BRIEF NEWS NOTES OF GENERAL INTEREST.

Gleaned from the County and State and our Exchanges.

Sykesville will be lighted by electricity in the near future, the contract having already been let for the poles and wires. --

Senator Stone, of Missouri, says the third-party movement is rapidly waning, and that the fight for the Presidency is easily between Wilson and Taft. He says Roosevelt will come out a bad third.

---Col. Roosevelt is travelling with a heavy guard, throughout the West, due to letters sent to him threatening his life. It is thought, by some, that the letters are "fakes," written with the intention of making his tour more heroic.

Col. Roosevelt said in a speech, on Tuesday, "I expect all women in the country to vote before my term expires." What term does he mean? Perhaps an expression of this sort is not very reassuring to the women that they will

The world's record for perfect Sunday School attendance is claimed by Samuel T. Winterton, of the First Baptist church, at Keyport, N. J., who has completed 50 consecutive years of perfect attendance at that service. At the age of three he went to Sunday School for the first time, and since that first day he has never missed a

It is pretty creditable, we think, for 3739 colored people, from Baltimore, to come to Gettysburg, last week, on a single day, and so behave themselves while there as to create no disturbance. That would be something of a feat for the average 3739 white excursionists to perform. The event was in charge of several negro Grand Army organizations.

---William H. Anderson, Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, announced on Wednesday that his meeting with Senator Jesse D. Price, of Wicomico county, would take place on September 27 in the chautauqua tent at Salisbury. The chautauqua will close this week, but the owners of the tent have consented to allow it remain for the debate. The tent will seat 1000 and off rule stouding recome for many 900 and affords standing room for many George C. Morrison, a prominent Democratic politician and financier, of Balti-more, committed suicide, on Tuesday, owing to the fact that his name became for Harford county, which in the public mind is a gambling association. Mr. Morrison had been prominently spoken of as Democratic candidate for Governor in three years. The race track involved is located at Havre de Grace.

--General Nogi and his wife, Supreme Military Councillor of Japan, committed on last Friday, in accordance with an ancient Japanese custom, as their final tribute to their dead Emperor. The General cut his throat with a short sword, while his wife committed hari-kari. The act, while heathenish, nevertheless illustrates the extreme devotion of the Japanese to their rulers, and the extent to which they will go to perform what they consider duty.

The West is enjoying a political circus. Col. Roosevelt is being followed over his course, just a day behind, by J. M. Harlan and J. Adam Bede, as Tait "truth | barn in Bachman's valley, seven miles tellers," and they are drawing crowds as away. big as those that hear Roosevelt. It is said that he is considerably worried by this "trailing" system, especially as Messrs. Harlan and Bede are brilliant and resourceful speakers. Bryan is also on the same track

The Gettysburg National Park Commission is energetically prosecuting persons for writing their names on monuments, on the battlefield. Some of the names are written in pencil, while others are cut in. Certain people seem to have a mania for writing their names in conspicuous places, but Uncle Sam does not fancy the habit and is entering prosecu-Let this be a warning to all, who thoughtlessly or otherwise, write their names on public property.

The Anti-Saloon League announces the appointment of Rev. D. DeWitt Turpeau, pastor of Ames M. E. church of Baltimore, as the Superintendent of the new Department of Colored Work which will inaugurated by the Anti-Saloon League of Maryland on Nov. 16, just after the election. It will give special attention to the total abstinence, gospel temperance and educational phases of the temperance work with a view to promoting sobriety and respect for law among colored people.

---The Treasury Department has decided to make all paper money much smaller in size. Our bills are now over three inches wide and about eight and a quarter inches long, while the new size will be six by two and a half inches. The reduction in size will mean a great annual saving to the government, and it is claimed that the notes will last longer and be much more convenient to handle. It is thought that the objection to two sizes of notes will last but a short time, rapidly as possible.

The Taneytown--Westminster State Road

The purchase price of the Meadow Branch turnpike has been fully subscribed for, by citizens of Taneytown and Frizellburg sections, and the deed to same will be turned over to the State Road Commission within a week or ten days, at which time the toll gate on the pike will be removed.

The Road Commission has promised to proceed, at once, to survey the road and advertise for bids for construction, but it is hardly likely that any construction work will be commenced this year. Apparently, there is no chance for any further doubt about the matter, which means that the "old plank road" from Taneytown to Westmister, will within a few years be a fine state road, its entire length of twelve miles.

Under the agreement with the Road Commission, work is to be commenced, at the same time, at Taneytown, and at the terminus of the Meadow Branch pike toward Frizellburg, the supposition being that the present appropriation available will construct about two miles at each

-000-Sunday School Work Organized.

On Thursday evening, in the Presbyterian church, a meeting of Sunday School workers was held for the purpose of or-ganizing the work of a part of the third district of the county. The object of the meeting was stated by the president, Rev. D. J. Wolf, viz., to elect Superintendents for Teacher Training Classes, Organized Bible Classes, Home Departments and Cradle Rolls, for Taneytown, Piney Creek and Harney.

After discussion by different ones present it was thought best to organize a un-ent it was thought best to organize a union training class from all the schools.

The result of the meeting was the election of the following persons as Superintendents of the following departments;
Rev. Seth Russell Downie, Superintendent of Teacher Training; Rev. L. B. Hafer, Supt. of Organized Classes; Mr. Richard Hill, Supt. of Home Department, Wiss Mary Raindollar, Supt. of Cradle Miss Mary Reindollar, Supt. of Cradle

It is to be hoped that all Sunday School workers will help to make this work a success, and that each school will co-operate with each one of these Superintendents for the success in these several

----Another Prisoner Escapes Jail.

The old jail, at Westminster, again lost a prisoner, on Sunday night, when Arthur McGaw, colored, piled up benches, fastened several horseshoes to the corner of an old blanket, threw it over the top of the wall and easily climed to the top, then dropped 18 feet to the ground. The sheriff recaptured his prisoner asleep in a

The contract has been let and the steel work is being prepared for the repair and improvement of the jail. Cells will be centered and the outside wall will be removed. "Meanwhile," say satirical citizens, "it might be well if the County Commissioners would have a hole knocked in the old wall as a more convenient mode of exit for prisoners desiring a few hours' absence, as they run great risk of breaking limbs in jumping from the top.

----Spring Sale Dates.

We have already registered one public sale for March 1913. We will, as hereto-fore, keep a list of all Spring sale dates, We will, as heretoat our office, given to us at any time hereafter. Our experience has been that office registration of sales is a big help to those who have not positively selected their dates, and to this end we suggest that those who have already made their selections, register the same now.

A BIG TRANSACTION IN GOVERNMENT TIMBER.

of Forest Lands.

Wash., D. C., Sept. 12, 1912.—Chief Forester Graves is on his way to San-Francisco to make final arrangements under which a California lumber company will purchase 800 million feet of timber on the Sierra National Forest. The timber has already been awarded, after public advertisement, to the highest bidder, but under the terms of the adver-tisement the final signing of the contract will not take place until the company has been shown on the ground what timber the Government will reserve from cutting in order to preserve good forest conditions and provide for reproduction.

The company will be allowed its full 800 million feet, but naturally it will not be allowed to cut clean. As a rule the Forest Service reserves something like one-third of the forest stand in applying forestry on Government holdings. A marking board made up of one man sent from Washington, one from the District office in San Francisco, and the local Forest Supervisor will carefully mark a sample area, to show how the restrictions on cutting will be applied. Representatives of the company will then go over this area, after which Chief Forester Grayes and his assistants will, it is expected, make final arrangements with the company in San Francisco, and the contract of sale will be signed.

Other correspondents are disturbed lest the sale prove a bad bargain for the Government through the rise in value of the timber in the twenty-two years during which the company will cut.

'Such large and long-time sales of National Forest timber as that to the California company are a new development in the Forest Service. Great bodies of mature but inaccessible timber can be put on the market only if sale contracts are let on terms which will justify a very heavy initial investment in transportation facilities. In entering into such contracts, however, special safeguards to protect the public against monopoly and to prevent an undue speculative profit to the purchaser are employed.

"The National Forests contain, in all, the equivalent of nearly 600 billion feet of timber now of merchantable size, besides young growth for future harvest. Because of its remoteness from market and the wild, mountainous country, without transportation facilities, in which "The building (now in course of construction) is of the Tudor-Gothic type of architecture and will face 43 ft 8 inches on Wabash Ave., and 53 ft 6 inches on 73rd street. The auditorium will seat about 200 and ard-guage railroad to open up the area. It is a guard against monopoly. The company is given a cutting period of twenty-two years to remove the timber, besides an of logging and manufacturing facilities. The sale was publicly advertised for six months in order to give an opportunity for all who wished to compete for the contract to make bids, as is done in all fate will place a box of unclaimed guinea large National Forest sales.

"No business organization would undertake the heavy investment necessary in such cases unless the handling of a large body of timber and a sufficient period in which to remove it under practicable logging conditions are assured. The great difficulty in making such longterm sales is to establish a price which will be fair to both sides. No one can foresee future conditions well enough to know what stumpage will be worth ten, fifteen, or twenty years hence.

-----W. M. M. R. Train Thefts.

Frederick, Md., Sept. 17.-Two of the four men committed to jail yesterday charged with robbing freight cars on the Western Maryland Railway were released today on $1,000 bail. The authorities are looking for a dozen others. Detectives are patrolling the road at every station from Rocky Ridge to Highfield, while others are searching houses supposed to contain stolen goods. It is believed the road has lost thousands of dollars through thieving.

One of the men in custody is an engineer on the road, who has been making from $150 to $180 a month. At Thurmont it is believed that much has been stolen by employes on the road. When the thieving was first discovered it was supposed to be the work of hobos. Arrests were made, but no trace of the stolen goods was found until several days ago, when the engineer and a member of a freight crew were taken into custody. Since however, a number of articles such as lap robes, blankets, clothing, whisky, shoes, etc., have been found at various places along the road. It is thought that much of the loot was carried off in work-

--Catfish and Eels Law.

In the RECORD of Sept. 6, in the Fish and Game laws quoted, the word "except" was omitted in reference to catfish eels, which exactly changed the law from the way it is. As the law stands, catfish and eels may be taken in any manner during the months of September, October, November and December. In other words, the closed season is the rest of the year except these four months.

More About Seed Corn Selection.

The following is by the Crop Improve ment Committee of the Baltimore Chamber of Commerce, J. Collin Vincent,

Last week we called attention to the How Uncle Sam Disposes of Big Lots advantage of selecting from the fields, this Fall, the seed corn intended for next year. It is well to secure twice as much as you expect to use so you can make a further selection of the best ears, and you will probably sell the remainder at a good price to those who have failed to provide.

Dean Swift gave it for his opinion "that whoever could make two ears of corn, or two blades of grass, to grow upon a spot of ground where only one grew before, would deserve better of mankind and do more essential service to his country than the whole race of politicians put together." On this basis see what the farmers can do for Maryland.

One important point to remember is 'maturity''—mature corn is of higher feeding value, is worth more per bushel, and is always higher in vitality under adverse conditions. The weight of one ear is one guide, the large ear is not always desirable; well filled, medium sized, are generally more productive and of greater vitality, and should carry its butt size well to the tip, and have straight regular rows of ever sized kernals. Be sure the kernal is full and plump at the germ end.

It is the per cent of shelled corn to the acre that counts. The more uniform type of seed corn, the more even and uniform the stand of corn secured with the average planter.

Do not pile the freshly selected seed in a box or bin. Do not leave it in bags or the company in San Francisco, and the contract of sale will be signed.

"The Forest Service," said Mr. Graves in speaking of this sale, "has received a number of inquiries whether in selling so much timber to a single purchaser the Government may not be opening the way to a monopolistic control of local lumber markets. Other correspondents are discovered the control of local lumber markets. Other correspondents are discovered to the control of local lumber of the control of local lumber of the correspondents are discovered to the correspondent to the cor about ten or twelve each, using b twine to loop the ears together. Hang these strings of corn in some protected place that has a good circulation of air. If the seed corn is thoroughly dried it will not be injured by any degree of cold.

P. G. Holden, well known in the Agriculture extension work says "the corn grower's is a noble life. Let him study it, let him love it, let him take pride in it, let him do better than he did yesterday, better this year than last year. You can see that to get better results next year you must commence now ----Reach Yakima Valley Safely.

Charles E. Fink, of the firm of Chas. E. & J. B. Fink, of Westminster, who accompanied a party of Carroll Countians to the Yakima county, Washington, telegraphed his son, John Brooke Fink, that they arrived safely, on Wednesday afternoon, after a delightful trip. They spent eight hours in Chicago sight-seeing. Before reaching Chicago, Mrs. Alois T. Swobode, wife of the noted physical culture instructor, of Washington, D. C., fell in the aisle of the car and fractured a small bone in her wrist, also cutting her | fer securities, and to sell and transfer perhead. Dr. J. H. These same pigs must be provided for. The law does not contemplate having postal clerks feed live stock going through the mails, nor does it contemplate the feeding of the animals at Government expense. It will be the duty of the ten der-hearted man in charge to provide from his own pocketbook or have the unclaimed starve in his care.

The Press is likely a little ahead of the game, as the P. O. Department has not yet decided whether live animals constitute farm produce. At least, postmasters have not yet received instructions on the subject. Up to this time, the only live thing now transported in the mail is queen bees, and it is hardly likely that "guinea partridges, chickens, squabs and rabbits, will be listed as "products of the farm.'

Determined if possible to wrest Pennsylvania from Republican control, the Democratic National Committee nounced on Tuesday preliminary plans for one of the most strenuous campaigns ever undertaken in any one State. MANY OF THE Republican candidates for Congress are between the "deep blue sea" and the renowned other fellow, due to the party mix-up, as many of them would rather be elected, than express their honest convictions and perhaps be defeated. Trying to ride two horses going in opposite directions, is a feat on the order of their present situation.

--IF Gov. Wilson is contemplating a tour of Europe, this would be a splendid time for him to take it. The Republicans will matter of food, or dress, or enjoyments. hand him the Presidency, without any needed effort on his part, and without any financial cost; therefore he might as good many habits to be broken, if the well spend both his time and money enjoying himself before entering upon what may be a very trying four year's Presidential term.

THE MAJORITY of the monthly magazines (on which the present administration tried to raise the postage rates, because of the large amount of advertising carried) are against President Taft, while fully seven-eighths of the Republican newspapers of the country are for him. In other words, his publisher opponents are largely influenced by financial reasons, while his advocates support him for political reasons, which demonstrates that when the "pocket nerve" is touched, "the price" of a publication is uncovered. -----

IT IS DISTINCTLY to the credit of the Taft administration that he has resisted the strongest appeals to declare war against Mexico, even though so doing would likely have resulted in popularizing him with the hot-headed masses who are now doing a war-dance around their Bull Moose idol, for want of more exciting occupation. The spirit of fight and revolution is in the air, and perhaps it would have been better for this country had the God of it all been in the White House, so that the outburst could have been spent on the Mexicans, rather than between ourselves, and perhaps with our own government and our own industries the final victims.

--The Germ Theory and Fertilizers.

If the germ theory of disease is correct -and it is generally conceded that it isthen it would seem highly probable that the manufacture of diseased animals into fertilizers, and spreading it over the land and introducing it into the structure of growing plants and grains, must carry along with the process a propagation of the germs of disease contained in the Let half of these vote for Roosevelt, and carcasses. Not only the growing vegetation, but the water in the earth, is likely to be susceptible to the process, and consequently inimical to public health, and it does not require a scientist to reach a conclusion of this kind.

We have heard of instances where the carcasses of tuberculous cattle and cholera hogs were reported to have been manufactured into fertilizer. Whether this be true or not, the fact remains that all sorts of decayed animal matter is turned into commercial fertilizer-carcasses in all stages of horrible putrefaction-evidently alive with the most dangerous disease germs, yet which are made into commercial products, handled by men, and by a division of the Democratic vote is used to force the growth of food for our sheer nonsense, and it is equally non-

That the character of the fertilizer plainly conveys its peculiar qualities to vegetation, is too well known a fact to be disputed. Perhaps it requires a considerable stretch of the imagination to realize that disease germs in animal matter, may be conveyed through fresh from the Democrats, and where, with the vegetable growth into our bodies, but party still united, the electoral vote there is a close and mysterious relation existing between the two kingdoms, and | ive leaders gleefully announced, before and infinitesimally when considering germs and microbes, may it not be possible that wheat-grown by germ laden fertilizer and then carried to the mill in old fertilizer sacks-can transmit to the flour a slight percentage of the fertilizer itself—of its disease germ qualities?

There appears to be a large increase in -may it not be that they come from new and dangerous germs that we are introducing into our bodies, in our food and water-germs that apparently did not exist fifty years ago, when commercial fertilizers were practically unknown? Evidently, science has a good many things to find out yet, and legislators have a good many danger spots to cover. We suggest that a good place to look for some of them is in the manufacture of fertilizers, and in the disposition of the Fighting High Prices.

A great many organizations have already been formed, throughout the counvariously named co-operative leagues, for the purpose of fighting high-priced foods necessities, by boycotting them; in other words, by cutting down to the very lowest point, the use of the high-priced articles.

This looks to us like practical hard sense. In a good many instances no doubt dealers make capital out of the fact that certain things are "necessities" which people must have at any price. The question is, are there many real necessities? Are not many of them imaginary, for which substitutes can be used? In the matter of meat consumption, some go as far as to say, they must have it, and can't live without it. Perhaps they never tried. There is just as likely to be a habitual appetite for meat, or coffee, as there is for liquor or tobacco.

Most people have increased their list of wants. Their habits have taken a wider range, in the last ten years, because of their increased ability to gratify them. Hardly any class now lives as the same class once lived, whether it be in the The scale is higher-more expensivebut not actually necessary. There are a cost of living is to be reduced, and most real suffering or hardship.

Supply and demand are still the reguthe price must fall. There is nothing surer than that. Even the abundance of a thing, which may not mean that there has been any reduction in its use, nevertheless means that the demand cannot consume the oversupply, and does not disprove the rule.

When there is a scarcity in anythingbeef, for instance—the price goes up as a beef, for instance—the price goes up as a matter of course, without any special "cornering" of the market. The thing of society. We left behind in America a "cornering" of the market. The thing to do, then, is to conspire to cut down consumption so that even the small supply will be too big for the demand. The And we found England and Holland, and people nearly always have it within their even Belgium and Switzerland and France, power to fight high prices effectually, but it requires organization and determina-

Republican Votes For Roosevelt Mean Votes For Wilson.

The Republican papers are making clear the undeniable fact that every Republican who votes for Roosevelt, practically gives Gov. Wilson two votes. This is illustrated on the basis of a precinct containing 1000 votes, a majority, or 502 of which, are Republican. Divide this vote equally, and see how Wilson wins,

This sort of figuring must be taken as absolutely correct, in view of the fact that in Vermont the Roosevelt candidates not only did not get Democratic votes, but that party actually gained; therefore, the hope of electing Roosevelt sensical to expect to elect either Taft or Roosevelt by dividing the Republican vote, for the simple reason that it is

-The World Getting Better.

Rev. D. Frank Garland, of Dayton, who has just returned from a trip to Europe, where he spent several months investigating social conditions, is strongof this can be accomplished without any ly of the opinion that the world is getting better, due to unusual efforts being made for the uplift of humanity, and to the lators of prices. Reduce the demand and extensive and practical crusades against vice. In a recent sermon, he said in part:

> "The world is getting better, because it is becoming more Christ-like in life. It is simply marvelous to the man with eyes to see and ears to hear how the civilized nations of the world are doing consciously or unconsciously, the will of God as taught by Jesus when on earth. In every land of Europe through which we passed on our tour of investigation we nation aroused as it has not been aroused since the civil war to a consideration of a like wonderful Christian service for the man who is down.

> The nineteenth century was a wonderfully century for the world. It was remarkable for inventions which revolutionized social conditions and the relation between the nations of the world. Tools were invented that lightened labor; books were written that scattered broadcast the wisdom of the ages; science gave us comforts and the blessing of ease and plenty —everything imaginable was done to dispel ignorance, to diffuse knowledge, to lighten toil, to bring happiness, to increase wealth, to provide better homes, a richer and fuller life for all. But the crowning glory of the past hundred years has been that the man who was down at last won the sympathy and consideration and love and help of his fellows.

Our fathers achieved wonderful victories and great gains have been made

We are today in a world movement for human betterment—a world movement for the uplift of the man who is down; a world movement for the care of the sick and the abolishment of many types of physical ill; a world movement for the proection of the weak man from the selfish man who is strong; a world movement for the education of the child who without society's help would remain ignorant and a blight on the race; a world move-ment to change the city of sin, the city that Cain built in blood, into a city of righteousness, a city that is built on the foundation of love; a world movement to make it unnecessary that a single child should ever be starved or frozen; a world movement to insure the proper division of labor and the products of labor for the good of all; a world movement to give back to man the garden he lost when he broke the law of God.

Everywhere we went in Europe we found the leaders of men seriously at work helping the man who was down. Redemption of the wronged and sinful and hurt of humanity and prevention of like wrong in the future were marked everywhere. Everywhere we went leaders were in the forefront of advancement, educating, training, redeeming, shelter ing and strengthening the weaker mem-bers of society. In England they were trying to overthrow the evils incident to the cities that Cain has built in blood, by abolishing their slums And in England they are doing more. Under a recent law passed in 1909 by parliament they are making forever impossible the creation of new slums in new ities or in new suburban portions of old cities. An article that has real merit should in time become popular. That such is the case with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has ben attested by many dealers. Here is one of them. H. W. Hendrickson, Ohio Falls, Ind., writes, "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best for coughs, colds and croup, and is my best seller."

Minority Rule.

The greatest defect in the scheme of direct government through the initiative and referendum is once more emphasized Postmaster General Hitchcock, who, by in the vote in Ohio on the constitutional amendments submitted two weeks ago. The voters who acted on those important amendments numbered only 550,000. President in Ohio was 1,121,552. > If less than half the qualified voters are ing under the referendum? Whether the fact remains that the voters everywhere take a far more decided interest in the election of men than they do in the approval of laws. In every state a vote on constitutional amendments is likely to ernor, members of Congress or members of the Legislature. It may be that personalities attract more than abstractions do. At all events, the legislators who make laws and the state officers who enforce them under the old system invariably represent a much wider constituency than that which governs under the direct method. The greater the extension of the direct system, the greater the power put in the hands of a minority of the

It seems desirable, if the fashion of direct legislation and of direct nominations for all offices is to spread, to insist upon the participation in referendums and primaries of a substantial majority of the qualified voters. If the minimum were to be put at 75 per cent, or even 65, there would be a wholesome check on snap action by a small but aggressive body of innovators and enthusiasts. If they could not interest an appreciable majority of the voting population in the consideration of their schemes, these schemes would fail, and fail deservedly. Nothing could be more demoralizing and provocative of distrust of stability and justice in and, most notably of all, Germany, doing government than to see power over the personal and property rights of a whole community put into the hands of a small fraction of the public, under the ridiculous pretence of introducing a larger measure of popular rule. -N. MATURING THE PULLETS.

When young stock show sex they should be separated, and the pullets in their bachelor quarters should have special care to bring them to a splendid maturity, and by this we mean they should be built into strong hens that are prime layers, that are stayers and payers. These pullets should be divided into flocks and quartered in open front houses at such a distance apart that they will not mix, and they should have a well drained range among the fields, woods, orchards, where they get green food and natural protein from bugs and wigglers.

They must not be crowded and should have airy quarters. They should not be left to huddle at night, but be taught to roost as soon as large enough, and they must be kept free from lice, mites and filth, a triumvirate that kills or stunts millions of young birds each season.

There should be shade, natural or artificial; plenty of pure water, grit and shell, and as they develop their points the poor pullets should be culled out, for once a cull always a culi, and sex makes no exception. Pullets should not be fed forcing food if strong, continuous layers are wanted. They should be built big to stand the strain of heavy laying, and if indications of laying show before they are prepared for it they should be fed a broader ration (less protein) and changed from place to place, for a precocious pullet is nearly always a fizzler. In feeding take into consideration what they get off range. Oats, corn, wheat, equal parts, is a good whole grain ration, and the following mixture may be fed dry in hoppers or be given in moist mash once a Young stock sleeping in a bunch so long are hard to break from huddling. It requires a lot of patience at times to teach them to roost, while the turkeys fly into the trees almost as soon as their wings sprout.

Ducks are bound to get dirty if they have no bedding, and when they sleep on the floor in the chicken house they become a sight, and their plaster droppings make the place rank. Fowls that are raised in filth lack stamina and aren't fit for food.

Many claim to tell the age of a fowl by the spur. This really is not reliable, for we have seen roosters of the same age and size grow spurs of different lengths. Our Canadian experts try to tell us that the quality of the meat is shown by the spur. They say a hard, unpliable spur indicates a coarse, tough carcass, while a soft. pliable spur denotes quality. PROPER USE OF FATS

SHOULD BE KEPT SEPARATELY AFTER HOME RENDERING.

German Housewives Have Good Method With Suet-Old-Fashioned Manner of Clarifying Fat From the Soup Kettle.

Fats that are derived from the cooking of bacon, ham, chicken, beef and other meats should be kept, each in its own receptacle, to be used for different purposes

Home rendering of both suet and leaf lard has its advantages, because the product is generally superior to what can be bought for the same

Both suet and leaf lard require cooking in order to loosen the fat from the tougher membrane that holds it. For this purpose the material is cut in small pieces and covered with water and allowed to cook slowly for some time until no more water remains and the scrap has turned to a light brown.

A better method for suet is that used by German housewives, who economize on butter by the use of beef fat more than do American housekeepers. The suet is cut in small pieces and covered with water, in which it is allowed to soak for a day, the water being changed once in the time. It is then drained and put into an iron kettle with one-half tea cup of skim milk to every pound of the suet. It should be cooked very slow-

When it has partly cooled it should be carefully poured off. This fat has no unpleasant taste or odor, and in many recipes may be substituted for part of the butter. Some cooks add a pound of leaf lard to four or five of the suet; this makes a softer fat, as lard has a lower melting pound than beef fat.

An old-fashioned method of clarifying fat from the soup kettle, or from cooked meats, so that it may be used in the kitchen, is to add the cold fat to a liberal quantity of cold water, then heat slowly and let cook for an hour or more. When cold, the cake of fat is removed and the lower portion, which will contain the small particles of meat, etc., should be scraped away and the white, clean fat saved. If the flavor or color of both are not satisfactory the process may be repeated several times. Another method which is often recommended is to cook a number of slices of raw potato in the boiling fat.

When an ice chest is used, fat in small quantities may be easily kept sweet for cooking purposes. If lard is rendered at home in quantity sufficient for a long time, it should be kept covered in tins or earthen jars, in a cool, dry place.

Mustard Pickle.

One large head of cauliflower, one quart of white button onions, one dozen dill pickles, two quarts of vinegar, one teaspoonful mustard seed, two teaspoonfuls celery seed, two cupfuls of sugar, three-quarters of a cup of flour. one-quarter of a pound of ground mustard, one tablespoonful of turmeric powder. Divide cauliflower in pieces and boil it and the onions in salted water until about half done, drain, cut up dill pickles; mix flour, mustard and turmeric with a little cold water and add this to the boiling vinegar in which the sugar and celery and mustard seeds have been placed. let boil for five minutes, then pour over the pickle. This makes about one gallon of fine mustard pickle and is easy to prepare.

Rhubarb Flummery.

Peel and cut up 21/2 pounds of rhubarb; put in a basin with a little cold water, not enough to quite cower it. place a plate over the top and cook it until soft in the oven. Dissolve one heaping tablespoonful of powdered gelatin in half a cup of boiling water, add strained juice of rhubarb and stir until dissolved. With a wooden spoon rub the cooked rhubarb through a sieve, then add to gelatin, with seven tablespoonsfuls of whipped cream and eight tablespoonsfuls of sugar. Set this on the fire to reheat, but do not allow to boil, stirring all the time. Pour into wet moulds, turn out when firm and serve with custard around

Bake in two layers and put together with boiled frosting, made with two cups sugar, the juice of one orange and whites of two eggs.

Tomato Pie.

One pint of chopped green tomatoes, five apples chopped, two cups of sugar, one cup of molasses, one-half cup of vinegar, three tablespoons of flour, spice of all kinds. Put whole raisins and bits of butter on top before putting on the upper crust. Makes one large or two small pies. .

Banana Sherbet.

Boil three pints of water and three cups of sugar for ten minutes, then strain and chill. Strain the juice from three lemons and two large oranges, add the pulp of three bananas pressed through a sieve, stir in the chilled sirup, pack in salt and ice, freeze and let stand one or more hours to ripen.

PROPERLY MADE GRAPE JUICE

Steaming Is Considered Better Than Stewing if Best Results Are to Be Obtained.

There is something worth remembering about the making of grape juice, contributed by a student of domestic science: Crush and steam the grapes, instead of crushing and stewing them, as was the old method. To the crushed fruit add one quart of water to every 16 quarts of grapes, and place the kettle containing them over second kettle containing hot water. It is claimed that the substitution of steaming for stewing does fuller justice to the grape. After they have been rendered thoroughly tender, pour the cooked fruit into the jelly bag and let it drip over night. By morning the sediment will have settled at the bottom and the clear top can be poured off. The juice is now ready for bottling. After it has been strained into bottles (glass fruit jars may be used to as good advantage) covers and rubbers are put on and the bottles are set on a rack in the boiler, or on the shelf of the steam cooker. If you use the boiler, or a kettle, add cold water until it comes up about two inches on the bottle or jar. Bring the water gradually to the boiling point, and let the boiling continue from 30 to 60 minutes, according to size of jar. Seal the bottles, and the juice is ready to store.

Scorch marks of linen may be removed by rubbing with a fresh cut onion, the garment being soaked in cold water after.

Keep some folded newspapers handy upon which to place soiled pots and pans, and save cleaning smutty rings from the tables.

When preparing a turkey or chicken, try rubbing it inside with a piece of lemon. It will whiten the flesh and make it more tender. After cleaning the shelves and inside of pantry drawers, give a coat of varnish or enamel, and they will clean as easily as oilcloth. Avoid open sheives in kitchen or pantry. Have at least a curtain to keep out the dust. A window shade of the right size is liked by many. To prevent pictures from slipping and hanging uneven, hang them first face to the wall, and then twist around, making a cross in the wire. Croquettes or other foodstuffs to be fried in deep fat should stand for fifteen minutes in the warm kitchen before being cooked, to brown well.

Ragout of Lamb.

Cut the necessary amount of shoulder of lamb into square pieces of equal size. Take off the pink skin and saute or fry in a bit of butter-an ounce is enough for three pounds. Add some small onions and brown for 10 minutes. Dredge with flour, a tablespoon to a pound, and stir well for two minutes. Moisten with boiling water or white broth, a pint to a pound of meat, and season. Let cook for 45 minutes. Two minutes after it begins to boil thoroughly skim off the scum on the surface. Serve on a hot dish with green beans and an equal quantity of new carrots, cut in small pieces, steamed and well seasoned.

Open Apple Pie.

Line a rather deep pie plate with pastry and put a 1im around the edge. Pare and cut tart apples into halfinch sections, lengthwise and stand them close together all around the edge. Then fill the center with sliced apples, all it will hold, filling in the chinks well, as the apples shrink in baking. Add sugar, a few grains of salt, nutmeg or cinnamon and dot all over with bits of butter. Bake in a moderate oven until apples are done and serve hot or as soon as cool. Not to good after first day.

Egg Cutlets.

Put two tablespoonfuls of butte. into a sauce pan; add two tablespoonfuls of flour and blend over fire; add one cupful of milk, boil three minutes, stirring all the time; add two yolks of eggs, remove from fire, and add two tablespoonfuls of chopped, cooked ham, six chopped hard-boiled eggs, seasoning of salt, pepper, and nutmeg. Turn out onto a plate to cool. Shape into cutlets. Brush over with beaten egg, roll in bread crumbs, and fry in smoking hot fat. Serve hot.

Boiling Cracked Eggs.

An egg that is cracked can be boiled by inclosing it in a piece of soft paper. When the paper becomes wet it adheres to the egg, and prevents it from coming through the shell. This process should be successful in every case where the crack is of a moderate length.

Washing White Stockings.

When washing white silk stockings use tepid water and pure white soap. Rub gently with the hands. Rinse in cold water and ad a little bluing to the last rinsing water. This keeps them from becoming yellow.

Ginger Pudding.

One-half cupful molasses, one teaspoonful ginger, one-half lemon, one egg, one-half cupful milk, one teaspoonful soda, one teaspoonful cream tartar, one tablespoonful butter, one half cupful chopped raisins.

Water Sponge Cake.

This is a small sponge cake: One egg, one-half cup of sugar, one-half teaspoon lemon juice, three tablespoons of cold water, three-quarters cup of flour sifted with one teaspoon baking powder.

BIG BARGAIN SALE.

The biggest bargain sale of machinery in history is promised upon the completion of the Panama canal. To dispose of machinery costing more than $15,000,000 is the problem confronting government authorities when the canal is opened.

Although understood in a general way, Colonel Goethals, superintenden: of the canal work, reports actual figures of machinery bought since the United States began digging the "big ditch." Here are a few of the principal items: Steam shovels, 102; cars, 4,181; locomotives, 189; rock drills, 725; cranes, 79; dredges, 14; barges,

Many of the locomotives and cars will be useful in operating the canal and the Panama railroad, but most of the dredges, steam shovels and mountains of other steel implements will be put on the block for sale.

Secretary of the Interior Fisher has suggested the plan of transferring much of the discarded machinery to Alaska for use in constructing a government railroad to the interior of that territory. If congress does not authorize the federal railway in Alaska, however, most of the Panama machinery will be sold for the best price it will bring.

Spanish Puffs.

Put into a saucepan a teacup of water, one tablespoon of powdered sugar, half a teaspoon of salt, two ounces of butter. While this is boiling add sufficient flour for it to leave the saucepan. Stir in, one by one, the yolks of four eggs, drop a teaspoonful at a time in boiling lard and fry a light brown.

Canned Rhubarb and Gooseberries. Fix either as for cooking, put in glass jar, cover with water; seal and they will never spoil.

Has Man of the House Right to Discharge Cook?

Or Can Domestic, Told by Wife to Stick to Her Post, Hold the Fort?-Matter of Some Moment to Husbands.

Our sympathy goes out to T. R. Dunkerly of Tacoma. This free-born American citizen finds it impossible, even with the help of the courts, to rid himself of his cook, though, according to his allegations, her bread is "like bricks and her biscuits like stones." When he attempted to put the cook out of the house she "threatened him," and as he was a small person it became necessary for him to appeal to the law. When the constable arrived with the warrant the cook admitted that she had refused to leave, but said that she had been hired by Mrs. Dunkerley, who was away from home, but had ordered her not to leave under any circumstances.

The case is one of plainly conflicting jurisdiction. There seems to be a twilight zone within which positive action, at least by the husband, is impossible. As a rule, the wife employs the servants. But whether she is in the legal sense the employer is doubtful. As a rule, the one who pays the wages is the employer. If this rule holds in domestic affairs, and if Mr. Dunkerly was in truth the paymaster, it would seem as though it were for him to say whether the cook should go or stay.

Yet the case is not free from complexity. To insist on the rule in its strictness would be to make the wife the mere agent of the husband, which of course, is not, in these days, to be thought of. There are those who will argue that when a man gives his wife money with which to run the house the money is hers. On that theory she would be the employer. But it is not necessary to take this extreme view. We may hold that all the money earned or possessed by either husband or wife belongs to both, and that the money which was paid to this cook was, when it was paid, the property of Mrs. Dunkerley. At least it was as much the wife's as it was the husband's. As it was part of her duty, as representative of the family, to hire the cook, and as she may be held to have paid her wages and to have been the employer, one may fairly conclude that Dunkerley was a mere interloper in his own home.

But the case is a sad one, and there are, of course, many who will take the other view than that here elaborated. It is hard to have to eat bread like bricks and biscuits like stones. There ought to be some redress besides resort to the tavern, especially when one feels that one is paying for bread and biscuit that are not like bricks and stones. But the appeal seems to be to the lady of the house, and we hope that it will not be in vain.-Indianapolis News.

Rats and the Plague.

After hundreds of negative examinations of rats made during the last few weeks one rat carrying bubonic plague bacilli was found in New Orleans, on July 27, and one in Philadelphia on July 29. New cases of plague have been reported in both Porto Rico and Cuba. At Porto Rico special examination will be given to freight to be shipped to the United States. Large forces of rat poisoners and rat catchers are at work and five hundred rats are being examined daily. The United States treasury department has ordered that all vessels from ports in South America, the West Indies, Africa, Russia, China, India and the Pacific islands, while lying in United States ports, shall have all lines or hawsers leading to wharves or shore protected by rat guards, and that all gang planks shall be raised at night unless men be placed nearby to destroy escaping rats.

Life of London. John L. Griffiths, formerly of Indianapolis, now consul general at London, writes that greater London has a population of 7,250,000. The county of London comprises only a portion of the metropolitant area. The county council's abstract shows the following interesting items: Population, 4,522,-961; debt, $558,583,980; ratable value, $217,023,144; weddings a year, 40,201; births, 112,795; deaths, 61,909; deaths by accidents, 1,846; fires, 3,208; paupers, 140,560; police, 17,293; soldiers, 10,058; postal employes, 49,969; firemen, 1,365; motor cars, 8,318; cattle, 3,371; sheep, 2,941; pigs, 1,948; orchards (acres), 168; corn crops, 242; postoffices, 1,061; letters delivered. 805,900,000; post cards, 199,800,000; telegrams, 25,662,000. The imports into London constitute 33.6 per cent of the total imports into the United Kingdom, and more than half the income tax on salaries is paid by London.

They Knew All About It. "You must have lived in a little Scotch town," remarked a busy London woman, "to appreciate the pinpoints of interest to which a village may be reduced and the absolute publicity of your every movement in such a place. "Once while I was visiting at home I happened to be lying down when callers came, so my mother did not disturb me. At tea-time other callers arrived, and by way of making conversation one of them said to me very

ORIGIN OF THE WORD "STEE!"

Ancients Made It, But They Are Said Not Actually to Have Named It.

"We do not know much," writes C W. Ernst in the Bulletin of the American Iron and Steel association. "We do not know where the word 'steel' came from, nor do we know the original meaning. A leading 'authority' claims the word as having started in England; he is sure mistaken, as the records show.

"When the word first appeared in English or Anglo-Saxon it had become a proper name on the continent, showing the general diffusion of the term. We are equally disappointed in the Greek and Roman classics. They knew how to harden soft iron, but had no name for the finished product we call 'The Greeks obtained a good brand of steel from the Chalybes at Sinope; that brand they called 'chalybs' or 'chalybos,' and the Romans adopted the term. But the common people did not use the word, which occurs mainly in poetry. It was so used by Aeschylus about 475 B. C. and in Latin by Virgil a few years before the Christian era.

"When the writers of good Latin prose wished to convey the idea of steel they were apt to use the word 'acies,' which means a sharp edge or a sharp point. In the third century of our era we find the word 'acieris' and later still the word 'aciarium' whence the French 'acier,' meaning steel.

"The word 'steel' has not been found prior to the eighth century. It occurs in the so-called Epinal gloss, where 'steeli' is given as the Anglo-Saxon equivalent of the late Latin 'accearium' just mentioned. Students wishing to verify this may consult Henry Sweet's edition of the gloss, 1883, page 2.

"At that time the word was common on the continent and had become a proper name, both as simple 'stahl' or in compounds like 'stalhart.' have no word like 'steel' before the eighth century; we have no trace of the French 'acier' before the third century. Yet men made steel in the days of Homer and before his time in India. But even in the best days of Greece and Rome they hardly knew cast iron. Their iron statues were made of wrought iron and only trivial examples of cast iron are of classical antiquity.

"To 'temper,' meaning to harden wrought iron by heating and then dipping it in cold water, is a term used by Pliny. The process of 'tempering,' of course, is much older. It is mentioned in Homer and may have been known long before."

Stocking Renovations.

Skill with the needle saves money at every turn, and in respect to few articles of apparel does this fact become more apparent than in the case of stockings. Even when stocking feet are past re-mending with darns it is possible to give the "leg" portions a new lease of life by providing them with new "feet," cut from the "legs" of similar hose. The objection frequently put forward that the seams which join the "feet" to the "legs" are uncomfortable in wear, is avoided if the following method is adopted:

From the pattern obtained by cutting off the out-worn "feet," cut new pieces from the "calf" portion of another older pair. Join the seam at the back of the heel with a run and backstitch. Then place the edges of the seam flat and stitch them down with the fine herring-boning.

Fix the "foot" in position on the 'leg," and work from the center of the heel towards the toe, on each side, with a run and backstitch. Great care must be taken to get the toe portion to fit quite accurately. Then herringbone the raw edges down flat as in the case of the heel seam. Press the seams with a hot iron.

Brought Death to Pigeons.

At a meeting of the Linnean society of London, Professor Poulton presiding, a letter was read from Herr Paul Scherdlin, as follows: "For hundreds of years pigeons have nested on the spire of Strassburg cathedral. They increased so much that many attempts have been made to exterminate them, but in vain. During the last few years there has been a sudden and startling diminution in the number of these cathedral pigeons. I am of the opinion that this manifest reduction is due to the asphalting of the streets round the cathedral. Between the stone sets of the pavement the pigeons were able to pick up food in quantity. In consequence of the asphalting and daily watering and cleansing of the places in the immediate neighborhood the birds have gone.

Indication of Character.

Insincerity in dress is a very good indication of other kinds of insincerity, and if a woman's lingerie does not accord with her dresses, you may be pretty sure that her actions will not accord with her words. There is, besides, nothing so satisfying as the feeling of being well dressed all the way through. There is nothing which gives such perfect poise and grace as the consciousness of well-fitting undergarments and a petticoat of which one need not be ashamed. The woman who puts all her spending money into the "things that show," feathered hats, silk gowns, chiffon blouses, etc., and is willing to go about wearing the cheapest of underskirts and stockings, is rather like the hypocrite who could carry a whole load of secret sins hidden beneath a smiling countenance,

MRS. CORNWALLIS-WEST'S UNUSUAL INSPIRATION

Is the spirit of William Shakspeare guiding the hand and brain of Mrs.

ers, who declare that no woman like Mrs. West, who has made society a vocation instead of the amusement business, could possibly show the genius in management and the business ability to put on what is no doubt one of the biggest single amuse-

If Shakspeare's spirit did not influence Mrs. West, what accounts for her sudden inspiration to stage the picturesque scenes of Elizabethan England at the cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Giving up her social duties and working nine hours each day and many extra nights organizing the big show on speculation.

Leaving Mayfair and the brilliant court of St. James after a life of idle luxury and plunging into hard labor. And, above all, showing a genius in the work which is said by experts to worthy of the great poet himself. Mrs. West displayed such splendid genius that many of her friends and acquaintances believe that even with the knowledge of English history she dery. A simple model of white merhas she could not have revived those days of tilts and jousts with such accuracy as she has shown.

The story is most mysterious because Mrs. West will neither deny nor confirm it. This much, however, is known: She spent months wandering over every inch of the ground with its ivy-grown cottages and gay gardens that was beloved by the great English poet; she spent hours visiting the homes in which he once lived and then took her books and read, and meditated and talked Shakspeare with everybody who loves the great English dramatist and his works. It is said that when her work was completed and she went back to London prior to the pageant, Marie Corelli said to her: "It will be a wonderful success. It must be, for Shakspeare will be with you at the pageant and will direct the show. If you follow his instruction you will be well rewarded, for he will not leave you after the pageant is over. He is with many great writers, inspiring them to do their best, and he will remain with you. If it were not for his great genius and that of others who have gone to the great unknown there would be few writers in the world today. It is Shakspeare and the lesser lights who have inspired me and others to do their best."

Since everybody is congratulating Mrs. West on her splendid success, she cannot forget the words that Marie Corelli spoke to her. She is beginning to wonder if there is some half truth in these words, and that she may yet be aided to do great works with her pen.

MOST DAINTY MODES

Present Styles Seem the Limit in Attractiveness.

Wonderful Materials and Originality of Design Are Combined with Charming Effect-Touches for the Lingerie Frock.

YEW YORK .- Who among us can recall the time when people did not say that the styles at that particular season were prettier and more becoming than ever before? Of course, I am not speaking of the dear old people, who have such charming reminiscences that cling to the rose colored past and which nothing, no matter how beautiful, could ever blot out. But truly it is hard to think that any styles were ever so attractive as our present modes-none certainly were ever able to express more originality, nor did they seem to show the natural lines of the figure as do the present.

And not only are the styles and designs attractive, but the wonderful materials that make it possible to obtain the daintiest effects are not to be forgotten when crediting the other es sentials of the makeup. I am sure no one, even those with limited allowances, can fail to have attractive frocks this season, especially if they are at all apt with the needle and can add a few original touches which are lacking in the bought frocks.

Somehow, it seems to be quite a help in the dull, sultry days of summer to look cool, even though it may be quite impossible to feel that way. There really doesn't seem to be anything that is quite as cool looking as a dainty lingerie frock. Of course, it is the simple ones that are most offective, for I am sure that we have all seen the kind that are so overtrimmed that they look positively hot.

Secret of Daintiness.

It isn't necessary to have a frock full up with expensive laces to make it dainty, nor yet to spend months in working up designs in hand embroicerized or cotton voile is always attractive in combination with a fine over eyelet embroidery. The plastron collar is particularly good for covering a passe blouse, and, of course, for a growing girl the attractive fold at the bottom of the skirt in quite an effective way for lengthening the skirt.

But it always seems quite a problem to find a fitting finish to a dainty collar, flounce or anything made of eyelet embroidery. Of course, it is possible to scallop and buttonhole the edges, but that takes a great amount of time, and hardly seems practical. A piping is always a help, and may often lend a color note to a dead white gown. Though they are quite popular at present, they are, as a rule, mostly in the form of cordings. When making cordings the material should be cut on a true bias, about an inch to an inch and a quarter in width, and be sure to press all the seams at the joinings before putting in the cordings.

After laying the cording in the center of the material, fold it over and run a row of stitching, as close to the cord as possible. Some find that machine stitching is quite all right, but to me, the hand sewing is much more satisfactory. There is an easy method for cutting bias, and if I can explain it clearly enough I know you will find it a help, for one is so apt not to get all the seams on the same side and often the width will vary.

Getting True Bias.

Fold down a corner of your material to find a true bias-a straight line on the cross of the material laid on the selvage line will determine the true bias line. Then measure down the desired width in two or three places and join them with a straight line, either in the tailors' chalk or lead pencil, preferably ruled-repeat this until you have measured off the desired length of the bias. Then, placing one corner of the bias to the

In the Composite Car.

It was the gentle stranger's turn to miss his guess. He bent over the chair into which Mallory had flopped, and said in a tense, low tone: "You look like a t'oroughbred sport. I'm trying to make up a game of stud poker. Will vou join me?"

Mallory shook his heavy head in refusal, and with dull eyes watched the man, whose profession he no longer misunderstood, saunter up to the blissful Doctor from Ypsilanti, and murmur again:

"Will you join me?" "Join you in what, sir?" said Dr. Temple, with alert courtesy.

"A little game." "I don't mind," the doctor smiled, rising with amiable readiness. "The checkers are in the next room."
"Quit your kiddin'," the stranger coughed. "How about a little freeze-

"Freeze-out?" said Dr. Temple. "It sounds interesting. Is it something like authors?"

The newcomer shot a quick glance at this man, whose innocent air he suspected. But he merely drawled: 'Well, you play it with cards."

"Would you mind teaching me the rules?" said the old sport from Ypsilanti.

The gambler was growing suspicious of this too, too childlike innocence. He whined: "Say, what's your little game, eh?" but decided to risk the venture. He sat down at a table, and Dr. Temple, bringing along his glass, drew up a chair. The gambler took a pack of cards from his pocket, and shuffled them with a snap that startled Dr. Temple and a dexterity that delighted him.

"Go on, it's beautiful to see," he explained. The gambler set the pack down with the one word "Cut!" but since the old man made no effort to comply, the gambler did not insist. He took up the pack again and ran off five cards to each place with a grace that staggered the doctor.

Mallory was about to intervene for the protection of the guileless physician when the conductor chanced to saunter in.

The gambler, seeing him, snatched Dr. Temple's cards from his hand and slipped the pack into his pocket. atter now?" Dr. Temple asked, but the newcomer huskily answered: "Wait a minute. Wait a minute."

The conductor took in the scene at a glance and, stalking up to the table, spoke with the grimness of a sea-captain: "Say, I've got my eye on you. Don't start nothin'."

The stranger stared at him wonderingly and demanded: "Why, what you drivin' at?"

"You know all right," the conductor growled, and then turned on the befuddled old clergyman, "and you, too." "Me, too?" the preacher gasped.

"Yes, you too," the conductor repeated, shaking an accusing forefinger under his nose. "Your actions have been suspicious from the beginning. We've all been watching you.

Dr. Temple was so agitated that he mearly let fall his secret. "Why, do you realize that I'm a-"

"Ah, don't start that," sneered the conductor, "I can spot a gambler as far as I can see one. You and your side partner here want to look out, that's all, or I'll drop you at the next tank." Then he walked out, his very shoulder blades uttering threats.

Dr. Temple stared after him, but the gambler stared at Dr. Temple with a homage. "So you're one of us," he said, and seizing the old man's limp hand, shook it heartily: "I got to slip it to you. Your make-up is great. You nearly had me for a comeon. Great!"

And then he sauntered out, leaving the clergyman's head swimming. Dr. Temple turned to Mallory for explanations, but Mallory only waved him away. He was not quite convinced himself. He was convinced only that whatever else anybody might be, nobody apparently desired to be a clergyman in these degenerate days.

The conductor returned and threw Into Dr. Temple the glare of two basilisk eyes. The old man put out a beseeching hand and began: "My good man, you do me a grave injustice."

The conductor snapped back: "You say a word to me and I'll do you worse than that. And if I spot you with a pack of cards in your hand again, I'll tie you to the cow-ketcher.' Then he marched off again. The doctor fell back into a chair, trying to figure it out. Then Ashton and Fosdick and little Jimmie Wellington and Wedgewood strolled in and, dropping into chairs, ordered drinks. Before the doctor could ask anybody to explain, Ashton was launched on a story.

Wherever three or four men are gathered together, they rapidly organ-The doctor listened in spite of himself, and in spite of himself he was amused, for stories that would be stupid if they were decent, take on a certain verve and thrill from their very forbiddenness.

The dear old clergyman felt that it would be priggish to take flight, but he could not make the corners of his mouth behave. Strange twitchings of the lips and little steamy escapes of giggle-jets disturbed him. And when Ashton, who was a practiced raconteur, finished a drolatic adventure with the epilogue, "And the next morning they were at Niagara Falls," the old doctor was helpless with laughter. Some superior force, the devil doubt, fairly shook him with glee.

"Oh, that's bully," he shricked, "I haven't heard a story like that for

"Why, where have you been, Dr. Temple?" asked Ashton, who could not imagine where a man could have concealed himself from such stories. But he laughed loudest of all when the doctor answered: "You see, I live in Ypsilanti. They don't tell me stories like that."

"They-who?" said Fosdick.

"Why, my pa-my patients," the ductor explained, and laughed so hard that he forgot to feel guilty, laughed so hard that his wife in the next room heard him and giggled to Mrs. Whit-

"Listen to dear Walter. He hasn't laughed like that since he was a-a medical student." Then she buried her face guiltily in a book.

"Wasn't it good?" Dr. Temple demanded, wiping his streaming eyes and nudging the solemn-faced Englishman, who understood his own nation's humor, but had not yet learned the Yankee quirks.

Wedgewood made a hollow effort at laughter and answered: "Extremely -very droll, but what I don't quite get was-why the porter said-" The others drowned him in a roar of laughter, but Ashton was angry. "Why, you blamed fool, that's where the joke came in. Don't you see, the bridegroom said to the bride-" then he lowered his voice and diagramed the story on his fingers.

Mrs. Temple was still shaking with sympathetic laughter, never dreaming what her husband was laughing at. She turned to Mrs. Whitcomb, but Mrs. Whitcomb was still glaring at Mrs. Wellington, who was still writing with flying fingers and underscoring every other word.

"Some people seem to think they own the train," Mrs. Whitcomb raged. "That creature has been at the writing desk an hour. The worst of it is. I'm sure she's writing to my husband."

Mrs. Temple looked shocked, but another peal of laughter came through the partition between the male and female sections of the car, and she beamed again. Then Mrs. Wellington finished her letter, glanced it over, addressed an envelope, sealed and stamped it with a deliberation that maddened Mrs. Whitcomb. When at last she rose, Mrs. Whitcomb was in the seat almost before Mrs. Welling-

Mrs. Wellington paused at another wave of laughter from the men's room. She commented petulantly:

"What good times men have. They've formed a club in there already. We women can only sit around and hate each other."

"Why, I don't hate anybody, do you?" Mrs. Temple exclaimed, looking up from the novel she had found on the book shelves. Mrs. Wellington dropped into the next chair: "On a long railroad journey I hate everybody. Don't you hate long jour-

"It's the first I ever took," Mrs. Temple apologized, radiantly, "and I'm having the-what my oldest boy would call the time of my life. And dear Walter-such goings on for him! A few minutes ago I strolled by the door and I saw him playing cards with a stranger, and smoking and drinking, too, all at once."

"Boys will be boys," said Mrs. Wil-

"But for Dr. Temple of all people-" "Why shouldn't a doctor? It's a shame the way men have everything. Think of it, a special smoking room. And women have no place to take a puff except on the sly.'

Mrs. Temple stared at her in awe: 'The woman in this book smokes!perfumed things!"

"All women smoke nowadays," said Mrs. Wellington, carelessly. "Don't you? The politest thing Mrs. Temple could think of in answer was: "Not yet." "Really!" said Mrs. Wellington, "Don't you like tobacco?" "I never tried it." "It's time you did. I smoke cigars myself." Mrs. Temple almost collapsed at this double shock: "Ci-cigars?" "Yes; cigarettes are too strong for me; will you try one of my pets?" Mrs. Temple was about to express her repugnance at the thought, but Mrs. Wellington thrust before her a portfolio in which nestled such dainty shapes of such a warm and winsome brown, that Mrs. Temple paused to stare, and, like Mother Eve, found the fruit of knowledge too interesting once seen to reject with scorn. She hung over the cigar case in hesitant excitement one moment too long. Then she said in a trembling voice: "I-I should like to try once-just to see what it's like. But there's no place."

dotes, mostly of the smoking-room tim to the precipice: "There's the observation platform, my dear. Come on out."

Mrs. Temple was shivering with disize a clearing-house of off-color stories. | may at the dreadful deed: "What would they say in Ypsilanti?"

What do you care? Be a sport. Your husband smokes. If it's right for him, why not for you?"

Mrs. Temple set her teeth and crossed the Rubicon with a resolute "I will!"

Mrs. Wellington led the timid neophyte along the wavering floor of the car and flung back the door of the observation car. She found Ira Lathrop holding Anne Gattle's hand and evidently explaining something of great importance, for their heads were very close together. They rose and with abashed faces and confused mumblings of half swallowed explanations, left the platform to Mrs. Wellington and her new pupil.

Shortly afterward Little Jimmie Wellington grew restive and set out for a brief constitutional and a breath of air. He carried a siphon to which he had become greatly attached, and made heavy going for the observation room, but reached the door in fairly good order. He swung it open and brought in with it the pale and wavering ghost of Mrs. Temple, who had been leaning against it for much-needed support. Wellington was stupefied to observe smoke pouring round Mrs. Temple's form, and he resolved to perform a great life-saving feat. He decided that the poor little woman was on fire and he poised the siphon like a fire extinguisher, with the noble intention of putting her out.

He pressed the handle, and a stream of vichy shot from the nozzle.

Fortunately, his aim was so very wobbly that none of the extinguisher touched Mrs. Temple.

Wellington was about to play the siphon at her again when he saw her take from her lips a toy cigar and emit a stream of cough-shaken smoke. The poor little experimentalist was too wretched to notice even so large a menace as Wellington. She threw the cigar away and gasped:

"I think I've had enough." From the platform came a voice very well known to Little Jimmie. It "You'll like the second one betsaid:

Temple shuddered at the thought, but Wellington drew himself up majestically and called out: "Like second one better, eh? I suppozhe it's the same way with husbandsh."

Then he stalked back to the smoking room, feeling that he had annihilated his wife, but knowing from experience that she always had a comeback. He knew it would be good, but he was afraid to hear it. He rolled into the smoking room, and sprawling across Doctor Temple's shoulders,

"Doc, your wife looks kind o' seedy. Better go to her at once."

dismal, ashen sight. "Sally! What on earth ails you?"

"Been smok-oking," she hiccoughed. The world seemed to be crashing round Dr. Temple's head. He could only gurgle, "Sally!" Mrs. Temple drew herself up with weak defiance: "Well, I saw you playing cards and drinking." In the presence of such innocent deviltry he could only smile: "Aren't we having an exciting vacation? But to think of you smoking!-and a cigar!"

She tossed her head in pride. "And it didn't make me sick-much." She clutched a chair. He tried to support her. He could not help pondering: "What would they say in Yp-hip-silanti?"

"Who cares?" she laughed. "I-I wish the old train wouldn't rock so." "I-I've smoked too much, too," said Dr. Temple with perfect truth, but Mrs. Temple, remembering that long glass she had seen, narrowed her eyes at him: "Are you sure it was the smoke?" "Sally!" he cried, in abject horror at her implied suspicion. Then she turned a pale green. "Oh,

I feel such a qualm. "In your conscience, Sally?" "No, not in my conscience. I think I'll go back to my berth and lie down.'

"Let me help you, Mother." And Darby and Joan hurried along the corridor, crowding it as they were crowding their vacation with belated experience.

CHAPTER XIX.

Foiled!

It was late in the forenoon before the train came to the end of its iron furrow across that fertile space between two of the world's greatest rivers, which the Indians called "Iowa," nobody knows exactly why. In contrast with the palisades of the Mississippi, the Missouri twists like a great brown dragon wallowing in congenial mud. The water itself, as Bob Burdette said, is so muddy that the wind blowing across it raises a cloud of dust.

A sonorous bridge led the way into Nebraska, and the train came to a halt at Omaha. Mallory and Marjorie got out to stretch their legs and their dog. If they had only known that the train was to stop there the quarter of an hour, and if they had only known some preacher there and had had him to the station, the ceremony could have been consummated then and there. The horizon was fairly saw-toothed with church spires. There were preachers, preachers everywhere, and not a dominie to do their deed. After they had strolled up and down Mrs. Wellington felt that she had the platform, and up and down, and already made a proselyte to her own up and down till they were fain of their cramped quarters, again, Marjorie suddenly dug her nails into Mallory's arm.

"Honey! look-look!" Honey looked, and there before their very eyes stood as clerical looking person as ever announced strawberry festival. Mallory stared and stared, till Marjorie said: "Don't you see? stupid! it's a preacher! a preacher!"

'It looks like one," was as far as Mallory would commit himself, and he was turning away. He had about come to the belief that anything that looked like a parson was something else. But Marjorie whirled him round again, with a shrill whisper to listen. And he overheard in tones addicted to the

"Yes, deacon, I trust that the harvest will be plentiful at my new church. It grieves me to leave the dear brothers and sisters in the Lord in Omaha, but I felt called to wider pastures.'

And a lady who was evidently Mrs. Deacon spoke up:

"We'll miss you terrible. We all say you are the best pastor our church Mallory prepared to spring on his prey and drag him to his lair, but Marjorie held him back. "He's taking our train, Lord bless his dear old soul." And Mallory could have hugged him. But he kept close watch. To the rapture of the wedding-hungry twain, the preacher shook hands with such of his flock as had followed him to the station, picked up his valise and walked up to the porter, extending his ticket. But the porter said-and Mallory coud have throttled him for saying it: 'Scuse me, posson, but that's yo' train ova yonda. You betta move right smaht, for it's gettin' ready to pull

With a little shriek of dismay, the parson clutched his valise and set off at a run. Mallory dashed after him and Marjorie after Mallory. They shouted as they ran, but the conductor of the east-bound train sang out "All. aboard!" and swung on.

The parson made a sprint and caught the ultimate rail of the moving train. Mallory made a frantic leap at a flying coat-tail and missed. As he and Marjorie stood gazing reproachfully at the train which was giving a beautiful illustration of the laws of retreating perspective, they heard wild howls of "Hi! hi!" and "Hay! hay!" and turned to see their own train in motion, and the porter dancing a Zulu step alongside.

LARGE WASTE IN ROAD WORK

Annual Loss of $2,500,000 of Tax-Payers' Money Reported by Illinois Bankers' Association.

Some startling figures were given the Illinois Bankers' association in a report recently rendered by their good roads committee. The committee has made an exhaustive study of the road situation in the state and has discovered, among other things, that there is an annual waste of $2,500,000 of the tax-payers' money under present conditions.

The existing township highway system is severely criticised. The report says:

"There is no other branch of the public service that shows such a large percentage of waste. Any business enterprise under such a system would not last through a season, but so long as the people continue to put up the money and retain the present system this loss will continue.'

It is estimated that about $7,000,000 annually is spent for road purposes. Reports to the bankers' committee from 15 townships showed that 100 per cent of the money was wasted; from sixty-eight townships, 75 to 90 per cent; from 175 townships, 50 to 75 per cent; from 95 townships, 25 to 50 per cent, and for 47 townships, 10 to 15 per cent.

The report shows that conditions are getting worse instead of better. "The money is not willfully wasted," says the report, "but it is spent in small amounts here and there in the endeavor to patch up and make passable a poor road and a poor bridge. There is not money enough at hand to do a good job. This makes it necessary for the highway commissioner to do the best he can with what he has. The result is the same work has to be done over each successive year, with no permanent benefit to the roads." The worst of it is that these same words might be applied to a dozen other states, particularly in the south.

SUCCESS WITH AN INCUBATOR

Should Be Run Two or Three Days Before Putting in Eggs to Secure Even Temperature.

Run the incubator two or three days before putting in the eggs. This is so as to have the machine absorb heat, and also to test the thermometer and adjust the regulator. When you get the temperature to stand twenty-four hours at 100 degrees you are safe to put in the eggs. Do not crowd them. Cull them carefully and use no eggs of abnormal shape or size. The temperature naturally will fall noticeably when you put in the eggs. Don't get nervous and imagine something is wrong. Within a reasonable time, say an hour, the eggs will get warm, and the temperature will go back to 100 or near it and rise gradually within two or three days to 103, where it should

If your incubator is a well-made one, you need not spend over ten minutes, morning and night, refilling lamp and trimming wick, and once a day turning the eggs. Look closely after the lamp, the machine will probably do the rest. Be regular, careful and study the incubator and the instructions till you understand

ECONOMY IN LITTLE THINGS

May Seem Small, but in Course of Year, They Will Amount to Considerable Sum.

"During the time of high prices, there are many little economies that may be practiced to advantage if one will only read and heed," says a wise housekeeper. "It has been several years since I have had to break extra eggs for coffee. It is the thin membrane lining that clears the coffee. I skin these out of the shells whenever I break an egg for cooking or baking, and keep them in a small cup for use each day.

"All fryings, including bacon (not mutton), may be nicely cleared and sweetened by stiring in a heaping teaspoon of powdered borax to each pint of melted fat. Strain into small jar and cool. Good for use in cookies, ginger or molasses cakes, and corn bread.

"Corn starch is a good substitute for eggs-one tablespoon equals one egg. Use less in this proportion for custards, cookies and doughnuts.

"Always order the feet of fowl sent from the market when buying. Skin and cut off toes and stew with the chicken to enrich the liquor, as two will jelly over a quart of broth; or stew them in split peas or other vegetables for a cream soup. Remove as soon as the good is boiled out of them. Too few use the coarse stalks of celery and many learn to enjoy it cooked. Dress, cut in cubes, cook in salted water and it is ready to cream or escallop. Cooked celery is more digesti-

Neat, Inexpensive Tablecloth.

Take six flour sacks that have been previously bleached and sew them together so the cloth will be two wide and three long, joining corners nicely and sewing so there will be no raw seams on either side. Hem the ends or if you have time and wish it to look neater, draw threads and hemstitch. You will now have a neat, inexpensive tablecloth that will last a long time and launder easily.

Hair Falling?

You certainly cannot lose your hair and keep it, too. Which shall it be? Lose? Then do nothing. Keep? Then use Ayer's Hair Vigor. That is about all there is to it. Ayer's Hair Vigor is also a splendid hair-dressing and hair-tonic. It keeps the hair soft and smooth and greatly promotes its growth. It does not color the hair. Consult your doctor freely. An I H C Manure Spreader Is an Investment-Not an Expense

MACHINE that makes two dollars where one was made before is not an expense it is a good investment.

Careful tests made at the Ohio Experiment Station showed an average increased crop yield of $15 an acre when eight loads of manure were properly spread. Spreading with a fork, it would take at least sixteen loads to an acre to produce the same result. By fertilizing twice as much ground with the same quantity of manure and doing the work better, an I H C manure spreader soon pays for itself. Add to this saving an increase of $15 an acre in the value of your crops, and you at once see why we urge the purchase of an

IHC Manure Spreader Kemp 20th Century, Corn King, or Cloverleaf

Ask the I H C local dealer to show you the self-aligning, removable boxes on the main axle; notice that the axles are roller bearing to reduce the draft; study the apron construction, and note the large rollers on which it runs. IHC spreaders can be used in any corner of the barnyard. There is no reach to interfere. The seat folds out of the way when filling the spreader.

If you appreciate machines of extra merit; machines that spread manure in ample range of quantities; machines which can be equipped with drilling attachments for use in market gardens, and above all, machines which are made in sizes convenient for every farm, investigate I H C spreaders. Lesson XIII .- Third Quarter, For Sept. 29, 1912.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Comprehensive Quarterly Review-Golden Text, John vi, 63-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Lesson I.-Malignant unbelief, Mark 111, 20-35. Golden Text, John iii, 19, "This is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light because their deeds were evil." It seems to me that the talk against Christ in our day on the part of many religious people is as bad as was that of the scribes in this lesson. May the word and the will of God be so dear to us that we shall be to Him all that He desires.

LESSON II. - The seed in the four kinds of soil, Mark iv, 1-20. Golden Text, Jas. i, 21, "Receive with meekness the engrafted word, which is able to save your souls." To know God is life. He reveals Himself by His word. and Jesus Christ is the Living Word. between whom and the written word there is the most perfect agreement. Receiving Him we become children of God, the children of the kingdom, for which we wait.

LESSON III .- The growth of the kingdom, Mark iv, 26-32; Matt. xiii, 33. Golden Text, Matt. vi, 10, "Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven." The title of this lesson is unfortunate, as the kingdom has not yet begun and therefore cannot be growing. In all His parables about the kingdom we must remember His saying, "The mystery of the kingdom of God." (Mark iv, 11.) The church, which is His body, is the mystery which is now LESSON IV .- The wheat and the tares, Matt. xiii, 24-30, 36-43. Golden Text, Matt. xiii, 30, "Gather ye together first the tares and bind them in bundles to burn them, but gather the wheat into my barn." Since the harvest is the end of this age and the devil keeps at work till then, it should be clear to all who believe that the kingdom cannot come in this age. First the church is taken, then the age runs on till He shall come to close it.

LESSON V .- The worth of the kingdom, Matt. xiii, 44-53. Golden Text, Matt. vi, 33, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." The parables of the treasure and the pearl set forth the preciousness of Israel and the church to Him who gave up all for their sakes, for they will be the heavenly and earthly centers of His kingdom.

LESSON VI.-A troubled sea and a troubled soul, Mark iv, 35 to v. 20. his boldness won those who were his Golden Text, Ps. xlvi, 1, 2 (R. V.), "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble." See a weary man untroubled, peacefully sleeping in the midst of great trouble. See Him mightier than the storm or than a legion of demons, for He is as truly God as man, and all things shall yet be subject to Him.

LESSON VII.-The Ruler's daughter, Mark v, 21-43. Golden Text, Mark v. 41, "And He took the damsel by the hand and said unto her, Talitha. cumi, which is, being interpreted, Damsel, I say unto thee arise." Twelve years of life developing, suddenly ended, but restored; twelve years of life wasting away suddenly made whole, for in Him is life. He is the life and the resurrection. LESSON VIII.—The visit to Nazareth, Luke iv. 16-30. Golden Text, John i, 11 (R. V.), "He came unto His own, and they that were His own received Him not." Both this and the later visit to Nazareth (Mark vi, 1-6,) resulted in their refusing Him, because they thought they knew Him too well to receive Him as the Messiah. Some one has said that they might have known Him better if they had not known Him so well.

LESSON IX.-The death of John the Baptist, Mark vi. 14-29. Golden Text, Rev. ii, 10 (R. V.), "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee the crown of life." To my mind the story of John is, from the human side, in many respects one of the saddest in the Bible. A great man in the sight of the Lord, foretold centuries before he was born, filled with the Spirit from his birth, honored to hear the voice of God and baptize Jesus, yet killed to please Herodias.

LESSON X. - The mission of the twelve, Matt. ix, 35; x, 15. Golden Text, Matt. x, 40, "He that receiveth you receiveth me, and he that receiveth me receiveth Him that sent me." Another perplexing lesson to those who see only the earth side. Sent forth with blessing only for Israel, to be bestowed freely, promised hatred and persecution and probably death. Yet we know that "As for God, His way is perfect." (Ps. xviii, 30.)

LESSON XI.-Judgment and mercy, Matt. xi, 20-30. Golden Text, Matt. xi, 28, "Come unto Me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." All spiritual things are hidden from unbellef and from the wisdom of this world. Only those who are like little children, the meek and lowly, can understand. LESSON XII. - The feeding of the 5,000, Mark vi. 30-44. Golden Text, John vi. 35, "Jesus said unto them, I am the bread of life." Instead of puzzling over that which is too deep or too high for us, here is something within reach of all. Do as the lad did. and give our all to Jesus, that He may bless and multiply it and use us to give to the hungry the bread of life. "All power is His."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 29, 1912.

-Missionary boldness.-Acts iv, 13, Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle,

The early history of the Christian church is a striking proof of its divine origin, and in no particular is this more evident than in the wonderful change that took place in the apostles of Christ. At the crucifixion of Christ they were cowards and forsook Him and fled. After Pentecost they exemplified a "boly boldness" that has been the wonder of the world. On the day of Pentecost Peter, who had cringed before the finger of an accusing maid at the trial of Christ, denounced His executioners as murderers and called upon them to repent and be saved. When a short time after Peter and John were arrested for preaching the gospel, instead of being made timid and weak by a night in prison, they proclaimed the truth with such boldness that the people who heard them marveled at their freedom and outspokenness. Such a change could only have had its origin in God. Missionary boldness is historic. What missionary has not been bold? It has always required a courageous spirit to go as a missionary. Dangers have to be constantly faced. There have been perils on land and on sea, perils to physical health and to mental well being, perils from persecution, based upon hatred and fanaticism of the bitterest kind. These dangers have not only been faced, but actually suffered even unto death. And what missionary has ever faltered because of peril? Did Paton hesitate to face the flerce cannibals of the New Hebrides? Did Robert Moffat falter even when the weapons of the hostile natives of Africa were leveled at him? Did the missionaries of China ever turn back because they were in danger of being shot or burned to death? There is no record of conspicuous cowardice in all missionary history; but, on the other hand, there are innumerable instances recorded of sublime and heroic boldness. Such examples of Christian heroism should inspire us to stand for "the truth as it is in Jesus" against all criticism and all opposition.

Missionary boldness has ever been effective in spreading the gospel. Cowards never win adherents, but bold men secure many followers. This has been true in all missionary labors. Peter and John won converts by their dauntlessness. Persecution failed. Their enemies could not punish them "because of the people, for all glorified God for that which was done." It has ever been so. History in this respect has been constantly repeating itself. Paul many times faced death, but by worst enemies. The courage of Robert Moffat in the face of an angry mob, when he threw open his coat and bade them strike, won the day for the cause of Christianity. All Christian work requires more or less courage. and in being bold we only insure the success of all our labors and undertakings in the name of Christ.

haldness has its Jesus Christ. Christ Himself exemplified the highest type of courage. In the crisis of His life, when He knew what the final outcome would be, He "steadfastly set His face toward Jerusalem." This boldness Christ imparts to His disciples.

Peter and John, fishermen, unlearned in many respects, once timid and fearful, now boldly proclaimed doctrines that were hateful to those about them. The whole explanation lay in the fact "that they had been with Jesus." He had called them to be His disciples, He had sent them upon their mission, and He had qualified them for it by His gift of the Holy Spirit. We may not occupy high position or be highly educated, yet if we speak out boldly our humble testimony and practice what we preach the world will know that we have been with Jesus and will be won to Him.

Mining Camp Endeavor.

The Christian Endeavor society in Lake Valley, N. M., has to take the place of the church, because there is no church there. It includes in its membership people who would be church members elsewhere, and it performs church duties, such as conduct-

Lake Valley is a decaying mining camp. The society was organized in more prosperous days and passed through many unique experiences. Sometimes meetings were held to the accompaniment of a volley of rocks and stones that beat a thunderous rattat against the sides of the building. At other times, as the house was raised a foot or two above the ground, inventive tormentors amused themselves by driving herds of hogs back and forth under the floor.

This little church home was originally a lodging house, divided into many small rooms. The partitions were torn down; the women Endeavorers took down the cloth lining from the walls, washed, mended and replaced it. Later the cloth was covered with paper and still later with oilcloth. The bell stands above a room kept for visiting ministers. Christian Endeavor has been worth while in Lake Valley and is still worth

BIG CASH PRIZES

FOR MAKING SOAP

This is a great opportunity for every housewife to test her skill as a soap maker and at the same time win a valuable cash prize. Every woman can enter this contest-it doesn't cost one cent to try-the conditions are as simple as A B C.

We want to prove to every housewife who reads this paper, that with the aid of Banner Lye she can make all the soap she needs for her family use-make better soap than she can buy anywhere-make it cheaper, with very little labor and in a very short time.

To the women who send in the best samples of homemade soap in which Banner Lye has been used we will award the following cash prizes this month:

1st Prize $15.00 3rd Prize $ 5.00 2nd Prize $10.00 50 Prizes of $ 1.00 each So that every woman who enters this contest has fifty-three chances to win a cash prize, ranging from $1.00 to $15.00. Full directions for making soap are printed on every wrapper of Banner Lye-every contestant has an equal chance of winning a prize. After you have made your soap, cut off a small piece, wrap it in the Banner Lye wrapper, then in a piece of plain paper, on which write your full name and address and mail to The Penn Chemical Works, Philadelphia, Pa. SELFISH?

Cupid Thought Not and Was Right.

By M. DIBBELL.

"The game isn't worth the candle," said Jocelyn dejectedly. "We positively can't live on in this way; the ends simply won't meet-I must go to work at something."

"But what can you do, child?" queried her sister. "You have never learned anything but housekeeping well enough to teach it, and nobody wants lessons at that."

"Well I might at least keep somebody's house."

"Oh Jocelyn, is it not better to starve respectably than to go out as a common servant?"

"It certainly is not. I have a good healthy appetite every day of my life, and I intend to do my best to produce the three satisfactory meals which Providence intended me to have. Besides, a housekeeper is an important person nowadays-she oversees the doings of everybody else."

"Where do you expect to find such a responsible position? They don't

"I had a long talk with Mrs. Derment before she returned to the city this fall, and she quite approved of my idea. In her letter which came today she says that a dear friend of hers is in such poor health that she is no longer able to look after household affairs, but cannot bear to think of giving up her home. Mrs. Derment told her about me, and was authorized to make me a proposal. The salary is generous, and she is sure I will like Mrs. Norton. So can you suggest any reason why I should refuse such an offer?"

Miriam only gasped, as she gazed into the eager face of her energetic young sister.

'You dear old Miriam-you just can't help knowing that it is the very best thing on earth I could do. You can live here in peace and comfort and come over to see me if you get lonesome, I have kept the best part of it till the last-Mrs. Norton lives over on the highlands, only thirty minutes on the trolley."

Relief succeeded dismay Miriam's eyes. "That will be convenient to have you so near at hand. I was beginning to wonder how I could exist with you away off where I could never see you. You are a brave child, and I believe you could not help succeeding at whatever you undertook."

"I am so glad that I am to have someone who can take charge of everything," she said with a relieved sigh. "Now I can rest in peace, and rest seems to be a perpetual demand with me nowa-

"When you don't have anything to think about except how to get well and strong you will find yourself rested before you know it. I am going to see that you do get well-that is one of my duties as housekeeper," and Jocelyn's cheerful voice gave her employer a pleasant thrill. Mrs. Norton was alone, and her ill health was largely the result of sorrow over the loss of both her husband and an only daughter. Her interest in life seemed dead, but the presence of her cheerful young house. keeper caused it to show faint flutterings of life, and as the months passed she found that existence was not after all an entire blank.

The two women became fond of each other for the girl made valiant efforts to interest and amuse her employer; and great was her satisfaction when she saw in Mrs. Norton a marked improvement both in health and spirits.

The weekly visits to Miriam were faithfully paid, and the elder sister seemed cheerful and contented when they met; so it was a shock to Jocelyn when one day in late spring she received a call from Oliver Craig one of the favorite bachelors of her home village, and was severely taken ta task by him for leaving her sister to die of loneliness.

When she tried to defend her action he waved aside her explanation, but his next words opened the mental eyes of his bewildered listener.

"The only way out of it is for Miriam to marry me. I have been wanting her to do it for ten years. I am not going to sit quietly and see her pine away before my eyes—I want you to tell Miriam that it is her duty to be my wife, not to keep a home for you as she has always insisted. You would be as dear as a sister to me and could have a home with us always if you would."

Jocelyn gave a little laugh. "You see through your deep laid scheme. You know I have always liked you, Oliver. Why didn't you ask me to the most selfish creature on earth," help you before, instead of keeping she answered. "Should you sympa- baked.

> day following gave Miriam a severe lecture on her duty to the man who had loved her so long and waited for her so patiently. Before she left, a brother-in-law for herself had become an admitted possibility in the near future

On returning to the Norton residence after this interview, its housekeeper found unusual signs of excitement.

"Oh, Miss Newell," was the greeting of Mary the parlor-maid, "Mrs. Norton's nephew has come, and they have been talking together over an hour. Mrs. Norton said put him in the blue room, and he would stay a long time she hoped."

"I am glad he has come, Mary; it will do Mrs. Norton good and we must make him comfortable." Jocelyn hastened to her room, feeling to her own surprise decidedly blue.

Removing her wraps, she threw a shawl about her shoulders and slipped out of doors. Mrs. Norton and her nephew were evidently settled for the evening, and a lonely feeling came over the young housekeeper as she heard their voices in passing.

After rambling for some time in the moonlight, Jocelyn seated herself on a bench by the boundary wall, and faced the situation. "What a selfish thing I am! Just because Miriam is to be made happy in spite of herself, and Mrs. Norton has the only person she has on earth left to love come to brighten her up, I fall into the dumps! It's a nice way of practicing the Golden Rule."

But this self directed lecture failed of its effect, for to Jocelyn's disgust she found herself sobbing softly. She rubbed the tears fiercely away.

"Why Miss Newell, what is the matter?" asked a sympathetic voice, as Jocelyn gave a final dab. looked up with a start to find herself confronted by a tall young man, who continued, "Aunt Alma sent me to bring her treasured housekeeper in out of the dew, but she will be sorry nearly scared me to death, but now I I found you in tears. Card Playing and Dancing.

W. C. Pearce, of Chicago, who is now in Maryland in the interest of Sunday School work, and who has been making addresses noteworthy for their practical application, discussed the subjects of card playing and dancing in one of his Frederick addresses.

The distinction between the games of skill, games of chance and skill combined, were explained by Mr. Pearce. The games of skill include baseball or croquet and like games wherein skill must be used. The games of chance are games wherein nothing but blind luck predominates. The games of chance and skill combined include card games. Mr. Pearce in explaining these games said: 'I consider cards the most dangerou amusement in existence, and I would rather a live coal would burn through my right hand than to play a game of cards. For this reason: In playing cards. For this reason: In playing cards, first you have to depend on luck, and second, a great deal of skill is re quired to be a good player. By playing cards only a short time it has a peculiar psychological effect upon the player. His morals get twisted somehow and in accordance his acts are not what they ought

"Why, in New York on Wall Street, ninety per cent. of the plungers are those who first were poker-players. Taking the chance has a sort of a fascination for them and was simply brought about by card playing. This is my objection to card playing.

"As to dancing," said Mr. Pearce, "in you would eliminate the sexes I would not have the slightest objection to dancing. It is the passion that the music arouses in the dancers that I object to. Even the church music is getting the same. I never knew until a short time ago that there is so much in music for good or bad. If men and women want to dance, let men dance with men and women with women.
