-Hardly had the strawberry season closed before our farmers were shipping apples. Now cantaloupes and sweet corn are ready for market. Farmers in this vicinity produce many different crops and are sending their city neighbors some-thing nearly every day in the year for which they are realizing good prices. A few years ago the farmer relied altogether upon his wheat and corn crop but today he does not. Though wheat and corn are as extensively grown, we regard the fruit and vegetable as the money crops and for the cultivation of them our soil seems especially adapted. - Pocomoke Ledger-Enterprise.

-+0+ Whether or not the State convention is to be reconvened for the purpose of kicking the Roosevelt electors off the regular Republican ticket and putting Taft elec tors in their places will be definitely decided at a meeting of the Republican State Central Committee which will be held at headquarters in the Calvert building next Wednesday. The call for the meeting was sent out by Chairman John B. Hanna, Thursday morning, and the convention call will undoubtedly follow unless the other Roosevelt electors follow the example of Charles H. Torsch and resign in the meantime. Altogether, five Rooseveltites remain upon the Republican electoral ticket. On the whole, the abundance of chances to buy does not seem to represent any particular distrust for the future, but rather a disposition to sell only at satisfactory prices.

This is particularly true of farms, as the few sales made represent a mainten-ance of land values, which is especially gratifying in a Presidential election year. when financial operations are usually more or less attended by fear of unsettled conditions, arising from the possible operation of new governmental policies.

> --New Bug After the Grapes.

Farmers are already "bagging" their grapes in order to protect them from certain destructive moths and worms. This year a new insect is infesting the grape vines. It appears on the under side of the leaves, sucks out the green coloring matter and causes the leaves to turn gray. Farmers state that they have used a poison spray on their vines, but that the insects still suck gaily on.

State Zoologist Surface has issued a statement telling those interested that the insects merely suck the vital juice of the leaf and do not get the poison, as the potato bug would. In this case the unpotato bug would. der side of the leaves must be sprayed as the insects can only be killed by a 'contact' poison. If the farmers and nurserymen are not careful the grapes of this section will be small, immature and tasteless. - Gettysburg Times.

COLLEGE PROPERTY REMOVED TO NEW WINDSOR

Friends of Blue Ridge Have A Big Flitting Party.

The sudden accomplishment of the leasing of New Windsor College buildings by the Trustees of Blue Ridge College, for the coming college year, on last Wednesday, necessited the quick removal of the College furnishings from their former home to New Windsor. On Thursday afternoon, at the close of the Harvest Home services at Pipe Creek church, a public invitation was given to all those who felt sufficient interest in the welfare of the college, to send their teams to Union Bridge, on Friday morning, to assist in the removal. A goodly number responded.

On the arrival of the first teams, the task before them appeared herculean. However, they went to work energetically, loading each wagon to its full capacity and sending them to their destination as fast as loaded. By 3.00 o'clock in the afternoon the principal part of the goods had been removed and work was suspended for that day.

On Saturday, two more loads were hauled, and on Monday three more, which concluded the transfer of the B. R. C., belongings from Union Bridge to New Windsor. About twenty-eight large New Windsor. About twenty-eight large loads were taken. Those who furnished teams were, Jesse Weybright, Charles Blacksten, Thomas Fritz, William Bow-ers, Edward Beard, Lewis Green, Samuel ers, Edward Beard, Lews Green, Samuel Hoff, Samuel Pfoutz, Ernest Senseney, David Young, Keener Bankard, William Hesson, Walter Snader, Harry Hull, Herbert Englar, Preston Roop, J. Etzler, Robert Etzler, Herbert Ecker, William Main, Edward Rinehart, Mrs. Annie R. Stoner, Prof. J. J. John and Emory

The Trustees of the College express their thanks to those who so kindly furnished the means by which the removal was thus quickly accomplished. In passing through the deserted halls at the close of the days' activities, the following lamentations on the unwonted fate of the college, evidently written by students, were noted on the blackboards in commercial hall and the room of the juvenile department, "Goodbye to Old Blue Ridge 1912. B. R. C., must die that others may "Closed forever and ever," blessed Old College the home of so many boys and girls," "Blue Ridge shall never shine on this hill again; how sadly true.

*** Drinking Cups Must Go.

The State Board of Health, in compliance with a law passed by the last legis-lature, will try to abolish the use of the common drinking cup at all public places. In fact, if the law is enforced as it stands, drinking cups will be abolished at practically all places except wells on private property, and in private dwellings. The act provides that a fine not exceeding $25.00 shall be imposed for violation. The act, as published, reads as follows: Section 1. The term "common drinking cup," shall be construed to mean any glass, cup, dipper or other vessel, recep tacle or container, exposed on railroad trains or boats, or in other public places within this state, for the drinking of water or other fluids, in such a manner as to allow such receptacles or containers to be used consecutively without previous washing cleansing or disinfection.

Section 2. The term "public places" shall be construed to mean courthouses, hotels, churches, public highways, grand jury rooms, railroad stations, railway cars or other common carriers, barber shops, canneries, machine shops and other manufacturing establishments, stores, libraries, sanatoriums, hospitals, theaters, moving-picture places, dance halls, clubs, public baths, grounds, racetracks, public places of amusement all public and private schools, jails, asylums, public buildings public in-stitutions and all other places visited by many persons and especially assessible to the neighboring public.

Section 3. The use of common drinking cups as defined in these regulations is hereby prohibited upon all railroad trains, carrying passengers and all boats carrying passengers while within this state.

Section 4. No person shall apply his or her lips to the spigot or other outlet of any water cooler, bucket, tank or vessel in which water or other fluids used for drinking purposes is or are contained. nor shall any person apply his or her lips to such tank, bucket or other vessel for the purpose of drinking the contents of the same

It was decided that this could not be done at present, but that if the necessary requirements were met within the year, an inspection would be made by the State Superintendent, after which the Board would take steps toward establishing a high school.

The Abuse of the Automobile.

The twentieth century may fairly be called the age of speed. The trolly-car, rushing through the city streets and country roads, replaces the jogging horse-car and rumbling stage; the fast steamers take you to England in five days; the thousand miles between New York and Chicago is covered in eighteen hours; and mankind has almost forgotten the joys of a quiet saunter. Distances have been shortened by the bicycle, the automobile and the motor-boat; and the aeroplane is to outspeed them all.

Although much is gained perhaps, the physician knows that something is lost.

it may occur again at any time. Another ailment that may affect the passengers as well as the driver is a painful stiff neck caused by unconscious muscular tension. But the most serious penalty that follows abuse of the automobile is neurasthenia, or nervous breakdown. A man whose brain is fatigued with business cares cannot with safety substitute another form of mental strain for the needed relaxation. — Youth's Companion.  $\bullet \diamond \bullet$

Judge Motter for Taft.

Frederick, Md., August 8.—"President Taft is my choice" is the way Judge Motter, the Republican leader of Frederick county, expressed himself today when asked how he vieved the presidential situation. This statement from Judge Mot-ter, who was probably the first state leader of note to declare for Roosevelt before the primaries, has naturally created considerable surprise. In the change Judge Motter is not alone, as dozens of the smaller leaders have been found who declare they will not follow Roosevelt, but intend to work for President Taft. 'I was for Roosevelt when he was Republican, but now since he has formed third party I am not for him.

"I am a Republican, and there I in tend to remain and will support the Republican nominee for president. I am aware there were some things done at Chicago which I do not approve, but they are not such things that cannot be corrected. Again, these things were done by few, and a party should not be judged ov the acts of a few.' The Judge made no effort to hide the fact he was for President Taft, and that ne considered Roosevelt has divorced himself from the Republican party.

POLITICAL EVENTS OF GENERAL INTEREST.

Roosevelt's Convention at Chicago Launches New Party.

The big political event of the week, was the birth of the third party, in Chicago. The convention was attended by delegates from every state except South Carolina, there being a sprinkling of former Democrats among the number. Former Senator Beveridge, of Indiana, was chosen convention chairman. A large number of women were present, one being on the Resolutions committee. Bull Moose heads and bandanas were conspicuous among the decorations.

The only contests among state delegations were from Florida and Mississippi; in the former, both delegations of negroes were thrown out, and in the latter the white delegates were seated instead of the negroes. So far as southern negroes are concerned, the convention was "lily white," but from northern states the negroes received equal treatment.

While the convention was enthusiastic While the convention was enthusiastic, in a machine made way, it was so wholly a one-man convention, platform and nomination—so just as it was expected to be—that aside from what Roosevelt himself said and done, it was not of unusual interest. He delivered his address—the tenor of which had been largely foreasted—on Tuesday, before the platform was completed or the nomination made the only disturbing question being made, the only disturbing question being the status of negro delegates.

He attacked both the Republican and Democratic parties and platforms as being representative of bad faith with the people, and neither to be trusted; the people, and not the courts, are to de-termine fundamental policies: the Democratic party lacks good sense and the Republican party honest policies; en-dorsed the establishment of wage scales, old age pensions, Presidential primaries, woman suffrage, recall of judicial decisions, and the initiative, referendum and recall. He disavowed socialism and declined to be drawn out on the liquor question. On Wednesday, Roosevelt was nomion Wednesday, Roosevert was normalized for President, and Gov. Johnson, of California, for Vice-President, both by acclamation. There was not a roll-call, or a ballot yote, during the convention. The candidates appeared on the platform, after being nominated, and made their preschange of containing. The suse and benefits of the automobile, for example, are great if it is sensibly used; but when it is abused, the danger to those in and out of the car at full speed is a pleasurable form of intoxication, but like all intoxication, it has its penalties, and they are heavy.

It was a one man convention. It stands to-day a one-man party. What it may be in the future can only be guessed. What it is now is a matter of fact. If Roosevelt had withdrawn his candidacy, the convention and the party would have dissolved. The organization would have ceased to exist in 30 days if by any chance it survived the convention.

During the three days there was not a single roll-call, nor a ballot taken. The delegates asked no such formalities either in placing their candidates in nomination years. One of the popular convention songs illustrated the overpowering sentiment of the delegates:

Follow, follow
We will follow Roosevelt
Anywhere he leads us
We will follow him."

The second notable event of the week was the ceremony of notifying Gov. Wilson of his nomination as the Democratic candidate. At his request there was no display at the event, which was held at Sea Girt, N. J., but it was a notable and enthusiastic one, nevertheless.
Congressman Ollie James, delivered the notification speech, which was met with shouts of approval, while the response of Gov. Wilson was enthusiastically received.

He said there are two great things to be done; to set up the rule of justice and right as to the tariff, trusts and industrial interests; and to protect our people and resources in such a way as to keep door of opportunity open to all people. He said "There is no one indispensable man; the government will not go to pieces if any one of the people who are seeking to be invested with its guidance should be left at home.'

What is the plural of "Bull Moose"? has been worrying the grammarians. Some say it is "Meese" while others incline toward "Moose-bulls" and just "Mooses". But, now that the Colonel is hot foot after women yoters, the correct feminine of the term is of the utmost interest. Is it "Cow-moose", or "Moosess", or "Mooserine," or "Doe-moose", or "Moose-bulless"? This is a question that ought to be authoritatively settled.

-♦⊙♦-Playing at Government.

The American people are so strong after the form of a thing, that they frequently overlook its substance. In no more important respect is this true than in the consideration of our greatest public men, or rather, of men who are chosen, or to be chosen, to our highest official positions. The qualifications of men for 'the job' are, in large measure, in popular estimation, held to be subordinate to the outward form, or mannerisms of the Cut Down the Use of Meat.

The continued advance in meats. whether due to a "beef trust," or to natural conditions, is a matter of serious fact everywhere. So burdensome has the cost of meat become, that the Mayors of several large cities have advised all citizens to cut down, to as small an amount as possible, the consumption of meats. Meat eating is largely a matter of acquired habit, or taste, as meat, especially in large quantity, is not essential, even to those who engage in heavy labor.

Perhaps the greatest help toward reducing the demand for meats, and consequently the high prices, can be exercised by those who can still afford to pay fancy prices for the choice cuts. In the interest of the general situation, and especially if the market is under the control of a began "trust," everybody should join in the crusade, and cut down meat consumption to the lowest point.

A little ingenuity, and perhaps additional cooking, on the part of the presiding genius of the kitchen, can devise meat substitutes, which will not only rethe general health of the body.

"To keep abreast of the times, each city, town and section of Maryland must use the same general methods that have been profitably employed elsewhere. To get the fullest measure of results, they must act together through some central agency. That central agency in turn must work at all times to promote the interests of each city, town and section. Each has its own particular needs, and the lines of action on which they should specialize are not always the same. ### NATURAL METHODS WITH GUIN-EAS.

Raising guineas on the canary cage plan is a trick which we have yet to see succeed because the guinea, like the turkey, is not yet denaturalized. There are certain conditions necessary for guinea eggs to be strongly fertilized to batch well and for the keets to thrive and mature perfectly, and our pictures tell the story.

Mother Guinea was not raised in a bandbox. She and her mates roamed through wood and field, drank from crystal springs, perched with the birds

This meant eggs, many eggs, eggs day Mother Guinea stole away and hid her nest under a fallen tree top in the DYEING THE EGG YOLK.

Milady does like an egg with a big golden yolk, just as she wants the butter in pretty yellow prints and her broilers built on bright butter ball style. She knows that, while appearances are often deceitful, looks have a lot to do with making eats appetizing, and whenever people have the choice of yellow and light butter and yellow and light yolks in nearly every case they pick the yellow. Now, this is not a vellow streak. It's a fad. The purchaser often imagines the golden product tastes better; then, too, there are the enhanced beauty and increased allurement of that rich golden sponge cake and buttercup colored egg custard. This gold fever demand has made golden butter the year around. It's dyed. People dyed, too, before the law defined and declared what butter color buttermakers might use. Now there is such a demand for yellow yolked eggs and they are selling at such a better price that egg farmers wish to dye the egg yolks, and this is easy.

They need not dye the hen nor dye at all. The color is not in the breed. but in the feed. Yellow corn gives a with strong, livable germs, and one rich yolk. Green grass, clover, alfalfa, as well as the cured product, make yellow yolks just as they make yellow cream and yellow butter. Wheat, oats, white corn, beef scrap, barley, cabbage, beets - these furnish the unpopular light yolk.

Anty Drudge Tells How to Avoid Sunday Soaking.

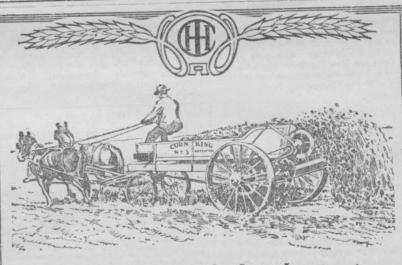

Mrs. Hurryup-"I always put my clothes to soak on Sunday night. Then I get an early start on Monday and get through washing by noon. I don't consider it breaking the Sabbath, for cleanliness is next to godliness, you know."

Anty Drudge-"Yes, but godliness comes first, my dear. And you should keep the Commandments. Get a cake of Fels-Naptha and you won't have to soak your clothes over night, and your washing will be all done by noon; without boiling, without hard werk and with more satisfaction than any other way."

Rough, red hands are the trial of most housewives. "I don't mind the work if I could only keep my hands nice," sighs the young woman.

You will have less work and nice hands at the same time if you use Fels-Naptha soap in washing clothes. Hot water chaps the hands; hard-rubbing on the washboard swells the knuckles. Using Fels-Naptha in cold or lukewarm water, you have neither hot water, hard-rubbing nor nauseous steam. But Fels-Naptha must be used the Fels-Naptha way-no boiling.

SOME OLD FAVORITES

DISHES WITH HEALTHFUL AND APPETIZING RHUBARB.

Excellent Mould for Luncheon or Supper Dish-Made in "Friars' Pudding" Style, It Will Be Greatly Appreciated.

There are now many ways of sending up rhubarb for table besides baking in a tart or boiling with crust. Not that these are to be despised, but skillful making of the pastry is necessary. To stew it, peeling the stem and cutting into lengths, cooking slowly in a syrup, is the next most ordinary plan, and if rightly done-cooked neither too little nor too long-it is welcome enough and a wholesome spring dish, served with cream, custard or cold mold of some kind or oth-similarly. An excellent mould for a luncheon or supper dish is made of rhubarb cut into lengths and boiled until sufficiently liquid to pass through a jelly bag. Then the liquid so procured is sweetened and stiffened with a little good gelatine. This if it does not seem quite of an appetizing pinkness a few drops of carmine can be added. This is cooked till of the necessary stiffness to "jelly" well and then poured into a mould and set aside to cool. Whipped cream should be served with it.

A more homely hot dish is made after the style of friars' pudding, with layers of rhubarb and bread crumbs. The rhubarb should be fresh, of course, and cut into rather short lengths, and a layer be placed at the bottom of a pie dish, well sprinkled with Demerara sugar; then a layer of bread crumbs on which a few bits of butter are placed, then rhubarb again and so on, bread-crumbling coming at the top, plentifully buttered, so as to brown nicely and crisp a little in the baking.

A most delightful preserve can be made of rhubarb and oranges. Needless to say, it has to be earlier in the year than the old-fashioned rhubarb jam, so as to secure cheap oranges. The rhubarb requires more cooking than the other fruits, which are fairly sweet by the time the other is ready. The stems are prepared as usual and cooked for a short time. The oranges are peeled, seeds taken out and all the white removed. Then cut up in thick slices and stir into the rhubarb. Sugar may be added, one pound to one pound of fruit, unless it is decided to have rather sharpflavored jam, when three-fourths of a pound may be enough.

Few indeed are the households where homemade wines are concocted in these days. Perhaps few people are aware what a delicious and attractive looking sparkling wine can be made from rhubarb. The process, however, is long and toilsome, not lightly to be undertaken, and, therefore, scarcely possible in our hurried, and cut them in halves. Take out the busy times. Moreover, the product is yolks and make a paste of them, adddecidedly "heady," so for temperance ing a teaspoon of melted butter, three the recipe.

Novel Eggs for Breakfast

Many persons who do not care for hard-boiled eggs have just as great a dislike to the very soft ones in which the white is scarcely congealed. There is an appetizing cross between these, however.

Plunge the eggs in boiling water, then put on the back of the stove for ten minutes, but do not boil. This makes the eggs soft and waxy. Put in ice water and when thoroughly chilled remove the shells, carefully keeping the eggs whole.

When ready to use heat in a meat stock and serve on rounds of buttered or it can go on a bed of spinach, choppen fine and highly seasoned. Only a fresh egg can be cooked in this way.

The Bathroom.

A small bathroom will display every inch to advantage by being treated in the following way:

Paint the baseboard and side walls a light gray up to the height of four feet, and finish by a wooden molding painted the same color.

Paint the ceiling a light blue. Paper the side walls above the molding. A blue paper with a design of upward flights of swallows suggests height, and with good perspective the effect is noticeably light and free.

Lemon Pie With Two Crusts. Into a double boiler put one generous cup of sugar and two heaping tablespoons of flour. Mix and add one cup of hot water, three eggs well beaten and juice and rind of one large lemon. Cook in a double boiler, stirring until thick. Cool and line your plates with nice crust, put in filling, wet edges and put on top crusts as usual. This makes two small pies.

Lobster Sandwich.

Chop the lobster meat till pretty fine, quite to a paste, stir in mayonnaise, a hint of onion, a few drops of sherry or brandy, mix, then spread on lettuce leaves between two thinly cut slices of bread, in the usual way.

Asparagus Salad.

Drain the asparagus, after taking it from the can, or, if fresh, boil it until tender in salted water, and dress like string bean salad, either with French, vinaigrette or mayonnaise dressing.

CANNING AND JELLY MAKING

Some of the Necessary Utensils and a Few Rules That Should Be Observed.

The following utensils are necessary for all kinds of preserving: A 10 or 12quart porcelain lined kettle, a white enameled ladle, a long handled spoon, a wide mouthed funnel, a colander, several pans, paring knives, a wooden masher, scales and one or two cloth bags through which to strain the jelly. If many jars are to be filled, a clothes boiler will be convenient for sterilizing them.

Have a rack in the bottom of the boiler, and on it place jars and covers, and completely cover them with cold water. Bring the water slowly to the boiling point and boil for twenty minutes. Have fresh rubbers and scald them by dipping them in the boiling water. The most important thing to remember is that every utensil must be perfectly clean, and no dust which can be prevented shall be allowed to rise during the time of putting the Rhubarb, in fact, is very nice used | fruit in the jars. Great care must be taken in filling the jars. Do not take them from the boiling water and set them on a cold table, or in a draft; otherwise they will crack and sometimes break. A break is often better than a crack, as a crack sometimes is so small that it escapes one's notice should color quite nicely of itself, but until the jar falls apart and the contents are lost. Also care must be taken to have the syrup boiling, and to fill the jars completely, even to overflowing.—Good Housekeeping Maga-

FRAPPES THAT ARE DELICIOUS

Tea, Coffee and Chocolate Are Three of the Easiest Made from Beverages.

Tea Frappe—Boil one cupful of sugar and two cupfuls of water for five minutes to make a syrup. Add one pint of fairly strong tea, freshly made and cooled, then the grated rind and juice of three oranges, the juice of two lemons and one can of grated pineapple. Freeze in a freezer if desired, or turn into a mold, cover the top with paraffin paper or buttered paper, place a cover on it tightly, and pack in a mixture of equal parts of salt and ice for three hours. Remove from the mold and garnish with slices of lemon or crushed mint leaves, dusted with powdered sugar. Coffee Frappe--Make coffee the strength desired, strain it carefully and cool and sweeten to taste, then place it in a mold and pack as for all frappes. One cupful of cream may be added before packing, if desired. Garnish with whipped cream in serving. Chocolate or Cocoa Frappe-Make chocolate or cocoa as if for a beverage, add for four cupfuls, one teaspoonful of vanilla and one cupful of strong, clear coffee. Freeze in a freezer or mold in ice and salt. Serve in tall sherbet glasses and garnish with whipped cream.

Stuffed Eggs and Rice.

Hard-boil six eggs, remove the shells ake it is as well, perhaps, not to give sardines mashed, one-half teaspoon of into balls and fill in each half of the whites. Have ready some hot boiled rice on a dish and sink the 12 halves into it symmetrically to form an attractive design. Place the dish over hot water while you rub together two teaspoons of butter and two teaspoons of flour, a cup of milk, a cup of stock and seasoning. When this has boiled pour over all and garnish with parslev. Serve very hot.

Lemon Sponge.

Soak one tablespoon of granulated gelatin in one-quarter cup of cold water; when soft add one cup of boiling water, one cup of sugar and one-third toast, with a cream sauce poured over, cup of lemon juice. Stir until dissolved, strain and set aside to cool. Stir the mixture occasionally until frothy, add the beaten whites of three eggs and continue beating until stiff. Serve with custard sauce.

Custard Sauce-Beat the yolks of three eggs until light, add one-half saltspoon of salt and one pint of hot milk. Cook until thick, flavor with one teaspoon of vanilla and chill .-Mrs. H.

Vermicelli Soup.

Blanch six ounces of vermicelli by setting it on the fire in cold water; when it boils drain the water and put it into cold water; let it remain a few minutes, then drain the water entirely from it; put it into a pan with two quarts fresh milk and boil it; beat up the yolks of four eggs and after gradually adding a pint of boiled cream. strain through a sieve and add one tablespoon mushroom catsup; take off the pan, add the eggs, a small lump of white sugar, a teaspoon of salt and sttir over the fire till near boiling.

Raw Cocoanut Is Best.

Purchase the raw nut rather than the desiccated cocoanut. It is easily put through the food cutter, and if the finest knife is used it gives a more easily digested article for cakes or candies than the dried product. If more is ground than can be used mix sugar with it and dry. It will keep indefinitely.

Racy Chicken Sandwich.

Use the white meat of the chicken only; after rubbing the chopping bowl with an onion, chop in it the chicken meat. Season well with paprika, stir into it a little chicken stock, then sufficient amount of mayonnaise and prepare as any other sandwich.

CHAPTER I.

The Wreck of the Taxicab.

The young woman in the taxicab scuttling frantically down the dark street, clung to the arm of the young man alongside, as if she were terrified at the lawbreaking, neck-risking speed. But evidently some greater fear goaded her, for she gasped: "Can't he go a little faster?"

"Can't you go a little faster?" The young man alongside howled as he thrust his head and shoulders through the window in the door.

But the self-created taxi-gale swept short cut. his voice aft, and the taut chauffeur perked his ear in vain to catch the vanishing syllables.

"What's that?" he roared. "Can't you go a little faster?" The indignant charioteer simply had to shoot one barbed glare of reproach into that passenger. He turned his head and growled:

"Say, do youse want to lose me me license?

For just one instant he turned his head. One instant was just enough. The unguarded taxicab seized the opportunity, bolted from the track, and flung, as it were, its arms drunkenly around a perfectly respectable lamppost attending strictly to its business on the curb. There ensued a condensed Fourth of July. Sparks flew, tires exploded, metals ripped, two wheels spun in air and one wheel, neatly severed at the axle, went reeling down the sidewalk half a block before it leaned against a tree and

A dozen or more miracles coincided to save the passengers from injury. The young man found himself standing on the pavement with the unhinged door still around his neck. The young woman's arms were round his Her head was on his shoulder. It had reposed there often enough, but never before in the street under a lamppost. The chauffeur found him- the girl under one arm and the dogself in the road, walking about on all basket under the other, and set out,

"What time is it, honey?" And the young man, how befuddled he really was, or how his hand trembled, fetched out his steps died in the silence. Then he watch and held it under the glow of turned back to the chaotic remnants the lamppost, which was now bent of his machine. interrupted by a muffled hubbub of yelps, whimpers and canine hysterics. Immediately the young woman forgot ministers, collisions, train-scheduleseverything. She showed her first sign of panic, "Snoozleums! Get Snoozleums!" They groped about in the topsyturvy taxicab, rummaged among a jumble of suitcases, handbags, umbrellas and minor impedimenta, and fished out a small dog-basket with an inverted dog inside. Snoozleums was ridiculous in any position, but as he slid tail foremost from the wicker basket, he resembled nothing so much as a heap of tangled yarn tumbling out of a work-basket. He was an indignant skein, and had much to say before he consented to snuggle under his mistress' chin.

About this time the chauffeur came prowling into view. He was too deeply shocked to emit any language of the garage. He was too deeply shocked to achieve any comment more brilliant than:

"That mess don't look much like it ever was a taxicab, does it?"

The young man shrugged his shoulders, and stared up and down the long street for another. The young woman looked sorrowfully at the wreck, and queried: "Do you think you can make it go?"

The chauffeur glanced her way, more in pity for her whole sex than in scorn for this one type, as he mumbled:

"Make it go? It'll take a steam winch a week to unwrap it from that tion. He waited till at last a yawning

CHAPTER II.

The Early Birds and the Worm. In the enormous barn of the railroad station stood many strings of cars, as if a gigantic young Gulliver stabled his toys there and invisibly amused himself; now whisking this one away, now backing that other in. Some of the trains were noble equip-ages, fitted to glide across the whole map with cargoes of Lilliputian millionaires and their Lilliputian ladies. Others were humble and shabby linked-up day-coaches and dingy smoking-cars, packed with workers, like ants.

Cars are mere vehicles, but locomotives have souls. The express engines roll in or stalk out with grandeur and ease. They are like emperors. They seem to look with scorn at the suburban engines snorting and grunting and shaking the arched roof with their plebeian choo-choo as they puff from shop to cottage and

The trainmen take their cue from the behavior of their rocomotives. The conductor of a transcontinental nods to the conductor of a shuttle-train with less cordiality than to a brakeman of his own. The engineers of the limiteds look like senators in, overalls. They are far-traveled men, leading a mighty life of adventure. They are pilots of land-ships across land-oceans. They have a right to a certain condescension of manner.

But no one feels or shows so much arrogance as the sleeping car porters. They cannot pronounce "supercilibut they can be it. Their disdain for the entire crew of any train that carries merely day-coaches or half-baked chair-cars, is expressed as only a darkey in a uniform can express disdain for poor white trash.

Of all the haughty porters that ever curled a lip, the haughtiest by far was the dusky attendant in the San Francisco sleeper on the Trans-American Limited. His was the train of trains in that whole system. His car the car of cars. His passengers the surpassengers of all.

Somewhere a street car was at that marge where the continent dips and vanishes under the breakers "Our only hope," said Harry. "Come of the Pacific ocean.

At the head of his car, with his little box-step waiting for the foot of the first arrival, the porter stood, his head swelling under his cap, his breast swelling beneath his blue blouse, with its brass buttons like reflections of his own eyes. Perhaps he was wondering what his Chicago sweetheart would be doing in the eight days before his return. Perhaps he was wondering what his San Francisco sweetheart had been doing in the five days since he left her, and how she would pass the three days that must intervene before he reached her again.

He had Othello's ebon color. Did he have Othello's green eye?

Whatever his thoughts, he chatted gaily enough with his neighbor and colleague of the Portland sleeper.

Suddenly he stopped in the midst of a soaring chuckle.

"Lordy, man, looky what's a-com-The Portland porter turned to gaze.

enough to fill a van." The oncomer was plainly of English origin. It takes all sorts of people to make up the British Empire, and there is no sort lacking-glorious or pretty, or sour or sweet. But this was the type of English globe-trotter that makes himself as unpopular among foreigners as he is among his own people. He is almost as unendurable as the Americans abroad who twang their banjo brag through Europe; and berate France and Italy for their innocence of buckwheat cakes. The two porters regarded Mr. Harold Wedgewood with dread, as he bore down on them. He was almost lost in the plethora of his own luggage. He asked for the San Francisco sleeper, and the Portland porter had to turn away to smother his gurgling relief.

Ellsworth Jefferson's heart sank. He made a feeble effort at self-protection. The Pullman conductor not being present at the moment, he inquired:

"Have you got yo' ticket?" "Of cawse."

"Could I see it?" "Of cawse not. Too much trouble to fish it out." The porter was fading. "Do you remember yo' numba?"

"Of cawse. Take these." He began to pile things on the porter like a mountain unloading an avalanche. up the steps, and squeezed through the strait path of the corridor into

"I wasn't questionin' you, boss, I was just astin' you."

He resigned himself to the despot, and began to transfer his burdens to the seat. But he did nothing to the satisfaction of the Englishman. Everything must be placed otherwise; the catch-all here, the portmanteau there, the Gladstone there, the golfsticks there, the greatcoat there, the raincoat there. The porter was puffing like a donkey-engine, and mutiny was growing in his heart. His last commission was the hanging up of the bowler hat.

He stood on the arm of the seat to reach the high hook. From here he paused to glare down with an attempt "Is they anything else?"

"No. You may get down." The magnificent patronage of this wilted the porter completely. He returned to the lower level, and shuffled along the aisle in a trance. He was quickly recalled by a sharp: "Pawtah!"

"Yassah!" "What time does this bally train start?" "Ten-thutty, sah."

"But it's only ten now." "Yassah. It'll be ten-thutty a little later." "Do you mean to tell me that I've got to sit hyah for half an hour-just waitin'? The porter essayed another bit of "Well," he drawled, "I might tell the conducta you're ready. And mebbe he'd start the train. But the timetable says ten-thutty.' He watched the effect of his satire, but it fell back unheeded from the granite dome of the Englishman, whose only comment was:

"Oh, never mind. I'll wait." The porter cast his eyes up in despair, and turned away, once more to be recalled.

"Oh, pawtah!" "Yassah!"

"I think we'll put on my slippahs." "Will we?

"You might hand me that large bag. No, stupid, the othah one. You might open it. No, it's in the othah one. Ah, that's it. You may set it down."

Mr. Wedgewood brought forth a soft cap and a pair of red slippers. The porter made another effort to escape, his thoughts as black as his face. Again the relentless recall: "Oh, pawtah, I think we'll unbutton my boots." He was too weak to murmur "Yas-sah." He simply fell on one knee and got to work. There was a witness to his helpless rage—a newcomer, the American counterpart of the Englishman in all that makes travel difficult for the fellow travelers. Ira Lathrop was zealous to resent anything short of perfection, quick and loud of complaint, In everything else he was the or posite of the Englishman. He was burly, middle-aged, rough, careless in attire, careless of speech—as uncouth and savage as one can well be who, is plainly a man of means.

It was not enough that a freeborn Afro-American should be caught kneeling to an Englishman. But when he had escaped this penance, and advanced hospitably to the newcomer, he must be greeted with a snarl. "Say, are you the porter of this car, or that man's nurse?

"I can't tell yet. What's yo' numba, please?" The answer was the ticket. The hope so." porter screwed up his eyes to read the pencilled scrawl. "Numba se'm. Heah she is, boss." "Right next to a lot of women, I'll bet. Couldn't you put me in the men's end of the car?"

"Not ve'y well, suh. I reckon the cah is done sold out." With a growl of rage, Ira Lathrop slammed into the seat his entire hand baggage, one ancient and rusty valise. The porter gazed upon him with increased depression. The passenger list had opened inauspiciously with two of the worst types of travelers the Anglo-Saxon race has developed. But their anger was not their worst trait in the porter's eyes. He was, in a limited way, an expert in human character. When you meet a stranger you reveal your own character in what you ask about his. With some, the first question is, "Who are his people?" With others, "What has he achieved?" With others, "How much is he worth?" Each gauges his cordiality according to his estimate. The porter was not curious on any of these points. He showed a democratic indifference to them. His one vital inquiry was:

"How much will he tip?" His inspection of his first two charges promised small returns. He buttoned up his cordiality, and determined to waste upon them the irreducible minimum of attention. It would take at least a bridal couple to retsore the balance. But bridal couples in their first bloom rarely fell to the lot of that porter, for what bridal couple wants to lock itself in with a crowd of passengers for the first seventy-two hours of wedded bliss? The porter banished the hope as a vanity. Little he knew how eagerly the young castaways from that The porter stumbled as he clambered | wrecked taxicab desired to be a bridal couple, and to catch this train.

But the Englishman was restive

The Coughs of Children

They may not cough today, but what about tomor ow? Better be prepared for it when it comes. Ask your doctor about keeping Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house. Then when the hard cold or cough first appears you have a doctor's medicine at hand. This cough medicine is especially good for children. No anodynes. No alcohol.

Many a child is called dull and stupid when the whole trouble is due to a lazy liver. We firmly believe your own doctor will tell you that an occasional dose of Ayer's Pills, sugar-coated, will do such children a great deal of good. Ask him. Made by the J. C. AYER CO. Lowell. Mass

"Pawtah! I say, pawtah!" "Here, porrterr."

The porter tried to imitate the Irish bird, and be in two places at once. The American had a coin in his hand. The porter caught the gleam of it, and flitted thither. The Yankee growled:

"Don't forget that I'm on the train, and when we get to 'Frisco there may be something more."

The porter had the coin in his hand.

The Yankee growled: "No wonder we had the Revolutionary war!" Then he took from his pocket an envelope addressed to Ira Lathrop & Co., and from the envelope he took a contract, and studied it grimly. The envelope bore a Chinese stamp. The porter, as he struggled with an obstinate window, wondered what sort of passenger fate would send him next.

Lesson VII.—Third Quarter, For Aug. 18, 1912.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Mark v, 21-43. Memory Verses, 41, 42-Golden Text, Mark v, 41-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

At the request of the people of Gadara He left their coasts and recrossed the sea to His own city, Capernaum, and the people received Him gladly, for they were all waiting for Him. There are many places today, chiefly in so called Christendom, where He is not wanted as the opposer of Satan and his wiles, for much that is called church work and much preaching is really not for Christ, but against Him, while there are many others longing to hear of Him. I have just read of one valley in Mr. Beauchamp's territory in China where a thousand people are crying loudly for a teacher and many leading families have put away their idols. May the Lord direct us to the open doors and make us willing and obedient. Trouble comes to the rich as well as the poor, the devil is the oppressor of all classes, and in this lesson we see a rich man, a ruler, and a poor woman, both in great trouble; a little girl twelve years developing and a poor woman twelve years growing weaker and both seemingly in hopeless condition as far as this life goes. Both find deliverance at the feet of Jesus. Jairus, the ruler of the synagogue, fell at His feet and besought Him greatly for his only daughter, who was at the point of death, that He would come and lay His hands on her and heal her. The sick woman had spent all her living upon physicians, had suffered much and was nothing bettered, but rather grew worse. She had such faith in Him, no doubt by hearing of His wondrous works. that she believed if she could only touch the hem of His garment she would be healed. Jesus arose to go with Jairus, His disciples followed, and much people thronged Him. It was in this throng that the sick woman came and succeeded in touching the border of His garment and was immediately healed. Jesus, knowing that some one had believingly touched Him, turned Him about and said, "Who touched my clothes?" Peter and the other disciples said in surprise, "Master, the multitude throng and press thee." But He insisted that some one had touched Him in a special manner and that virtue had gone out of Him. It is just so still-many meet to worship Him, but few touch Him as this woman did. Many know about Him, but comparatively few know Him in the sense of receiving power from Him for themselves or others.

When the woman saw that what she had done was known to Him she fell availed little had He not also under down before Him and declared unto stood every circumstance and detail of eople why she had touched Him and how she was healed immediately (Luke viii, 47). This is what He wanted, that He might do more for her than she had expected. She had already received what she came for and expected, but He loves to do exceeding abundantly above all we can ask or think (Eph. iii, 20). She had no thought that He would speak to her personally, much less call her daughter. She could never forget those words from His lips, "Daughter, be of good comfort; thy faith bath made thee whole; go in peace" (verse 34; Luke viii, 48; Matt. ix, 22). This "good comfort" is just His "good cheer" of Matt. ix, 2; xiv, 27; John xvi, 33. Had she not publicly confessed her healing by His power she would not only have missed this special blessing but would have occasion to upbraid herself because she had not done so. There is much blessing in obeying (Rom. x, 9), "If thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus." In last lesson the healed demoniac was sent home to tell his friends how great things the Lord had done for him, and the command stands to "declare His doings among the people" (Isa. xii, 4)

What about the anxious father all this time and the only daughter, whom he left dying? The incident we have been dwelling upon probably took much less time than we have taken to write it, but there are times when minutes seem very long, and it may have been so with Jairus. But God is never too late. Though He tarry, we must wait for Him and be patient (Heb. x, 36, 37; Hab. ii, 3, 4). While He still talked to the woman tidings came from 'the ruler's house that the little girl was dead, which as soon as Jesus heard He said to Jairus, "Be not afraid. only believe" (verse 36). Reaching the house, He said to the wailing people: "Why make ye this ado? The damsel is not dead, but sleepeth." And, taking only Peter, James and John and the little maid's father and mother (Luke viii, 52). He went in where she was and took her hand and said. "Damsel, I say unto thee, Arise." Immediately she arose and walked, and He commanded that something should be given her to eat (43). There was no further laughing to scorn (40), but a great astonishment, for they had never seen anything like this. This manner of man was not ordinary, a man full of compassion for all sick and suffering and with the power to heal the otherwise incurable and to raise the dead-truly a man and as truly God, now our great High Priest at the right hand of the Father, knowing us, loving us, caring for us and still say. ing the same words, "Be of good cheer," "Be not afraid, only believe."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 18, 1912.

Tact is defined by Webster as the "ready power of appreciating and doing what is required by circumstances." This definition is well illustrated in Christ's dealing with the Samaritan woman at Jacob's well, in which we have one of the very best examples of Christian tact. It would be almost impossible to find an instance that re quired greater skill in saying the right thing in the right way. The possibili ties of blunders, of misunderstandings. of giving offense, were many, and nothing better illustrates the delicacy with which Christ handled a most difficult situation than the results-the conversion of the Samaritan woman and later of many of her neighbors. Tact is indispensable in the Christian's life and work and if not possessed must be cultivated by every one who would sue ceed in doing the will of Christ and especially in leading others to Christ.

Christian tact requires an accurate knowledge of the nature of those with whom we have to do. Christ thoroughly understood the nature of the Samaritan woman. Had He not had a complete knowledge of her personal life, her religious prejudices and her national conceptions He must have failed in presenting Himself to her as the water of life. Many Christian workers fail through lack of tact, which is caused by ignorance. Many other wise, talented ministers are failures because they are tactless. They do not understand human nature. They do not study the different dispositions and characteristics of those with whom they deal and consequently are constantly "rubbing them the wrong way" and arousing antagonism instead of winning their active and enthusiastic co-operation. No two human dispositions are exactly alike. Each must be studied and dealt with alone. Christ never used exactly the same method twice in dealing with men. He expects us to follow His example. We are to be "fishers of men," and who requires more tact than a fisherman? We are to "win" souls for Christ, but how can we win them if we do not understand them? The tactless blunderer is more apt to drive them farther away from Him. It is wiser to leave to others those whom we do not understand and cannot deal with as they should be ap proached and dealt with. Excessive zeal without tact is not commendable. To mean well is not sufficient. We must do well.

Christian tact requires a knowledge of circumstances. How can we appreciate and do what is required by cir cumstances unless we thoroughly un derstand the circumstances? Christ's knowledge of the personal disposition of the Samaritan woman would have the conditions under which she lived But he understood the Samaritan be liefs, their method of worship, their opinion of Moses and of the Messiah and their instinctive hatred of the Jews. To succeed in Christian work and in leading men to Christ we must You Villain of the World, Tell Me All know men personally; also the circum stances and conditions of their lives. How tactless it was for a tract dis- later Mr. Hosmer had him cornered tributor in a hospital to give a tract against dancing to a patient who had just had both his legs amputated! A all you can about that angel or I'll word of inquiry as to conditions would murder you on the spot!" have made such a blunder impossible question. Yet this is typical of the meaning Christians who make no which peop live. If you would wisely Jesus learn all about them-their man ner of living, their beliefs, their hopes and ambitions, their difficulties and them as the circumstances demand. taking into consideration their personal dispositions. This, in a word, is Chris tian tact and cannot but make us suc cessful in advancing Christ's kingdon in winning souls for Christ.

"Man Overboard"

By John Thilip Orth

Topic.—Christian tact.—John iv, 1-30. Ed- (Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary fited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

Mr. Glenn Hosmer, the young lawyer, who had just hung out his shingle in a town on the Hudson river, had not yet parted from romance. He had been warned by a veteran of the har that romance and law never mixed. He would get married some day, but there must be no emotions about it that could not be substantiated by the compiled laws of the state of New York. The formality must be about the same as starting a lawsuit against the owner of a cow that had destroyed the garden of a neighbor.

Mr. Hosmer accepted the advice and was prepared to act on it when he made a journey to the city one day and sat in a chair car within a few feet of Miss Blanche Ackworth, who resided in the next town above him. He said to himself that her age was about twenty; that her hair was old gold; that her eyes were lovely, her nose the true Grecian, and that her mouth was beyond comparison. He felt a great stirring of the heart as he cast glances at the young lady. He felt the law in him being replaced by romance. There was not enough in any law book in the land to express his admiration. He didn't know her name nor abiding place, but those were things to be found out.

Miss Blanche let fall the magazine she was reading. Mr. Hosmer sprang to pick it up. A squat man, with a thick neck, was just too quick for him. Mr. Hosmer fell back in his chair and vowed that if he ever got that squat man in the toils of the law he would squeeze the life out of him. Miss Blanche dropped her handkerchief, and Mr. Hosmer sprang again. A bald-headed man was before him. That settled baldhead in case he ever had a lawsuit. Miss Blanche looked about for some one to tell her where the Flatiron block was, and just as Mr. Hosmer had opened his mouth to answer, the porter came along and gave full information. Five minutes

"You villain of the world, tell me

That was the way the young lawand consequent ridicule out of the yer came to know name and address. Porters on chair and parlor cars get character of the work of many well to know local travelers to a certain point. Of course, Mr. Hosmer figured study of the conditions of life under that he must be more or less conventional. He must have an introduction serve your fellow men in the name of in the regular way. He made a trip to the town above to get it, and even made an excuse to call at the house to see the father, but he was not intheir discouragements. Then deal with troduced. He simply heard a rustle of skirts passing the half-open library door. When he got back home he slammed Blackstone down on the table and exclaimed: "Darn the law!" For two straight weeks Mr. Hosmer took to going into the city daily. No He stood in front of the Flatiron block until the wind had turned him around seventeen times, but the golden-haired girl did not appear. He even attended Sunday services in the town above, but Miss Blanche was not in any of the pews. She had either got hold of a new book or was an attendant at some other church.

Mr. Hosmer awoke one Monday morning determined to banish the girl from his mind and take the first assault and battery case that came Australia says: "Christian Endeavor along. He sat down to the law on punching the head of your fellow man, but he could not get interested. That golden-haired girl's face was before him. He went and stated his case to the veteran lawyer, and although Wherever you go upon the surface of the former advice was repeated, and this globe you find Endeavorers ready it was added that he was a chump, he was not vet satisfied.

> His feelings were bubbling when he took the boat for the town above with several desperate resolutions in History records it that he calmly said his mind. He would turn subscription book agent; he would turn tin peddler; he would pretend to be a gas house on fire to get a few words with the girl of the chair-car.

rowing in a bathing suit, and she could swim, and there was little to

On this Monday she was out for a spin. The first that the half-distracted lawyer knew of her presence was when the mate of the boat passed him on the run and called out:

"She's over this time, for sure, and she'll be drowned!"

The swells of the stemaer had upset Miss Blanche's boat. Two hundred persons saw the accident. Mr. Hosmer looked down on that golden head as the first wave rolled over it. When captain, mate and crew of a steamboat are hired nothing is said of their jumping overboard to rescue people. It's so much per month and board. When a lot of passengers start from New York for Albany by boat, they figure on the fare alone. Jumping overboard should bring a rebate, but it doesn't. They are supposed to keep dry while other folks drown.

Thus it came about that when Miss Blanche's boat went over there was only one man to do the jumping act. That was Mr. Hosmer. He couldn's swim a stroke, and he wore a suit that was bound to shrink, but he didn't even stop to throw down his hat. Down he plunked close beside the girl, who had caught her overturned boat with one hand and was smiling at a deckhand who was trying to throw a lot of iron pipes overboard to help float her, and when he came up from the bed of the historic river he was choking and gasping and strangling. One hand was reached out, the fingers clinched in his hair, and when he had' been drawn to the boat the girl began working it inshore. Pooh! It was dead easy! Nothing but fun! She was cheered again and again, but she didn't feel that she deserved it.

Mr. Hosmer was hauled up on a dock a very watery man. Water had surrounded him, and he had surrounded water. They pounded him on the back, and they rolled him on a barrel. They called him a hero, and they called him a fool. He was finally, pumped out and sent to a hotel to recuperate, and word was left that he should call at the Ackworth residence as soon as able to receive thanks.

He was all right by the next afternoon, except for a feeling that he had lowered the Hudson by several inches, and the call was made. At last he stood face to face with the girl of his waking hours and his dremas.

"I want to thank you so very, very much," she said after the formalities. "But why did you jump overboard?"

"To save you, of course," he replied. "But you couldn't swim a stroke! Besides, I upset the boat on purpose, just to scare the people a bit!" "But-but I saw you on the train a few days ago?"

"And I had-had to get an introduction to you!"

"I don't understand why!" "Because I fell in love with you at first sight." "And-and-?"

"And I can't begin the practice of law until I get through with romance." When the recovered and dried-out man had departed the house Mrs. Ackworth asked her daughter what sort of a person she had found him. "Why, I think he means well, but he rather startles one at first." "Is he to call again?" "Um! I suppose so! Yes, he's just

ON EVE OF GREAT BATTLE

Sitting in his office recently and looking upon the old sea chest which contains the records of that fateful day at Manila, I asked Admiral Dewey what was uppermost in his mind the night before the battle of Manila, when he contemplated entering a harbor mined with torpedoes. His eyes sparkled as he replied:

'All night and all morning my mind had reverted to one picture—that of Flag Officer Farragut, whom I first met at New Orleans in 1861. There were no admirals in those days, the captains being the highest ranking officers, and our commander was the flag officer. We young cadets grew instinctively to admire the intrepid Farragut, and that night at Mobile will never be forgotten, when his voice rang out loud and clear:

"'Damn the torpedoes-full speed ahead.' Somehow that command would ring in my ears every time danger confronted us. One does not instinctively think of himself in such moments, but of some hero whose life has impressed him."

Then I ventured to ask the admiral why he did not give his command at Manila in some dramatic and stentorian way like Farragut. With that modesty known only to Dewey he replied. "I was not thinking of myself; I was thinking of Farragut."

Dewey's command to begin one of the greatest battles in all history was given in an ordinary tone, as if he were simply ordering a cup of coffee. to the commander: "Gridley, when you are ready, fire."
