The Roosevelt Movement Quiet.

Send to us Your Opinions on Public Questions.

Chicago, March 22.—Considerable in-vestigation fails to disclose any systematic effort to promote the candidacy of Theodore Roosevelt for the Republican presi-dential nomination, but there are many little signs of work going on under the surface. The Roosevelt movement, if there is anything that properly can be so desig-nated, is a quiet one and seems designed to show to the public in an unostentatious way the qualifications of the man for the place. Those who have in the past cham-pioned Roosevelt so. pronouncedly have little to say. Their attitude reminds one of the typical member of the Masonic or-der who never solicits a friend to join the order, but leaves him to understand that it is the best thing of its sort in existence. Leading men not heretofore counted among the colonel's followers are non-committal, but expectant and seemingly in a mood where they could be led over into his camp with comparatively little effort. There is also a certain air of helplessness among persons who commonly have distinct opinions and purposes, as if the country were faced by problems which require extraordinary intelligence.

Wilkinson For Congress.

Lloyd Wilkinson, a member of Balti-more's delegation in the House of Dele-gates, announced on Tuesday, that he will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in this Second District. There are other candidates spoken of, but it is likely that the way will be cleared for a contest between Mr. Wilkinson and the present incumbent, Hon. J. Fred. C. Talbott. Wilkinson is said to have the backing Wilkinson is said to have the backing of Senator Lee's friends, and will give Mr. Talbott a hard chase for the nomi-nation. Besides, Mr. Talbott is regarded by many as having been there long enough, and that he should stand aside and give the younger men of the party a chance.

The Mortgage Tax Question.

As a development in the question of the taxation of mortgages, it now ap-pears that the Banks holding mortgages, were exempt from the provisions of the were exempt from the provisions of the old law, possibly on the ground that it was unconstitutional, or a "double tax," as the Banks already pay a "franchise" tax. It is only fair to say that the RECORD has been, and is, in favor only of the replace-ment of the operation of the old law, and the return of the about $5,000 revenue lost to the county by the repeal of the mortgage tax law. Gleaned from the County and State Mrs. Rose C. Foreman was confirmed as Postmaster at Emmitsburg, on Mon-day, on the recommendation of Senator John Walter Smith.

lost to the county by the repeal of the mortgage tax law. The Record did not know that the Banks were exempt, but supposed that every mortgage revenue was taxed with-out regard to the holder of the mortgage. As the old law, in its operation, worked satisfactorily, our arguments were all directed toward its re-enactment. We would not favor the widening of the scope of the old law—our financial wisdom does erstown, to organize a troop of Colored Cavalry, for service in Mexico, should the war department approve of the plan. ## FEARS FOR AMERICAN FORCES IN MEXICO. .....

Said to be Cut off from Communicating with the U.S.

The reports from Mexico are extremely unsatisfactory; or at least sufficient to cause grave fears for the American force n pursuit of Villa. It is reported that the lines of telegraphic communication with the U. S. have been cut by Mexicans, and that the wireless outfit of the Americans is not working. It is also feared that there will be a general upris-ing of Mexicans against the United States.

Gen. Luis Herrera, until recently Carranza's military governor of Chihuahua, has renounced Carranza and allied himself in favor of villa, taking the field with 2000 troops, is one of the late re-ports. It is believed that Carranza himelf is anxious to avoid a break with the S., but that he is unable to control the forces under him.

No word has been received from Gen. Pershing for four days, is the report from Gen. Funston. The war department at Washington is greatly worried over the situation and its conflicting rumors. The report of Herrara's revolt is both affirmed and denied.

..... Big Advance in Cost of Paper.

no "fairy story" we have abundant cause to know from recent purchases. Prices have been gradually advancing by slight steps, for the past year, but during the past month the advance has been by big steps, and the firm from which we purchase the paper on which the RECORD is printed, says "the worst is yet to come." We give a few instances in our own experience

A certain tinted cap paper that we used to buy at 8c per pound, but which has been 9c for the past year, is now 15 dc per pound.

A machine finish white book paper, such as we use for pamphlets and like work, that has been costing us $3.15 a ream, cost us last week on a shipment

$4.55 a ream. A grade of white cap paper that had previously advanced from 9c to 10c a pound, is now 134c a pound. All Bond papers have advanced fully

3c a pound. Envelopes have advanced from 25c to

50c per 1000, and still going. The paper on which the RLCORD is printed, for which we have been paying 4c a pound, or $2.60 a ream, we placed an order last week at 5½c a pound, or $3.58 a ream, and was advised to make order for 5000 pounds to get it at that price, and the quality is not guaranteed to be as good as before. Even if there is no further advance, this means about $200.00 added to the cost of publishing the RECORD one year, without counting the advance in ink, gasoline, etc.

State House, Annapolis, March 22. No increase in the state tax rate, which is 32<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> cents for the year 1916, is in sight if the pending bills providing for in-creases in the state's revenues becomes laws. If these bills fall by the wayside, there will be pruning of appropriations to hospitals, educational, charitable and other institutions supported wholly, or in part, by the state to meet the losses through failure to enact the pending bills. The only reason for an increase in the tax rate lies in the proposed bond issues for which provision must be made for in-terest and for sinking fund requirements. The total bond issues will be $4,500,000 -$2,500,000 for roads and $2,000,000 with which to meet the deficit in the State Treasury. Beyond this sum Gov. Harrington is unwilling to go. This

A delegation of twenty men from Key-mar and vicinity, interested in constructing a good pike from Keymar to Taneytown, called on the County Commission-ers, on Monday, and secured from the Commissioners the promise to pay toward the cost of such a road $2.00 for every $1.00 subscribed by individuals, with the understanding that the first two payments be made April and Sept. 1, 1917, and the last two April and Sept. 1, 1918.

William James Heaps A Candidate.

As was mentioned as a rumor in the RECORD a few weeks ago, William James Heaps, of Baltimore, has announced him self as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Second District. The American says of the announcement:

"In entering the fight, Mr. Heaps, who is regarded as a most loyal and active Republican and citizen, states that he is acting in response to urgent and insistent requests of citizens residing in all parts of the Second legislative district.

"In the announcement the candidate pledges to make the same vigorous campaign on Republican principles and doc-trines that has characterized his addresses e made April and Sept. 1, 1917, and the st two April and Sept. 1, 1918. A common question among neighbors in the fall is, "Are you ready for winter?" We ask, "Are you ready for Spring?" because some day soon the busy season will open with a rush and there will be forty things that need doing at once.

We name a few of them just by way of reminder: Oiling and repairing the har-ness; repairing, oiling and painting tools and machinery; making improvements in barn, stables, chicken houses, etc.; ordering fertilizers, seeds, trees and plants; testing the seed corn: getting the material for treating potato seed for scab, and oats or smut; trimming fruit trees and spraying for scale, etc.; laying in a supply of fuel for the cook stove; repairing fences, gates and walks. These are a few of the things that need attention, some of them on every farm, and by the time you have these attended to, we can think of something else. - Pennsylvania Farmer.

PROCEEDINGS in the legislature, from most of the members themselves will not be able to keep track of things, and this others who would like to help conserve is just what those on the "inside" want. the supply of paper-making stock. A large number of very important bills have been held back, and no doubt for the very purpose of "mixing things up" so as to obscure them, or for the purpose of killing bills without chance of outside time rid themselves of a more or less interference.

IF MEXICO could be freed from "booze," the troubles there would settle down much sooner than they will under present conditions. The Mexican temperament is peppery and unpeaceful at best, as well as only partly civilized, and liquors simply make natural conditions twice as bad as they would otherwise be. Cut off "booze" and ammunition from crossing the border from the United States into Mexico, and the backbone of revolution will be broken.

.... Government vs. Private Business.

To the average business man who thinks seriously of the question at all, the great departments of our government are managed on a plan wholly in conflict with the management of the great private enterprises of this country, and in fact contrary to the management that usually prevails in even our smaller business concerns that are carefully and successfully conducted, and the conclusion is strong that political methods are very far from being the correct business methods, if the greatest efficiency and the best results are desired.

For instance, with each change of administration, the heads of the War, Navy, Treasury and Postoffice Departments are changed. Each President makes his own Cabinet, or official family, and it is made largely on personal and political consid-single one of his official family; but to make a new deal all around, every four years, is simply playing at government under very foolish rules, and the wonder of it is that we have heretofore escaped so luckily. As long as we are left to manage our own affairs without serious outside trouble, the plan works because it is our plan, but it would not work so well if we were one of the countries of Europe at present.

The Old Paper Question.

The saving and utilization of old paper. that is becoming such a desirable thing, is nevertheless one difficult of performance, for the reason that old paper is very bulky for its weight, and that it must necessarily be shipped to a market, baled, and in large quantities, in order to make the business pay, and this would also need to be done with but small cost for its gathering together.

At the present offered price of 50c per 100 lbs, which is an advance of about 12c per 100, there is not much inducement to the average person to collect and ship the paper, and likely pay the fright on it to the purchaser. Perhaps it might pay persons to establish a balery and receive small lots so as to allow a profit to cover baling and shipping, but we doubt it. this on, will be so rapid that even the However, this is largely a question for as such. the junk dealers, though it appeals to

> No doubt those who have a large accumulation of magazines and newspapers, can, by making inquiry, find a market for them near home, and at the same worthless and in-the-way accumulation. Besides, prices may still advance so as to make the product worth while hunting up, the same as rags and other waste, commonly called "junk." .....

A Foolish Business Custom.

Business men do a good many feolish things-things for which they receive neither profit nor credit-and among these is selling "stock on hand, at old prices" when a sharp advance has been made in cost. There is no more reason why a tradesman should sell his stock at [ less than the market price, because he "had it on hand," any more than a Presidential candidate, but these extracts miles. farmer should refuse to take a higher market price for his wheat, because he had that "on hand" before the rise.

The man with a stock of goods of any compelled to follow a falling market. goods at a high price, after the price has fallen. By giving away his advantage in the one case, and taking his loss in the other, he stands to lose at both ends, and it is simply foolishness on his part for him to offer such a proposition.

And yet, it is commonly done, by the retailer in a spirit of generosity-but a spirit of generosity that he can't afford. Retailers are not, as a rule, able to buy goods that way. Selling prices-wholesale-are apt to be "market" prices. Most catalogues and bill heads contain Commonwealth ought to array itself. The the sentence-"Prices subject to change without notice," and prices are changed daily, when necessary, just the same as prices for grain are changed.

The New "Drv" Bill.

Here is what will happen to the "wet' units that may vote "dry," at the election this Fall. No doubt these provisions 'fear and trembling,'' in the sections interested, but it is equally probable that there are others not at all afraid. "On and after the first day of May, 1918, it shall be unlawful for any person, persons, social club, firm or corporation to manufacture for sale, sell or purchase for sale, transport for sale, dispense or otherwise dispose of any alcoholic, spirituous, vinous, fermented, distilled or malt liquors or intoxicating bitters or liquid mixtures or preparations, whether pat-ented or not, which will produce intoxication, within this state, except for medicinal, pharmaceutical, scientific, sacramental or mechanical purposes, as may be allowed under the provisions of such acts as the General Assembly of Maryland shall pass at its regular session held next after the date of such election or any subsequent session allowing such sale for such purposes only. And any person, persons, social club, firm or corporation manufacturing, selling, trans-porting, dispensing or disposing of any alcoholic, spirituous, vinous, fermented distilled or malt liquors shall be liable for all the penalties now or hereafter prescribed for manufacturing, selling, dis-pensing or disposing of alcoholic, spirit-uous, vinous, fermented, distilled, malt and intoxicating liquors without a license and any place used for purposes in viola-tion of this section, such use is hereby declared a nuisance and shall be abated

> ..... An Interesting Comparison.

The following sections of an editorial in last Saturday's Philadelphia Ledger, almost compel one to draw comparisons between the expressions of this paper, and those of our own Baltimore papers. It would seem strange to read in any of the latter, that it is "to the credit" of anybody to "espouse with zeal the cause of local option," or that in such a case "there is no manner of doubt on which side the good citizenship of the Commonwealth ought to array itself," or that "the moral sense of the community revolts against the domination of politics by influences which emanate from the barroom."

The editorial referred to is combined with the general political situation as it refers to the possible control of the Pennsylvania delegation, as well as the personal fitness of Gov. Brumbaugh as a are sufficient to show the attitude of the Ledger as being favorable to the local option movement.

"It is altogether to the credit of Govkind to sell, should have the advantage of a rising market, for he is sure to be compelled to follow a falling market. He can not possibly continue to sell his port in his endeavor, they have made an exceedingly adroit move. On such an issue as this the Governor will have the assistance of that large element among the voters who look upon the liquor question as a moral issue, as well as those who believe that each separate community or unit should possess a larger meas-ure of self-government than they at present enjoy. Should it come about that the Republicans of Pennsylvania are compelled to divide as proliquor and antiliquor advocates, there is no manner of doubt on which side the good citizenship of the

Granite Mountain Will Commemorate Confederacy

Stone Mountain, a great naked dome of light-gray granite, an hour by motor have already been read by many with from Atlanta, will possibly be transformed into a colossal monument commemorative of the sacrifice and military endeavors made by the South during the Civil War. In the upper portion of the mountain's precipitous face it is expected to chisel a frieze representative of the once formidable army of the Confederacy. A handsome page view in the April Popular Mechanics Magazine shows how this stupendous piece of sculpturing will be executed

> The financing of this enterprise is in the hands of the Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial Association, which is headed by the honorary president of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. It is estimated that $2,000,000 will be sufficient to carry out the undertaking, and this sum is to be raised by subscription in the South. The entire facade of the mountain, enough of its crest to preserve its sky-line, and an 80-acre tract at the base which will be developed into a park, have been donated for the memorial. This property will remain under the custodianship of the women, although virtually conveyed to the state.

> One of America's foremost sculptors has been chosen to execute the work. His composition represents an army divided in two wings, mounted and afoot, following the contour of the mountain. Pressing over the crest and keeping to its right will be the main body composed of cavalry, infantry, and artillery. At one side of this, rounding the monolith, will appear the other force headed by a brilliant group of horsemen consisting of the figures of Lee, Stonewall Jackson, "Jeb" Stewart, the Johnstons, and probably other great southern leaders of the '60's. This granite army, carved in full relief, will extend across the side of the great rock for roughly 2,000 feet. The horsemen will doubtless average between 45 and 50 feet in height, although these and the former figures are merely approximate estimates. There will be altogether some 1,200 separate portraits, each uniformed in the gray of the granite. It is possible that nearly all of these figures will represent men who actually fought for the South. The work will thus be of sufficient size to be visible a distance of several erations, ability and special fitness coming in as about a third consideration; and it is not unusual for one of these great departments to have two new heads within one term of four years, as is at present true with reference to the war department, the present incumbent being a personal friend of the President, and recently Mayor of Cleveland.

On all grounds of business rule, these heads should be men of long service and experience in the work of their departments. How can it be demonstrated, for instance, that a private citizen, who may have been a Governor of a state, cr a successful lawyer, can at once drop his occupation and step in to at once direct the affairs of the Army as it should be directed during a time of war? Every business rule demands that such a man should have served an apprenticeship, and be named because of his special equipment for the place.

The full list of our present Secretaries of Departments-with the exception of Secretary of State, whose appointment was practically compelled by existing need-can be gone over, and no special qualifications based on previous service, can be found to seriously justify their appointment; and this has been equally as true of past administrations, but is it what we term "good business sense ?"

The War and Navy departments, especially, should have men at the head of them that are more than good business men and lawyers. In times of peace, even, when officialdom can safely parade itself and bask in honors, there is always needed a preparation for war-for emergencies-for keeping our safety really safe, not merely playing with war and navy games for amusement and show; and all of this requires serious "know how."

It is fortunately true that the real organization of both army and navy is on a much better basis; and it is true that connected with each are experts who do understand the business, but the fact remains that the heads may be inexpert and largely incompetent, and that this fact is bound to have a bad effect on the organization itself. Both initiative and development demand that the head of a department should be its inspirational and expert source of strength, and for this one reason we think that actual and thorough service within the army and navy should be an essential pre-requisite to appointment to these positions. It is less dangerous to pick a President, because of his political availability, than Advertisement.

Five Candidates for Senator.

There will be a warm contest at the primaries, in May, for the nomination for U. S. Senator, in both parties. The Democrats have three candidates; present Senator Blair Lee, who wants to succeed himself; Congressman David J. Lewis, who has been looking toward promotion for some time, and William Cabell Bruce, of Baltimore, who is a free-lance candidate with a good strong following.

Senator Lee is supposed to have the support of Mayor Preston, and the following that is thereby represented, and is also supposed to be antagonized by Senator Smith. Mr. Lewis has his main strength in the rural districts, and is said to be regarded as impossible by the kidglove classes. It will be interesting to see where the Smith influence will gowhether to Lewis, or Bruce-and Governor Harrington will likely have an interest in the triangular battle.

The Republicans have Dr. Joseph I. France, who is the candidate, largely of the so-called "old line" leaders; and Ex-Gov. Goldsborough, who made some friends-also some enemies-as Governor. The fight between the two will be a hot one, and both will play for support from the "progressive" element.

The fight between the two is pretty sure to be a warm one in the city, and every county in the state, as the shining tion and success of the party rests in their dictums, will likely line up everywhere and try to educate the masses as to how to use the privilege (not to say expensive luxury) of the direct primary. Just now, the lining-up in Carroll county is not quite clear on either side, but it is bound to show up very soonperhaps sooner on the Republican than the Democratic side. -.....

necessity break them after they have reached maturity. It is not a specially hard job to break a stallion to harness. They are seldom afraid. It must always be remembered that the stallion, even though big, is usually soft and must be gradually toughened to work. He should be given only a few hours of light work each day for several months.

During the season when not used for breeding purposes, the stallion, after becoming hardened to it, can do a full day's work and at least half a day's work during the breeding season. A successful horseman of Kansas who always works his stallions uses a jockey stick on them when they are in the harness, one end being fastened to the bit of the horse and the other to the hames of the harness on the other horse.

The stallion at work should be fed the same as other work horses are fed. They should not have too much hay. The amount of grain to feed will vary, of course, with the work the horse is doing and his general condition. He should not be permitted to run down in flesh, but corn or Kaffir should not be used as the exclusive grain ration. Bran is always a valuable supplement to these grains, and it is always well to feed some oats if they are not too expensive.

Treatment For Thrush.

Thrush is caused by filth and wet in the stable. Treatment: Cut away loose or underrun horn of the frog, and then perfectly clense, including the cleft of the frog, says the Farm Journal. Then swab with a 1.500 solution of corrosive sublimate, and when dry pack the cleft and on each side of it with a mixture of equal parts of calomel, subnitrate of bismuth and boric acid, held in place by oakum or absorbent cotton packed on top. Renew the dressing once daily. Keep the stall clean and dry, and bed with shavings or sawdust. Work or abundantly exercise the horse every day. Feed lightly. Use the corrosive sublimate solution again if recovery is slow.

When Horses Knuckle Over.

Horses tend to knuckle over when tired from overdriving, or it may be due to lack of proper shoeing or to standing idle on a board floor. Drive or work the horse lightly every day. Allow him a box stall in the stable. Have him shod once a month. Hand rub the joints and back tendons of the weak legs each time he comes into the stable, and then snugly bandage with flannel.-Farm Journal.

trate the buck lambs. Keep the lambs growing until ready for market by seeing that the ewes have enough to make milk and by feeding the lambs, too, when they need more than the mother's milk. Market them when they are fat, no matter when that is. Always remember that a sheep will not eat or drink anything that is not fresh and clean. Breeding ewes must have fresh air and exercise. Never shut them in a warm barn or deprive them of exercise. Don't let them crowd through narrow doorways. Feed clover or alfalfa hay. Then a mixture of corn and oats is all right for grain. A little oilmeal helps it if the feed is all dry. Don't try to carry too big a flock; a small one will give a beginner something to do and think about too. This is a crude outline, but a trial of it may make a shepherd out of a beginner and a profit out of his flock.

Ophthalmia In Horses.

Periodic ophthalmia (moon blindness) is incurable when established. It causes blindness of one or both eyes after repeated attacks which come on at intervals of a month or thereabout. Bathe the eyes with a 10 per cent solution of boric acid twice daily. At time of attack keep the eyes covered with a soft cloth to be kept wet with a lotion composed of half a dram each of sulphate of zinc and fluid extract of belladonna leaves and ten drops of carbolic acid in a quart of cold water. If the eyeballs remain clouded after the inflammation subsides paint them once daily with a solution of two grains of nitrate of silver in an ounce of distilled water to be kept in a blue glass bottle. Slightly darken the stable.-Farm Journal.

Feeding Breeding Ewes.

To have strong, healthy lambs the ewes before lambing should have all the exercise they can be induced to take, and it is important that they should be fed liberally with bran. The feed should be carefully regulated both before and after the lambs come. It should consist of fine early cut hay. roots, clover and bran. They should be fed only what they will eat clean.

For Better Horses.

To produce better horses, first of all, use better sires. There is a scarcity of really high class stallions. Pure bred stallions of good breeding and individual excellence should be used. There is no place in a modern, scientific plan of breeding of any kind of live stock for a grade or scrub sire.

Prof. H. L. Feeser informs us that he had 17 pupils who did not miss a day during the winter term, and 4 that only missed one day; and there has been quite a number who have not missed a day since school commenced last September. He also says that the examination which was held last week, shows better work than has ever been done since he has been teacher, and he is proud of it. And we must confess, we all feel a little proud of our school, and believe that it will rank among the highest in the county.

The Kid Was Right.

A little boy was given the stunt by his father to write an essay on editors, and here is the result:

"I don't know how newspapers come to be in the world. I don't think God does for he hain't got nothin't to say about them and editors in the Bible. think the editor is one of the missing inks you read of, and stayed in th bushes until after the flood; and then came out and wrote the thing up and has been here ever since. I never saw a dead one and never heard of one getting at 1 o'clock, the following described licked.

Our paper is a mighty good one; but the editor goes without underclothes all ONE NO. 8 PENN ESTHER RANGE winter and don't wear any socks, and 1 corner cupboard, 1 sink, 1 safe, 1 desk, paw ain't paid his subscription since the leaf table, rope bedstead, long chest,  $\frac{1}{2}$ paper started. I ast paw if that was why doz. cane-seat chairs, child's crib, lot of he had a shirt washed in the summer. And then paw took me out into the wood-shed and lickt me awful hard.

If the editor makes a mistake folks say he ought to be hung; but if a doctor makes any mistakes he buries them and people dassent say nothing because doctors can read and write Latin. When the editor makes a mistake there is law-suits and a big fuss; but if doctor makes one there is a funeral, cut flowers and perfek silence. A doctor can use a word a yard long without him or anybody knowing what it means; but if the editor uses one he has to spell it. If the doctor goes to see another man's wife he charges for the visit; but if the editor goes he gets a charge of buckshot. When the doctor gets drunk it's a case of being overcome by heat and if he dies it's from heart trouble; when an editor gets drunk t's a case of too much booze and if he dies it's the jim jams. Any college can make a doctor; an editor has to be born." -Lonaconing Advocate.

But the sermon, even if it did make the audience of afternoon and evening wince, made an obvious impression and the trail-hitters seemed decidedly in earnest. Some of them wept openly.

Old men hit the trail, young men, little boys in knickerbockers and youths in their first long trousers. One Chinaman, with an inscrutable expression on his face, was piloted up the sawdust aisle by a man with white mutton-chop whiskers, and gravely shook the hand of Sunday. Then both the Oriental and his guide disappeared. A man who also appeared to be from the Orient, judging by his swarthy skin, coal-black eyes and general manner of being out of place in that gathering of Americans, brought his little boy to the platform. Both had hit the trail.

On the steps of the platform, to the right of the press box, stood a man with long white whiskers. A younger man hit the trail, went to him and wept on his shoulder.

"Hallelujah! Praised be the Lord!" shouted the aged man, his eyes streaming.

He Throws Himself About.

In delivering his sermon in the evening Sunday appeared more like the man as he is known best to the United States than he had since his first week in Baltimore. In contrast with his manner in the morning, he indulged in gestures of the most erratic kind, sprang upon his pulpit, threw himself once upon the platform to illustrate a baseball story, waved his arms, sprang about like a boxer and raised his voice again and again to a shout. Perspiration streamed from his face, his hair was disheveled and his collar a moist rag when he was halfway through.

He spoke in the language of the street, discussed diseases and vice in the vocabulary which the most uncultured could understand best, coined "Sundayesque" epigrams and hurled them like shrapnel into the bulk of his Grand Total 1.011.

Outside of the tabernacle meetings the largest number of trail-hitters were reported by Miss Alice Miram Gamlin. At two union meetings, afternoon and evening, at Calvary Presbyterian Church, she prevailed upon 52 persons, 22 of them being children, to pledge their lives to Christianity. In the morning Miss Gamlin had conducted a meeting at the Mount Royal Avenue Methodist Protestant Church, She has charge of the boys' and girls' work of the Sunday organization.

This brought the grand total of trailhitters for the day, in all services conducted by or under the auspices of the Sunday organization, to 1,011.

The throng which first heard the "Devil's Boomerang" sermon consisted of men and youths, who had arrived at the tabernacle by noon and waited patiently considerably more than an hour for the afternoon activities to begin.

This congregation was fully as much impressed by the testimony of Representative John T. Cooper, of Ohio, as by the sermon. He told how he had oaths platitudinous, but then we are not been converted by Sunday seven years ago, how he had thereafter risen from the humble position of locomotive engineer to become Congressman from Ohio, and who gave nearly all of the credit for his success to Sunday. It was the testimony of Representative Cooper which helped bring the 295 men to the platform up the sawdust trail.

We paw cround and swear again, and long for summer air again, for breezes warm and sweet; we think we'll then be happier, but doubtless we'll be scrappier, when summer brings its heat. Our language will be vigorous, when our sore legs are chiggerous, when ants crawl up our backs; we'll still be cussing drearily, while we are swatting, wearily, the flies that stick like wax. Our discontent's inherited; we hand out roasts unmerited, to all that comes along; instead of smiling merrily, we yelp and say, "Yea, verily, whatever is is wrong." Man ought to face things cheerily; complaining always, tearfully, betrays the spineless rube; man's head is largely ivory and he for sense must strive or he becomes a hopeless boob.

"Don't worry if there are no pock

The following narrative is given exactly as it occurred with scarcely any filling in transforming it from ordinary parlance to the story form:

One of the saddest features of the war between the states was the arraving against one another of the different members of the same family. Such cases were more especially to be found on the border line between the United States and the Confederacy. In east Tennessee the prevailing sentiment was for the Union. Kentucky was about equally divided. Maryland was in favor of the Confederacy. All these states, however, were held for the Union by being occupied by Federal troops in the early part of the war. In Missouri, which was geographically a northern state, the institution of slavery had been planted, and both Confederates and Federals waged war for its possession, the latter gaining the day during the early part of the war.

For years the mutterings of the strife that was to come were heard in the land, and for months those who were farseeing began to fear that it was about to break forth. Then came the day of firing on Fort Sumter, and the people began to range themselves on the side with which they sympathized. One day two brothers, Allmon and George Vaughan, bade each other good-by In the town of Canton, Mo. Allmon's sympathies were with the north in the struggle about to take place, while George's were with the south. 'I am sorry, George," said Allmon,

"that you are determined to take the Confederate side in this contest, but I grant that you are honest in your convictions. You are to be in the Confederate army; I shall fight with the Federals. I hope that we shall never meet on the field of battle."

"And I regret, Allmon, that you will not be convinced of the wrong the northern people are doing the south and that you will not join me in defending her. However, since I can't convince you we must part."

"Goodby, George. I hope that we will both come out of the struggle alive and shall meet again here at our home, but something tells me that the war will be a long one and before that can be we shall both be exposed to terrible dangers."

Little did either of the brothers foresee the great danger that would befall one of them and the efforts to be made by the other to save him from a fate worse than death on the battlefield or under the surgeon's knife. George Vaughan made his way to the south, while Allmon was given a position on the staff of General Mark E. Green, an old friend of the

he was usually executed. However, Senator Henderson began his efforts in behalf of the prisoner by laying the case before the secretary of war. Mr. Stanton made an investigation of the case and decided that the sentence of the accused was deserved and must be carried out. Then Senator Henderson appealed to the president. Mr. Lincoln during the war was regarded by those high in command as a stumbling block to military discipline. So tender hearted was he that he could not refrain from interfering in the case of deserters from the Union army and such persons on the Confederate side as were caught smuggling contraband goods or information into the south. Often, where the accusations were clearly proved, the president would defeat justice by a pardon. It is related that Secretary Stanton, to whom was given great power to thwart this interference on the part of the president, on presentation of an order from Mr. Lincoln in behalf of some luckless individual would tear it up, thus declining to respect it. But in this case the president overruled the secretary and ordered a new trial for the condemned man.

The hopes that were raised in Allmon Vaughan by this interference were doomed to disappointment. The officers of the court, refusing to permit their feelings to influence them, returned a second verdict of guilty. Again the president was appealed to, again he ordered another trial, and again the same verdict was returned. Naturally these three trials consumed a great deal of time, and when the last verdict was returned the spring of 1865 had opened, and the end of the war was in sight. Senator Henderson refused to be discouraged. There was one means of saving George Vaughan's life that had not been utilized. President Lincoln possessed the pardoning power in such cases, and the senator resolved to make an effort in that direction.

Visiting the White House, he obtained access to the kind hearted president and solicited a pardon for the condemned Confederate, urging the fact that the war was practically over and such an act of clemency would go far to bringing the Confederates of Missouri back into the Union fold.

"See Stanton," said Mr. Lincoln, "and tell him that this man must be released.'

"I have seen him," replied the senator, "and he will do nothing."

"See him again," said the president, "and if he will do nothing come back to me.

Again Senator Henderson sought the iron secretary, who set his square jaws and refused to interfere with the verdict of the court martial. Had Allmon Vaughan known of this final effort to save his brother from an ignominious death and of the shadow that was then hanging over the only man who could save him he would have lost all hope.

It was the 14th of April, 1865. Senator Henderson called upon the president to report the issue of his final effort with the secretary of war. The senator was shown to Mr. Lincoln's private room, where he found him dressing for the theater.

"Mr. Stanton will do nothing

SCHOOL SUNDAY Lesson I .- Second Quarter, For

April 2, 1916.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts ix, 1-11, 17-19 Memory Verses, 17, 18-Golden Text I Tim. i, 15-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The first two verses of our lesson chapter describe Saul going on in the same spirit as when he consented to the murder of Stephen and kept the raiment of those who stoned him. He is still breathing out threatenings and slaughter against the disciples of the Lord (what a horribly bad breath from the pit), and he is indorsed by Israel's high priest, who was professedly God's high priest. The account of his zea. for the devil is written in five different places-in our lesson chapter and in Acts xxii, xxvi; Gal. i and I Tim. i He confessed that he was a blasphemer and a persecutor; that he was exceedingly mad against the saints, beyond measure persecuting the church of God, shutting up men and women in prison and giving his voice against them when they were put to death and all the time thought that he was right in thus opposing the teaching and the followers of Jesus of Nazareth. He was, as he afterward said, blinded by the god of this world and ignorant of his devices, and it was an exceeding abundant grace that had mercy on him and saved him (II Cor. ii, 11; iv, 4 I Tim. i, 14). The day came when he reached the limit, and God's clock struck its "no further" (Job xxxviii, 11). He was not at a preaching service nor under any so called means of grace, but on his way to imprison and kill more saints and nearing his destination, many in Damascus trembling if they knew of his coming, when suddenly, about noon, he fell to the earth because of a light from heaven above the brightness of the sun which shone upon him, and he heard a voice saying to him in the Hebrew language, "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?" The people who were with him saw the light, but did not hear the words. He not only saw and felt the light and heard the words but he saw the Lord Jesus (verse 17) who thus condescended to appear to him personally, as He will to the na tion at His coming in glory, for it is written, "They shall look upon me whom they have pierced," and they shall say, "Lo, this is our God; we have waited for Him, and He will save us" (Zech. xii, 10; Rev. i, 7; Isa. xxv, 9). To Saul's question, "Who art Thou, Lord?" the answer came, "I am Jesus of Nazareth, whom thou persecutest." What an illustration of the assurance that believers are members of His body and that to touch one of His is as touching the apple of His eye! (Eph. v, 30; Zech. ii, 8.) Although Saul's natural eyes were blinded by this great light and he remained three days without sight, he received sight such as he never had before, the eyes of derstanding being enlightened, for the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ had shone in (Eph. i, 18; II Cor. iv, 6). From that hour he was born from above, a child of God, a sinner saved, a rebel surrendered, wholly submitted to Jesus Christ risen from the dead and ascended to heaven. The glory of that light from heaven made him forever blind to all human greatness or righteousness, and now to him to live was Christ (Acts xxii, 11; Phil. i, 21). With trembling and astonishment he submissively said, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" And thenceforth he was the bondservant of the Lord Jesus Christ. What his communings were those three days without sight or food or drink, and where he went to in Arabia, and his experiences there for three years (Acts ix, 9; Gal. i, 15-19) we may perhaps learn from his own lips some day, but this we may be sure of-there was no one worth while to him but Jesus Christ. How wonderful are the words of the Lord to Ananias concerning him, "He is a chosen vessel unto me, to bear my name, * * * for I will shew him how great things he must suffer for my name's sake' (verses 15, 16). Compare chapter xxii, 14-16; xxvi, 16-18, and get a better grasp of his full commission. Take to your own hearts, O fellow believer, that these things were written for us and that we, too, may be vessels unto honor, sanctified and meet for the Master's use, prepared unto every good work (II Tim. ii, 21). The Lord had shown Saul, in a vision, during his blindness, a man named Ananias coming in, and putting his hand on him that he might receive his sight (verse 12), and Ananias in person literally fulfilled it, putting his hands on him and saying, "Brother Saul, the Lord, even Jesus, that appeared unto thee in the way as thou camest, hath sent me that thou mightest receive thy sight and be filled with the Holy Ghost." At once he received sight. something like scales falling from his eyes. He arose and was baptized, received meat and was strengthened and preached Christ in the synagogues that He is the Son of God (verses 17-20). He soon began to realize something of the persecution he had made others feel. But perhaps one of the sorest trials was when the disciples at Jerusalem refused to believe that he was a disciple until Barnabas, true son of consolation, persuaded them that he was truly a disciple and had been preaching boldly at Damascus in the name of Jesus.

CEREALS MUST BE PREPARED WITH EXACTITUDE.

To Bring Out the Full Food Value of the Grain Requires Skill and Thought on the Part of the Housewife.

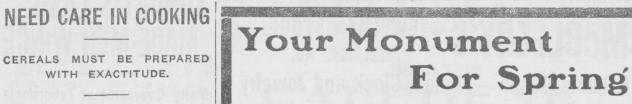

We have no fault to find with the many excellently prepared and socalled cooked cereals which from time to time are found appetizing and agreeable in appearance, but there is also need of cereals which require long-continued cooking to extract the full value of the grain and bring it to a delicious creaminess. In this class are oatmeal, wheat, hominy, rice and corn. By whatever name the various ground preparations are called, they all need continued, intense cooking to burst the starch cells, soften the surrounding husk tissues, and make them thoroughly fit for human food.

Cracked wheat is a coarse form of wheat with a particularly nutty flavor. So-called "whole" or "pinhead" oatmeal has advantages over the more usual "rolled" form. Good hominy, which is now no longer prepared with lye, is another breakfast food which should be more frequently used. Cornmeal, although fallen into disrespect and considered common, perhaps, is one of the best of cool weather cereals. It is rich in starch and fat and thus in heat-producing qualities. Oatmeal is the one cereal containing the largest amount of protein or muscle-forming nutriment. That is, it is comparable to meat cr any cereals, and contains less starch. It is therefore, perhaps, the cereal which should be most frequently given to the growing child. The whole grain must be soaked all day and then steamed several hours, but in this form it furnishes a splendid and sufficient breakfast cereal.

Next to oatmeal comes wheat with a higher per cent of starch. It should, however, be used in as nearly the natural state as possible-that is, the cracked grain with the outer coat remaining in which are stored the important mineral elements which make bone and the best kind of tissue. Hominy is almost entirely starch and therefore needs the most perfect cooking in order that the starch shells may be adequately burst and cooked.

For all of these cereals either a steam cooker or a fireless cooker is preferable. Given a half hour's quick boiling at night they may be placed in the fireless cooker, preferably with the heated radiator under them, and allowed to cook slowly with the retained heat of the fireless. Sufficient water should always be put on them to allow perfect swelling of each grain. Such cereals, when properly cooked, are not a "mush" but of a uniform, creamy consistency. It may take time or rather a little more effort to cook cereals properly, but the effort is more than repaid in the quality of the food. The cool weather cereal should be a point of special care with the housewife. Curried Oysters. Drain and wash 25 oysters. Make on an ordinary pancake griddle. Throw the oysters, three or four at a time, on the griddle and brown on both sides. Lift quickly and place in a double boiler, which stands beside the griddle. When all the oysters are cooked add to them one tablespoonful of flour, one-half tablespoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of curry powder and a dash of cayenne pepper. Stir until the ingredients reach the boiling point and add one tablespoonful of lemon juice and one small onion grated.

Vaughan family.

About a year after the parting of the brothers George Vaughan determined to pay a visit to his home in Canton. Being a Confederate soldier, this could only be done secretly. Disguising himself, he passed the Union lines and reached Canton without his identity being discovered. He was received with joy, mingled with fear and trembling, by the members of his family. To Mrs. General Green, on whose husband's staff his brother Allmon was serving, he bore messages from friends in the Confederacy Quite likely the lady was a southern sympathizer, for most of the women in the border states were on the southern side, even the wives of Union officers not concealing their preference. When George Vaughan returned from his visit he was recognized by one who had known him before the breaking out of the war, and since he was known to have gone south to enlist in the Confederate army, and caught within the Union lines in disguise he was arrested and lodged in jail at Palmyra.

The record does not state that the prisoner was bearing information concerning the Union forces or plans to the southern leaders, but it is probable that he was. Having brought messages to Mrs. Green, it is quite likely that he took messages from her and perhaps to friends in the Confederacy, and it is not unlikely that there were written messages containing the contraband information.

George Vaughan was transferred from Palmyra to St. Louis, where a charge of being a spy was preferred against him, and a court was convened to try him. His defense was that he had gone to his home for no other purpose than to visit his family. Whether or no he was bearing information to the Confederates, having been caught within the Federal lines in citizen's dress was sufficient to convict him. At any rate, such was the result of the court martial, and he was sentenced to be shot.

Here was a singular case. The brother of a captain in the Union army was to be executed by the Federal officers. Allmon Vaughan heard of his brother's danger with dismay. There was but one hope for a man sentenced by a court martial, and that was in President Lincoln. John B. Henderson was then one of the senators from Missouri, and Allmon Vaughan appealed to him to use his influence with the government to help his brother out of the terrible position into which he had callen. And yet there was but little hope, for during that war when a mar his words at Gettysburg.

Henderson. "There is no hope. Mr. Lincoln shook his head; then without a word he seated himself at a desk and, taking up pen and paper, began to write.

No other such scene fraught with life and death occurred during those dark days of war. Placed on canvas by an artist it would be: The long, gaunt president, sitting at his desk about to write a pardon for one of his country's enemies, his face wearing an expression of magnanimity. Near by would stand the senator, silently wondering what the writing would be and hoping for victory. Overlooking the president is the Shadow of Death, wearing a mingled expression of disappointment and satisfaction-disappointment at being cheated out of one victim. satisfaction at the certainty of securing a far more important one in the man who was robbing him of the other. When Mr. Lincoln had written a few lines he handed the paper to the senator. Henderson scanned it with a look of mingled pleasure and triumph. It was a pardon for George Vaughan and an order for his release.

Having expressed his gratitude to Mr. Lincoln the senator hurried to the telegraph to flash the good news to Missouri, relieving the strain on the condemned Confederate and gladden the hearts of his brother and others who loved him.

But the president, shortly after this act of mercy, descended to a carriage and was driven to the theater and while sitting in his chair, possibly thinking rather of the life he had spared than the play, was sent to his long home by one who thought he served the same cause as the man he had pardoned

Half a century has passed since the tender hearted president was martyred. There have been many anecdotes told of him, but none so affecting as this writing of a pardon for a Confederate officer and going directly to his death at the hands of Booth. We have Mr. Lincoln's speech at the dedication of the field of Gettysburg. Every day is advancing Mr. Lincoln in the admiration and the hearts of the civilized world. Beside its impressive words should stand this last act of his life from which the pardoner went to his own death. His words of consecration on the battlefield were long in being recognized for their true value and in finding the place among men they occupy today. Perhaps at some future date this last official act-an act of clemency-may take its place beside

E VERY DOLLAR you send out of town flies away with a value that rightfully belongs to your community. Spend it at home, with your home merchant, where its value stays with you and helps to build up your interests. When you come to think of it, there are only two kinds of dollars—the "Dollar with Wings" and the "Development Dollar." The "Dollar with Wings" goes to build up the Far Distant City, the Big Metropolis, with its vice and crime and low wages and poverty. The "Development Dollar" goes to build up the Home Town. It helps build up a nation of real men and women. Then, let us make the dollars we spend "Development Dollars," home-town builders, building for us and our neighbors and our children, making our community more prosperous, more happy, more contented.

On Thursday evening, March 30, there will be a spelling match at the Clear View school. The ladies will spell against the gentlemen. The successful contestants will receive prizes. A short entertainment by the school children will precede the spelling contest. Patrons and friends of the school are cordially invited. The program begins at 7 o'clock. Music.

Joseph E. Althoff and family left on Tuesday evening for their new home, near York. Mr. Althoff will operate a small truck farm, and is reached by Rural Route No. 11, from York. We are sorry to lose such a family of good citizens, who have made themselves popular with everybody. They will be welcomed back to this community at any time.

Helen Grace Creager, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Creager, of Lebanon, Pa., won second prize in a perfect baby contest in that city, with a mark of 981. There were 78 in the contest, the first prize going to a boy, Helen Grace therefore being the first girl. She is a granddaughter of Mrs. John S. Bewer, and ty, containing grand-ma, as well as the parents, are very much enjoyed by the 175 persons present. Addresses were delivered by Revs. L. B. Hafer, G. P. Bready, S. R. Downie and W. J. Marks. The Taneytown Orchestra was present and helped to enliven the occasion. A mixed quartette delighted those present with several selections, and in general, a very pleasant evening was spent.

As a result of a public meeting held on Tuesday night, it was ordered that the Shapiro firm, of New York, be notified that its several conditions relative to locating a dress factory had been met, which means building secured for five years, and the required number of operators. Girls or women, who want to register as workers, either in the factory or for work at home, should do so either with D. W. Garner, A. G. Riffle, B. O. Slonaker, Dr. N. A. Hitchcock, Wm. E. Burke, or D. J. Hesson.
