of state secretary of the Maryland Sunday School Association, and will remove to Baltimore about Dec. 1.

Baltimore is to have a 15-story, $1,-000,000 hotel, which will compare in equipment with any in the city of New York. It will shortly be built on the corner of Baltimore and Calvert streets the old Baltimore and Ohio lot-by Mr. Isaac E. Emerson.

"Woman suffrage, if realized, would be a deathblow of domestic life and happiness" is the sentiment expressed by Cardinal Gibbons in a letter to the secretary of the National League for the Civic Education of Women, an antisuf-fragette organization that held a meeting in New York on Monday.

The large new barn on the farm of Mrs. Hetty Ecker, widow of Solomon S. Ecker, near New Windsor, was burned Saturday afternoon with most all its contents, consisting of about 600 bushels of wheet large left of the state of the of wheat, large lot of hay and straw, some farming implements, a valuable colt and six hogs, etc. The loss approximates $3,000, upon which there is partial insurance.

Littlestown, Pa., is considering a proposition to lay concrete water gutters, one block on each street from the square at a time. In this way the height and width as well as the character of the gutters will become uniform; the citizens will also always know just where the curb line is, so that when they desire to relay their pavement they will not need to hunt up someone to give them the curb-line.

The annual love feast of the Church of the Brethren (Dunkards), at Meadow Branch Meeting-house, was attended by 100 members of the sect. After a big dinner, which lasted three hours, services began at 2 o'clock in the afternoon with a sermon by B. F. Lightner, of Gettysburg, Pa. After the sermon Elder T. S. Fike, pastor of Woodberry church, delivered an address. delivered an address. The Lord's Supper followed and then came the scripture and it was later discovered that it had broken a leg. The horse had to be shot the following morning.

A deal for the sale of the telephone line of the Frederick County Telephone and Telegraph Company was closed on Monday, the sale being made to the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, which is to pay for the former's stock 80 cents on the dollar and for its bonds par and accrued interest. There is stock to the amount of $70,000 sued and bonds to the amount of $50,-000 outstanding so that the total purchase price was in the neighborhood of Pennsylvania is a close second with 92,066 on the pension roll. These two States furnish about 20 per-cent. of the country's pensioners. New York is third with 83,394. Other States ranking high are Illinois 66,402: Indiana, 57,042; Massachusetts, 40,098. The entire roll showed a net increase of 5,493 compared with the previous year.

While Mr. Edward Stitely, of Unionville, was returning from the blacksmith shop in Libertytown, recently, leading a fine young horse in the rear of the stick wagon, a large auto approached so near the horse he was leading that the frightened animal jumped into the stick wagon, crushing it down, and besides throwing the occupants out upon the pike, injured itself very seriously, cutting both knees severely, and sustained other bruises and cuts about the limbs. Mr. Stitely came off by being jarred and stiffened up. The other occupant of the wagon, Mr. Hitselberger, was not hurt.

Mr. Rockefeller has donated a million dollars to exterminate the hook-worm disease in the South. This disease has preyed on the people in the southern states, and in a large measure is responsible for their lack of energy and shiftlessness. The hook-worm thread-like worm which enters the body and lodges in the intestines where it feeds on the mucous membranes, forming a poison, which, while rarely fatal, renders the victim anaemic, retards development, and, by lowering his vitality, makes him easily subject to typhoid, pneumonia and other diseases.

Church Notices.

Services at Baust Reformed church, Sunday at 10,30 a.m., Rev. Isaac Tozer, will preach, Y. P. S. at 7.30 p. m. MARTIN SCHWEITZER, Pastor.

There will be preaching services in the Taneytown U. B. church, Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. Evangelistic services at Harney in the evening and during the week.

C. W. CHRISTMAN, Pastor.

The report shows that the Septe total of cars handled was 2,993,00 almost 10 per cent, in excess of corresponding month of last year.

Almshouse Management.

Mr. Ernest P. Bicknell, National Director of the American Red Cross, who for many years was secretary of the Board of State Charities of Indiana, and Exchanges.

Our neighbor county in Pennsylvania (Adams) went solidly Democratic, as it usually does.

Rev. B. W. Kindley, of Cumberland, formerly pastor of the Uniontown Methodist charge, has accepted the position of state secretary of the Maryland Sunday and afterwards general superintendent of the Chicago Bureau of Charities, will address a special section meeting of the State Conference of Charities and Correction, in Baltimore, at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, November 10th, on the subject of "Almshouse Management." This special section meeting has been arranged for the benefit of county commissioners, trustees, superintendents of the State Charities of Indiana, and afterwards general superintendent of the Chicago Bureau of Charities, will address a special section meeting of the State Conference of Charities and Correction, in Baltimore, at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, November 10th, on the subject of "Almshouse Management." > A very remarkable exhibit of many kinds of charitable and correctional work will be held in connection with the conference and will occupy the entire basement of the new library of the State Medical & Chirurgical Faculty, 1211 Cathedral Street, Baltimore, where the conference will be held.

> One of the most interesting exhibits thus far arranged for will be made by the police department of Baltimore City and will be in charge of Lieut. J. A. Casey, officer in charge of the Bertillion Bureau, who will demonstrate methods used in the identification of habitual criminals. Other exhibits are being arcriminals. Other exhibits are being arranged by the State Board of Health, Maryland School for Boys, Instructive Visiting Nurse Association, Jewish Home for Consumptives, Association for the Prevention of Blindness, New Jersey Training School and the Supervisors of City Charities.

Letter From Winona Lake, Ind.

The Carroll Record:

On this day of no particular political importance here, but of great importance to Maryland, I am glad to write a word of greeting and good wishes to you and my friends who read your valued paper.

Whatever the result may be of this election, I believe the cause of temperance and righteousness is making sure progress. It is encouraging to see large, prosperous counties like this, Kosciusko, with posploons and eithis, Kosciusko, with posploons and eithis, Kosciusko, with posploons and eithis when he was a constant of the county Democratic with no saloons, and cities such as War

I have been in the city of Goshen, Ind., in which there are 19 churches, strong congregations of the denominations we have in Taneytown and in the vicinity. There is also a college there which is well patronized.

The CARROLL RECORD brings tidings of a series of entertainments secured for this winter at Taneytown. This is praiseworthy undertaking. All should co-operate in making a success of this enter-prise which aims to give wholesome, helpful entertainment and instruction.

All the Carroll news is read with interest and I hope to hear of good times and many improvements in coming days in the place where I shall have pleasant associations of the past and an unfailing Prosperity at Hand.

Washington, Nov. 1.—Prosperity has arrived, according to a statement issued today by the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor. During September the business of the country and movement of railway freight cars reached proportions which excelled those of the same month last year. In fact, the bulletin declares, while the number of idle cars at the end of last month had not altogether disappeared there were indications that a car short-age would quickly develop.

These improved conditions are most pronounced in the coal and iron trades. The movement of lumber also was some what heavier. From Virginia and the Carolinas the shipment of lumber increased 56 per cent. over September of last year, but there was a sharp falling off in the quantity of yellow pine re-ceived at New York from that received August, although the receipts were nearly double what they were one year

There was a considerable slump in the receipts of grain and flour at the four leading seaports, and the receipts of grain at 15 of the principal interior markets likewise were below the aggregate for September, 1908. A similar condition is uncovered in the shipment of packing-house products from Chicago, the chief slump being on canned meats, which show a relative loss over the corresponding figures of 1908 of approximately 45 per cent.

The report shows that the September result of an accident received the evening before, when the animal, hitched in front of the property of Mr. William Walter, took fright at an approaching automobile and broke loose and ran away. As the runaway horse approached the residence of Mr. John Roddy it fell and it was later disposers. growing out of the actions of the Demo-cratic county convention, and to other differences within party ranks. Snader and Hesson owe their election to Anti-saloon sentiment. While it is true that Mr. Shearer (Rep.) had answered the questions "satisfactorily," and Mr. Hesson (Dem.) had made n answer, it seems quite clear that Mr. Hesson's personal friends, who believed him to be favorable to submitting the Local Option question to the people, elected him, through their very complimentary home vote. It also seems true that Mr. Shearer's answer to the Antisaloon questions was so indefinite as to have lost him many Local Option votes. and was thus responsible for his defeat. Mr. Stoner, the other Democrat elected, seems to have been fortunate in the splitting of tickets, and perhaps owed his election to the doubt concerning Mr. Shearer's position and to Mr. Jordan's silence, as well as to a few voters who considered him "right" on the question.

Mr. Farver (Dem.) who at the last moment was indorsed by the Sykesville Local Option League, was but 15 votes behind Mr. Stoner.

The election of Mr. Snader, considering the straight fight he made as an open Anti-saloon advocate, further denotes the strength of this sentiment in the county, as he was particularly marked for defeat. While it may be argued that Democratic disaffection alone permitted the result, it nevertheless swept away a sufficient number of votes to show clearly the trend of public sentiment on the Local Option question, even if that sentiment would not otherwise have won.

We have not heard that money was used anywhere in the county, or that unfair means were resorted to, to bribe or influence voters. The man who stays at home, or who stands around waiting for "a dollar," has lost his market.

There appears to have been about 335 votes rejected in this county, because of failure to master the intricacies of the ballot, and this trouble was distributed throughout the districts, and in both parties. These 335 yotes, if counted as meant, might have changed the result materially, owing to the closeness of the vote; therefore, the officials declared The report shows that the September elected, have no certainty that they total of cars handled was 2,993,003, or would have been elected had all the balalmost 10 per cent, in excess of the lots cast been counted. The Result in the State.

Aside from the general effect of the Democratic slump in Manchester and Hampstead districts, Messrs. Hill, Snader and Hesson over their all the North Manchester and Hesson over the North Manchester which ought to settle the question for good. If there is any dependence in securing a full expression of the senti-ments of the majority of the people, surely it has been made emphatically clear that this state is not willing to enter into any such unfair scheme as that proposed by the amendment. The majority in the state against the amendment was about 19,000.

The legislature will stand; Senate, Democrats 21, Republicans 6; House of Delegates, Democrats 66, Republicans 35. In Washington county, Local Option was defeated by over 1600, the vote of Hagerstown being too heavy for the 'drys'' to overcome. For county offices, the result was divided, the Democrats making unexpected gains.

In Frederick county, the Republicans won for every office except Register of Wills, Palmer (Rep) being defeated by Thomas (Dem) by 21 votes.
Baltimore city was carried by Hering, for Comptroller, by 1276. Hering's plurality in the state is about 9,000.

Aside from the "trick" ballots in Wilson law counties, the election throughout the state appears to have been fair, and conducted without the use of money.

By common consent, both parties seem agreed to obey the laws.

Judge Urner (Rep) was elected in the 4th. Judicial District, but all other Democratic Judges in the state, outside of Baltimore, were elected.

The Sun says, "The legislature can adopt a new suffrage amendment," meaning that the legislature will have a to prepare and pass another amendment, to be submitted to the people two years

"The Maryland Democrats offered Baltimore-what it should have, of course-representation in the Legislature in proportion to its population in order to secure its support of the amendment disfranchising negroes. But the "grand-father clause" was more than the city voters could stand, and Baltimore defeated the amendment. The result in general is most gratifying to Republicans, as there are no signs of serious dissaffection over the recent tariff legislation. It is admitted, however, that the issues involved were entirely local, and that national issues could not possibly cut any figure.

Washington, Nov. 1-Ormsly Mac-Harg, who looks like a poet, and thinks deep as a well, took enough time this afternoon from his last day as Assistant Secretary of Commerce and Labor to utter an impressive warning against young men going into the Government services as a life-work.

Mr. MacHarg leaves the Department with a smile on his face to begin his duties in New York, Monday morning, as a member of a well-known law firm there, and his advice, coming from a man who has made an enviable reputa-tion for himself in the seven months in which he has been on the Government payroll, is all the more significant.

"My advice," he said, "is that young men should not go into the Government service, for there they have no room for originality or enterprise.

ness of red tape, against which it is practically impossible to struggle. Attempts to do so bring down a torrent of opposition which is frequently followed by the charge that one wishes to be sensational or is seeking notoriety. Those who have learned through the years to work in seclusion and red-tapeism do not give to the newcomer the credit that is due to new ideas and efforts.

'This is one reason why the man going into the service walks into a career which offers nothing. It is also a reason why there is 25 per cent. of inefficiency in the Government service to day. Men throw up their bands and ask: "'What's the use of fighting against

we can only say that the returns, as far as we have been able to get them at this moment, are on the whole exceedingly satisfactory. We are sorry, of course, that Washington county went 'wet,' but we are not a particle sur-

"The returns seem to indicate the victory of the local option candidates in most of the places where there was a contest and as there are a number of candidates who did not pledge them-selves whom the League knows to be friendly, we consider the outlook for the bill most excellent unless later returns should completely change the apparent situation.

Brutal Foot-ball.

The killing of a West Point cadet in a game of foot-ball, last Saturday, may cause the army to drop the sport entirely. Another player was killed, on the same day, in a game in Philadelphia, while there have been other deaths and many serious injuries during the season, all of which is beginning to count against the game in many directions, and to place it in the class where it belongs, among exhibitions of brutality, entirely outside of the list of clean American sports.

> There is evidently some stronger reason, now, for the change from country to city life than the question of farm drudgery. Farm work is more easily done than formerly. Secretary of Agriculture Wilson truly says that the farmers ride at most of their work nowadays. Still this drift from farm to city continues and an effective check has not been discovered. Let us hope that the savants and philosophers of Germany may ascertain the cause and suggest a remedy, now that the boys of that country are leaving the fields for the factories.-Phila. Press.

Now our party was reduced to three, and, though the isolation was more oppressive, there were the usual advantages for greater comfort and progress of a small family of workers. The increased number of a big expedition always enlarges the responsibility and difficulties. In the early part of a polar venture this disadvantage is eliminated by the survival of the fittest, but after the last supporting sleds return the men are married to each other and can no longer separate. A disabled or unfitted dog can be fed to his companions, but an injured or weak man cannot be put aside. An exploring venture is only as strong as its weakest member, and increased numbers, like increased links in a chain, reduce efficiency.

The personal idiosyncrasies and inconveniences always shorten the day's march; but, above all, a numerous party quickly divides into cliques, which bowlder of pemmican we crept out of customed life of frost. I hoped to over-

One Degree In Three Days.

By dead reckoning our position was latitude 82 degrees 23 minutes, longiture 95 degrees 14 minutes. A study of the ice seemed to indicate that we had passed beyond the zone of ice crushed by the influence of land pressure. Behind were great hummocks and small ice; ahead was a cheerful expanse of larger floes. Using the accumulated vigor of man and beast, we had advanced a degree of latitude in three days. Our destination was about 460 miles beyond.

But our life had assumed quite another aspect. Previously we permitted ourselves some luxuries. A pound of coal oil and a good deal of musk ox tallow were burned each day to heat the igloo and to cook abundant food. Extra meals were served when an occasion called for it. and each man ate and drank all he desired. If the stockings or the mittens were wet there was fire enough to dry them out. But all of this must now be changed. There was a short daily allowance of food and fuel-one pound of pemmican per day for the dogs, about the same for the men, with just a taste of other things. Fortunately, we were well stuffed for the race with fresh meat in the lucky run through game

At first no great hardship followed the changed routine. We filled up sufficiently on two cold meals and used superfluous bodily tissue. It was no longer possible to jump on the sled for an occasional breathing spell, as we had done along the land. With overloaded sleds the drivers must push and pull at the sleds to aid the dogs, and I searched the troubled ice for ar Pasy route, cutting here and there with the ice ax to permit the passing of the

Quickly the camp furnishings were tossed on the sleds and securely lashed down. The dog traces were gathered into the drag lines, and with a vigorous snap of the long whip the willing creatures bent to the shoulder straps. The sleds groaned, and the unyielding snows gave a metallic ring, but the train moved with a cheerful

"Unne noona terronga dosangwah" (good land out of sight today) we said to one another, but the words did not come with serious intent. In truth, each in his own way felt keenly that we were leaving a world of life and possible comfort for one of torment and suffering. Heiberg island was already only a dull blue haze, while Grant Land was making fantastic figures of its peaks and ice walls.

Wave of Mirages.

The stamp of reality had given place to a wave of curious mirages. Some peaks seemed like active volcanoes; others rose to exaggerated heights and pierced the changing skies with multiple spires like church steeples. Altothe upper surface of Grant Land under the influence of optical illusions gave us considerable entertainment.

At every breathing spell the heads turned to the land, and every look gave a new prospect. From belching volcanoes to smoking cities of modern bustle the mirage gave suggestive bits of scenes, but a more desolate line of coast could not be imagined.

Low wind swept and ice polished mountains were separated by valleys filled with great depths of snow and ice. This interior accumulation moved slowly to the sea, where it formed a low ice fall, a glacier of the malaspina type, but its appearance was more like that of heavy sea ice; hence the name of the fragments from this glacier, floe berg, which, seen in Lincoln sea and resembling old floes, were supposed to be the product of the upbuilding of the ice of the north polar sea.

Late in the afternoon the land suddenly settled as if by an earthquake. The pearly glitter which raised it darkened, and a purple fabric was drawn Everything was in our favor in this march. The wind was not strong and struck at an angle, making it possible We are finally stripped for the race, to guard the nose by pushing a mitten Man and dog must walk along togeth- under the hood or by raising the fur er through storms and frost for that clad hand. The heavy floe upon which we rested had several large hummocks, and over to the lee of one of these was found suitable snow for a camp. Lines of snowy vapor were rushing over the pack, and the wind came with a rapidly increasing force.

But the dome was erected before we suffered severely from the blast, and under it we crept out of the coming storms into warm furs.

It blew fiercely that night, but in the morning the storm eased to a steady draft, with a temperature of 59 degrees below. At noon we emerged. The snow grays had been swept from the frigid dome, but to the north there remained a low black line over a pearly cloud which gave us much uneasiness. It was a narrow belt of water sky and indicated open water or very thin ice at no great distance.

The upper surface of Grant Land was a mere line, but a play of land clouds over it fixed the eyes on the last known rocks of solid earth. In this march we felt keenly the piercing cold of the polar sea. The temperature gradually rose to 46 below in the afternoon, but the chill of the shadows increased with the swing of the sun's

A Life Sapping Wind.

It still blew that light, life sapping draft which sealed the eyes and bleached the nose. We had hoped that this would soften with the midday sun, but instead it came with a sharper edge. Our course was slightly west of north; the wind was slightly north of west. It struck us at a painful angle and brought tears. The moistened lashes quickly froze together in winking, and we were forced to halt frequently to unseal the eyes with the warmth of the uncovered hand. In the meantime we found the nose tipped with a white skin, and it also required nursing. The entire face was surrounded with ice.

This experience brought warm language, but there was no redress. If we aimed to succeed the face must be bared to the cut of the elements.

At about 6 o'clock, as the sun crossed the west, we had reached a line of high pressure ridges. Beyond the ice was cut into smaller floes and thrown to any building of the kind on the together into ugly irregularities. An active pack and troubled seas could not be far away, according to our sur- traction at this year's grange fair. The became less sharply defined.

We managed to pick a way among hummocks and pressure lines which seemed impossible from a distance.

and in a few hours we saw from an unusual uplift of ice blocks a broad, dark line separating the packs-a tremendous cut several miles wide, which seemed at the time to bar all farther progress. We had a folding canvas boat on the sleds, but in a temperature of 48 degrees below zero no craft could be lowered into water without fatal results. All of the ice about was firmly cemented together, and over it a way was forged to the shore of the Camp Beside the Lead.

Camp was made on a secure old field, and over its huge ice cliffs the crack seemed like a long river winding between palisades of blue crystal. A thin sheet of yellow ice had already spread over the mysterious deep, and profusion of fantastic frost crystals were arranged in bunches resembling flowers. Through this young ice dark vapors rose like steam through a screen of porous fabrics and fell in feathers of dust along the sparkling shores. Etukhishook went east and I went west to examine the lead for a safe crossing.

There were several narrow places, while here and there floes had been adrift in the lead and were now fixed by the young ice. Abwelah remained to make our snow house comfortable.

In exploring the shore line a partially bridged place was found about a annual dues. Another important matmile from camp, but the young ice was ter considered was the plan of aptoo elastic for a safe track. Annual Encampment of a Pennsylvania Pomona Grange.

The Grange Owns Twenty-eight Acres of Land In a Park, and Hundreds of Farmers and Their Families Hold There a Big Fair Every September.

The Center county Pomona grange of Pennsylvania annually holds a great encampment and grange fair at Center Hall. This annual gathering is absolutely a grange enterprise and is conducted under the management of the county grange. It started as a one day grange picnic in 1874 and was converted into a three days' encampment in 1887, and in 1890 the county grange bought twenty-eight acres of land joining the borough of Center Hall and converted it into a park, known as Grange park, paying $115 an acre, the title and ownership being absolutely in the county grange, it being an incorporated body. Since the purchase of the ground there has been added to the encampment a grange fair which has been enlarged from year to year. The whole ground is thoroughly equipped with suitable exhibition buildings. The county grange also owns a large number of tents and full camp equipage, which are rented to families at $3 per tent. Several hundred farmers and their families camp every year, the attendance aggregating from ten to fifteen thousand.

The thirty-sixth annual encampment and grange fair was held Sept. 11 to 17. Leading members of the Order and people prominent in public affairs addressed the people daily in the large auditorium.

This year a large and attractive poul try building has been erected superior largest fair grounds in the state, and the poultry exhibit was a special at-The water sky widened, but general exhibition building erected two years ago has proved a great attraction and has been crowded with exhibits. The museum of relics is a very interesting feature and attracts many people. Among the most interesting exhibits in the museum is a full set of machinery for the manufacture of flax as used by our ancestors. Another feature is an old fashioned chimney place filled with the cooking utensils of our grandmothers.

FARMING IN SCHOOLS.

Opinion of Members of the Faculty of an Agricultural College.

The Mansfield (Conn.) grange has in CALVES its membership several of the faculty of the Connecticut Agricultural college, and their opinion on the subject of teaching agriculture in our common schools may be of general interest. The Mansfield grange, after due consideration, adopted the following report on the subject:

"Agriculture, while a technical, vocational subject, is so closely related to the welfare of every individual that we recognize the need for a general dissemination of information as to the conditions of country life and the relation of agriculture to the community-the conditions favorable for the conservation and development of the agricultural resources of the nation. The place for this instruction is in the higher grades of our public schools, both city and country, and the instruction should be given by teachers specially trained for the work and not by teachers engaged in the general work of instruction in the various subjects of school work. "Before agriculture can be properly introduced into our country schools there must be a radical change in our system. The higher grades at least must be brought together into the consolidated graded township school. In this consolidated school a teacher of science could very properly be employed, a part of whose duties should be to teach agriculture. In our common country schools as at present organized we do not favor the introduction of agriculture as a part of the required

The last Knights of the Bath made according to the ancient forms were at the coronation of Charles II., when various rites and ceremonies, one of which was bathing, were enforced. According to Froissart, the court barber prepared a bath, and the candidate for membership in the order, having been undressed by his esquires, was thereupon placed in the bath, his clothes and collars being the perquisites of the barber. He was then removed from the water to the words "May this be an honorable bath to you" and was placed in a plain bed quite wet and naked to dry. As soon as he was quite dry he was removed from the bed, dressed in new and rich apparel and conducted by his sponsors to the chapel, where he offered a taper to the honor of God and a penny piece to the honor of the king. Then he went to the monarch and, kneeling before him, received from the royal sword a tap on the shoulder, the king exclaiming, "Arise, Sir -... and then embraced him, saying, "Be thou a good knight, and true."-London Strand

England's Patron Saint. The story of England's patron saint is surrounded by a mixture of truth and fable which defies definite sifting. He is generally believed to have been born at Lydia, but brought up in Cappadocia, and suffered martyrdom in the reign of Diocletian, A. D. 303. The legend of his conflict with the dragon may have arisen from a symbolical or allegorical representation of his contest with the pagan persecutors. When our crusaders went to the east in 1096 they found St. George elevated to the rank of warrior saint, with the title of the "victorious," and as they believed that they were indebted to him for aid in the siege of Antioch they adopted him as the patron of soldiers. Edward III. was thus led to make him patron of the Order of the Garter, and so gradually St. George became the tutelary saint of England.-London Mail.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cramer, of Walkersville, spent a short time with world as the pattern husband. In Europe they have a saying about Eve and the apple which shows how wretched a failure the European husband is. This saying is unknown in America, I am sure. It would have no point, no application, here in the land of pattern husbands. The saying is this: "'The evil one didn't give the apple to the man, but to the woman, because the evil one knew well that the man would eat it all himself, but the woman would go halves."

> Aisle of the Car In a Railroad Wreck. A veteran railroad man gave a piece of valuable advice not long ago. "If you ever get into a wreck," he said, "and have time to follow out this suggestion remember this: Always stand in the aisle. Most of the injuries that are suffered occur because the victim is crushed between the seats. If you are in the aisle you may be thrown forward and bruised a little, but there is much less chance of receiving serious hurts. It isn't always possible to get out of your seat before the crash comes, but if it is follow that advice."-Louisville Courier-Jour.

"I studied 'rithmetic," replied the of fice boy, "'cause I wanted to know how to figure de battin' averages."-Chicago Record-Herald.

A Myth Chaser.

"What makes your youngest son so eager for athletics?"

"Filial admiration," answered the worried looking mother. "He believes all the stories his father tells about the wonderful things he did when he was a boy and is trying to equal the record."-Washington Star.

Some Curious Weathercocks. The weathercock had its origin at a very early date. Marcus Virtruvius Pollia, a noted Roman architect and engineer, who was born about 80 B. C., in his works calls a vane a triton, probably because in his time it had the form of a triton. The usual form on towers, castles and secular buildings was that of a banner, but on ecclesiastical buildings it was a representation of the male of the barnyard fowl. There have been other forms of vane. The one over St. Peter's, Cornhill, London, is in the shape of a key; that over St. Mildreth's church is a gilt ship under full sail. The grasshopper of the Royal Exchange, London, is the vane that formerly surmounted the former exchange. The dragon on the spire of Bow church. Cheapside, is another celebrated vane. One of Mother Shipton's prophecies was that when the dragon of Bow church and the grasshopper of the Royal Exchange should meet the streets of London would be deluged with blood. In what way they should meet the old dame did not explain, but it is known that at one time these two vanes were side by side in the yard of a stonemason in Old Street road, yet there was no shedding of blood .-London Answers.

An Organ Recital.

A dozen or more women had gathed at a home on Walnut street to attend a business meeting of a society to which they belonged. Before they commenced to talk business one of the women had to tell everybody about her recovery from a recent operation for appendicitis. After she got through it reminded another of an operation she had gone through a few years ago for the same thing, and it took some time to tell about it. That reminded a third of an operation she had once gone through, and when she finished telling it another of the visitors started to tell her experience on the operating table.

At this moment a quiet little woman in one corner of the room arose to

"I thought," she explained to her hostess, "that this was to have been a business meeting, but it seems to be an organ recital."-Philadelphia Times.

The Key of Death.

The "key of death" is apparently a large key which is shown among the weapons at the arsenal at Venice. It was invented by Tibaldo, who, disappointed in love, designed this instrument for the destruction of his rival. The key is so constructed that the handle may be turned around, revealing a small spring, which being pressed a very fine needle is driven with considerable force from the other end. This needle is so very fine that the flesh closes over the wound immediately, leaving no mark, but the death of the victim is almost instantaneous.

A couple of Kansas men were talking of fearlessness the other day. "All this talk." said one of them, "reminds me of a peace officer I knew a number of years ago in western Kansas. This officer was entirely fearless-in fact, the kind of chap who would have charged hades with a single bucket of water. Away back in the sixties. He married number "One," And after living for a while, He left for parts unknown.

He did not tarry single long, For oh, he was so lonely; He married again, another woman, 'Tis said she was so homely.

Cross women, kind women, Women of every sort; Any old kind will do for me. He said, this wonderful sport.

Five women fell to this man's lot. Tis said, in nine years time; But alas! for poor old "Dad," He got across "the line "

Yes, up and down this land he trod. In search for gay young Belles, But now he's taken another route, And landed in a cell.

Good bye, old man, you must soon come And stand before the Bar; You'll have to face the awful charge,

For having wives, both near and far. You're getting old and feeble now: Your hair is getting gray;

You're travelling at a rapid gait, Toward the King's Highway. For getting wives you're surely blessed.

As any 'neath the Sun; And when you appear at the Judge's bench, He'll answer thee, "Well done!"

Now young and old take warning. And hold to the one you've got; You'll have to watch him, or he'll leave, When sad indeed will be your lot. H. O. HARNER.

forgotten. You delight in the sensation of danger and risk. Of course in an aeroplane-especially if you have had a few accidents during the last few daysyou are hoping all the time that you'll get back to earth safely. I was five weeks learning. During that time I spent 4 or 5 hours in the air. You can't fly every day. Of course some people learn more quickly than others, as they do to ride a bicycle or drive a motor. It has to come instinctive. The best time to fly is about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, after the sun has gone down. While the sun is up there are eddies of air, and these are dangerous. If an aeroplane tilts with you it comes down with a run. You can't fall out but the whole thing falls to the earth. It is only kept up by its resistance to the air, and as soon as the wings get sideways on there is going to be a smash. The wings are provided with chains for bending them in a parabolic curve at the tips to escape the effects of eddies. If you watch an albatross flying you will see it do the same thing. The whole business is a question of skill in managing the aeroplane. You must know intuitively what is the right thing to do and do it. You can't sit still and look up what to do in a book of directions. The best place to fly is in an open space with trees round it. "People will get terribly keen on coming up as passengers. Rev. Joseph H. Fesperman, Salisbury, N. C., who is the author of several books, writes: "For several years I was affiicted with kidney trouble and last winter I was suddenly stricken with a severe pain in my kidneys and was confined to bed eight days unable to get up without assistance. My urine contained a thick white sediment and I passed same frequently day and night. I com-menced taking Foley's Kidney Remedy, and the pain gradually abated and finally ceased and my urine became normal. I cheerfully recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy." R. S. McKinney,

In the November American Magazine Anne Hard, reporting all the facts about "the beauty business," tells the following true story. It was given to her by a Chicago expert who is in the business of making folks beautiful.

"The highest charge I ever made to any one man was $2,810. That was his own fault. It was this way:

"There was a miner from Wyoming. This man had read in the paper how a certain barber had gone crazy and had murdered the man he was shaving. So he made up his mind he'd never be shaved again. So he came to Chicago and consulted me. He wanted every hair on his face removed by the electric needle, and he was willing to pay for it by the hair-and in no other way. "I needed my office for my regular clients, so I went out and rented a room in the Waterloo Hotel and started on that miner's beard. It took me almost three months to finish that job and then it took me three days to count the hairs. I counted twenty-eight hundred of 'em, outside of a bunch I blew off the table by coughing accidentally. We estimated those at one hundred. That made twentyeight hundred and ten dollars."

Lesson VII.--Fourth Quarter, For Nov. 14, 1909.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts yxviii, 11-31. Memory Verses, 30, 31-Golden Text, Rom. i, 16-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

After three months at Malta of testifying of the Lord Jesus, the result of which eternity will declare, they proceeded toward Rome, tarrying three days at Syracuse, in Sicily, one day at Rhegium, in the extreme south of Italy, and seven days at Puteoli, where they found believers. The brethren at Rome, having heard of Paul's arrival at Puteoli, came out to meet him as far as Appli forum and the three taverns, thus encouraging him and causing thanksgiving to God. Then they returned with him to Rome. There is a suggestion here of the way it will be at the coming of the Lord. When He comes to the air on His way back to earth the saints shall all meet him in the air and later be manifested with Him in glory, when He shall come to the same Olivet from which He ascended (I Thess. iv. 16-18; Col. iii, 4; Zech. xiv, 4). Arriving at Rome, the other prisoners were delivered to the captain of the guard, but Paul was permitted to awell by himself with a soldier who kept him. For two whole years he dwelt in his own hired house and received all that came to him, preaching the kingdom of God and teaching the things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ with the most perfect freedom (16, 30, 31). We shall meditate more fully on this delightful occupation presently. After three days in Rome Paul called the chief of the Jews together that he might state his case to them, which he briefly did in facts with which we are already familiar, and he added, "For the hope of Israel I am bound

In Joel iii, 16, we read that in the time of trouble the Lord will be the hope of His people and the strength of the children of Israel. In I Tim. i, 1, Paul says that he is an apostle of Jesus Christ by the commandment of God our Saviour and Lord Jesus Christ our hope, but in the New Testament I think we are safe in saying that "hope" always refers to the coming of Christ for His saints, as in Tit. ii, 13; Heb. vi, 18-20; Rom. viii, 23-25. The hope of Israel would then be the coming of Christ as Israel's Messiah to make of them a righteous nation and bless all nations through them. This implies Jesus, as the seed of David, risen from the dead, and also the resurrection of the saints according to Dan. xii, 1, 2. When Paul stated his case before these Jews of Rome they said that they had not heard of his troubles in Jerusalem, nor had any one spoken any harm of him, but they would like to hear what he had to say about this sect, which they knew was everywhere spoken against by the world disowned but the strange thing is that, even among those who accept the Lord Jesus Christ as their Saviour and expect to spend eternity with Him and are with more or less zeal seeking to serve Him now, there is such antipathy to anything concerning His second coming or the future of Israel as a righteous nation to bring blessing to all nations.

It may truly be said that as the hope of His church or the hope of Israel He is still spoken against by those who, like these Jews, profess to honor His word. Well, they appointed him a day and came to his lodging, and from morning till evening he expounded and testified the kingdom of God, persuading them concerning Jesus both out of the law of Moses and out of the prophets (23). For two years he continued to do this with all who came to him. He had but one topic-the Lord Jesus Christ and His kingdom. He had but one book-the Scriptures. If the Scriptures are not wholly and absolutely reliable, then preachers are simply lecturers, talking out of their own hearts their own messages, which are all vain words, for, apart from the word of God, which is forever settled in heaven (Ps. cxix. 89), we have no revelation of the will of God and the purpose of God; but, thank God, there are many left who, like Paul, believe God that all things shall be just as He has told us and who, like our blessed Lord, find in all the Scriptures, the law, the prophets and the Psalms, the things concerning Himself (Luke xxiv, 27, 44). The teacher of the Bible should be able to begin at Moses and from all the book point out the predictions concerning the sufferings of Christ and the glory that shall follow as they are set forth in shadow and symbol and in plain statements. Gen. iii, 15. has both in one verse; Gen. iii, 21, is full of the sufferings and the benefit to us; Gen. iii, 24, talks of the resurrection and the glory.

The story of Abel tells us in type of suffering and of the blood that speaketh better things than that of Abel. The story of Enoch, in the light of the epistle of Jude, tells of suffering and of the glory of translation. In Noah and Lot we learn, with our Lord's comment, of the judgments which must precede the kingdom. In Abraham and his son we see the great sacrifice and learn to look for the city. Joseph helps us to be patient and to believe that every step, however great the darkness, is a step toward the

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Nov. 14, 1909. Topic.-"Pilgrim's Progress" series. VI. Beulah land.-Isa. Ixii, 3-5

The word Beulah means married

The prophet Isaiah in using it in regard to Judah meant to say that when the people returned from their captivity in Babylon they would be married to the land. The land would be more precious to them than ever before, and their constancy to the King of the land would never again fail, "for as a young man marrieth a virgin so shall thy sons marry thee, and as the bridegroom rejoiceth over the bride so shall thy God rejoice over thee." The prophet therefore predicts a flourishing state of religion which was to exist in the future, but still upon this earth. Bunvan changes the figure somewhat and applies Beulah land to the experiences of the saints of God as they approach the end of life and only death separates them from the celestial city. Bunyan's conception is the one generally accepted today. It is the point reached in the Christian life near its close, such as Moody described as "earth receding, heaven approaching." It is passing through the final experiences in life. The world has no attractions for us. Our entire interests are centered in the life to come. It is as if we stood at the highest point of joyous Christian experiences and saw only death, which Christ has conquered, between us and the heavenly

O Beulah land, sweet Beulah land,
As on thy highest mount 1 stand
I look away across the sea,
Where mansions are prepared for me,
And view the shining, glory shore,
My heaven, my home forevermore.

1. Beulah is a land of peaceful rest amid delightful surroundings. The "air was very sweet and pleasant. * * * Yea, here they heard continually the singing of birds and saw every day the flowers appear in the earth and heard the voice of the turtle in the land. In this country the sun shineth night and day." How beautifully this describes the declining days and years of those whose minds are kept in perfect peace as they approach the heavenly Beulah land!

Here shines undimmed one blissful day. For all my night has passed away.

2. Beulah is a land void of trial and temptation. "This was beyond the Valley of the Shadow of Death and also out of the reach of Giant Despair; neither could they from this place so much as see Doubting Castle." The doubts and terrors and despairs of the past being over, how sweet to think only of the Master, His wonderful mercy and love and the joy obtained through His atoning sacrifice upon the cross of Calvary!

3. Beulah is a land of heavenly fellowship. "Here they were within sight of the city they were going to; also here met them some of the inhabitants thereof, for in this land the shining ones commonly walked because it was upon the borders of heaven. In this land also the contract between the bride and bridegroom was renewedyea, here 'as the bridegroom rejoiceth over the bride so doth their God rejoice over them." 'As earth recedes our thoughts are more in the future (22). It was foretold that it would be and our companionship ever more with so (Ps. cxviii, 22; Isa. viii, 14, 15; liii, God and Christ and the loved ones 1-3; Luke ii, 34), and to this day it is gone before. They walk with us upon so, for our Lord is still rejected and | the borderland, and sweet is their companionship, especially that of the Mas-

> The Saviour comes and walks with me, For this is heaven's borderland.

4. Beulah is a land of plenty. "Here they had no want of corn and wine. for in this place they met with abundance of what they had sought for in all their pilgrimage"-the assurance of their salvation and a foretaste of the joys which in heaven will be eternal.

If Beulah land, the borderland of heaven, the eternal home of the saved, be of such a character, what must not the joys and blessings of heaven itself be! There we shall receive the full reward of all our sacrifices and services, and they will seem as nothing when compared with the glory which God has in store for us. Therefore let us be faithful in service, strong in temptation, trustful in the midst of trials, lest having such a promise and prospect before us any of us

Beautiful World's Convention Hymn. Already the Endeavorers of India have secured a beautiful hymn, written for the world's Christian Endeavor convention, which will be sung at the quiet hour services and probably during the closing consecration hour of the convention in Agra. It is by Rev. P. E. Heberlet of Sambalpur. Bengal, and is worthy of a place in all our hymn books.

LIVE THOU IN ME. To Thee, O Christ, I oft did say,
"I'll closely follow Thee,"
But strayed afar, and now I pray,
"Do Thou lead me."

To Thee, O Christ, I oft did say,
"My faith holds fast to Thee,"
Yet loosed my hold, and now I pray,
"Do Thou hold me."

To Thee, O Christ, I oft did say, "I'll always toil for Thee." But idle proved. I humbly pray, "Vork Thou through me."

In pride of speech I oft did say, "I'll bravely speak for Thee." But, failing oft, I meekly pray, "Speak Thou through me."

With zeal aflame I oft did say. "I'll brightly shine for Thee."
My light grew dim, and now 1 pray,
"Shine Thou through me."

To Thee, O Christ, I oft did say, "I'll live alone for Thee." But, wiser now, I daily pray, "Live Thou in me."

'TWIXT MAID

The Event That Brought a Love Affair to Its Climax.

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS. [Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.1

Maude Forbes, maid to Miss Ann Peabody, felt her heart thrill as she glanced at the bulky figure of the big chauffeur beside her.

John Winthrope was a well built man. Tall and handsome, with the muscles of an athlete, he was enough to make the heart of an impressionable girl palpitate abnormally. And when a pretty girl like Miss Forbes was really in love with him then his proximity was sufficient to bring blushes of delight. Winthrope's one great fault in Miss Forbes' eyes was his innate bashfulness.

"Do you know," she whispered confidently in his ear, "I believe that you are in love with Miss Peabody."

Winthrope's face turned red under her twinkling gaze; but, although Miss Forbes was apparently greatly delighted at the result of her words, she was secretly dismayed. Was it possible

MISS FORBES SAW THAT SHE HAD FAINTED. that he really was in love with Miss Peabody? For some time she had thought that his attentions to her mistress were more assiduous than was actually necessary. It was with a view to finding out his real state of feeling that she had made the suggestion as to his love affair.

"Of course I'm not!" declared Winthrope savagely as he jerked the steering wheel of the car.

"Oh, you don't need to say that," replied Miss Forbes. "I'll not tell any one about your affinity. You might confide in me. We're good friends, aren't we?"

"Yes, good friends," Winthrope answered shortly.

Again Miss Forbes felt a sinking at the heart. So they were nothing more than friends!

"Of course," she went on, "it does seem rather presumptuous of you to aspire so high, but stranger things have happened. I've often thoughtthat is, it has seemed to me that she has looked on you and talked to you as if she were interested. Naturally I wish you all the luck in the world. I-I hope you'll succeed."

"Aw." growled Winthrope. "I"- But the rest of his sentence was lost in the grinding of the gears as he viciously pulled the car to a stop. Miss Peabody was waiting for them in front of a department store.

"I'll sit in front with John." Miss Peabody announced brightly as the car drew up. "I want him to give me a final lesson in driving the car."

As Miss Forbes reluctantly climbed from her seat in front and made her way into the tonneau she felt a distinct pang of jealousy. To her distorted vision it seemed that Winthrope gladly welcomed the change. To her it appeared that his hand rested almost too caressingly on Miss Peabody's hand as he aided her in guiding the huge car through the streets; that his glance was almost too noticeably tender as he whispered his instructions to her. Miss Forbes sighed.

The car sped through the streets and in a short time reached the countryside. Miss Peabody's fresh laugh rang out as they raced along. She seemed to be enjoying herself hugely. Miss Forbes wished that she were having so good a time. They had reached a broad country road, and Winthrope had practically resigned control of the machine to Miss Peabody. The road made a sharp turn, and as the automobile raced around the curve Miss Forbes saw a temporary bridge spanning a stream a short distance to the side of the spot where the old bridge had formerly stood. The temporary bridge was a frail structure with no side rail.

Instinctively Miss Forbes felt disaster coming her way. She closed her eyes and heard Winthrope call to Miss Peabody:

"To the right, quick!" he cried. Miss Forbes opened her eyes. Per-Winthrope's cool head would save them, after all. She saw Miss Peabody drop the steering wheel and throw her arms about Winthrope's neck. Winthrope tried desperately to disengage her hands and to reach the wheel, but without avail. Miss Forbes saw that the car was headed for the river, and again she closed her eyes.

In a moment the car seemed to leave the earth and soar into the air. Then came the sound of a huge splash as it struck the water. Icy cold water enveloped Miss Forbes.

To Miss Forbes' surprise she did not lose consciousness. She fought desperately to reach the surface, and as she fought she wondered, oddly enough, what Winthrope and Miss Peabody were doing. She wondered if Miss Peabody still had her arms about Winthrope's neck, and even then she felt a pang of jealousy. Finally Miss Forbes got her head above water, and then, to her further surprise she did not sink. In a moment more she realized that she was standing on a seat in the tonneau and that her head was above water. She glanced about. In front of her were Winthrope and Miss Peabody. The latter still had her arms about Winthrope's neck, and Miss Forbes saw that she had fainted.

Winthrope caught sight of the girl, and she was sure that a flash of joy swept across his face. "But of course he'd be glad anybody wasn't drowned," she told herself.

"Can you wait until I take Miss Peabody to the shore?" Winthrope cried. Miss Forbes nodded. She watched him strike out with strong, sturdy strokes, and her heart thrilled at the sight. Well might Miss Peabody or any one else be proud of such a man. In a short time Winthrope had reached the shore and deposited the still form of Miss Peabody on the ground. Then he plunged into the water.

"You aren't frightened, are you?" Winthrope asked as he neared Miss Forbes.

"Not at all." Miss Forbes noticed that the man's face was thin and drawn. His hands trembled as he caught her from the

When they had reached the shore Miss Forbes' eyes fell upon her mistress. Miss Forbes watched her face brighten as her eyes fell upon Winthrope. She extended her hands toward him.

"My hero!" she murmured softly. Resolutely Miss Forbes turned her eyes away, although her heart was thumping painfully. She caught sight of Winthrope staggering toward her. His foot, she saw, was oddly twisted. and he seemed to be wholly unmanned. Wholly disregarding Miss Peabody, he fell on his knees beside Miss Forbes and caught her hand in both of his.

"My dear, my dear!" he murmured. Miss Forbes caught her breath quickly. She looked wildly at her mistress and saw the latter, with a hurt look in her eyes, turn away. Then slowly the maid bent over and kissed Wincick up the modest fortune of $14,000 while there, but he came back without it. He carried with him when he departed 700 bright Lincoln pennies, each showing the initials of the designer. These pennies still remain in his possession, but he doesn't treasure them quite so highly as he did when he was paying 10 cents apiece for them.

Several days ago Postmaster Masters heard that Herbert Carpenter, a Lock Haven cigar dealer, had made a standing offer of $20 for 1909 Lincoln pennies -the kind that bear the initials of the designer. Masters used the telephone, asked Carpenter about it, and was told the offer was good. Then the postmaster went on a still hunt for pennies, but before he had cornered the supply the price had gone up to 10 cents. He accumulated about 700, which ought, according to his calculation, to bring $14,000. Yesterday he went to Lock Haven to get the money.

bought a high-priced cigar and casually asked the storekeeper if he was still ofdesigner's initials," said Carpenter.

"We certainly are, if they have the designer's initials," said Carpenter.
"Well, I have a few," said Masters.
"Are you sure you have 1909 pennies?" asked Carpenter.

"Sure: every one of them, and with the designer's intitials," replied Masters, and poured a handful of the glittering coins on the showcase. "Looks to me as if there were only two or three hundred there," said Carpenter. "I can't afford to pay $20 for less than 1909."

For a full half minute the two men looked straight into each other's eyes. Then Postmaster Masters gathered up his pennies, and, without a word, beat it for the railroad station.

Early English Scare.

In 1370 a report was circulated that "certain galleys, with a multitude of armed men therein, were lying off the foreland of Thanet," and an order was at once issued that "every night watch shall be kept between the Tower of London and Billingsgate, with forty men at arms and sixty archers." The watch was kept in the following order: "Tuesday, the drapers and the tailors; Wednesday, the mercers and the apothecaries; Thursday, the fishmongers and the butchers; Friday, the pewterers and the vintners; Saturday, the goldsmiths and the saddlers; Sunday, the ironmongers, the armorers and the cutlers; Monday, the tawers, the spurriers, the bowyers and the gir-Strolling into Carpenter's store he dlers." Exact Eye Examination

It's often said that sight is the most valuable of the senses. Take care of it. If you need glasses, wear them. If you don't, don't wear them. But be sure whether you need them or not. & Consult DR. HINES. Eye strain is known to cause many cases of dizziness, headache and nausea. Proper glasses remove the cause and cure the complaint. DR. HINES is an eye specialist—a graduate in his profession and also a student so far as working out problems of his profession are concerned.
