It is said that employees of the B. & O. R. R., will be forbidden to sign applications for liquor license, over the entire system. It is said that the order will affect numerous employees in Carroll, Frederick and Washington counties, who have heretofore been signing. ---

Harry J. Buch, of Frederick, who recently assaulted Dr. T. B. Johnson, was found guilty, after jury trial, on Tuesday, and sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and costs. Dr. Johnson was struck in the face by Buch, while seated in his automobile, following a request for the payment of a bill for medical services. ---♦◈♦---

Dr. Friedmann, the German, who claims to have a cure for consumption, has arrived in New York. He declares that his remedy is not secret, and that he purposes to give it to the world. He has agreed to meet a Government laboratory expert, and arranged for a trial on a number of tuberculosis patients. ---

Senator Bourne, of Oregon, one of the chief leaders of the Progressive cause in that state, and one of the most ardent 'Referendum and Recall' advocates, is reported to be in family troubles. His reported to be in family troubles. His wife left Washington for home, on Monday, where it is stated she will begin pro-ceedings for divorce, on the grounds of alleged infidelity.

---The Grand Lodge, Knights of Pythias, of Maryland, will not be entertained in Frederick, this year, as had been planned, due to the unfinished condition of the new Frederick K. of P. building. The meeting was to have been held on April 7, but it is said that no inconvenience will be sustained by the Grand Lodge. Frederick will renew its invitation for the Congressman Lafean has recommended Louis D Sell, democrat, for Postmaster of Hanover, Pa. This will place the Democratic politicians of Hanover in a "fix." If left to their preference they would hardly have recommended Mr Sell, who is exceptionally qualified, but who is regarded as having been a sup-porter of Mr. Lafean. On the other hand, he has now been appointed by the President, has lots of friends, and if his appointement is not confirmed there will be trouble. It looks like a case of trouble either way.

Dr. James W. Eichelberger, a lifelong resident of Emmitsburg, died Sunday morning at the Frederick City Hospital from Bright's disease, aged 71 years. He had been in failing health for some time, but continued his practice until a few months prior to his death. He gradu-ated from the University of Baltimore and practiced for several years at St Clairsville, Pa., when he returned to Emmitsburg, where he' was associated with his father, Dr. James W. Eichelberger. In addition to his widow, he leaves one son, Charles, and a sister, Mrs. Mary E. Ehrehart.

---John H. Cunningham, who was a candidate at the last election for state comptroller on the Republican ticket, will not enter the contest for that office at the next election. A number of friends of Mr. Cunningham have appealed to him out interfering with the plans for conto allow his name to be used in connection with this office, but he has turned a deaf ear to all appeals and says he does not intend to seek any office at this time. Mr. Cunningham in discussing the matter said: "I will not be a candidate next fall for state comptroller or any other office. My business interests are keeping me busy, and while I will go out and work for the Republican candidate, yet I feel that I cannot allow my name to appear as a candidate.'

President Taft made his last official trip as chief executive on Friday night and Saturday, when he visited New York. He has earned the title of the most traveled president, for during his term he has visited every state in the Union, except North Dakota and Oklahoma. With the trip just completed Sunday night President Taft has made 105 separate trips, totaling exactly 114,479 miles—a distance more than four and one-half times the circumference of the earth. Taneytown Grange Meeting.

On Saturday last, Feb. 22, the degree team of Union Bridge Grange No. 185, visited Taneytown Grange No. 184, for the purpose of exemplifying the 1st. and 4th. degrees of the Order of Patrons of Husbandry, for the benefit of 26 new members which have recently joined the Taneytown Grange.

The team was met at the station upon the arrival of the 10 a. m. train going north, and escorted to Grange hall. After an exchange of greetings, a consultation was held and it was decided that refresh-ments should be served before the initiations should take place. After dinner was served, which consisted of chicken and other substantials, and such delica-

After the degree work was finished speeches were in order and several addresses were made for the good of the Order. A rising vote of thanks was tendered the degree team for their beautiful rendering of the degree work, and invitations were extended to them to visit our Grange whenever convenient. adjournment, the goodbyes were said, the visitors scattered over the town to do their shopping, and to exchange friendly greetings to their many friends around town, after which they boarded the 4.30 p. m. train for home.

-000 Small Fire in Granger's Building.

Early Monday morning, while an employee of the cigar factory, in the first floor of the Granger's building, was making fire, a lamp which he used for light is supposed to have exploded while he was out getting a bucket of coal, setting fire to the floor. The fire company responded promptly, and after some difficulty reached the burning spot with water and saved the building.

A large hole was burned through the floor, while the contents of the factory were pretty well damaged by smoke and water. Had the fire secured much greater headway, it would have been impossible to save the building, in which case, the adjoining dwelling of John A. Null would likely have been destroyed also.

RAILROADS SCORED FOR CLEAR SELFISHNESS.

B. & O. and Pennsy in Unenviable Light in Frederick City.

Washington, Feb. 27.—The Inter-State Commerce Commission today severely condemned railroad conditions at Frederick, Md., in handing down a decision dismissing a complaint by the Morris Iron Company asking for an order to compel the Baltimore and Ohio, the Pennsylvania and the Frederick Rail-roads to make physical terminal connections and to enter into mutual switching arrangements.

The commission holds that it has no authority to compel the Northern Central and Baltimore and Ohio Railroads to make delivery on their terminals of traffic which has reached Frederick over the limit of the Northern Central dinner. The commod dinner. lines of the Western Maryland and the Frederick Railroads, but it recommends that the physical connections asked for be made, and reciprocal switching arrangements agreed upon at a charge not o exceed $5 a car.

In handing down its decision the commission said, in part:

"It is almost universally true at the present day, in all parts of the United States where conditions are similar to those at Frederick, that freight can be switched interchangeably to and from in-dustries located upon the different lines upon the payment of some reasonable switching charge, The condition at Fred-erick is a relic of the time when railroads were administered by unenlightened self-ishness. It is difficult to understand how two great systems like the Pennsylvania and the Baltimore and Ohio can knowingly compel the shippers of this community to rest under the burden which they

The decision at considerable length cores the two roads for inexcusable selfishness, and places them in an unfavorable light as servants for accommodating the interests of the public. Much the same style of scoring is entitled to be applied with reference to passenger connec-

Union Bridge Farmers' Club.

On Saturday, Feb. 22, 1913, the 181st. anniversary of the immortal Washington, eleven members met at the home of Wm. J. Ebbert and wife, not alone to hold a regular meeting, but to assist our host and hostess in celebrating the 20th. anniversary of their marriage.

The visitors who added to the pleasure of the occasion were, Rev. M. Schweitzer, W. U. Eckard and wife, Mrs. Charles Martin, Mrs. Emma Anders, Mrs. E. R. Hessler, Mrs. Thurston Cronise, Mrs. Cora Stouffer, the Misses Jester, of Wicomico Co., students at W. Md. After dinner the men who visited the barn, saw a fine lot of healthy looking milch cows in the yard. A large percentage of the population of Union Bridge is supplied with milk from this herd, and should they at any time fail we know that Mr. Ebbert has one of the best springs of pure water in Carroll county. A new hog pen with thirty inhabitants, and a new corn crib received favorable comment. The latter is well filled with large ears of corn and also serves as a wind break for the protection of his stock. Our host has a good team of serviceable horses and a pair of well bred colts.

When all had returned to the parlor, the president called the meeting to order, and the minutes of last meeting were read and adopted. None of the committee appointed to read being present, volunteers were called for. Other meetings will be held during the Spring and Summer, and it is planned to have another meeting in the near future, with prominent suffrage workers as speakers.

The League feels much encouraged by the increase in membership and the interest manifested by the members. Meetngs will be held the third Saturday in each month, at the Opera House, and all ladies interested in the work are invited to be present and to enroll as members. Branch Leagues will be organized in every district in the county, and anyone wishing to have Mrs. Foster visit their district and explain the work of the League, can do so by writing to the Secretary, Miss Whitmore, or to the President, Miss Shellman, who will gladly cooperate with them in organizing. Carroll county should not be behind her sister counties, in many of which there are large and flourishing Leagues, numbering amongst their membership some of the brightest and best women of the state. The Spirit of Geo. Washington.

(For the RECORD.) Not a ghostly visitor—but enthused with the same dauntless courage of the commander-in-chief of the American Army in 1775–6, the ladies of the Lendahand Club, of Mechanicsville, celebrated the anniversary of his birth, by discussing present day evils and the remedies: ac centuating man's social relationship to his neighbor, the duties that teach him he belongs to a large community, and the share of social responsibilities. If a club is doing for a town or city, such work as shall raise the standard of the entire community, it should live and by Senator Gorman Buys Newspaper.

Former Senator A. P. Gorman, of Howard Co., and also Democratic candidate for governor two years ago, has bought a controlling interest in the Ellicott City Times and is now chief owner of that old and established newspaper. Col. W. S. Powell, who has been chief owner and editor of the publication for 10 years, and who has been one of the most prominent figures in rural journalistic fields for several years, will step down. Mr. Gorman's plan is to consolidate the Times with the Towson Democratic Journal.

Another Wreck on West. Md.

Twelve persons were injured at 6.30 o'clock Saturday evening, when an extra westbound freight train of the Western Maryland Railroad crashed into the rear end of a passenger train at McDonogh Station, 12 miles from Baltimore. None of the injured were seriously hurt. The cause of the wreck will be sought. The passenger train, composed of two coaches and baggage car, known as the Hanover accomodation, left Baltimore at 5.30 o'clock and was running on schedule time. It was in charge of Conductor Sell and Engineer Black, of Baltimore. Between 50 and 60 passengers were aboard.

The freight was a double-header in charge of Conductor Mahon and Engineer Spigler, both of Hagerstown. It was running at a moderate speed. When Engineer Spigler saw that a collision was unavoidable he applied the air brakes and did everything possible to lessen the force of the impact. None of the cars of the passenger train left the track. ---

THE REFERENDUM.

(Extracts from an address delivered before the Taneytown Grange, on Feb. 11, by the Editor of the RECORD. Published in response to numerous requests.)

In this country, the Referendum came to the front as a populistic idea, and had its first political prominence in Oregon in 1892. Simply stated, the Referendum means that when a designated small percentage of voters demand it, questions may be referred directly to a vote of the people, independently of the legislature, r in nullifying an act of the legislature. Apparently, it is an attractive proposi-tion, especially because of the fact that some of our legislation is said to be controlled by leaders, bosses, and big interests, and it is argued that the only way defeat the bosses and interests is to let the people of a state vote directly on all sorts of important questions; that the osses can buy, or influence, a small legislative body, but cannot so easily buy or influence, the whole people. There are thousands of men in this country, perfectly honest in this belief, and for other reasons which I will attempt to show, the movement is widespread and perhaps

The direct primary, the direct election of Senators, and the election of President by popular vote, are all related to the general Referendum idea. What is each legislative district of Baltimore, has each legislative district of Baltimore general Referendum idea. What is termed the "initiative" and that most extreme proposition, the "recall," all centre in the "Referendum." The "recall" means that whenever a Gov-ernor, or Mayor, or even a Judge, fails, in the opinion of a majority of the voters of all classes, to merit serving out the full district in Baltimore has delegates equal term for which he was elected, he can be taken out of office and another elected. However, therefore, has 4 Senators and 24 It is a question of setting up any sort of manufactured, or spontaneous, popular opinion as being supreme, at any time.

In the outset, let me say that our present methods of disposing of problems of legislation are written all through the very foundations of our government. They are in our written constitutions, placed there by the fathers of our counry-by men like Madison, Hamilton, Monroe, Marshall, Jefferson, and others who established a Representative Democracy, rather than a Direct Democracy, as being the best and safest form to with-dum?

But, the advocates of these new issues apt to call for different methods, but hardly to the extent that the growth of a Nation demands the alteration of the very fundamental principles of a free government, for such principles should be as unchangable, almost, as God's law itself. As we have men who would rewrite and reconstrue the Bible, it is not strange that there are also men who would rewrite the Gospel of government. Representative Democracy, as illustrated in our National Congress and state legislatures, stands for deliberation, investigation and dignified procedure.

Our plan sometimes goes wrong. Occasionally the people are misrepresented, but as a rule little actual harm is done, that cannot be remedied. I do not believe that the majority of our representatives are corrupt, nor that there is half the bossism that is charged. We are not always in a position to determine such matters. Now, what does the Referendum plan offer instead? Our information with reference to proposed legislation would come largely through the public press—if the press is prejudiced it gives prejudiced information; or, it must come from leaders, politicians, or selfish interests; the evidence that the average voter would get about proposed legisla-tion would be just the same that he now gets from various sources during a politi-cal campaign. When we come to decide, every man's vote would be as good as another's—the vote of an ignoramus equal to that of a man of special intelligence. What would be the final result? That the voters must depend largely on bosses, interests, the use of money, on political demagogues, just as it is charged they now do through the manipulation of

The bald fact is that all people are not competent to pass on the qualities of law, on the equities of all propositions, on the merits of judicial decisions, nor on questions which involve complex and widespread interests. But, you may say, this is true in voting for members of Congress decks by which the cities and counties and of the legislature? and so it is; but is it not likely to be true that all of us can vote more intelligently for men than for measures? Do we not employ lawyers and physicians on our knowledge of their reputation and ability, and not on our knowledge of what course they may take, or what medicines they will prescribe? Do we not place our cases in their hands Do we not place our cases in their hands and let them work largely without our non-professional interference? We can not possibly all be experts in legislative to the will of the people, notwithstanding the fact that they are subject to change every two years. This is utterly without foundation in fact, for it is the matters, but we can have an excellent to have a 48 percent direct influence on a chief cause of trouble in legislation that majority—apt to be more competent to cent handicap? But, there is not only other sections, that this has largely been thandicapent to disagreement over the tariff selves? And are not organized small would you like the big foreign element, select bodies in general, more likely to the slum element, and the undesirables dispose of business questions more expeditiously and intelligently than unorganized large bodies composed of all

Why is the Referendum idea popular : Because, as I said before, many have a more or less honest and sentimental trust in what they call the good sense of the "American people;" because large tax-paying interests in the great cities see in it a chance to exercise greater power throughout the state; because the nass of voters in the cities, who have little or nothing at stake, yet who are always ready to vote and have a great deal to say in politics, favor it; because some of the newer states in the West, where the average of intelligence ranks high, want it, (and of all the people of this country, have the greatest right to it;) because a certain class of disappointed politicians, who would vet be leaders. see in it a chance to get that which they have not been able to get through conventions and legislatures; because the proposition is Socialistic in its tendency and pleases those who do not fancy a strong centralized governmental power. Another reason why the Referendum receives support is because in every matter of important legislation, there is always the disappointed side, and this side, especially in the case of a measure de-feated by a small majority in a legislative body, would gladly avail itself of the Referendum as a means of continuing the fight with the hope of winning before the people. As a result, with the Referendum in operation, every important measure decided closely by a legislature, would likely always be taken to the people, as there would always be the losing side to made the effort. This would also be true, at every election of important officials, through the use of the Recall. A candidate elected by a close yote yould always have his opponent on the alert for charges on which to base his re-call privilege, with the hope that on perhaps within a year after having been elected for a four-year term. Unless the percentage of voters required for invok-ing the Referendum or Recall should be placed very high, there would be continual agitation and uncertainty following all of our elections and legislative acts. strength, and just as sure that it will all of our elections and legislative acts. Some of the Referendum acts already passed refer only to municipalities; others the number of voters required for invoking the privilege varies from 10% to 30% of the entire vote. In but few of the sixteen states having some form of the Referendum, is the provision widespread ance have we that more people would vote in its character; its chief adoption has every six months, or oftener? The fact been in a limited form, to the best of my information.

Let us go into the matter of increased power for the cities, and see how it might affect our own state. Under our Constione Senator, or 27 in all; each county with a population of 18,000 or less has 2 delegates; from 18,000 to 28,000, 3 delegates; from 28,000 to 40,000, 4 delegates; from 40,000 to 55,000, 5 delegates; over 55,000, 6 delegates, and each legislative Delegates, or a total of 28 on joint ballot, while the counties have 23 Senators and 78 Delegates, or a total of 101 on joint In our legislature, therefore, Baltimore now has a voting strength of only 15 percent in the Senate, and of only erage vote on Constitutional amendments 24 percent in the House, while if it had a direct vote, according to registration, it would have a voting strength of over 48 percent in the whole state, or more than double its present strength, on legisla-

It will scarcely be argued by anybody say, the doctrines of the fathers were good enough for their time, but we have outgrown them, and thereby make a governmental affairs, and it is the repre-cunning appeal to the pride of this age. that changed conditions are as a check against some of the dangers in mass voting. It is therefore, in my opinion, a perfectly equitable and defensive proposition, that no large city-and for that matter no community wherein exists a large element of the lower classes -should vote directly on legislative que tions on a state-wide equality with the better classes. Personally, for all sorts of voting, without regard to color or nationality, I would raise the qualification for exercising the privilege, for if the character of the voters can be nearly equalized, many of the objections to the Referendum would cease to exist, and we might more safely have a pure, direct

> Taking the country as a whole, on the basis of population, the cities, under the Referendum plan, would be in a position to control legislation in most states. This is a fact absolutely demonstrated by census figures. Just now, in our own or locally; because it is a question which state, Baltimore is agitating for more has been so exhaustively discussed that the counties, proposing to give to the counties, also, greater legislative powers independent of the legislature. This is very much like most of our new questions -agitators being concerned greatly in giving to the "dear people" things that the people themselves are not asking for. There is, of course, some justice in this Home Rule extension question, as there must be in all new questions. The basis of taxation of Baltimore city is greater than that of the whole state, for state taxation. Baltimore naturally wants a now have, which, after the accomplish-

And yet, all of this agitation for "home rule" at this present time, and considering the fine hands of some of those who are loudest for it, may be only an adroitly proposed adjunct of the decks by which the cities and counties and expensive piece of machinery with would care for local legislation, making out a reliable guarantee. A thing for it easier for the Referendum to work in which everybody is responsible, means generally which congregate in all large cities, match votes with you on questions of morality and order, more closely than they now do?

The tendency citywards of our population, is in itself a matter that we view with concern, especially when it means also that the urban population is n a standstill, or is actually decreasing. It is time to waken up to changed conditions, and to try to apply remedies before it is too late. The growing influence of the cities on the life of the Nation is perhaps recognized more clearly within church circles than elsewhere; in fact, it constitutes within the church the hardest question it has to solve. As a matter of fact, it is even a greater problem as it affects the Nation at large, and we have already been too slow to recognize it.

I know that there is a claimed strong communion of interest between city and state, and that the proposition that the city would attempt to line up its forces against the counties, on any question, will be strongly repudiated by the city as unfair and without foundation, and as an unjustifiable effort to create sectional prejudices. Be that as it may, the voting figures stand. Whether they might, under favorable conditions and attended by conflicting interests, be used as voting forces, or not, is a debatable question, and one on which the voters of the state can build their own conclusions. We at least see in the situation the chance of 'locking the stable door after the horse

There is still another very important phase of the question. Whenever we have a large stay-at-home vote it is usually the farmer vote. Perhaps this is not a valid objection to the Referendum, for it is rather to the discredit of farmers that they do not take more interest in politics. Hovever, it shows their trustful disposi tion and their lack of fondness for politi-cal contests, as distinguished from the second vote, and with the help of activity of professional politicians who "charges" an official might be retired are found largely in the cities and larger activity of professional politicians who towns. Where voters are congregated in masses, as in the cities, and where voting can be done easily, it is a natural consequence that in such centres the vote is the more sure to be cast to near its full mated that nearly 3,000,000 of voters in the U.S. failed to vote at the last Presito certain clearly defined questions; and dential election, yet there are those who raise the cry of "more rule for the peo-ple." If 3,000,000 of citizens of the U. S. fail to vote at a Presidential election coming but once in four years, what assuris, there are about as many who think we already have too many elections, and too much election expense, as those who want more, and the first mentioned class is paying the bills. The direct primary in this county has already practically a vote at the election. Do we want to double this expense again, for the debata-ble advantage of the Referendum?

In this connection it is worth notice that in the states wherein the Referendum has been the subject of a vote, it has not succeeded in bringing out as large a vote as for State officers, which seems to show that it is the political leaders, rather than the people, who are chiefly interested in the project. These votes have ranged from below 25% to 50% of the entire vote, after energetic canvasses have been made, while the avrarely exceeds 30% of the entire vote. And this has been the result on the Referendum votes, under the most favorable there has as yet been very little campaigning against the Referendum, as canwould prejudice their own election.

Farmers and country voters generally, ould take more interest in below the surface politics. Too many are willing to take their political conclusions, readymade, like a suit of clothes, and wear them without serious question. There is no other class of voters in the whole country that has such vital interest in questions of government, yet which exercises so little, as our farmers. Their property is always visible to the tax gatherer; they are responsible, and can always be found when wanted. They should, therefore, be interested in the Referendum, find out how it is likely to affect them, and not allow themselves to be used without their full consent.

We do not argue that there is not a legitimate and desirable extension of the Referendum principle; our argument is that all questions to be subject to it should be specifically stated, and none left to it is one to be decided by territorial units, 'Home Rule' legislation, and is aiming | nearly every voter is posted on its merits; to secure support for the proposition in it is a question which leaders on both sides have been dodging for years; it has grown into a question in this state which is interfering with our politics and legis-lation generally, and it is the one great and only question on which the people have asked for the Referendum in the state. Woman suffrage is also a question. perhaps, which might be appropriate for decision in the same manner.

The introduction of the Referendum would inevitably produce more factions rider charter, giving it more privileges.

There is also a great deal to be said in ization responsible for the evils that might result, and this situation alone shows the greater safety and reliability of established parties, backed by representatives in office, to whom a perhaps deluded people can look for redress. Referendum policies, in this light, are about as responsible and desirable as a lawyer or loctor without an office, or a salesman without a definitely located and responsi ble house back of him, or an intricate that nobody in particular is responsible. and is worth about as much as an unreise to pay in a bank. The argument is often used that our representatives are no longer responsive idea as to the qualifications of men who can best represent us; therefore, are not our legislatures, made up of men of our own choice—or at least, the choice of the local series of the counties, on any question, on the basis of a 48 per-our legislatures. The choice of the local series of the counties, on any question, on the basis of a 48 per-our legislatures. The constituents of one section, through their constituents of one section, through their constituents of one section, through their representatives, have so strongly enforced their demands as against the interests of the counties, on any question, on the basis of a 48 per-our legislature.

the cause of disagreement over the tariff and over business questions generally involving legislation. It is the fact that legislators are so eager to be directly representative, that hasty and ill-considered legislation, sometimes results in spite of the restraining influence and protective features of our established legislative

The Referendum, as a matter of fact, is a state issue, and as such it can be limited and controlled. But, its advocacy has been almost entirely on broad and general lines; in other words, an issue in a National campaign. The argument is made for it directly on the issue of a vote by the people, as against a vote by delegated bodies elected by the people. It is, in its broad analysis, a direct challenge to our very governmental foundation. It is an attack against the integrity of the best men that we can prevail upon to accept public office. In effect, it argues that because a bank official occasionally goes wrong, our system of banking must be broken up; that because a doctor or druggist occassionally makes a mistake, we must act independently of such specialists; that because a teacher may turn out to be a rascal, we will take our children out of all the schools; that because a few grafters get into our legislative halls, we will throw down our whole governmental system; and for all these ills we must go for correction direct to the votes of the indiscriminate masses.

I have little fear of the Maryland legislature indorsing the Referendum, especially as it is likely to remain Democratic, for it could not do so without stultifying itself, and turning against opposition to equal suffrage, which the Democratic party in the South has always stood for, evidenced in its wholesale disfranchisement of Negro voters; and which the Pacific coast states stand for, through the exclusion of Chinese from citizenship. Maryland has repeatedly attempted to follow the lead of states farther south in the disfranchisement of Negro votes, has only partially succeeded through making our ballot difficult to mark.

With over 48,000 Negro voters in the state, constituting about one sixth of the entire vote, it is inconceivable that a Maryland legislature would grant to this large Negro vote the right to vote directly on legislation; for while it can be made difficult to pick out the names of candidates on a ballot, it would be next to impossible to so arrange a ballot that an entirely illiterate voter could not mark it for, or against, a constitutional amendmendment, or question of Referendum. Even if principle might be over-ridden, as it has been in the Pacific states, Maryland has not yet succeeded with its disfranchisement scheme, and must stick to its opposition to a further extension of suffrage to Negroes, even if it might be inclined to extend it indiscriminately to white voters.

I think that there are times, when, we would be fully honest, we ought to submit to what I will term "expert opinion" rather than insist on our own. most cases, our absolute knowledge is limited; we are continually seeking and paying for advice; we should not, therefore, stand for a direct personal expression of opinion on legislative matters, especially when such expression involves great questions and interests in which we can not possibly have deep perceptive powers. We should submit to the wispowers. We should submit to the wisdom of juries specially selected for their capacity, rather than to a jury of the whole people. Even our county juries, which pass largely on local and personal matters, are not selected from the whole body of voters at random, without sifting, and we all know that. Hundreds of voters in our own county never have been, and never will be, drawn on a jury. The Judge looks out for that; he wants the conditions, for the excellent reason that best men that he can get. And, although there has as yet been very little camwe even place them under oath, in addididates for office, opposed to it, have been afraid to antagonize it, fearing that they handle; and yet, the Referendum moveto the decision of the unsifted masses, without the shadow of an oath or obligation on their part, to decide them honestly and wisely, even if capable of doing so. No mere plan of men, or change of plan, will work satisfactorily, of itself. The general verdict at the end of the last hatching season was-the worst season for infertility ever. Add to this eggs that didn't hatch on account of weak germs and you total a loss that runs up into millions of dollars. Many try to get good results from show birds that have been pampered in raising to get quick size and feathering or have been worn out by the long journeys, exposure, excitement. coop confinement and bad feeding to which many expose their fowls to win a blue ribbon.

Many feed a ration that lacks nutrition. With them anything that a chicken will eat is good enough.

A great many feed all grain, and with most of these this is corn. They do not bother with meat foods, greens nor even furnish an exercise scratch floor in winter, and this lack of variety, this unbalanced ration, this fattener, makes their hens overfat, a great cause of poor laying, disease, infertility, weak germs and weak chicks.

Many stuff their hens with egg tonics. Allured by high prices for winter eggs, to get them they feed so strong their hens are forced to the wall, and when spring comes they are worn out. and the eggs they do lay lack fertility the boys busy and help them to start or are so weak in structure and composition that they lack the essentials

It has been suggested that the hen be substituted for the eagle on our coins. Gold and Silver Rocks would look all right on the gold and silver pieces, and the Wyandottes would just fit on the "Indians."

Many breeders who raise stock that lays the brown shell egg are registering a kick against the popularity and special price paid for the snowy white variety. It costs more to produce the brown egg, if only egg profits are the mark, for they are laid by larger breeds, with but few exceptions. The white craze is extending, and the only way to compete with it in a white shell market is to produce a brown egg of larger size.

When the door was left open 700 hens at Cornell university, N. Y., made What You Want, a rush for liberty, and forty were killed in the stampede. Now, if this were a ministerial institute we would think it only a trick of some sky pilot to get chicken for dinner.

Ravo Bracket Lamp

Sometimes in the kitchen or elsewhere you need a lamp held high, where it will light the whole room, and be out of the reach of children.

The Rayo Bracket Lamp is made for exactly this purpose. It is one of the famous Rayo Family—the best kerosene lamps made. A clear, white light, steady, diffused. A strong, substantial bracket, easily affixed to the wall. The lamp is inexpensive. Economical. Lighted without removing chimney or shade. Rayo Lamps are made in various styles and for all purposes. On last Saturday night, while William Farquhar was upstairs with a light, the light for some reason went out, and on attempting to descend the stairs in the dark he made a mistep, became overbalanced, and fell headlong to the bottom. He was picked up unconscious and medical aid summoned; on the return of consciousness it was found that no bones had been broken, but that he had bruised and injured himself considerably. Owing to his advanced age, it was remarkably fortunate that so serious a fall was not attended by more serious consequences. Both he and his brother Joseph, have been suffering from

LINWOOD.

I had a letter recently, from a Western friend, wanting to know if the Linwood correspondent was dead, and was forcibly reminded in our last issue of the Record, of the neglect of some correspondence, which caused me to think my friend was not so far out of the way. I am happy to such a difficult task to write, when you have something to write about. I am practically a shut-in and fail to find out, what little news I might send in. If our town had been on the march of the event. 'Hikers' last week, I fear not only the eaders of the Record, but our worthy Editor as well, might have thought the Gettysburg Battle Anniversary.

It is now rumored that General Wager may resign, on March 1, as chairman of the Commission which has in charge the celebration of the 50th. anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg, to be held in July on the battlefield. General Wagner and the Gettysburg Citizens Committee say I am not dead, but weary. It is not have not been very harmonious, and much complaint has been made locally that the General has been unreasonable,

There is a fear that perhaps arrangements can be made to entertain such a large body of visitors as may be reasonably expected, as many seem to want hotel, or boarding-house, quarters. While Gettysburg is well supplied with hotels for reasonably large gatherings, the probability of having a crowd of 200,000 visitors of course means that the most of them must be satisfied with very temporary quarters, and those who are not in condition to take chances on tent life, should not be unreasonable.

From what we have learned of the problem, the business men and citizens of Gettysburg have been willing to go the limit to make the celebration a success, and hundreds of them will be very glad when it is all over, for while it will no doubt be profitable to many, it will be a time of discomfort to as many more.

WHY?

Why run the risk when you paint, that using cheap Oil entails? There are many adulterated oils being offered for sale now. The difference in cost between using absolutely pure Linseed Oil and a substitute, is seldom as much as $1.00 on a two-story house for two-coat work. Will you take the risk for so small a sum?

"Guaranteed satisfactory" Linseed Oil usually means only that the manufacturer is satisfied with his profits on the oil; you won't be with the wear. Insist on getting "strictly pure" Linseed

We can't be sure of getting those orders unless the first wagon you buy from the I H C local dealer proves so satisfactory that you would not think of going anywhere else for the second. We have to tell you how good our wagons are to get your first order. After that, we expect the wagon itself to do the selling. I H C wagons

Weber New Bettendorf Columbus Steel King are made of selected, high-grade material throughout. The lumber is air-dried in huge sheds for three years or more before it is used. Air-drying takes years of time, and leaves the fibres of the wood filled with and cemented together by the natural resinous residue of the sap. Kiln-drying requires only a few days' time and leaves the wood brittle and weak. Air-drying produces elastic lumber, wagon parts that bend and give under loads and strains, but that spring back when the strain is removed.

Weber and Columbus wagons have wood gears; New Bettendorf and Steel King have steel gears. The IHC local dealer will give you literature and full information about the wagons he sells. See him, or, if you prefer, write

CHAPTER XVI.

I Face Flannigan.

Dinner had waited that night while everybody went to the coal cellar and stared at the hole in the wall, and watched while Max took a tracing of it and of some footprints in the coal dust on the other side.

I did not go. I went into the library with the guilty watch in a fold of my gown, and found Mr. Harbison there, staring through the February gloom at the blank wall of the next house, and quite unconscious of the reporter with a drawing pad just below him in the area-way. I went over and closed the shutters before his very eyes, but even then he did not

"Will you be good enough to turn around?" I demanded at last.

"Oh!" he said, wheeling. "Are you here?"

There wasn't any reply to that, so I took the watch and placed it on the library table between us. The effect was all that I had hoped. He stared at it for an instant, then at me, with his hand outstretched for it, stopped.

"Where did you find it?" he asked. I couldn't understand his expression. He looked embarrassed, but not at all afraid.

"I think you know, Mr. Harbison," I retorted.

"I wish I did. You opened it?" "Yes."

We stood looking at each other across the table. It was his glance that wavered.

"About the picture-of you," he said at last. "You see, down there in South America, a fellow hasn't much to do evenings, and a-a chum of mine and I-we were awfully down on what we called the plutocrats, the -the leisure classes. And when that picture of yours came in the paper, we had-we had an argument. He said-" He stopped.

"What did he say?" "Well, he said it was the picture of an empty-faced society girl."

"Oh!" I exclaimed. "I-I maintained there were possibilities in the face." He put both hands on the table, and, bending forward, looked down at me. "Well, I was a fool, I admit. I said your eyes were kind and candid, in spite of that haughty mouth. You see, I said I was

"I think you are exceedingly rude," I managed finally. "If you want to know where I found your watch, it was down in the coal cellar. And if you admit you are an idiot, I am not. I-I know all about Bella's braceletand the board on the roof, and-oh, if you would only leave-Anne's necklace—on the coal, or somewhere—and get away-

My voice got beyond me then, and I dropped into a chair and covered my face. I could feel him staring at the back of my head.

Well, I'll be-" something or other, he said finally, and then turned on his heel and went out. By the time I got my eyes dry (yes, I was crying; I always do when I am angry) I heard Jim coming downstairs, and I tucked the watch out of sight. Would any one have foreseen the trouble that watch would make!

Jim was sulky. He dropped into a chair and stretched out his legs, looking gloomily at nothing. Then he got up and ambled into his den, closing the door behind him without having spoken a word. It was more than human nature could stand.

When I went into the den he was stretched on the davenport with his face buried in the cushion. Ht looked absolutely wilted, and every line of him was drooping.

"Go on out, Kit," he said, in a smothered voice. "Be a good girl and don't follow me around."

"You are shameless!" I gasped. "Follow you! When you are hung around my neck like a-like a-Millstone was what I wanted to say, but I couldn't think of it.

He turned over and looked up from his cushions like an ill-treated and suffering cherub.

"I'm done for, Kit," he groaned. "Bella went up to the studio after we left, and investigated that corner." "What did she find? The necklace?" I asked eagerly. He was too wretched to notice this

"No, that picture of you that I did last winter. She is crazy—she says she is going upstairs and sit in Takahiro's room and take smallpox and

"Fiddlesticks!" I said rudely, and somebody hammered on the door and opened it

"Pardon me for disturbing you." Bella said, in her best dear-me-I'mglad-I-knocked manner. "But-Flannigan says the dinner has not come.'

"Good Lord!" Jim exclaimed. "I forgot to order the confounded din-

It was eight o'clock by that time and as it took an hour at least after telephoning the order, everybody looked blank when they heard. The entire family, except Mr. Harbison. who had not appeared again, escorted Jim to the telephone and hung around hungrily, suggesting new dishes every minute. And then-he couldn't raise Central. It was 15 minutes before we gave up, and stood staring at one another despairingly.

"Call out of a window and get one of those infernal reporters to do something useful for once," Max suggested. But he was indignantly hushed. We would have starved first. Jim was peering into the transmitter and knocking the receiver against his hand, like a watch that had stopped. But nothing happened. Flannigan reported a box of breakfast food, two lemons and a pineapple cheese, a combination that didn't seem to lend itself to anything.

We went back to the dining room from sheer force of habit and sat around the table and looked at the emonade Flannigan had made. Anne would talk about the salad her last cook had concoted, and Max told about a little town in Connecticut where the restaurant keeper smokes a corn-cob pipe while he cooks the most luscious fried clams in America. And Aunt Selina related that in her family they had a recipe for chicken smothered in cream. And then we sipped the weak lemonade and nibbled at the

"To change this gridiron martyrdom," Dallas said finally, "where's Still looking for his Harbison? watch?

"Watch!" Everybody said it in a different tone.

"Sure," he responded. "Says his watch was taken last night from the studio. Better get him down to take a squint at the telephone. Likely he can fix it."

Flannigan was beside me with the cheese. And at that moment I felt Mr. Harbison's stolen watch slip out of my girdle, slide greasily across my lap, and clatter to the floor. Flannigan stooped, but luckily it had gone under the table. To have had it picked up, to have had to explain how I got it, to see them try to ignore my picture pasted in it-oh, it was impossible! I put my foot over it.

"Drop something?" Dallas asked perfunctorily, rising. Flannigan was still half kneeling.

"A fork," I said, as easily as I could, and the conversation went on. But Flannigan knew, and I knew he knew. He watched my every movement like a hawk after that, standing just behind my chair. I dropped my useless napkin, to have it whirled up before it reached the floor. I said to Betty that my shoe buckle was loose, and actually got the watch in my hand, only to let it slip at the critical moment. Then they all got up and went sadly back to the library, and Flannigan and I faced each other.

Flannigan was not a handsome man at any time, though up to then he had at least looked amiable. But now as I stood with my hand on the back of my chair, his face grew suddenly menacing. The silence was absolute: I was the guiltiest wretch alive, and opposite me the law towered and glowered, and held the yellow remnant of a pineapple cheese! And in the silence that wretched watch lay and ticked and ticked and ticked. Then Flannigan creaked over and closed the door into the hall, came back, picked up the watch, and looked at it.

"You're unlucky, I'm thinkin'." he said finally. "You've got the nerve all right, but you ain't cute enough." "I don't know what you mean." I quavered. "Give me that watch to return to Mr. Harbison."

"Not on your life," he retorted easily. "I give it back myself, like I'm going to give back the necklace, if you act like a sensible little girl." I could only choke.

"It's foolish, any way you look at it," he persisted. "Here you are, lots of friends, folks that think you're all right. Why, I reckon there isn't one of them that wouldn't lend you money if you reeded it so bad."

"Will you be still?" I said furiously. "Mr. Harbison left that watch-with me-an hour ago. Get him, and he will tell you so himself!"

"Of course he would," Flannigan conceded, looking at me with grudging approval. "He wouldn't be what I think he is, if he didn't lie up and down for you." There were voices in the hall. Flannigan came closer. "An hour ago, you say. And he told me it was gone this morning! It's a losing game, miss. I'll give you 24 hours and then-the necklace, if you please, miss."

CHAPTER XVII.

A Clash and a Kiss. The clash that came that evening had been threatening for some time. Take an immovable body, represented by Mr. Harbison and his square jaw, and an irresistible force, Jimmy and his weight, and there is bound to be trouble.

The real fault was Jim's. He had gone entirely mad again over Bella, and thrown prudence to the winds. He mooned at her across the dinnertable, and waylaid her on the stairs or in the back halls, just to hear her voice when she ordered him out of the way. He telephoned for flowers and candy for her quite shamelessly, and he got out a book of photographs that they had taken on their wedding journey, and kept it on the library table. The sole concession he made to our presumptive relationship was to bring me the responsibility for everything that went wrong, and his shirts for from Dal. He waylaid me in the hall after dinner that night, and his face was serious.

"I'm afraid we can't keep it up very long, Kit," he said. "With Jim trailing Bella all over the house, and the old lady keener every day, it's bound to come out somehow. And that isn't all. Jim and Harbison had a set-to today-about you."

"About me!" I repeated. "Oh, I dare say I have been falling short again. What was Jim doing? Abusing Dal looked cautiously over his shoulder, but no one was near.

"It seems that the gentle Bella has been unusually beastly today to Jim, and-I believe she's jealous of you, Kit. Jim followed her up to the roof before dinner with a box of flowers, and she tossed them over the parapet. She said, I believe, that she didn't want his flowers: He could buy them for you, and be damned to him, or some lady-like equivalent."

"Jim is a jellyfish," I said contemptuously. "What did he say?"

"He said he only cared for one woman, and that was Bella: That he never had really cared for you and never would, and that divorce courts were not unmitigated evils if they showed people the way to real happiness. Which wouldn't amount to anything if Harbison had not been in the tent, trying to sleep!"

Dal did not know all the particulars, but it seems that relations between Jim and Mr. Harbison were rather strained. Bella had left the roof and Jim and the Harbison man came face to face in the door of the tent. According to Dal, little had been said, but Jim, bound by his promise to me, could not explain, and could only stammer something about being an old friend of Miss Knowles. And Tom had replied shortly that it was none of his business, but that there were some things friendship hardly justified, and tried to pass Jim. Jim was instantly enraged: He blocked the door to the roof and demanded to know what the other man meant. There were two or three versions of the answer he got. The general purport was that Mr. Harbison had no desire to explain further, and that the situation was forced on him. But if he insisted—when a man systematically ignored and neglected his wife for some one else, there were communities where he would be tarred and fathered.

"Meaning me?" Jim demanded, apopletic

"The remark was a general one," Mr. Harbison retorted, "but if you wish to make a concrete applica-

Dal had gone up just them, and found them glaring at each other, Jim with his hands clenched at his sides and Mr. Harbison with his arms folded and very erect. Dal took Jim by the elbow and led him downstairs, muttering, and the situation was saved for the time. But Dal was not optimistic.

"You can do a bit yourself, Kit," he finished. "Look more cheerful, flirt a little. You can do that without trying. Take Max on for a day or so: It would be charity anythow. But don't let Tom Harbison take it into his head that you are grieving over Jim's neglect, or he's likely to toss him off the roof."

"I have no reason to think that Mr. Harbison cares one way or the other about me," I said primly. "You don't es in love with me do you, Dal?" I watched him out of the corner of my eye, but he only looked amused.

"In love with you!" he repeated. 'Why, bless your wicked little heart, no! He thinks you're a married workan! It's the principle of the thing he's fighting for. If I had as much principle as he has I'd-I'd put it out at interest "

Max interrupted us just then, and asked if we knew where Mr. Harbison

"Can't find him," he said. "I've got the telephone together and have enough left over to make another. Where do you suppose Harbison hides the tools? I'm working with a corkscrew and two palette knives."

I heard nothing more of the trouble that night. Max went to Jim about it, and Jim said angrily that only a fool would interfere between a man and his wife-wives. Whereupon Max retorted that a fool and his wives were soon parted, and left him. The two principals were coldly civil to each other, and smaller issues were lost as the famine grew more and more insistent. For famine it was.

They worked the rest of the evening, but the telephone refused to revive and every one was starving. Individually our pride was at low ebb, but collectively it was still formidable. So we sat around and Jim played Grieg with the soft stops on, and Aunt Selina went to bed. The weather had changed, and it was sleeting, but anything was better than the drawing room. I was in a mood to battle with the elements or to cry -or both-so I slipped out, while Dal was reciting "Give me three grains of corn, mother," threw somebody's overcoat over my shoulders, but on a man's soft hat-Jim's I think-and went up to the roof.

It was dark in the third floor hall. and I had to feel my way to the foot of the stairs. I went up quietly and turned the knob of the door to the ing care of her own children to taking roof. At first it would not open, and care of her neighbors', other things, I could hear the wind howling outside. Finally, however, I got the door equal. open a little and wormed my way through. It was not entirely dark out there, in spite of the storm. A faint reflection of the street lights made it possible to distingush the out-lines of the boxwood plants, swaying Chamberlain's Tablets bave cured others in the wind, and the chimneys and the tent. And then-a dark figure cost only a quarter. For sale by all dealdisentangled itself from the nearest ers. The first I heard of the trouble was chimney and somed to hurl itself at Advertisement.

I remember putting out my hands and trying to say something, but the figure caught me roughly by the shoulders and knocked me back against the door-frame. From miles away a heavy voice was saying, "So I've got you!" and then the roof gave from under me, and I was floating out on the storm, and sleet was beating in my face, and the wind was whispering over and over, "Open your eyes, for God's sake!"

I did open them after a while, and finally I made out that I was lying on the floor in the tent. The lights were on, and I had a cold and damp feeling, and something wet was trickling down my neck.

I seemed to be alone, but in a second somebody came into the tent, and

I saw it was Mr. Harbison, and that he had a double handful of half melted snow. He looked frantic and determined, and only my sitting up quickly prevented my getting another snow bath. My neck felt queer and stiff, and I was very dizzy. When he saw that I was conscious he dropped the snow and stood looking down at

"Do you know," he said grimly, "that I very nearly choked you to death a little while ago?"

"It wouldn't surprise me to be told so," I said. "Do I know too much, or what is it, Mr. Harbison?" I felt terribly ill, but I would not let him see "It is queer, isn't it-how we always select the roof for our littledifferences?" He seemed to relax semewhat at my gibe.

"I didn't know it was you," he explained shortly. "I was waiting forsome one, and in the hat you wore, and the coat, I mistook you. That's all. Can you stand?"

"No," I retorted. I could, but his summary manner displeased me. The sequel, however, was rather amazing, for he stooped suddenly and picked me up, and the next instant we were out in the storm together. At 'the door he stooped and felt for the knob.

"Turn it," he commanded. "I can't reach it."

"I'll do nothing of the kind." I said shrewishly. "Let me down; I can walk perfectly well."

He hesitated. Then he slid me slowly to my feet, but he did not open the door at once. "Are you afraid to let me carry you down those stairs. after-Tuesday night?" he asked, very low. "You still think I did that?" I had never been less sure of it than at that moment, but an imp of perversity made me retort, "Yes." He hardly seemed to hear me. He stood looking down at me as I leaned against the door-frame.

"Good Lord!" he groaned. "To think that I might have killed you!" And then-he stooped and suddenly kissed me.

The next moment the door was open, and he was leading me down into the house. At the foot of the staircase he paused, still holding my hand, and faced me in the darkness. "I'm not sorry," he said steadily.

"I suppose I ought to be, but I'm not. Only-I wanted you to know that I was not guilty-before. I didn't intend to now. I am-almost as much surprised as you are."

I was quite unable to speak, but I wrenched my hand loose. He stepped back to let me pass, and I went down the hall alone.

-000-Shall Women Be Parasites?

If women remain at home, dependent on their male relatives, they become parasitic, according to the testimony of both England and America. If they leave the home they lose the enormous influence they now possess in consequence of their monopoly of the care of children. In America there is frequent suggestion that the sclution of the difficulty may lie in elevating the status of domestic service so as to make it attractive to collegetrained women of the same social rank as the employer. The solution does not seem to appeal to English women strongly. A writer in the Englishwoman says: "We ourselves are hopeful that a gradual adjustment of convention and public opinion may bring about the real liberty of women, whether wives or daughters, in their husbands' or fathers' house, and that the college woman may find it as pleasant and profitable to care for her own children as for her neighbors'." And, indeed, it may be doubted if any American woman wouldn't prefer taksuch as economic independence, being

OUR CONSUMPTION OF LIQUOF

Compares Favorably With That of Other Countries, Thanks to Activity of Temperance People.

Our per capita consumption of iquor compares favorably with that of other countries, thanks to the temperance agitators.

When temperance people are derisively told that the report of the commissioner of internal revenue shows an increase in the output of the brewers and the distillers, we must consider the increasing number of immigrants who come to our country with their own ideas of liquor drinking. The quantity of beer con- delay. sumed per capita in the United States is not as great as in Belgium, the United Kingdom, Germany or Denmark; and our per capita consumption of distilled liquor is less than that of Denmark, Hungary, Austria, France, the Netherlands and Sweden. The quantity of wine consumed in the United States is less per capita than in Portugal, Spain, Italy, France, Switzerland, Austria and Hungary. We should consider how much worse conditions would be in the United States were it not for the activity of the temperance people of our country. We understand there is in the liquor warehouses an immense amount of liquor which has not yet been distributed, but which is reckoned in the internal revenue report.

SALOONS CAUSE OF TROUBLE

Convictions in Police Court of Brisbane Increase Greatly When Dram Shops Are Opened.

The citizens of Brisbane, Australia, were recently given a striking illustration of the fact that arrests for misdemeanors multiply with the opening of saloon doors and decrease when they swing shut. A big strike was on in the city and many workmen were idle. As an experimental measure the saloons were closed for one week. Convictions in the police courts promptly dropped from eighty-six to twenty-six, and arrests for drunkenness from fifty to five. After one week of prohibition the saloons were permitted to do business from three to six in the afternoon. Convictions jumped to thirty-five, and arrests for drunkennes to fourteen. Next, the saloons were allowed to run twelve hours each day. Convictions jumped to eighty-eight, and arrests for drunkenness to forty. The following week all restrictions were withdrawn, and the convictions numbered 109, the arrests for drunkenness sixty-seven.

NOT A PRODUCER OF REVENUE

Intoxicating Liquor Is Not Necessity Nor Luxury-Fountain of Vice Should Be Suppressed.

(By ATTORNEY GENERAL DAWSON of Kansas.) Our ideas of equity acquiesce read-bear a heavier rate of taxation than necessities. But intoxicating liquor is neither a luxury nor a necessity. It is a vice and the fountain of vice, and we have no moral right to depend upon vice as a source of revenue. Luxuries are to be taxed; vice is to be suppressed. Furthermore, it can be shown from a myriad of proofs that the license system is not a revenue producer; it is not even what it pretends to be. In cities where the prohibitory law has been enforced and the revenue licenses or license fines shut off, the incidents of the liquor business -- court costs, paupers, dependent and neglected children, and kindred public expenses, shrink also, so that the loss of the license revenue does not affect the ordinary taxpayer.

What He Made. A prosperous liquor dealer was boasting to a group of men standing near his saloon of the amount of money he had made. "I have made $1,000 in the last three months," he said.

"You have made more than that," quietly remarked a listener. "What is that?" was the quick re-

"You have made my two sons drunkards. You have made their mother a broken-hearted woman. You have made much more than I reckon. but you'll get the full account some day!

Had Been Tried.

The police court magistrate of a southern town was talking to his friend, a distiller. "Judge," he asked, 'have you ever tried my number one brand of old Markham?" "No, John," admitted the magistrate, "but I tried three men in court today who had tried it."

God's Great Levers.

There are the same difficulties in enforcing the restrictions of license as those of prohibition. We have also learned that if prohibition does not always probibit, neither does civiliza tion always civiliza, nor education educate, nor Christianity Christianize. Lesson X .- First Quarter, For March 9, 1913.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Gen. xix, 12-17, 23-29-Memory Verses, 15, 16-Golden Text, II Cor. vi, 17-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

It does seem too bad to hurry over these lessons after the fashion of the suggestion of those who have assigned them, but the faithful teacher will take up the intervening portions and endeavor to omit nothing. Every part of the record of the visit of the Lord and the angels to Abraham in chapter xviii is most fascinating and most instructive and practical.

See the Lord of glory in human form, as doubtless He also appeared to Adam and Eve in Eden. See Him and His companions, the two angels, also in the form of men, accepting Abraham's hospitality and actually eating the food prepared by Abraham and Sarah. Consider that He also ate in His immortal resurrection body.

Think of the breakfast He prepared for the disciples on the shore of Galilee and also of eating and drinking with Him at His table in His king-

Do not omit to notice the water for their feet. Consider His reference to the omission of this by Simon (Luke vii, 44) and see Him attending to it Himself in John xiii. Contrast Sarah's three measures of meal unleavened (xviii, 6) with the woman's three measures of meal leavened of Matt. viii, 33. See the great saying of xviii, 14, "Is anything too hard for the Lord?" And compare Jer. xxxii, 17-27.

In xviii, 22, see the Lord and Abraham alone together, while the two angels go on their way to Sodom to rescue Lot. Hear Abraham pleading for Sodom and the Lord's assurance that if there were but ten righteous men in the city He would not destroy it. Contrast the greater sin of Israel when the presence of such men as Noah, Daniel and Job could not prevent the judgment from falling upon her and the intercession of Moses or Samuel would not avail (Ezek. xiv. 14-20; Jer. xv, 2)-more tolerable for Sodom than for Capernaum in the day of judgment (Matt. xi, 23, 24).

We have seen Lot pitching his tent toward Sodom and later dwelling in Sodom (xiii, 12; xiv, 12), but now we see him a ruler in Sodom, sitting in the gate of Sodom (xix, 1). That means getting on in the world, but it means such a fellowship with the world as angels cannot approve, for they preferred to abide in the street rather than enter Lot's house.

When they communicated to Lot their business, that they had been sent to destroy the city because of its iniquity, which cried greatly to God, they told Lot to tell his family and relatives to flee from the city because of the judgment that was about to come. They paid no heed to Lot's message, however, and he seemed to ed it sleeps until in the providence of them as one that mocked.

So much for the value of a testimoconformed to the world. The life and conduct of Lot is such a problem that if the spirit by Peter had not told us that he was a righteous man (II Pet. ii, 7, 8) we might never have supposed that he was such a one. Such a testimony concerning such a man should prevent us from passing judgment on any one as to whether they are the Lord's or not. See Rom. xiv. 13: I Cor. 4, 5.

In the morning the two angels took Lot and his wife and their two daughters by the hand and brought them forth without the city, urging them to escape for their lives and look not behind them lest they should be consumed in the destruction of the city.

The perverseness and unbelief of Lot are seen in his refusal to escape to the mountain and in his fear that He who had delivered him from Sodom would let some evil befall him in the mountain. See the marvelous grace of God in sparing Zoar at his request. How wonderful beyond all comprehension the sin of man and the grace of God! There is, however, a limit to His forbearance if sin is persisted in, for, though He is long suffering and not willing that any should perish, the day of the Lord will come (II Pet.

From chapter xix, 15-23, it looks as the day on which Sodom and Gomorrah were destroyed began with a clear sky, a morning of sunshine after a night of the usual sins to which the cities were given over. If the sonsin-law of Lot happened to mention to any of their friends the visit of their father and his strange message concerning the approaching doom it probably caused only laughter. But the clouds gathered, the storm broke, the fire and brimstone fell, and that was the last morning on earth for the inhabitants of those cities.

The Lord Jesus Christ, who sent the deluge in the days of Noah and the fire that destroyed those cities, has said, "As it was in the days of Noah, * * * as it was in the days of Lot, * * * even thus shall it be in the day when the Son of Man is revealed" (Luke xvii, 26; xxviii, 30; II Thess.

He also said, "Remember Lot's wife" (Luke xvii. 32). And when to- perfect model for it. That is why we day these Old Testament records are ridiculed, as they so often are, it is the Lord Jesus who is thus held up to scorn and contempt and through Him God the Father, for all of His words and works were the Father's through Him (John xii, 49; 27, 10).

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning March 9, 1913.

Topic.—Obeying conscience.—I John iii, 18-24. (A leaderless meeting.) Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

In the twenty-first verse of this passage the expression "our heart" means "the heart as the seat of conscience, giving rise there to peace or to terror according as it is at rest or in disquietude. * * * The heart here is the inward judge of man." The passage is therefore an appropriate selection for a study of the subject, "Obeying Conscience." "Beloved, if our [conscience] condemn us not, then have we confidence toward God."

Conscience has been variously defined: "Man's conscience is the oracle of God." "Conscience is God's monitor in the soul of man." "Conscience is the reason employed about questions of right and wrong and accompanied with sentiments of approbation and condemnation." "It is the business of conscience," says Archbishop Leighton, "to sit and examine and judge within, to hold courts in the soul, and it is of continual necessity that it be so." Conscience is a universal possession.

There is something within every man, whether reared amid the refinement of the highest civilization or amid the darkness and iniquity of the lowest forms of human life, that tells him what is right and what is wrong and urges him to do the right and shun the wrong and approves or condemns his acts. When we think of this tremendous power of conscience as a judge of our actions there should be no question of our attitude toward it. Conscience should be obeyed.

Conscience should be obeyed because it is the voice of God. No matter how we may define conscience, we must admit that it is a divinely implanted attribute of the human mind, hence the duty of obeying it, for it is our supreme duty to obey God. Obedience to God stands above every other duty. No claims of man can supersede the claims of God, for "we ought to obey God rather than men." "Fear God and keep his commandments. This is the whole duty of man." Conscience, being the voice of God, should therefore be obeyed.

Conscience should be obeyed because disobedience destroys its power to speak aright. One of the saddest facts about conscience is that if destroyed it may be lulled to sleep, its powers dwarfed and even practically lost. It is the alarm clock of the soul, but the alarm clock, if allowed to go unheeded, soon loses its power to awaken and arouse. It might as well not exist. Persistence in evil despite the admonitions of conscience produces similar | woman. results. It ceases to speak until wrong may seem right or at least be persisted in with no voice of warning crying out against it. And what can be sadder than a man with a deadened conscience—a man doing evil and yet not realizing that it is evil-and yet responsible!

Conscience obeyed becomes more enlightened and more effective; disobey-God it is aroused and produces a regret and a remorse that are like a consuming fire. Indeed, in the opinion of many, the punishment of the future will consist in the remorse of an aroused conscience. Conscience should be obeyed because obedience brings peace and disobedience disquietude and even terror.

The approval or the condemnation conscience is no light matter. Nothing is more desirable than a clear conscience—a conscience void of offense toward God and man. "If our conscience condemns us not we have confidence toward God." But if it condemns us we fear God, ourselves and our fellow men. The remorse of conscience is often beyond human endurance. To avoid such consequences we should obey conscience.

Conscience should be enlightened by the teachings of God's word. Conscience is not infallible. It has been corrupted by sin. In the name of conscience the greatest sins and wrongs have been committed. Paul even was conscientious in persecuting Christians, thinking that he was doing the will of God. But "God is greater than our conscience." He alone is infallible, and in His word alone have we infallible truth.

There is at least some dissatisfaction over our street lighting system. When citizens with good eyes find it necessary to use lanterns, as was the case last Friday night, and as many complain of the darkness of our streets on certain so-called "moonlight" nights, every month, the question naturally arises, is our present system satisfactory to the majority of our tax-payer citizens? If it is, we would the little ones when ailing and suffering like to know it, for then we would "shut up" and stay shut, on the question. We would like to have answers to the following questions. If our citizens would fill out cards and turn them in, we would gladly furnish the cards and distribute them:

Is our present street lighting system satisfactory?

Are you in favor of light every night, and all night ?

Are you in favor of light every night, until 12 o'clock?

Resolutions offered by Leo Weinberg, who may be classed as a conservative Progresssve, were unanimously adopted,

'Resolved, That, we, the citizens of Frederick county, representing the Progressive and Republican parties in meeting assembled, do hereby pledge our efforts and support toward the amalgamation of the contending factions existing in the Progressive and Republican parties; and be it further

"Resolved, in order to effectuate the consolidation of the parties, we do hereby give the chairman of this meeting power Progressive party, if said party sees fit to appoint such, and said joint committee meet and ascertain what, if any, action can be made toward this end and be it further resolved, that said committee meet at such time and place designated by the chair.'

'Let each party make some concession,' said Leo Weinberg, in introducing his resolution. "Without these there will never be an amalgamation of the parties. There is no reason why the parties should not unite into one body for without doing this there will be very few victories for either Progressive or Republican."

-LIKE FINDING MONEY.

R. S. McKinney Offers Popular Medicine at Half Price.

R. S. McKinney, the popular druggist is making an offer that is just like finding money for he is selling a regular 50 cent bottle of Dr. Howard's celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia at half price. In addition to this large discount he agrees to return the mone tioned elsewhere, was a comrade in arms | to any purchaser whom the specific does

It is quite unusual to be able to buy fifty cent pieces for a quarter, but that is what this offer really means, for it is only recently through the solicitation of Druggist R. S. McKinney, that this med-icine could be bought for less than fifty cents. He urged the proprietors to allow him to sell it at this reduced price for a little while, agreeing to sell a certain amount. The result has justified his good judgement for the sale has been something remarkable.

Anyone who suffers with headache, dyspepsia, dizziness, sour stomach, specks before the eyes, or any liver trouble, should take advantage of this opportunity for the theory of the story o ef the Tuesday Club. The audience, on a rising vote, expressed itself in favor of a rising vote, expressed itself in favor of all these troubles. But if by any chance it should not, R. S. McKinney will return your money.

Talk of Fair for Four Counties.
