

BRIEF NEWS NOTES OF GENERAL INTEREST.

Gleaned from the County and State and our Exchanges.

The Lutheran congregation at Manchester has decided to build a new church, the cost of which will be about $15,000. The plans have been adopted, and work will likely commence soon.

A strike of Conductors on 48 Eastern railroads will likely go into effect on July 1, unless demands are agreed to for an increase of from 15 to 20 per cent in wages. A vote will be taken in June, and if it is favorable the strike will be ordered.

Fully 8000 persons attended the annual meeting of the "old order" German Baptist Brethren, on the farm of E. B. Huffman, in Roanoke county, Va., near Hanging Rock, last Sunday. The meetings lasted four days and were held in a large tent.

The year's harvest of automobile fatalities and serious accidents has commenced at a lively rate. Hardly a single issue of any city daily can be read without a number of these disasters appearing. High speed, and "joy riding" are responsible for most of the accidents.

Another violent storm visited Nebraska, on Wednesday, killing and injuring a considerable number of people, and devastating wide areas. The towns of Tomaro, Lushon, Grafton and McCool Junction are reported practically wiped out. Omaha again suffered considerable loss.

The Jury reform bill, in the interest of which President Wilson went specially to New Jersey to put through, was defeated in the state Senate. The Democrats would not vote for the Republican bill, and the Republicans would not vote for the Democratic bill, and neither side could put through a bill without help from the other.

A very warm meeting of the Bull Moose city committee was held on Wednesday evening, when the amalgamation proposition came up for consideration. For about two hours the debate, pro and con, waxed hot. It is said that 8 of the 19 present favored amalgamation, and at the close the following resolution was passed: "That the city committee stand pat on Progressivism and any member who wishes to go to the Republican party shall resign."

Barely escaping with their lives, Mr. and Mrs. I. J. Valentine, of Rocky Ridge, managed to flee from their burning home in their nightclothes early Thursday morning. The fire had started in a poultry remedy plant Mr. Valentine conducts near his home, and had communicated with the house. Both buildings and their contents were lost. Nearly 8,000 pounds of poultry powders burned. The loss will be about $9,000. The buildings were owned by Mr. Harman, of Taneytown.

In what is believed to have been an attempt of Albert Patton and Edward Keller to destroy the magazine of the Consolidation Coal Company at Eckart, nine miles above Cumberland and the towns of Eckart and Frostburg early Wednesday morning, the two men were blown to pieces, nearly every house in Eckart was damaged, windows were broken in Frostburg and Clarysville and the shock of the explosion was felt 50 miles away. In all 1700 pounds of dynamite and 60 cans of giant powder were set off.

Isaac Lobe Straus, former Attorney-General of Maryland, and one of the candidates to succeed Senator John Walter Smith, published a full page open letter to President Wilson, in last Saturday's American, protesting against the President's interference in Maryland politics, through his urging the candidacy of Wm. L. Marbury for the position. He recites the fact that through two telegrams he tried to have the President disavow the openly reported favoritism of himself for Mr. Marbury, and closes a long dissertation on the proprieties involved by asking on what grounds he injects his personal influence in the case.

Why Not Stop Selling Cigarettes?

It seems to us that retail dealers in cigarettes might rise to the height of strictly obeying the cigarette law of the state. In fact, we think the dealers of our town should go together and agree not to sell cigarettes to anybody. Such an act would reflect nothing but credit on them, and be an evidence that money-making is not the sole object of their being in business. Business men should not want to profit through the sale of anything injurious to the health of anybody, especially to the young. Why not stop buying the little "stinkers" as stock in trade?

Legislation against cigarettes is not merely prejudice. Those who have investigated the subject scientifically, know the harmfulness of the cigarette habit, without question of doubt. Smoking of any kind, is bad enough, but the very worst form is the cigarette.

Pennsylvania has just passed, and Governor Tener has signed the Thompson bill prohibiting the sale or gift of cigarettes or cigarette papers to persons less than 21 years of age. Such sale is made punishable by a fine of from $100 to $300. A minor in possession of cigarettes is required to tell where they were obtained. Refusal to do so is made a misdemeanor. If the offender is over 16 years the penalty is a fine of $5 or imprisonment for five days. If under 16 years the juvenile court is to take charge.

Will not Taneytown dealers enter into a signed agreement to discontinue the sale of cigarettes after a certain date—say July 1? It seems to us that they owe this to the parents who are their heaviest patrons in business.

Friedmann Cure for Consumption "Found Wanting."

Washington, May 9.—"We are in a position to state that the effects thus far observed do not justify that confidence in the remedy which has been inspired by widespread publicity."

In one sentence this is the judgment at the present moment of the United States Public Health Service as to the value of the Friedmann anti-tuberculosis turtle serum. It was expressed by Dr. John F. Anderson, one of the surgeons whom the Public Health Service assigned to investigate and report on the German physician's discovery, in a report read before the National Association for the Prevention and Cure of Tuberculosis in session here.

The report was the first formal word of the Health Service. It was signed by Dr. Anderson's colleague in the investigation of the Friedmann treatment, Dr. A. M. Stinson.

The report was a frank admission that beyond the discovery that the Friedmann bacillus is an acid fast organism, "having properties quite different from those of any other tubercle bacilli," no advance has been made in the Government's investigation of the "cure."

"We believe at the present time," Dr. Anderson declared, "that we are not in a position to express an opinion based on the present condition of the patients under observation. The disease for which the remedy is used is prolonged, and is characterized by periods of advancement and retrogression; it is also one in which psychic influences are a powerful factor. Time is therefore necessary in order to properly evaluate the effect of the therapeutic measures."

A BIT OF HISTORY ON JEWISH SUFFRAGE.

Thomas Kennedy and William P. Farquhar, Leading Spirits.

The following paragraph, with interesting comments, have been sent us by Jos. W. Farquhar, our valued correspondent at Union Bridge:

Hagerstown, Md., May 3.—Mrs. James Findlay has purchased a lot in Rose Hill cemetery, this city, in which the bones of her grandfather, Thomas Kennedy, the statesman poet, famous as the author of the law giving Jews the right of suffrage in Maryland, will be reinterred, along with those of Kennedy's wife and daughter. Kennedy and his family were buried in the rear of the First Christian Church. A movement has been started among the Jews in Maryland, to erect a monument in memory of Kennedy in Rose Hill Cemetery.

The above paragraph, taken from the Baltimore Sun of May 4th., speaks of Thomas Kennedy the statesman-poet, as the author of the law giving Jews the right of suffrage in Maryland, from which they had previously been debarred.

William P. Farquhar, at that time a resident of Union Bridge, and a member of the Maryland House of Delegates from Frederick County, was one of the most active supporters of the law during its consideration by the Legislature. He and Kennedy were bon-vivant companions and close friends. He would therefore have naturally felt a desire that Mr. Kennedy should succeed in his attempt to have the law passed. But Mr. Farquhar was a firm believer in the justice of the cause, and that the discrimination against the Jews was unjust and intolerable. He gave a firm support to the measure and being a man who was popular among all classes, his assistance was valuable.

In a conversation with my father, Joel Farquhar, after his return from Annapolis, he said that the night after the passage of the enfranchisement bill through both branches of the legislature, and it only needed the signature of the Governor to make it a law of Maryland when he retired to bed, he noticed a slip of paper on his pillow on which were the words, "Look beneath." He raised the pillow and there lay a splendid gold watch and chain which had evidently been placed there by order of some generous Jew who wished thus to reward him for the work he had done for his people during the sessions of the Legislature.

It appears from the paragraph which I send that the grave of Kennedy can be distinguished; that of William P. Farquhar cannot be located. He was buried in a family graveyard, near Union Bridge, but the property on which it was located has frequently changed owners. The marble slab at his grave has been removed and the plot has done the rest. Door to Virtue Lodge, of Westminster A. F. & A. M., which was organized near this town, and of which he was a charter member, has tried in vain to locate his grave.

In 1826, while Mr. Farquhar was a member of the legislature, the Marquis De Lafayette made his famous tour of the United States, and of course visited Annapolis. The Legislature was in session and it gave a reception to Lafayette.

Thomas Kennedy, the statesman-poet wrote a "Welcome" for the occasion which was set to music and was sung by Mr. Farquhar as Lafayette entered the Chamber. Only four lines of the poem which I have often heard recited by my father are remembered.

Welcome, welcome Lafayette
We never shall forget;
Friend of man we love thee yet,
Friend of Liberty.

Probably the entire poem has been preserved in the records of the Legislature at Annapolis and some newspaper correspondent would do a favor to the people by bringing it out of its hiding place and allowing them to read the lines of a Maryland Poet, of whom probably but few have any knowledge. J. W. F.

The work contains a vast amount of directorial and biographical information, and we are glad to have it as part of our office equipment.

"The Conservation of the Boy."

(For the RECORD.)

On Tuesday evening, May 13, there was a new and an unusual feature introduced into the proceedings of the Taneytown Grange meeting, in the form of a surprise to the Lecturer of the Grange, which was introduced by B. O. Slonaker. We took notice of a slight commotion around the hall and ante-room, and being averse to ask questions we could only wait and see. When those who had planned the surprise were ready, the door was opened and Rev. Dr. Stangle, Mrs. Stangle and their young son were ushered into the hall. Their object could no longer be concealed, and Mr. Slonaker explained that Dr. Stangle was there to take his place on the program.

Dr. Stangle was at once introduced and took up as his subject "The Conservation of the Boy." His appeal to fathers and mothers was a mastery one, and he fairly analyzed the boy from the cradle to the grave, showing his worth and possibilities for good if guided and trained in the way in which he should go. He emphasized the importance of developing a perfect man, both physically and mentally, by combining brain and brawn, and bringing them both into play. He described his experience with the dens of vice in the cities, and that it was no unusual thing for men to have their lives threatened in trying to suppress them.

He also told of the amount of money spent in the cities in the work of reforming the unfortunate, and the question was asked—Why not keep our young people away from temptations by making the conditions on the farm so pleasant and profitable that they would not desire to go to the towns and cities? The impressions were created that this could be done, and the fact was greatly deplored that the people as a rule were to a great extent entirely blind to their obligations in this matter.

Mrs. Stangle also made some appropriate remarks. And Mrs. Stangle, after receiving the hearty thanks of the Grange and an invitation to repeat their visits from time to time, retired, and the regular business of the Grange was resumed, a recess having been declared in order to receive them. On every side we heard expressions of satisfaction and approval of the mastery manner in which the subject was handled.

The G. O. P. Harmony Meeting.

A meeting of Republican Senators, Congressmen and other party leaders, the most of them having "Progressive" leanings, was held in Chicago on Saturday and Monday last, the object being to aid in bringing about a reunion of the two wings of the party. Governor Hadley of Mo., and Senators Cummins and Borah were the leading spirits.

A committee composed of Robert Luce, former Lieutenant-Governor of Massachusetts; Senator Borah, Senator Kenyon of Iowa, W. F. James, State Senator of Michigan, and James A. Troutman, State Senator of Kansas, was appointed to draw up a statement expressing the sentiment of the conference. This committee drew up the following, and it was adopted.

"At an informal conference of Republicans from 11 States held at Chicago May 12, 1913, it was voted that it be submitted to the National Republican Committee as the opinion of those present that a national convention of the party should be held this year at as early a date as may be practicable, for the purpose of considering the expediency of changing the basis of representation in future conventions so that the delegates shall proportionately represent Republican voters and not general population, to the end that the will of the members of the party may be more accurately determined; also for the purpose of changing the rules relating to delegates and members of the National Committee, so that the primary election laws of the various States shall be recognized and have full force; and also for the purpose of making such other changes in the methods of conducting national conventions and campaigns as shall conduce to giving the utmost possible effect to the principles and policies of the party.

"It was further the opinion that such a convention might properly and usefully take any other action desirable to reunite the party and to give assurance that it stands for constructive and progressive activities in the affairs of government to the end that the common welfare may be advanced.

Missing Verses of Bible Discovered.

London, May 14.—Some long-missing verses of the New Testament are included in the manuscripts of the gospels discovered in Egypt six years ago, and purchased by Charles L. Freer, of Detroit, Mich., according to a study made of the Freer manuscripts.

A facsimile of the manuscripts has been presented to the British Museum by the University of Michigan, to which Mr. Freer assigned the task of publication, and, according to the London Times study there have been found in the gospel of St. Mark several verses which occur in no other known manuscript of the New Testament, although they were known to St. Jerome, who quotes part of them.

In the Freer manuscript, after the passage in which it is said that Jesus upbraided his disciples for their unbelief, the text continues, as follows:

"And they excused themselves, saying that this age of lawlessness and unbelief is under Satan, who, through the agency of unclean spirits, suffers not the true power of God to be apprehended.

"For the cause, they say unto Christ, reveal now at once Thy righteousness.

"And Christ said unto them, the limit of the years of the powers of Satan is (not) fulfilled, but it draweth near. (The text here and elsewhere is corrupt.)

"For the sake of those that have sinned was I given up unto death, that they may return unto the truth and sin no more, but may inherit the spiritual and incorruptible glory of righteousness in heaven."

Care of Colored Tubercular Cases.

Maryland has a sanatorium for its tubercular white residents, but no place in which the tubercular colored may be cared for and restrained from spreading disease. It is high time the public is awakened to the extent to which one colored family in which there is tuberculosis can infect a whole community, and followed up such awakening by demanding that it be safeguarded against this widespread danger.

In this State, and particularly in country districts, housekeepers are largely dependent upon colored help. Yet how many inquire into the home surroundings of the domestics who come to the backdoor asking for a place. On the contrary, they are put right to work, doing the cooking, the housecleaning, the washing and ironing, minding the baby and the other children, and coming into close daily contact with the whole family. No one takes the trouble to see what sort of homes these domestics come from in the morning and return to at night.

Not only colored women, but colored men, too, work about the place, handling food products, driving the family carriage, tending the garden and the stock, doing a number of tasks, in fact, that make it highly important for them to be healthy and their clothing free from germs. But do employers inquire what sort of places they stay in when they are not at work?

The Maryland Children's Aid Society has come across a case in one county that is typical of conditions throughout the counties—conditions that will exist so long as the State is without a place where tubercular colored people may be placed for the protection of the community.

In this case, the tubercular patient is a small colored girl who lives in a little house with relatives. There are four adults in that house, two men and two women, three of them working in families, the other in a laundry. The child is in the last stages of tuberculosis, yet every four people are in contact with her every night. Two other members of the household have died of the disease, and the family seems to have no idea about taking precautions for their own protection and that of the people for whom they work.

There is no place for the tubercular colored, so the suffering child will have to stay in that little home, throwing off battalions of germs to go forth and do their dread work. And her relatives will continue to leave that disease-laden atmosphere each morning to work among the unsuspecting white folk of the community.

Here is a danger right in our very midst. The only solution is a sanatorium for the tubercular colored people, for their shelter and the protection of the community. The matter should be urged upon the next Legislature, but the public will have to rouse out of its present apathy and work for their own protection or the tubercular colored will stay right in the congested neighborhoods in which they now live, infecting those who leave these neighborhoods to labor among the white.

The Taneytown State Road.

THE RECORD has had numerous inquiries as to when work would be commenced on the Taneytown end of the new state road, and in order to secure definite information, we wrote to the State Road Commission. The reply received says: "This contract calls for completion by July 15, 1913, and as this is a very reliable firm, I am sure they will complete it on time." Signed O. E. WELLER, chairman.

Injury to Gardens by Frost.

Considerable damage to garden vegetables, and tender vegetation generally, was caused by frosts last Saturday and Sunday nights. Low lying spots, and especially those near water-courses, sustained the greatest damage. Beans, tomatoes, strawberries and grapes suffered most, while at places corn and potatoes were badly nipped. The complete destruction of vegetables was prevented by the dryness of the ground, and considerable wind.

The tobacco crop in the southern part of the county has been practically ruined, the weather all Spring being unfavorable to it, and the frost coming along about finished it.

On the eastern shore, the loss to tomatoes and peas will run into the thousands of dollars, as whole fields were destroyed, while potatoes and corn were generally set back about ten days in growth.

IN SAD BUT LOVING REMEMBRANCE

Of our darling baby, Gorma Altine Dayhoff, who died April 8, 1913.

We have no baby now; we are weeping;
She is with Christ a sleeping;
We are weeping, sad and lonely,
For our baby dear.

How home was a pleasure when our baby was here;
Now she is torn from hearts that loved her;
For we took her in his arms
To dwell with him on high.

Yet again we'll meet our baby,
When the day of life is fled;
When in heaven we'll meet our baby,
Where no parting tears are shed.
By her loving Parents.

Farewell, farewell, little sister dear;
Life is lonely without you here;
Oh, may we meet in heaven above,
Where all is joy and peace and love.

Little darling, how we miss you,
None but us can ever tell;
For your little form is sweet,
In the home you used to dwell.
By her loving Sisters and Brothers.
