Woman suffrage was defeated in Michigan, on Tuesday, by about 25,000. ---

The Republicans carried their entire state ticket in Michigan, on Tuesday. The Progressive vote cut very little figure, as compared with the vote for Roosevelt last November.

New Jersey has passed a law which requires the business end of ladies hat pins to be muzzled. This seems like pretty small business for a state legislature, but the law is a good one, all the same. ---

Votes in municipal elections in New York, and other states, show that the Progressive party is breaking up; only about 10 per cent. of the Roosevelt vote being cast for Progressive candidates. ---

---It has been announced that President Wilson will stump New Jersey, some time in May, in behalf of the jury reform bill which failed to pass at the last session of the legislature, and to urge the voters to demand a constitutional convention.

--A phase of the proposed income tax law, which has been given little attention, is the fact that when President Wilson signs the measure he will tax himself to the extent of $2250., annually, while the act will also cost Vice-President Marshall $120., annually, and each member of Congress $75.

---A People's party has been organized in Worcester county, composed of Republicans, Progressives, Prohibitionists and Independent Democrats, who will form a coalition against the Democratic organization of the control of the co ization of the county. The cause of the wreck was a landslide, which the engineer could not avoid, while running at about 40 miles an hour. The impa threw the engine from the rails and it fell over on its side, badly wrecked.

Victor Murdock as leader of the third party in the house recalls the fact that the last time there was a third party in that legislative body he, too, was red headed. That was Tom Watson, the leader of the Populists, who afterward was the Populist nominee with Bryan in 1896. It does not follow that a third of Charles W. Winemiller, deceased, reparty leader must be red headed, save only in disposition to push things. In that regard Watson and Murdock re-

Lecture on Forestry.

State Forester, F. W. Besley, will lecture in Grange Hall, Taneytown, on Tuesday evening, April 15, at 8 o'clock. Admssion will be free to all.

Gleaned from the County and State and our Exchanges.

Admission will be ree to all.

Forestry is a very interesting subject, though one very little understood and very much neglected. This lecture will be illustrated with colored stereoptican views, which will greatly assist the audience in understanding the points made by the lecturer.

He will demonstrate the great financial value of the forests as part of the natural resources of the country, and will show that poor management and fires has reduced the producing capacity of our woodlands at least one-half.

The planting of trees on a commercial basis will be discussed, and the proper care of trees along the roadside; also the relation of trees to farm values.

Remember. this lecture is absolutely free! Come and be entertained, as well as hear many things for your own finan-cial benefit, by invitation of the Taneytown Grange.

"As a sample of the present board's energy and persistence, Middletown to-day has practically all concrete walks on a level grade—the pride of the town and the admiration of all strangers. This splendid accomplishment, however, is not all due to the persistence of the Bur-gess and Commissioners, for be it said to their credit, the citizens responded nobly to the request for the removal of the old stone sidewalks, and today they can rejoice with the Board that we have an up-to-date town in every respect.

Right here a word of praise is due the Frederick City Gas and Electric Co., which supplies Middletown with electric lights. Not ONCE during the entire year, through storm or calm, have the lights been out a single night. This is a most remarkable service. Our neighboring town, Boonsboro, has been in darkness on numerous nights the past year, owing to accidents along their electric light line. Under the present system, Middletown is the best lighted town in the State—we

LETTERS FROM DAYTON TELLING OF THE FLOOD.

Descriptions of the Disaster from Citizens of Dayton.

The several letters which follow, give first-hand descriptions of the flood and disasters in Dayton, as well as the experiences of persons well known to many of our readers. The first is a letter from Rev. Dr. Garland, formerly of Taneytown, to the Editor of the Record. Dr. Garland is pastor of the First Lutheran church, of Dayton. The letter was written last Sunday morning: "We are alive, and grateful for that. It was an indescribable calamity which be-fel our city. Mrs. Garland and myself were in the attic three days and nights. First night the water rising inch by inch, rain furious, wind, thunder and lightning added. You can imagine what we endured, our house being in the worst section; water 18 ft. deep, and 15 inches on our second floor. The second night, was that awful fire, two blocks burned and only five blocks from us, with a strong wind directly toward us. It was the worst night, as it seemed that now we were to be burned up. No fire apparatus could operate, of course.

Friday noon we got out. I carried Mrs. G. down stairs, broke the glass out of front door and handed her through; the water then had gone down about 9 feet. I went right to work on relief, organizing the relief stations, and have been at it ever since, at the National Cash Register station, trying to forget the awful expe-

Personally, my loss is irretrievable. We had but 30 minutes to escape, Tuesday morning, from first floor, and my whole library, all the gathered data of years including that of last Summer in Europe, is gone, and my first floor is a total wreck, piano and all. Furniture all falls to pieces—the best of it and the

Mr. Sheets (sexton) and wife are safe, but their home was within 100 ft. of the break in the levee. Driftwood piled up 50 ft. above his house and saved it from being destroyed. Have not heard in detail of his losses, but he was on second floor; do not think the water reached his second floor, as he is on higher ground than my house. Charles (Garland) was away, at the home of a friend, and we heard nothing from him until Thursday.

The following are extracts from a letter received by Jesse P. Weybright, of Detour, from the Wampler family:

"The rain fell from Sunday until Wednesday eve, and the thunder and lightning was terrible. The water was 15 ft. deep over most of the business part of the city, and not a house escaped. Three horses were kept alive in the city postoffice, and 10 were kept in the court house; these buildings are high above 75 horses drowned in Luther Claggett's livery, and over 1000 in all were drowned.

Militia men were stationed on the levee to watch, and notify citizens if it broke. It seemed to break all at once, and drowned the guards, then the water went like a wall and everybody tried to save themselves and nothing else. Newsalt's fine jewelry store was wrecked, and since, diamonds have been gathered from the mud of the streets. All pianos were ruined; one man had 30 to float out and

A letter to Rev. Dr. Stangle, from the publisher of the Religious Telescope, tells of the Dayton situation, in part as fol-

-000 Red Cross Aid Described.

Washington, April 4.—How the American Red Cross has undertaken the rehabilitation of home and business life in the flood-stricken districts of the Middle West and in what manner that organization met the first call for relief for the sufferers in this disaster—probably the greatest with which it ever has been called upon to deal-were described in a comprehensive statement issued tonight by Miss Mabel T. Boardman, chairman of the Red Cross national relief commit-

Rehabilitation of the individual sufferer, declared Miss Boardman, is what is necessary to restore normal conditions. "To essary to restore normal conditions. "To continue merely to give out food and clothing," she said, "will mean the continuation of the paralysis of the all-important business life of the community. In many of the flooded districts the merchants have lost all their stock and have painting as in case of fire. Unless no insurance, as in case of fire. Unless an effort is made to aid them to make a start again, unless the people are assisted in such a way as to enable them to resume the normal condition of buying, the business of the community will remain in a hopeless condition. To accomplish this the individual must be considered, and his or her rehabilitation will mean that of the whole city, town or village.

"While factories are closed for repairs men can be given work, for which they will be paid, in the clearing away of the immense amount of debris, such cleansing being necessary for sanitary and other reasons. Thus, a purchasing power will be given them again. They may be aided in the repair of their houses and thus employment provided for others.

"The re-establishment of his market will enable the merchant to re-employ his staff and thus again others can return to a normal existence. Where men or women have been paying for their homes by monthly installments they can be assisted in such payments for a time so as we would not now be half as far in the way to recovery. He stops at nothing.

to prevent the loss of their homes, and possibly the failure of mutual building associations, which would be disastrous

This work of individual rehabilitation will lead to the rehabilitation of the entire community, and the setting again in motion of the wheels of normal life will be the greatest help that can possibly be given to the unfortunate victims of the flood. So many thousands have suffered; so many cities, towns and villages in Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and Illinois have been affected that there will be need of all the generous contributions re-

Anti-Saloon League Completes $25,000 fice, and that cost, they say, would not be more that that of a special election. Legislative Fund.

The Anti-Saloon League of Maryland announces that it completed on April 1, the date originally set, its fund of $25,000 over and above the amounts subscribed at church services, for educational and organization work in securing the elec tion of a legislature which will pass the local option bill.

In addition to the $25,000 the League also secured the $2000 for which it asked for special office equipment, including the placing of the entire voters list of the temperance churches in Maryland upon plates for rapid addressing. The Anti-Saloon League of Maryland now has the most complete equipment of any temperance organization in the world. It has its own printing plant capable of producing its letters and circulars, a machine which will address 5000 envelopes an hour and folding and sealing machines driven by motor power.

The League has already spent several thousand dollars of the fund, which it commenced last fall to raise, to do certain preparatory work that had to be done in advance, and it is because of this fact that there is such unusual interest in the local option issue so long in advance

The League suggests that the raising of this fund is the most convincing answer to criticisms of its methods. There never was a time when more people were interested and paying to carry on the Anti-Saloon League work in Maryland than

and Breaks Long Precedent.

The 63rd. Congress assembled in extra session, on Monday, for the first time in 18 years both branches being Democratic. The Senate contains 51 Democrats, 43 Republicans and 2 Progressives. The House 291 Democrats, 125 Republicans

Champ Clark was re-elected Speaker, the Republicans voting for Mr. Mann, and the Progressives for Mr. Murdock. The Tariff bill was presented by Mr. Underwood, and it will likely keep Congress in session until mid-summer, though some are of the opinion that it may be left go through without fighting, except as it refers to Wood and Sugar.

The news that President Wilson intended to personally deliver his message, breaking the record of 100 years, caused wide-spread comment, and in the Senate considerable veiled criticism, but no open opposition. Senator Williams, of Mississippi, stated his regrets on the floor, and said that the act of the President would not help the passage of the Tariff bill. Viewing the innovation in the light of an effort to coerce legislation, it was distasteful to the older Democrats as well as Re-

On Tuesday, the President appeared in person and delivered his brief message, stating that "he is a human being trying to co-operate with other human beings in a common service," and that "after this pleasant experience I shall feel quite normal in all of our dealings with one another." Although he delivered the message "in person," he read it just the same, occupying about eight minutes in

The message itself seems to indicate that the President is willing to go farther in tariff reduction than even the Underwood bill itself, and many protectionists frankly stated that they liked the bill better than the message.

President Wilson's expressed wish that the tariff bill might be first considered in open Democratic caucus, was uncere-moniously rejected by the leaders. Very little will be done on the bill for several days, other than go over it secretly, one of the most important questions to decide is whether it will be taken up as a single bill, or under several schedules; this is important, for if there is enough objection to certain features of it, the whole bill may be endangered, while on the other hand if it is brought up in sections, there may be "trading" which the administration desires to avoid.

-000 The Governor Not In A Hurry.

No action is contemplated by Governor Goldsborough regarding an extra session of the Legislature. The Governor said Tuesday night that, if called, an extra session would not meet for several months and that there is no occasion for hurry. Connecticut's ratification of the amend-ment providing for the direct election of Senators, making 36 States, or the required three-fourths, is held by Albert C. Ritchie and other leading lawyers to make the amendment automatically part of the Constitution, without notification or proclamation.

This leaves Maryland without Senatorial election machinery, and it is a matter of great concern to Democrats that there be no unnecessary vacancy the Senate while the vital issues of the Wilson Administration are pending. They are generally anxious that an extra session be called. They argue that so far as expense is concerned, the cost would be slight because a few days would suf-Governor Goldsborough is known to be most reluctant to call an extra session He has said that he is opposed to such sessions on general principles and has never known of one which the people approved afterward. It is understood erally that the Governor is fearful that the Democrats might pass legislation hostile to him and suspects that Western Maryland Republicans who were Roosevelt men might aid them. An extra session, if called, may continue for 30 days and there can be no executive limitation to measures to be considered by it.

Democrats of all shades of opinion say the Governor's fears are groundless. A number of leaders have said they are willing to frame the election legislation and state it to the public, with assurances that their influence will be against the consideration of other measures. These leaders say it would be foolish for the Democratic party to continue an extra session unnecessarily, creating expense to the taxpayers by taking up other legislation. There would be no reason for their doing so, they say, when the regular session would be but a few months away.

-000-Progressives Return to G. O. P.

Returns from Mighigan's State election n Monday, will be disheartening to the Progressives. Instead of maintaining the hold on the State, which they obtained at the election last fall, they probably will be found in third place. Roosevelt had a be found in third place. Roosevelt had a plurality of 62,340 over Taft and Wilson, who were almost even, with about 150, 000 votes each. The Republicans are claiming this election by from 30,000 to 50,000, with the Democrats in second The turn-over in sentiment is astonishing considering that only five months have elapsed since the Presiden-

Without doubt, the cold spell of last week killed a large percentage of peach and cherry buds. It is estimated that fully 90 per cent. of the cherries have been killed, and that plums are in nearly as bad condition. As to the damage to peaches, reports vary greatly; some claim that there are still plenty of good buds for an average crop, while others think the crop is damaged about one-half.

Country and City Public Schools.

Washington, April 9.—Country school children generally are less healthy than children in the city schools, according to the United States Bureau of Education, which bases its conclusion largely on investigations made by Dr. Ernest B. Hoag into rural educational conditions in Minnesetz. Eviluate to teach the children in nesota. Failure to teach the children in hesola. Faintre to teach the children in the "little red schoolhouse" even the rudiments of hygiene, and the ignorance of the average country teacher along this line are held to be the causes.

Poor ventilation of the country school is a large factor in undermining the health of the children in Dr. Hogg's opinion of the children, in Dr. Hoag's opinion. As a result of this, he says, the children generally are afflicted with headache, earache and other ailments of a completely avoidable nature.

In his investigation Dr. Hoag found that 80 per-cent. of the children in country schools drank tea and coffee; that 40 per-cent. of them suffered from almost constant toothache, and that from 19 to 23 per-cent. had frequent headaches.

"When I ask those who drank coffee to stand up," says Dr. Hoag, "nearly all the children arise. When I ask how many have a tooth brush nearly all say they have, but when asked if they use them there is little response."

THE BITTER PERSONAL fight between Senator Smith and Mr. Marbury, for the Senatorship, is simply one of the attending delights of the direct primary system which falls to the lot of political parties as the thorn to the rose. No invention can be more antagonistic to party harmony and solidity than these personal fights, which are sure to come on every occasion when there is a worth while office at stake-and nearly all offices are "worth while" to somebody.

-000 A PECULIAR SITUATION exists before Congress. It is being convened in extra session for the purpose of greatly lowering tariff duties, while as a matter of fact the last election showed a large popular majority for Taft and Roosevelt combined, both of whom ran on a protective tariff platform. The special session, therefore, does not have back of it a popular expression of opinion in favor of doing what it positively states that it means to do. Democracy came into power because the Republicans split, and not because the country voted on the tariff.

The "Big Stick" Again in Use.

President Wilson appears to be adopting the tactics of Roosevelt which gained for him the unenviable notoriety of using the "big stick," in his efforts to coerce Congress into passing practically a free trade tariff bill. Whether the public will view the President's course as "patriotic," and still remember Roosevelt's as having been "demagogic," remains to be seen. To a man up a tree, there seems to be little real difference between the two, for both represent Presidential interference with popular government, and the overshadowing of representative rule by Czarism on the part of the President.

President Wilson has the advantage of being a new man wielding the power of a great office, coming in at a time when there is a strong sentiment against representative bodies, and he is generally regarded as being of superior calibre to those who have been leading the great parties in the past; that he represents the newer and better "progressivism" and is not personally partial to any of the big special interests of the country.

There is a feeling, too, that old political methods have been responsible for the high cost of living-especially the tariff-and that this same tariff has aided the trusts in a systematic "robbery" of the people; therefore, President Wilson will be given a very respectful hearing, and even his coercive methods will be ago would quickly have placed him in the Roosevelt class.

The discussion of the tariff bill before the special session of Congress will likely show how far the President and Mr. Bryan can go, and whether a changed sentiment has come about which designates its willingness for the President, rather than a Congress chosen by the people, to direct the paramount issues of all sections of the country. If this should and mob element. appear, then indeed the meaning of Democracy has been re-written.

No doubt those in charge are more exercised over the mishaps than anybody else, especially as every wreck is a very expensive affair; but, the point has almost been reached, we think, when some sort of rigid physical inspection should be made of the entire system, as well as a re-examination, for fitness, of the employees generally.

Perhaps this is a very unsound and inexpert opinion. It is at least one advanced without any grouch, or ill feeling, and in the interest of the greater safety and convenience of the patrons of the road. J. P. Morgan is dead-like anybody else. He must have been a wonderful master of finance; he had exceptional opportunities, perhaps, but he had a mastermind for money-making; thousands of men, with his same chances, would not have succeeded as he did; perhaps his methods of doing business were honest, and perhaps he was justly entitled to the charge of being at the head of a grinding money trust-we don't know the truth about these things; but he was likely no worse than thousands of others who devote their lives to the pursuit of wealth, and no matter what may be said of him, whether good or evil, he is dead. Mr. Morgan at least has one thing to his credit; he gave away something like $75,000,000, a large portion of which will do good long years after he will be forgotten. Many rich men, and many grasping little men who fancy themselves rich, have no such record to their credit. Mr. Morgan did not play the game solely for keeps.

Some of the poorest men in this country are the little imitations of Mr. Morgan. Men who count their money only by the thousands, yet who love it and hold on to it as though they would take it along, or perhaps at the last minute buy a longer lease of life. Another important fact bearing on the same situation is that, with the Progressives in the field and the Republicans weakened, it is more than likely, as seen from the viewpoint of the present, that the Democrats will have a two-thirds majority in both houses and will be able to pass any bill they wish over the veto of Governor Goldsborough.

These things being true, it will be particularly unfortunate if the Democratic majorities at Annapolis are composed of material no better than is usually sent there, especially from Baltimore city. The people of Maryland have had plenty of good advice on this subject in the past, and it is notorious that they have failed to heed it. One of the principal difficulties has been the lack of good men who are willing to become candidates, there being a general nesitation to make the material sacrifice that is required by three months' service in the Legislature. Men can be found in the counties, but in Baltimore it is only now and then that a citizen of the right type can be persuaded to enter the contest for a nomination.

If there is to be merely the spectacle of an arrogant partisan majority playing petty politics at the next session, it will be a bad sign of the state of public virtue among us. The best politics for the Democratic leaders, as well as the masses, will be the choice of new Senators and delegates who can make a record of constructive legislation that will prove the party's right to be intrusted with the great power that seems likely to be placed in its keeping. -Balt. Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled (twothirds of each house concurring therein), That in lieu of the first paragraph of Section 3 of Article 1 of the Constitution of the United States, and in lieu of so much of Paragraph 2 of the same section as relates to the filling of vacancies, the following be proposed as an amendment to the Constitution, which shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of the Constitution when ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the States:

"The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, elected by the people thereof, for six years; and each Senator shall have one vote. The electors in each State shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the State Logislatures.

the State Legislatures "When vacancies happen in the representation of any State in the Senate the executive authority of such State shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies, provided that the Legislature of any State may empower the Executive there-of to make temporary appointments until the people fill the vacancies by elec-tion as the Legislature may direct.

'This amendment shall not be construed as to effect the election or term of any Senator chosen before it becomes valid as part of the Constitution.'

As there are 48 States, the proposed amendment must receive the approval of 36. It has been approved by 35 and is munity are living it. After a while, like pending in the Legislatures of Connecticut and Rhode Island.

-Wilson May Stump For Tariff Bill.

Washington, D. C., April 7.—To test his belief that the people of the United States demand a sweeping revision of the trails a last. We want you to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the next time you have a cough or cold. There is tariff President Wilson is prepared to go to extraordinary lengths. He has indicated to some of his party friends that if appeal to the people will be an answer to ne challenge that, if the President is to dictate tariff legislations in advance of consideration by Congress, the legislative body might as well be abolished.

The President's friends say that he is not frightened by suggestions that such a course might mean the wrecking of the Democratic party. In fact, he has told some of his surporters, it is said, that he is convinced that the only way to save the Democratic party, now that it is in complete control of the Government, is by redeeming the pledges made in the Baltimore platform. He purposes to do his share toward insuring that redemption.

The President's active participation in the drafting of the Tariff bill and his tentative intention to appeal to the people were decided on only after prolonged study. He revieved with great care the history of every session of Congress at which tariff legislation was considered. He decided in his own mind what he thought were the mistakes of former Presidents, and planned how he could profit by the errors.

As events are likely to shape them selves, any direct appeal to the people by President Wilson will not come until late in the extra session, certainly not until the bill has passed the House, and a sufficient number of Democratic Senators have shown unyielding opposition to the proposed changes.

-000 Liquor And The Law.

Most of the friends of prohibition regard the enactment of the Kenyon-Webb liquor law as a triumph for the cause, but many able lawyers, both in and out of Congress, disagree with them, for they believe that the act is unconstitutional. Among those who hold that view are former President Taft, who vetoed the bill, and former Attorney-General Wickersham, who advised him to veto it. Neverthless, the majority in Congress decided to allow the Supreme Court to settle the question, and so passed the bill again, over the President's veto.

The new law forbids the shipment from one state to another of beer, wine or spirituous liquors "to be received, possessed, sold, or in any manner used, either in the original package or otherwise, in violation of any law of such state." Those who believe that the law is unconstitutional, declare that in this clause Congress has surrendered to the states its power to regulate interstate commerce, for it permits one state to make laws to prevent the admission of a commodity from another state. They say that if a law against the shipment of liquor is valid, a law against the shipment of tobacco, wheat, flour, furniture, or beef would also be valid, since all are

'commodities." The temperance people, on the other hand, maintain that liquor is not a "commodity," but a dangerous poison that menaces public health, and that consequently it should be classified not as property, but as a plague and a pest. They regard it as just as reasonable for a state to outlaw liquor as to bar smallpox, or yellow fever, or any other menace to the public health; and that power, of course, all the states have. There are already eight states that prohibit the manufacture and sale of liquor, and thirty-six others that under local option laws forbid it in all or a part of their territory. Those states, nevertheless, have been powerless to prevent liquor dealers in other states from shipping their goods across their borders. The new law is the latest attempt to put an end to that condition, but it remains for the courts to decide whether or not the attempt shall succeed.

The Supreme Court will pass, of course, on the validity of the law, not on the desirability of its aim. If it decides adversely it will say, in effect, "You have not found the right way." Certainly a community that wishes to prohibit liquor should not have its will thwarted by the contrary-minded in other states. With thought and care, the right way will ultimately be found. - Youth's Companion.

HOUSING BIDDY AND BABIES.

The old style brood coop in the picture may surely lay claim to antiquity, but with all our veneration for age, we must say it no more fits into modern methods of raising chicks than a hoopskirt into a hobble.

It is small, dark, uncomfortable for Biddy and her babies and is open to rain and the attacks of varmints. That lumber pile near is also a convenient harbor for chicken eating rats and weasels.

We do not advocate expensive coops for chicks, for we know that the poultryman must watch his p's and q's to make a decent profit, but we also know that thousands of chicks die and thousands of culls are raised simply because the housing does not conserve the health nor aid the proper development of the tender chick.

A novelty at the Elizabeth (N. J.) poultry show was the hatching of mosquito eggs and the development of the pestiferous insects in sight of the audience for their information so that they may know enough to kill one when they see it. We have heard fanciers claim that they got stung when they bought New Jersey Leghorns, and we now believe some of those Jersey fellers have got their skeeters and chickens mixed.

Those cute little ground squirrels that cock their tails over their backs are expert egg robbers and are often the sneak thieves that get away with Mother Turkey's eggs. They raid the grain fields and the fruit also and should be exterminated.

Senor Jose Canalejas, the late assassinated prime minister of Spain, was much interested in poultry culture. When the international poultry exhibition was held at Madrid he gave a luncheon to the foreign delegates and presented them to the king.

When hens drop their eggs under roosts at night or soft shelled eggs appear it's nearly always a case of overfat. The hens should be examined and fatties penned elsewhere and fed a light ration with plenty of greens and made to exercise for their grain. Ireland is certainly forging ahead in poultry. Her turkey crop in 1912 was 1.034.552, while England, Scotland and Wales together produced but 458,000. She is also ahead of these three countries in chickens, eggs and goats. There are many reasons presented to the courts as grounds for divorce. The latest is where a Reading (Pa.) woman asked for a divorce because her husband kept chickens in the house and made her clean up the dirt. The roosters crowed from morning until night and got on her nerves and wakened the baby. She ought to have a divorce. As with everything else, when a fancier gets his first incubator there is always a deluge of advice from outsiders how to run it. As most machines are bought on trial, it is wise to follow the manufacturer's directions. A beautiful bouquet of flowers in natural colors, made of goose feathers, was on exhibition at the late Philadelphia poultry show. Of course no woman would be goose enough to wear them, but lots of them do and don't know it, just as they wear dyed rabbit for black fox fur and skunk for Alas-

The object of this suit is to procure a decree, appointing some suitable person or persons Trustee or Trustees, with power and authority to make sale of the Real Estate in Carroll and Frederick counties, in the State of Maryland, of which Otho A. Shank, died siezed and possessed, and not disposed of by Elizabeth Rebecca Shank, his wife, in her lifetime; and distribution of the proceeds thereof among the parties according to the Last Will and Testament of the said Otha A. Shank.

lifetime; and distribution of the proceeds thereof among the parties according to the Last Will and Testament of the said oftha A. Shank.

The Bill states that Otha A. Shank departed this life, in Carroll County, Maryland, on or about the 12th day of March, 1905, leaving a Last Will and Testament, duly executed to pass Real Estate, dated December 20th, 1904, which said Will was duly admitted to probate by the Orphans' Court of Carroll County, en the 10th day of July, 1905, and is duly recorded among the Records of Wills, in the Office of the Register of Wills for Carroll county, in Liber J. D. B., No. 9, folio 495, etc.; and that Letters Testamentary thereon were, by said Orphans' Court, on the 25th day of July, 1905, duly committed and granted unto Elizabeth Rebecca Shank, the Executrix therein named, as appears by a duly Certified Copy of said Will and Exemplification of said Letters Testamentary, therewith filed as part thereof, and marked "EXHIBIT NO.1."

That, by said Will, the said Testator devised and bequeathed his estate, real and personal, after the payment of his just debts and funeral charges, as fellows:

"First Item. I devise and bequeath to my dear wife, Elizabeth Rebecca Shank, all my Real and personal property, of every kind and nature, to do with as she may see fit during her lifetime, and after her death, it is my desire and will that all the Real and personal property to which I may be entitled to at the time thereof shall be sold at Public Sale, and the proceeds arising therefrom shall be equally divided share and share alike between J. Clarence Shank, Luther F. Shank, Ortha Shank."

And therein also appointed his said wife, Elizabeth Rebecca Shank, the Executrix thereof, and the Plaintiffs, Clarence I. Shank and John D. Shank, and Frederick A. Shank."

And therein also appointed his said wife, Elizabeth Rebecca Shank, the Executrix thereof, and the Plaintiffs, Clarence I. Shank and Luther L. Shank, the Executrix hard the said Clizabeth Rebecca Shank, the Executrix thereof, and the Plaintif

SOME DAINTY OMELETS

DELICIOUS VARIATIONS THAT ARE WORTH TRYING.

Housewives Who Are Perplexed to Add Variety to Table at This Season Will Find Relief in These Suggestions.

Many delicious variations can be made with the plain omelet as a point of departure. Sardines broken up and mixed with lemon juice and melted butter, anchovy paste, a teaspoonful mixed smooth with two tablespoonfuls of melted butter; grated cheese of any kind, a cupful of cooked oysters finely minced, chopped parsley, as well as any bits of minced meat, ham, kidney, chicken, liver, sausage, cooked bacon, all these additions are worth while.

A delicate change from the plain kind is the omelet a la creme. For it make a cream sauce and mix half a cupful with the six-egg omelet before cooking. Spread the same amount of cream sauce on half of the omelet before folding it. This sauce should be moderately thick, made with a cupful of milk and two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour.

Blazing omelet is a plain omelet over which a little rum or brandy is poured. The alcohol is lighted as the omelet is sent to the table and as soon as it has burned off the omelet should be eaten.

A well-made and well seasoned Spanish omelet is a lunch in itself. Melt a tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan, add an onion chopped fine, six mushrooms and one red and one green sweet pepper cut in small pieces. Cover and cook slowly for twenty minutes. Make a plain omelet from six eggs, turn it on a hot platter, pour the Spanish sauce around it and send at once to the table. Spanish omelet is sometimes made by American cooks from stiffly beaten eggs, the yolks hardly mixed with the whites even after they are cooked. Quaker omelet is a good one for a beginner, for it is hardly an omelet at all. To make it beat four eggs until they are well mixed. Soak half a pint, a cupful, of bread crumbs in half a pint of milk until the crumbs are soft and then add the eggs and beat with an eggbeater until the bread is blended with the milk. Season with salt and pepper and pour into greased pie plates. Bake in a quick oven and serve from the dish in which it was cooked.

A delicious and nourishing omelet is made in Denmark, where the nutritive value of dairy products is realized and where, too, eggs never reach the price of train fares. A Danish omelet has a cream sauce of three tablespoonfuls of butter, three of flour and two cups of milk. In the meantime break macaroni into one inch lengths and boil it in salted water until it is tender; then drain it. When the cream sauce is cool add six egg yolks, two at a time, beating the mixture five minutes after each yolk addition. Beat six egg whites stiff, fold them into the yolk mixture, sprinkle with pepper and salt and pour the omelet over the macaroni, which has been arranged on the bottom of a buttered baking dish. Bake the omelet in a steady hot oven for 30 minutes and serve at once. Beaten butter is used in Denmark with this omelet, which is simply butter creamed with a fork or spoon and blended with a taste of sugar. Sweet omelets are made by adding a teaspoonful of powdered sugar to a six-egg omelet before cooking and spreading the omelet with fruit, jam, jelly or preserves before turning. The sweet should not be thickly spread on, as it should furnish simply a suggestive flavor, not make the omelet a rich

Cold Tongue in Jelly.

A canned or fresh tongue, one pint good, clear stock; one onion (stuffed with cloves), one-half ounce gelatin, seasonings. A canned tongue makes a good dish, but a fresh one is better. Put on the stock with seasoning and the onion, to cook gently. Meanwhile soak the gelatin. Strain the stock, add the gelatin, let all dissolve and color a nice brown. Cut the tongue into thin slices and arrange in a plain mold or pan seasoning and scattering chopped parsley over it all. When the stock is nearly cold pour it on the tongue. Set a plate over with weight on it. When set, turn out and serve.

Chocolate Bavaroise.

Heat two cups of milk in a double boiler and add two cups of sugar. Melt four squares of chocolate in a small saucepan set in another of hot water, then mix with the milk and sugar. Soak one-third box of gelatin in onethird cup of cold water and stir into the hot mixture, then strain and add one teaspoon of vanilla. When the mixture begins to thicken beat it well until cold and a fine froth is formed, then fold in two cups of cream beaten light. Turn into a serving dish or into small molds and set away to become cold and firm-Alice E. Whitaker.

Veal Croquettes.

Put two cupfuls of finely shopped veal in a saucepan, add two tablespoonfuls of fine bread crumbs, one teaspoonful of butter, the beaten yolks of two eggs, one teaspoonful of onion juice, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one saltspoonful of paprika and speck of mace. Stir the mixture over the fire until thoroughly heated, then set aside to cool. Shape into croquettes, dip in beaten egg, roll in fine crumbs, let stand one or more hours and fry until well browned. Serve with tomato

A letter from Miss Mary Townsend, of Miamisburg, Ohio, a niece of Isaac and William Townsend, of Union Bridge, telling of the awful flood there, has been handed me, from which I will make some extracts. "Our town, and in fact most of the towns in the Miami Valley are also." of the towns in the Miami Valley, are almost destroyed. Everybody is destitute. The loss is greater than that of the San Francisco earthquake. I came up to the telephone exchange in a boat to help out, thinking the water would go down soon, but it raised 3 feet an hour and was just ready to come into the second story of the building, when it commenced to go down. There were 10 operators up there and they all had to be taken up on the third floor, fainting and tearing their hair; but two of us, Dora McGowen and I, stuck to it through all. We saved lots of lives by telephoning for boats to be sent out to people. Some of them were up to their chins in water, telephoning us for help. There were only a few lives lost. I was on duty from early Tuesday morning until Thursday noon; by that time the water had fallen. Deering Harvesting Machines

Is your present equipment of harvesting machines satisactory

How about your binder? How old is it? Does it lack the improvements which have been put on later model machines? If it does, you need a new one which will harvest your crop easily and quickly.

And where is your mower? Is it in good shape, or does it also lack the improvements which are contained in new machines?

Do you own a satisfactory hay rake? How about the hay tedder?

Perhaps you already own some of these machines, but if you don't, isn't it good business policy for you to investigate Deering harvesting machines which are recommended by thousands of farmers?

If you will investigate the Deering machines it will help you to get better and bigger results. You will not go on using old, worn-out machines which do not have present day improvements.

An investigation does not place you under any obligation to buy. Come in and see us. Get a Deering catalogue which explains details.

How to Split Paper.

According to Popular Science News, there are two ways of splitting a piece of paper. One is to lay the sheet of care the upper half of the sheet can be peeled off, leaving the under half on the glass. Let this dry and it will come off the glass easily. Of course the glass must be perfectly clean. The second way is a better one, but it re quires some good practice. Paste a piece of cloth or strong paper on each side of the sheet to be split. When it has thoroughly dried pull the two pieces of cloth apart suddenly and violently. The paste can then be softened with water and the two halves of the sheet easily taken off the cloths.

Orchestra-A Game. The game of orchestra is great. Select a conductor, who seats his orchestra in a semicircle, each being assigned to play some imaginary instrument and instructed how to play it.

The conductor first calls on his orchestra to tune up, and then, naming some lively air, begins to hum it, at the same time waving a baton, when all players must join in imitating, by inch to an inch thick, cut a slit in voice and gesture, their instruments, such as harp, violin, cornet, trombone, flute, clarinet, piccolo, drum, cymbals, etc. Solos may be called for and the one representing the instrument named must respond or pay a forfeit. There are few games that afford more fun and laughter than this. Be sure to select a comical person to be your leader. -Philadelphia Ledger.

Maryland Suffragists believe that "Home ts Woman's Sphere" and because Government has entered Woman's Sphere, we believe that woman, by casting a vote should participate in

We say, one man can legally cast but one vote, therefore a voter can only represent himself.

As it is the number of votes cast which decides questions, not the opinions one vote represents, we believe women should be given the right to express their own opinions at the place where opinions count—the polling booth.

The majority of men are just and recognizing the righteousness and justice of our claims, they are extending the franchise to women through-out the civilized world.

In the United States the men in all but twelve states have given women some form of suffrage and the testimony based on actual experience in these states is overwhelmingly in favor of votes

Those who like delicate flavors should try frying oysters, which have been drained and wiped, in a very hot pan of chicken grease in which a couple of bacon slices have been fried. TO MAKE BEEFSTEAK PIE

New Recipe for This Appetizing Dish That Is Worth the Housewife's Attention.

This recipe makes a good beefsteak pie: Take some tender steak, beat or bruise it just a little, season with a little salt and pepper, a teaspoonful of salt for a two-pound steak. Dot the surface with little knobs of butter, then dredge on a tablespoonful of flour; roll up and cut off unevenly into pieces about two inches long. Put a good pie paste around the sides and bottom of baking dish, a deep pudding pan is best, and put in the steak. Nearly fill the basin with water, add a piece of butter on top and dredge flour over all-a teaspoonful is enough—lay skewers across the basin, roll the top crust from half an the center and pinch the dampened edges of the crusts firmly together before putting into the oven. Bake for one hour in a quick oven.

Haddock Fritters. One smoked haddock, two eggs, one gill of milk, one tablespoonful of flour, salt and pepper to taste. Put the haddock into a baking tin with a little milk and place it in the oven for about 20 minutes. Take up and drain the fish, remove the skin and bones and divide the meat into fine flakes. Put in a stewpan with the flour, add the milk, and beat up over the fire and mix well. All the yolks of the eggs, butter, salt and pepper and beat up again, then add the whites of the eggs and beat up the whole lightly. Fry a tablespoonful at a time in smoking hot fat. Elya's Chaperon

And a Meeting That Revived the Past.

By VIRGINIA LEILA WENTZ.

Mrs. James Dix was looking out across the Rue de Rivoli at the morning's brightness of the Tuileries gardens when the boy in the hotel lift brought her a cablegram.

It was a message from her lord and immediate presence was required. At once all the brightness faded out of the Tuileries, for the frivolous gayety of Paris had been especially attractive to this portly, easy going, good natured matron of the west.

"But, mother, you'll have to go alone. It'll be a whole month before my singing lessons are finished, you know," broke in Elya, who was having her flaxen hair shampooed by a real Parisian hairdresser.

Mrs. Dix clasped her ring bedecked, pudgy hands. She always clasped her hands when she agreed about anything. "You'll have to have a chaperon, of course, dear," she added. "Now, who can we get on such a little notice?"

There was silence for a moment, while the deft fingers of the hairdresser ran through the flaxen hair with a soothing touch. Then Elya's girlish voice sounded in a delightful treble:

"Oh, mother, I know the very person! She's terribly nice and awfully ladylike" (Elya always emphasized her adverbs and used indiscriminate ones at that), "and she's an American, and that's the best of all-ouch!" In her eagerness she'd turned her head a bit too suddenly, and some soap had got in her sapphire eyes.

"Oh, I know who you mean," helped out Mrs. Dix, while her daughter struggled with the soap. "You mean Miss Clemmens, the governess to that little English boy who died last week? Yes; she's looking for another engagement, that's true. And she certainly is a ladv.'

So Miss Dorothy Clemmens of New York was engaged to chaperon Eiya Dix for a month in Paris and then bring her back to America.

To console herself for her mother's departure Elya had Miss Clemmens secure tickets for that night's opera. She sat in a box in her young beauty set off by a $200 Paquin gown and serenely allowed the audience to stare.

Already she was learning that the mission of the beauty is to support modistes and to be stared at. Behind her, robed in some soft, inexpensive gray stuff, with a narrow white lace collar, sat her chaperon.

The opera was "Siegfried," the scherzo of Wagner's great symphony, as Lavignac has called it. Upon Miss Clemmens' music parched soul (she'd not heard an opera for over a year) it fell like gracious dew and fetched a sweet refreshment. When the orchestra tells the mood of Siegfried in the second act, feeling the first fret of awakened passion, her eyes shone like stars, her lips parted slightly, and just at that juncture a man in the audience caught her perfect profile as she leaned slightly forward.

That same look, downward and sidewise and smiling; that exquisite head in its cloud of wavy dark hair! Paul | bedecked plump hands in acquiesence. Demarest brushed away the years that had blurred it all, and then suddenly he remembered. Yes, he remembered. Oh, it was so long ago, so many years

And she was in the same box with that gay little butterfly, that American flirt, Elya Dix. Bless Elya Dix! It was the first time he had ever felt way to her box at the end of the second act.

"Why, Mr. Demarest! I'm awfully glad to see you-I honestly am! Thought you'd forgotten me. And I'm all alone now-mother sailed unexpectedly for home this morning-and I'm all alone now." Elya greeted him in her young untamed effusiveness as he entered the box.

"All alone?" he questioned gravely. "Well, there's Miss Clemmens here. my chaperon. By the way, she's an American too. Miss Clemmens, Mr. Demarest. You've heard mother speak of him, I'm sure. Oh, here come Dickie Marston and Bob Sawyer! How terribly jolly!" Elya reached out her daintily gloved hand to greet two newcomers.

They were of the aggressive type, these two English chaps, and in a few seconds Demarest made his way to Miss Clemmens in the rear.

"Do you know, Miss Clemmens," he began curiously, "the last time I saw you you wore your hair in two braids. and I wrote a poem and dedicated it to the curls at the end."

His voice and mouth were grave, but there was a smiling gleam in his eyes. Miss Clemmens glanced rather blankly from beneath her heavy lashes at this man well under forty.

"I think," she began, with a calm dignity befitting her position—but just then, on the very second word of reproval, a flash of understanding radiated over her tired, lovely face. "Yousurely you're not Prince Paul?" "The very same-princess."

Paul Demarest bowed very low. "But-but why Demarest"- pursued Miss Clemmens, with puzzled uncer light raillery in the voice changed to seriousness. "But I'd have known you, princess, if you went by any name under heaven"

"For pity's sake!" dimpled she. Then she added, with a wistful dignity: "But I must have changed a deal since then. That was nearly twelve years ago. Just fancy!"

"I don't see the changes," said he gallantly. "To me you're just the

But, oh, how tired she looked-his gay, light hearted little princess! And how he longed to fold her protectingly in his arms! The wide divergence in that moment between what this man wished to do and what he did do stands for civilization.

"Do you remember those glorious sails we used to have on Long Island sound?" he asked constrainedly, pickmaster in Chicago declaring that her | ing up the fan which she had dropped. Remember? The Parisian opera house and the hum of chattering voices faded away. In their place came the big, blue sound covered with white sails, and no voice save that of "Prince Paul" teaching her the "Marseillaise" in French. Oh. what a voice he had! And the salt spray was again on her tanned cheek, the wind blowing through

"Once upon a time," began Paul Demarest, "there was a young chap with a lot of ideals and ambitions and that sort o' thing who went to spend a summer in a quiet little place on Long Island. It seemed absurdly, irritatingly quiet to him until he met-a princess. She didn't wear a crown, except her glorious dark hair, whose thick tendrils the wind was always blowing awry, and she wasn't followed about by a court chamberlain, but she had the dearest, most loving father I ever knew. Well, the princess was quite five years younger than the man, but they read together and sang together and sailed together, and when he was suddenly called away to France he purposed coming back one day when he was an independent person and claiming the little princess. He didn't get back as quickly as he had hoped. When he did he found that she had flown, and he could find no trace of

When the low, mesmeric voice had finished. Dorothy Clemmens looked up with startled eyes. The lambent flame in them me an answering flash in his.

"Father died the year I graduated," she said unsteadily. "We had to give up our old home, and ever since I've been putting what little learning I'd gained to use-'teaching the young mind,' etc. Incidentally now I'm chaperoning, as you see." She gave a vague, graceful little motion with her slim hand, which included Elya, the two English chappies and part of the stage.

"Back in that little spot on Long Island," went on her companion eagerly, "the sea is just as blue as ever, I'm sure. And the white sails are there, and-don't you think, princess, if we went back we might find fairyland?"

Just here the orchestra took up the superb stretto of "The Decision of Love," and there was the general stir in the house of people getting ready for the third act.

* * /* When at the end of the month Elya. Dix sailed for America, Miss Dorothy Clemmens sailed with her as Paul Demarest's fiancee.

"But isn't it terribly funny, mother," said Elya as she unpacked her Parisian finery, "to think of my coming back from gay Paris quite unengaged and my chaperon with a prize on her

To a friend she confided the source of her trouble, and from this friend she learned that grateful to her. He would make his it had always been said that a man even slightly intoxicated cannot pronounce words of any length, whereupon the young wife decided that that would be a good plan to try.

When next the friend met the young wife she was in a state of great agitation. Asked if the suspicions had been verified, the girl burst into tears and said that they had.

"I handed him this list," she said between sobs, fishing from her pocket a paper which she gave to her friend and which contained the following words: Phthisis, photochromy, gnomiometrical, hypochondriasis, parachronfsm, phlegmasia dolens, syncategorematic, antinomianism, pseudaethesia. "And." she continued, while her friend read the list, "he bungled nearly half of them."

A Famous War Horse. From an entry in "Lady Shelley's Diaries" it appears that Copenhagen, the famous war charger of the Duke of Wellington, had something of the constitution of his master. The day before the battle of Waterloo the duke rode Copenhagen to the Prussian headquarters to ascertain whether he might depend upon old Blucher's co-operation. The duke rode Copenhagen on June 17 over sixty miles. On the 18th he rode Copenhagen throughout the entire battle, and the next day he rode him to Brussels. When the duke dismounted Copenhagen "kicked up his heels and scampered half over the town before he was caught."

One day in Paris Lady Shelley rode with the duke, who offered to mount her on Copenhagen. "But." she confesses. "I found Copenhagen the most difficult horse to sit of any I had ever ridden. If the duke had not been there

Lesson III .- Second Quarter, For April 20, 1913.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Gen. xxxiii, 1-15. Memory Verses, 10, 11-Golden Text, Eph. iv. 32-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

When Laban learned that Jacob had fled he pursued after him in anger, but God came to him in a dream by night and said unto him, "Take heed that thou speak not to Jacob either good or bad" (xxxi, 24, 29), so they had only some sharp words and parted, having erected a heap of stones as a witness that neither would pass that place to do the other harm. Three different names are recorded as having been given to that witness, one of which is much used today (Mizpah), but surely much misunderstood (xxxi, 43-55).

Although no lesson has been assigned from chapter xxxii, the latter part of which is to me most profitable, the committee suggests the perusal of it, and surely no teacher will overlook it. How suggestive is the first verse, "And Jacob went on his way, and the angels of God met him!" Was ever such an unworthy man so wondrously cared for by God? He more than made up to him the loss of wages from Laban. He forbade Laban to harm him, and now, on his way to meet Esau, He sends a host of angels to still further assure him of heavenly protection, yet when he heard that Esau was coming to meet him he was greatly afraid and distressed (xxxii, 7). It would have been more honoring to God if he had said, "Though an host should encamp against me, my heart shall not fear" (Ps. xxvii, 3).

His prayer in verses 9 to 12 sounds well, most of it, for he acknowledges God's mercies and pleads His promises, but his plans following his prayer do look a little like his mother's plan of helping God out, though some might consider it showing his faith by his works. Yet the various droves of flocks and herds with which he hoped to appease Esau (verse 20) hardly look like faith working fearlessly.

The incident of xxxii, 24-31, also looks as if there was a great deal of Jacob instead of the Lord in the whole plan. It is with us all, as it was with him, most difficult to put off our shoes, as both Moses and Joshua were told to do, and let the Lord manage all in His own way. Yet the Lord is ever leading us to this that He may bless and use us more and more. This is a much abused story and is made by many to teach that Jacob prevailed by wrestling, but careful attention to the record will show that the Lord wrestled with Jacob to subdue him. He resisted until his thigh was put out of joint, and then in conscious weakness he clung to the Mighty One, saying, "I will not let Thee go except Thou bless me," so it was weakness clinging to strength that provailed "By his strength he had power with God-yea, he had power over the angel and prevailed" (Hos. xii, 3, 4). His conscious weakness was the secret of his power, even as the Lord said to Paul, "My strength is made perfect in weakness" (II Cor.

It was then that Jacob's name was changed to Israel, a name applied to him personally about fifty times and to his descendants 2,500 times. Jacob called the name of the place "Peniel," face of God, for he realized that he had been face to face with God, Him whom we know as the Son of God, for "no man hath seen God at any time. the only begotten Son, who is in the bosom of the Father, He hath declared Him" (John i, 18). He did not tell Jacob His name, but He did say to Manoah, the father of Samson, "It is wonderful" (Judg. xiii, 18). Jacob evidently did not expect that Esau would meet him peacefully and cordially and therefore took all possible care to provide for the safety of his household, putting the most loved ones hindermost and the handmaids and their children foremost, preceded by the various droves, saying. "If Esau come to the one company and smite it then the other company which is left shall escape" (xxxii, 8; xxxiii, 1, 2).

After all Jacob's fears (for he remembered well his wrong done to his brother twenty years before and the anger from which he had fled) how to meet him and embraced him and fell on his neck and kissed him, and they wept" (xxxiii, 4).

Thus God has many surprises for us when our fears are rebuked and we find forgiveness and peace and joy where the devil had told us we would find only trouble. There is forgiveness with the Lord for all who turn to Him, and He does abundantly pardon.

He, through Joseph, forgave all those cruel brethren. When first He met His disciples after they had all forsaken Him and fled He said: "Peace be unto you. * * * Why are ye troubled?" (Lu. xxiv, 36, 38.) Note carefully all the brotherly kindness of this chapter and think of Him who sticketh closer than a brother. In verses 9, 11, we note that when Esau did not wish to accept Jacob's gifts he said, "I have enough, my brother," and when Jacob pressed them upon him he also said, "I have enough." The expressions are different, however, and in Young's translation the former is, "I have abundance," and Jacob said, "I at a Junior Christian Endeavor society have all things." Jacob's word has a sacrifices one shift of his work every larger significance than Esau's.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For Week Beginning April 20, 1913.

Topic. - Favorite verses. - I. In the Psalms. - Ps. xix, 1-14. Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

In a study of favorite verses from certain books of the Bible no better selection could possibly be made to begin with than the Psalms, for no other book in the Scriptures has been regarded with as much special and personal affection as the Book of Psalms.

In them are beautifully described the innermost spiritual experiences of saints of God which awaken a responsive chord in the hearts of all the followers of the true God. "This book," says Calvin, "I am wont to style an anatomy of all parts of the soul, for no one will discover in himself a single feeling whereof the image is not reflected in this mirror. Nay, all griefs, sorrows, fears, doubts, hopes, cares. anxieties-in short all those tumultuous agitations wherewith the minds of men are wont to be tossed-the Holy Ghost hath here represented in life."

A book of such a character could not but make a deep impression upon the minds and hearts of men and provide all ages and classes of men with favorite selections made precious by some personal experience or association.

The first Psalm describes the happiness of the godly and the unhappiness of the ungodly and has ever been prized as an inspiration to godliness and a warning against ungodliness Who has not studied the Psalmists' picture of the blessed man who "walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly' * but whose "delight is in the law of the Lord" and whose prosperity and fruitfulness are likened "to a tree planted by the rivers of waters?" And who has not been deeply impressed with the contrasting picture of the ungodly who "are not so, but are like the chaff which the wind driveth away," with the inevitable conclusion that "the Lord knoweth the way of the righteous, but the way of the ungodly shall perish?"

The nineteenth Psalm speaks of the revelation of God in nature and in His law, and almost every verse in it is a favorite one. How familiar and how majestic the words, "The heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament showeth His handiwork. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night showeth knowledge. There is no speech nor language, and their voice is not heard." The testimony of the universe to God's existence and glory is a silent one and yet no less powerful and convincing. No nobler words could describe God in His law than those of the Psalmist here: "The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul; the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple. The statutes of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart; the commandment of the Lord is pure, enlightening the eyes."

The twenty-third Psalm is the Shepherd Psalm, illustrating the tender and loving care of God for His children by that of the shepherd for his sheep. Its verses are the favorite of all ageschildhood, youth, manhood and declining old age. "The Lord is my shep herd; I shall not want." All through the singular pronoun is used-"my," "I," "me"-from the first verse to the climax, declaring, "Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life, and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever." Precious words:

> Thou art as much His care As if nor man nor angel Lived on earth or in heaven.

It is said that the head of the Thames Iron Works company, that built the Thunderer, is a victim of chronic rheumatism. He is wheeled over the immense works and oversees everything that is being done.

LIQUOR TRAFFIC IS A CURSE

Federal Judge in West Virginia District Makes Scathing Arraignment of Saloonkeepers.

In a charge to the grand jury of the federal court in Wheeling, Judge Alston G. Dayton of the United States court for the northern district of West Virginia delivered a scathing arraignment of the liquor traffic. Among other things he said:

It has been my experience, in the seven years I have occupied this position on the bench, that violations of the internal revenue law are ten times as many as all the other offenses against the laws of the United States put together. Why? Because, fundamentally, the sale of intoxicating liquor is not a legitimate and honest business, and no man can be an honest man who engages in it. It isn't honest to destroy a man. It isn't honest to take away the bread and butter of helpless women and children. Gentlemen, it isn't honest for any man to come into your household and take the bright, strong, vigorous son and lead him on and on until he becomes a disgrace to you, an annoyance to his fellowmen and finally lands in a drunkard's grave. And yet there isn't a single saloonkeeper's saloon in this country that does not send every year its man to a drunkard's grave, and more than that; and when dishonest men once get into a business it is the hardest thing in the world to make

I want to say that there is not a very great deal of distinction between the man, in my deliberate judgment, who stands up, and for revenue purposes, votes to license the saloon, and the man who conducts the saloon. The good Christian people who go to the polls and vote for license are the power behind the throne; they are the power behind the saloon, because if they did not vote for license the fellow could not run his saloon. I tell you in this country, gentlemen, the cry comes up, as it came up to Cain, the blood of our fellowmen cries out from the ground to God Almighty; the victims of this traffic in every cemetery and every graveyard in this country cry out to God against us, you and me, who have permitted this traffice to exist so long. See to it that in this court all violations of the revenue laws are thoroughly investigated, and that, so far as we can see, we put ourselves on the side of utter and complete and absolute condemnation of the whole business, from start to fin-

BOY'S ANSWER WAS VERY APT

Particular Brand of Whisky Was Like Bridge Because It Leads to Poorhouse and Cemetery.

A liquor dealer in the town of Ayr, in Scotland, had a particular brand of whisky, which he wished to advertise. One day the circus was coming to town, and to add interest to its performances, and to advertise his whisky, he offered a prize for the best answer to the question, "Why his particular brand of whisky resembled a certain bridge across the water of Ayr?" Just over the bridge were some public institutions.

The successful competitor proved to be a poor boy, who, perhaps, knew from experience what he was speaking of, and his answer to the question, "Why the publican's whisky was like the bridge" was "Because it leads to the poorhouse, the lunatic asylum and the cemetery."

Water Colors.

Bodies of water take on different colors at different times. The intense blue that is sometimes noticed is often nothing more than the reflection of a clear sky from the surface of brown river water. But men that have studied the sea say that the water is bluest when it is most salty. They say that in such salty places as the Gulf of Mexico and the Mediterranean sea the blue is caused by the salty quality and not by the summer skies. The sea in the northern oceans is green rather than blue.

If you have ever visited a natatorium, where the water for swimming is held in a great white tiled tank, you must have noticed the color. When the surface of the water is untroubled the color is a deep green, except where direct sunlight strikes it and turns it to a brilliant olive. But let a swimmer once disturb the surface and seed little waves rippling in every direction, and the green disappears, to be replaced by a blue like that of the sky. Yet if you catch up some of this water in your hand you will find that it is colorless.

Constanza.

Constanza, which has sprung into fame as a city of refuge for the Daily Chronicle war correspondent in flight from the Turkish censor, is an important marine asset for Roumania. It was also a place of interest in Roman days. Trajan's wall ran down to the outskirts of the town, which had another name then, and afterward became Kustenji. But the office window will rather care to note that Ovid in his banishment used to seek his recreation in the society supplied by the few distinguished compatriots settled by the little harbor on the Black sea. It is not an unpleasant place just now, for the autumn lasts agreeably into the middle of November. Ovid's complaints of Tomi seem somewhat exaggerated.

Bad Men Feel Pain More.

Does a bad man feel pain more than a man who leads an honest life? It has been stated apropos the decision of the British house of commons to punish white slavers by flogging, that by a happy provision of nature the skin appears actually to become more sensitive as the moral sense becomes deadened. A doctor said that as a rule those who are criminally inclined bear pain or bodily suffering of any kind extremely badly. Men who are quite hardened on the moral side of their character seem to get more self-conscious about their physical feelings than ordinary men do. A man who is morally lax leads a loose life and destroys his nervous system. He feels pain much more acutely than a man of average temperate habits and a clean conscience.

STARCH SAID TO SPOIL LINEN

Best to Iron It Damp, Declares an Autority-Good Way to Keep the Centerpieces Smooth.

Do not starch any linen. If you wish to have it look at its best, iron it damp, says Harper's Bazar. Starch ruins linen. Hang all sheets, table cloths and towels so that the weight when wet, will come on the lengthwise threads, which are the stronger Otherwise, the linen will show an in clination to split along the folds. Li. en yellowed by long lying may be whitened by adding kerosene to the spoon to a gallon of water is the cor rect proporiton. After tablecloths are folded lengthwise they may be kept smooth by rolling on pastboard mailing tubes. A ribbon may be run through the tube and tied first across the cloth, and then around the tube in two places, to keep the ends in place This is a good way to keep linen centerpieces smooth. If, however, the rolling is done when the linen is still damp, the centerpieces will continue to roll as they lie on the table.
