get work on a farm? There are plenty of farmers who would take you, give you a home and pay you good wages."

"'I can't do that kind of work," was his reply. This made me a little warm in the collar, and I told him what I thought of a great, big, husky fellow like him who would not work when he could find it. It made absolutely no difference. He would not try farming work, although there are any number of places open for him in that line.

'And that is the way with all of them. When they first arrive here, if you offer them a place on the farm they will accept, as it is an easy way of getting through at the House of Detention and week or so they leave the farm and come back to the city. We have tried here all ly miss the opportunity to see Dr. Deawe can to encourage those who come ver operate, and as these surgeons had over to go to the agricultural districts, but in vain. They do not come over for that purpose, and most of them would rather go back again than go on a farm.

The 30 men whom Mr. Weis speaks of who were sent to Harford county were their eyes on the latest in surgery. all immigrants and places on farms were his job and returned to the city.

Maxim's Invention Silences Guns.

New York, Feb. 8.—Hiram Percy Maxim gave the first public demonstration of his latest invention, "the gun silencer" in a law office today. After the exhibition Maxim was congratulated on all sides, for the simple little attachment ment on the point of the rifles, which ranged from the smallest to the largest, absolutely eliminated the noise that usually follows the discharge of a cart-

Maxim first demonstrated his invention with rifles firing .22 cartridges, with and without the silencer. The little cart-ridges do not make a loud noise anyway, but with the invention attached, nothing but the faint click of the hammer and slight "spat" as the bullet buried itself in the sandbox, which Maxim used to stop the bullets, could be

After demonstrating the effect of the silencer on the smaller guns, Maxim progressed to the high power guns. Some of these, especially the standard arm of the United States Army, were loud enough without the silencer to threaten the welfare of the eardrum. But with the silencer attached, the detonation was reduced to a degree less than the snapping of fingers.

Maxim used, besides the well-known make of guns, four guns sent by other Governments to be fitted with the si-lencer and returned. They were the Mauser and Mannlicher military rifles. Mr. Maxim would not say what Goyernments had sent them in, but stated they were the standard service army rifles from the larger European and South American Governments.

The little device, which is destined to make warfare noiseless, is of simple construction. Its principle is on the ender of the turbing though it does not order of the turbine, though it does not revolve. It has a bore through it, oneeighth of an inch larger than the bullet that must pass through it, the passage of which is not interfered with in the slightest degree. But when the powder gases, which have sent the leaden missile on its mission, fellow on, they are caught up by the circular cells at the end of the gun bore and caused to rotate rapidly in the silencer. In this manner the escape of the powder gases is slowed down so much that by the time they have per-colated through the device, all the noisemaking power has been expended, and no sound is audible.

The silencer does not interfere with the sighting arrangements, and the slight weight-something over five ounces-does not affect the balance of the gun when taking aim. So compact is the si-lencer that it can be carried in an ordinary pocket without inconvenience.

Taft Announces Extra Session.

Washington, Feb. 17.—Mr. Taft will summon the Sixty-first Congress in extra session, on March 15. Yesterday he conferred with Senator Aldrich, and at his request the latter saw Speaker Cannon this morning to ascertain the date that would be most acceptable to both Houses. They agreed on March 15. Mr. Taft was notified early this morn-Creek, and the road from Conoco-cheague Creek, to the Allegany county date would suit him perfectly. Today in line, be adopted as a tenative route for the House of Representatives Mr. Payne, the east and west main artery between the chairman of the Ways and Means Ounty.

When the next Congress meets the Ways and Means Committee will have its tariff bill ready to report to the House. In the House the program is to put the bill through as promptly as pos-sible, but to allow ample opportunity to every member to discuss the bill in general, or those features in which he is locally interested. It is hoped that the bill can be sent to the Senate by the middle of April. When the bill will pass the Senate no one will venture to guess. After it passes the Senate it will remain in conference probably a month onger, so that no one here believes the tariff bill will be a law much before the middle of the summer.

That it will be an honest revision of the tariff no one doubts. Mr. Taft has made it plain both to Speaker Cannon oughly determined to sign only a bill which really revises the tariff. It will be well for business men to recollect that in its final form the bill will be prepared in the Senate. Too much importance must not be attached to the bill which Chairman Payne will introduce. Indeed it is not saying too much that the Payne bill will be largely tentative, with ample allowance for the trades and the concessions that must be made in rates both upward and downward to get the bill first through the House and then through the Senate.

Remarkable Dinner to Noted Surgeon.

A novel event was held in Philadelphia, on Monday, when Dr. John B. Deaver, the eminent surgeon, was the guest of honor at a dinner tendered him by 110 surgeons and physicians from many states, all of whom bore scars of some operation performed on them by the honored guest. The only person in the dining room who had his appendix intact, and who bore no scar of any kind, was Dr. Deaver himself. Even the 15 waiters were qualified by proving that their appendix had been removed by Dr. Deaver; they were dressed in White hospital uniforms, with the Red Cross bands on their sleeves.

Among the guests was also one of Dr. Deaver's "masterpieces," Dr. I Reily Bucher, of Lebanon, Pa., who is 77 years old, and who was operated upon by Dr. Deaver when he was 72 years old, an age at which it requires rare skill to satisfying the authorities, but within a save the patient by surgical intervention.

Surgeons coming to Philadelphia rarecome expressly for the purpose of paying tribute to Dr. Deaver's operating skill, it was all the more natural that as a prelude to the dinner, they went to all immigrants and places on farms were secured for them by Mr. S. A. Williams, of that county. Within two weeks, as form no less than eight operations, Mr. Weis says, every one had thrown up among them two operation for appenTHE CARROLL RECORD NON-PARTISAN.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 20th., 1909.

SEVERAL OF OUR Senators, who will be "missed" after the present Congress, are spending their remaining time, apparently, in trying to antagonize the administration, notably in the Panama Canal project, by trying to create dissatisfaction with the present lock plan. We will wait for the report of the engineers, which is very likely to be worth more than the opinions of out-going Senators.

INEXPENSIVE HOTHOUSE.

Practical Structure For the Farm or Suburban Residence.

All farmers and their families, as well as people who live in the suburbs, are interested in hothouses. The illustrations in this article are nearly self explaining, the principal feature being the heating system. The cut showing the exposed framework also shows two trenches excavated the entire length of the house. These trenches are walled with stone, brick or portland cement concrete. The injury.

FRAMEWORK FOR HOTHOUSE

front end, however, must be made of brick and also covered with brick at least eight feet from the outer end. The inside dimensions are about 12 by 14 inches. A tight fitting iron door is bricked in and the remaining portion of the trench finished with stone or cement. Thin stone may be used to cover the top, or cement slabs may be molded. A galvanized iron or brick 8moke flue is built at the rear end and must be provided with a good, tight damper. The doors may be secured of any foundry and are not at all expensive. The furnace and smoke flue must be as near air tight as possible, and no trouble will be found in holding the heat at almost any temperature between 70 and 103 degrees. A stick of cord wood placed on a live bed of coals will hold the heat at 100 for twelve hours or more.

feet wide two of these furnaces are used, and the fire doors may be outside or have a roof over them, as suits your fancy. Compared to steam or hot water heat, the cost to install this system is very small, and the expense to operate will be still smaller. The south, east and west sides and ends are of glass. The north side is boarded up and down with boxing or stock boards, these covered with two or three layers of tar building paper, and the paper in turn covered with drop siding. The gable ends are finished in the same manner. The north ends. also the gables, have several nail ties for the boxing not shown in the draw-

The posts for this structure are of 4 by 4 and about six feet at the low side and seven and a half to eight feet at the highest point. The posts are sixteen feet on centers and well braced, as shown.

Regular hotbed and storm sash are used for the sides and roof, as they may be secured ready glazed for less laid, and all are fastened to the timbers with heavy screws, but each alternate sash of the top section is hung on hinges and arranged to be held open with long iron hooks. The sashes on the ends and sides are also hung on hinges, and each alternate sash opens out at the bottom. The cracks between the sashes are covered with O. G. battons, and a small one-quarter inch groove, cut three-eighths of an inch from the edges of sash, catches any water that may blow under the battens, and the same is carried down on the lower sash. It is needless to say that this house should have a good foundation and all woodwork kept well painted. Curtains must be so arranged under the glass that the operator may at will exclude the sun's rays. If not so arranged the tender vegetables are very likely to be burned

Kerosene Emulsion.

To make kerosene emulsion boil onehalf pound soap in one gallon of water and when boiling add two gallons of kerosene. Remove from the fire and churn vigorously for ten minutes, using for the purpose a hand force pump, or for small lots shake the material together in a pail or can. When the emulsion has a milky appearance cool it and add from ten to fifteen gallons of water. For the scale the Preparation should be used with not Over ten gallons of water to the quantity stated. Tightening Fences.

For tightening barbed or other wire in long lengths the farm wagon is a very handy and efficient tool. One of the rear wheels is raised from the ground, and the wire is passed once around the hub and fastened to a spoke of the wheel. The wagon is then braced by any suitable means and the wheel turned in the manner of the mariner's wheel. In this way a Dull of a hundred pounds on the tire Will exert a force of 400 or 500 pounds on the wire.

SAVING PLANTS IN WINTER, D. M. MEHRING.

Suggestions as to the Best Means of Protection.

The utility of protecting plants, bulbs, shrubs and trees of all kinds is not sufficiently appreciated. Even those of reputed hardiness in any given climate will well repay the expense of partial protection from the severity of low temperature.

The degree of cold that plants will resist without being injured cannot be determined except by actual experiment, as their power of resistance depends entirely on their environment. A plant sometimes will be destroyed by exposure to a temperature not lower than it had previously encountered without sustaining any apparent injury. The exact process by which cold destroys plants is a matter upon which there is yet room for conjecture. The mechanical action of frost on vegetable tissue undoubtedly is a cause of

It is well known that mere degrees of cold do not indicate the extent of the injury that plants suffer during winter. The moisture of the soil and the moisture of the atmosphere are of equal importance. Plants that pass with safety through a below zero cold in December frequently will be destroyed by the dry winds of March, although the thermometer may not indicate 10 degrees of frost. The moisture of the plant is evaporated, and injury will depend upon the amount thus evaporated. In a climate as changeable as ours it is by no means an uncommon occurrence to have all the seasons represented in a period not exceeding forty-eight hours. Consequently during midwinter plants suffer more here than in climates much colder, where the ground is covered with snow the entire winter. To the layman it is hard to explain why plants that are perfectly hardy in Maine when transferred to the White House gardens at Washington frequently are destroyed by 10 or 15 degrees of frost because of no covering.

The thickness of protection should depend upon the size of the plants. For a hothouse fifteen to eighteen Of course all this is more particularly for newly planted material. All trees will be much better with a blanket four inches thick. For trees two to three inches in diameter make a mat of at least three feet across the roots of whatever material there is to be had. Borders of shrubbery and herbaceous plants and roses are better if the spaces between them are entirely covered three inches thick. Bulbs of all kinds-narcissus, tulips. hyacinths and lilies-if covered two inches thick with manure, three parts decayed, will be much benefited.

> Now, in the spring don't rake off every bit of the protecting material you have used. Leave on as much as possible. Nature does not prim up all she laid down in November.

Cutting the Ice Crop.

In cutting or sawing ice be particular to get your cakes of even size and square. You can then pack the ice away tightly and solidly without any air spaces between the cakes or layers. If you get your ice in the house than a carpenter can make the open in a solid mass and keep it covered 8ash. As shown on the roof, the with sawdust or cut straw, properly tamped in, there will be no trouble with ice melting and giving out in late summer, when it is needed most. In packing away ice leave it a foot or fifteen inches from the wall, and with every layer put sawdust on the outside to hold it in place.

Work of Large and Small Cows.

Small cows consume relatively more feed and produce more dairy products than large ones. The Jerseys per thousand pounds live weight consumed daily during the St. Louis dairy demonstration on an average 17 per cent more nutriment than the Holsteins, 20 per cent more than the Swiss and ove 50 per cent more than the Shorthorns. but they returned 43 per cent more butter fat than the Holsteins, 70 per cent more than the Swiss and 100 per cent more than the Shorthorns.

NEW YORK PATRONS.

Notes and Suggestions Relative to the Forthcoming Meeting of the State Grange.

The annual meeting of the New York state grange will be held at Little Falls early in February and promises to be one of the most important of recent years. The growth of the Order in the state and its influence on farm legislation are so great that the proceedings of the state grange meeting are carefully watched by not only the farmers, but by the legislators as well. There was an increase in the membership of over 5,000 within the past year, making the total member ship about 82,000. Governor Hughes is to be present on the evening of the second day of the session, and National Master Bachelder of Concord, N. H., and State Master Healey of Connecticut will attend the meeting

State Master Godfrey suggests that all persons who have resolutions to be introduced at the annual session should prepare them in typewriting and send them to their delegates promptly. This is a very important suggestion for the reason that when resolutions are introduced late in the session they cannot receive the consideration at the hands of the committee that they should have. We may add that resolutions should be pre pared with great care, made as brief as possible and concise, and they should be made to say just what they

The state master also calls the attention of the delegates to the fact that this will be a working body. Delegates should not attend the state grange meeting for recreation or amusement: they are there for work This year the voting body will consist of fully 500 delegares, including the associates, and every one of the chief delegates will find work on some committee. They should attend with a view of serving the grange and the Order in general to the best of their ability. When all work with this thought in mind the best results will be accomplished.

There will also be a meeting of the county deputies of the state in connec tion with the state grange meeting. days' pay and their railroad fare. Among the topics which will be dis cussed are the following: "The Deputy's Obligation to the State Master," by J. J. Bardeen; "How to Organize a Grange," by Fred Shepard; "Grange Inspection," by W. F. Pratt; "Promptness In Making Report to the State Secretary," by L. R. Pardee. This meeting will be held on Wednesday. Feb. 3, at 10 o'clock. The deputy's office is a very important one, as he represents the state master in his county. and much benefit may accrue from the deputies' meeting. It is probable that at this meeting of be given to larger and more practical co-operation among the granges in buying and selling farm products and farm supplies. Massachusetts has set the example, which, though possessing nothing new, nevertheless shows how they propose to handle this matter i the Bay State. A co-operative organ zation has been formed with capital of $25,000. Stock in five dollar share is sold only to members of the Order Grange stores in the past have not been very successful. Sometimes has been the fault of discriminating against nonmembers in asking the to pay higher prices for goods the members of the Order. This cannot b expected. The stock in such a conce should be held by members of the C der only, and they should receive dividend on it when the busin s was rants a division and also a certain 1 centage as rebate on each dollar worth of goods purchased. Thus me bers will have two advantages over the nonmembers, but the nonmembers will be able to buy as cheaply at the being fed without the act costing you store as the members.

THE DOMINION GRANGE.

The Order In Canada Is Progressing Slowly.

The thirty-fourth annual convention of the Dominion grange, Toronto, was the largest in attendance for years. The grange movement has made rapid progress in Canada the past two years and seems to have entered upon a new era of prosperity. There are now eighty-six granges, twenty-two of which were organized during the past year. Had the society sufficient fund to pay for a permanent organizer th number of granges could easily b doubled, and, in fact, the movement is likely to go pretty fast of its own volition. As yet it is confined to Ontario.

The meeting was given up to diccussing reports of standing committees and resolutions dealing with matters affecting the position of the farmer and methods of government. The tariff came in for some attention. The grang put itself on record as in favor of en tending the preference on Britis goods, the gradual elimination of protection from the tariff and of meeting any advances from the United States in the way of reciprocity. The grange protested against all methods designed to develop the military spirit among school children. E. C. Drury of Crown Hill was elected master, Miss Robinson of Middlemarch secretary-treasurer and J. G. Lethbridge of Alliance lecturer.

HEALTH OF SWINE.

Some Points by a Successful Breeder. A Champion Yorkshire.

A successful swine breeder says of keeping hogs healthy:

A very important consideration is sunshine and exercise, and without both of these I have never been able to have success. I have too often seen hogs cramped into a little, dark, filthy pen for fattening. I find it most prof itable to give my hogs good range at all times, whether feeding to fatten or not. It will sometimes happen that cholera will get into the whole neighbodhood, and in such an event I would try to keep my herd as far from the adjoining neighbor as possible and use an abundance of a good disinfectant about the grounds and a little in the water. In fact, this will do no harm in health. But should cholera get started in my herd the first thing I would do would be to kill and burn the sick ones, taking them away from the others for the operation. I have tried to cure a few cases, but always failed and lost money by allowing them to stay on the farm.

The feeding of swine is a great question and can be mastered only by experience. Hogs to be healthy must have a variety of food-grains, roots and forage. The condition of the hog should govern the kind and quantity. Different conditions would suggest different methods, and therefore it is not safe to lay down any iron bound rules.

The question of water is also a very great one, and one that, from my observation, is often neglected. Some think that any kind of hole will do for hogs, and consequently they are left to drink from the hole that they wallow in. This, I think, is one of the main causes of sickness in hogs. The water becomes stagnant and foul and is full of disease germs, and the hog, taking this foul water into its stomach, is bound to sooner or later become diseased. Everything that can be done to keep things in first class order, letting nothing go undone. I find to be far better than any medicine that I have ever tried.

The fine champion Yorkshire sow shown in the illustration has never been beaten in the show ring. The All county deputies are allowed two owner says this sow was fed from pighood on a combination of shorts, corn, tankage, slops, etc. He thinks tankage a great food, tending toward great smoothness. She has produced several pigs which won blue ribbons at a number of big fairs.

FEEDING THE FLOCK.

Irregularity In This Work Means Loss In Fat and Flesh.

A good observer of sheep and lambs has made the remark that sheep are excellent timekeepers. They have no alarm clocks of their own, but seem to keep the sense of time very clearly in their minds, so clearly, in fact, that if you are disposed to be somewhat irregular in your hours of doing your farm work it would be best for you to invest in an alarm clock for your own use. In such a case you can safely charge the investment which the clock represents up to the flock

It will pay you back with interest. In other words, there is perhaps no other animal that is more sensitive about being fed on time each day than is your fattening lamb or sheep. Noise, confusion-anything, in fact, which annoys and distresses the flock means the loss of good money making fat and flesh to you. No one should be allowed to have any part in the handling of the flock who is in the habit of losing his temper or who is rough in manner or speech when working about the

As a matter of fact, so important is this matter of sheep feeding that you cannot so much as show a stranger about the shed where the sheep are in good hard money from the loss of flesh which the distraction of the sensitive animal will produce.

Ventilating the Dairy Barn.

Every barn should have a system of flues or, if they are too expensive, cotton windows. More trouble of garget and udder disease results from sudden drafts than from any other causes. In the outgoing flue the area should be in proportion to the number of cows, about one square foot to a cow, and should be opened at the top of the barn. Inside the barn the opening in summer should be up high and in the winter lower down. The incoming flues should have the same area, but there should be more of them, necessarily making them smaller. The air should come in from the outside near the sills and into the barn from under the eaves.-Professor H. E. Cook, Lewis County, N. Y.

Treatment of the Hog.

No animal of the farm will stand as poor treatment as the hog and thrive as well, says a breeder. It can be said with the same degree of truth that no animal will respond more quickly under good treatment. By treatment I refer to good breeding as well as good

The Costly Scrub.

It costs no more to support the well bred animal than the scrub, and a well bred animal, be it either for milk or beef, will render better returns for the food consumed than the scrub.

We notice that in our public schools of to-day very little attention is given to penmanship; at least, we notice that the majority of our pupils are nearly all poor writers, and among our younger pupils especially, we notice that many know nothing about the formation of the letters. We have noticed that they make a number of them backwards if the can make them at all; we have also observed that the multiplication table is much neglected, we see plenty of the pupils keeping one finger at the multi-plication table while they are working arithmetic. These are very important things, and should be given special at-tention. How can a pupil be expected to write when he cannot form the differ-ent letters or how can they be expected ent letters, or how can they be expected to work a question in arthimetic if they know nothing about the different tables We believe that it would be much better to dispense with some of the new fangled ideas and pay special attention to the more common things that are of use

MRS J T RECK

Guarding a Nail.

A gentleman in Jerusalem told me that he found a Turkish soldier on guard in some part of the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, where it was not usual for a sentry to be, and inquired of him why he was there.

He pointed to a nail in the wall and replied, "It is my duty to watch that

Asked why, he explained that the Latins or the Greeks-I forget whichhad driven the nail with the view of hanging a picture; that a rival sect had furiously objected, saying that it was an interference with their property and wanted to pull out the nail; that thereupon the Turkish government had intervened and set him to Watch the nail and see that no picture was hung upon it and that it was not pulled out.

To allow the picture to be hung would have been to admit the claims of those who drove in the nail. To allow it to be pulled out would have been to admit the claims of those who Objected to the driving in of the nail. Therefore the nail must be preserved and the picture must not be hung, and to see that this was so an armed sentry must watch day and night. For aught I know he may be watching Still.-Rider Haggard's "A Winter Pilgrimage."

Traced by a Bluebottle Fly.

The great objection to the use of Poison for rats is that they retire to their homes and die there, to become a nuisance and a menace to health. Friends of the writer were compelled to have the floor and wainscoting of their dining room removed for this reason. A wiser man, knowing that a Pair of poisoned rats had got under his floor, summoned not a carpenter, but a naturalist, to his aid. They knew that the rats were under the floor, but the difficulty was to fix the spot. There seemed to the owner of the house no alternative to the removal of 'the Whole floor; hence his appeal to the nature detective. The latter would not hear of the floor coming up. He cried out for a bluebottle fly. One was captured unhurt and turned loose in the room. After a little preliminary hawking the bluebottle darted to the floor and remained on one spot, like a pointer which has found game.

"Your rats are under there," said the naturalist. They cut down through that board, and there were the rats .-New York Mail.

The First Pantomime.

John Rich has the credit of producing the first pantomime ever seen in England. This was performed on Dec. 26, 1717, at the theater in Lincoln's Inn Fields. Rich had found himself unable to compete with the legitimate drama at Drury Lane, so he bethought himself of the comic masques Occasionally performed in London and combined with their scenic and mechanical effects the maneuvers of the pantomime ballet. The result was "Harlequin Executed," which the advertisement of that day described as "a new Italian mimic scene, between a searamouch, a harlequin, a country farmer, his wife and others." There was all the business with which we Were familiar from childhood, huts turned into palaces, shops into gardens, houses into trees. Of course the "earnest student of the drama" protested against this innovation, but Harlequin, Columbine & Co. have maintained their hold on public favor until the present year of grace.

He Knew Them.

This was overheard in the lobby of a big hotel in Cincinnati when a bus load of traveling salesmen came from the station. Every man of them as he signed the register paused to shake hands with the hotel clerk-fatherly old fellow who had been there many Years. "Ah." said one of them to the elerk, "it's a good thing you're still on deck, Uncle Dave. I don't think the house could run without you." "Couldn't it, though!" said Uncle Dave. You fellows would come in here, and If there was a strange clerk you'd say, 'Where's Uncle Dave?' And the elerk would say: 'Why, didn't you hear? He died a month ago.' And then you'd say: Well, I'll be darned! That's too bad. Say, when 'll dinher be ready?"

Dressing the Sponge.

When sponges are first torn from the sea bed they are of a dark color and living. By tramping and pressing them with the feet a milky substance Oozes out, whereupon the sponge dies. They are then immersed in the sea for a space of eight or ten hours. The dark, skinny substance is then removed by scraping, and gradually, through cleaning, drying and bleaching, they take on the fine yellow color which characterizes many of them.

This week let us take a look at Washington and, through a most striking episode in his career, learn how lofty and history of modern times. He was tempt- put in front of the shrine of the Virgin. incorruptible was his nature and how ed, but he turned from the temptation masterful the self-repression that could cause him to "put away a crown."

We know that in the trying time between the close of the War of the Revolution and the adoption of the Constitution, Washington was the moving spirit sought nor desired it. It was reward of the Confederation which had been formed November 15, 1777. It was toward the close of the Revolution, in March, 1782, at the army headquarters at Newburgh, N. Y., that there came to him the offer of a cown. "Washington had been scarcely two months at his post (after the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown) when a letter was placed in his hands which revealed, more fully than any observations of his own could have revealed it, the pass to which affairs had come. The letter was from Colonel Lewis Nicola, an old and respected officer, who stood nearer than did most of his fellow officers to the commander-in-chief in intimacy and affection, and who felt it his privilege to speak plainly. The letter was calm in temper, grave and moderate in tone, with something of the gravity and method of a disquisition written upon abstract questions of government; did not broach its meaning like a revolutionary document; but what it proposed was nothing less, when read between the lines, than that Washington should suffer himself to be made king, and that so an end should be put to the incompetency and ingratitude of a band of weak and futile republics. Washington met the suggestion with a rebuke so direct and overwhelming that Colonel Nicola must himself have wondered how he ever dared make any such venture. 'Be assured, sir,' said the indignant commander, 'no occurrance in the course of the war has given me more painful sensations than your information of there being such ideas existing in the army. * * * * I am much at a loss to conceive what part of my conduct could have given encouragement to an address which to me seems big with the greatest mischiefs that can befall my country. If I am not deceived in the knowledge of myself, you could not have found a person to whom your schemes are more disagreeable. * * * * Let me conjure you, if you have any regard for your country, concern for yourself or posterity, or respect for me, to banish these thoughts from your mind, and never communicate, as from yourself or any one else, a sentiment of the like nature.'

At the time of this incident of the crown there was in the army serious! mutiny arising from the neglect of the Continental Congress to secure the troops their pay. This mutiny it required all of Washington's tact to quell. Doubtless had he been so minded, it would have been easy for him with the aid of the army, discontented as it was, to have seized the supreme power as Napoleon did in France a few years later. And his act would have been justified by most historians. But, as we have seen, he repelled the idea with indignation. both for himself and for the army; and on this occasion, as on others when disaffection was rife among the sorely tried patriots, he used his own popularity to arouse anew the loyalty of his 'companions in arms.

I have heard the negroes say "he all" and "she all" but with reference not to persons but possesssions. Thus "he all" meant "all of his; "she's one." The poor whites by a similar process got "his'n" and "her'n' from "his one" and "her one." It is only among them that I ever heard a singular "all" of any sort-a toothless old dame referred proudly to her new son-in-law as "Um all"-perhaps to distinguish him from her husband, who was "he." "Them all" and "their all" have likewise a limited currency among the plainer sort of folk. These tram lines naturally had exactly the width prescribed by the strength of one horse. By mere inertia the horse cart gauge established itself in the world, and everywhere the train is dwarfed to a scale that limits alike its comfort, power and speed. Because there is so much capital engaged and because of the dead power of custom it is doubtful if there will ever be any change in this gauge. Still, it might be worse. If the biggest horses had been Shetland ponies our railway carriages now would only be wide enough to hold two persons side by side and would have a maximum speed of twenty miles an hour. There is no hunting there but sea gulls (which the French adore to shoot) and rabbits. It was to get the rabbits that we used the crabs. We caught some dozens of small, lively fellows, fastened on their backs lighted candles and shoved them down into rabbit holes. The rabbits, scared to death by those strange moving lights, rushed forth frantically-forth into the very muzzles of our gun: This sounds rather frisky perhaps, bu it is a Vendean custom as widespread as coon hunting in the south."-Cincinnati Enquirer.

Grant and Sumner.

Concerning the reliability of things in print, it is recalled that Charles Sumner criticised General Grant savagely, and some time after some one was talking to Grant about atheism in New England and remarked, "Even Sumner does not believe in the Bible." "Why should he?" quietly replied Grant. "He didn't write it."

When M. Clemenceau was in the French chamber of deputies he became for some reason the idol of the workingman, but his popularity, according to the course of nature, brought its penalties. He was besieged by all sorts of people, who came merely to ask questions, and sometimes they were questions of the most trivial sort. He was originally a doctor and used

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL,

Lesson IX.—First Quarter, For Feb. 28, 1909.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts viii, 4-25. Memory Verses 14, 15-Golden Text, Acts viii, 6-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.] The parting commission of our Lord Was to go into all the world and give the good news to every creature, those thus going being assured of His presence with them all the days until the end of the age, and the special enduement of the Holy Spirit was to the end that they might be witnesses unto Christ not only in Jerusalem and Judea and Samaria, but unto the uttermost part of the earth (Matt. xxviii, 19, 20; Mark xvi, 15; Acts i, 8). Lest the apostles might think that they alone were the ones to do this God seems to have overruled even such a Seemingly grievous thing as the murmuring of the Grecians to bring forth other than the apostles and send them forth-humble men who were willing to serve on a committee to supervise the distribution of alms and yet men full of wisdom and faith and of the Holy Spirit, for we cannot truly serve God even in the lowliest office except by the Holy Spirit. In our last lesson We saw the first of the seven most highly honored of God not only as a witness, but as a martyr, sealing his testimony with his blood. In today's lesson we see the second of the seven, Philip, so preaching Christ in Samaria that the people with one accord gave heed unto his message, and there Was great joy in that city (verses 5-8). The Lord also wrought miracles of healing through Philip, for the lame and the palsied were made whole, and demons were cast out of those possessed by them.

When we see men like Stephen and Philip thus used by the Holy Spirit and consider that even the apostles Were accounted as unlearned and ignorant men and when we hear Paul, who had some learning, having been taught by Gamaliel, renouncing all enticing words of man's wisdom lest the cross of Christ should be made of none effect (I Cor. i, 17; ii, 4), we cannot but Wonder if there is anything of God in the long years of preparation which are thought to be necessary to fit men to be preachers or missionaries. Then when we consider the discourses of Peter and Stephen and Paul in Acts ii, vii and xiii and see them to consist largely of quotations from the Scriptures centering upon a crucified and risen and returning Christ we cannot but ask in all humility and sincerity, Since the Holy Spirit thus uses His ⁰Wn word to accomplish the work He has been sent to do, is not the one great need more of the word of God and the one essential for minister or missionary to be filled with the word of God and the Spirit of God? It cer- them.' tainly does seem so to us.

for while they magnified the Lord Jesus he gave out that himself was 80me great one (verse 9), like Thendas. who boasted himself to be somebody (Acts v, 36). This is the spirit of him Who will yet exalt himself above all that is called God and will attempt to 8how himself to be God (II Thess. ii, All the world will wonder at him and will worship him and the dragon Who will give him his power, all except those whose names are in the Lamb's book of life (Rev. xiii, .3, 8). We need not wonder, therefore, that all the people in Samaria for a time gave heed to Simon the Sorcerer.

See the multitudes who today are bewitched and deluded by the many Strange doctrines which are being taught, and the reason is simply stated in II Thess. ii, 10, 11, for we have foreshadowings of the last days. It is a fearful thing to turn away from anything that God has written by His Spirit, but human nature seems prone to listen to the devil rather than to God, yet God is not discouraged, and there is no reason for us to be. The kingdom will come, and the name of Jesus Christ will be honored in all the World. The zeal of the Lord of Hosts Will bring it to pass (Rev. xi, 15; Ps. lxxii, 11; Isa, xlii, 4; ix, 6, 7). When this Simon professed to believe in Je-8us Christ there must have been great rejoicing on the part of many that such a one should have come also, but not all professors are real possessors, and in one place we read that our Lord Jesus did not believe in all who Professed to believe in Him, for He knew what was in man (John ii, 23-25)

The special gift of the Holy Spirit granted to these believers through Peter and John, who had been sent up from Jerusalem, stirred Simon to destre the power of communicating this gift, and for it he offered to pay, not understanding the freeness of the redemption that is in Christ and all that It included. In this matter his heart Was not right with God, and in this he had neither part nor lot (verse 21). The next two verses may indicate possibly that he was not truly saved, and verse 24 may merely show a fear of Ome judgment that might come upon him from the Lord. After such truths as are set forth in I Cor. iii, 15; v, 5, and the testimony of Peter that Lot was a righteous man it does not seem coming in us to judge any one but ourselves (Rom. xiv, 13; I Cor. iv, 5). is ours to proclaim the word of the Lord concerning Jesus Christ and His sufferings and glory in full confidence that "no word of God is void of powthat He will watch over His word.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Beginning Feb. 28, 1909. By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Home missions; present day pioneers.—Eccl. xi, 1-4.

Present day pioneer missionaries are in nowise different from those of the past. They are those who stand alone in their work. It may be on the frontier of our country or among the foreign immigrants in various parts of our country or in our cities, the islands under our control or among the exceptional populations of our land. The pioneers are the first missionaries. They sow the seed, but do not always gather it when they might expect to in more settled and permanent fields when the sowing has been of long standing. The injunctions to them, as set forth in this passage from Ecclesiastes, are most striking ones and apply to all interested in missions as well as

1. The command to preach the gospel regardless of no assurance of immediate returns. "Cast thy bread upon the waters, for thou shalt find it after many days." Palestine had irregular droughts and downpours of rain. When the signs of rain appeared animals tred the dried, baked banks of the streams, and then as the rain subsided seeds were cast upon the waters, sank into the now softened soil and brought forth fruit. Some seeds might be washed away and yet at some future time grow and ripen. This is the figure referred to here. Christ is the bread. He is to be proclaimed. The prospects in the pioneer's preaching may not be great, and yet he is to keep on preaching, for "after many days the results will be manifest." Results are with God, and in His time they will come, and in heaven, if not before, we may be surprised at the largeness of these results. This is true of all Christian and missionary work. "In due season we shall reap if we faint not;" hence, regardless of prospects, we are "not to be weary in well doing."

2. The gospel is to be preached to all. Christ is the universal Saviour. "I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto "Give a portion to seven and also to eight." The number is indefinite, symbolizing that all are to be fed upon Christ, the Bread of Life-the rich, the poor, the high, the low, the crowds in the city, the few on the frontier, every nation. . people, kindred and tongue, the outcast as well as the cherished child of the elegant house, those who remain at home and those who travel to sparsely settled portions of our country. And a reason is here put forth for so doing, "for thou knowest not what evil may be upon the earth" or what evil may befall you. The wheel of fortune turns rapidly in this life. The rich may become poor and the poor rich. Even those who are spiritual should lift up the fallen. "considering themselves lest they also be tempted" and fall and need the help of others to lift them up. And what better claim to it can we have than that in the day of our power we have administered to others? Therefore "whatsoever ye would have men should do to you do ye even so unto

3. The conditions of the times are In Simon the Sorcerer we see the not to be considered. The man who ast to such as Stephen and Phil- watches the seasons too closely will not sow and therefore cannot reap. A soul may be saved at any moment. God is always ready and able to bless. our labors. We are not to wait, as missionaries or as Christian workers, for the seasons to be propitious. "All seasons are Thine, O Lord," and all seasons are also ours. The gospel preached at any time will produce results. "In season and out of season" we are to sow, and "they that sow in tears shall reap in joy."

Tribute to Christian Endeavor. In the Christian Endeavor Times of London Hon. George Nicholls, M. P., gave his testimony to the value of Christian Endeavor. Speaking of his actual experience, he says:

First I was a humble but active mem ber of a small society in a country church during the early days of the movement in this country. It furnished several of us (young people) an opportunity for service other than the Sunday school, and taese workers became the pastor's "handy men," and a branch mission three miles away from the church was formed, and the services were conducted for years by these young volunteers until a church young volunteers until a church was built.

My second experience was as pastor in charge of another country church, where I remained nine years. A glorious revival broke out during the first year of my settlement. Then a Christian Endeavor so-clety was formed, and the young people became like "David's helpers" to me. They were the life and soul of every They were the life and soul of every prayer meeting, open air service and week night preaching service. The look-out committee was always on active service, and our sunshine committee carried sunshine into many a sickroom. The Endeavorers also ran a Band of Hope.

I knew every time I entered the pulpit to endeavor to preach that my Christian Endeavorers were praying for me. Week to endeavor to preach that my Christian Endeavorers were praying for me. Week day and Sunday alike they were ever a source of joy to me, and this did not end when I left them to take up the work at another church, for they still hold up the hands of their present pastor.

During recent years I have moved in a wider field. Since my election to parliament I could not continue my pastorate, but am preaching every Sunday somewhere. This has given me ample opportunity to see the good work Endeavorers are carrying on, often under trying conare carrying on, often under trying con ditions, and also to hear the splendid tes timony of both pastors and deacons to the effective work of the Endeavorers in both the church and the Sunday school. I admit there are a few exceptions. Not all are perfect. Not all the ministers and deacons are perfect.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week

Copyright, 1908, by T. C. McClure.

Among the applicants answering the advertisement of Klein & Klippert for a stenographer was Miss Rose Williams of a suburban village. Both partners were old bachelors, and when said to Klippert:

"There will probably be a hundred girls come tomorrow, and as I know more about human nature than you do I will see them and pick out the one we want."

"But as I know more about stenography than you do it should be left to me." was the reply of the partner.

They wrangled over the matter for should receive and question the applicants. When Miss Rose entered the office each partner said to himself that she would do, no matter whether she knew anything about stenography or not. Each tried to impress upon her mind the fact that he was fatherly and kind hearted and wished to run an orphan asylum. Klein wanted to offer her $20 a week, and Klippert wanted to offer $5 more, but they finally settled on $15 to start with. This was $5 more than they had intended paying, and the bookkeeper wondered if the well known economy of the establishment was to fly out of the window. When the terms had been settled and the applicant had departed, to reappear on the morrow, Klein hitched about on his chair for a couple of minutes and then said:

"As my room is rather the largest and lightest, I am willing to make a place for the young lady. Did you notice the lines of sorrow around her young mouth? I shall speak very gently to her."

"There is a fine, light space in my room for the young lady," replied Klippert, "and I will take her in there.

"SHE WILL EXPECT ME TO INVITE HE:

There is a sad look about her eyes, a. if she had some great grief, and I shall not expect her to do much work.'

They disputed for half an hour over the point, and next day Miss Rose was given the hall between the office rooms of the partners. It was a gloomy, contracted space, but she made no complaints. Each partner had made excuses to address her half a dozen times when it came half past 11 o'clock. Then Klein passed into the room of the other and said:

"You seem to have lots of business with the new girl this morning If you are not more careful she will become afraid of you.

"I was going to say the same thing to you," was the prompt reply. have simply been treating her in a fatherly way. I think she has lost her natural father, and that's the reason she looks so sorrowful.'

"But I was intending to do that courtesy myself. It belongs to the junior partner. "But I contend that it would look forward in you. Remember, she is a very timid girl." "I shall be gentleness itself. You with your brusque way would certainly frighten her." argue the matter out, and it took so long to do it that Miss Rose had gone to her lunch when they returned to ask her to go with both. The partners felt that the other was to blame, and at half past 1 o'clock, in order to ge even with Klippert, Klein called th stenographer into his room and di him anything except as to strict business.

Klein had been in the habit of leaving the store every afternoon at half past 4. On this occasion he hung about until 5. Klippert and the employees left at half past 5. Klippert sauntered after the new stenographer to see what car she took. He had just ascertained when he encountered his partner. They eyed each other suspiciously for a minute and then lied. Each had a ready excuse on his tongue. Next morning at the store the senior partner called the junior partner into his room and gravely

"Mr. Klippert, I should be grieved the advertisement was inserted Klein to know that you were following Miss Williams to the car, but the more I think of it the more suspicious your conduct appears."

"But what were you doing there?" was promptly asked.

"Business unconnected with the store called me to the spot."

"Same here."

"Um!" "Um!"

"I would suggest that neither of us ten minutes and then agreed that both ask the young lady to lunch. She might misconstrue our action.'

"Just what I was about to suggest We will go out together, as heretofore."

But things rankled in the mind of the senior partner. As a mafter of fact, he had gone to the cauchalf an hour ahead of the girl to make sure that she took the right one for home and did not go sauntering off into the swamps and become a victim of the Black Handers. The junior partner had come upon him and wronged him in thought. He did the only thing he could think of to get even. He called Miss Rose in and raised her salary to $22 a week.

The junior partner was not at all satisfied with the situation. He had followed the stenographer to the car to see that the bookkeeper, who was known to be a masher, didn't do the same. There he had met his partner and been looked at distrustfully. In wronging him the partner wronged Miss Rose, and he called her in and dictated a fictitious letter and added:

"I am pleased to say that our work was never so well done before, and I wish to inform you that your salary has been advanced to $25 per week.'

Miss Williams came to her place on a Wednesday. On Saturday afternoon there was a half holiday. On Saturday afternoon also Mr. Klein met Mr Klippert in the village where the stenographer lived. Each was sauntering about when he met the other They came to a dead stop and glared and scowled. Each wanted to ask the other what he was doing there, but he didn't ask. Klein finally took Klippert by the arm and walked him to the car, and when both were seated and headed for the city he said:

"Klippert, it's hard times in busi-

"You bet!" "We don't need a stenographer."

"Not in the least." "We can save that $25 per week."

"Every cent of it." "And we will do it?"

"We will."

And on Monday morning Miss Williams received a letter from the firm that owing to her inexperience her services would no longer be required

Money In China and Egypt.

Coins were made in China so long ago, it is said, as the year 2250 B. C., but they could not have been other than portions of metal cast into portable shape, such as were all the earliest moneys. In Egypt, the cradle of civilization and commerce, strange to say, They went out into the store to there was no imperial coinage. Copper, silver and gold were used, as elsewhere, to indicate values, but they were manufactured into lumps, shaped sometimes like brick, and in the case of gold and silver were molded in rings, sirable property, at rates which exlike the ancient Irish money of ten centuries ago. It appears almost inconceivable that a people who created the pyramids and erected such magnificent temples should have been entirely ignorant of coins. Yet it is certain from the statements of Herodotus that such was the case. The first coinage of money in Egypt was not struck to assist the Egyptians themselves in their commercial dealings, but, rather, because the foreign merchants with whom they traded, the that I shall make your salary $20 a Greeks and the Phoenicians, demanded some medium which would have the ble don't hesitate to ask my advice. Why He Does It.

"It isn't often that I have faith enough in the medicines put up by other people The Westminster and Taneytown road | to be willing to offer to refund the money Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia on that plan.

> a quick introductory sale authorized me to sell the regular fifty cent bottle of their specific for half-price, 25 cents, and although I have sold a lot of it, and guaranteed every package, not one has been brought back as unsatisfactory.

"I am still selling the specific at halfprice, although I cannot tell how long I shall be able to do so. Any person who is subject to constipation, sick headache, dizziness, liver trouble, indigestion or a general played out condition, ought to take advantage of this opportunity."

Mr. Taft Ate "Bouillabaisse."

Mr. Taft while in New Orleans at a anquet, last week, was served with a Creole dish, which while no doubt very palatable to the taste, is not likely to become popular as a word to pronounce

"Bouillabaisse." This is what the chef did to produce the dish:

'He took six slices of sheepshead (fish) and six slices of red snapper of equal sizes and rubbed them well with salt and pepper. Then he minced three sprigs of thyme, three sprigs of parsley, three bay leaves and three cloves of garlic very, very fine. He added a pinch of allspice and rubbed it all into the fish. He then poured out two tablespoonsfuls of olive oil into a large pan, chopped a couple of onions, added them to the heating oil and allowed the fish to smother in the pan for 10 minutes. A fresh pan, half a bottle of white wine, six sliced tomatoes, half a lemon, a pint of the liquor in which the snap-per's head was boiled, pepper, salt, a dash of cayenne, and into this goes the fish for another five minute boil. pinch of saffron and the whole poured out on toast fried in butter, and there you have a dish fit for the gods.'

Is Like a Man.

That man "Exchange" says some mighty good things, occasionally, and here is one of them. "A newspaper is like a man-because generally it reflects some man-and it should be judged as Champ Clark loves to tell of how in the whole. No man lives a perfect life; no editor prints a perfect paper. If an editor is honest, he is bound to offend some one every day of his life; if he doesn't offend some one the editor is namby-pamby and flabby. The same thing is true of the average man. A newspaper is bound to make misakes; in getting news it must necessarily follows: the main, week after week and year after year, a paper stands for decency, for honest thinking and clean living, if it speaks fair for those who are trying to do. speaks fair for those who are trying to do good, and condemns sneaks and cheats and low persons, that is a good paper." ing year.

What is Your Weight.

It seems needless to say that all drugging for the relief of superabundant weight is dangerous. We know of no harmless drug that will accomplish this purpose. The effervescing salts and sodium phosphate for its action upon the liver, are very generally employed. They are useful in some cases, but they have a decidedly depressing effect upon others, and futhermore the body is likely to become "waterlogged" from the large quantity of water which must be taken with the salts.

The following familiar table of heights and weights may be lowered with advantage fully five to ten pounds in every in-

tance in	n the weight	of women:

Many Sleepless Nights, Owing to a Persistent Cough. Relief Found at Last.

"For several winters past my wife has been troubled with a most persistent and disagreeable cough, which invariably extended over a period of several weeks and caused her many sleepless nights, writes Will J. Hayner, editor of the Burley, Colo., Bulletin. "Various remedies were tried each year, with no beneficial results. In November last the cough again put in an appearance and my wife, acting on the suggestion and my wife, acting on the suggestion of a friend, purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The result was, indeed, marvelous. After three doses the cough entirely disappeared and has not manifested itself since." This remedy is for sale by R. S. McKinney, Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

Don't Fight The Weather.

What a great misfortune this is, the habit of considering the weather-of thinking that we must consider the weather! It is largely due, is it not, to clothes? No mention is made of rain in the garden of Eden, but we must not therefore contend that rain was disagreeable and omitted. We must recollect that Adam and Eve did not need to consider rain. Furthermore, in blessed ignorance they did not know that it was anything to be considered.

To mind the rain no more than the May sunshine, but to plunge into it and let the drops pelt as they will; to accept snow without a thought of discomfort, but, rather, to enjoy the thronging pres ence of it; to pursue one's daily stunt regardless of whether the sky be dim or blue-this is a state which we long, long have lost.

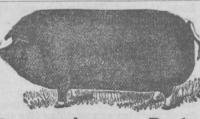

We regain it, some of us, in the wilderness camp, where we hunt or fish if the day be dark or if the day be bright, and where we find that the dash of the soft rain on one's face is not death, after all; that wetness and dryness are merely relative terms.

All the centuries of fussing and fuming with the weather have not affected the weather one particle. It still rains and dictated by circumstances. Therefore, what's the use? Are your puny diatribes or mine of any greater potency than those of others gone before? Evidently not. Accordingly try the plan of being friendly with the weather, of agreeing with it instead of fighting it, and, 'pon my word, presently it will be agreeing with you. - Lippincott's Magazine.
