

THE CARROLL RECORD.

VOL. 16.

Chesapeake & Potomac
Telephone, 3-R.

TANEYTOWN, MARYLAND, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1909.

NO. 18

NEWS NOTES HERE AND THERE

Condensed Items of Interest from County, State and Our Exchanges.

Rev. W. D. LeFevre, of Dover, Delaware, and his brother, Enoch S. LeFevre, of Littlestown, have secured a patent for an airship. They expect to build a machine soon and give it a trial. The inventors declare their machine will carry heavy loads.

The Baltimore News has gone over the entire list of legislative candidates from Baltimore city, giving its opinions as to the fitness of each, and recommends its readers to vote for seven Democrats and three Republicans, giving their names, and as to the remaining candidates, it makes no recommendations.

A boom for Theodore Roosevelt as President of the United States in 1912 is in the making. Under the title of the National Conversation Association a mighty machine, manned exclusively by the friends of Roosevelt, is being built up and it is planned to use this organization to accomplish the nomination and election of Mr. Roosevelt under certain conditions.

Superintendent Anderson says it is "up to" the church and temperance people to win, as there are enough pledged Democrats and Republicans to pass the local Option bill, providing the people elect them, and he wants them to "make good" on election day. The city candidates are unfavorable, but there are enough county candidates "pledged" to carry the bill—if elected.

William F. Downs, the former Baltimore City stock clerk, whose third trial on the charge of stealing $67,000 of the city's money has been postponed because he is suffering from tuberculosis, left Monday afternoon for the Blue Mountains. He has engaged accommodations for himself and his wife at the Maryland Hotel, which is situated at Highfield, near Pen-Mar.

Joseph C. S. Blackburn, Governor of the Canal Zone, who is here on leave of absence, is enthusiastic over the progress of work on the canal. He believes that construction by a private company would have been practically impossible. He praises the Government for the care it has exercised in looking out for the health of men on the job, and is confident that no private concern would have spent $2,000,000, as the Government did, in making two cities, Panama and Colon, fit for American workmen to live in.

Sunday, Oct. 17th, was the 17th. anniversary of the pastorate of Rev. Dr. Charles Reinwald, at Elias Evangelical Lutheran church, Emmitsburg, Md., and a very large congregation was present on that occasion to greet the much loved pastor. Following is a summary of Dr. Reinwald's work during the 17 years: Accessions, 378; officiated at 232 funerals; infant baptisms, 292; marriages solemnized, 103; sermons and addresses, 2,468; benevolent offerings, $5,544.78; expended on repairs and improvements, $4,116.00.

Governor Harmon was the principal speaker on "Democratic Day" at the Texas State Fair at Dallas, October 16, and his address there, taken from an address with his article in Chairman Mack's "National Monthly," has given rise to the statement in political quarters in close relation with Mr. Mack, that the chairman of the Democratic National Committee has dropped William J. Bryan, of Nebraska, as a Presidential possibility and is now engaged in grooming Governor Harmon for the Democratic Presidential nomination in 1912.

The announcement that the Pennsylvania Railroad has placed an order for one thousand cattle cars, designed to provide for the more humane carrying of live stock, and that all of the company's cattle cars now in use will be remodeled after the same design, is creditable to the managers of the railroad, as well as to the men and women of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals through whose indefatigable efforts the railroad managers were made to realize the need of this improvement. Pieces of news like this strengthen faith in the humanness of humanity.

There are more than 25,000 negro voters in New York City, and both sides are making an effort to get a large part of this vote. It is asserted that though in national elections the negroes are Republican, they are not held by party ties in municipal elections, and that this is true this year more than ever before. There are more indications that the Democrats will obtain a larger percentage of this vote this year than ever before, and the reasons given for this are the Brownsville incident and the refusal of President Taft to recognize the race in making appointments in the South.

Oscar Hoffman, a German employed in the Frick shops, Waynesboro, was held up by two highwaymen Tuesday night as he was driving along the road to his home at Blue Ridge Chapel, and barely escaped with his life. Near Roadside a man emerged from the darkness and, leveling a pistol at his head, demanded Hoffman's money and valuables. At this juncture the second highwayman, who also had a revolver, appeared. Hoffman lashed his horse, which plunged forward. Both the highwaymen fired several times. One bullet went through Hoffman's hat. Two struck the horse, killing the animal. After the firing the robbers fled. Hoffman described his assailants as young men, but he could not identify them.

St. Joseph's Church Reopened.

St. Joseph's Catholic church, Taneytown, Rev. Bernard Lennon, pastor, was reopened for public worship last Sunday. For sometime it has been undergoing repairs, under the tasteful and skilful management of the rector, and it now possesses beauty and attractiveness which few churches outside of the metropolis can boast. Bishop Corrigan presided in the sanctuary, attended by Rev. J. P. Holden and Rev. J. O. Hay.

REV. BERNARD LENNON.

den. The celebrant of the solemn high mass was Rev. B. J. Bradley; deacon, Rev. J. J. Tierney; subdeacon, Rev. P. J. Gallagher; master of ceremonies, Rev. J. C. McGovern, and Rev. D. J. Flynn preached the sermon.

The attendance of the congregation and visitors from other denominations formed the largest concourse that ever gathered within the walls of the church. This congregation has already passed the centenary of its founding, having been organized by the Rev. Prince Demetrius Gallitzin in the year 1797.

The procession to the church consisted of the members of the Holy Name Society, school children, parishioners, visiting clergy to the number of 35 and Bishop Corrigan. All the clerical members of the faculty of Mt. St. Mary's College were present, in recognition of the fact that the college and parish have been intimately associated for over 100 years.

In the afternoon Bishop Corrigan administered the sacrament of confirmation to a class of 65 children and 10 adults. Rev. Father Lennon was the recipient of many congratulations on the success with which he has thus crowned the labors of 10 years in this community.

Entertainment Course for Taneytown.

We are always glad to announce good news, and to print things which will please all; therefore, it gives us considerable pleasure to announce to our local readers that a course of five first-class, high-grade, entertainments have been positively engaged to appear in the Opera House, Taneytown, during this winter; entertainments sure to please all, and at very low cost.

Season tickets for admission to the five programs will cost but $1.00 each, and the town will be canvassed, perhaps next week, for subscribers. It is necessary to sell these tickets, now, in order to place the financial end of the venture on a clear basis; 175 tickets must be sold to guarantee the main expense of bringing the various attractions here. These tickets will provide for general admission; if reserved chairs are desired, an additional charge of 10¢ for each entertainment will be made.

The receipts will be in charge of Geo. H. Birnie, and reserved seat tickets will be on sale at McKimsey's drug store. The surplus revenue from the sale of tickets, over and above the expense, is to go to our Fire Company for the purchase of their new hose reel, and for additional equipment, so there is a double incentive on the part of our citizens to cordially support this movement.

Single tickets to each entertainment can be bought, but as they will cost more than by buying a season ticket, and as dependence on buying them would interfere with the sure financing of the series, it is hoped that a very liberal purchase of the $1.00 tickets will be made now. We will have more to say about the various attractions, later on. At present, it is sufficient to merely outline them.

Nov. 23, The Cluxton Company. A Musical Comedy, "Captain Bluff," in 3 acts, with special scenery and magnificent costumes. Seven characters, portraying irresistible humor and bright music, by refined ladies and gentlemen.

Dec. 10 or 11, Commonwealth Ladies Orchestra, of Boston. One of the most successful attractions on the platform; 11 performers; high-class instrumental and vocal music. This one is sure to fill the Opera House.

Jan. 15, M. Wilbur Chase, of Chicago, the "Silver Tongued Orator of the North." A first-class lecture, elevating and interesting, and "a good laugh because you can't help it." A well known Chautauqua figure.

Feb. 5, Gilbert Atlee Eldredge, in costume character sketches and impersonations. Thoroughly capable of rendering a wide range of topics, and of pleasing all classes. His work will be a revelation to our people.

Mar. 5, Newton and Munsell, Magicians and humorists. A delightful program for the close of the list, bound to be a pleasurable and profitable evening.

Here is a list of attractions worth while; not one of them ought to be missed, especially as they come a month apart. Subscribers out of town secure a season ticket by enclosing $1.00 to Geo. H. Birnie, Robt. S. McKinney, or the RECORD office.

Election Day—next Tuesday.

INSTRUCTIONS TO VOTERS.

Observe the Following Precautions in Marking Your Ballot, Next Tuesday.

Every voter should see a sample ballot before he goes to vote, so that he may mark it without making a mistake. No matter how intelligent he may be, it will be the part of wisdom for him to examine a sample ballot, which may be had from any of the Central Committees in any of the election districts, and go over it so as not to be confused when he opens the official ballot in the polling place.

The names are arranged in alphabetical order, with the name of the party to which a candidate belongs printed just after their name. A little time is required to familiarize yourself with the ballot and every voter should manifest enough interest in the affairs of the State to look over the ballot and be able to mark it on election day without an error.

Look at your ballot carefully before unfolding it, so that you will be able to return it, as required by law, in the shape in which you received it.

Do not hurry in marking your ballot. Take your time; others must wait their turn.

Be extremely careful in making your X mark opposite the candidate you wish to vote for, and see that the mark does not extend beyond the square. Mark it just right, like this:

Remember it must be a cross mark, thus, (X) and not a circle, or a dot, or a dash, or a single mark, but a cross mark like above indicated.

Do not check up the names after marking them, by putting even the slightest pencil mark on the ballot; it will invalidate it.

Should you, by accident, punch a hole in your ballot, or soil it in any way, do not use it, but ask for another. Your ballot must be clean, not mutilated in any particular, if you expect to have it counted.

In marking the ballot you may take with you into the polling place any written or printed memorandum, or paper, to assist you in preparing your ballot, except a fac-simile of the ballot to be voted. You must prepare and deposit your ballot without undue delay.

If the (X) you make does not suit you, or if you have made a mistake in marking your ballot, DON'T TRY TO CHANGE IT BY RUBBING IT OUT. You must ask for a new ballot. Every voter is entitled to seven minutes to mark his ticket. Any mark whatever on the ballot except a plain (X) mark within the square will cause your ballot not to be counted.

Be sure not to tear your ballot. Remember if you spoil two ballots you are still entitled to another, but only seven minutes is allowed you in which to mark your ballot if some one is waiting to vote. If no one is waiting to vote you have a longer time.

Mark your ballot with the indelible pencil which you will find in the election booth. Do not use your own pencil. Be sure and fold your ballot exactly as it was when the Judges gave it to you.

Don't fail to examine the ballot given you and see if it contains the initials of the Judge who gave it to you.

Don't fail to examine the ballot given you and see if it has any marks or spots on it, and if it has, return the ballot and get a new one.

Twelve (12) X marks are required to vote the full Republican ticket, and (13) thirteen marks for the Democratic ticket, the latter having two candidates for Associate Judge, the former but one.

(In last issue we inadvertently said "34 or 35 marks would be necessary to vote a full ticket." We should have said, 36 names on the ballot. Our whole system of voting is so complicated, that one is apt to get twisted.—Ed.)

One additional mark is required to vote "For" the Amendment, or "Against" the Amendment.

A voter who is physically disabled from marking his ballot must make affidavit to that effect if he desires assistance. The two polling-clerks after such affidavit has been made, can accompany him into one of the apartments and there mark his ballot as he instructs them, marking only the names of the candidates whom he shall name. The clerks are not allowed to read the ballot.

Any voter who shall allow his ballot to be seen by any person with the apparent intention of letting it be known how he is about to vote, or place any distinguishing marks upon his ballot, or who shall make a false statement as to his ability to mark his ballot, or who shall interfere with any voter when inside the enclosed space in the polling room, or when marking his ballot, or who shall endeavor to induce any voter before voting to show how he marks, or has marked his ballot, shall be punished by a fine of not less than five ($5.00) dollars nor more than one hundred ($100.00) dollars, or by imprisonment in jail for a period of not exceeding sixty (60) days, but not by both fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the Court.

To vote Against the Amendment, make an X mark in the second square at top of last column, along the right hand side of ballot.

From now until after the Holidays, the RECORD will carry more than its usual amount of advertising, curtailing the large amount of general reading matter that we have been giving, but not the live news. We give, throughout the year, more solid reading matter than any other paper in the county, therefore, we think we are entitled to "make hay" during the season just opening; besides, we hope that even the advertising will convey news to our readers.

Brown-Fringer.

A wedding of interest to a wide circle of relatives and friends in this county, took place on Thursday afternoon, in Trinity Lutheran church, Taneytown, when Miss Nellie Fringer was married to Rev. Frank L. Brown, of West Lafayette, Ohio. The bride wore a gown of white silk messaline, in pearl trimming with a white velvet hat and carried bridal roses. The maid of honor, Miss Daisy Cline, of Lonaconing, Md., a college roommate of the bride, was gown in white sico silk and carried pink carnations.

The groom and his best man, Prof. Roger J. Whiteford, of Rockville, Md., a college roommate of the groom, met the bride at the altar. The ushers were Mr. Rein Motter, Mr. Walter Wilt, of Taneytown; Mr. Lewis Pardum, Mr. Airt, and Mr. Sereck S. Wilson, of Westminster.

The church was artistically trimmed in gold and green, the colors of their Alma Mater—Western Maryland College. Dr. Hugh L. Eldridge, President of Westminster Theological Seminary, assisted by Rev. Wm. E. Wheeler, of Taneytown, performed the ceremony. The wedding march was played by Mrs. C. E. Roop. Many handsome and costly presents were received from their many friends. After a reception at the home of the bride, the couple left for their Northern wedding trip, and will reside at West Lafayette, Ohio.

Littlestown Man Commits Suicide.

Mr. Clarence W. Blocher, of Littlestown, son of the late Thaddeus Blocher, killed himself, on Tuesday morning, by hanging. He was found by his wife hanging from a rafter in the hog pen at his home, before he was quite dead, but he died a few minutes later.

Mr. Blocher had been ill and was subject to fits of despondency, and had but recently spent some time at an institution under treatment. He was about 50 years of age, of quiet demeanor, and a member of the Lutheran church.

He and his brother Charles have been in partnership in the carriage business since the estate of his father was closed, and was well known. He leaves a wife and four children: Ira, of Harrisburg, Thaddeus, of York; and Roy and Ellen at home.

President Favors Postal Banks.

While making a speech, last week, at Houston, Texas, on Postal Savings Banks, a man in the crowd shouted, "Where are you putting your money, Bill?" to which the President answered, "When you have been in politics as long as I have been you will understand there is mighty little money to be saved." "I am in favor of the postal savings bank," said the President. "I am in favor of it because I think people in many remote parts of the country, where they can't put their money where they want to, are a good many small banks in the country that think it is going to interfere with them. I do not think so at all."

"The postal savings bank will provide for an interest of 2 per cent. a year. Now, that is small, and if there is a bank in the neighborhood that has any business at all, it can afford to pay 3 or 4 per cent. But the people ought to be given an opportunity, especially those who have not the opportunity to judge of the reliability of private banks, to put their money where they know it will be safe. This is certain to encourage thrift. I haven't the slightest doubt that in many remote parts of the country a good deal of money is spent or buried simply because the people who have it are afraid to put it in private banks or haven't the opportunity to do so."

UNION BRIDGE CEMENT PLANT.

A Big Enterprise in Course of Construction at Our Neighbor Town.

The Tidewater Portland Cement Company is constructing a plant at Union Bridge, which promises to be a big industry. The deposits of lime stone and shale at this place are almost inexhaustible; at least, they will furnish an abundant supply of raw material for many years to come, and of just the right quality, to make a first-class article of cement, both in color and strength.

The Fuller Engineering Company, of Allentown, Pa., the best-known Portland cement mill builders in the country and who have on their staff men who have built mills producing a quarter of the entire Portland cement output of the country, has designed and is building the plant of the Tidewater Portland Cement Company, which they claim will be second to none in the world in point of economy of production and quality of product.

The plant at Union Bridge will likely prove the largest cement producer in the state. This plant will have initial capacity of one million barrels of Portland cement, and an ultimate capacity of double this. In addition to this the hydrated lime plant will manufacture 200,000 barrels of hydrated lime annually. Work upon the plant is progressing rapidly and the product of the lime plant will be upon the Baltimore market this winter.

Engineers are at work on the property of the tidewater company. A railroad has been built from the mill site to the main line of the Western Maryland Railroad. The foundation work upon a large hydrated lime plant has been begun. This should be in operation before the first of February, as the machinery contracts for it have all been let and much of the machinery has been built.

Mark your ballot with as much care as though it would elect every man on it, and as though your vote would carry, or defeat, the amendment.

What is a Case of False Pretense in Business?

The bane of business is selling on credit, and the difficulty often attending the collection of such bills. The credit business, of course, represents "taking a chance" on the honesty, or the ability to pay, of a purchaser, sometimes based on a mere request for credit, and sometimes on certain special promises, or answers to specific questions. As a rule, a credit account which turns out to be uncollectible, or one which can be collected only by force of law, represents merely a promise to pay, or a breach of trust, rather than the criminal offense which is termed "false pretense."

What constitutes a legal false pretense, therefore, is a matter which is of interest to business men, generally, but one on which, we think, the average dealer has little real information. A real case of false pretense subjects the debtor to criminal prosecution, whether the debt can be recovered or not, and in many instances, where the intent to defraud is clear, such action should be taken.

We think that the following instances constitute clear cases of false pretense; at least, they have been stated by an attorney as being sufficient grounds for criminal action:

A statement made that the debtor had money owing him, or in bank, when he had not.

A statement that he owned certain property, or an interest in a property, when he did not.

A statement that he was solvent and able to pay all claims, when he was actually in debt for more than he was worth.

A statement that he was doing a profitable business, when he was not, or that he was earning a certain salary, when he was not.

False statements as to name, residence, relatives and prospects, when said statements aided in deciding to extend the credit.

All such statements, to constitute false pretense, must be made before credit is given, and the credit must have been given, and the property parted with, on the strength of the statements. Mere lying statements, such as a "forgotten pocket-book," or that "another person" (whose credit was good) sent for the articles to be charged, or goods taken home "to be tried on," may, or may not, be construed as false pretense. In fact, there seems to be a stronger tendency toward sustaining charges of this kind, to the extent that those who contemplate "beating" the storekeeper, had better say as little as possible, aside from asking for trust.

Come to the RECORD Office, on Election Day, if you desire to, and examine Sample Ballots, before voting.

Md. Lutheran Synod Proceedings.

The second day's session (Friday) was taken up with various reports.

Rev. Charles S. Albert, D. D., chairman of the delegation to the General Synod, which met at Richmond, Ind., in June, reported that there had been decided advance in all the agencies of the church; that the reports of the boards were the best and the contributions for the biennium the largest ever made; that there has been an increase in the number of ministers, candidates for the ministry and benevolence.

The total benevolence was $775,000, an increase of $49,000. Contributions for all purposes showed an increase of $532,000, the total being $5,265,000. Sunday Schools showed the same increase, there being 16,500 more teachers and scholars than were in the schools in 1907, and the offerings were—for benevolence $156,000 and $390,000 for general purposes. Partial records show 8,500 men organized for church work. These facts show that the church is not losing its vitality and force.

Rev. Dr. P. A. Heilmann, pastor of St. Paul's Church, of Baltimore, read the report of the state of the church in the Maryland Synod, showing the same proportionate increase as in the whole General Synod, and Dr. Albert said that for 25 years, and especially during the past two years, the General Synod had advanced with the strides of a giant.

Rev. A. B. Wood, assistant superintendent of the Maryland Anti-Saloon League, presented the case of that organization, and on motion appointed Revs. W. E. Seabrook and S. J. Miller to co-operate with representatives of other denominations in the work of the league.

Rev. S. G. Hefflebower, D. D., president of Gettysburg College, reported for that institution that its enrollment last year had been the largest in its history, and that this year it has increased by more than 300 students.

Rev. F. Hesse invited the Synod to meet in Trinity Church, Smithburg, in 1910 and the invitation was accepted, the date in October to be fixed by Pastor Hesse and the president of the Synod.

Rev. Dr. P. M. Bickle, chairman of the necrological committee, reported the death during the year of Rev. L. A. Mann, D. D., of Cumberland, and Rev. J. Geo. Butler, D. D., of Washington, D. C., and read a tribute to their eminent worth and services. Upon motion of Rev. P. A. Heilmann, D. D., the Synod rose, and after silent prayer Rev. Victor Miller led in prayer, making special mention of the families of the deceased fathers of the church.

The per capita method was adopted and the gross amount for all purposes fixed at $1.58.

There were many other reports, both on Friday and Saturday, the most of which showed very satisfactory progress. The various literary and theological institutions were discussed and the board of directors of the Theological seminary made their report, which showed a big increase over last year. The election of directors for the seminary followed, the present board being re-elected. The reports on education and church extension were read and commented upon favorably.

VOTE AGAINST IT!

We thoroughly believe that the Suffrage Amendment should be defeated. It has been daily discussed in the newspapers, for the past month, from every side, and we have found no honest, or just, cause to change our former opinions against the amendment. It is almost wholly a plain partisan proposition, based on unfair grounds. It represents a proposition to substitute might for right, under the subterfuge that one negro can cause misrule for five white voters.

Vote against it!

Furthermore, the amendment, if passed would nullify for a long time at least, the great influence of the independent vote of the state. As the parties are now divided, this vote holds the balance of power between the two, and prevents either from going far wrong; it represents a political safety-valve, and should be strengthened, rather than destroyed entirely.

Vote against it!

The amendment is not so drawn as to prevent illiterates from voting, irrespective of color or nationality, and is therefore contrary to the spirit of the Constitution of the United States.

Vote against it!

We are in favor of a fair and square educational test, applied to all at time of registering, but this is not such an amendment, and does not pretend to be.

Vote against it!

VOTE FOR A VOTE!

Vote for men favorable to submitting the Local Option question to the voters of the state. We thoroughly believe in the righteousness of this proposition—that the people ought to have the legal right to settle the Local Option question as they desire it settled. If they do not want liquor sold, let them say so. If they want them sold, let them say so, by a vote.

Vote for a Vote!

This is straight Americanism—it is pure Democracy—that "the people" should rule on all questions possible to bring directly before them, in which they are vitally interested.

Vote for a Vote!

Try to find out which of the candidates are favorable to the proposition, and vote for them, whether on your ticket or not. You can always afford to "cut" your ticket, when an issue of this kind is involved, without making you less a party man.

Vote for a Vote!

None of your friends who disagree with you have any right to think the less of you because you disagree. This is a free country when voting time comes. If you have a conscientious opinion that the people ought to have a chance to settle this question, then—

Vote for a Vote!

Never be afraid to do what you consider right. Some of the candidates are afraid to come out square on the question, and some oppose it. Find out those likely to favor its submission to the people, then—

Vote for a Vote!

How About State Roads?

Rather strange, isn't it, that all news with reference to road-building has dropped out of sight? Is it purposely hushed to sleep until after the election? Apparently, it ought to be a very important question, as to whether the taxpayers of the state are in favor of another big bond issue, but nobody seems to be trying to find out anything about it. If there are any meetings of the Road Commission, they are not reported to the newspapers, and nobody knows whether road work is going on, or not.

It would be interesting to know the amount of administrative expense, so far. It would also be interesting to know approximately how many miles of road the first $5,000,000 will build, and how many more millions will be required to complete the mileage of the apparently already selected roads.

Road improvement is a question of "paramount" importance, even if it is not a "paramount issue" politically. It is a matter likely to call for a heavier expenditure of money than any other to come before the legislature—money that must be supplied by the tax-payers—and it would seem that if the results are perfectly satisfactory, so far, and will bear the light of full ventilation, it would be a splendid opportunity for making this information known, as politicians usually make the most of fine past records.

We do not mean that road-making should be a political issue, at all. We prefer to consider it in the light of a very important—the most important—public question before the people of this state. In fact, Governor Crothers has repeatedly stated that it shall not be a part of politics, and for that reason we do not see why all news relative to it need be kept quiet now, while a campaign is in progress. A thing that is not political, certainly ought not be afraid to show itself, campaign or no campaign. Somehow, the silence seems very queer—almost suspicious.

"The Man From Missouri."

Senator Stone will soon be known as "The Man from Missouri" with an ungovernable temper. Not long ago he slapped the face of a colored waiter, while on the way from Philadelphia to Baltimore, because he imagined that he was not receiving prompt service, and last week, in Union Station, St. Louis, he performed the same feat on a negro cab-man who charged him $1.00 for a short ride, which proved to be the regulation charge, after investigation.

Evidently, Senator Stone has a decidedly peppery temper, and one likely to get him into trouble if he continues the "slapping" act long enough—until he "slaps" the wrong fellow. Whether the Senator's habit is exercised wholly on Negroes, for whom he likely has a strong antipathy, or whether on servants in general, we do not know, but he ought not forget that after all he is but a mere man—and perhaps not entirely that—and that some other men prefer to be treated decently, even though not occupying high position.

A little passing honor, an irascible temper, and "booze," often constitutes a combination dangerous to be abroad, and when it is accompanied with an abundance of "the root of all evil," and an egotism which holds no respect for the rights of others, it had a great deal better be under much more real restraint than a forbearing public demands.

Cannon "Went off" Again.

According to the newspapers, Mr. Speaker Cannon has been shooting himself off again, his amusement being the rather dangerous one of reading certain Senators and Congressman out of the Republican party because they fail to bow to his autocratic sway as Speaker, and incidentally because they do not like the tariff bill. Perhaps the Speaker is half right, but on the other hand there are lots of people contrary enough to think that he is not a very safe teacher to define Republicanism.

As Speaker, it is a pretty safe guess that he will not succeed himself, even should the Republicans continue in control of the House. He may be an expert parliamentarian, and possess all of the elements which go to make up a successful presiding officer; but, there is something else needed, and this Mr. Cannon is not generally credited with possessing—being uniformly courteous, thoroughly circumspect in his use of the English language and in the control of his temper.

The newspapers, perhaps, delight in quoting Mr. Cannon as they did "Sam" Jones—giving his most sensational statements without qualifying connections—but he is likely correctly enough quoted to demonstrate that he is a diamond too rough to please the majority of intelligent American people. In any case, his posing as the great Apostle of Republicanism will not go down well with those who recognize the full possibility that harm can "come out of Israel."

Aside from Senator La Follette (whose Republicanism has been in doubt for years) the gentlemen from the West whom the Speaker recently bombarded so viciously, are apt to be entirely worthy of a longer trial as party men. Three or four men of Mr. Cannon's pronounced type do not make a great party, nor do they hold one together, notwithstanding their extreme egotism in that direction, and it would be a wise thing to give them a decisive disciplining, to show them their proper place.

There is already said to be a positive understanding between the Democratic leaders and Republican "insurgents," with reference to the next Congressional Campaign, the main points of which are that the "insurgents" will not be opposed by Democratic candidates for reelection, and that in return they are to vote for Champ Clark (Dem) for Speaker. In connection with this, there is also a story that Mr. Cannon will be asked to announce his own "retirement," in order to relieve the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee of a serious handicap. As the old fire-eater is not likely to agree to any such plan, the situation will be interesting, and the subject of it will either have to be accepted, or rejected, as a party dictator.

Suppression of News.

One of the problems an editor has to meet is the often repeated requests of prominent citizens, sometimes valuable patrons of the paper, that this or that item of news be withheld from publication. This is a problem of special difficulty in the smaller cities and towns. In the larger cities such requests are not so frequently made, and it is easier to follow a general rule on the subject. Speaking of cases of this kind, in which the matters whose suppression is sought constitute legitimate items of news, the Oberlin (O.) News says:

People come to the newspaper with the time worn warning that "it will do no good to publish these things." Publicity is regarded as being almost if not quite as potent a preventive of law-breaking as the fear of punishment, and the effect of publicity should be considered before rather than after the commission of offenses. This fear makes the work of the officers of the law easier, and the public should know what is going on in the local courts. Newspapers usually are glad to withhold the publication of news which might prove injurious to the good names of any individual or work harm to his business, but there is a class of people who make a habit of trying to suppress everything with which some of their friends are connected. Many years of experience teaches us that no newspaper ever made any friends or realized any benefits from suppressing the legitimate things the public ought to know.

Sizing Things Up.

Under this heading the Dallas News says:

It may not harmonize with professional ethics to size up a man's pile and take it, but most of the professions base their demands largely upon the size of the fortune of the patient, client, patron, or taxpayer.

Now when you come right down to it, what does really constitute so-called professional ethics if not this very sizing up of a man's pile and getting as big a slice of it as possible? Some of the professions have a queer way of doing things, anyhow. Take the surgeon, for instance. Instead of having one price for a certain operation and naming it to all who want that operation performed, he charges one man one price, and another man another price—always making up on the second man for the undercharge on the first. This is nothing more nor less than making someone else pay for what he calls his charity. The merchant does not proceed in this manner. When a poor person comes to him for a barrel of flour, we will say, and he reduces the price to suit the circumstances of the customer, the transaction is finished. He simply gives away outright a certain amount; he does not charge the better customer, whom he may know to be better off, the regular price with the addition of the amount given to the less fortunate person. That customer would not tolerate it for an instant; nor would the surgeon.

That sounds very pretty—the excuses they make about how much time, study and money it takes to become proficient in their profession. How about the business man and the number of years he has to apply himself, the experience he has to acquire, and the amount of capital he must invest and keep invested? Don't these count for anything?

If an operation costs five hundred dollars, and a sufferer who needs to have it performed is unable to pay this much, let the surgeon charge two hundred, or one hundred, or fifty dollars, or even nothing—no surgeon is compelled to perform an operation if he doesn't want to, and free hospitals are at the disposal of any one—and let him close the transaction right there, but don't let him charge the next victim eight or nine hundred, or a thousand dollars to "even" matters. That isn't the right way to size things up.—Ennisburg Chronicle.

The Profit in Advertising.

Do business people generally appreciate the value of advertising? If a merchant has anything to sell, is it not his first duty to let the public know just what he offers? If goods or articles of value are lost, will not the advertising of the fact, with description of the lost article, aid in its recovery? The value of such advertising has been too often demonstrated to admit of doubt now. Printer's ink wisely used is the safest and surest ally of the merchant, the manufacturer, the man who has any article of value of which he wishes to dispose.

The man in business who cannot afford to advertise will soon be out of business. The daily newspaper is the cheapest and most effective solicitor for the person who uses its columns. No man who has anything of value to sell or who wants to buy anything not easily found can afford to ignore it.

The same rule applies to communities. The great West has been rapidly built up, and has surpassed some of the older States of the East by the lavish advertisement of the great opportunities for wealth which they offer. It is time now for the East and South to try the same methods.—Roanoke, (Va.) Evening World.

What's in McClure's.

Foremost among the articles in the November number of McClure's Magazine are: "The Daughters of the Poor," by George Kibbe Turner, the plain story of the development of the White Slave traffic under Tammany rule, and "Pelagra, the Medical Mystery of To-day," by Marion Hamilton Carter. Another article of note is "Psychology and the Market," by Dr. Hugo Munsterberg, in which the great scientist tells how psychology may be applied to commerce and labor. William Archer contributes an article on "The New Drama and the New Theater;" Gen. Bingham, the ex-police commissioner, writes of New York's organized criminals; G. E. Maberly-Oppler describes "Germany's Preparedness for War;" and Lieutenant Shackleton concludes the story of his dash for the South Pole. The Family Reading Problem.

To find reading that satisfies one's craving for the bright and attractive, and is at the same time perfectly suitable for impressionable young people, is at times difficult. The best magazines are admittedly published for mature readers only. The Youth's Companion alone is for all the family. While the editors keep in mind the eager desire of the young for tales of action, enterprise and adventure, these stories in The Companion are so well written as to fascinate men and women in all stages of life's journey. And this is true not only of the fiction in The Companion, but of the entire contents. The articles, by famous writers, convey knowledge that is useful to the wisest and most experienced as well as to the immature. In short, The Companion solves the reading problem for the entire family. It is entertaining and it is "worth while."

Eighty-Three Degrees Below—Willing Savage Hands. Marching Over the Polar Seas

[FIFTH ARTICLE]

EARLY in January of 1908 the campaign opened. A few sleds were sent to the American shores to explore a route and to advance supplies.

Clouds and storms made the moonlight days dark, and therefore these advance expeditions were only partly successful.

On Feb. 19, 1908, the main expedition started for the pole. Eleven men, driving 103 dogs and moving 11 heavily loaded sleds, left the Greenland shore and pushed westward over the troublesome ice of Smith sound to Cape Sabine.

The gloom of the long winter night was but little relieved by a few hours of daylight, and the temperature was very low.

Eighty-three Degrees Below.

Passing through a valley between Ellesmere Land and Grinnell Land from the head of Flagler bay, in crossing to the Pacific slopes, the temperature fell to 83 degrees F. below zero.

In Baj fiord many musk oxen were secured, and, though the winter frost absolute control and ease of adaptability to a changing environment must be assured.

It is impossible to adequately control the complex human temperament of unknown men in the polar wilderness, but the two Eskimo boys could be trusted to follow to the limit of my own endeavors, and our sleds were burdened only with absolute necessities.

Cutting Down Weight.

Because of the importance of a light and efficient equipment much care was taken to eliminate every ounce of weight. The sleds were made of hickory, the lightest wood consistent with great endurance, but every needless fiber was gouged out. The iron shoes were ground thin, and in every way the weight of nearly everything was reduced even after leaving headquarters.

The little train, therefore, which followed me into the farther mystery was composed of two sleds, each carrying 600 pounds, drawn by 13 dogs, under the lash of an expert were spanned with a jump. Soon they disappeared in the rush of driving snow. The crack of the whips and the rebound of cheering voices were the last which we heard of the faithful savage supporters. They had followed not for pay, but for a real desire to be helpful, from the dark days of the ending of night to the bright nights of the coming double days, and their parting enforced a pang of loneliness.

Another Sleep Before the Start.

With a snow charged blast in our faces it was quite impossible for us to start, so we withdrew to the snow igloo, entered our bags and slept a few hours longer. At noon the horizon cleared. The wind veered to the southwest and came with an endurable force. The dogs had been doubly fed the night before. They were not to be fed again for two days. The 1,200 pounds of freight were packed on our sleds, and quickly we slipped around deep grooves in the great polycrystic floes.

The snow had been swept from the ice by the force of the preceding storms, and the speed attained by the dogs through even rough ice was such that it was difficult to keep far enough ahead to get a good course.

The crevasses and pressure lines gave little trouble at first, but the hard irregularity of the bare ice offered a dangerous surface for the life of our sleds, passing through blue gorges among miniature mountains of sea ice. On a course slightly west of north we soon sank the bold headland which raises the northern point of Heilberg island.

Camp Is Pitched.

After a run of twenty-six miles we pitched camp on a floe of unusual height. There were many big hummocks about, to the lee of which were great banks of hardened snow. A way from land it is always more difficult to find snow suitable for cutting building blocks, but here was an abundance conveniently placed. In the course of an hour a comfortable palace of crystal was erected, and into it we crept out of the piercing wind. The first day's march over the circumpolar sea was closed with a good record.

The dogs curled up and went to sleep without a call, as if they knew there would be no food until the morning. My wild companions covered their faces with their convenient long hair and sank quietly into a comfortable slumber, but for me sleep was quite impossible. Letters must be written. The whole problem of our campaign must be again carefully studied and final plans must be made not only to reach our ultimate destination, but for the returning parties and for the security of the things at Annotok.

Impossible to Foretell Return.

It was difficult at this time to even guess at the probable line of our return to land. Much depended upon conditions encountered in the northward route. Though we had left caches of supplies, with the object of returning along Nansen sound into Cannon fiord and over Arthur Land, I entertained grave doubts of our ability to return this way. If the ice drifted strongly to the east we might not be given the choice of working out our own return. In that event we would be carried perhaps helplessly to Greenland and must seek a return either along the east coast or the west coast.

This drift did not offer a dangerous hardship, for the musk oxen would keep us alive to the west, and to the east it seemed possible to reach Shannan island, where the Baldwin-Ziegler expedition had abandoned a large cache of supplies. It appeared not improbable also that a large land extension might offer a safe return much farther west.

Francke's Instructions.

Because of this uncertainty Francke was instructed to wait until June 5, 1908, and if we did not return he was told to place Koolootingwah in charge and go home either by the whalers or by the Danish ships to the south.

No relief which he could offer would help us, and to wait for an indefinite time alone would have inflicted a needless hardship. This and many other instructions were prepared for Koolootingwah and Ingito to take back.

In the morning the frost in crystals had been swept from the air, but there remained a humid chill which pierced to the bones. The temperature was minus 56 F. A light air came from the west, and the sun burned in a freezing blue.

After a few hours' march the ice changed in character. The extensive thick fields gave place to moderate sized floes. The floes were separated by zones of troublesome crushed ice thrown into high pressure lines, which offered serious barriers, but with the ice ax and Eskimo ingenuity we managed to make fair progress.

The second run on the polar sea was with twenty-one miles to our credit. I had expected to send the supporting party back from here, but progress had not been as good as expected. We could hardly spare the food to feed their dogs, so they volunteered to push along another day without dog food.

Return of the Helpers.

On the next day, with increasing difficulties in some troublesome ice, we camped after making only sixteen miles. Here a small snow house was built, and from here, after disposing of a pot of steaming musk ox loins and broth, followed by a double brew of tea, our last helpers returned.

With empty sleds and hungry dogs they hoped to reach land in one long day's travel. But this would make the fourth day without food for their dogs, and in case of storm or moving ice other days of famine might easily fall to their lot. They had, however, an abundance of dogs and might sacrifice a few for the benefit of the others, as we must often do.

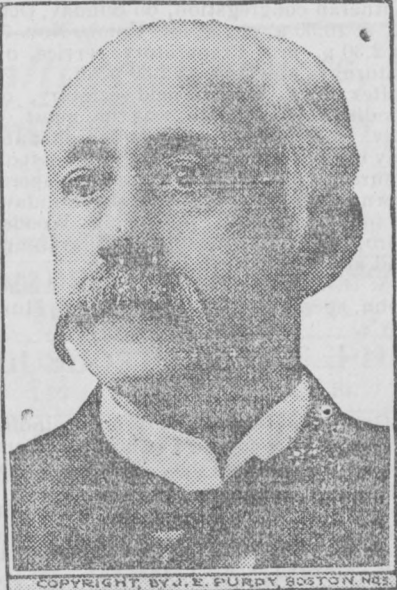

THE GRANGE

Conducted by J. W. DARROW, Chatham, N. Y., Press Correspondent New York State Grange

THE NATIONAL GRANGE.

Convenes In Annual Session at Des Moines, Ia., In November.

Official announcement has been made of the forty-third session of the national grange at Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 10-19. The Savary hotel will be the headquarters, and the business meetings will be held in a large hall in the hotel and the public meetings in the Auditorium. On Thursday evening of that week the subordinate degrees and the sixth and seventh will be conferred. All day Thursday will be devoted to the public meetings, at which time it is expected that Iowa and adjoining states will be represented by their chief executives or United States senators, also heads of agricultural colleges. The feature of the public meetings will be the address of the Right Hon. Sir Horace Plunkett of Ireland, who is at the head of the great co-operative movement in that country. Friday and Saturday of that week will be devoted to degree work, and on Saturday evening the annual session of the Priests of Demeter, the highest official body of the grange, will be held. The annual memorial services will occur on the following Sunday. The balance of the session will be devoted strictly to business. Hon. N. J. Bachelder, master of the national grange, will preside. The biennial election of officers will take place this year.

N. J. BACHELDER.

GOOD ROADS CONVENTION.

The Grange Active In an Intelligent and Aggressive Way.

The second annual good roads convention was held Sept. 21 to 23 at Cleveland, O., under the auspices of the American Automobile association, the national grange, United States office of public roads, the American Roadmakers' association and several automobile organizations. The highway problem was considered from all angles, and the varied interests of the participants brought out a presentation of all the modern phases of the subject.

The grange has been very active in an intelligent and aggressive way in the stimulation of thought and action on improved highways and represents well the farmer's view, says the Breeder's Gazette. The prejudice against motors on the highways is wearing away and will the more rapidly disappear as farmers come in larger numbers to the use of these machines. Undoubtedly at present many farmers are influenced against road betterment because it brings increased use by autos. Time was when many farmers fought road improvement because bicyclists advocated it, and their attitude toward the subject is the same now that motorists are interested in a movement for better highways.

It is idle to fight the trend of the times. A road suitable for an auto is better suited to the farmer's wagon or buggy than one which the motorist shuns. Interests are identical. Discussion is useless on that point. The problems are the best system of road building and maintenance and the equitable distribution of the cost. It is rank injustice to ask that all the cost fall on the farmer.

A Worthy Compliment.

The Patrons of Husbandry, or grange, as it is more commonly known, is the oldest of farmers' organizations. It has made mistakes, yet it has a magnificent record. Conservative along many lines of action that the American Society of Equity stands for, it is aggressive in forcing needed legislation for the rural classes, and the measures that it has compelled congress and the different state legislatures to enact stand out in bold relief as a monument to executive ability and perseverance.—Colman's Rural World.

The Farmers' Union.

The Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union of America reports a membership of 1,500,000 in the twenty-four states where it is organized. One of the objects of the union is to rush the construction of elevators in time for the handling of the wheat crop of 1909 when it is thrashed. The organization is the outcome of a project suggested by a Texas school teacher.

Webster grange, Monroe county, N. Y., is arranging for a school of agriculture to be conducted by Professor Wilson of Cornell university.

It is the duty of every good citizen to go to the polls and cast his vote, on Tuesday, and we hope that all will take advantage of the great privilege they now enjoy and do it from a patriotic standpoint. Don't stand back waiting for some one to come around and give you a dollar, or in any way pay you to vote, because they will not do it, and you would demonstrate to the public that you were a very common citizen if you stooped so low as to allow yourself to be bought and sold like cattle. Vote without being asked, and thus show by the act that it gives you pleasure to take advantage of the grand and glorious privilege we enjoy.

Fresh Air For Sleeping.

A person requires twenty cubic inches of fresh air at each respiration, or on an average of 400 per minute, and in ten hours' sleep he consumes 130 cubic feet of air. The air of a bedroom ten feet square, having its doors and windows closed and occupied by one person, would become unfit for respiration in four hours. In the case of two occupants the time would, of course, be reduced to two hours.—New York American.

Points on the Market.

Old Gentleman (in broker's office).—Now, what do you think I might buy? Broker.—You ought to have some Chartered. Old Gentleman.—Why, I was only thinking coming up in the train that I ought to sell some Chartered. Broker (who wants a commission).—Well, that's not a bad idea, either.—London Financial Times.

A Dried Up Spring.

Editor.—I understand, Mr. Pennyman, that you have married. Pennyman (sadly).—Yes. Editor.—That will perhaps infuse new life in your mother-in-law jokes, eh? Pennyman (more sadly).—Alas, that is a thing of the past. The mother-in-law is no longer a joke with me.—Brooklyn Life.

Mr. F. G. Fritz, Oneonta, N. Y., writes: "My little girl was greatly benefited by taking Foley's Orino Laxative, and I think it is the best remedy for constipation and liver trouble." Foley's Orino Laxative is mild, pleasant and effective, and cures habitual constipation. R. S. McKinney, Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

"That clock is not right," he exclaimed.

"No, lad," was the lunatic's reply. "That's why it's here."—London Daily News.

The Village Romancer.

"Has that feller Pinkley returned home yet?"

"Nope. He's been gone two years now, and nobody knows a blessed thing about him."

"Well, darned if I shouldn't think you'd be afraid he'd come home some day an' claim he found the south pole."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Bravery Its Own Reward.

The Lady (to hero who had risked his life to save her little dog from a watery grave and looks for some reward).—Poor fellow, how wet and cold you are! You must be soaked through to the skin. Here! I'll give you some quinine pills. Take a couple now and two more in an hour's time.—Throne and Country.

"Ox Eyes" For Two.

The drawback of fancy names for dishes is their tendency to be deficient in prosaic information. Would you order "angels on horseback," for instance, if you did not know what sort of thing it was? And to appeal to the waiter to interpret is humiliating. A correspondent recalls his own fate in the matter of "ochsenaugen" (ox eyes). Having repeatedly seen them on the menu among the pudding class during a tour in Germany, he and his wife eventually ordered them. "Two portions?" asked the woman waiter. "Oh, yes, two portions." It proved that two portions of ox eyes meant six fried eggs—as the final course of a hearty meal. And, as the wife had the moral courage to refuse to eat more than one, the cowardly husband, unwilling to give away that he had not known what he was ordering, had to worry down the five others.

A Startling Hat.

A lady's hat which would no doubt create as great a sensation today as it did at the time of its first appearance in 1352 was that worn by Blanche de Bourbon, queen of Castile, wife of Peter the Cruel. It cost £35 and was made in Paris. The hat itself was composed of de chypre and relieved with great pearls, garnets and enamel work. Children, carved in the whitest of ivory, were depicted picking acorns of pearls from the oak and scattering them to the swine below. Birds were singing in the trees, and at the foot were bees stealing honey from the flowers springing up from the verdure.

A Surprise For the Hunters.

"If the lair of a leopard is known," says a writer in the Wide World Magazine, "stones will generally dislodge the lurker. I recall one occasion when a leopard was supposed to be located in a cave near camp. The guns were placed around in positions commanding the exit, and a few stones were then thrown in. There was no result at first, but as more and larger stones crashed in there came a faint humming and then a roar like the sea under the cliffs. In a moment the air above the cave's entrance grew dark with—bees! As one man sportsman and gun bearers fled for the camp. A few were slightly stung before they could reach their tents and pull the flaps over the entrances, which the bees for some time besieged. Incredible though it may sound, it is the truth that, although the camp was full of native servants, horses, etc., none of those who had remained behind and were not concerned in the attack on the bees' cave were stung. It was a considerable time before the bees beat a retreat, but during all the time that they stayed in the camp it was the tents of their aggressors exclusively round which they angrily buzzed."

The Interesting Figure of a Widow of an Ex-President.

In the department of "Interesting People," in its November issue, the American Magazine publishes the following interesting pen-picture of Mrs. Grover Cleveland, who sailed recently for Europe:

"Up in the foothills of the White Mountains, where Mrs. Cleveland with her family spends her summers, there is a lovely, little, old Friends' Meeting House. There every Sunday in the summer you will find Mrs. Cleveland and her family. Nothing could be more typical. There in that church fine, self-respecting, sturdy people worship in strong, simple faith; and in the whole audience—it is true it is never a large one, sometimes not more than twenty or thirty in all—you will find no one more democratic or of stronger faith.

"Just as Mr. Cleveland was an unusual example of what an honest, right-minded, hard-working American boy can become, so Mrs. Cleveland is an example of how a beautiful American girl can, with sweetness and gentleness, make herself the most universally loved and admired woman in this country. "Born in 1864, Mrs. Cleveland, then Frances Folsom, lived all her girlhood in Buffalo. Her father was a law partner of Mr. Cleveland's, and on his death, Mr. Cleveland was appointed her guardian. She went to Wells College, where the same grace and charm that made her so popular in larger circles endeared her to her girl friends at Wells. She is now one of the trustees of that institution.

"At twenty-three, after spending a year abroad, she married and went into the White House. She now tells with enjoyment some of the uncomfortable moments she had then; for instance, one day Adelina Patti called on her soon after her marriage—and stayed and stayed. Mrs. Cleveland thought it strange that her caller should stay for hours, but never dreamed that she was waiting to be dismissed. Such is the custom in England, and Patti expected the etiquette of English royalty to apply over here. But this beautiful girl with an alert mind and a kind heart, passed through this difficult experience—for Washington diplomacy is not easy—keeping her old friends and making new ones. Stories of her wonderful tact and graciousness are still told in Washington, and she left there the most beloved mistress of the White House since Dolly Madison.

"After the Washington life, the Cleverlands retired to Princeton, and there Mrs. Cleveland identified herself very vitally with the life of the town. In the big, square, typically American home she devoted herself to her husband and children. During the last year of Mr. Cleveland's life she was not away from him for a day, even coming to New York with him whenever he had to come on business. Since Mr. Cleveland's death in June, 1908, she has continued to make her winter home in Princeton and her summer home in Tamworth, N. H.

"Five children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland. Ruth, the oldest child, died some years ago. Esther, born in the White House, is now sixteen and taller than her mother, who is herself a tall woman. Marion, fourteen, is large, too, and looks exactly like her mother. The two sons, Richard (eleven) and Francis Grover (six), are a pair of healthy, handsome boys. Mrs. Cleveland is bringing up this fine, devoted family as simply as you would expect the children of two such real democrats as their father and mother to be reared.

"Even though forty-five years old, Mrs. Cleveland still retains her girlish looks. She is a great walker. Every summer she takes a number of two or three-day tramps over the mountains, and she enjoys particularly camping out for the night on the top of a mountain. Her nature, buoyant, sunny and kindly, was, of course, God-given; but her wonderful experiences, which would have turned the head of many brilliant women, have only added to her grace and humility.

"Respected and admired by a whole country, and loved by a devoted family and a wide circle of friends, she is what 'the first lady of the land' should be—an ideal for the Typical American Woman."

America's Wealthy Widows.

The stupendous figure $368,000,000 sums the resources of a dozen of America's wealthiest widows. It is impossible, of course, to give the exact figures. The public statements are not to be relied upon, always, and it is believed the estimate here given would fall under instead of over the mark. A dozen other names might be added to the list, almost doubling its totals.

It is hard to imagine what could be done with this stupendous sum of money. The mere figures are too great to be grasped. It is only when comparisons are made that one may understand what $368,000,000 means.

These twelve widows could buy all the real estate of Chicago at its assessed valuation of $344,399,927, and have a trifle of more than $20,000,000 left with which they could place a gold wire fence around the great city in order to keep out the trespassers. They might, if they owned the city, legally evict all its inhabitants and turn the metropolis into a deserted village—unless such an extreme exercise of the privileges of ownership should create a revolution.

At six per cent. interest as a total income on their combined fortunes they could keep the city running, including the fire and police departments, and have housekeeping money left without trenching upon their capital. The expense of operating all the schools in the city would hardly take their pin money. Getting away from Chicago, and seeking a broader outlook, out of their estimated income these 12 women could with ease shoulder the interest on the national debts of any of the following countries:

New Zealand, Bulgaria, Canada, Denmark, Egypt, Greece, Mexico, Netherlands, Norway, Roumania, Uruguay.

They could assume the total debt of this combined array of nations: Switzerland, Bolivia, Nicaragua, Salvador, Chile, Colombia, Cuba, Persia, Peru, Siam, Venezuela.

Their wealth is greater than the whole of the real estate property and improvements in any of these states in the union: Vermont, Delaware, Indian Territory, Idaho, Wyoming, New Mexico, Arizona, Nevada.

They could purchase all the manufacturing machinery, tools implements and equipment of the great manufacturing group of New England states. With the exception of New York, Chicago and Philadelphia this combination of woman-controlled wealth outweighs the value of the manufacturing product in any city in the country. St. Louis, fourth in the list, measures barely more than half this feminine total in its manufacturing output.

The following is the estimated wealth of 12 American widows:

Mrs. E. H. Harriman	$100,000,000
Mrs. Russell Sage	70,000,000
Mrs. Hetty Green	60,000,000
Mrs. Wm. B. Leeds	30,000,000
Mrs. Phoebe Hearst	30,000,000
Mrs. Jas. H. Smith	18,000,000
Mrs. G. M. Pullman	15,000,000
Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Sr.	15,000,000
Mrs. Morris K. Jessup	10,000,000
Mrs. Wm. K. Thaw	7,500,000
Mrs. Potter Palmer	7,500,000
Mrs. H. H. Rogers	5,000,000

$25,000,000 Damage by an Insect.

Washington, Oct. 22.—A single insect is now causing a damage in the United States each year of at least $25,000,000. This is the cotton boll weevil. The Department of Agriculture places that estimate upon the amount of damage done and considers, moreover, that this amount will continue to be lost for some time at least, on account of the difficulties in control which are encountered in the Mississippi Valley.

With a view to helping in the movement to destroy the boll weevil, which is one of the worst, if not the worst, of the insect pests to invade the United States, and which started in the cotton fields west of the Mississippi river and is steadily eating its way eastward until it will probably reach the Atlantic coast, the bureau of entomology of the Department has been studying the boll weevil in his winter quarters.

It is found that winter is the most critical season in the whole life history of the boll weevil, and that to destroy 10 weevils in winter is more important than to destroy many thousands in summer.

Most exhaustive studies of the boll weevil in his winter quarters have been made by experts. A vast mass of information about the habits of the boll weevil and its hibernation or existence through the winter has been collected. It is thought this will be of material value in helping to destroy the boll weevil, which has already become such a factor in the world's cotton situation that the effects of its devastations are felt in every great cotton market here and abroad.

The information gathered shows for one thing the importance of destroying the cotton stalks in the fall, before the time when the boll weevil enters into hibernation or goes into winter quarters.

This destruction of the food supply is one thing that greatly increases the mortality rate of the cotton pest. It is one of a number of practical facts that it is thought will help largely in wiping the boll weevil out of its existence. The experts of the Department say that the common practice of allowing stalks of the cotton plant to stand after the crop becomes matured is primarily responsible for a large proportion of the weevils that enter into hibernation.

The study of the boll weevil made by the Department of Agriculture experts is similar to studies that are being made of many insects which prey on the crops and which annually cause losses to the farmers of untold millions of dollars. It is found that the farmers of the country have made little advance in their knowledge of the insects that prey on their crops, despite the advances made in farming methods along many lines in recent years.—JOHN SNURE.

THE QUESTIONER.

I called a boy to my knee one day. And I said: "You're just past four; Will you laugh in that same light-hearted way

"When you're turned, say, thirty more?" Then I thought of a past I'd fain erase— More clouded skies than blue— And I anxiously peered in his upturned face, "Did you?"

I touched my lips to his tiny own And I said to the boy: "Heigh, ho! Those lips are as sweet as the hay, new-mown. Will you keep them always so?" Then back from those years came a rakish song—

With a ribald jest or two— And I gazed at the child who knew no wrong, And I thought he asked: "Did you?"

I looked in his eyes, big, brown and clear, And I cried: Oh! boy of mine! Will you keep them true in the after-year? Will you leave no heart to pine? Then out of the past came another's eyes— Sad eyes of tear-dimmed blue— Did he know they were not his mother's eyes? For he answered me: "Did you?" —Carl Werner in Scribner's Magazine.

The Pond And the Pure-food Pebble.

It would appear that Uncle Sam made a bigger splash than he anticipated when he tossed his pure-food pebble into the world's commercial pond. In the effort to protect his own people against unfit foods he has forced upon a good many other peoples an unwelcome consideration of the desirability of taking a bath and scrubbing their floors. It is even reported that they are introducing fresh air into date packeries in Fez and compelling the fig handlers of Smyrna to wash their hands from time to time.

There isn't obviously, much gain in cleaning up the Chicago and Kansas City packing-houses if we are to let foreign trade dump on our shores the output of filthy, disease-infected, insanitary canneries and packing establishments which provide us with food products. So the authorities have bestirred themselves to compel the rest of the world to clean up if it proposes to sell us its goods, and the Turkish Empire is threatened with a thorough cleansing.

Italy, Spain, Greece, Morocco, Asia Minor and Major all sell us a vast amount of stuff which we have been habituated unquestionably to introduce into our systems without consideration of the unnamable and unenumerated varieties of bacilli they might contain. We have excited ourselves about sanitation in Philadelphia, but overlooked its possibilities in Palermo. Now the food-law administrators are getting lines on the Levant, trying to find out whether food-stuffs from the East are proper for our use, and, by dint of barring or threatening to bar the output of unclean places, they are forcing a great house-cleaning upon the more or less unwilling followers of Mahomet.

It may involve exceeding inconvenience to the leisurely folk of the East, and it may shock some of their notions of propriety, to take baths, let in the fresh air, wash their hands occasionally while at work, and in general to clean up; but in the end they will find it is not injurious. They will have less of epidemics and will live longer for the effort. Of course, they will praise Allah for it, and never realize that it isn't a new demonstration of his regard for them; but, in fact, it will be an incident to the fact that Uncle Sam is trying to protect his people against filth and the danger of disease.—Balt. News.

Thirty-two Hours Without Food.

Lieut. Shackleton writes in McClure's for November of the terrible hardships endured by his party in returning from his record-breaking dash for the South Pole:

"We were now down to about four biscuits a day each, with two pannikins of very thin 'hoosh,' and on the morning of January 26th we ate the last of our solid food. This was at 5 a. m., and the food consisted mainly of half-soaked maize. We marched all day long through soft snow and often into hidden crevasses, saving the sledge and each other only by great efforts, and by the morning of January 27th we were played out. We had stopped a few times to have a cup of tea, which, with salt and pepper, was all that we had left in the way of food. We stopped at 2 a. m. and started again at 9 a. m., for we knew that it would be death to stay much longer. We marched until 1 p. m. on the 27th, and got within half a mile of the depot.

"Before this Adams had dropped in his harness, but had continued the march as soon as had recovered. Marshall went on to the depot and brought back some pony meat and biscuit while the tent was being pitched, and then we had the first food we had tasted for thirty-two hours, during the greater part of which time we had been marching hard."

Both Boys Saved.

Louis Boon, a leading merchant of Norway, Mich., writes: "Three bottles of Foley's Honey and Tar absolutely cured my boy of a severe cough, and a neighbor's boy, who was so ill with a cold that the doctors gave him up, was cured by taking Foley's Honey and Tar." Nothing else is as safe and certain in results. R. S. McKinney, Druggist, Taneytown, Md.

Suggestions for Amateur Photography.

"Few things are more puzzling to the amateur photographer than to determine the length of time to give an interior exposure," says Woman's Home Companion for November. "The following hints were given by the writer by a skillful professional, and have enabled him to obtain some very fine negatives with no waste.

"First focus carefully with 'open lens,' next put in your smallest stop, then cover your head with the dark cloth and look on the 'ground glass.' You will probably see only a very dim view, or even only a spot of light if the room is dark. Note the exact time on your watch, and then cover your head up again and watch the ground glass until you can see the entire picture upon it, even to the 'shadows.' It will surprise the amateur to see the length of time it takes one to see the entire picture in this manner, but the eye gradually becomes accustomed to the light and in one minute, as a rule, one can distinguish the entire picture. Then multiply the time by four, and that will give you the time in minutes to make your exposure. For example, if your time was one and one-half minutes, your exposure should be just four times one and one-half, which equals six minutes."

Frightful Fate Averted.

Autumn's Color Drama.

That man who is too busy or too careless of the beauties of nature to wander off into the autumn woodlands, or that man who cannot appreciate the truths and the lessons that lie beneath the molding leaves and twigs and in the colors of the foliage, is indeed unable to share one of the greatest pleasures which the changing year holds for the human mind.

The woods this fall are more beautiful than usually. The trees have put on their beauty garb of gold, crimson and russet earlier than is their wont, and in the heart of the sylvan solitude is such a riot of color and beauty now as never can be seen save in the worship of nature.

Women as a rule do not need to have their attention called to these things; they recognize them instinctively. But too often men, if they can appreciate natural beauty—and not all can—are ashamed of the fact, strange to say. The Sunday walk that does not lead to the woods these cool, bracing days, however, spurns the greatest show that can be set before man's eyes.

One Doctor—Only One

No sense in running from one doctor to another! Select the best one, then stand by him. No sense either in trying this thing, that thing, for your cough. HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

The girl who perspires will find that she will aid matters immensely if she will carry a tiny vial of rosewater and alcohol.

Cold water dashed on the face and chest in the morning gives the same tonic effect of a cold plunge in the morning without the shock.

A simple remedy for burns is made by adding to a cupful of olive oil a teaspoonful of carbolic acid. Apply bandage soaked in the mixture.

Relaxation is the secret of taking the mental, moral and physical kinks out of one's system in the warm weather. It will take all the unsightly lines from your face and prevent new ones from forming.

All too frequently a bottle of poison mistaken for something not deadly. One way to help avoid this danger is to put a brass headed tack in the cork of every bottle containing poison. Impress this fact on the family. One can know immediately whether the bottle holds poison simply by the sense of touch. This knowledge is especially valuable when you are looking for a bottle at night.

If any one of the family is so unfortunate as to sprain his or her ankle this summer you will find that you can make the doctor's part easier by soaking the afflicted member at once in hot water. This relieves the congestion, and by the time the doctor arrives with the bandages the sprain will be ready for treatment. It is better not to wait a moment to find out how serious the injury is, for hot water can do no harm, and the patient's suffering will be greatly lessened by prompt action.

For any inflammation of the eye which comes on suddenly cold water soothes the pain. After persistent trouble very hot water will relieve the pain and reduce the swelling. The eye cup is the most convenient way of bathing the eye, for the eyeball is washed directly. The mouth of the eye cup is oval, which fits around the eye at the margin of the orbit. The eye may be opened into the lotion. A weak solution of boric acid, 3 per cent, may be safely used. The acid must be fresh and clear, however. Tears are the natural method of cleansing this organ.

Cures For Insomnia.

Sufferers from insomnia, says one who has had some experience with this trouble, should avoid sweet desserts at night as well as tea, coffee and greasy foods. Whether it is better to retire with an empty or partly full stomach can be determined only by experiment in each individual case. One of the best ways, says the same authority, to draw the blood from the brain before retiring is to take a moderately swift walk, and if there is still difficulty in getting to sleep a tepid bath and a gentle rub will bring the blood from the brain to the surface of the body. If the cause of sleeplessness is susceptibility to sound, stuffing ears with medicated cotton will be useful.

A Japanese Beauty.

Russia Now Has Woman Lawyer.

Dr. Katharina Fleischer has just been admitted to the bar in Russia and will practice her profession in St. Petersburg. She is the first woman lawyer in the czar's dominions, and she passed the final examinations with high honors. She met with much opposition when she first announced her intention of studying law. Prejudice was strong even from influential members of her sex. She persisted in her ambition against all obstacles, however, and came out triumphant. It is her hope to fight the legal battles of women, and she seeks them especially as clients. Dr. Fleischer is an ardent suffragette and predicts she will live to see women sitting in the duma.

The Professional Woman.

Mrs. Lydia Kingsmill said at the recent quinquennial congress of the International Council of Women: "The professional woman—there are 800,000 of her in the United States. Of all self-supporting women she is the ablest and most successful. She has declined to be a hewer of wood and a drawer of water and has dared to earn her living by her brain. The professional woman has been making experiments that will eventually be of great value to all women. She has been a sort of occupation explorer, finding out what lines of thought and work are most suitable and congenial. Her motto has been, 'When in doubt try it,' and even her failures have thus been educational."

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson VI.—Fourth Quarter, For Nov. 7, 1909.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xxvii, 39, to xxviii, 10—Memory Verses, xxviii, 9, 10—Golden Text, Ps. xxxiv, 22—Commentary by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

One night as they took soundings they found the depth of water growing less, and, fearing lest they should be cast upon the rocks, they cast four anchors out of the stern and longed for the morning. As the sailors were about to make off with the boat under pretense of casting anchors out of the foreship Paul said to the centurion and to the soldiers, "Except these abide in the ship ye cannot be saved" (31). Some may say, But had not Paul assured them that all would be saved? So we learn that, while God is not willing that any should perish and desires all to be saved, He, having provided a way, says that if men will not accept His way they must perish. When morning came they discovered a place with a beach where they might run the ship aground. And now death again threatens Paul, for the soldiers advised that the prisoners be killed lest they should escape. The centurion, for Paul's sake, prevented this, and so in one way or another all escaped safe to land, as Paul had told them while out in the storm at sea. "And so it came to pass" (44), and in that saying there is one of the finest of Bible studies, for it is true of every prediction concerning the sufferings of Christ and will certainly be true of every prediction concerning His kingdom and glory.

They found themselves on the island of Melita, or Malta, in a time of much rain, and cold rain, too, but the people of the island showed them great kindness and kindled a fire and welcomed them as well as they could. When I read of kindness I recall that David asked if there was any one left of the house of Saul that he might show "the kindness of God" unto him for Jonathan's sake (1 Sam. ix, 1, 3, 7). There is ordinary kindness such as was shown by these Maltese, but believers are here to show the kindness of God. Paul did not fail to help make this fire burn and to keep it going, for he, too, gathered a bundle of sticks and laid it on the fire. A good prayer meeting ought to be a good place to warm one, but how often the leader is almost the only one to help make the fire burn, whereas if a dozen or more each threw on a stick or two what a good fire there might be! One might say, "I thank God for the forgiveness of my sins," another might add, "I am glad that the Son of God loved me and gave Himself for me," another, "I praise Him for making me a joint heir with Himself." I am sure that a few contributions like these would help to make a great blaze, and many would get warmed up, for it is very cold at some prayer meetings. That old serpent the devil or some of his generation of vipers would be sure to get warmed up, too, and fasten on some one and say something not very kind, which might lead some one to say, "Well, I'll never open my mouth in meeting again," but if they would first shake off the beast into the fire where he belongs they would feel no harm. Again, Paul is misjudged and numbered with transgressors, but soon they change their minds about him, and if we will simply pay no heed to false accusations and misrepresentations the Lord will take care of all and make true His assurance, "No weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper, and every tongue that shall rise against thee in judgment thou shalt condemn" (Isa. liv, 17). Some people look a great while to see some harm come to a child of God, but no real harm can come to such, and what looks like evil God will overrule for good (Rom. viii, 28, 29).

Paul was permitted by God to work a miracle of healing upon the father of the chief man of the island, who happened to live in those parts. He was suffering from fever and a bloody flux, but in the name of the Lord Jesus Paul laid his hands on him and healed him. This led to others, bringing their sick ones, and many miracles of healing were wrought during those three months of unexpected blessing which had come to that island. We may be sure that Paul would seize every opportunity to tell of Him who graciously healed the people through His servant, and by him and his companions it would seem as if all on the island must have heard the glad tidings, not only of salvation through a crucified and risen Jesus Christ, but also of the kingdom which He will yet establish on the earth when there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying; neither shall there be any more pain on the whole earth, and the inhabitants shall not say, I am sick (Rev. xxi, 4; Isa. xxxiii, 24). When the shipwrecked people landed on the island they were shown no little kindness, but when they departed after three months they were honored with many honors and laden with such things as they needed. This must have been real gratitude to God and to His son Jesus Christ and to those who had brought the good news to them. For about thirty years I have seen much of this gratitude from some thousands of people who have had presented to them in the simplest possible way the great truths of salvation and the kingdom, and in nineteen and one-half years I have seen that gratitude in the substantial form of over $450,000 for missions to spread the gospel. All glory to Him!

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Nov. 7, 1909.

Topic.—Life lessons for me from the book of Hebrews.—Heb. xii, 1-7. (Consecration meeting.)

The book of Hebrews is one of the most important books of the New Testament. The author is unknown, but the character of the book proves that it is divinely inspired. The purpose of the book explains its importance. It was written to the Jews of apostolic days to prove the superiority of Christianity over Judaism and therefore to persuade them to accept Christ as the Messiah. The writer is most forcible in his logic, and his words should have and probably did have great influence in winning many Hebrews to accept Christ and Christianity. Hebrews is the only book of the Bible that compares the old Jewish religion with Christianity. The result attained is most satisfactory. Any one who desires to have a proper conception of the Old Testament rites and ceremonies that were done away with at Christ's coming and death can find no better place to obtain this information than in Hebrews. It is an easily read book and should be read at one sitting by every Christian Endeavorer in connection with this meeting.

In building up this argument the author declares Christ to be the Son of God and then proceeds to show the superiority of Christ and His works over angels and the leaders of Israel and the works of the Old Covenant, under which their ancestors lived. The book naturally divides itself, therefore, along these lines:

1. The superiority of Christ over the prophets (chapter i, 1-3).
2. The superiority of Christ over angels (chapters i, 4; ii, 18).
3. The superiority of Christ over Moses (chapters iii, 1; iv, 13).
4. The superiority of Christ and His priesthood over Aaron and the Aaronic priesthood (chapters iv, 14; x, 39).
5. Practical exhortations (chapters xi-xiii).

This clear arrangement of Hebrews shows how easily it may be read and adds greatly to its value.

The great lesson to be learned from the book of Hebrews is still the one that the author intended to teach—namely, the superiority of Christ over every other founder of a religion in that He was the Son of God and the superiority of Christianity over every other religion that the world has known. These truths have been important in all the Christian centuries and are still so today. There are still those who accept the leadership and beliefs and teachings of men rather than those of the Lord Jesus Christ, the eternal and only begotten Son of God. But as for us—we should stand firmly for Christ and the truths which He as the Son of God has revealed unto us.

No "new theology," no so called "new religion," will ever replace the teachings of Christ or the religion which He founded. He Himself has declared that so far as His church is concerned "the gates of hell shall not prevail against it," and if the power of hell cannot conquer it we need have no fears from the feeble attempts of men to do so. The deity of Christ has been fully established. The inspiration of the Bible cannot be successfully denied. The supreme place of the cross in the salvation of the human soul has been fully attested. The doctrine of the atonement will never be surrendered, for too many have experienced salvation through the atoning blood of Christ ever to give it up. The progress of Christianity and of the Christian church both at home and abroad was never more real and substantial.

The topical reference suggests other individual lessons, such as (1) inspiration to faith by the accomplishments of others by faith, (2) that we should look upon Christ as our example in running the race of the Christian life and (3), further, in the endurance of suffering, that we may obtain the joy that is set before us.

BIBLE READINGS.

Heb. i, 1-3, 4-14; ii, 1-9; iii, 1-15; iv, 14-16; x, 11-25, 28-39; xi, 1-3, 5, 6, 23-29; xii, 22-29.

A Campaign of Publicity.

Dr. Francis E. Clark in his annual report and review of worldwide Christian Endeavor says that "in every continent and in almost every section of every continent Christian Endeavor is making headway."

One striking paragraph in the report is as follows: "If in this brief review of the year a suggestion is in order, it would be that more effort should be put forth to demonstrate in print and on the platform the fundamental principles of Christian Endeavor. New generations of young people are constantly coming forward who, as well as the general public, need to be told that Christian Endeavor stands four square for constant and varied religious testimony of all kinds, frequent religious services, loyalty to the church and interdenominational Christian brotherhood in all the world. It should be made more and more plain that our society is a great international brotherhood, millions strong, such as does not exist elsewhere in the world. The many movements for the federation of kindred denominations in all lands is one outcome of the Christian Endeavor spirit and fellowship fostered by twenty-five years of constant seed sowing and innumerable fraternal conventions in every part of the world. The fostering of the spirit of international unity is scarcely less marked, and we cannot measure what may yet be accomplished in the years to come by our societies for the peace of the world and the federation of the Protestant churches."—Australian Christian Endeavor Link.

How to Bore a Square Hole.

You would not consider it possible to bore a square hole in a piece of cardboard, yet such a thing can be done. Take a cardboard or a thin piece of wood, fold and place it between two pieces of board with the fold up; the boards are then put in a vise, as shown. Start the bit with the screw point in the fold, using a one inch bit, and bore a hole one-half inch deep. When the cardboard is taken from the vise it will appear as shown at B and when unfolded as at A.—Popular Mechanics.

Principles in Breeding.

Nearly all the great breeders of live stock have in their time made use of the prominent principles in breeding. They have been the men who formed the breeds of animals, molding them, adapting them to conditions under which they were required to thrive and to the uses for which they were intended. At the present time there seems to be very little left to be desired in this work of forming new types of animals or the originating of new breeds.

Large Hog Pastures.

The best solution of the whole hog pasture problem seems to be that of using large hog pastures and clover or grass as the pasture crop. The cost of fencing per acre is then reduced to a minimum. The area is large enough so that no difficulty will be experienced in using the regular farm implements for tillage nor in accomplishing a maximum amount of work.

The Cow's Udder.

It is not unusual for yellow, matter-like fluid to appear in the udder of a cow that is to come in soon. Usually after parturition and four or five milkings the milk will be all right. If lumps appear in the udder bathe every two or three hours with water as hot as the hand will bear, and between whiles rub it severely with camphorated oil.

On last Saturday afternoon, this section was visited by an unusual electrical disturbance for this season of the year. The thunder was like the firing of heavy guns, and the vibrations of the earth were very pronounced.

An alarm of fire, this Friday morning, called out the Fire Company, but it proved to be only a slight chimney fire at Chas. E. Ridinger's, no damage being done. The boys were there, however, ready for business, in about a minute.

Last week the RECORD said 34 or 35 marks would be necessary to vote the ballot, this year. This was a bad error; we meant to say there were that many names on the ballot; 13 marks votes the Democratic ticket; 12 the Republican ticket.

We are not booming individual candidates, but as we have two candidates from Taneytown—on opposite tickets—for the legislature, and as both of them are among our best citizens, we think that both should receive a large vote; not a "complimentary" vote, exactly, but a large vote in recognition of their good standing and integrity.

Vote For Local Option Candidates

Messrs. R. Smith Snader, Judson Hill and Wm. C. Shearer, Republican Legislative Nominees in Carroll County, Are the Only Men Who Have Given Satisfactory Assurances.

Baltimore Good Citizens Appeal to Carroll County Democratic Voters for Help in Securing the Right to Vote to Protect Themselves Against a Traffic Which Incites Negroes to Deeds of Violence by Selling Liquor With Obscene and Suggestive Labels.

The Anti-Saloon League is not working in the interests of any party but is an agency for getting the facts to the people. The League is making no attack on the Democratic party. The Democratic candidate for Comptroller, Dr. J. W. Hering, of Carroll County, is just as satisfactory to the League as the Republican candidate. Both are friends of the League. Nor is the League interfering with the election of the rest of the county ticket, but it is centralizing on the local option bill. To show its fairness, it is not supporting any Republican legislative candidate who has not declared himself. It refused to accept the platform declaration of the Republican party as satisfactory without hearing from each candidate, because this is not a party matter.

The local option bill will not force prohibition upon Carroll County or any part of the state. It simply lets the people vote. It will give Carroll a chance to remove the disgrace of being one of the three wholly wet counties in the state.

Mr. R. Smith Snader, the only member of the last legislature who was renominated, voted for the local option bill. He is being fought by the liquor interests because of that vote. If he is defeated it will be pointed to as evidence that decent people in Carroll County cannot be trusted to support their friends. It will be a serious reflection upon the good faith of temperance people. The liquor men are openly making their boasts that they are going to defeat him, and every temperance man of every party should make it a point to vote for him. Messrs. Judson Hill and William C. Shearer have likewise given satisfactory assurances.

In connection with the failure of the Democratic candidates to answer, attention should be called to the fact that the Democratic organization of Carroll County, last time, working in harmony with the Baltimore City organization, compelled all three of the Democratic members of the legislature to vote against the local option bill, besides compelling the Senator to break his promise in order to do so. This same organization passed for Carroll County an alleged local option law which was a mere subterfuge and which is now dead because it provided only for a vote in 1909. In the absence of assurance to the contrary, it may be assumed that the Democratic nominees this time will carry out the instructions of the same organization.

As between the Democratic principle of self-government and Democratic candidates who will not stand true to that principle, every loyal Democrat must support the principle by voting for men who will uphold it, even though they are running on some other ticket. To vote for so-called Democratic candidates who are not in favor of the local option bill, repudiates the principle and strikes a blow at Democracy itself.

In explaining the local option issue, and the need for a local option bill, the League is forced to throw some light upon a HORRIBLE PHASE OF THE LIQUOR QUESTION, about which the newspapers are keeping the people in ignorance. The Baltimore papers DID NOT EVEN HINT at the startling fact that the League on last Sunday, BEFORE AN AUDIENCE OF 2000 MEN which filled Ford's Grand Opera House, EXHIBITED to the audience and described in detail, bottles of LIQUOR PURCHASED IN BALTIMORE NEGRO SALOONS, ON WHICH WERE OBSCENE LABELS, calculated to incite to deeds of brutal violence, the black man who drank the contents and then gazed upon the label. If the newspapers would tell even so much of the truth as is printable about what is going on in Baltimore to-day, the decent citizenship of Maryland would rise up in their might and overwhelmingly defeat any candidate for the legislature who refuses to allow them a chance to protect themselves against a traffic which capitalizes the bestiality of the ignorant negro by aggravating his baser instincts into a constant menace to the womanhood of the state.

The people of the rest of the state, Baltimore specially, are appealing to the voters of Carroll County to send men to the legislature who will give them a chance to exercise the right of self defense against a traffic so outrageous.
