A mad dog, in Baltimore, on Monday, bit eight persons before it was killed. It raced over five miles of streets so rapidly that it was with great difficulty that it was finally cornered and killed. Two dogs were also bitten during the race. All of the victims are taking the Pasteur treatment.

Baltimore is experiencing a glass famine, because of the great damage done to green houses in the suburbs. In West Arlington, alone, over 3000 panes copy. were broken, and this is only one of the many cases. One dealer has an order for 2500 panes, and dealers in other cities have been sent rush orders.

It is understood that after a great deal of urging the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad will stop Sunday trains at Mount ain Lake Park. The laws against Sunday liquor selling, and against gambling, are openly violated, every Sunday, in the Westport section of Baltimore county. A column article in last Monday's Sun revealed a most deplorable condition, showing the 'rottenness'' of the political government of the county, where privileges are evidently sold in open defiance of law and decent public sentiment.

Nathan Gutman & Co., one of the oldest and most popular retail firms, of Baltimore, went into bankruptcy, on Tuesday, following a suit for appoint-ment of receivers for the firm. It is said that the receivers will continue the business for a time, and that possibly the firm will compromise with its creditors and resume business. The firm has been in business on Lexington street for

To add to the pictures queness of country life, rural mail carriers some day nav announce their arrival by the blowing of bugles. This suggestion has been made to the Postoffice Department by a citizen of New Hampshire, who adds in his letter that the bugle also would serve a useful purpose in giving country dwellers who might wish to purchase stamps from the carrier knowledge of his proximity.

From reports, Union Bridge is experiencing one of the benefits (?) of being a manufacturing town-frequent combinations of "booze" and "rough house. Last Saturday evening is said to have represented a time when an increase in the police would have been very desirable, as well as the location there of a hospital. Perhaps the passage of a local option law is the simplest and best way to dispose of such occurrences.

Vouchers for the payment of $341.86 for the treatment of residents of York county, bitten by dogs and in danger of being attacked by hydrophobia, were paid by the county poor directors. President Taft, on Monday, granted an unconditional pardon to Lorenzo D. Barnes, an inmate of the Government Hospital for the Insane here who recently prevented a wholesale delivery of insane convicts from the institution by overhearing their plans and notifying the guards. Barnes was convicted of killing a man who had defamed his wife. While serving a life sentence he became insane, but has since regained his reason. Attorney General Wickersham recommended his pardon with the observation that he had "taken the life of one oundrel, but saved the lives of several Government officers."

The Cumberland city health authorities will destroy by fire about 40 old canal boats that for years have been ying in the canal basin at Cumberland. Taneytown 8-Emmitsburg 0.

Taneytown won an easy game over Emmitsburg, on the home grounds, on Tuesday afternoon, the mountaineers being given a well deserved shut out. Fortunately, a heavy shower ended the slaughter of the innocents toward the close of the sixth inning, when Taney-town had 2 men on bases with 2 out.

Jenkins allowed the visitors only 2 little hits, while he fanned out ten, six in two innings; in the second inning it required but 11 deliveries of the ball to retire the side. Rowe received credit for six strike-outs, but most of them were preceded by two foul strikes.

The contest was of the "punk" variety, notwithstanding the fairy story about the game recently played in Emmitsburg between the two teams, at the end of which both claimed a victory. From the merits of the play of the two teams in this last game, there is no doubt as in this last game, there is no doubt as Taneytown having fairly won the first. Notable features of the game were a home run by Jenkins, and the sharp fielding and base running of the home

Really, it would be cruel to indulge in humorous comments on the game. The occasion was rather one to bring sympathetically to mind the command of one of the officers at Santiago, to "stop cheering, the poor devils are dying;" besides, the "Willies" are really nice little tellows, and if their lady friends had been present to inspire them they really might have made a tally or two. We would be glad to have them come again, after they have had a little more practice. The following score tells the

LETTER FROM GERMANY.

Would not Exchange American Citizenship for Any Foreign Title.

Memorial day in God's Country, where the heroic dead who preserved the Union and made our Nation one of commanding influence among the peoples of the earth to-day are honored, and their graves decked with flowers. Away from home and kindred, come the thoughts of other days, with the proud feeling that the country was worth the great sacrifice of lives and treasure, made in 1861 to '65.

can, an affection for his native land not observable elsewhere. As citizens we are justly proud of our Republic, of its history, of its growth, of its prosperity, and not the least of the stalwart loyalty of its sons. To live good wholesome patriotic lives, to show to the world that to be an American citizen, is more prized and esteemed than to be of the nobility, elsewhere. This view, always entertained, is being emphasized daily in this trip among the nations of Europe. I would not exchange my citizenship for any title found here or elsewhere.

The last eight days we have been in Germany, along the Rhein and its tribularies, an important part of the great Empire. From Basle, Switzerland, where the train enters the country, to this thriving city of 5000,000, upward of 300 miles, we pass through the garden of Germany The towns and cities are substantially built, and apparently well governed.

The strange part is that the farmers do not reside on the land but in the towns. The train passed through four, five and six miles of productive land with fine growing crops, without a house or barn Wheat, rye, corn, grapes and vegetables are found everywhere, all looking well, and in about the same stage 0-0-0-0-0-0 of development as in old Carroll.

Another strange thing as relates to farming in the three countries visited, is the almost entire absence of improved farm machinery. But few mowers are seen, the old fashioned scythe being in use. The explanation is that labor is plenty and cheap. From ten to thirty cents a day is the price paid. Talk to these people about our wages, from $1.00 to $1.50 per day, and ask them why they don't emigrate, the answer comes promptly, 'fatherland is good enough

The President's Silver Wedding.

Washington, June 14. - Among the gifts to President and Mrs. Taft on the celebration next Monday of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding will be a magnificent silver service from the members of the Senate.

All of the Senators placed their names on the contributing list today and Senator Bacon gave rush orders to the jewelers for the costly present.
President and Mrs. Tatt today invited the Washington Sængerbound, the wellknown German singing society of Washington, to give a program on the lawn of the White House Monday evening at their silver wedding reception. By this arrangement they have completed a program of entertainment which will only be unique but which will combine every form of functions which they have given at various times since Mr. Taft be came President. There will be a reception on the lawn, the musical program dancing in the East Room-all carried out with the delightful lack of strict formality which Mr. and Mrs. Taft have made manifest at their entertainments.

GREAT DAMAGE BY STORM.

Maryland Visited by Hail and Wind. Great Loss to Crops and Buildings.

Storm damage estimated at $200,000 was done in the Waynesboro and Chambersburg section of Franklin ccunty, Pa., last Saturday evening. Exercises at Springfield Hospital.

Scores of friends and relatives, the entire staff of the institution and many inmates and patients attended the graduating exercises, which were held at the Springfield Asylum, near Sykesville, on Monday. Bishop Murray delivered the address to the graudates, and in the absence of the Governor, Dr. J. C. Clark, superintendent of the asylum, presented the diplomas. Sterling Kiler, of West-minster, Md., was the honor man, having the highest average for the two years.

Preceding the exercises the visitors, uner the guidance of Dr. J. H. F. Smith, were shown over the asylum, which is one of the leading institutions of its kind in the country. There are no bars or padded cells and the patients are treated according to the latest scientific methods. Kindness is the rule in handling all patients. Under the treatment given at Springfield and the efficient corps of doctors in charge, the hospital stands as one of the three leading asylums in the country. There are at present more than 1,200 patients there.

Music was furnished by an orchestra composed of the inmates and attendants, under the leadership of Edward Dunn. The orchestra, due to the love of the patients for music, is in constant demand. Dr. Clark presided and, following the invocation by Rev. Dr. C. R. Dudley, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Sykesville, introduced Bishop Murray. The Bishop took as his theme. "The Vocation of Nursing." He commended the work of the asylum, praising the spirit of unity and helpfulness that prevaded the entire institution, which made it seem "like one big family." The selfsacrifice and desire to give their lives to the work of restoring the reason of those bereft was glowingly eulogized by the Bishop, who characterized it as a "work of God."

A Big Wheat Crop Likely.

Promise that this year's wheat crop will be the greatest ever produced is given in the June crop report issued by the Department of Agriculture. Esti-mates by the department's experts indicate that approximately 764,291,857 bushels of wheat will be harvested in this country this Summer and Autumn, an increase of about 68,848,857 bushels over that garnered last year. Of Winter wheat the indicated yield is almost 480,-000,000 bushels, and of Spring wheat 284,000,000 bushels.

Prof. N. C. Murray, acting chairman of the Crop Reporting Board, comment-

The acreage of Spring wheat shows a will be the largest ever issued from the total larger than any previous record White House and for this reason Mrs. and nearly 9 per cent greater than last Taft will delegate the duty of receiving year. "May was unfavorable for Winter wheat, but, nevertheless, with the increased acreage there probably will be between 3 and 4 per.cent more Winter wheat produced than last year, and between 6 and 7 per cent more than for the average of the last five years.

'Combining both Spring and Winter wheat, the indications point to a slightly larger yield an acre than was produced last year, and about the same yield an acre as during the last five years. This would make a total production of all wheat of 9.9 per cent more than last Make use of our Pic-nic and Festival year, and 10.2 per cent more than the

The Fight on Reciprocity.

Washington, June 13.—The long awaited battie over Canadian reciprocity opened fiercely in the Senate this afternoon, and a situation of the utmost in-congruity developed. Leading Republi-can Senators arose and viciously denounced this measure proposed and negotiated by a Republican President as a direct blow at the time-honored Republican policy of protection, while a Demo-crat—Bailey of Texas—declared that it gives to the manufacturer more protection than he now has and that he would prove this to the country.

The leading insurgent in the Senate, La Follette, in a minority report repre-senting his own views, made a violent attack upon the agreement, declaring it "a tariff trade, conceived in special interest selfishness, negotiated in secret and brought into the open with the attractive label of reprocity as a bid for the favor of the American public—a people who believe sincerely in resiprocity that this is genuine." Mr. Taft's Canadian pact, he asserted, will increase the profits of the railroads, the milling interests and the Beef Trust, and that is all.

The enemies of reciprocity are on the firing line eager to shoot holes in the agreement and fixed in their determination that the Presidential power shall not force it through the Senate. On the other hand, the friends of the pact and of the President are lukewarm in their advocacy of the bill and in their defense of him. The fighting is being forced by the opponents of the agreement, and the ferocity and feeling exhibited by a number of them today is taken as a sure indication of a long drawn-out and ex-ceedingly bitter fight, in which the differ-ences between the President and his party will be more acutely accentuated than

The "old guard" forces in the Senate will fight to the last ditch before they permit the passage of a bill they believe knocks from under the sacred temple of Later and fuller reports from over the greater portion of the State of Maryland, with the exception of Northern Baltimore, Carroll and Frederick counties, show the wind, hail and lightning, did fearful dewards.

ators, a big majority of whom propose to vote for the bill. These, with a minority of Republicans, will give him a majority of the Senate, and, if at the end of the long fight it does go through that body, the credit for the salvation of the measure, both in House and Senate, will go to the Democrats.

The RECORD'S Position as to Legislative Nominations.

As the RECORD has been coupled up with the proposition that the Republican party of the state, or county, should identify itself openly with the local option cause, as a wise political and popular action, we feel called upon to state that such is not our position; that is, it is not one which the RECORD advocates as a matter of political advantage to the Republican party, and for its suc-

We rather advocate the position preferred by the Anti-Saloon League, as it relates to politics—that both parties shall nominate men for the Senate and House known to be distinctly in favor of submitting a bill to the people, by counties, allowing the voters to express themselves for or against the sale of liquors. We do not care particularly or Democratic, so they are "straight" on the question, and will stay straight, in spite of pressure after election.

too obvious to mention. If legislators have not been securing for agriculture all that it is entitled to, each individual legislator is the proper person to make the explanation; if he fails to do so satisfactorily, he ought to be retired, and that is as far as any particular interest can safely enter politics, whether it be the Grange, or a labor or manufacturing organization.

One of the chiefest of the evils attending class efforts in politics, is the undeniable fact that they are too frequently, and too likely to be, "used" by individuals in ways that defeat the good intentions of the organized class. Politics is not the mere surface proposition that it appears to be to would-be wise men who fail to see further than their own immediate pecuniary interests. It is a deep-laid and wide-visioned act to legislate wisely, for wise legislation is always that which is for the best interests of the whole people, and not for a portion of them; and that is the real trouble with our modern legislation-too little broad, and too much narrow, legislation.

It is very well to consider therefore. whether it is worth while, or profitable, to pit one class, or business, against another, for that is ultimately what united class activity in politics surely leads to. We incline to the belief that both wisdom and safety rests with the direct influence of individuals, as constituents, on their representatives, rather than with an organized entry into the wider field-especially the national field-of politics; for as long as we have representative government by those we directly elect, we are apt to reach safe majority conclusions for the whole, and that is all that any country or class has a right to hope for, or expect.

moment the other day, lamented the fact that the present Gubernatorial campaign was producing so much discussion of men and so little of measures. Maryland has tremendous questions before it, he said in effect, yet instead of debating them and hunting their solution the politicians and statesmen are all interested in the man or that. No one seems to consider policies.

The answer is plain. Men are measurers. Individuals are issues, Candidates are creeds. Each of the gentlemen now before the people as active or avowed or poetential candidates for the Governorship represents certain seperate and distinct issues as assuredly as if they were written down in black and

That is one thing. Another is this, that while an individual may sometimes galvanize a creed into life, no creed of itself ever became living and vital without the man. The platforms upon which Hughes was elected Governor of New York, and Wilson of New Jersey, never went thundering through the country as inspired documents. No one today can repeat what they said. Everyone knows what Hughes and Wilson

The best illustration of all is one to be used with restraint and reverence. The Christian religion has crossed all frontiers, has conquered and is conquering all nations, because of the Man at its head. The humblest mind can appreciate a man where it cannot understand subtleties of thought or of reason-

Which he may read who binds the sheaf, Or builds the house or digs the grave, Or those wild eyes that watch the wave In roarings round the coral reef.

Especially in a democracy with universal manhood suffrage is it necessary that the ideas and the ambitions of the voters should be personified in a man. That is the justification of unrestricted suffrage. The voter with limited education, the voter with small possessions he may not be able to understand finance and economics and legislation, but he knows a man when he sees one; and he is perhaps more ready to uphold the hands of that man than the educated and wealthy voter with his prejudices and his self-interest.

Nothing will be lost, either in this campaign or any other, through the discussion, the analysis and the ap. praising of men. The trouble is, first to know the right man and then to insure his selection. If the people had known Governor Crothers as well four years ago as they do today, it is quite possible that they would still have selected him as their choice for Governor, but it would have been for different reasons from those which actuated them then. If they knew Blair Lee or Arthur Gorman, or Judge Burke or Charles H. Dickey as well today as they may know some of them four years hence, they could choose more intelligently. To choose wisely it is necessary to have knowledge. Discussion of men helps to that end, and it is therefore wholly to be encouraged. -Balt. Evening Sun.

> This prospect has had as little effect as yet on general prosperity as in 1896 and in the early part of 1897, when prices were at their lowest and both clearings and railroad earnings remained below Governor Crothers, in an expansive the level and amount of the years, from 1890 to 1893, as now clearings and railroad earnings do not match the flood tide of 1906 and 1907. Both in 1879, in 1886 and 1887 and in 1896 and 1897, it was six months or a year, before cheap food brought a boom; but it came.

Trade is therefore still reported as only 'seasonable.'' There is no large increase at any point and the demand for iron and steel is still on the down grade. The reduction in the May orders of the Steel Trust, 105,000 tons, was less than was expected; but it leaves the outstanding orders at 3,113,187 tons or the lowest since January and 60 per-cent. of an active period, like that a year ago. In iron, steel, cotton, wool, rubber and many other staple commodities, the total output is from 60 to 75 per-cent. of a

Almost all manufacturers had an output correspondingly larger a year ago than now. Liabilities of failures in last May were $13,469,789, against $9,590,186 in May, 1910. This puts May liabilities this year on a level with the average for May, 1909, and 1908, close to the panic. This increase in liabilities in May, 1911, as compared with May, 1910, is due to traders and not to manufacturers, for the characteristics of this past half-year is that in it manufacturers have shut down and traders, 702 in number, have been caught with more goods than they could sell and their aggregate liabilities were nearly twice those of failing traders in recent Mays.

This general contraction in manufac turers keeps prices sluggish. They fall little, because there is no surplus. They do not rise, because there is no demand. Textiles scarcely changed. Pig iron touched a new low record in this region and steel quotations are shaded. Copper was unchanged; but tin rose sharply. -Phila. Press.

"Our form of government has been prostituted until the wage earner and producer has but few rights the money ower is bound to respect.

Just note the report of the British commission that made a comparative examination of the condition of the laboring classes in that country and in the United States. Now we all know that the British laborers are the best paid and best fed of laborers in any country in the world save of the United States. That commission reported that better off in wages received by about 40 per cent than were the British laborers. They further said that while the cost of living was higher in the United States the condition was chiefly due to the fact that the American laborer could afford to live higher and better than the British laborer could.

Then again we know that the wage earner in America has and exercises privileges through favorable laws and labor unions that leave to the employer but one subject to solve: Can he afford to pay the wages exacted? Then again we know, and it is useless to deny it, that the farmers who are the chief producers, have prospered in the past ten or twelve years as they never prospered before and that their chief difficulty has been to get the help and services of wage earners at a price that was at all reasonable.

consciousness, and it will often run off and may never have another attack.

Sunstroke is different. Like humans, the fowl is often struck down quick. It generally lies where it falls and is often found with feet spread wide beneath the body. If not killed by the stroke the victim often gets blind staggers, running into any obstacle in its path. In case of sunstroke a dip in cold water will sometimes save, but young stock is generally killed outright.

A tablespoonful of epsom salts is also given to old stock. Limberneck gets its name from the chief symptoms of this trouble. The neck gets limber as a cotton string, and the bird flattens out.

The chief cause is maggots in meat The maggots get on to the nerves.

The chicks in the picture have found the carcass of a sunstroke victim and are helping themselves to a dose of limberneck.

As a remedy for this trouble first remove the cause, then give the victim a two grain asafoetida pill and place a teaspoonful of hyposulphite of soda in every quart of drinking water.

A Learned Russian Baby. William Lyon Phelps tells this story about Robert Louis Stevenson as illustrating the cosmopolitanism of Russian character, which Professor Phelps says is unaccountable in a measure ence of Russian novels. Stevenson, writing from Mentone to his mother. Jan. 7, 1874, said: "We have two little Russian girls, with the youngest of whom, a little polyglot button of a three-year-old, I had the most laughable little scene at lunch today. She said something in Italian which made everybody laugh very much. After some examination she announced emphatically to the whole table in German that I was a madchen. This hasty conclusion as to my sex she was led afterward to revise, but her new opinion was announced in a language quite unknown to me and probably Russian. To complete the scroll of her accomplishments she said goodby to me in very commendable English." Three days later Stevenson added: "The little Russian kid is only two

THE SCRAPPY OSTRICH.

Hs Is Full of Treachery and Dearly Loves to Fight.

Those who manage ostrich farms declare that much diplomacy is required in the handling of the ostrich, which in more respects than one is a decidedly

The ostrich requires, aside from other necessary qualifications, a master's hand, a strict hand, tempered by justice and mercy. Not that the ostrich is at all appreciative of kindness. Indeed, he never becomes thoroughly domesticated, say those who know him in captivity

On the contrary, the ostrich is haughtily and stolidly irresponsive to kindness, and so treacherous is he when full grown that even his daily attendants never approach him unless equipped with the necessary appliances to bring him to terms when in an ugly or dangerous mood.

The ostrich's chief object in life seems to be to fight on every possible occasion. Indeed, a fight to him is the very spice of things.

The male ostrich is not without commendable qualities, however. For instance, he mates but once and forever. Should he, as often happens in the course of a domestic complication, kick his mate to death he remains true and constant to her memory, never seeking a successor. In the ordinary phases of domesticity he is attentive and helpful. He digs the whole in the ground that is to serve as a nest, and during the process of incubation, which continues for forty days, he relieves the mother bird of her duties from early evening till late the next morning. A curious habit of the male ostrich is his "constitutional." At sunrise and just before twilight the male birds line up in single file and race around the inclosure at whirlwind speed until thoroughly limbered up. Then, suddenly arranging themselves in sets. they execute a grotesque minuet with ludicrous gravity.—Harper's Weekly.

PORSON'S FOIBLE.

The Drink He Got From Mrs. Hoppner's Private Bottle.

In "Samuel Rogers and His Circle" is this anecdote about Richard Porson, the famous classical scholar and professor of Greek:

When Hoppner, the painter, was residing in a cottage a few miles from London, Porson one afternoon suddenly arrived there. Hoppner said that he could not offer him dinner, as Mrs. H. had gone to town and had carried with her the key of the closet which contained the wine. Porson declared, however, that he would be content with a mutton chop and beer from the next alehouse and accordingly stayed to dine.

During the evening Porson said, "I am quite certain that Mrs. Hoppner keeps some nice bottle for her private drinking in her own bedroom, so pray try if you can lay your hands on it. His host assured him that Mrs. H. had no such secret stores; but, Porson insisting that a search should be made, a bottle was at last discovered in the lady's apartment, to the surprise of Hoppner and the joy of Porson, who soon finished its contents, pronouncing it to be the best gin he had tasted for a long time.

Next day Hoppner, somewhat out of temper, informed his wife that Porson had drunk every drop of her concealed dram. "Drunk every drop of it!" cried "Yes, sir. If ever you find yourself she. "Heaven above, it was spirits of wine for the lamp!"

The Way She Brought Helena and Robert Together.

By A. M. DAVIES OGDEN.

It was only a few minutes until train time, and the woman who all the morning had been wandering restlessly about the house forced her reluctant consciousness to the realization of the fact that soon, very soon, Suzette would be here. Suzette, after her four years at an eastern college, was coming home. And what was she, Helena Crosby, going to say to the girl? It was in answer to Helena's own urgent appeal that the girl was coming-that and Sanford's letter. Despite the warmth of the sweet June day Helena shivered. What was she to say?

Sanford's letter spoke for itself. In clear, unmistakable terms it begged Suzette to give up that long dreamed of year in Europe and come back and marry him. His anxiously awaited promotion had arrived. He was at last in a position to ask the fulfillment of their boy and girl pledge. Helena knew well enough what the letter contained. Had she not practically dictated the substance of it?

And Suzette's only answer had been a noncommittal telegram, "Starting for home today."

Did she mean to marry Robert or did she not? That was the question which over and over again rose feverishly to his sister's mind. Since Suzette was sixteen and Robert twentythree the two had been engaged, or, rather, there had been an understanding between them. Then Suzette had gone to college, and Robert had followed his regiment to the Philippines.

Had the trouble begun then, wondered Helena dully, when a triangular chain of correspondence linked the three, or was it not until Sanford had come to Helena first to talk about the absent Suzette, then to argue and tease about her own concerns and, lastly, to discuss that never tiring topic of conversation to a man-himself? Helena could not tell, but lightly, unthinkingly, they had drifted along until all unwittingly a sudden shock laid bare the truth to a lover and sister that a new feeling, stronger, deeper, had taken the place of that childish affection. Sanford, manlike, had wanted to admit the truth and face the consequences, but Helena, her heart a fiery turmoil of conflicting emotions, would not listen. She who, although only a year and a half the elder, had been always mother, nurse, everything to the cherished little sister-she to be the one to destroy that sister's happiness.

break forever her faith in humankind! "Impossible!" cried Helena, her gray eyes dark with anguish, and from that determination she could not be shaken despite Robert's most impassioned pleadings. "I cannot hurt Suzette," was her un swerving answer, and at last Robert, desperate, had written Suzette. Since the thing must be met, let it be met at once. Let them be married at once and return to the Philippines. It was the only remedy either could see.

And so it was that Helena Crosby could see nothing fair or lovely in the clear, warm sunshine, the rustling bird filled trees. When would Suzette come, and what would be the end? This was all her tired brain could

There was a crisp footfall in the street, a sharp tinkle of the bell, then the sound of Suzette's voice in a low interchange of words; a retreating, heavier footstep. The next moment the girl had sprung into the room. Her arms closed about Helena.

"Why, you darling!" she cried. "Why. Helena, dear!" as her quick eye noted the signs of suffering in the elder's face. Helena tried to smile.

"It is nothing, sweetheart," she answered. "Only a touch of headache," falling back on woman's never failing excuse. "Oh, Suzette, how glad I am to see you!"

Suzette laughed, hugging her close. The girl's cheeks were flushed to a vivid pink; her blue eyes, her piquant little mouth, her wavy soft brown hair, all seemed alive, a-quiver with youth and joyousness. A breath from the brilliant, blossomy outer world seemed to have strayed in with her. A sob rose in Helena's throat. How soonah, how soon would Robert forget!

Suzette, tossing off hat and gloves, turned suddenly and, catching the older girl's hands, plled her down into the big chair, so often the shelter for them both. Her eyes were serious

"Tell me what it all means," she demanded practically. "Why is Robert in such a hurry all at once? He seems to have existed without me hitherto fairly well," with an amused little "Why, then, this sudden eagerlaugh.

"His promotion-his return to the Philippines," stammered Helena. It was going to be even harder than she had fancied. If to give up Robert to ap invisible, intangible little sister had oeen difficult enough, the renouncing of him to this radiant, splendid young creature- "He-he thinks best," she faltered. "He"-

"Te thinks I will go with him to the Philippines," put in Suzette keenly.

"I!" There was incredulous protest in every line of the pretty face.

Helena flusbed. "Why, surely, dear, as his wife" she began, but Suzette interrupted. "Not I!" she declared decisively. "No heathen lands for me! It's absurd!" "Absurd!" echoed Helena. "But Suzette, dear-if you love him. Surely you love him?" she insisted strenuously. Suzette's chin tilted resentfully.

"Do I?" she said. "Not enough for that, anyway. After all, I haven't seen Robert in ages, and we were only babies when-when we were so foolish," her own wild rose tint deepening. "He is unreasonable. How do I know whether I love him?"

"But you do!" broke in Helena passionately. "Of course you do; you always have loved him, dearest. And he loves you," bravely.

"Um! Does he?" was the dubious response. "Well-perhaps. But I-listen. Helena," her voice sharpening suddenly. "You-you remember Mr. Williams? I've written about him." "Yes." answered Helena, surprised.

The little face was hidden now on her "Well-well," came a muffled sound, "he has always known of my engagement to Robert-so when I told him that I was coming home he-he would not let me come alone. He is older than I, a good deal," went on the voice. "He-he cares for me very dearly though. He wants to take me abroad, to let me study"-

A sudden blind resentment surged through Helena.

"But-but Robert," she urged vehemently. "He cares for you, too; you know he does. He has not so much to offer"-an unreasoning loyalty to the absent soldier sweeping her along. "He-he"-stammering as she remembered.

A warm little arm crept about her neck. "But you will help me." begged the voice. "You-you will tell him"-"Tell him what?" uttered Helena sharply. There was fear, almost terror, in the cry. Suzette sat upright. "That-that I am married," said Suzette distinctly. "Frederick would not take the risk of losing me. And-and so we were married in Denver. He brought me here. He is coming back in an hour. You-you are not angry?" wistfully "Married!" gasped Helena. For a moment she remained quite still, seeking to absorb, to realize, the wonderful fact. "You-married!" "Yes," said Suzette meekly.

"And-and you are happy?" her first thought, as ever, for Suzette. "Yes," said Suzette, a sparkle of laughter breaking forth.

"And-and Robert?"

"Robert I leave to you." said Suzette. "You must explain"-But Helena, comprehending at last, sprang toward the telephone. As she watched the girl's face changed; a new and wholly sweet expression crept across the mobile features, revealing unsuspected depths. "And do you two think that I could not understand?" she breathed, a tender renunciation shadowing the blue eyes. "Did you think I could not guess the truth? Oh, sister, my dear-

Blind Men In the Witness Box. Before the trial was half ended it was apparent that most credence was placed in the testimony for the de-est sister, I leave Robert-to you.'

"That is because he has two blind men testifying for him," said a man who has served on many juries. "When it comes to a question of memory the word of a blind man goes further in a courtroom than that of a person with good eyes. It is with the jurymen that his testimony really counts, but judge and lawyers are also impressed. This is taking into consideration, of course, that the blind man has a reputation for veracity. We assume that with the loss of one faculty others have developed. What a man cannot see he hears and his mind stores up. Our faith in the retentiveness of a blind man's memory has been frequently justified. Where a person with all his senses would become confused and testify vaguely the blind man can repeat a conversation verbatim." - New York

Early Weapons.

The earliest weapons of mankind-of the cutting, thrusting, hacking and stabbing variety-were undoubtedly suggested by the natural weapons of the animals-the tusks of the boar, elephant and walrus, the sword of the swordfish and norwhal, the pointed antlers of the deer and the short horns of the steer. In fact, it is well known that these weapons, taken directly from the fruits of the chase, were actually employed by men before they made for themselves any other weapon than the club. The sword is simply the buffalo's long curved horn made into steel and flattened out, just as the dirk is the deer's antler made out of the same material, and so on to the end of the chapter.-New York Amer-

To Divert the Euphrates.

The deserts of Mesopotamia are not as arid as those of Egypt. After abundant rains they are covered with green grass and feed thousands of sheep, but the danger of the floods is great for the cultivators. The inhabitants of the Tigris and Euphrates valleys figure upon losing their crops and even their seed one year in three. To remedy this the waters of the Euphrates in time of overflow are to be diverted. This would cost $1.688. 750 and would require only three years to complete.

An Embarrassing Situation. A young man fresh from the varsity, where he had excelled in athletics, presented himself for ordination. The bishop, as was his custom, entertained the candidates at the palace, and after dinner the usual informal evening party took place. At this function the young man referred to entered into conversation with an affable gentleman in clerical attire whom he found standing in leisurely fashion just within the drawing room door. "Who's that rather scrumptious looking girl on the sofa?" said he. "She's my wife," replied the affable cleric, with an amused smile. The young candidate was silenced for a moment, then he stammered: "I am sure I beg ten thousand pardons! I thought she was the bishop's daughter." "So she is,"

Quaint Cures of Old. For epilepsy wear a ring made from a coffin ring and take seven drops of blood from the tail of a cat. These remedies are equally efficacious either separately or in conjunction. For toothache carry in the pocket the tooth of a soldier killed in battle or eat mouse nibbled bread or trim your nails on a Friday. To cure warts, rub a potato and give the potato to a pig, or rub them with a piece of chalk, then put it in a little bag and throw it across crossroads. Holding the affected finger in the ear of a cat for half an hour was reckoned an excellent remedy for a felon.

Origin of the Word "Farm." The origin of the word "farm" is as follows: In the Saxons' time the estates which the lords of manors granted to the freemen were at first but for a term of years, with a render of a rent, which in those days was of corn and other produce. The leases so made were called fermes or farmes, but times ensuing turned the produce into money and terms of years to terms of life and inheritance.-Westminster Gazette.

Dolls' Eyes That Grow In the Woods

In the spring woods we seldom observe the short, fuzzy clusters of the white baneberry flowers, but in the autumn woods their fruit, oval, white, poisonous berries, with a dark purple spot on the end, are very noticeable. They bear a remarkable resemblance to dolls' eyes; hence their common name. Country children often use them for dolls' eyes by pushing them into proper places in the face of the "rag ba-If the baby is black the effect is startling. It is more than realistic, for it is suggestive of ludicrous horror on the part of the little "pickaninny." Please remember that you may handle these berries freely, but do not eat them. Bathing In Sweden.

The weekly bath at some of the private schools in Sweden is a very funny affair. Running hot and cold water is unknown, and that the pupils may all bathe at the same time and help each other round, shallow tubs full of water are placed on the floor in a circle. Each boy is given a pair of cloth mittens and a piece of soap and told to get into a tub. The tubs are close together. When the boys have been in soak a few minutes each one is told to set to work on the back of the boy in front of him and give him a good scrubbing. Nothing could be more ludicrous than the sight of two or more dozen boys vigorously belaboring each other's back with their wash rags. Occasionally one will take this opportunity of paying off an old score and will dig his neighbor's back with a vengeauce. As a rule, all look forward to the bath hour with pleasure, and the greatest hilarity prevails amid the splashing of soap and water.

"I spy" is an old game and is found with a few variations in nearly every country in the civilized world. Blind man's bluff is almost universal. The name varies, but that is the only difference in most cases. In Norway it is called "blind thief," in Spain "blind hen" and in Italy "blind cat."

REMARKABLE · SERMONS.

Some Were Cruelly Long, and Others Were Models of Brevity.

Sermons are not so lengthy as they used to be, and one seidom sees in the comic prints the joke, so familiar in other times, wherein the minister was chided for his "fourteenthly" remark. which was supposed to mark a period in his sermon somewhat toward its close.

It is said that Thomas Hooker thought his duty ill performed if his sermon did not consume three hours. Once it is related that the famous divine did deliver a really short sermon-preaching exactly fifteen minutes. He sat down, but after a brief rest was up and at it again for two hours more. Every one of Cranmer's sermons was a small volume in itself. and Bunyan, Calvin, Baxter and Knox are all said to have been only a little more merciful to their hearers.

In striking contrast to these long winded discourses may be mentioned some startlingly brief sermons of late years. Perhaps the shortest of all was that delivered by a clergyman at Ocean Grove, N. J., who, after announcing his text, impressively surveyed his congregation and then said: "Don't worry; it's wicked." He then

in brevity and effectiveness, but a north of England vicar in the last century closely approximated it. He gave out the text, "God so loved the world." etc., to which he added this observa-

It would be difficult to exceed this

"My friends, did I speak an hour I couldn't make that message any plainer. I'll just leave it with you." Another example of a brief but extraordinarily effective sermon was furnished by an aged and feeble clergyman in Ohio. He had been requested to deliver a charity address on behalf of orphan children, but his strength was unequal to the task. It was therefore an inspiration indeed that moved him to stretch forth one feeble arm in the direction of the little unfortunates sitting near the pulpit and to exclaim with no little pathos, "Whence shall we find bread that these may eat?" So impressed was the congregation that the collection was the largest ever taken in that vicinity.-Chicago Record-Herald.

A Ghost In the Commons.

A certain M. P., lying ill on the continent a number of years ago, received an urgent "whip" for a critical division in the house and replied that he would be present at all cost to his health or convenience. On the eventful night when the house divided the tellers at the division lobby door saw the M. P. in question, and his vote was recorded. The day afterward it was discovered that the number of votes recorded by the division clerks was one short of the number given by the tellers. It was afterward found that at the time the division was taken the M. P. had breathed his last .- London Mail.

Simple Spot Remover.

This is a recipe for the very best "spot remover" you ever tried: Two ounces of castile soap shaved fine and two quarts of pure soft water. Boil till soap is thoroughly dissolved, strain and cool. When cool add one ounce sulphuric ether and two ounces of wood alcohol. Shake it well and keep corked. It is now ready for use and will remove spots and stains from your clothing like magic, especially woolen garments .- National Magazine.

An Old Time Champion. Robert Barclay Allardice, a Scotch captain in the British army, who was born in 1779 and died in 1854, was a noted pedestrian. At the age of fifteen he walked six miles within an hour. When he was twenty he covered 150 miles on foot in two days, and in June, 1801, in excessively hot weather ne walked 300 miles in five days. His most surprising performance was walking 1.000 miles in 1.000 successive hours. A half million dollars was staked on the result.

Killing a Fashion. The muff reached its highest point in the reign of Louis XV. Then fashion declared for a cloth muff instead of fur, and the furriers made a great uproar. Finally some ingenious merchant bribed the headsman to carry a cloth muff on execution day. The women shrank from such association, and the fur won the day.

Ten Wonders of Labor.

The Stone Trade News considers the ten most remarkable works of human labor:

1. The pyramids of Egypt, the largest of which, near Cairo, known as the great pyramid, built by Cheops, King of Egypt, took 350,000 men twenty years to build.

2. The artificial reservoir - Lake Mœris-built by Amenemba, of the twelfth dynasty, which serves to store up the waters of the Nile during the season of floods and distribute them over the land during the dry season. Its circumference was 5,600 furlongs, and on its being allowed to fall into ruin the fertility of the region became to a serious extent a thing of the past.

3. The Taj Mahal, a tomb erected at Aga, in Hindoostan, by Shan Jehan. over his queen, Noor Jehan. It is built of the purest white marble and yet seems so airy that when seen from a distance it is like a fabric of mist and sunbeams with its great dome soaring up, a silvery bubble about to burst in the sun, and even after you have touched it and climbed to its summit you almost doubt its reality. It cost over £3,000,000.

4. The temple of Baalbec, in the erection of which stones sixty-two feet long, twenty feet broad and fifteen feet thick have been used-more prodigious masses than have ever elsewhere been moved by human power and much exceeding in size the stones used in the pyramids.

The temple of Karnak, described by Fergusson as the noblest work of architectural magnificence ever produced by the hand of man. It covers the area of St. Peter's at Rome and undoubtedly is one of the finest buildings in the world.

6. The great wall of China, 1,230 miles in length. It is 20 feet in height and in thickness 25 feet at the base and 15 feet at the top.

7. The Eiffel tower, erected in the grounds of 1889 Paris exhibition, 984 feet high.

8. The Suez canal, with 88 miles of waterway connecting the Mediterranean and the Red seas, and forming the principal route to India. It cost more than £17,000,000, and 172,602 out of 399,677 shares were purchased by and belong to the British government.

The railway bridge (the largest cantilever bridge in the world) over the Forth, with two spans each of 1,700 feet, erected at a cost of nearly £4,000,000. 10. The leaning tower of Pisa, which deviates thirteen feet from the perden-

Baltimore County's Disgrace.

THE CARROLL RECORD and the machinery of justice and encourage lawlessness. In this aspect, the situation is one which concerns not Baltimore county alone, but the state at large, and if the commissioners of Baltimore county persist in keeping in office this man Gorsuch, and allowing the lawbreaking which has flourished under his regime to continue, the Governor should take cognizance of the conditions, and proceed, under the clause of the constitution which requires that "he shall take care that the laws are faithfully executed," with such steps as may be necessary to put a stop to these disgraceful practices.-Frederick Post.

The Drinking Men.

Prohibitionists and salocnkeepers local defenders of personal liberty may have divergent view as to the use and abuse of liquor and the propriety of restrictive laws in connection therewith, but they all think alike as to one thingand that is that the man who drinks or has been drinking has no place in the automobile. A drunken chauffeur or one ever so slightly under the influence of drink is a danger to the community. He is the driver of forty or sixty horseshorses that become wild, unsteady, terrifying, if his hand falters or his mind wanders, and go dashing down the streets leaving destruction in their path. The man who drinks has no right to run a car, whether he be the hired chauffeur or the owner of the machine. When he dares to do so and an accident results, the punishment should be so severe that others will be deterred from following his example. - Baltimore Sun

Of course, the man who drinks has no business trying to run an automobile. We agree with the Sun in the above, but ask that paper in what business or occupation has the dringing man a place? He is not wanted anywhere. The railroads have no use for him. He is not wanted in the manufactories. In professional and business circles he is frowned upon. In the labor world he is discriminated against, and even saloonkeepers are demanding sobriety on the part of their employes. The public is against the chauffeur who drinks and it is also against the drinking man in every other avenue of activity. - American Is-

The Buyers' Creed.

A trade paper, entitled the Tradesman, recently published a statement of reasons why a resident should buy in his home town. They seem so good that the RECORD deems them worthy of reproduction for the benefit of home trade.

Adopting the first person singular, the citizen, especially if he maintains and enjoys the commercial credit to which good people are entitled, says:

I BUY AT HOME Because my interests are here. Because I want to see the goods. Because the man I buy from stands back of the goods.

Because I want to get what I buy when I pay for it.

Because the value received always.

Because my home dealer "carries" me when I am run short.

Because I believe in transacting busi-share of the town and county taxes. Because every dollar I spend at home stays at home and helps work for the welfare of the town. Because the community that is good enough for me to live in is most certain-

To each pound of fruit put a teacupful of water, put in a preserving kettle, cover it and set it over the fire and let them boil gently until they are tender and clear then lift them from the water (by sticking a fork in the centre of each slice) into a dish. Add to the water white sugar, allowing pound for pound. Stir briskly until it is all dissolved then put in the pineapple. Cover the kettle and let them boil gently until transparent. When it is so take out the pineapple and let it cool, put into glass jars. Let the syrup boil slowly until rich and thick, and when nearly cold pour over the fruit. Seal perfectly tight. Preserves made in this way are beautiful and delicious. The old mode of putting the fruit and syrup on together to boil causes it to become 'leathery'' and tough.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson XIII. - Second Quarter, For June 25, 1911.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, a Comprehensive Quarterly Review - Golden Text, Mic. vi, 8-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

LESSON I.-Naaman healed, II Kings v, 1-14. Golden Text, Isa. xlv, 22, "Look unto me and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth, for I am God, and there is none else." Leprosy, a peculiar type of sin and sinners. Great sinners may be great in their own sight and in the esteem of others, but in God's sight lost. All can be saved if willing to submit to God and His way. Money cannot buy it.

Lesson II.-Elisha's heavenly defenders, II Kings vi, 8-17. Golden Text, Ps. xci, 11, "For He shall give His angels charge over thee to keep thee in all thy ways." God knows all our ways and our going out and coming in, and also our thoughts (Ps. exxxix and Ezek, xi, 5). If God be for us, who can be against us? God with us is more than all who can be against us. Opened eyes to see the unseen is our great need. He can do it.

Lesson III.-Joash, the boy king, II Kings xi, 9-20. Golden Text, Ps. cxix, 2, "Blessed are they that keep His testimonies and that seek Him with the whole heart." Ten times in this chapter we find the house of the Lord, or the temple of the Lord, or the Lord's people. God will take care of His chosen king, whether it be David or Joash or His Messiah.

LESSON IV.—The temple repaired, II Kings xii, 4-15. Golden Text, I Chron. xxix, 9. "Then the people rejoiced, for that they offered willingly." A chest beside the altar to receive the willing offerings of the people was the method of obtaining money which the Lord blessed. At least twelve times in this chapter the expression "the house of the Lord" occurs. Devotion to the Lord because of His sacrifice will bring all needed funds.

LESSON V.-God's pity for the heathen. Jonah iii, 5 to iv, 11. Golden Text, Matt. xxviii, 19, "Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations." Jesus Christ believed the story of Jonah and those who question it question the veracity of Jesus (Matt. xii, 39-41). Jonah was willing that the people of Nineveh should perish; the Lord is not willing that any should perish (II Pet. Note the things which God prepared and used-a wind, a fish, a worm, a gourd, and even rebellious

LESSON VI. - Uzziah humbled, II Chron. xxvi, 8-21. Golden Text, Prov. xvi. 18. "Pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall." Some people do right only as long as they have a strong visible human helper. The devil always tempts to pride and self sufficiency, but we can only be strong in the Lord, and the children of Israel returned from as we kno ness, for His strength is made perfect

LESSON VII.—Isaiah's call to service, Isa. vi. Golden Text, Isa. vi. 8, "I heard the voice of the Lord saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then said I, Here am I; send me." A vision of a man on the throne, the God man, alive forevermore, is what we all need (Ezek. i, 26-28). This works conviction of sin and self abhorrence; then follows forgiveness of sins, and then a readiness for service, as He may will.

LESSON VIII .- Song of the vineyard, Isa. v, 1-12. Golden Text, Isa. v, 22, "Woe unto them that are mighty to drink wine, and men of strength to mingle strong drink." Strong drink acts upon the body as pride does on the soul, the former causing a beastly drunkenness and the latter the drunkenness of Isa. xxix, 9-13. Only by the blood of Jesus Christ can we be saved from either, and only as filled with the spirit can we bear fruit.

LESSON IX.-Universal peace, Mic. iv. 1-8. Golden Text, Mic. iv, 3, "Nation shall not lift up a sword against nation; neither shall they learn war any more." This great saying is also found in Isa. ii, 4, and it shall be fulfilled when He who came as a babe to Bethlehem shall at His coming again in glory be Ruler in Israel (Mic. v, 2), not by peace conferences, nor by missions, nor by any present agencies, but only by Himself, at His second coming (Isa. xxxii, 1, 17).

LESSON X .-- The promise of the Father, John xiv, 15-27. Golden Text, John xiv, 16, "I will pray the Father, and He shall give you another comforter, that He may abide with you forever." Only by the Holy Spirit can we know God in Christ or receive His word, and only when the Holy Spirit shall be poured upon Israel shall they have a true conviction of sin and welcome Jesus Christ as their Messiah. LESSON XI.—Hezekiah's Passover, II Chron. xxx, 13-27. Golden Text, I Sam. xvi, 7, "Man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart." The great need of today is the zeal of a Hezekiah to cleanse the professing church from its filthiness and to turn it whole heartedly to the Lord.

LESSON XII.-The downfall of Samaria, II Kings xvii, 1-14. Golden Text, Prov. xxix, 1, "He that being often reproved hardeneth his neck shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy." As truly as judgment came on Israel so surely shall there be a fulfillment of II Thess. i, 7-10, and all similar predictions.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning June 25, 1911. Topic.—A missionary journey around the world.—VI. Missions in China. Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

The Chinese empire extends over nearly one-tenth of the habitable globe. In China proper there are eighteen provinces, each of which is about as large as Great Britain, "so that China proper may be compared to eighteen Great Britains placed side by side." But when Manchuria, Mongolia and other dependencies are included the territory embraced is as large as Europe and one-third more. Estimates made from the recent census taken in the empire place the population of this vast territory at over

The great wall was built in the third century before Christ as a protection against the invasion of the Tartars. The Chinese language has no alphabet. Each character represents a word, and in the written language the characters are arranged in perpendicular columns and read from top to bottom and from left to right. The Chinese are a mysterious people. Though they have passed through many profound changes, conservatism is one of their predominating traits. Their antipathy to change and to any and everything that is foreign is one of the greatest obstacles to the advancement of Christianity in the empire. This fact emphasizes the importance of native missionaries. When the masses of the Chinese hear the gospel proclaimed by members of their own race they will the more readily listen to the story of Jesus and His love.

Modern mission work dates back a little over 100 years. The pioneer missionary was Robert Morrison, who arrived in China in 1807. He baptized his first convert in 1814. His principal work was the translation of the Bible and other books into the Chinese language. In 1860 a new impetus was given to Chinese mission work. By the treaty of Tientsin Christian missions were legalized, the rights of the native Christians were acknowledged and an increased number of places opened to the gospel. In the face of many difficulties great progress has been made from that time down to the Medical missions have been extensively carried on in China. The opportunity was great, for the Chinese have made little progress in the science of medicine. Dr. Peter Parker was the founder of medical missions in China. In 1835 he opened a hospital in Canton. The government has aided in the support of hospitals and dispensaries. But There Were Two Traps and One Neutralized the Other

By Delia B. Thoms Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

My husband and I had been working for some time educating the peasantry in Russia and had the good luck to escape the police. Our work was done by means of matter written, printed and distributed all in secret. So long as we had no traitors among us we felt comparatively safe. And since we were all doing the work as a matter of duty the only danger from traitors was that some spy should come among us for the express purpose of betraying us. The other dangers were that the police should get word of our depots of supplies or intercept the matter while leaving our hands.

One day I went to the main depot to get some matter ready for shipment. The room was at the top of a business building, and I climbed the stairs with the usual dread lest I might find the room in the possession of the police, for I knew that when they raided any place hostile to the government they were accustomed to keep out of sight that they might entrap any one visiting it, not knowing that it had been raided. When I reached the top of the last staircase I paused and listened for some sound in our rooms, since I expected that one of our society was there. The only sound I heard was the ticking of a clock. I put my hand about to walk in when I stopped with a start. In the room were several officers of police.

Immediately one of them was sent the raid and be prepared. I knew that majesty's ears." if I led them to my home my husband There were bu possible.

"You know well enough what it means."

"I know that I came here to meet a friend. I may have got into the wrong room.' "You go with this man and show him where you live." I was not sorry to be refused, for I could not have bettered myself had he assented. I went down stairs with the man who had been assigned to the work of forcing me to implicate others, but I had nothing to gain by doing so, since I was doomed, of course, to Siberia in any event, and I was not likely to betray my own husband. I walked with the man who guarded me all over the city. At last he stopped and told me that if I did not take him to my home he would take me to police headquarters. The man did not appear very confident when he made this threat, and I determined to try to deceive him. I forced tears into my eyes, which was not very difficult considering the situation in which I was placed. I was aware at the time that the best way for a woman to get the better of a man is through tears.

"I am sorry for you," he said. "but I must do my duty.

"You don't understand why I weep," I replied. "You think it is because I fear to betray some one at home. What I fear is my husband. He suspects me, not of disobeying the law, but of having a secret from him. When he sees me coming in under arrest he will consider that his suspicions have been con-

I started on, but not in the direction of my home. My guardian walked silently beside me, I constantly giving vent to lamentations at the trouble I expected with my husband. At the end of half an hour, not seeing any end to our peregrinations, the man told me that he was forced to take me to the chief of police.

"Give me one more chance," I said. "I have finally made up my mind to take you to my home, to face my husband and have an end to this matter. But what a misfortune I have had in getting into the wrong room!"

I was at the time quite a distance from our rooms, but since I kept a straight path, not turning corners, as I had done before, my attendant did not consider that I was deceiving him. At any rate, he said nothing, walking beside me stolidly. I was in terror lest my husband had not been warned. If he had been I did not expect to find him at home, but did expect that our rooms would be stripped of documents.

Our home was on the second floor of an apartment house. I led my guard upstairs and opened the door of our living rooms with a wildly beating heart. I was shocked to see my husband sitting in an easy chair reading. He gave me and my attendant a look of wonder as we entered, but I knew that it was assumed. It told me also, or, rather, I inferred, that he had been warned and had remained at home in the hope that he might save me.

I threw myself at his feet and begged him not to condemn me unheard; that the fact that I came in charge of a police officer would be explained; that I had made a blunder which had resulted in very serious consequences. In short, I recounted what I had said to the police officers.

My husband took the cue readily, though I gave him plenty of time to understand by not leaving him an opportunity for reply, so voluminous were my excuses for coming home in charge of an officer. But when I paused for breath my husband raised me, took me in his arms and said to me:

"I believe every word you say. I confess I have been jealous of this man, who has been trying to induce you to look favorably upon him, but I have perfect confidence that you would not tell me a lie." Then on pretense of kissing me on the cheek he whispered: "Leave it to me."

"And, now, sir." he said, turning to the officer, "what can I do to convince you that my wife is a loyal subject of the emperor?"

"I must search these rooms," said the man doggedly.

"Do so. Go where you like. They are all on this floor.'

But the man, though not very bright looking, was not so stupid as to let us on the knob, opened the door and was remain in the living room while he went elsewhere.

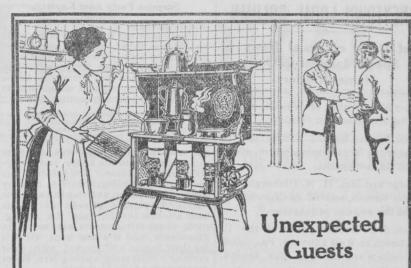

"You come with me," he said, including both of us.

"Certainly," said my husband. "We by his chief to go to my home with will assist you in your search. We me. No time was wasted, because it will open up every closet, guide you to was hoped to catch others implicated every nook, and when you are conin the work we were doing, and at any | vinced of our loyalty I trust that you moment such persons might hear of will report it so that it may reach his

There were but few rooms, and wewould be caught with a large amount or, rather, my husband-led him of educational printed matter in our through them all. In a cabinet was chambers. It was my object, there- found a number of pamphlets that my fore, to delay going there as long as husband had published some years before embodying suggestions to the government as to how to deal with revoasked one who seemed to be the chief | lutionists and profuse with expressions of loyalty. The pamphlet had been written when my husband first became interestetd in bettering the condition of our people and had greatly pleased the government. But the suggestions had not been followed, and the author had taken the work of education into his own hands. I did not doubt that he had placed these pamphlets where they would be found. though he had done so, expecting that an officer of higher rank would examine them.

The officer glanced at them, then put them under his arm to turn over to his superior. He poked his nose everywhere till finally my husbard threw open the door of a closet. The man entered, and quick as a flash my husband closed the door. The man knew at once that he had been tricked, put his foot in the opening and endeavored to force his way out. My husband and I both resisted, but we were scarcely equal to the task. One thought of Siberia was enough to give us sufficient strength to hold our own, and, while my husband remained braced against the door, I, who am by no means a light woman, brought the heel of my heavy walking boot down on the officer's toes. The pain must have been intense, but he held his foot in place. I looked about for something heavier than my boot and in a fireplace noticed the andirons. A few seconds' absence was enough to bring one of them, with which I dealt such blows that they must have broken every bone in the man's foot. He withdrew it, and I turned the key in the lock.

I, being dressed for the street, needed to put on no other clothing, and, my husband seizing his hat, we were about to go downstairs when we heard the door below open and, looking down the staircase, saw three officers of police enter. Doubtless I and my guard had been shadowed. The house was built in a block, walls at the sides, open front and rear. We rushed to a bedroom at the rear, locked the door, home I believed that he had understood made a rope of the bedclothing and me. If this were so, all I had to do let ourselves down to the ground. was to keep my attendant walking till | Running through the back yard to an my husband had been informed and alley, I turned and looked back. The police were at the window through which we had escaped. In another minute we were walking with apparhave no heart I suppose I must take ent unconcern on a crowded street.

The farmer and his wife were about to sit down to a cold supper when they saw some old friends driving towards the house.

The good wife was equal to the occasion—thanks to her New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

She had it lit in a moment, and her guests hardly were seated on the porch before a hearty hot meal was ready for the tablesausages and eggs and long rashers of streaky bacon, and rolls just crisped in the oven and fresh coffee—and the hostess herself as cool and neat as if she had not been near the kitchen.

The Invisible Mahdi.

That the mahdi has never been seen by on infidel goes without saying. The foot of the white man-or of the camel which he was riding-has never penetrated more than a few miles into the Senoussi territory. Few even of the faithful have seen their chief. At the prayer shrine in which he holds council, where he issues his orders and is worshiped as an inspired prophet, he is hidden behind a curtain, and merely his hand, stretched forth to be kissed, is visible. Only on the very rarest occasions does he draw aside the veil covering his face, and then but for a moment.-Wide World Magazine.

His Weight In Gold In Charity.

The ancient ceremony of weighing the king against masses of gold and silver will be duly carried out during the approaching royal visit to India. The bullion is subsequently coined and distributed among the poor. The total cost of the ceremony is estimated to be about $100,000. This custom will doubtless inspire the poor to unusually fervent prayers for the king's health. as an emaciated monarch would mean a serious diminution of revenue. On this occasion the weighing will be done in Calcutta.

worth while. Dr. John Wesley Hill, president of International Peace Forum, and pastor of the great Metropolitan M. E. Tabernacle, N. Y., a personal friend of many years of Rev. Seth Russell Downie, has asked him for an article as State Chaplain Pa. State Firemen's Association, in the form of an address on "World Peace," to be published through a Literary Bureau for circulation.

Baseball "rooting," which some seem to consider "part of the game," and absolutely necessary in order to be fully patriotic, is nevertheless a nuisance and an injury to the game. In the game last week, with Union Bridge, intelligent coaching might have won the game for Tanevtown, but a half-dozen coachers could not have made themselves heard and understood. The chief difficulty in most country games, is, that the crowd is entirely to close to the players, and largely for this reason their vocal play interferes with the game, and the enjoyment of the majority of spectators.

Surprise Party near Keymar.

For the RECORD. A very pleasant surprise was tendered Mrs. Milton Miller, at her home near Keymar, on Friday evening, June 9, it being in honor of her birthday. When the guests arrived they found the house all dark; it appeared as if no one was at home, but all patiently waited, and—

When at last the hostess came down All dressed up in a hobble gown, One shoe off and the other shoe on, Hair done up in a Turban crown—and saw what the trouble was, all were soon ushered into the house and everybody made welcome. The evening was spent most enjoyably, the older folks by social conversation and music, and the "Kids" by playing games. At a late hour all were invited into the diningroom where refreshments were served in abundance, and at a late hour all left for their homes well pleased with their evening's enjoyment wishing Mrs. Miller many more happy birthdays.

Those present were Milton Miller and family, Charles Garber and wife, Mrs. J. A. The following extract from a letter from Rev. P. S. Hooper, at Saltaire, Fire Island, seems to indicate participation in an outing not exactly to his liking. Evidently, he would prefer North-

"Twelve days ago we came across the Great South Bay, bag and baggage, crowded into an unfinished bungalow in which we are trying to be happy, but we have seldom tackled a harder task, and are now only beginning to be reconciled knowing that we are doomed to to the inevitable. We can see Bay Shore across the Bay, five miles away; my sonin-law to his office and the three children to their school are taken to and fro ually by beautiful boats; but I stay with my daughter and help to mitigate her We brought over about twenty pullets and a hen on thirteen eggs on which she squats with the grim determi-nation of fate. That's a fad, at least among people sometimes, but natural among hens, and makes a lot of trouble for both classes of living beings. The Saltaire construction company is developing a portion of these sand dunes near the light house, and got many persons in the city interested who are also building bungalows and other neat and even attractive structures. Ours, when completed, will be among the best, but oh, the waiting on slow and unreliable workmen is trying to mind and body.

Opium Growing In This Country. The Post Graduate, a medical magazine, reports a rumor that a plantation for the growing of opium is to be established in this country and says that "as our revenue laws prohibit the importation of opium, except for medical purposes, and as undoubtedly opium could be cultivated in some parts of our country in which the climate is similar to that in which it is grown in the east our government will be charged with the duty of strictly supervising any attempts to raise such a crop if it can be made commercially successful." According to this journal. 500,000 pounds of opium are used annually in the United States, "a hundred times more than is prescribed by physicians."

Aid to Husbands' Memories. The United States government is undertaking a cure for men who forget to mail their wives' letters. The postoffice department, as an experiment, has installed mail boxes in street cars in the city of Washington. If it works well in the capital this aid to bad memories will be extended to other cities. The idea is that with a mail box staring him in the face while a man is on his way to his office there is no excuse for his carrying a letter in his pocket more than three or four days. Thus far the postoffice has provided no relief for the wife whose husband forgets to bring home the butter or order the coal.-Success Magazine.

The Bathing Habit.

A New York woman who returned recently from a European capital. where she had gone to be under the treatment of a specialist of international reputation, in speaking of her trip and the cure which had been accomplished, said that her physician, a brusque and not overpolite man, had much to say in criticism of Americans and American customs and was most emphatic in his denunciation of the bathing habit, saying that "all Americans except those who were immigrants and still retain some of their European habits bathe too often."-New York Tribune.

Harry Lauder's Treat.

Harry Lauder, who really cares no more for a dime than his right eye. was walking up Broadway one afternoon during his recent trip to New York. With him was a young lady, a friend of the family.

As Lauder and his companion came opposite a florist's who had a particularly fine display of flowers outside his store, where the fragrance reached every one, the young woman instinctively stopped and, looking longingly at the display, said: "My, but don't they smell sweet?" "That they do," said Lauder. "Let's stand here awhile and smell them."

JOINING THE ARMY

Opportunities That Are Open to the Enlisted Man.

HIS PAY AND HIS PROSPECTS.

Even as a Private He Can Run His Salary Up to $35 a Month, and as a "Noncom" He Can Double That and In Time Retire Rich and Pensioned.

There are many opportunities open to the man who enlists in the United States army and wears the uniform of Uncle Sam with honor to himself and his country. The pay is good, the food is good, and the chances for advancement are numerous. It is up to the individual man himself to make good and to take advantage of the Writing in the Columbian Magazine on army affairs, Edward Marshall in discussing the status of the enlisted

Summarized, this is what a man who thinks of marching for his Uncle Samuel as an enlisted man has to con-

On first enlistment the soldier for Old Glory nowadays gets $15 a month, far better pay, for instance, than the average clerk's, for board, lodging and clothing are furnished by the government. If he qualifies as marksman he adds $2 to his pay; if as a sharpshooter he gets $3 in addition; if as an expert rifleman a full third more. Thus he may at once get $20 monthly cash and found if he is able and keeps

If he enlists as a musician he gets $21 monthly to start off with, the highest "rookie's" pay. In the signal corps, the hospital corps and the engineers' corps first class privates get $18 monthly, and second class privates get $15.

Upon enlistment every man is allowed $83.70 for his uniforms, etc., and afterward $13.54 twice annually. At least one-half the men save money on their clothing allowance, which is more than ample. Privates' pay increases $3 a month for each three year enlistment. An expert rifleman who never gets to be a petty officer, therefore, can run his pay up, with good conduct and intelligence, to $35 a month and all his necessaries "found" in five enlistments covering fifteen

Noncommissioned officers are taken from the ranks on recommendation of their company or troop commanders and are often given their posts upon their first enlistments. These men are really well paid. A sergeant major is allotted to each regiment. He receives $45 monthly when he is appointed and $4 additional per month each time be re-enlists. Regimental commissary sergeants, regimental quartermaster's sergeants and the three battalion sergeants in each regiment get the same high pay. Each company has a first sergeant at $45, with an increase of $4 upon re-enlistments; a second sergeant at $36, with $3 increase for each re-enlistment; a corporal at $18, with $3 each for re-enlistments. The government acts as banker for the soldiers, too, if they desire to have it, and noncommissioned officers have left the service with as much as $20,000 saved -not one, but many. If he sticks tight to the service for full thirty years a noncommissioned officer is entitled to retirement on pay ranging from onehalf to three-quarters of his service pay. Seventy dollars monthly is not unusual pay for a "noncom" to retire on. And every year of service seen outside the United States counts as two years at a home post. A man, therefore, after fifteen years of service in the islands may retire on his haif

The food the "noncoms" and the other enlisted men are given is wholesome and well cooked, the medical attendance free and able, post and garrison schools have been provided at all posts for the primary branches, and at several posts trade schools have been established. A worthy man, no matter where he may be stationed, is almost certain to get transfer to a "school post" if he asks for it. Cooking, baking, blacksmithing, veterinary surgery, electrical and stationary engineering, all are taught at these trade schools, as well as many other things. Thus a boy who has had little chance to get an education may, after he has joined the army, get a very good one.

There seems to be but one thing which army life does not offer to the enlisted man. But that one thing is

In its degree indeed the life of the enlisted man now offers more inducements than the life of the West Pointer. The commissioned officer's pay is small when his expenses and the effort he must make to get commissioned are considered, and, furthermore, the noncommissioned officer is not so subject to political influences as the West Pointer, who gives him his com-
